The snow may fly, and three new members out of a total of five composing the commission may sit in judgment, before Mr. Humphrey's proposal is discarded or accepted finally. At present the commission members are admittedly at loggerheads over it. A change in the majority personnel of the Commission may be favorable or unfavorable to it. One member of the Commission, who, of course, was not Mr. Humphrey, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week he did not think anything would ever come of the proposal. He expressed the opinion that it has already been tried and found wanting. He considered the Postoffice Department fraud order amply covers the subject. But Mr. Humphrey left behind him the distinct impression he not only thinks his proposal justified by the investigation he has made of the advertising columns of newspapers and magazines which throw their advertising space open to crooks and fakers, whether unknowingly or not, but he believes the Commission can rightfully and lawfully institute drastic measures to take into court, if necessary, those who derive profit from accepting fraudulent or misleading advertising as well as those who reap gain by placing it.

A. A. A. A. COMMITTEE ENDORSES NEW PLAN

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S exclusive story of last week reporting plans of the Federal Trade Commission to cite publishers for accepting and agencies for placing fraud or "quack" advertising came before the meeting of the American Association of Advertising Agencies' executive committee in New York, July 13. Following the afternoon session, James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary, issued the following statement:

"Any move made against questionable advertising meets with the long established rule of our association. The Federal Trade Commission is now merely measuring up to an advertising standard we set many years ago."

HUMPHREY EXPLAINS

WASHINGTON, July 15.—An Associated Press dispatch from Seattle, published Thursday in the Washington Star, which quoted Commissioner Humphrey as stating that as the first step in a campaign against undesirable advertising, "A complaint was filed by the Commission yesterday at Washington against the McGowan Laboratories, Chicago, and the True Romances Magazine," was read with obvious disapproval by Commissioner Van Fleet and other commissioners at Washington.

Mr. Van Fleet told EDITOR & PUBLISHER, he would not discuss the case as to do so would be in violation of the Commission's fixed rule that a complaint must not be made public until an answer to it is filed by the respondent. He added, however, that Mr. Humphrey, if quoted correctly, must be speaking for himself and not for the full Commission as the "idea originated entirely with Mr. Humphrey."

The dispatch stated further:

"We have been after fraudulent advertisers before," said Humphrey, "but they are often fly-by-night concerns and it was hard to get results. This is the first time an advertising medium has been made party to such a case."

The complaint operates to bring the advertiser and publisher of the magazine before the commission for a hearing. The commission may order the magazine to desist from publishing advertisements of the nature to which the complaint made objection. Humphrey said that this was but the first of many complaints to be issued against certain magazines carrying alleged fraudulent advertising.

Newspapers, he said, carry very little fraudulent advertising.

"There are three types of advertising which are particularly harmful," Humphrey declared. "They are the cosmetic advertisements, such as the one in True Romances; the health advertisements which are often indecent, and the industrial advertisements."

"GRAY TERROR"

Our Latest Serial
By HERMAN LANDON
In 29 Daily Installments

Relates the astonishing adventures of The Gray Phantom, hero of many breath-taking escapades.

"A most thrilling novel, one of swift action and rare daring, suspenses and surprises galore."—Boston Globe.

"A brimming measure of exciting entertainment."—N. Y. Times.

LEDGER SYNDICATE
INDEPENDENCE SQUARE PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Los Angeles Times

Again First IN THE WEST for first six months of 1926

FIRST in Total Advertising

Los Angeles Times . . . 13,608,084
Nearest Local Paper . . 11,489,128
Times Lead 2,118,956

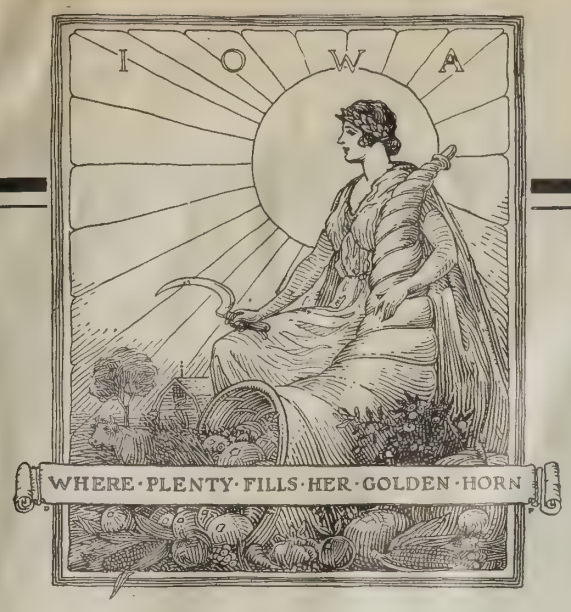
FIRST in National Advertising

Los Angeles Times . . . 2,276,596
Nearest Local Paper . . 2,173,178
Times Lead 103,418

FIRST in "Local Display"

Los Angeles Times . . . 6,683,936
Nearest Local Paper . . 5,559,470
Times Lead 1,124,466

FIRST in Want Ads



Los Angeles Times . . . 4,647,552
Nearest Local Paper . . 3,952,522
Times Lead 695,030

(All figures in agate lines)

Los Angeles Times

Eastern Representative
WILLIAMS, LAWRENCE & CRESMER CO.
360 N. Michigan Blvd., CHICAGO 285 Madison Ave., NEW YORK

Let us tell you about the "Iowa plan"—uniform marketing co-operation by these 28 leading Iowa newspapers — completely covering the state.

2 Big Reasons for selling in Iowa

First, the high quality—the responsiveness—of this unusual market.

Second, the help of this association, in gaining proper distribution.

Amplifying reason No. 1, here are some Iowa facts:

The average, taxable wealth of Iowa people is $4,146, as compared with $2,731 for the Nation at large. (Latest financial report of U. S. Bureau of Census.)

Iowa has more telephones proportionately than any other state—67% above the Nation's average.

Iowa's percentage of illiteracy is lower than that of any other state (less than 1%).

The percentage of Iowans 18 years old who have finished a four year high school course is twice that of the Nation at large. (Authority—the Govt.'s latest survey of Education.)

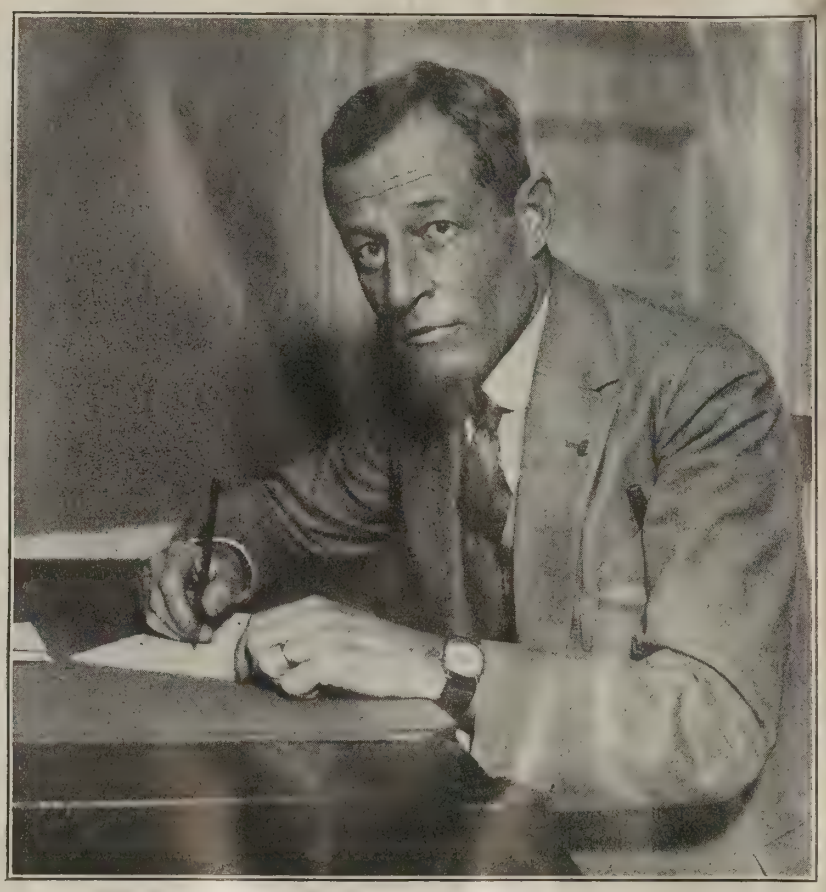
Referring again to reason No. 2,—these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers pledge uniform cooperation in connection with any adequate advertising campaign. This cooperation helps you with jobber, dealer and consumer.

These papers have a remarkable coverage, of the state. Total circulation—571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000.

The whole set-up here is just right for most effective selling. Unusually good facilities for distribution. No point in the state is more than 12 miles from a railroad.

Let us show you how our "Iowa plan" can be adapted to your specific needs. Rates and full information upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION



DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

He advocates cheap news to the Orient—C. R. Zeininger

CHEAP news service to the Orient will accomplish more than many a corps of costly brilliant diplomats in building up American prestige in the Orient, in the opinion of C. Russell Zeininger, one of the principal owners of the Manila Bulletin, who was interviewed in New York this week. He is visiting the United States following a tour of the Continent, and expects to return to the Philippines shortly.

"The laying down of American news with its fairness of presentation and editing, is the greatest advantage that American prestige and business has in the Orient. Other news services than those of the United States are by no means free from propaganda.

"The effect of the recent advance of American agencies in the Far East has been such that the propaganda agencies are slowly being forced to quit coloring their news.

"The eventual installation of the American viewpoint of journalistic fairness through cheap news service will do more toward establishing American prestige in the Orient than a corps of diplomats."

The present communication system afforded the Philippine Islands is particularly good, according to Mr. Zeininger. At the end of the World War the navy radio station was ordered to accept press messages at exceedingly low rates, he said, enabling newspapers in the Philippines to put down into the Orient between 2,000 and 3,000 cable words of world news every day, in comparison with 200 a day in former years.

"The press use of the naval wireless station will continue in force for a year and a half more. Only recently its service was greatly improved. Since I left Manila in March, the United Press and the Associated Press together with the Navy Department worked out a system of filing press matter by which news is given precedence. Now there are two separate filings a day, for morning and for evening newspapers, which has come as a great boon to the Manila papers.

"One result has been that the two American newspapers in Manila, the Bulletin and the Times, are gradually teaching the native press the meaning of the word 'news' as it is interpreted in America.

"A decade ago all the vernacular papers were controlled by different groups, representing different political or religious opinions. Nobody could hope to find a fair presentation of news in the native press.

"The extension of American journalistic practices in the Islands is gradually changing this. A complete change has not been accomplished yet, but American methods are making gradual gains."

Mr. Zeininger is a talking volume of Philippine history covering the periods beginning with the regime of William Howard Taft as Governor General through the days of W. Cameron Forbes and Francis Burton Harrison to the present governorship of General Wood. He has decided opinions about Philippine independence, believing that it should not come for a long period of years. The ultimate solution of the problem, he thinks, should be self-government, such as the self-government in dominions of the British Empire.

"Independence cannot come to the Philippines," he declared, "until the door has been opened with the political key. In other words, the opportunity for the business man to play his part towards bringing about economical independence for the islands will only be afforded when the political situation has been stabilized.

"The demand for complete and immediate independence is almost exclusively confined to a numerically small group of professional office seekers, who have found their inspiration in repeated pronouncements by American officials, which have been interpreted as pledges of such a grant.

"In this sense, the issue may very well be considered as artificial, inasmuch as it has grown up entirely apart from any serious consideration as to the means by which the fruits of such a grant could be maintained or secured."

Mr. Zeininger is a graduate of Beloit College, Wisconsin, and during his student days worked for the Beloit Free Press and contributed to the old Chicago Record-Herald. He went to the Philippines as an officer in the Philippine constabulary in 1910. In 1913, he joined the Bulletin's staff as reporter, becoming associate editor in 1915 and managing editor in 1918. During these later years he was gradually accumulating stock in the paper, and is now one of its principal owners.

PAPER FREIGHT RATE HELD UNREASONABLE

Commerce Commission Upholds Tariff from New England to Baltimore, But Orders Washington Differential Eliminated

Freight rates on printing paper and wrapping paper, in carloads, from New England points to Baltimore, were found not unreasonable or otherwise unlawful.

Freight rates from the same points to Washington, D. C., were found unreasonable to the extent that they exceed the corresponding rates to Baltimore by more than two cents per 100 pounds.

This was the decision made public this week by the Interstate Commerce Commission in the case of the New England Paper & Pulp Traffic Association et al vs. the Maine Central Railroad and eleven other defendant railroads which were ordered to cease on or before Aug. 25 the charging of the rates complained of.

The National Geographic Society and S. D. Warren & Co. were found entitled to reparation on past shipments from the Cumberland mills in Maine and from Lawrence, Mass.

Daily Plans Midwest History Series

James O'Donnell Bennett will make a motor tour of five states in the middlewest to gather material for a series of articles on historical highlights of the section for the Chicago Tribune. Accompanying him is George Morris of the business survey of the Tribune, who will make a statistical survey of the cities.

A CABLE
from BUENOS AIRES
Of Vital Importance To Every Export Advertiser

Cablegram
Via All America
July 9, 1926.

Buenos Aires
Joshua B. Powers,
250 Park Ave., New York

NET CIRCULATION JULY NINTH
321,204
(Signed) LA PRENSA.

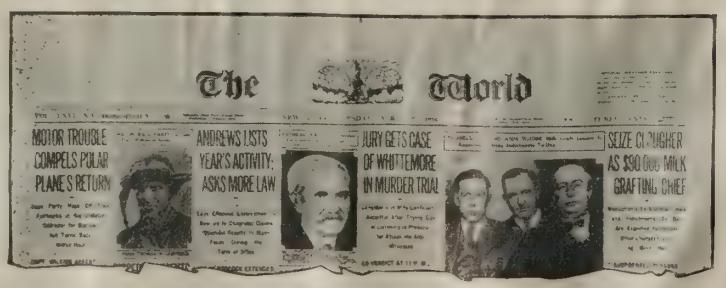
LA PRENSA of Buenos Aires thus continues its increase in circulation during 1926, as evidenced by this record.

January 1, 1926..... 300,407
February 14, 1926..... 309,877

A sworn circulation statement issued in May, 1926, gave the following figures:

Average Daily Circulation..... 235,000
Average Sunday Circulation 290,000

When you advertise in Buenos Aires use La Prensa.



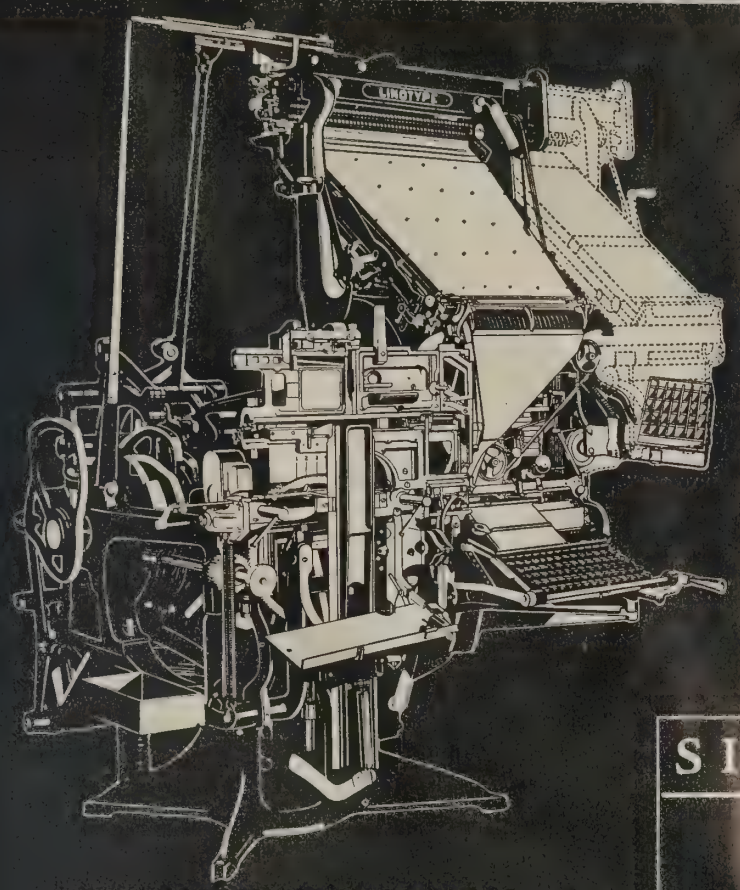
Exclusive Advertising Representative

JOSHUA B. POWERS

Tel. Vanderbilt 5943 250 Park Ave., New York

"SOUTH AMERICA'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER"

39 INTERTYPES
are being used by



No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete

THE LINOTYPE LINE

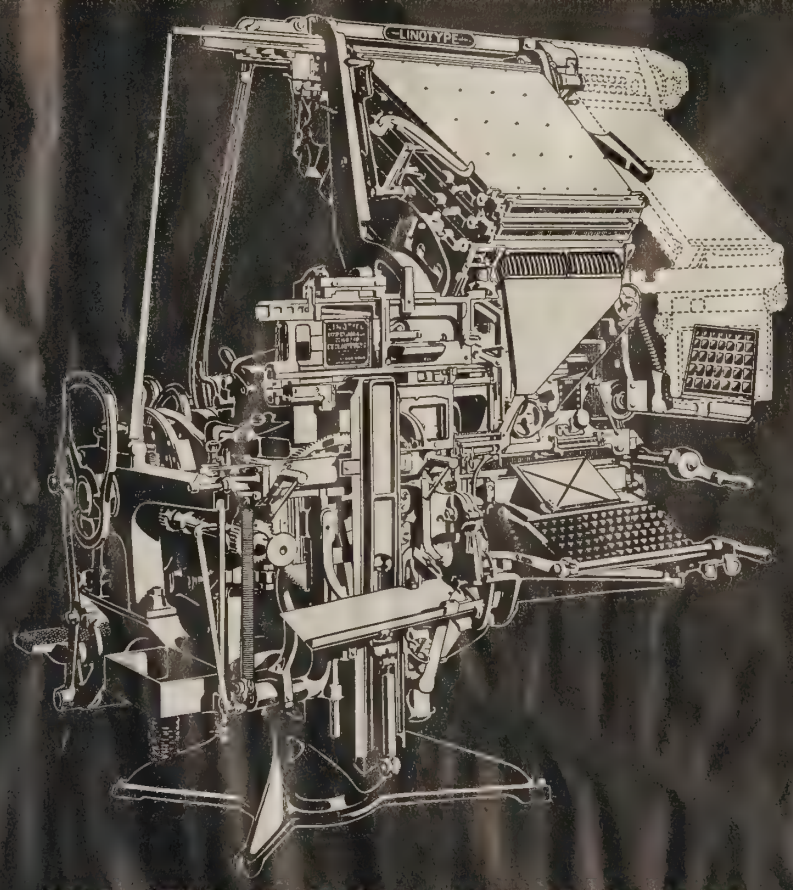
There are two types of Linotypes, either of which can be equipped with various combinations of interchangeable magazines to give you the machine you need.

MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

TWO MAIN MAGAZINES

Model 25

WITHOUT AUXILIARY MAGAZINE



Model 26

WITH TWO AUXILIARY MAGAZINES

CONTINUOUS COMPOSITION

Matrices from all magazines can be mixed in the same line

SINGLE DISTRIBUTION

ONE, TWO OR THREE MAIN MAGAZINES

Model 8

WITHOUT AUXILIARY MAGAZINE

Model 14

WITH AUXILIARY MAGAZINE

Also built as Display Linotypes

Model 21

WITHOUT AUXILIARY MAGAZINE

Model 22

WITH AUXILIARY MAGAZINE

SINGLE OR MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

One, two or three main magazines
With or without auxiliary magazine
30 or 42 picas maximum measure

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

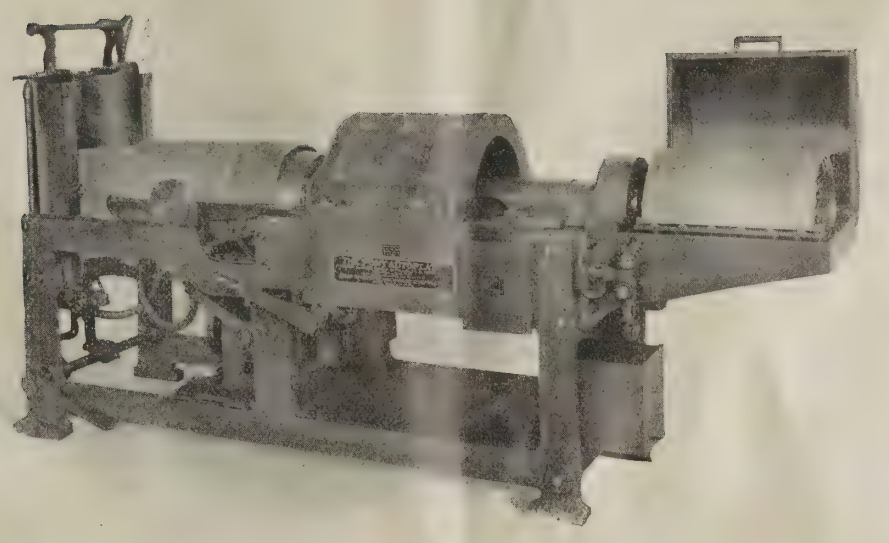
BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

COMPOSED ON THE LINOTYPE IN THE CLOISTER WIDE AND CLOISTER BOLD SERIES, DISPLAY IN NARCISS

S20.26.6-F



"I am so tired of seeing my men manicure hand-made plates that I have determined to put in a Pony Autoplate Machine and get rid of the delays of hand finishing."

—from a recent purchaser.

The time you now waste in "manicuring" hand-made plates would get many a story on the street at an earlier moment, if you had an

There is an AUTOPLATE Machine to meet the requirements of every publisher—large or small.

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORP

AUTOPLATE MACHINE

—then your plant would be on the most Modern, the Speediest and most Economical basis.

TION, 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

EDITORIAL

KANSAS CITY STAR SALE

NEWSPAPER men the world over who know the Kansas City (Mo.) Star and its sister paper, the Times, as one of the great institutions in journalism, will be gratified to learn that the staff that surrounded William Rockhill Nelson, the founder, have succeeded in purchasing the property and propose to continue the Nelson policies as only those who were members of his organization and students of his philosophy could be expected to do.

Eight bids were made for the property, but the successful offer was submitted by the staff, headed by Irwin Kirkwood, president and publisher of the Star and son-in-law of Mr. Nelson, and A. F. Seested, for many years the general manager of the newspapers.

The price was $11,000,000, which is a record for a newspaper located in a city of Kansas City's population; indeed, no newspaper except the Chicago Daily News has ever brought such a figure in a sale. The terms are rather remarkable in finance. Of the total amount $8,500,000 is to be carried on a five per cent mortgage, the principal to be reduced in minimum annual payments of $675,000, including interest. As the first year's interest charge will be $425,000, the principal obligation will be but $250,000. As the net earnings of the newspapers are now said to be on a million-dollar basis, the ten-year net average being in excess of $800,000, it is plain that under staff ownership there is a reasonable expectation of liquidation of the mortgage much sooner than the minimum terms provide, allowing ample opportunity for financing sound promotion and also payment of dividends to staff investors.

Newspaper employes everywhere will be thrilled by the information that the financing plan which Mr. Kirkwood and his associates worked out and are now executing calls for exclusive staff ownership, without a dollar of proprietorship residing outside of the Star family. In metropolitan journalism this is unique. There are only a few newspapers in smaller communities that are so owned, one being William Allen White's Emporia (Kan.) Gazette. The majority interest of Scripps-Howard newspapers was recently revealed as staff owned. The Chicago Daily News is staff controlled. The Chicago Journal was willed to members of the staff. Frank A. Munsey's will provides that his publications, including the New York Sun and Evening Telegram, must be turned into cash, which, like Mr. Nelson's benefaction, will be for the promotion of culture through the medium of the fine arts. Editor & Publisher hopes that the loyal staffs of the Sun and Telegram will be inspired by the achievements of the staffs of the Kansas City Star and Chicago Daily News and find means to finance their ownership of those great newspapers.

Irwin Kirkwood and his associates are forming a Missouri corporation to take over the Star and Times ownership. Its capital stock of $2,500,000 was oversubscribed by the Star family. Therefore there is to be an allotment of stock. Mr. Kirkwood continues as head of the business and majority stockholder.

Editor & Publisher believes it speaks for the newspaper profession when it voices satisfaction that the Star has passed to staff ownership. It believes in the principle. Newspapers are not mere business institutions, to be bought and sold without consideration of their public relations. We do not assert that the Kansas City Star could not be successfully operated by others, perhaps an even greater Star might be built up by others, but we do hold that staff ownership naturally perpetuates the great Nelson policies and we believe, both sentimentally and practically, that men who have striven as employes for the upbuilding of a great newspaper have a preferred claim, perhaps even an equity, when a property is offered for sale in these circumstances. We asserted these views in regard to the Chicago News at the time of Mr. Lawson's death, reasserted them at the time the Star came on the market and hold them in reference to the New York Sun and every other newspaper, in similar circumstances.

It is a fundamental principle also that no big city should depend upon a newspaper monopoly. A newspaper monopoly is just exactly what no great American city needs or wants. Obviously it is against public policy. However confident any man may be of the correctness of his philosophy in politics, economics, or any other field of thought, he is not big enough to be the single mouthpiece for a great American city.

The righteous shall never be removed: but the wicked shall not inhabit the earth.—Proverbs, X; 30.

Peculiar responsibility now rests upon the staff of the Kansas City Star and Times. Its members have succeeded in establishing an almost new principle in newspaper ownership, an idea that has been discussed in the abstract by the fraternity for generations. They are charged with the responsibility of meeting the Nelson standard. Nelson was a free spirit and there was no price on his freedom. He possessed an uncanny ability to divine what the public wants in a newspaper and to control what it should have. Temporary defeats meant nothing to him. To a remarkable degree he possessed the dual ability of business management and editorial skill. In the large sense he was a leader of his people.

It is a high tribute to Nelson and his policies that the staff members have paid by their purchase, impressive evidence of a continuing faith and a striking proof of loyalty. Such spirit merits and will unquestionably receive a just reward.

News and advertising are the slices of bread, features and opinions the salad, in the newspaper sandwich.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

CLOSELY examine the facts in the case of George R. Dale, an obscure weekly editor of Muncie, Ind., pilloried by a tyrant on the bench, and today facing a prison sentence for his courage to tell the truth as he saw it that the people might know of public affairs.

If this contempt of court case does not stir the blood of the newspaper men of this country the backbone has gone out of free journalism, and it deserves to be ridden by judicial despots at will. We respectfully suggest to the newspaper fraternity that contempt of court cases have gone a bit too far in the United States.

The facts in the case of Editor Dale are recited in our news columns. We are informed by responsible Indiana newspaper men that they are correct. We hope that some publisher of means and true American spunk will see to it that the Dale case reaches the Supreme Court of the United States, and that those who made him suffer in mind, body and purse for courageous truth-telling will be shown to the world for what they are. The principle that truth is justification for the publication of information involving our political system is the rock upon which rests the whole fundamental, constitutional right of free speech and free press. An Indiana State judge has struck it down and the Supreme Court of that State has sustained him.

Any discerning newspaper man will observe the probability of a political frame-up against Editor Dale. The motives are clear [illegible] was a neat means of ridding the community of [illegible] who objected to a political control which has beco[illegible]otorious for its injustices and its un-Americanism.

Following his newspaper assaults on the political powers the man was arrested for alleged violation of the Prohibition laws. The indictment against Editor Dale was dismissed for "lack of evidence." But prior to this dismissal he published in his little fighting sheet an editorial in which he alleged that "Nobody in Muncie doubts for an instant that the frame-up indictment of the editor of the Post-Democrat is the natural sequence of the general conspiracy to discredit this newspaper and its publisher."

The county prosecutor carried this editorial to Judge Dearth. Given no chance to retain a lawyer the editor was haled before the judge, who straightway, without any of the normal checks which our law in principle provides, was sentenced to 90 days and a $400 fine.

There is a possibility that the judge may have been sincere in that action, but imagine what tyrannical motives must have controlled him when, a few days later, the editor, in good faith, filed a legal answer to the contempt conviction, setting forth the entire editorial and offering to prove his charges. This arrogant judge, to the everlasting shame of the American bench, again cited the editor for the alleged contempt contained in the answer and gave him another sentence exactly like the first one.

Of course, when this vile-smelling mess came before the State Supreme Court the latter judgment was quickly reversed, but the first was sustained and the court held that truth was no justification.

Does a super-government exist in the county of Delaware, Indiana—overriding individual rights which have been established under our constitution through long years of strife for freedom? We do not think so, but a little work must be done in Indiana and at Washington to prove the fact.

Worth framing is Cyrus H. K. Curtis' remark to our interviewer: "People, you will notice, are only interested in those things which they can understand."

"BIG BOY" INTIMIDATION

THE people of New York city were startled to learn recently that the Interborough Rapid Transit Company paid switchmen and motormen $30 to $35 per week—men entrusted with the lives of millions of riders in underground passages on great, heavy, swiftly moving trains. This information was broadcast when a minority of the working men revolted against low wages and started what, in the beginning, looked like a futile, if heroic strike.

New York World says that it is "not creditable to our social order that such a hard-pressed group has to begin a labor revolt and cripple the transportation of the metropolis to compel public attention to its grievances." It is fair to remark that it is not creditable to New York newspapers that subway motormen have to strike to get a $30 to $35 wage injustice before the reading public.

The "big boys" who run New York tractions, judging from their announcements when the strike occurred, considered that a strike of only a few of the men in an "outlaw union" would easily be defeated and they reassured the public, with particular reference to safety. However, the strike has continued stubbornly and the loss of fares has been staggering. Somehow, vast numbers of people have not cared to chance a ride in the subway. Green motormen were driving cars. There were accidents. When reporters went to cover one accident, where a train had been run off the tracks at Bowling Green, some hired company thugs roughly drove them from the scene. Plainly it was their idea that the accident should not be reported. On another occasion reporters were barred from the subway until one of the press agents, who swarm around this strike, arrived and gave out a company version of what had happened.

New York Graphic published a cartoon in which death was pictured looking at the Malbone Street subway disaster of 1918, and captioned "Remember." In the cartoon was the legend "Eighty-one lives lost through unskilled operation."

It seems to us that, in the circumstances, this was public service. A newspaper certainly is negligent in its duty to its readers if it does not warn against dangers. But what was the answer of the subway management? A suit was filed by the company against the strikers asking damages for losses incurred in the strike, on the principle of the celebrated Danbury hatters' case, and general counsel for the company announced that the "company will also proceed under the criminal law of the state against any of the strikers or their sympathizers," and it was then specifically stated that among the sympathizers would be included any newspaper that published anything that interfered with the company's profits or operation. The Graphic cartoon was pointed out as an offense against the law.

We leave it to our readers to judge how far a suit against the Graphic would get. The proposition is ludicrous, but illustrates the temper of the audacious "big boy" management of this traction company.

PERSONAL

L. ROBERT McCORMICK of the Chicago Tribune, and Mrs. Mcnick were hosts at a dinner to Vist Astor and his young son on their s to Chicago this week. Among the ts were Mr. and Mrs. Tiffany Blake, T. McCutcheon, Mrs. James Keeley, Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

orge F. Booth, publisher of the cester (Mass.) Telegram-Gazette, the retiring chairman of the s and recreation commission of Wors, was given a testimonial banquet tly by members of the commission. Booth was given a suitably inscribed r platter. In accepting the gift he wed his 15 years service as chairman ie commission.

ayor Leon M. Conwell, editor of the erville (Mass.) Journal, underwent peration last Saturday for appendirl Williams, editor of the Oklahoma ner-Stockman published by the Okla- City Oklahoman and Times manent, has been appointed a member he new railway mediation board by ident Coolidge.

s. H. Moore, editor of the Knoxville inel, who has been seriously ill, is vering.

dam Breede, owner of the Hastings b.) Tribune, is visting in San Fran-ed L. Rentz, publisher of the New le (Pa.) News, was recently elected ident of the New Castle Chamber of merce.

ol. L. C. Paddock, editor of the der (Col.) Camera, leaves this month a six-week tour of Alaska and the fic Northwest.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

WIN S. FRIENDLY, business manager of the New York Sun, is tioning at his summer home in Scars-

D. Gehrig, formerly advertising man-, resigned from the Rochester (N. Y.) nal-American to enter his own pubng business. Edwin J. W. Huber, nerly publisher of Picture Play News, until recently local advertising man- of the Rochester Journal, has been inted advertising manager.

. C. Knehurt, manager of the McKald (Pa.) Record, is making a three ths' tour of Europe. His son Albert hurt is in charge of the plant during father's absence.

inar O. Petersen, local advertising ager of the New York Sun, is on ution at Sayville, Long Island.

Iartin B. Trania, manager of the enville (O.) News-Tribune has anced his candidacy for the office of ge of the common please court of ke County, Ohio.

onrad Colborn, assistant advertising nager of the New York Sun recently erwent an operation at the Post duate Hospital in New York. He is roving.

arl J. Nuzum has returned to his ner position as business manager of Grafton (W. Va.) Weekly Sentinel.

. Benjamin Yole, business manager of Waynesfield (O.) Chronicle, is a didate for a seat in the Ohio general mbly from Anglaize county.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

DWIN BJORKMAN, author, translator, and a former member of the ffs of the New York Times, New rk Sun, and World's Work, has been ned book editor of the Asheville . C.) Times.

V. O. McGeehan, sporting editor, New rk Herald Tribune, returned on the S. Reliance on June 10, from London, ere he covered the international golf tches, and also the British general ke. He was accompanied by Mrs. McGeehan, better known as Sophie Treadwell, newspaper woman and playwright.

Austin E. McCollough, managing editor of the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer, who brought the owners together in the recent sale of the Reading (Pa.) Tribune to the Reading (Pa.) Times, spent a day in New York this week, completing details of the deal.

John D. Barry, San Francisco Call, essayist who has been writing the "Ways of the World" for the past 15 years, has joined the San Francisco News staff.

Frank H. Cushman, formerly city editor of the old Boston Record and recently dramatic editor of the Boston Telegram, has been appointed editor of the City Record, official municipal newspaper, by Mayor Malcolm Nichols, who once was a cub reporter on the old Record under Cushman.

Marcus Duffield of the New York Herald Tribune copy desk, sails on July 17 on the Pennland to join the Herald Tribune's London staff. Lee Stowe, who is going to the Paris office, sails on the same ship.

Robert W. Akers, who has been attending the University of Texas recently joined the Beaumont (Tex.) Enterprise staff.

William Wren, city editor of the San Francisco Examiner, has returned to work following recovery from injuries received in an automobile accident.

Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., of the New York Herald Tribune's Washington bureau, has been elected a member of the board of directors of the Roosevelt Club, Inc., of Boston.

D. Hiden Ramsey, former editor of the Asheville (N. C.) Times, has returned to the staff of that paper as an editorial writer. J. S. Coleman, Jr., former editorial writer, has joined the reportorial staff.

Edwin J. Barrett, of the Orange bureau staff of the Newark Evening News, sailed Saturday on the City of Birmingham, from New York for Savannah, Ga., with his mother, Mrs. Charles J. Barrett. They will return July 25.

L. C. Milstead, city editor of the Birmingham Age-Herald, and Mrs. Milstead are parents of a son.

Arthur C. Clarke, acting Sunday editor of the New York Herald Tribune, has gone to Saranac Inn, Saranac, N. Y., for a vacation.

John McQueeney, sports editor of the Worcester (Mass.) Gazette has resigned to enter the printing business with his brother in New York city. Lawrence Huff, his assistant, has been made sports editor.

Kenneth J. Smith, a student at the Columbia School of Journalism, is on the Worcester (Mass.) Gazette city desk for the summer months.

Lewis G. Landers of the city staff, Worcester (Mass.) Evening Post, who recently recovered from pneumonia, has left for a two weeks' vacation.

Charles T. White, exchange editor, New York Herald Tribune, has returned from a vacation at his farm at Hancock, N. J.

John J. Mullan and Charles S. Whelan of Holy Cross College are filling in for the summer in the sports department, Worcester (Mass.) Gazette.

F. B. Morgan, of Knoxville, has been named managing editor of the Rocky Mount (N. C.) Evening Telegram.

Howard White, society editor of the New York Herald Tribune, has returned from a tour of the summer resorts.

Joseph A. Eagan, Holy Cross College student, is on the city staff of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram for the summer months.

William L. Tisdel, formerly of the Boston Post staff, now a free-lance and his wife, Florence E. Whittier, assistant to the dramatic editor, Boston Advertiser, will sail from Boston, July 25, on the Transylvania for a vacation abroad. They will attend the Press Congress of the World at Geneva, Switzerland, Sept.

(Continued on page 30)

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

E. W. PARSONS, advertising manager of the Chicago Tribune, began newspaper work as a clerk in the want-ad department of the same newspaper with which he is now associated. He worked up through every branch to the top of the advertising end of the newspaper business.

E. W. Parsons

Born in Cory, Pa. in 1884, he was educated in the public schools of Detroit, Mich., and completed his high school and collegiate training at Lewis Institute, Chicago, being graduated with the class of 1904. Then it was he found the clerk's job.

His subsequent transfer to the display advertising department placed him first in the financial field. After that he worked in the automobile end and general solicitation, until he was appointed western representative in 1908.

Two years later he was made advertising manager, and has held that position since.

Month after month and year after year in the number of clients and volume of business.

A STEADY INCREASE

Seventeenth year—Now over four hundred clients. Have you seen recent proofs of the service?

Write or wire.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNitt, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNitt, Editor and Manager

P. S. We Produce the World's Best Picture Page.

The popularity with readers of A. A. MILNE is permeating, pervasive accumulative

Readers tell potential readers how much they enjoy MILNE, and so his following grows

The span of the MILNE appeal, say, 80 down to 8, and readers of any age between, is about as wide as that of the colored comic page

THE WEEKLY VERSE AND PROSE of

A. A. MILNE

Author of the astoundingly successful "When We Were Very Young" and other famous books of joyous humor

Bert Salg does the delighting drawings for the A. A. MILNE Weekly Feature

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St., New York City

14-18. Both are graduates of the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

WITH THE SPECIALS

WASHINGTON (Ind.) DEMOCRAT has appointed Scheerer, Inc., its national representatives East and West.

Harry E. Hyde, formerly advertising manager for the Hubbard Publications, has opened a special agency at 548 Drexel Building, Philadelphia, and is representing a number of publishers.

La Union of Valparaiso, Chile, has appointed Joshua B. Powers, 250 Park avenue, New York, its advertising representative for the United States effective immediately.

Knoxville (Tenn.) Free Press has appointed Hamilton-DeLisser, Inc., Special Agents, its national representatives.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

GROUND was broken Monday for the new building of the Greensboro (N. C.) Patriot, semi-weekly. The owner of the majority stock, T. J. Murphy, who is also the editor and manager, has made plans for a modern structure which will represent an expenditure of about $50,000. The Patriot is now in its 101st year.

N. W. Reay of the St. Paul (Minn.) Daily News recently made installation of a Gross Sextuple Press.

Ft. Smith (Ark.) Journal has purchased a 28-page press with a full outfit of stereotyping machinery from R. Hoe & Co., Inc.

Cross Plains (Tex.) Review, edited by R. A. Autrey with Glenn Adams as assistant, recently moved into a new brick home.

Des Moines (Ia.) Capital has finished installing six Goss Low Construction press units and two pairs of folders.

Worcester (Mass.) Post has purchased new stereotyping equipment from R. Hoe & Co., Inc.

MARRIED

THOMAS BATEMAN, Jr., manager of the Central Ohio Paper Company's branch office at Huntington, W. Va., to Miss Mary Deegans of Huntington.

Walter W. Schramm, news editor of the Toledo Blade, to Miss Iva Modern, formerly of the Blade circulation department, July 1.

Peyton Engle, manager of the printing department, Martinsburg, (W. Va.) Journal, to Miss Mary Cushwa, in Trinity Episcopal Church, Martinsburg.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

DEL NORTE (Col.) SAN JUAN PROSPECTOR has been leased to John I. Keller, formerly of Grant, Neb.

Glenwood Springs (Col.) Avalanche-Echo was purchased recently by Leo H. Bowen.

Thomas W. Houston, editor of the Kremmling (Col.) Register, has purchased the Middle Park Times at Hot Sulphur Springs, Col., formerly owned by the late Lew Wallace.

Roy Swiger has leased the Mason City (Ill.) Banner from W. H. Milby for a year.

SCHOOLS

PROF. J. L. O'SULLIVAN, director of the Marquette University College of Journalism, Milwaukee, Wis., has assumed charge of summer classes in Journalism at Marquette, after heading the United Press staff at the Eucharistic Congress.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

PORTLAND (Me.) TELEGRAM, State of Maine edition, July 4.

Elgin (Ill.) Courier-News, 20-page real estate and home building edition, July 8.

Weymouth (Mass.) Gazette and Transcript, July 2 and 9, 20 pages each, Sesqui-centennial and visit of mayor of Weymouth, England, to Weymouth, Mass.

ASSOCIATIONS

LYNN PRESS CLUB held its annual outing at Hayward Grove, July 7.

A Gladstone bag was presented to Alfonso Johnson, re-elected president of the DALLAS ADVERTISING LEAGUE, by members at the recent installation of officers. Other officers installed are: Stanley Zercher and Bailey Malone, vice-presidents; Roy Cowan, secretary-treasurer; C. C. Yost, editor O K'd Copy; Grady Gaston, vigilance chairman.

The Ninth District Convention of the INTERNATIONAL ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION will be held in Sioux City, Ia., Oct. 3, 4, and 5, Horace Wulf, president of the Sioux City club, has announced. More than 250 advertising men from Iowa, South Dakota and Nebraska are expected to attend. The Martin hotel will be convention headquarters.

Temporary Secretary Thomas, editor of the Ruston (La.) Leader, has announced a meeting will be held at Minden early in August to complete organization of the NORTH LOUISIANA PRESS ASSOCIATION.

Wilmington, Del., newspaper writers have organized the WILMINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION. There are now 40 members. Norman M. MacLeod, a reporter on the Evening Journal, has been elected president and Harris Samonisky, assistant city editor of the Every Evening, secretary and treasurer. The club will meet twice a month.

Forty members of the NEWSPAPERMEN'S GOLF ASSOCIATION OF BOSTON participated in their semi-monthly tournament at the Albemarle G. C., recently. Tom Forsyth, Boston Post, and Nick Flatley, American, tied for first and second net, and F. B. Collier had the best gross in the first flight. Alex Kennedy, Globe, had the best medal and best net scores.

ADVERTISING CLUB of YORK, Pa., celebrated its first birthday anniversary June 30, in the ballroom of the new Yorktowne Hotel. Alfred Scholes, Underwood typewriter agent, is president; S. Wehler, advertising agent, is vice-president; Hugh Carter, advertising manager, Wietz's department store, is secretary, and Gilbert A. Dietz, advertising manager, York Gazette and Daily, is treasurer.

J. J. Cusick, Idaho Springs, Col., mine operator, has offered $100 in gold to the Colorado editor writing the best editorial on the following subject: "That farming and mining are the two original industries of man's creation. On these two all other industries are based." The award will be made at the mid-winter meeting of the COLORADO EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION in January, 1927. The committee appointed to handle the contest comprises J. O. Goodwin, J. E. Morehead and Edwin A. Bemis, field manager of the association.

Frenchman advocates love-making under government control. It always has been under the two-party system.—New York American.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

BURLINGTON, KANSAS DAILY REPUBLICAN Says—

"The new Duplex press not only brought a decided improvement in the looks of the paper, but makes it possible and profitable to make numerous improvements in the paper by the printing of additional pages when desired, while with the old cylinder press it was practically impossible to print profitably more than the regular eight pages."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

C. F. Kern Opens Agency Under Own Name in Philadelphia—Caples Company Appoints Marley and Knight—Mugford Now With Cotton States Agency in Atlanta

C. F. KERN is now operating the C. F. Kern Advertising Agency at 720 Liberty Building, Philadelphia. For the past four years he was manager of the Kleinman Advertising Agency. H. F. Kleinman died recently.

Robert C. Marley has been appointed vice-president of the Chicago office of the Caples Company, advertising agency with offices in Chicago, New York and Tampa. He assumed his new duties July 15. M. S. Knight, formerly with Street & Finney, Inc., New York, has been named manager of the Tampa office of the same agency.

Henry T. Ewald, president of the Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit, is now touring Europe on a pleasure trip. He expects to return about Sept. 1.

John M. Nixon has joined the staff of the E. T. Howard Company, New York advertising agency as account executive. He was formerly vice-president of the W. S. Hill Company, New York, and more recently with Smith, Sturgis & Moore of the same city.

Thomas F. Lannin has transferred from the staff of Critchfield & Co., Chicago, to the Chicago office of the William H. Rankin Company.

Arthur W. Wilson, formerly with the Thresher Service, Inc., New York, and Ernest M. Bristol, recently with the Alfred H. Smith Company, New York perfume importers, have formed their own general advertising agency in New York under the name of Wilson & Bristol.

J. Douglas Mugford, formerly of London, England, and more recently of New York, where he conducted the A. A. C. W. advertising campaign for the Philadelphia Convention, has joined the of the Cotton States Advertising Ag of Atlanta, as director of plans marketing. He assumed his new d on July 1.

The engagement of Willard Ja Rendall of the advertising firm of Mi Rendall and Towel, Madison, Wis. Miss Marguerite Baines of Janes Wis., was announced this week.

J. S. Phillips, San Antonio, secre of the Texas Poster Advertising Ass tion, has taken over the Young-Schu Outdoor Advertising Company, K ville.

The Thomas H. Lindsay Company, vertising agency, Long Beach, Cal., moved into larger quarters in the K building. Howard S. Nichols, form of Los Angeles, has joined the firm. was at one time publicity agent for Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway has specialized in railroad, travel pleasure resort advertising.

Chet Crank, secretary of Smith Ferris Advertising Agency, Los Ang has returned after a four weeks' busi trip through the East.

Martin J. Barrons, vice-president the W. B. Finney Advertising Age Kansas City, Mo., is recovering f an operation for appendicitis.

Criminal Libel Indictment Quashe

An indictment returned by the gr jury against Andrew A. Strauch, ed of the Chadwick (Ill.) News, charg him with criminal libel, was quashed the court. The indictment was attac on technical grounds. The charge the outgrowth of a political feud.

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES
thoroughly and alone COVER the Oklahoma City Market

Four-and-a-half millions in down-town buildings and a million more in residential improvements are now under way or planned for immediate construction in Oklahoma City.

Parallel activity prevails throughout the entire Oklahoma City market.

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY
New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

Star Men Buy

THE KANSAS CITY STAR

Offer of Eleven Million Dollars Accepted by Trustees! Paper to Continue Under Present Management and Policies!

"THE STAR is Kansas City and Kansas City is The Star." So wrote Charles H. Grasty many years ago.

That statement, true then, has a new significance now. Whatever of doubt and uncertainty has existed as to the future of The Star has given place to a sense of security and permanence. With the purchase of The Star by The Star men, the bond between Kansas City and The Star is cemented with a new loyalty and a new confidence.

William R. Nelson founded The Star forty-six years ago. Under his direction it grew to world fame—a power for good and a scourge for the unrighteous. Its circulation became the marvel of the newspaper world, attaining proportions unheard of in a city the size of Kansas City.

Mr. Nelson died in 1915. Under his will the entire estate, including The Star, was left in trust to his wife and daughter, with the provision that after their death it should be sold and the proceeds used to establish an art foundation for the people of Kansas City.

Meanwhile the paper went forward under the direction of Irwin Kirkwood and the men who had been trained under Mr. Nelson.

The sale of The Star has just been consummated. The offer of eleven million dollars by Irwin Kirkwood in behalf of himself and associates has been accepted by the trustees.

Practically every civic and official body in Kansas City had gone on record urging the sale of The Star to the men who had maintained the standards and continued the success of Mr. Nelson. And these expressions were supplemented by the prayers of that great body of citizenship known as the "common people," whose unwavering loyalty and good will have ever been the chief pride of The Star and its chief claim to greatness.

The sale of The Kansas City Star to the men who have conducted its management so successfully gives to Kansas City a new pledge of service and a guarantee that the trust imposed in it by the public will be preserved inviolate.

To its quarter million subscribers and to its host of friends in every corner of America The Kansas City Star extends greetings and accepts in all solemnity the task of continuing to carry on the great program of its illustrious founder.

"The Star is Kansas City and Kansas City is The Star."

THE KANSAS CITY STAR

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

"Newsboy Mother System" Adopted by News League of Ohio—Toledo News-Bee Gives Aid to Picnickers—Natural History and Baby Contest in Indianapolis—George Schmid to Baltimore

CARRIER boys of the Canton (O.) News now have 16 mothers besides their own, and women, placed in charge of distribution offices, are not only raising the youngsters in their charge to be gentlemen, but also, it is claimed, are raising figures on the circulation statements. Details of the "Newsboy Mother System" were furnished EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week by D. R. Mellett, publisher of the News.

"Our circulation plan provides 16 distribution centers, each with a one-room branch building in charge of a mature married woman," he said. "Each branch manager has complete charge over her territory, giving her entire time to the work. She checks each start and stop; supervises daily solicitation; and sees that every carrier boy makes money.

"One noticeable effect of the new plan is the improvement in the service. Another effect is the development of a finer spirit of gentlemanliness and behavior among the carriers. The biggest effect has been increased circulation.

"We have found that the women handle the boys well and are more dependable than the average run of men we can afford to employ. Our former system called for high school boys to hand out papers. It was very unsatisfactory. We could not afford men, and therefore decided that married women would prove a happy compromise. It has. The entire city circulation system is in charge of two men, each of whom supervises the work of half the branch managers.

"Women, we have noticed, take a pride in their work. They keep their branch offices in spick and span order."

The News' net paid circulation, it is claimed, increased approximately 9,000, or more than 33⅓ per cent over last year.

George Schmid, brother of John M. Schmid, business manager of the Indianapolis News, has been appointed circulation manager of the Baltimore News. He assumed his new duties July 12.

George Schmid started newspaper work as a surburban reporter for the Cincinnati Post, and later joined the circulation staff of the Cincinnati Times-Star, under the late Charles H. Motz. Since 1907, he has been connected with the Indianapolis News, first assistant manager of city circulation, and then, for the past 8 years in entire charge of the city department.

If service is the magic word that adds newspaper readers to the list, the Toledo (O.) News-Bee ought to be getting its share these hot summer months.

This paper is now offering organizations free use of "News-Bee Picnic Athletic Kits." The kits contain indoor balls and bats, volley and soccer balls, horseshoes, tug-of-war ropes and the like. Each kit will provide athletic entertainment for a party of 200 persons.

George Schmid

A small two column box advertises the offer to readers. The box asks those wanting use of kits to list the name of their organization, the place of the picnic, the date, the person in charge, and his or her telephone number.

The promotion box said this week:

"Demand is heavier than ever now, so reserve your picnic date by sending in the coupon at once. The News-Bee gladly renders this service free to its readers."

This is the kind of service that is widely talked about.

F. L. Mollenkopf is managing editor of the News-Bee, and B. J. Hoffman circulation manager. The News-Bee, in co-operation with the local Red Cross, is now also conducting a swimming and life saving instruction course at various local swimming pools.

Getting the children and their parents interested in the paper, the Indianapolis News is now printing entry blanks for a natural history contest and a baby contest.

The natural history contest gives Indianapolis children opportunity to win three prizes in gold for the best 400-word essay on the wild animals that inhabit the local zoo. It began July 10 and will close Aug. 7. Children under 14 are eligible.

Daily promotion on the stunt carries a good paper-selling coupon in the form of a ticket which must be stamped at the Zoo gate and later attached to the essay.

The baby contest is state-wide and is being worked in conjunction with the state board of agriculture to promote interest in the Indiana State Fair, Sept. 6-10.

Indianapolis News is also running a state-interest series of articles under the heading "Indiana and Its Builders." A good picture display is carried with each article. Last week in one of the series the writer told about Tudor Hall, a local school for girls. Illustrations were of prominent students, principal, teachers, and school buildings.

The Springfield (Mass.) Union staged a boys' and girls' bicycle championship speed race, July 15. Entry blanks which had to be torn out and filled in were printed several weeks in advance and got good response.

M. W. Dickey is the Union's managing editor and J. W. Nolan is circulation manager.

"Here's a Good Hot Weather Tip" was the slug line over one paragraph in a full page promotion advertisement for the Dayton (O.) Sunday News, published in the News, July 10. Text read:

"Get up early enough to be first on the front porch tomorrow morning. Get the Sunday News. Sneak out the magazine section and beat it back to bed. Then lie there long enough to read 'The Witch's Hat,' a delightful little novelette by Douglas Newton. It's complete in tomorrow's paper—and you'll go down to your grapefruit, coffee and rolls with a smile that will make the whole family feel good."

"See Troy First" was the title of a local feature series published by the Troy (N. Y.) Record recently. It is now being sold in pamphlet form for 10 cents to readers who will fill out coupons.

William Randolph Hearst once said ten people read a boxed story to one who reads a story under a regular column head. What did your paper play up in boxes on page one July 10? Some used these:

Indianapolis News: Indiana special on 4-year-old boy attempting to cut off his brother's ears; A. P. dispatch on Queen Marie of Roumania running locomotive at 50 miles an hour.

Dayton News: A. P. on Mrs. Budlong winning "shirt" point in trial; A. P. on Queen Marie.

Toledo News-Bee: U. P. story from Zara, Italy, on queer contents of a man-eating shark's stomach; Ohio special on toothless man who lost his meat grinder and therefore couldn't eat; U. P. dispatch from Redding, Cal., on campers routed by snow and sleet.

Lowell (Mass.) Courier: A. P. Dispatch from Paul Smith's, N. Y., on President Coolidge silent on size of fish caught.

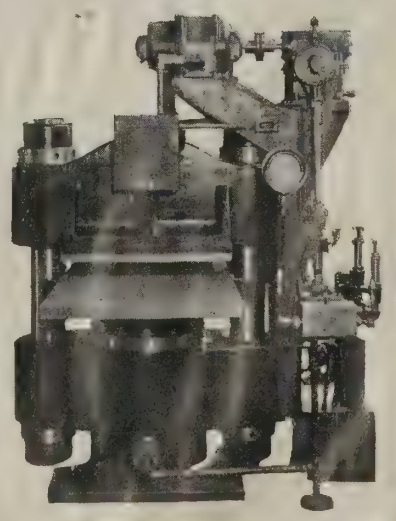
Colorado Paper 65 Years Old

One of Colorado's oldest newspapers, the Central City Register-Call, celebrated its sixty-fifth anniversary recently. For the last 48 years it has been edited by G. M. Laird.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER ploughs the field

OVER 100 NEWSPAPERS ARE NOW USING OUR

Hardened Steel Heads



THAT LAST FOREVER

Among them are the following Southern Publishers:

RICHMOND TIMES DISPATCH
TIMES PICAYUNE
MIAMI HERALD
SAVANNAH NEWS
COLUMBUS LEDGER
CHATTANOOGA NEWS
LOUISVILLE COURIER JOURNAL
ABERDEEN AMERICAN

A. J. SOSSNER
363 West Broadway, New York

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS

Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.

Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.

AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

Is One Newspaper's Space as Good as Another's?

Do the brains, money and courage that are required to lift a newspaper to ever-greater levels of excellence—do these things command no more than a casual premium in the advertising market?

Is bucket-measure the ultimate gauge of circulation's worth?

If so, The Dallas News is barking up a sadly misjudged sapling. We should have been long gone.

Yet here we are, bigger, stronger, more influential than ever before in all our forty-one years of leadership.

Furthermore we are going to keep right on developing the value of our newspapers, subordinating profit to public safeguard, making Circulation stand and salute Sincerity of policy and practice until somebody shows us a more profitable course to follow—which nobody has yet.

* * *

We believe that newspaper character and newspaper influence are the biggest things an advertiser buys. They are certainly the biggest things a newspaper possesses.

Let nobody look upon this as an alibi. The News has always led its field in volume of circulation and probably always will.

Still, you can buy circulation in quantity lots from any medium.

You can only buy The Dallas News' circulation from The Dallas News.

Dallas is the door to Texas
The News is the key to Dallas

The Dallas Morning News

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

George T. Bye Returns to George Matthew Adams Service—Bell Syndicate Already Peddling Football Features—Donald Ogden Stewart Signs With Chicago Tribune

GEORGE T. BYE has returned to the executive staff of the George Matthew Adams Service, effective July 1, it was announced this week. At the same time all current and projected features of the Putnam Syndicate, affiliated with G. P. Putnam Sons, book publishers, were acquired by the Adams service. Mr. Bye had been general manager of the Putnam syndicate since its establishment in July 1923.

Fitzhugh Green has resigned as general manager for Adams.

Ralph S. Wilkinson, salesman for the Putnam Syndicate has also joined the Adams field staff.

George Palmer Putnam, Inc., which had operated the Putnam Syndicate, is one of the largest literary agencies and motion picture bureaus in the country, also handling, on an author's agency basis, many of the biggest expeditions of scientists and adventurers. Mr. Bye will continue to supervise the business of George Palmer Putnam, Inc., as vice-president and general manager.

Mr. Bye, still in his thirties, has been an active newspaper man for 20 years, with the Kansas City Star, Chicago Tribune, Chicago Evening Post, New York Herald, New York World and as a war correspondent for a group of papers. He was assigned by the New York World to fly from New York to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, in 1922-23 on the Pan-American "Friendship Flight" organized by the World.

Donald Ogden Stewart, humorist who wrote "Perfect Behavior," "A Parody Outline of History," and "Mr. and Mrs. Haddock Abroad," has signed to write a series of weekly 1500-word humorous articles for the Chicago Tribune News-papers Syndicate. The first will appear in September, according to Arthur Crawford, in charge of the Tribune Syndicate.

Mr. Stewart is a graduate of Yale University. He is now in California doing adaptations of stories for the movies.

Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York, has already started on its football features. A series of 24 articles by Ed Thorpe has been obtained to run under the heading "Join the Big Squad."

Maj. Oliver P. Newman will follow his "Confessions of a Cabinet Member" with the "Confessions of a Campaign Manager," a feature in 12 chapters, distributed through Current News Features, Inc., New York and Washington.

Sidney A. Silberman, president of National News Service, Philadelphia, left July 12 for an extensive business and pleasure trip by motor for St. Louis and the west. He will not return until Sept. 8.

Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York, will shortly offer a series of 26 poems selected from all of Wallace Irwin's published verse. The series will be illustrated by E. W. Kemble and others.

Don S. Garden of the copy desk of the New York Evening Graphic has joined the staff of the Famous Features Syndicate, New York.

Washington News Service, Washington, D. C., this week innaugurated a daily radio feature entitled "Radio 'Round the World," supplementing the radio news and feature service now four years old, which will be continued.

Cunningham Ball Club Secretary

Edmund P. Cunningham, sporting editor of the Boston Traveler, was named secretary of the Boston National League baseball club by President Emil E. Fuchs of the Braves, July 8, to succeed Irwin L. Riley. Cunningham tendered his resignation as sporting editor at once in order to take up his new duties. He is second Traveler sporting editor to be appointed secretary. Herman Nickerson also having held that position several years ago. A. J. "Gus" Rooney, boxing editor of the Boston Traveler has been named sporting editor to succeed Cunningham.

AD TIPS

Blackett and Sample, 58 E. Washington street, Chicago. Will continue to handle the Coil products of Remmers-Graham Co.

Crotherton Company, Detroit. Using a few items in Canada for 16,000 line contracts on O-Matic Refrigerator Co., Detroit.

Allen Buck Company, Tribune Tower, Chicago. Preparing a list of papers on Schaeffer Pen Co., Fort Madison, Ia., two insertions to be made in August and two in September.

Campbell-Ewald Company, General Motors Building, Detroit. Using a large list of newspapers on Chevrolet Motor Car Company, Detroit.

Also has a list on Oldsmobile Company, Lansing, Michigan, in hands of dealers for Mr O. K.

Carman Company, Inc., 49 West 45th street, New York City. Have secured account of the Sokodor Manufacturing Company.

Critchfield and Co., 14 E. Jackson blvd., Chicago, is preparing a list on Firestone Valley Company.

Crowell, Williams and Co., Chicago. Preparing a list of newspapers for the advertising of Parker Pen Company, Janesville, Wis.

Rudolph Guenther-Russell Law, Inc., 133 Pearl street, New York City. Have contracted with several leading Wall Street houses for a campaign of investment advertising.

Henry, Hurst and McDonald, 58 East Washington street., Chicago. Preparing a list on General Telephone Mfg. Corp. (Radio), Chicago.

Keling-Gibson Company, 310 South Michigan Boulevard, Chicago. Sending copy orders on Kasch Food Products Co., Springfield, Ill., to newspapers in Oklahoma, Kansas, Louisiana, and Kentucky.

McJunkin Adv. Company, 5 So. Wabash avenue, Chicago. Will hereafter place the account of Shaw Walker Co., Muskegon, Mich.

MacManus, Inc., 82 Hancock avenue E, Detroit. Is handling the account of Chrysler Motor Car Co., which will announce a new car on Sunday, July 11.

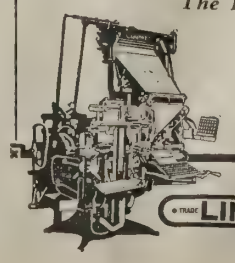
Michigan and Ohio newspapers are receiving schedules on the East Michigan Tourist Association, Bay City, Mich. Joe Dermody, Bay City, is in charge of advertising at the offices of the Tourist association.

Morris-Harris Company, 400 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Has schedules ready for representatives on S. S. Kresge Co., Detroit.

Potts Turnbull Company, 6 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will handle the Senreco Corp. (tooth paste), Cincinnati.

Prather-Allen Company, 307 E. 4th street, Cincinnati. Has issued orders to newspapers on Kenton Pharmacal Co., Covington, Ky.

William H. Rankin Company, Tribune Tower Chicago. Placing account for the Herman Nelson Corporation, Moline, Illinois, for new invisible radiator which they are putting on the market.



William H. Rankin Comapny, 342 Madison avenue, New York City. Has secured the following accounts. Lepel Ignition Corporation, New York City. Jacobson Manufacturing Company, Newark, N. J., makers of Depend-Oil heaters.

From the Linotype Mailbag

"Service can't be beat"

"Received 'second elevator bar, assembled,' yesterday in response to telegram sent you Thursday noon. This is most satisfactory. This sort of service can't be beat anywhere and we greatly appreciate it."

The Democrat-Times
Aspen, Colo.

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

BRIGHTEN THE PAGE WITH GRAFLEX PICTURES

3¼ x 4¼ Revolving Back
Graflex, Series C

with Cooke Anastigmat f.2.5

For press photography—

a new Graflex

with extra fast lens

You have always known Graflex as the camera for extreme speed. The new f.2.5 model has more than three times the lens speed of the fastest Graflex offered before.

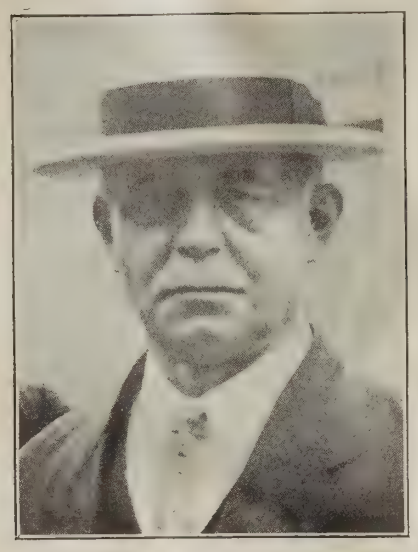
Press photographers will welcome this camera. It fits their job. Useful pictures can now be made of almost any event. In early morning or late afternoon, in the rain or under the train shed, even indoors when the light is good, the Graflex, Series C, will get detailed negatives with split-second exposures.

Famous Graflex Features

Shutter speeds are 1/5 to 1/1000. The reflecting mirror shows whether focus is sharp. And the instrument is sturdy, ready for rough weather and rough use.

With such a camera the press photographer can make pictures that most folks can't. It's exactly the outfit with which to shoot the scene that won't repeat.

Equip your photographic staff with the 3¼ x 4¼ Revolving Back Graflex, Series C. Price $260, complete with f.2.5 lens. Ask a dealer or write to Rochester.



Graflex cameras are now made by
THE FOLMER GRAFLEX CORPORATION
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

For sale by
EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

A. E. GONZALES, AUTHOR AND PUBLISHER OF COLUMBIA (S. C.) STATE DIES

Son of Cuban Patriot Was Among South's Greatest Editors—Fought Illiteracy, Child Labor and Lynching Through His Paper—"Gullah" Dialect Preserved in His Stories

AMBROSE ELLIOTT GONZALES, 69, author and publisher of the Columbia (S. C.) State, died suddenly of heart dilation Sunday morning, July 11, at his home. Partially disabled as to locomotion and speech for the last 15 years, he had, as was his custom, put in a long day's work Saturday at his office, and seemed when he left his desk after 7 o'clock to be in excellent health and spirits.

A. E. Gonzales

Funeral services, from the home of his brother, William Elliott Gonzales, were held Monday evening. Interment was in Elmwood cemetery, beside another brother, the late N. G. Gonzales (1858-1903) with whom he founded the State 35 years ago.

Robert Lathan, editor of the Charleston News and Courier and president of the South Carolina Press Association, announced the appointment of the following committee to attend the funeral: E. H. DeCamp, Gaffney Ledger; August Kohn, Columbia State; H. A. Watson, Greenwood Index-Journal; J. Rion McKissick, Greenville Piedmont; H. G. Osteen, Sumter Item; and H. C. Booker, Columbia, secretary of the Association. Mr. Lathan also attended.

Never married, Mr. Gonzales had been as senior brother all but father-like to his brothers and sisters and had devoted to the making of the State his powers of heart and mind to the very last.

Surviving of Mr. Gonzales' immediate family are a sister, Miss Harriett R. E. Gonzales, and William Elliott Gonzales, editor of the State. Ambrose Elliott Gonzales was born in Colleton county, South Carolina, May 29, 1857, the eldest son of General Jose Gonzales, Cuban patriot and colonel of artillery in the Confederate army, and Harriett Rutledge Elliott, of Beaufort, that state. His main education was not derived from books. As a boy, he was instructed at home and received a brief year of schooling at a private institution in Virginia. Then, at the age of 16, he learned telegraphy and entered the employ of the Charleston & Savannah Railway company, as agent at Grahamville.

Leaving the railroad in 1879, young Gonzales returned to the plantation where he spent two years farming.

Two years later, he went to New York to seek his fortune—and found it, in the opportunity afforded him to get 17 to 18 hours' work each day, and here, save for a few months' similar service in New Orleans, he worked for the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies, always, to meet the elder brother's obligations, holding down two positions, one on the heavy press wires at the main offices through the night, the other on the Stock, Produce or Petroleum exchanges by day.

After four years of double work, impaired health forced him to seek outdoor employment and in 1885 he began his connection with South Carolina newspaperdom as general traveling agent for the Charleston News and Courier. He came to Columbia in 1890 as secretary of the state department of agriculture and in February of the following year joined his brother in the establishment and development of the State.

During the Spanish-American war he served as a captain in the army.

Mr. Gonzales was widely known for his stories written in the "Gullah" dialect of the negroes on the South Carolina coastal islands. The publication in 1922 of "The Black Border," a collection of his short stories in dialect, aroused widespread comment in literary circles.

His negro stories fill four volumes "The Black Border," "With Aesop Along the Black Border," "The Captain" and "Laguerre." Mr. Gonzales loved good books, and the presses of the State brought out a long list of volumes for the people of the South. One of the books printed by the State was "Braxton Bragg, General of the Confederacy" written by Don Seitz, now an editor of Outlook Magazine, and for many years business manager of the New York World. Mr. Gonzales was constantly occupied with literary work during his lifetime.

The State, under Mr. Gonzales direction, was a progressive newspaper, working always for public good.

For a long time the State and Mr. Gonzales sustained a steamboat line between Columbia and Georgetown, in order to obtain competitive water rates for the city.

In 1913 the State and Mr. Gonzales financed and brought to Columbia the National Corn show, bringing to the South for the first time this great exhibition; putting up a guarantee of $40,000 and subsequently with some assistance from the railroads meeting a deficit of $12,000.

Always interested in education and trying earnestly to remove the blight of illiteracy from South Carolina, Mr. Gonzales and the State have for several years printed at their own expense thousands and thousands of copies of a small newspaper, circulated through the adult schools held in summer and the night schools held during the winter—this for both races.

The State was the first newspaper in South Carolina to lead the fight against child labor and through its influence in later years came our present sane child labor regulations.

The State was one of the first newspapers in South Carolina to fight for compulsory education.

The State was one of the first papers in South Carolina to cry out against the barbarity of lynching and to denounce lynchers as murderers.

"Few men outside of South Carolina know how heavily the State has suffered in this cause," an associate of Mr. Gonzales declared.

Tributes and condolences from all parts of the South poured into the State office following the announcement of its publisher's death.

FLORIDA

continues to be the fastest growing state in the Union.

TAMPA

is the recognized industrial center and the most substantial city in Florida.

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

is the only morning and the only Sunday newspaper in Tampa, covering the entire rich, productive and populous territory of Southwest Florida, reaching a population of 713,943.

200,000 Daily Readers.
300,000 Sunday Readers.

Represented nationally by
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency.

The New York Times

Seventy-fifth Anniversary Supplement

Special tabloid section printed in rotogravure as part of the Sunday edition of The Times SEPTEMBER 19, 1926.

This supplement will contain probably the largest group of advertisements of firms and companies in business 75 years or more ever assembled. Advertisements restricted to firms or their successors in business for not less than 75 years.

Printed in rotogravure, advertisers will have the opportunity of effectively illustrating their announcements.

Net paid sale in excess of 625,000. Advertising rates: $2.10 an agate line; full page, $2,163; half page, $1,081.50; quarter page, $540.75. Size of page 10¼ x 14¾ inches; 1,030 agate lines to the page; 5 columns to the page; 206 agate lines to the column. Advertising forms close September 1.

In high demand

Another New Ludlow Typeface

Cameo

Now in Process

THIS beautiful typeface, when complete, will be adaptable to so many uses that any description would fail to enumerate all of its possibilities. Advertisers appreciate the artistic effect this new typeface will give to their advertising. The fact that new, clear-cut slug-lines are cast fresh for every job makes this typeface practical for any use.

Dates on which Ludlow Cameo in its various sizes is expected to be ready for delivery:

36 Point - Aug. 1, 1926 42 Point - Sept. 20, 1926
24 Point - Aug. 15, 1926 18 Point - Oct. 15, 1926
30 Point - Sept. 15, 1926 48 Point - Oct. 25, 1926

Ludlow Typograph Company
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

GREENVILLE PIEDMONT CHANGES

New Staff Executives Named by R. B. Chandler, Publisher

Reorganization of the Greenville (S. C.) Piedmont as announced by R. B. Chandler, publisher, includes the appointment of Frank P. Gaines associated editor, Frederick Sale as advertising manager, C. D. Nowlin, as foreign advertising manager, C. Wallace, in charge of automobile advertising, and George Anderson as circulation manager. Gaines is an author and magazine contributor, a popular public speaker and Professor of English at Furman University.

Sale, Nowlin, Wallace and Anderson were associated with Chandler in their respective departments during his administration as president and business manager of the Birmingham (Ala.) Post.

The Kelly-Smith Company has been appointed national representatives.

DON R. MELLETT KILLED

Publisher of Canton Daily News Slain by Assassins

CANTON, Ohio, July 16.—Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News was shot and almost instantly killed shortly after 12 o'clock last night, as he was putting his car away at his home. He was caught between a crossfire, ten shots being fired, and one bullet entered near the left ear. Two unknown men were seen to dash away in the darkness as friends rushed to the garage.

Mr. Mellett was thirty-six years of age and came from the Scripps service at Akron about a year ago. He started his newspaper work on the Indianapolis News, and last December he was made resident publisher of the Canton News by former Governor James M. Cox, the owner. For the last six months the News has waged a war on bootlegging and other forms of vice, and Mr. Mellett had received warnings, but he kept the crusade up. During the past several days a policeman has been stationed at his home, but yesterday morning the officer was relieved from services as feeling had apparently quieted down.

Mr. Mellett is survived by his wife and four children, and five brothers, among whom are Lowell Mellett, manager of the Newspaper Enterprise Association at Washington, and Lloyd Mellett, city editor of the Canton Daily News.

ICY BATH FOR REPORTERS

Smith and Kirchhofer at Summer White House

Leonard Smith, New York Evening Post correspondent, and A. H. Kirchhofer, correspondent of the Buffalo News, stationed at the President's summer camp in the Adirondacks, had a narrow escape from drowning Wednesday when their canoe was capsized by waves on a lake. Their cries were ignored for several minutes, being taken for sky-larking, but they were finally rescued and treated by Major Coupal, the White House physician. Neither is much the worse for the accident.

Mrs. Emma Mayer Dies at 83

Mrs. Emma Mayer, 83, who with her three sons published the Philadelphia German Gazette, died in Philadelphia, July 5. She came to America in 1886, and with her husband the late Carl Theodore Mayer established a German weekly in Williamsport, Pa., later moving the plant to Wilkes-Barre. Later they went to Philadelphia, establishing the Gazette as an evening daily. Since 1890 it has been published as a morning paper. Mr. Mayer died in 1900.

Geneseo Veteran Dies

J. Frank Lieberknecht, 66, managing editor of the Geneseo (Ill.) Republic for the last 30 years, died at Ottawa, Ill., July 9. The Republic, which has been managed by Lieberknechts for two generations, will continue under the management of the late managing editor's two brothers, William Lieberknecht and Charles Lieberknecht.

Obituary

SAMUEL M. KOHR, 84, father of Harry F. Kohr, literary editor of the Kansas City Star, died July 6 at his home in Kansas City.

LEWIS G. BARTON, 72, for 50 years editor and owner of the Millersburg (O.) Farmer, died this week of apoplexy.

MRS. MARY LOUISE HINDSON, 63, wife of W. J. Hindson, superintendent of the press room of the Kansas City Star, died suddenly at her home recently.

A. C. NEWTON, 73, an editor of the Grand Junction (Col.) Daily Sentinel, was killed in an automobile accident near Crescent City, Cal., recently.

DAVID OLDHAM, 72, owner of the Sidney (O.) Journal, and father of Harry Oldham, publisher, died this week.

FRANCIS W. HUGHER, 57, publisher of the Postville (Ia.) Herald, died July 5. He recently sold the Elgin (Ill.) Echo of which he had been editor since 1903 to his brother-in-law, R. P. Strauch.

MALCOLM JENNINGS, 62, died suddenly at his home in Columbus, O., of heart disease on July 9. He was for years legislative correspondent and reporter for the Cincinnati Times-Star and the Commercial Gazette. In 1909 he located at Marion and became identified with the Marion Star, of which the late President Harding was publisher. Mr. and Mrs. Jennings were close friends of President and Mrs. Harding and were with the Presidential party on the Alaskan trip when President Harding was stricken.

JAMES EDWARD JOHNSON, 73, for 15 years an employee of the Chicago Tribune composing room, died July 6.

ADDISON M. GUNSAULUS, 61, for twelve years a Chicago newspaper man and of late founder, editor, and publisher of the West Hollywood Courier in Los Angeles, Calif., and founder of a Los Angeles printing firm, died in Los Angeles, July 10.

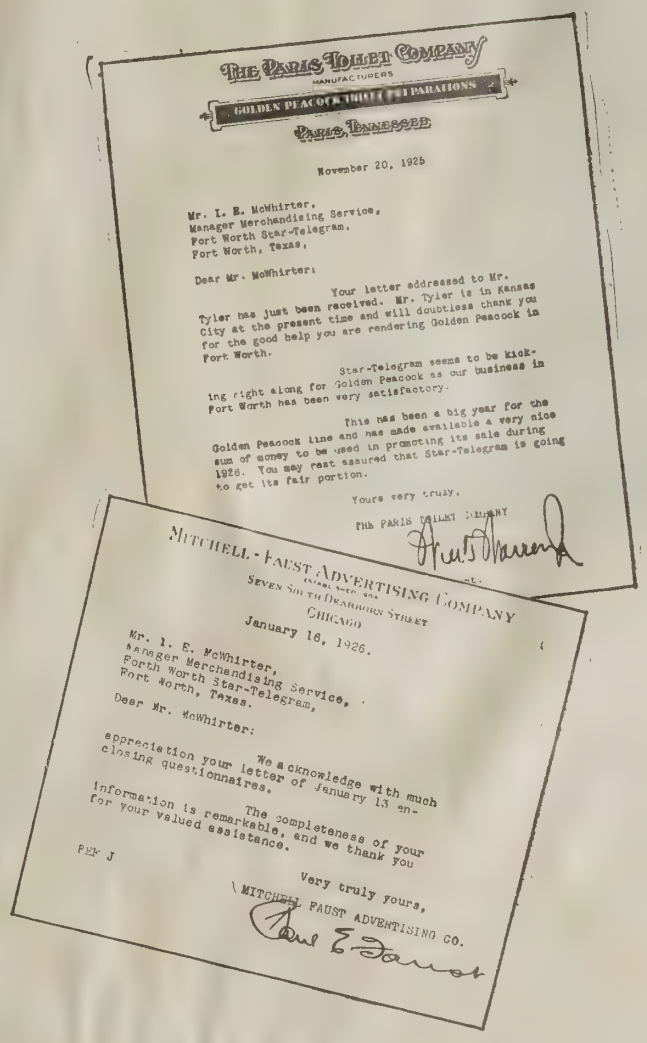
FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT



Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

The completeness of your information is remarkable —says Paul E. Faust

THE PARIS TOILET COMPANY
MANUFACTURERS
GOLDEN PEACOCK TOILET PREPARATIONS
PARIS, TENNESSEE

November 20, 1925

Mr. I. E. McWhirter,
Manager Merchandising Service,
Fort Worth Star-Telegram,
Fort Worth, Texas,

Dear Mr. McWhirter:

Your letter addressed to Mr. Tyler has just been received. Mr. Tyler is in Kansas City at the present time and will doubtless thank you for the good help you are rendering Golden Peacock in Fort Worth.

Star-Telegram seems to be kicking right along for Golden Peacock as our business in Fort Worth has been very satisfactory.

This has been a big year for the Golden Peacock line and has made available a very nice sum of money to be used in promoting its sale during 1926. You may rest assured that Star-Telegram is going to get its fair portion.

Yours very truly,

THE PARIS TOILET COMPANY

MITCHELL-FAUST ADVERTISING COMPANY
SEVEN SOUTH DEARBORN STREET
CHICAGO

January 16, 1926.

Mr. I. E. McWhirter,
Manager Merchandising Service,
Forth Worth Star-Telegram,
Fort Worth, Texas.

Dear Mr. McWhirter:

We acknowledge with much appreciation your letter of January 13 enclosing questionnaires.

The completeness of your information is remarkable, and we thank you for your valued assistance.

Very truly yours,

MITCHELL FAUST ADVERTISING CO.

PEW J

A great try-out territory—A great newspaper.

Daily and Sunday circulation over 120,000. No contests—no premiums.

FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM
(EVENING)
Fort Worth Record-Telegram
(MORNING)
FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM and Fort Worth Record
(SUNDAY)

AMON G. CARTER, Pres. and Publisher
Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulation
A. L. SHUMAN, Vice-President and Adv. Dir.

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

"Ask Miss Byrne!" is a By-Word Among Chicago Representatives—Mary Margaret McBride Explains "Literary Ghosts"—Miss Ross Writes on Quebec Liquor Regulations

"ASK Miss Byrne!"

That's the by-word of the Newspaper Representatives Association of

Miss Gertrude Byrne

Chicago, which functions in connection with the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. A hundred or more times a day, no matter what the question, the answer is "Ask Miss Byrne."

And Miss Gertrude Byrne, the efficient executive secretary of the Association, seldom disappoints her questioner. She has a mine of information about newspapers and advertising at her finger-tips, and can dispense facts and figures with a facility that is unusual.

The Newspaper Representatives Association, whose members are Chicago advertising representatives of daily newspapers, was formed in 1900 to simplify and organize data about every angle of newspaper advertising for the use of the newspaper representatives in Chicago. Each member pays $120 a year dues and is entitled, in addition to any information he may desire, to the service of the free employment bureau run by Miss Byrne for the benefit of advertising in general.

Miss Byrne, with considerable experience in secretarial work, joined the association as secretary in 1920, and since that time the membership has almost doubled. Every Hearst paper in the country is a member through its representative here, and almost every daily newspaper in the country derives the benefit of the organization's services through its Chicago representative.

While the information bureau, almost 100 per cent Miss Byrne, is primarily for the benefit of the members of the association, numerous calls are received from other newspapers and individuals.

Some one will ask: "Miss Byrne, what are the names of several organizations in Chicago placing street car and elevated advertising?" And Miss Byrne will rattle off the answer as glibly as though she had expected that very question to be asked and had spent the morning studying up on the answer.

Or a young man fresh from college will seek Miss Byrne's advice on what branch of advertising work is the best to enter for one who desires to learn what advertising is all about—the classified department of a metropolitan paper, the merchandising department of a newspaper, or an advertising agency? And as though she has known the youth all her life, she will consider his case from every angle and give him some sound advice, along with a great deal of general information on the subject he is interested in.

Garrets and basements of Greenwich Village, New York, are peopled appropriately enough with ghosts, Mary Margaret McBride, New York newspaper woman and magazine writer, said the other day in an interview.

"A ghost," she explained, "is a person who writes a book to be signed by somebody more important. Hundreds of Greenwich Villagers earn their living that way. They come to New York from all over the country, hoping for fame and recognition. What a good many of them get is a ghosting job—and somebody else gets the fame."

Miss McBride is one of the few ghosts to emerge from the ghost land of anonymity. She collaborated with Paul Whiteman in the writing of "Jazz," a book recently published. A graduate of the school of journalism of the University of Missouri, Miss McBride has been associated with the Cleveland Press, the old New York Mail, and the New York Evening Telegram.

Ishbel Ross, staff writer for the New York Herald Tribune, has written six articles on liquor regulations in Quebec as part of that newspaper's international prohibition survey now being published.

Mrs. Hal Kane Clements, writer, left July 12, from Chicago bound for a 40-day airplane tour of the Dominion of Canada. By special permission she is the only woman to make the trip and intends to write a series of newspaper articles on it.

Miss Eleanor Mead of the Worcester (Mass.) Telegram woman's department has returned from a vacation in Ver mont.

Iva McDonald, motion picture edito Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal, and Agne Dunn, secretary to the city editor the Journal, are spending the summe in Europe.

Mrs. Marie E. Waggoner, Oklahom City, is publisher of the Oklahoma W man, a 24-page monthly magazine tha started publication recently. Blanche Naylor is editor-in-chief.

Miss Mary Bouteller has been en ployed as reporter and society edit on the Norman (Okla.) Transcript, su ceeding Miss Roma Clift of Marlow, r signed. Both are graduates of the Un versity of Oklahoma School of Jou nalism.

Mary O'Keefe and Ruth Meade of t staff of the Worcester (Mass.) Tel gram recently returned from a week vacation.

Among those that assisted the Ass ciated Press in covering London's bigge story since war days, the general strik was Mrs. Smith F. Reavis of the A. Paris bureau. Mr. Reavis specialized the food situation, while Mrs. Reav kept in touch with women's organiz tions and wrote features as to the pron inent part they were playing in the a fairs of the day, just as they did du ing the war. At the end of the strik Mrs. Reavis went to Wales and wro a series of picture stories about the co miners and their families.

Miss Nellie I. Martin, of the busine department, Hagerstown (Md.) Herald Mail, was elected Queen of the Wil wood, N. J., Baby Carnival, to be he in August, by unanimous vote of 38 gi representing newspapers in five states.

Mrs. Sunshine Champion recently w named editor of the Creede (Col.) Cand

For your fiction readers and for the church going public that has never read your serials!

Eugene MacLean Offers

"LAILA"

(By JOHN NEWPORT)

A TALE OF THE DAYS OF CHRIST

It has the full value of ANY powerful serial in mystery, adventure and romance, PLUS the appeal to non-readers of newspaper fiction. . . . Written for newspaper publication, it is filled with suspense from day to day. . . . Each chapter rises to a high pitch of interest and compels the reader to look for the next. . . . Superbly illustrated, it is the biggest reader attraction to be obtained this year.

Telegraph to

Eugene MacLean

827 Folsom Street

San Francisco, Calif.

TEXANS TRY TO DEFINE THE IDEAL M. E.

He Should Have Pride and Humility, Diplomacy, Poise and Enthusiasm Says Veteran Newspaperman

By MARTIN ANDERSEN

General Manager, Austin (Tex.) American-Statesman

What's a managing editor anyway?

The question was asked at the recent convention of the Texas Press Association in San Antonio.

A managing editor, according to W. D. Hornaday, of the School of Journalism, University of Texas, is a man able to delegate authority to copy editors, news editors and make-up editors.

"Nay, nay," differed James Hoskins, managing editor of the San Antonio Light. "The managing editor of today is nothing more or less than a good news editor. Is he not supposed to be the best authority on news, good writing and the composition of head-lines, that the office affords?"

Hap Barrett, city editor for Mr. Hoskins thoroughly agreed with his chief, pointing out that either he or Mr. Hoskins passed on any story of other-than-routine importance.

George McQuade, formerly managing editor of the Dallas News and the San Antonio Express and now public relations man for the Texas Public Utilities, agreed with Hoskins and Barrett.

"If you have ten or 12 men on your staff, you can find a young chap who can write a snappy, entertaining story. All right. You delegate this job to that man. Then, if you've got a trio of bright copy readers, they can write interesting, informing head-lines. But the managing editor himself must sit on or near the copy desk and direct. A managing editor is nothing more than a director, similar to a director of a moving picture play."

Grady Kinsolving another old Dallas Newsman, Beeman Fisher, formerly with the Associated Press and now advertising manager for the Texas Power and Light Company and others gave their versions of the duty of a m. e.

Then Frank Shupe, former Texas newspaperman, now public relations man for the Southwestern Bell Company, was asked to define a managing editor's qualifications.

This was Shupe's answer:

"He should have pride and humility. The humility of an itinerant beggar on the street.

"A dazzling prince, feeling that he is the most important star in the firmament; that he is the Caruso of the newspaper world.

"He should have tne diplomacy of a Tallerand, and give no more evidence of his diplomacy than a black bell-hop in a hotel.

"He has to be willing to work uncounted hours, and when he has worked until everybody else has quit, be ready to do three hours more.

"He has to learn to think consecutively when he is interrupted two or three times a minute.

"He has to have a calm and a balance that will leave the impression he was a dumb-bell when everyone around him is excited—appear to be doing nothing and yet doing everything through others.

"He has to veil nis enthusiasm and yet he has to put the same enthusiasm and kick into his job as a young girl being kissed by her first sweetheart.

"A man, my friends, young enough to enthuse and yet, old enough to weigh that same enthusiasm as a banker weighs his judgment when a newspaper man comes in for a loan."

Vermont to Advertise

The state of Vermont is planning an advertising campaign using newspaper space. The copy is handled by Hayes-Meyers Company, Burlington, Vt., advertising agency.

FLASHES

This is the age when a child who is tied to his mother's apronstrings isn't tied to his mother.—New York American.

In addition to his various other humiliations, Newberry now suffers the indignity of being referred to as a piker.—Washington Star.

It must be terrible to be an editorial writer and wake up in the morning with the realization that you have to feel strongly all day long about the Tacna-Arica controversy.—F. P. A. in New York World.

Suzanne Lenglen's skill with the racket is equaled only by her skill in raising one.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Chicago has witnessed the largest religious gathering in history, and few places ever needed it more.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

The oats crop, Crop Statistician West tells us, must have rain at once; the wild variety can get on a long time without water.—Columbus Dispatch.

It is not difficult to understand the lapse on the part of the printer who in setting up an item about Chicago made it read "the Crook County jail."—Seattle Times.

The Vare vanity is likely to be touched eventually by those headlines suggesting that there would be a vacancy in the Senate even if he should be elected.—Pittsburgh Post.

American fiction will survive so long as circulation statements are made.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

The nearest we can get to a description of the Charleston is that it is terpsichorean static.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Faith—
THE BASIS ON WHICH WE ENJOY A BUSINESS RELATIONSHIP WITH EVERY NEWSPAPER WE SERVE

Our COMPLETE checking service handles the entire detail work of supplying "checking proofs" to every agency and advertiser promptly—and —efficiently.

WE DO IT ALL

from a few complete copies.

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.
538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

During January, February, March, April and May, 1926

The Syracuse Herald

published

45%

of all display advertising carried in the three Syracuse, N. Y., newspapers. Second paper published 28 per cent and third paper 27 per cent.

The following lineage figures for the first five months of 1926 show the Herald's overwhelming lead—

TOTAL ADVERTISING

HERALD	JOURNAL	POST-STANDARD
4,919,684 lines	2,840,278 lines	3,041,843 lines

Herald led Post-Standard by 1,877,841 lines
Herald led Journal by 2,079,406 lines

Included in the above total the three papers carried the following amount of advertising:

AUTOMOTIVE ADVERTISING

HERALD	JOURNAL	POST-STANDARD
542,472 lines	373,905 lines	457,303 lines

FOOD ADVERTISING

254,611 "	204,050 "	117,257 "

DEPARTMENT STORE

1,056,853 "	25,606 "	534,562 "

MEN'S WEAR

313,761 "	281,302 "	183,162 "

WOMEN'S WEAR

415,212 "	230,818 "	134,015 "

RADIO

82,600 "	31,423 "	48,559 "

ROTOGRAVURE

76,293 "		24,122 "

SYRACUSE HERALD

SYRACUSE, N. Y.

E. A. O'Hara, Publisher Geo. N. Graham, Adv. Mgr.

National Representatives

PRUDDEN, KING & PRUDDEN, INC.

270 Madison Avenue, New York — Globe Building, Boston — Steger Building, Chicago
507 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal. — Leary Building, Seattle, Wash. — Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

POSTAL RATE REVISION WILL DRIFT UNLESS PUBLISHERS PROD CONGRESS

"Power of the Press" Has Been Negligible Quantity in Influence on Second-Class Mail Legislation, Say Washington Observers

WASHINGTON, July 15.—The anticipated failure at the late session of Congress of the special joint Congressional committee to recommend any revision downward or otherwise of second-class postal rates, as urged repeatedly but vainly by newspaper and magazine publishing interests, is dismissed in a matter-of-fact way by Congressman William W. Griest, member of the committee and chairman of the House Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads in an "extension of remarks" in the Congressional Record appendix issued Monday, July 12.

Mr. Griest, who is associated with Senator George H. Moses, chairman of the Senate Committee on Post Office and Post Roads, on the joint committee, states in reporting an omnibus bill which, even though emasculated, failed to pass, the provisions included were those only upon which there was "entire agreement among members of the joint committee, and the matters not reported (sic) are to be the subject of a further report at the next regular session of Congress in December."

Before the recent adjournment of Congress Mr. Moses and Mr. Griest invariably fell back upon their inevitable argument that the joint committee could not agree upon second-class rates, and, perhaps, it would be better to give the present make-shift rates a further trial before attempting another revision.

Neither Mr. Moses or Mr. Griest held out any real hope, however, for any other than the kind of revision of postal rates the Post Office Department may deem best for its own interests. It is the consensus of opinion at Washington that if the publishing interests expect any revision downward there will have to be stronger pressure brought to bear upon Congress at the next session than was exerted at the last.

During the past session there was an obvious disposition on the part of majority leaders like Mr. Moses and Mr. Griest to either "put off" representatives of the publishing interests with the suggestion that second-class rates would be properly taken care of in the future, or with the pretext that the Post Office Department was preparing another report or opinion regarding such rates.

At no time were the representatives of the publishing interests able to pin down either Mr. Moses or Mr. Griest, whose control of the postal situation was conceded on all sides, to a definite promise or agreement concerning any legislation directly affecting the publishing interests. Mr. Moses and Mr. Griest simply ran postal affairs to suit themselves and the Post Office Department. Not in a single instance was the "power of the press" demonstrated in their case.

Congressional observers are therefore now warning the publishing interests that if they expect any more generous treatment at the next session than they received at the last they must adopt more militant tactics and become thoroughly awake to the fact that they can expect nothing from either the joint committee, the Senate Committee on Post Office and Post Roads or the House Committee on Post Office and Post Roads unless their demands are literally driven through one or all of those committees. The time for temporizing with a Congressional situation so manifestly unfavorable and unfair to the publishing interests is past.

JOHN D. JR., SAYS "NO"

Refuses to Let Cameramen Photograph His Sons—Might Spoil Them

Believing that newspaper photographs may cause his sons to get false notions of their own importance, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., refused to allow pictures to be taken of his three boys in Portland, Ore., July 12.

Arriving on a western tour, Mr. Rockefeller was greeted by a group of newspaper men and photographers as he stepped from his special car.

"All right, boys, what'll you have?" he asked.

One of the cameramen suggested a family picture of Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller and their three sons.

"Sorry to have to disappoint you, but it can't be done. Hard enough to bring up boys now without putting false notions into their heads," responded the visitor. "You can get all the photographs of me you want—I'm hard boiled and too old to be spoiled—but I'll have to ask you to lay off the family."

Lawrence, sixteen; Winthrop, thirteen, and Davis, eleven, are the three sons.

The Picture Told the Story

Three members of the staff of the New York Mirror last week went on a two-day fishing trip to Brewster, N. Y. They brought back pictures of themselves with marvelously large catches. But they refused to tell friends whether or not they actually caught the fish, insisting, in true tabloid style, that the picture told the story. The fishermen were Royal Daniel, Jr., city editor; Arnold Prince, re-write; and Arthur Medford.

"PHOTO By CENTRAL PRESS"

This credit line at once stamps a photograph as of current interest and greatest news value.

As a matter of fact The Central Press Association has the reputation of producing the "world's best newspicture page."

Rather significant, then, that they should choose Certified dry mats as the medium for distributing their newspaper feature services.

The reasons? Very simple.

They have found that Certified dry mats are the most economical for them to use; that with our mats they can give their clients the best kind of service, and that Certifieds assure them and their customers of the reproduction of their features to best advantage.

Certified dry mats will appeal to you for the same reasons, and their use will give you just as much profit and satisfaction.

COMPARE!

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue, New York
For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds
Made in the U. S. A.

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World
Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
The only paper in St. Petersburg, Florida, whose application has been accepted by Audit Bureau of Circulations.
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

MICHIGAN
and the
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
THE LEADING NEWSPAPER IN GRAND RAPIDS—THE ONLY DAILY IN SEVEN OTHER CITIES
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

SAN FRANCISCO HOST TO N. E. A. EDITORS

350 Delegates and Wives Spend Five Days in City—Lavishly Entertained—70 Leave Friday for Yosemite

San Francisco played host for five days his week to about 350 members of the National Editorial Association and their amilies, who made the city their headquarters for a tour of the bay district and icinity as part of the sightseeing program following their convention, which losed recently in Los Angeles. The N. E. A. party arrived last Saturday evening.

Monday the editors toured the East Bay cities as guests of the Oakland and Berkeley Chambers of Commerce. The morning was devoted to Berkeley, with a visit to the University of California and uncheon in Berkeley. In the afternoon hey were driven around Oakland and Piedmont.

Tuesday was devoted to a North Bay our.

Wednesday was San Francisco Day. Under the auspices of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce co-operating, they were taken on an automobile tour of the ity. At noon they were guests at a uncheon and entertainment given by the Matson Navigation Company.

Thursday the party took an automobile our down the peninsula with stops at Burlingame, Hillsborough, San Mateo, Redwood City, Palo Alto, Santa Clara, Mountain View, Sunnyvale, Los Altos, aratoga, Campbell and San Jose.

At the conclusion of their visit Friday morning, more than seventy of the delegates and their families are scheduled to ontinue their tour to visit Melones reservoir, Yosemite Valley and the Oakdale nd San Joaquin irrigation district. aturday will be spent in Yosemite Valley nd the visitors will return to San Francisco, Sunday evening.

PRESS AGENTS BACK N. E. A. PRINCIPLES

heatrical Representatives in New York Claim to Be Opposed to Publicity "Disguised as News" in Resolution Passed on July 9

Members of the Theatrical Press epresentatives of America, Inc., meeting New York, July 9, endorsed the stand the National Editorial Association at Los Angeles meeting voicing opposion to "press agent publicity disguised news." A resolution on motion of Wells Hawks, president emeritus of the ganization, was passed as follows:

WHEREAS, It has come to our attenon through the press dispatches that the ational Editorial Association, in conntion at Los Angeles, has declared itself ainst "press agent publicity in disguise news," it is hereby

RESOLVED, That fully in accord with the ational Editorial Association in its forts for editorial improvement the heatrical Press Representatives of merica, comprising in its membership ore than three hundred leading men and omen of this profession, desires to call e attention of the Editorial Associaon to the fundamental principles of this dy of men and women who stand uarely on the declaration as embodied the objects of T. P. R. O. A. which e as follows:

First: To bring together in a proissional and fraternal relation all those eatrical press representatives—both men d women—who are eligible for membership.

Second: To foster a high standard the conduct of the work of its mems.

Third: To maintain the strictest ethics d so uphold only those practices which e fair and honorable.

Fourth: To obtain and maintain an equitable contract, fair alike to employe and employer.

Fifth: To encourage its members to merit the esteem and confidence of business associates by rendering faithful and efficient service at all times.

Sixth: To urge its members to gain and retain the unbounded respect of the press and the public alike by a conscientious regard for the facts in all advertising and reading material.

Seventh: To help eradicate by close co-operation with whomsoever may be concerned any and all irregularities and evils which may be brought to its notice.

That we believe that an organization of press agents based upon such principles merits the attention and consideration of an editorial body inasmuch as that these principles are maintained and adhered to and that this association is ever on the outlook for any breach that would destroy the confidence reposed in them as press representatives by the press and public to whom they are the mouthpieces of the interests they represent.

That it is the belief of this organization, backed by experience and observation, that the honest and dignified press representative belongs to a useful and valuable profession which is respected both by press and public and regarded as an essential function in this dissemination of information; and

That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to Mr. Herman Roe, President of the National Editorial Association, at Northfield, Minn.; to the President of the American Publishers Association; to the Advertising Clubs of the World, the EDITOR & PUBLISHER, and the theatrical press.

Veteran Celebrates Golden Wedding

Benjamin F. Stone, one of the oldest employees of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, a proofreader on that newspaper for the last 20 years, and Mrs. Stone recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Mr. Stone was presented with $50 in gold by his fellow-workers on the News-Leader.

Investment Opportunity

A Florida daily newspaper published in a rapidly growing county seat city needs ten thousand dollars cash to meet a mortgage note due in the near future. The owners will make very attractive terms to any party who is able to invest that much and who has enough nerve to back his judgment with cash.

This newspaper is conservatively valued at a hundred thousand dollars. Its liabilities include twenty thousand dollars common stock, thirty-six thousand dollars mortgages and about twenty-nine thousand dollars of other indebtedness.

The newspaper is operating at a slight profit even during the present slump of business, which speaks well for what may be expected when business becomes normal a few months hence. The owners anticipate at least twenty thousand dollars net profits for the next twelve months.

But cash is what is needed. To the man who has ten thousand dollars and who will act quickly we offer an opportunity for a safe and extremely profitable investment.

If interested wire Box A-661, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Imperial METAL

Here are the Savings —by using the Plus Plan

THERE is nothing imaginary about Imperial Plus Metal Plan economies—they're realities. When we talk about savings we mean actual dollars and cents as shown on your profit and loss statement.

Here are a few of the Plus Plan Savings. Metal, serviced by the Plus Plan has years of working life added to it, thereby postponing replacements practically indefinitely. You save the cost of these replacements.

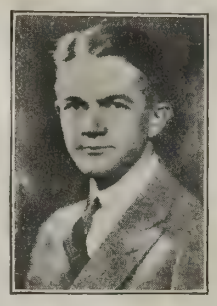
The Plus Plan eliminates many machine and stereotyping troubles that ordinarily would add to your expense during the year. You operate on a better schedule, thereby saving time and getting better results at less cost. These are but a few of the savings.

If you balance Plus Plan savings against the cost of the Plus Plan, you will be convinced that it is certainly worth while financially. As for the reliability of the Plus Plan we refer you to any of the thousands of users. Names upon request.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE MONOTYPE INTERTYPE STEREOTYPE
ELROD LUDLOW LINOGRAPH THOMPSON



Philadelphia Cleveland New York Chicago

FOUR A'S TO MEET IN WASHINGTON

Executive Committee in New York Session Set Oct. 14-16 as Tentative Dates—Two Agencies Elected Members of Group

Washington, D. C., was selected as the meeting place for the annual convention of the American Association of Advertising Agencies to be held Oct. 14-16, at the July meeting of the executive board held at New York headquarters this week.

R. S. Durstine

The board also endorsed plans made by Edgar G. Mason of the Albert P. Hill Company, Pittsburgh advertising agency, to change the usual procedure at the annual meeting. Mr. Mason is chairman of the program committee.

Committee reports will not be read, but will be issued to members in printed form. Time thus saved will be given over to speeches by men of prominence in all phases of agency work. All sessions will not be executive as in other years. On the second or third day of the convention doors will be thrown open to trade press representatives.

Lord & Thomas and Logan, new agency formed as a result of the consolidation of Lord & Thomas and the Thomas F. Logan Company, became a member of the group by vote of the executive committee. The Logan agency was a member, and it was decided this membership entitled the combined firm to the services of the national association. Ray D. Lillibridge, Inc., New York advertising agency, was elected a member. Total enrollment of the A. A. A. A. is now 133 advertising agencies.

Merle Sidener, of Sidener, Van Riper and Keeling, Inc., Indianapolis agency, was elected to succeed himself as A. A. A. A. representative on the Advertising Commission. He was also named chairman of the committee of contact between the agency group and the International Advertising Association.

The general opinion expressed by members of the board was that advertising conditions at the present time are in a most favorable condition. Individual agency executives reported excellent business prospects.

Roy Durstine, Barton, Durstine & Osborne, and association president, presided at the meeting. The report of the newspaper committee, of which Francis G. Hubbard is chairman, was not read.

Officers and members of the board in addition to Mr. Durstine are: James W. Young, J. Walter Thompson Company, vice-president; St. Elmo Massengale, Massengale Advertising Agency, Inc., Atlanta, secretary; H. K. McCann, H. K. McCann Company, treasurer; and John Benson, Benson & Gamble, Chicago; C. D. Newell, Newell-Emmett Company, Inc., New York; Stanley Resor, J. Walter Thompson Company; Mr. Sidener; Herbert S. Gardner, Gardner Advertising Company; and H. T. Ewald, Campbell-Ewald Company, Detroit.

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
QUALITY NAME SERVICE FAME
CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by

Vancouver Province

Vancouver, B. C.

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

SEEK NEW STOCK ISSUE FOR L. A. NEWS

Attorneys for Stockholders, Receiver and Vanderbilt Family Ask State's Consent to New Operation Plan

Los Angeles, Calif., July 15.—With the purpose of straightening out the difficulties of the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News, which is now being conducted by a receiver, representatives of the stockholders and the Vanderbilt family as well as M. P. Snyder, the receiver, have been in conference with the state corporation department's chief deputy, E. J. Walther.

The delegation made public a plan now under consideration, which will make possible the operation of the newspaper by the stockholders, hinging on the consent of the department to issue more stock.

Deputy Walther declined to give any promises in the name of the department until an application was filed. He pointed out that if the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., are in the condition indicated much time would elapse before the details of the case could be studied. The delegation called Mr. Walther's attention to the fact that some assurance as to his office and attitude is needed for presentation before the Federal Court. He refused to comment because no formal statement was in his hands. It is expected an application for the issuance of more stock will be filed soon.

Those in the delegation were Attorneys J. C. McFarland of the firm of Gibson Dunn & Crutcheer, representing Receiver Snyder; W. Oliphant, representing a stockholders' committee as chairman and Ben S. Hunter and Claude B. Andrews, representing the stockholders' committee as attorneys and John Mott representing Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and his family.

Are You The Man ?

We have an opening for an experienced newspaper man. He is probably a college graduate who has risen from reportorial ranks to an editorial position, between 28 and 35 years old, and is accurate as well as alert.

He is wanted in the advertising department of a large eastern corporation, but the work which is waiting to be done is more along newspaper than advertising lines. It is not, however, the sort of press agency work which would make a self-respecting newspaper man hang his head.

His value would not be measured by the amount of space he could graft.

His contacts would be with other newspaper men and with both officers and lesser employees of the corporation.

His moving expenses to his new location would be paid. His salary would automatically come up for review on each anniversary of his employment. (Nine out of ten salaries are advanced yearly in this organization.) He would have free group life, accident and sickness insurance.

He would enjoy other valuable privileges. In reply state age, education, experience, and reason for considering change. A-645, Editor & Publisher.

Carter Field Improving

The condition of Carter Field, head of the Washington bureau of the New York Herald Tribune, who underwent a serious operation recently, was considerably improved this week, although it will be some time before he will be able to resume his duties. He is still at Garfield Hospital, Washington.

N. Y. Sun Veteran Honored

After completing 62 years of service a an employee of the New York Sun, Georg A. Wharry, stereotyper, retired Satur day, July 10. He was given a farewe party by the Sun Club composed of Su employes. William T. Dewart, presider of the Sun Publishing Company, pre sented a handsome watch to Mr. Wharry His fellow workers in the stereotype de partment gave him a traveling bag, an members of the Sun Club a pipe. J. E Martin, mechanical superintendent, an Alfred E. Barnard of the Sun Club mad speeches of presentation.

Denver B. B. B. Organized

Establishment of a better busines bureau in Denver was sponsored at th weekly luncheon recently of the Denve Advertising Club by Ralph H. Faxon newly installed president.

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

6½ pt. Ionic No. 5

COMBINES

The word count of 6 point and the legibility of 8 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They had been curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY
Brooklyn, New York
SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO
Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

Direct your Plans on this Rich Area

first— in Population in Commerce in Exports—

When you plan your campaign in the Empire State, you are advertising to the group of consumers who live in the State that stands ahead of all States in population, in commerce, and in exports.

New York is a territory in itself with its large cities, its good paying farms and people who are progressive and right up-to-the-minute in everything.

The daily papers of New York are ready to aid you in planning and making your campaign in this State a success. Write for full particulars about advertising in the Empire State and how distribution can easily and quickly be obtained.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News (E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat (E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen (E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	84,997	.22	.22
Buffalo Courier (M) 51,254, (S) 111,212 (M)	110,000	.22	.22
Buffalo Express (M) 52,702, (S) 58,890 (S)	160,000	.30	.30
Buffalo Evening News (E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	115,000	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	135,000	.21	.21
††Corning Evening Leader (E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser (E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review (E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times (E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican (E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News (E)	7,751	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post (M)	11,722	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press (E)	7,127	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	10,437	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News (E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star (E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York (E)	257,067	.60	.56
New York Times (M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times (S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune (S)	345,434	.693	.672
††New York World (M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World (S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World (E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	20,629	.07	.07
Port Chester Item (E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise (E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union (E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal (E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record (M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Times (E)	17,334	.08	.08

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
 Merged as Buffalo Courier, June 19, 1926.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Heaton President of New Classified Group Organized in New York—How Losers-Service Bureau Operates in St. Louis—New Want-Ad Quarters for Pittsburgh Press

TO fight fraudulent advertising in the classified columns, the Classified Advertising Managers Association of New York was formed recently at a meeting held at the Advertising Club of New York.

L. C. HEATON

L. C. Heaton, classified advertising manager, New York Herald Tribune was appointed president, and John Finneran, New York Times, secretary.

The second meeting of the new group will be held early in August, when by-laws will be drawn up and plans made for a regular program of get-together sessions. The idea of the local association grew out of discussion which arose at the national convention of the Classified Advertising Managers Association in Philadelphia last month.

The charter members are the New York Herald Tribune, represented by Mr. Heaton; the New York Times, by Mr. Finneran; the New York World, by Frank McCabe; the New York American, by H. B. Copp; the New York Telegram by Thomas F. Mulhern; Long Island City Star, by W. C. Fowley; the Brooklyn Eagle, by Chester Knowlan; Corriere d'America, by Leon W. Posner; and the Bronx Home News, by H. C. Lattimer.

Efficiency of the lost and found advertising classification of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat is increased by a "Losers' Service Bureau," established by Charles W. Nax, classified advertising manager, and president of the Classified Advertising Managers Association. How the bureau functions was told this week to EDITOR & PUBLISHER by Mr. Nax.

The L. S. B. idea is built around a key tag which is registered with the Bureau. These tags are sold to the public at cost (ten cents each). They are advertised both in the columns of the Globe Democrat and on painted display boards for use on everything which might be lost and to which it would be practical to attach a tag of this kind.

Not even small boys and their dogs are exempt from being marked with L. S. B. identification tags. The Beagle Association in St. Louis recently purchased a quantity of these tags from the Globe-Democrat to be used in marking the bred dogs of the members of that association.

However, the issuing and registration of these tags is only the hub around which the L. S. B. idea revolves.

Each day the Losers' Service Bureau receives and files a list of lost articles which have been found and returned to the police, turned in at the car-barns, or found on the busses.

The Bureau helps to increase the efficiency of the Lost and Found advertising in its own paper by clipping every Lost and Found advertisement which appeared in the Globe-Democrat and filing it for 30 days. These files make a ready reference for anyone in the city who has either lost or found something.

When the L. S. B. was being started, 70 line, single column copy was used on page one of the Globe-Democrat to sell the idea of calling on the Losers' Service Bureau to locate any lost article. Each day these front page advertisements pictured a different article and suggested calling the L. S. B. to locate it.

An early copy read:

"Theater Tickets Lost?"

"Why not ask about them at the Losers' Service Bureau? Perhaps they have been turned in at the Car-Barns or the offices of the Bus Company. If so, our records will show it."

Here is the copy which followed:

"Fountain Pen Gone?"

"Go to the telephone right away. Call the Losers' Service Bureau. If your fountain pen hasn't been turned in at police headquarters or the Car-Barns, a Want-Ad in the Globe-Democrat will put your loss on file to be consulted by thousands of finders."

A standard layout was used for all of these front page ads. Only the copy and the illustrations changed from day to day.

Scattered through the paper each day a number of 70 line, single column copy ads sold the key tag to Globe-Democrat readers. In addition to these and the front page copy, large space was used on the inside pages to sell both the key tags and the idea of calling the L. S. B. to locate lost articles of all kinds.

Although the new Bureau has not been in existence long enough to make possible any definite figures of its effect upon the want-ad sales, the Globe-Democrat believes that it is bringing an ever increasing amount of want advertising from the occasional user of want advertising.

The Pittsburgh Press recently held open house all day in its new want ad headquarters, which Owen M. Phillips, business manager, believes is the finest in the world. Men and women streamed in and out of the marble-lined lobby to view and admire the elaborate materials and the highly efficient design.

Close supervision of telephone solicitors in the classified department of the New York Times is resulting in increased business and efficienty, according to John Finneran, new classified advertising manager.

"It makes a whole lot of difference how classified ad prospects are approached over the telephone," Mr. Finneran said he has found.

"For instance," he explained, "despite the many strict regulations we have on the Times our telephone solicitors are instructed never to say 'you can't do this or that'; rather they tell their prospects what they can do, they show them the best way to advertise.

JOHN FINNERAN

"Imagine as an example, a prospect, who, after hearing the solicitors sales arguments decides to place an advertisement. The wording of it, however, proves contrary to our rules. The girl at the telephone should not say:

"'No, that is impossible. We don't allow that on the Times.'

"Instead, she should reply:

"'I am sure it will be better if you advertise it in this way,' and then proceed to dictate copy that conforms to regulations.

"One way slams the door in the advertiser's face. The other opens it for him. We have found this simple idea is greatly reducing the amount of copy withheld from the paper. The total classified gains this year up to July 3 have been 267,156 lines or 4,761 ads. From Jan. to July 3, last year the linage was 4,121,015; while this year it has been 4,878,956."

The Times also gives weekly prizes in the form of time off to telephone solicitors who surpass their sales quotas. Each girl was recently asked to write her idea of a model telephone solicitation, and prizes were given the best. They are now being collected to be issued as part of the Times' classified manual.

Louisville (Ky.) Courier Journal is running a good classified promotion bo under the heading "Bits of News fro Today's Want Ads."

About six paragraphs tipping off rea ers on what they can do on the aga pages are run each day, such as th one:

"Owner forced to quit because of il ness, will sacrifice well located bake business."

Rothermere Discusses Newsprint

Timber is being used up for newspri alone at the rate of 16,200,000 tons year, without taking into account a enormous quantity used for other pu poses, Lord Rothermere wrote in th London Daily Mail of July 2. His ne enterprise, Anglo-Canadian Pulp Paper Mills, Ltd., in the Province Quebec, Canada, has, he says, acquir a timber tract of more than 2,200 squa miles. It is calculated this will provi 5,300,000 tons of newsprint and ke Lord Rothermere's proposed Canadi mill engaged for 45 years.

Leadership in Financial Advertising

The Sun is the acknowledged leader in Financial Advertising among New York evening newspapers.

Financial advertisers have for years used more space in The Sun than in any other New York evening newspaper because they know that through The Sun they can reach the largest number of people who are interested in stocks and bonds, investments and other commodities offered by financial institutions.

The Sun

280 Broadway New York

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

NEW YORK STATE

Westchester County's

Fastest Growing Cities

Mount Vernon and New Rochelle and The Vicinity Towns

Are Covered Completely by

THE DAILY ARGUS

of

Mount Vernon

THE STANDARD STAR

of

New Rochelle

Both Members of A. B. C.

Westchester Newspapers, Inc.

Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.

Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

EVENING HERALD

Los Angeles, Calif.

Gained 5,015 Daily Average Circulation

Sworn Government Statement, Six Months Ending March 31, 1925, 177,298 Daily. Six Months Ending March 31, 1926, 182,313 Daily. Increase in Daily Average Circulation, 5,015.

IT COVERS THE FIELD COMPLETELY

REPRESENTATIVES:

H. W. Moloney, 604 Times Bldg., New York.
John H. Lederer, 910 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.
A. J. Norris Hill, 710 Hearst Bldg., San Francisco, Calif.

A classified service begins where dollars and cents promotion begins. Right there's where we begin!

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.

International Classified Advertising Counsellors

Packard Building Philadelphia

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE

of the

INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee

Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Lafayette Young Publisher

TEXAS DAILY COMPLETING SIXTH MONTH OF AIRPLANE DELIVERY

Temple (Tex.) Telegram to Add New Air Route Signalizing Success of New Method—Not Yet Practical for Average Publisher, Official States

THE Temple (Tex.) Daily Telegram will shortly celebrate completion of its first half year's daily airplane delivery service by addition of another route, E. K. Williams, general manager, informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. This paper claims to be the pioneer in serving readers by air.

One of the Temple Telegram's three delivery planes

The daily airplane delivery service, which, according to Mr. Williams has functioned virtually 100 per cent effectively since it was established, is not maintained as a "special stunt" or merely for advertising purposes. Three 'planes are owned by the paper. One of them, piloted by Herbert Kindred, flies over a definite route delivering copies of the Telegram every day.

"It is not an experiment," Mr. Williams said, "but was inaugurated after a period of research and tests extending over a period of more than three years, during which we expended more than $50,000 in the selection and perfection of suitable equipment.

"We feel that we are due credit for being pioneers in this line, even though other publishers may have put on special delivery stunts in the past. We claim to be the first newspaper to inaugurate and maintain regularly for as long a period as six months, a real, honest-to-goodness, regular daily air mail delivery service. And while, in the light of our successful experience, it is the belief of the writer that this service will become more or less general within the next few years, we desire to get on record as being the pioneers in the matter. Even though the other newspapers of the nation may some day be delivered by air, as we believe they will, we would like to be given credit for having introduced the service.

"Many publishers of the Southwest have called on us for information regarding the service, and have come to Temple to see it in operation. And to all of these we have explained the difficulties to be overcome and the costs to be encountered. We do not believe the service is yet practical to the average newspaper—to any publisher, in fact, who is not as well posted on air navigation as he is in the publishing business, and we claim to be probably the only concern thus peculiarly equipped. George Williams, the writer's brother, who is mechanical superintendent of our $100,000 publishing plant, is a successful aeronautical engineer of more than 20 years standing—a pioneer second only to the Wright Brothers, Langley and Glen Curtiss. And it is his knowledge of air navigation that has made our present delivery service possible. He is the designer and builder of all our ships.

"Papers are dispatched to our landing field, one mile from plant, in fast motor truck. Bundles for each town on route are placed in specially designed chute on the ship in order of the towns on the air route. A vacant space is designated in each town served, where the agent waits for his bundle. No landings are made. The ship descends to within a few feet of the ground launches its bundle, and then goes on up again. Route of 125 miles is covered in about 70 minutes. Papers are also delivered in clubs of four, to rural subscribers along the country traversed by the ship. Any four farmers in a neighborhood who will call for papers dropped at a given point between their homes, can get this unique service.

"Only territory which cannot be covered quickly by train, interurban and motor bus service is served by air. We operate but one ship at present but expect to celebrate the completion of our first half year service soon by adding another route. We keep an auxiliary ship ready at all times in case of trouble, and the service since its inauguration has been practically 100 per cent.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

and

Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of

New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American

are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

Associated Newspapers Ltd.

ANNUAL MEETING

THE CHAIRMAN'S REVIEW

The Annual Meeting of the Associated Newspapers, Ltd. (proprietors of The Daily Mail, the London Evening News, and The Weekly Dispatch), was held in the Memorial Hall, Farringdon-street, on June 28th.

The Chairman (MR. THOMAS MARLOWE), in moving the adoption of the Annual Report and Balance Sheet, said:—

The figures disclose another year of continued progress throughout the Company's business. The Daily Mail maintains its supreme position in this country and we are proud to say that its net daily sale is by far the largest in the whole world.

The position which it holds in the minds of British people was demonstrated beyond question last month during the General Strike, when we were overwhelmed with offers of help of all kinds from all parts of the United Kingdom. The situation with which we were then faced was the most difficult which the newspaper press of this country had ever encountered, and The Daily Mail emerged from it with unimpaired circulation and advertising support, and I venture to think with greatly enhanced prestige.

THE GENERAL STRIKE

The strike really began in Carmelite House when a section of the printers took upon themselves to demand the suppression or alteration of a leading article, and they were told that this unprecedented request could not be complied with. That night The Daily Mail was not printed in London, but the Manchester staff carried out their engagements and published as usual.

For a fortnight subsequently the newspapers were unable to appear in their usual form, and The Daily Mail was compelled to bring out small emergency editions wherever it was possible in England. We printed with type and we printed with typewriting and photography in various printing offices in London.

Our Manchester office, helped by many printers in Manchester, brought out a very large number of copies every day. We had the help of printers at Taunton, Weston-super-Mare, Cheltenham, and at Southend who enthusiastically brought out small editions of The Daily Mail, edited and published by members of our own staff.

The Western Morning News of Plymouth placed all its resources at our disposal and printed excellent editions of two pages and four pages of the full size, which were circulated over the West and South of England and sold by thousands in the streets of London.

The Continental Daily Mail of Paris printed a quarter of a million copies of a complete London Daily Mail every day during the strike in addition to its customary Continental issue. These were conveyed to England by four large aeroplanes every morning and by steamer. This was the most complete of all the special newspapers which were published during the strike, and it was circulated throughout London, the South of England, and the Midlands by a great fleet of aeroplanes and motor-cars.

THANKS TO VOLUNTEERS

The whole editorial staff of all our three papers remained, of course, perfectly loyal and continued at work every day. Practically the whole of the advertisement staff and a great portion of the commercial staff remained with us and organised the great army of volunteers who came to Carmelite House with private motor-cars and offers of all kinds of help. It was only by this splendid volunteer corps that we were able to distribute the paper as well as we did. We have returned thanks individually to every one whose name we know, but there were many who came in groups, and some of these we have been unable to trace. To every one of them I wish to offer to-day the grateful thanks of the directors and shareholders for all they did.

Since the General Strike was terminated we have been suffering under the coal strike and the restriction of train services and interference with industry. Many of our readers must have been getting their paper later than usual, but clearly they have been getting it, because the daily sale remains the same. Notwithstanding the interference with trade of all kinds, the demand for advertising space in The Daily Mail continues fully equal to our capacity to print.

The Evening News maintains its great popularity with readers, and it has been enlarged to a 12-page basis during the past year. It is the largest evening paper in London and has the largest net sale of any evening newspaper in the world.

The Weekly Dispatch has also been increased in size.

As to the Accounts, you know that we have maintained our dividend at the same rate as before—namely, 8s. per share on the Deferred Shares.

THE BALANCE SHEET

The reserve account remains at the same figure of £400,000. We have increased each of the Pension Funds by £10,000, bringing the total under this head to £100,000.

Creditors and Reserve against Contingencies is a larger item this year than before, and some part of it may be required to meet the exceptional expenditure which was incurred during the strike.

The first item under the heading of "Assets" is increased by £150,000, which is accounted for by the expenditure on our new building and machinery after allowing for ample depreciation on our existing buildings and plant. The stock of paper is larger this year than last year.

The figure under the heading "Investments" is reduced, but you will find a new item: "Loan to the Empire Paper Mills £600,000." This mill is engaged in making paper for us and by the operation of this loan has been able to pay off its debentures which were costing 6 per cent. It has been arranged that the loan by this company to the mill shall be paid off at the rate of £4,000 per month with interest at the rate of 5 per cent.

NEW CARMELITE HOUSE

We hoped to see the completion of New Carmelite House this summer, but unexpected difficulties were encountered with the foundations, and there has been delay. The work is well in hand, and shareholders can now see the handsome proportions of the new home of The Daily Mail. The greater part of the printing presses has been constructed and erection will begin as soon as the building dries. The other machinery has all been constructed and is ready to instal. We believe that this will be in every respect a model newspaper office both in respect of efficiency in all departments and the comfort of staff.

It is probably unnecessary to point out to-day that the cost of the strike does not come into our accounts for the year ended 31st March last, which we are now reviewing, but the reserve which we make against contingencies will adequately cover the loss of profits and the expenditure which we were compelled to make last month.

The motion was seconded by SIR ANDREW CAIRD, Managing Director, and carried unanimously.

The retiring directors were re-elected, and the auditors, Messrs. Lever, Honeyman and Co., reappointed.

STAR SALE PRICE 2ND LARGEST ON RECORD

$11,000,000 Paid by Kirkwood and Associates Exceeded Only by $13,-671,704.30 Paid for Chicago Daily News

The price of $11,000,000 paid by Irwin R. Kirkwood and his associates on the Kansas City Star for that newspaper property has been exceeded only once in American newspaper transactions. That was the purchase of the Chicago Daily News last winter by Walter A. Strong and associates for $13,671,704.30. The largest price ever reported paid for a newspaper in other countries was that given by Lord Rothermere for the interest of his brother, Lord Northcliffe, in the London Daily Mail, Evening News, Weekly Dispatch and Continental Daily Mail. Rothermere, it was stated at the time, paid £2,000,000, or somewhat less than $10,000,000, for these properties. The reported price paid for the Northcliffe holdings in the London Times by John Walter and Major Astor was £1,-390,000, or less than $7,000,000.

Other sales which have made newspaper records are:

Pittsburgh Press—by Col. O. S. Hershman to Scripps-Howard Newspapers in 1923—$6,000,000.

New York Sun and Evening Sun—by William C. Reick to Frank A. Munsey in 1916—$3,000,000.

New York Herald and Paris Herald—by Mr. Munsey to New York Tribune, in 1924—more than $5,000,000.

New York Herald, New York Evening Telegram, and Paris Herald—by Bennett Estate to Mr. Munsey in 1920—$4,000,000.

New York Evening Mail—by Henry L. Stoddard to Mr. Munsey in 1924—$2,-000,000.

Pittsburgh Dispatch and Pittsburgh Leader by Col. C. A. Rook and Alexander P. Moore, respectively, to Pittsburgh Gazette-Times and Chronicle-Telegraph, Pittsburgh Post and Sun, and Pittsburgh Press in 1922—more than $2,000,000.

New York Press—by corporate ownership to Mr. Munsey in 1912— $2,500,000.

New York Globe—by Arthur T. Walker to Mr. Munsey in 1923—$2,-000,000.

Worcester Telegram and Gazette—by Theodore T. Ellis to George Booth and associates, in 1925—$2,000,000.

Philadelphia North American—by Thomas Wanamaker Estate to Cyrus H. K. Curtis in 1925—$1,700,000.

Tampa Tribune—by W. F. Stovall to local business men in 1925—$1,250,000.

Detroit Journal—by H. S. Talmadge and associates to Detroit News in 1922—$1,000,000.

San Francisco Bulletin—by R. A. Crothers to C. S. Stanton and associates in 1924—$1,000,000.

Syracuse Journal—by H. D. Burrill to W. R. Hearst, in 1925—more than $1,000,000.

Seattle Post-Intelligencer—by John H. Perry to W. R. Hearst in 1922—$1,000,000.

ENTIRE STAFF PURCHASES KANSAS CITY STAR

(Continued from page 3)

ideals, for tolerance, for education, for cultural things and all that goes to make up a rich and wholesome life. It has worked for the advancement of Kansas City and the West, while never losing sight of its national obligations. At all times it has felt its responsibility to make a great and distinguished newspaper in which the city and all its territory could take pride. In so far as they were able, the men in charge of the Star have embodied these principles in print day by day. It is their earnest hope to continue to make the paper worthy of its founder and of the splendid community that has made its success possible.

"They would be less than human if they did not at this time express their deep appreciation of the support that has come to them from every side. It has given them a new and vivid sense of obligation. The confidence of the community is an added incentive to measure up to the great opportunity. They will do their best."

According to the Kansas City Journal-Post, whose owner had access to the figures by being a bidder, net earnings of the Star over a period of ten years ending January 1, 1926, were $8,323,807, or an average of approximately $832,000 a year. Following is a tabulation of the approximate annual earnings:

1916	$605,147.37
1917	567,080.93
1918	443,475.01
1919	773,000.00
1920	862,000.00
1921	767,000.00
1922	1,123,000.00
1923	992,000.00
1924	978,000.00
1925	1,073,000.00
1926 (2 months)	170,000.00

The Star thus passes to the men who have been in charge of its destinies since the death of William R. Nelson 11 years ago. When Mr. Nelson died he left in trust his entire estate to an art foundation. The trustees were his wife and daughter who were to have the income of the estate during their lifetime.

Mrs. Nelson died 5 years ago.

Mrs. Laura Nelson Kirkwood, wife of Irwin Kirkwood, publisher of the Star, died Feb. 27, this year. With Mrs. Kirkwood's death, the Star and the entire Nelson estate passed into the hands of trustees named by the presidents of the Universities of Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma.

By direction in the will, the newspaper properties were to be sold within two years for the best price and on the best terms obtainable.

KANSAS A. P. EDITORS MEET

Plans for Handling Primary Election Discussed—Harris Presides

A meeting of the Kansas Associated Press Editorial Association to decide the best method of handling with speed and accuracy the August primary election was held last Saturday in Kansas City, Mo. The meeting was called by Ralph A. Harris, editor of the Ottawa Herald, vice-president of the association, in the absence of George W. Marble, president.

Those who attended were: Ray Green, Concordia Blade-Empire; Harry E. Montgomery, Junction City Union; Joseph W. Murray, Lawrence Journal-World; Fred Henney, Hutchison Herald and News; D. L. Miller, Atchison Globe; Roy Bailey, Salina Journal; L. P. Hall, business representative, Associated Press; T. H. Walker, division news editor, Associated Press; R. H. Heppe, assistant division news editor, A. P.; L. E. Paris, chief operator, Kansas City office, A. P.; William Townsley, Great Bend Tribune; F. W. Parrott, Clay Center Dispatch-Republican; Clyde M. Reed, Parsons Sun; Ralph Ellis, general managing editor, Kansas City Journal-Post; W. Laurence Dickey, publisher, Journal-Post; Bayard Taylor, Journal-Post.

RESORT ADVERTISING GAINED BY CONTEST

Cleveland Press Offered Vacation Trips as Prizes and Started Travel Bureau —Idea Originated by R. H. MacNaughton

Behind the annual Travel and Resort Section of the Cleveland Press issued June 19, is a promotion story told this week by R. H. MacNaughton, of the Press advertising department, who was in charge of the supplement.

To create interest in the section, the Press staged a vacation prize contest. Prizes, including a trip to Scotland, were obtained from various boat lines and resorts in return for publicity they would receive. Mr. MacNaughton said it only required one week to get the prizes together and arrange the details.

A total of 86 prizes were offered for the best answers to the questions, "What do you consider an ideal vacation? Why? Why do you think you deserve a vacation?"

The Press, under Mr. MacNaughton's direction, also inaugurated a Resort and Travel Bureau. The bureau was advertised in coupon copy that ran daily in the Press for about nine weeks. Supplied with the advertising booklets of a large number of resorts, steamship and railroad lines, the bureau was prepared to answer questions on "where to go, what to see, and how to get there." Hundreds of inquiries were received, according to Mr. MacNaughton. The advertisers' booklets were sent out and names sent them for follow-ups.

"It was one of the most successful contests ever conducted by the Press," Mr. MacNaughton claimed.

"One of the largest advertisers told me he believed that at least 25 of the large newspapers would conduct a similar contest next year and that he would be pleased to take part in each of them."

Beauty Winner Visits New York

Eva Phipps, of Smithfield, W. Va., came to New York this week, winner of a contest conducted by the Clarksburg (W. Va.) Telegram. She was chaperoned in Gotham by Mrs. Guy C. Viskniskki, wife of the publisher of the newspaper.

Muskogee Press Now a Weekly

The Muskogee (Okla.) Press, which recently went into the hands of a receiver, has suspended publication as a daily and will appear weekly pending contemplated reorganization.

Alabama Weekly Resumes

The Goodwater (Ala.) Enterprise has resumed publication and operation of its job press after several months of suspending publication. Thomas H. Crandall, owner and editor of the paper while Austin Darden has charge of the mechanical department.

The Great Empire of The Southwest

is literally spending millions of dollars.
The thoughts, actions and habits of Southwesterners are influenced by their

Weekly Newspapers

Our organization represents 325 weekly newspapers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, and we can furnish complete market information on this territory.
A letter to our Dallas office will bring you some very interesting figures.

The H. L. Grable Co.

"National Advertising Representatives of Weekly Newspapers"
TEXAS—OKLAHOMA—NEW MEXICO

NEW YORK, 25 East 26th St., Phone Ashland 9127
PHILADELPHIA, Widener Bldg., Phone Rittenhouse 969
CHICAGO, 123 West Madison, Phone Central 3021
DALLAS, TEXAS, 606 Mercantile Bank Building

Resort and Hotel ADVERTISING in the Miami District

Hosts of vacationists sojourn in Miami; but residents also flock north. Thus, Resort, Hotel and Restaurant advertising, both local and national, commands attention in the District.

Comparative figures in this classification, first five months, 1926, follow:

THE HERALD . . . 522,767 Lines
Second Paper . . . . . 333,893 Lines
Herald Lead . . . . . 188,874 Lines —or more than 56%.

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago
170,000 Daily
190,000 Sunday
LOS ANGELES Examiner

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL
America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!
THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at Exchange Bldg., 717-718 Commercial LOS ANGELES

Largest Weekday Circulation in THE CITY
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

ADDITIONS AND REVISIONS IN SEMI-ANNUAL RATE AND CIRCULATION TABLE

Following are revised data on newspaper circulations and rates, supplementing correcting figures published July 3:

FLORIDA

Population City	Trade Area	Date Estab.	City	Name of Paper	Issued	Circulation	Rate
15,405	.....	1922	Bradenton	Herald	(e)	3,200	.03*
				Sunday edition	(s)	3,200	.04*

ILLINOIS

44,756	125,000	1876	Moline	Dispatch	(e)	11,681	.045*

KANSAS

9,500	25,672	1926	Iola	News	(e) New daily—tab.		.018*
			(Free circulation paper—publisher claims 3,000 circulation)

MASSACHUSETTS

193,666	441,842	1885	Worcester	Telegram	(m)	41,729	....
		1801		Gazette	(e)	50,585	....
				Combined daily	(me)	92,314	.26
		1884		Sunday edition	(s)	51,096	.19

NEW YORK

65,000	115,000	1854	Niagara Falls	Gazette	(e)	20,628	.07

OHIO

087,670	1,525,000	1879	Cleveland	Press	(e)	222,637	.40*
30,000	40,000	1890	Middletown	Journal	(e)	6,360	.025*
		1921		Sunday edition	(s)	6,831	.025*
		1874		News-Signal	(e)	5,603	.025*
12,000	34,000	1898	Mount Vernon	Banner	(e)	3,169	.015*
		1893		Republican-News	(e)	4,186	.02*
26,718	60,000	1820	Newark	Advocate	(e)	11,149	.035*
		1827		American Tribune	(e)	9,152	.025

WASHINGTON

13,800	18,000	1923	Longview	News	(e)	4,630	.045*
10,000	32,000	1905	Wenatchee	World	(e)	8,200x	.04*

WISCONSIN

22,000	125,000	1881	Eau Claire	Leader	(m)	7,855	....
		1894		Telegram	(e)	3,857	....
				Combined daily	(me)	11,712	.045
				Sunday edition	(s)	7,938	.045
577,757	1,044,367	1882	Milwaukee	Journal	(e)	141,895	.28*
				Sunday edition	(s)	145,836	.28*

SAVE CITY BABIES FROM DEADLY SUMMER HEAT

(Continued from page 10)

y the Cleveland Plain Dealer through n interesting series of contests.

A kite contest in the spring, with cash rizes for the biggest, smallest, prettiest, ighest-flying, funniest and best-made ites, was held in two of the city parks, ne on either side of the city, with identical prizes at each. Two contests instead f one was reassuring to mothers who veren't willing for their small children o cross the city to compete.

A boy from Orville, O., won a $10 rize for the biggest kite at one of the arks. His kite was fourteen feet tall, vas flown by rope, and he had made his lad drive him forty miles to Cleveland in he family flivver so that he could comete.

A swimming contest will culminate late n August with a "Venetian carnival" it one of the park beaches, where apanese lanterns, a gondola parade and ay costumes will add color to a contest n diving and swimming among boys and girls who have learned to swim this summer. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded.

Playground instructors co-operate by eaching children to swim at the Lake Erie beaches and city pools. Every boy or girl who learns to swim ten strokes receives from the Plain Dealer a red, white and blue button which proclaims "Ima Fish," and he automatically becomes enrolled in the Ancient and Sublime Order of Fishes. The "fishes" are organized into "schools," one to each playground, named after varieties of fish —such as bass, pike, pickerel, etc. The "Sublime order" has secret pass words, grips, grand hailing signs, 'n everything that intrigues the imagination of youth.

More than 3,320 children were taught to swim in the first "Ima Fish" campaign of a year ago, and that number may be doubled this year.

A pet contest under Plain Dealer auspices, with $105 in prizes, brought together on the city circus grounds July 14 one of the most astonishing collections of dogs, cats, Belgian hares, guinea pigs, chickens, snails, polliwogs and bull frogs ever seen in Cleveland. Three well-known naturalists, who served as judges, awarded first, second and third prizes to the owners of the largest, smallest, most useful, oddest, prettiest and best-trained pets.

One boy entered a horse. A girl produced a Japanese silkworm.

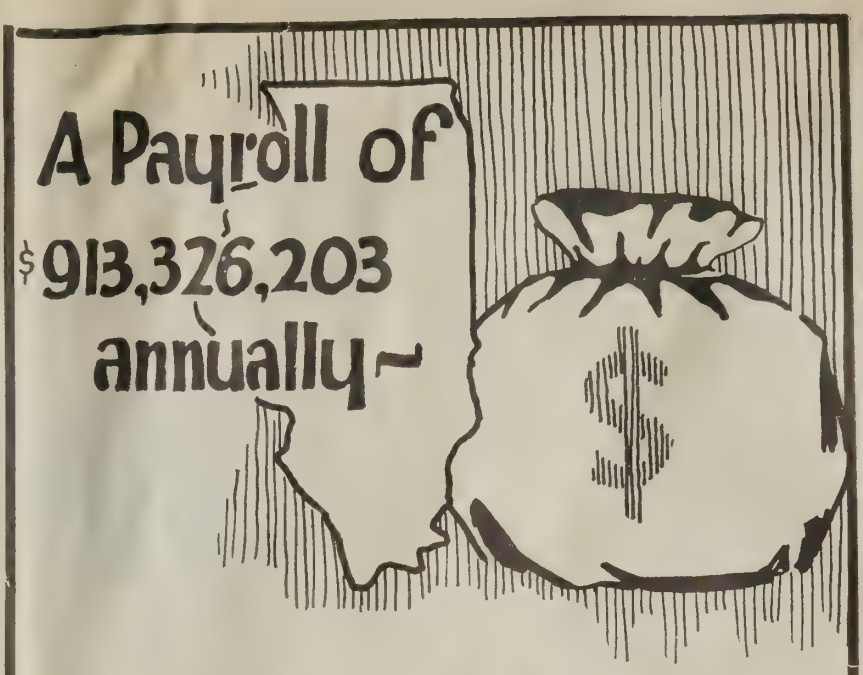
The contest was preceded by a parade of 500 youngsters and their pets through the downtown district, headed by a playground brass band, and with a harmonica band to furnish additional music.

This summer the Plain Dealer is continuing its "Summer Opportunities," which puts back into charity in Cleveland some of the intimate, personal touch between the giver and the recipient. Welfare agencies co-operate by furnishing lists of persons whose needs are of a kind which friendship, rather than material gifts, can supply. The needs of these "cases" are presented in the paper one each day, but under assumed names.

As a result of the human stories that accompany the material, a business man takes the day off to drive with a poor family for a picnic in the country; another finances a boat ride on the lake; a clerk spends his day taking a boy to his first league ball game; a society woman takes a poor old woman from the tenement districts for a long cool automobile ride in the country.

American Opened N. Y. Playgrounds

In New York City as the public schools were closing for the Summer, the American launched a drive to open playgrounds that were doomed to remain closed because the Board of Education lacked the necessary funds.



Last year 422 children were killed and 11,844 maimed while playing in New York streets. The American inaugurated its campaign to prevent a repetition of these appalling figures this year.

The American found that unless money was immediately provided almost a million children would have no place except the streets in which to play, while hundreds of spacious playgrounds remained vacant.

Allying itself with the Committee to Save the Children's Lives, a branch of the Community Councils, the American appealed to its readers for the needed funds. The first contributor was William R. Hearst, who, upon being advised by wire of the situation, immediately telegraphed from California a personal contribution of $3,000. Later Mr. Hearst made a second contribution, of $2,000, bringing his total to $5,000.

As it only costs $300 to operate a

(Continued on page 46)

in ILLINOIS

The last census report gives this figure, $913,326,203 as the annual payroll in Illinois.

This is a sign of opportunity to National Advertisers. Illinois' factories, its mines and world famous plants, are working steadily. Its unusually well located shopping centers report good business. You can get your share by advertising in the daily papers, which are read by the whole family and whose advertising sections are digested just as readily as the news columns.

Reach the great buying power of Illinois, through the papers listed below.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News (E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner (M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner (S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal (E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index (E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard (E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News (E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette (E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch (E)	11,680	.045	.045
Monmouth Daily Review Atlas (E)	5,416	.035	.035
Peoria Star (S) 22,497 (E)	29,874	.075	.06
Rock Island Argus (E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun (E)	5,213	.03	.03

A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

SAVE CITY BABIES FROM DEADLY SUMMER HEAT

(Continued from page 45)

playground for the entire Summer, the first Hearst contribution enabled the Board of Education to open ten centers at once. As fast as other donations came in they were placed at the disposal of the Board.

In the first eleven days of the American drive provision was made for opening approximately 100 playgrounds, thus affording safe places for a hundred thousand children to play.

To expedite the opening, the American's widely-known Christmas and Relief Fund made a temporary loan of $10,000 to the School Playground Fund, which turned the money over to the Community Councils, and thus made possible the opening of 33 additional playgrounds.

The American's Christmas and Relief Fund, which three years ago extended its activities to give aid to distressed families throughout the entire year, is continuing, through the Summer, to give succor to all unfortunates brought to its attention.

Saving Baltimore Babies

Through the columns of the Baltimore Sun and Evening Sun appeals are being made this summer for a Babies Hot Weather Fund. While intended primarily for the relief of babies, under its ministry are also included convalescents and aged persons.

Through the contributions of readers the fund furnishes milk, ice, special diet and sometimes nursing care.

Some large contributions are made, but the Fund is realized chiefly through many small contributions ranging from $1 to $5. Children of the city evince a good deal of interest in the Fund, holding street fairs for its benefit.

The cases that are brought to the attention of the readers are obtained from the Family Welfare Association, a unit of the Community Fund. These cases are presented as briefly as possible and effort is made to understate rather than overstate the cases.

Details of a story that would identify the recipient of the Fund to the neighbors are not published. Every endeavor is made not to crush the spirits of the people the Fund seeks to assist materially.

Where it is possible to omit cases in writing the appeal, this possibility is welcomed. Fairs of an unusual order: contributions of a group of persons at a seashore resort remembering babies of a hot city; or a story of how the relief is administered furnish excellent substitutes for case stories, and are used whenever available.

All contributions are made direct to the Sun or the Evening Sun; or to the office of the Community Fund. A list of contributions is appended to the daily appeal.

Country Outings for Newark Kids

All welfare work is given a generous amount of space by the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, with particular attention to country outings for children and the Fresh Air Fund.

The work of this fund was initiated many years ago by the Newark Female Charitable Society, one of the oldest philanthropic organizations in the country, and from its inception the outing fund publicity was carried on exclusively by the News.

During the summer a story of the work appears daily, the responsibility for the story being placed upon one reporter, for the whole season. Beginning about two weeks before the outing centers are opened the need for the work is outlined, the plan of the vacation outings is described and emphasis placed on the fact that the scope of the work is dependent on the amount of money voluntarily subscribed.

As the date for the opening approaches, stories of individual cases listed with the committee in charge are told, and when the first party is sent out that is announced in some detail. Contributions are reported daily.

A staff photographer pictures the first party as it leaves for its vacation, and later the youngsters are shown enjoying country life with contrasting pictures of children in sordid city surroundings.

Some editorials are written during the season, and usually one cartoon is used.

S. F. Examiner's Two Parties

With two great yearly enterprises—the Christmas Fund and the Baby Adoption Party—as a foundation, the San Francisco Examiner annually builds up a program of charitable, philanthropic and allied activities that collects many thousands of dollars for distribution in countless worthy works.

Well in advance of the Yule season, the Examiner lays the groundwork for this annual event by setting aside a large donation as the nucleus. The contribution box is then thrown open to the public. Then, at the climax of this subscription-collection, the Examiner gives its annual Christmas Cabaret, with the foremost stars of the theatrical profession and allied activities. All the proceeds are turned into the Fund.

Last year, the Christmas Fund totalled well over $6,000. This was distributed at Christmas time in gifts of clothing, food and cash to the needy. A surplus was devoted to giving the annual Shoe Party at which the city's poor children are fitted with new footwear. Whatever surplus still remains after this is put into the Christmas Fund for use during the year as opportunity arises.

The Baby Adoption Party is an activity which does not involve collection of money. It is just what it is called—an adoption party, in which the Examiner lists from the city's various agencies of charitable and child-welfare work all the babies and youngsters available for adoption or placing in foster homes. The response is unbelievably large. Many hundreds of letters pour in from child-hungry homes. Each year, there are several-score times as many applications as there are children, and each year every available child is placed in a suitable home. In this, of course, the child welfare agencies co-operate in investigating and similar work.

With these two big affairs as the basis, the superstructure of smaller events, undertaken by the Examiner upon opportunity, is built. For instance, last year a San Francisco police officer was killed in line of duty. His wife was left penniless, with a family and with another baby soon to arrive. Her plight was desperate. The Examiner opened subscription lists, and raised about $1,200 for the policeman's family.

At the time of the Navy's non-stop airplant flight to Hawaii, the Examiner through subscriptions from the citizens of the city presented to Commander Rodgers and his crew rings and silver services commemorative of their unexampled experience.

Chicago News Has Sanitarium

Forty years ago this summer the Chicago Daily News established a hot weather nursing service for sick babies. Every summer season since that time this work has been carried on in growing volume. The Daily News Fresh Air Fund Sanitarium has come to be known as a model of its kind. It now occupies a beautiful and commodious brick and steel structure, which was erected a few years ago at a cost of $250,000, on Simmons Island, a part of Lincoln Park, and within a few feet of Lake Michigan. Its wide pavilion contains hundreds of hammocks where sick babies may sleep in the open air. The Sanitarium also has a completely equipped hospital, diet kitchen and other requirements of a high class institution. During the summer the Sanitarium is open free to all comers.

During the season of 1925 there was a total attendance of 43,488 mothers and children and 5,135 visitors. The 9,681 mothers brought 4,054 ailing babies and 29,753 well children or an average daily attendance during the 10 weeks that the Sanitarium was open of 737. Every well child and every mother received free daily four cups of milk and four bread an butter sandwiches. This required 3,4 loaves of bread, 4,434 gallons of milk ar nearly 1,000 pounds of butter. All of t food for sick babies was prepared fro certified milk and 554 quarts of it we used. Clinics by eminent specialists we held daily.

In addition to the great amount work done for babies each year by a sta of medical specialists and skilled nurse children of school age are treated f diseased conditions of the eyes, ears, nos throat and teeth. Last season the eye an ear clinics were crowded as were t dental clinics. Many operations for t removal of diseased tonsils and adenoi were given along with a variety of mi cellaneous operations. This Sanitarium a widely recognized center for instru tion, not only in medical treatment babies, but in preparation of foods f infants.

It is common for hospitals in and abo Chicago to send their nurses to the San tarium for inspection of the work do

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSE

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Press

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for bla or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextup Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Se tuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereoty presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPAN

Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadw
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Blo

Live Advertising Solicitor Wanted In Every Large City

Internationally known trade publication wants live advertising solicitor in every city of the United States over 25,000 population. Must be dependable creator of new accounts. Commission basis only.

Write full particulars regarding service you can render and territory desired.

All correspondence treated confidentially.

Address Box A-655, Editor & Publisher.

Spend Your Vacation in EUROPE

Join the PRESS CONGRESS OF THE WORLD party sailing from New York, September 4 on the palatial Cunarder "Carmania" for the Third Congress to be held at Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, September 14-18. Official tour covers 10,000 miles and six weeks, returning to New York, October 16.

Extension Tours available.

For booklets and all information write

TOUR DEPARTMENT, PRESS CONGRESS OF THE WORLD

1700 Times Bldg. New York City ere and of the exceptionally fine equip-ent provided for the work. The Daily ews is now planning to increase the efulness of the Sanitarium by maintain-g after the summer season within its door hospital, medical and surgical ser-ce for a considerable number of little fferers who require to be brought back health through high class continued eatment of curable deformaties so at little distorted bodies may be made rmanently sound and healthy. The aily News pays all administration exnses of the Sanitarium service, and ets all deficiencies in income, which is herwise derived from gifts from chari-ble people, many of them children who ld entertainments and otherwise raise ney for the babies' Sanitarium. The pense of building and equipping the nitarium was mainly met by the Daily ews through contributions to its build-g fund, amounting to many thousands dollars, were received from other urces. All receipts and expenditures e audited and passed upon by a board of ustees composed of well known citizens.

Goodfellows Aid 50

Each year the San Francisco Call, odfellow department raises a fund m voluntary contributors by means of ich fifty or more youngsters are sent the children's health resort in the rin hills known as Hill Farm. The ldren are all taken from the families the poor. They are all physically run vn and underweight when sent to the rm." There they are fed plenty of olesome food, given daily sun baths, started well on the road to robust lth. A child is kept at the "farm" as ward of the Goodfellows of the Call il there is a real improvement in his her physical condition. The youngsters under the supervision of trained ses and other highly trained experts child welfare, and are given every at-tion during their stay at the "farm."
Added to the care, fresh air and rishing food they receive, the pleasant roundings at the "farm" has much to with making happy, rollicking boys and s out of the sickly little youngsters t there. The "kids" love it at Hill
m. They not only feel better there,
"Oh, boy," they have such a good e there too.
One of the nicest things about this big rk that is being done in building up se little bodies is the fact that no nes are ever mentioned.

Joint Efforts in Indianapolis few years ago all of the newspapers

Indianapolis attempted to conduct ial charities for the summer season, following the establishment of the mmunity Fund the papers agreed to their full support to the Fund and drew their individual charitable en-rises.
We believe the poor children of ianapolis are as well taken care of ng the summer as are those of any in the country," said James A. rt, managing editor of the Star.
The three papers, the Star, the News
the Times give generously of their e in promoting the welfare of the Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the Salva-Army and other organizations that ide outings for the poor. The ily Welfare Society takes care of a t many poor children in the summer.

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

West 42nd Street New York

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Ice Cream Manufacturers Start Newspaper Tie-Up Campaign—Nestle Promoting Hair Dye—Glycerine Producers to Advertise—A.N.A. Chief Returns from Europe

NEWSPAPERS in several hundred cities will be used in tie-up advertising campaigns by the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, Herbert S. Gardner, president of the Gardner Advertising Company, handling the account, informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. The manufacturers' campaign in magazines has already started.

"Special local advertising drives will be put on in virtually every large city of the country," Mr. Gardner said.

The Gardner Advertising Company is preparing copy for both newspapers and magazines. Four agencies are collaborating with Gardner in placing the special drive copy.

Nestle Company, New York, is increasing its use of newspaper space. Copy is now being placed in this media for Nestine, a new hair dye made by the concern. The advertising is directed by Foote & Morgan, Inc., New York advertising agency. Miss Bertha Cook is space buyer.

An educational campaign will be launched soon by the Glycerine Producers of America, a recently formed organization of soap makers and allied industries. The Newell-Emmett Company, New York, has been appointed to handle the account. Detailed plans are not yet ready.

E. T. Hall, vice-president of the Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, Mo., and president of the Association of National Advertisers, returned to New York this week from a business trip to France.

The Duz Company, Inc., New York, has appointed Allen L. Woodworth vice-president and general manager. Until recently Mr. Woodworth was general manager of the Liberty Yeast Company.

Sherwin-Williams Company, paint and varnish manufacturers, have appointed Henri, Hurst & McDonald, Chicago, to handle its advertising.

Arthur Roeder, formerly president of the United States Radium Corporation, New York, has been elected executive vice-president of the American Linseed Company, New York.

Several shareholders of Lipton's Limited, tea company of London, England, sought but failed on July 12 to force Sir Thomas Lipton to resign the chairmanship in favor of another man. Sir Thomas is 76 years old.

W. H. Stanley, advertising manager of the William Wrigley, Jr., Company, has returned to Chicago from a European trip. He reported that "advertising on American methods has made American chewing gum popular in Western Europe and its use is spreading eastward rapidly.

Allen R. Mitchell, Jr., chairman of the wool industry's joint publicity committee, announced this week that about 75 per cent of the eastern wool trades had signified their intention of co-operating in an advertising campaign. The drive would involve expenditure of about $500,000 it is thought. Organization of the Wool Council of America to handle the advertising financing plans is being discussed. Maximum cost to individual firms for the co-operative promotion effort will be between one-twentieth and one-tenth of one per cent of annual net sales. Alban Eavanson, of the Philadelphia Wool and Textile Association, is termed "father of the publicity idea."

Robert Reis & Co., underwear manufacturers and distributors, have appointed Erwin, Wasey & Co., New York, as advertising agent.

The Shredded Wheat Company is conducting a sampling campaign in Louisville, Ky., this month, using special newspaper copy built around the slogan "Health in Every Home."

New England newspapers are being used to introduce a new cigarette called "Old Gold," product of the P. Lorillard Company. Two agencies, Lennen & Mitchell and Gardner & Wells, direct the advertising.

Western Clock Company, La Salle, Ill., is appealing to boys in newspaper advertising copy promoting the "Pocket Ben," watches retailing at $1.50 and $2.25.

Roy Metzell, for several years in the advertising department of the International Harvester Company at Fort Dodge, Ia., will leave late in the summer for Buenos Aires, to launch an advertising campaign in that country.

A. W. Barnes, who sold his interests and retired as business manager of the Monmouth (Ill.) Review Atlas, Dec. 30, 1925, on July 12, assumed the direction of the advertising department of the Illinois Bankers Life Association, of Monmouth, Ill. This is a new department just being established by the company.

The Block Drug Company, Brooklyn, N. Y., distributors of Carmen Complexion Powder and other products, retailing to the drug trade, has appointed the Dauchy Company to direct their advertising.

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

creating Impression!
nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium—ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it
J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

The Morning Telegraph
Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.
Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.
The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?
The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.
If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.
NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America
Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers
Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the
BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes
Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg., New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg., Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg., Boston

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

IDEA FLASHES FROM COAST CLUBS MEET

C. KING WOODBRIDGE, president, International Advertising Assn.—There is one supreme issue before humanity today. It is this: Is there any permanent method by which large collective groups can live together in comradeship, co-operation and peace? Yes, by voluntary association and by common agreements as to business principles and practice that are for the public good—not the international courts or political conference—just associations of business men. Business men everywhere hold in their hands the destiny of nations. Trade follows the flag of mutual understanding and trust.

* * *

ALVIN E. DODD, manager, Domestic Distribution Department, U. S. Chamber of Commerce—American business, seeking to reduce unit costs, has displayed astonishing ingenuity in accelerating the flow of goods in fabrication. It is now directing its attention to maintaining the flow of goods to consumers. The distributing machinery is only the continuation of the fabricating machinery. Advertising has begun the task of surveying these channels but the task is only begun. There are many shoals and hidden reefs to be charted.

* * *

WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, Governor of Hawaii—The day should not be far distant when the man or the men with surplus to bequeath and endow, will find a pleasant way to serve God and country by setting the writers and the artists at work on million dollar advertising campaigns, to proclaim and repeat, and reproclaim the full duty of citizenship, so that citizens shall not only study their government, but shall also participate in their government, know what it is doing and influence its performance by exercising the divine right to vote.

* * *

DON FRANCISCO, co-manager, Lord & Thomas & Logan—Today advertising, in some hands, has reached the status of a science. It is based on fixed principles. The causes and effects have been analyzed until they are well understood. We know what is most effective and we act on basic laws.

* * *

AL JOY, Fresno Advertising Club—Advertising scores many more hits than misses. No advertising will bring permanent results to an inferior product. The biggest waste in advertising is energy directed into the wrong market, or misdirected in the right market. Improve the salesmanship behind your advertising copy. Consult competent advertising specialists and you will have taken the most important step in reducing the cost of advertising.

* * *

W. J. MARA, Correspondence Director, Bank of Italy, San Francisco—In practically every line of worth-while endeavor tremendous progress has been made for betterment in the last 10 or 15 years—automobiling, advertising, production, selling, etc. But we are still in the same crude, awkward, old-fashioned stage of writing business letters that our forefathers were using. Business men owe it to themselves to bring their business letters up to date.

STANLEY G. HEYMAN, advertising manager Pauson & Co., San Francisco—If there's one thing that retail clothing advertising needs more than anything else, it's a good dose of specific treatment. You'll find fully half the clothing ads nothing but glittering generalities. Department stores expect direct returns from their advertising every day. That's why you see darn few generalities in their stuff.

* * *

J. W. STUFFLEBEEM, Long Beach—If people who read our ads do not believe in our advertising, the money is wasted. Our aim of truth must come through the education of ourselves and the public.

* * *

C. S. REYNOLDS, Tacoma—A billion dollars a year is spent on advertising in America. A quarter of it is wasted because of poor selection of media and inefficient use of good media. All ink in display form is not good advertising.

* * *

NORMAN W. BROCKETT, Advertising Club of Seattle—A community is prosperous whose people are steadily employed at a fair wage. This steady employment can be furnished only by industries, farms and factories producing commodities to sell to other communities. This steady production and continuous sale can only be maintained through advertising. The jobbers and merchants of a community can only be prosperous when the people living therein are thus employed.

* * *

S. R. SPENCER, Spokane, Wash.—Advertising is that stabilizing force which keeps the top of prosperity spinning—by creating wants and desires that must be satisfied.

* * *

M. E. WISE, San Francisco—If the chain store can teach anything to advertising men, I think it is this: the chain does well the basic things in shopkeeping without which no advertising is fully effective. It uses its equipment and personnel to the best advantage. It is strongly organized to produce sales.

* * *

HARRY A. EARNSHAW of Young & McAllister, Inc., Los Angeles and San Francisco—The business battle of the next ten years is going to be in selling. Napoleon said: "God is always on the side with the largest batallions." Advertising is the strongest force you can use in selling.

* * *

WILLIS BRINDLEY, Washington Mutual Savings Bank, Seattle—Gimme and grab are the twin wasters of advertising—"Our church is giving a concert, gimme an ad"—"Our lodge is holding a benefit, gimme an ad"—"Our paper is getting out a special edition, gimme an ad"—and so on the Gimme Chorus raises its lugubrious wail to heaven. There is no more waste in real advertising than wear on the latch of a Scotchman's wallet. But in these fakes and frauds, these beggings and beseechings, there is waste, criminal waste, and real advertising pays the penalty.

CLASSIFIED GROUP ELECTS H. J. HARRISON

(Continued from page 5)

elected president; F. E. Archer of the San Francisco Examiner, vice-president, and Miss M. Rogers of the San Francisco Bulletin, secretary.

There was, at the hour of session, strong expectation that the 1927 convention would go to Honolulu, and it was felt to be desirable that the officers chosen be residents of the same or near-by centrally located mainland cities in the belief that it might be necessary to hold a classified convention apart from general sessions.

The program was divided into four major subjects handled in one hour periods, separated by ten minute addresses on special subjects. Carl Nissen of the Los Angeles Herald introduced a 40 minute forum on the business office with a 20 minute address. Mr. McDonald of the Oakland Tribune bridged the gap between the first hour and the second (devoted to the street force) by a ten minute discussion of the relationship between the inside and the outside staffs and the economy of using the business office as an intensive and extensive training school for the outside sales staff.

"The Street" a subject assigned to C. O. Chatterton, Portland Oregonian, unavoidably absent, was handled by Harvey Hall of the San Diego Sun. M. E. Jessup, Bremerton (Wash.) Searchlight, followed with a brief address on the problems of the small town paper.

Mrs. C. A. Robertson, Berkeley (Cal.) Gazette delivered the prize-winning talk "Women in Classified," being awarded the trophy by unanimous vote.

The 1927 sessions will be held in Portland concurrently with the Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' 24th convention.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED

Six Point League Names Membership Speakers and Constitution Groups

Members for three committees of the Six Point League of New York, newspaper advertising representatives, were appointed at a recent meeting of the executive committee by F. St. John Richards, president. They are:

Membership: W. D. Ward, chairman; A. W. Howland; George A. Riley; J. I. Kyle; W. A. Snowden.

Speakers: Frederick Motz, chairman; Dan A. Carroll; M. D. Bryant; George E. Munro; D. M. Shirk.

Constitution: G. W. Brett, chairman; H. N. Kirby; Hugh Burke; Thomas Clark; W. C. Bates.

Ralph Mulligan, chairman of the directory committee, reported that the 1926 Annual Directories of Eastern Newspaper Advertisers and Agencies were ready for distribution.

THE TELEGRAM

now has the largest paid circulation in

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday

guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor

An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request

ADVERTISING OFFICES

Boston	New York	Kansas City
Philadelphia	London	San Francisco
Chicago	Paris	Los Angeles
Cleveland	Florence	Seattle
Detroit		Portland

"Buy What You Can Use"

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOWE COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6TH FLOOR OCCIDENTAL BLD. INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

There Are No Other Newspapers Covering South Jersey Completely

From the Standpoint of the National Advertiser

CAMDEN COURIER
The MORNING POST

60,000 Circulation
Combination Rate

National Representatives:
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA

Producers of . . .

SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866

LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE
COMBINATION

Stocks in Principal Cities

first! in OHIO

11,492,383 Lines

Dispatch advertising record for the first six months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,665,911 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.

NET PAID CIRCULATION

CITY	55,812
SUBURBAN	26,973
COUNTRY	23,666
Total Daily Circulation	106,451

Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

DOUBTLESS throughout the 400 odd pages of "The Autobiography of Henry W. Clendenin, Editor" (State Register Company, Springfield, Ill.), are ittle incidents in newspaper life that ave practical value for an editor or for publisher. But this volume by Mr. lendenin, who for many years has sat the editorial chair of the Illinois State Register, interests me more in other ays. The personal rather than the professional side of his story of a long and usy life keeps one turning the pages. One almost wishes that he could have een in that Sunday school class he aught in Keokuk where he was as successful an editor as he has been in Springfield. He frankly admits that the nemories of those Sunday mornings in he old Congregational Church are herished by him as among the most leasant of his long life. Somehow it arms the cockles of the heart to learn f an editor who watches boys as well s column rules.

His story of building a home had for ne more interest than his account of how e built up the State Register. As a natter of fact, both jobs went along at he same time, though under different artnerships. Clendenin chats as intinately about the affairs of the home as bout those of the office. So well is the tory told that one almost wishes that the appy married life had the same news alues as the divorce.

The story of the Associated Press emains yet to be told. Consequently, what Mr. Clendenin has to say about the Northwestern Associated Press of which e was elected secretary in 1879 has hisorical value. This Northwestern Associated Press, as is pointed out, was affiliated with the Western Associated Press of which Joseph Medill of the Chicago Tribune was president and William Henry Smith, superintendent. For ears the Northwestern Associated Press ad opposed a union of the several press ssociations then in existence—the so-alled pipe dream of one, Melville E. Stone. Mr. Clendenin did much to win ver the Northwestern Associated Press o Stone's proposition. For years Mr. Clendenin was the Springfield representative of the Associated Press. In fact, e held this position until the A. P. established its own bureau in Springfield.

To Mr. Clendenin possibly belongs the redit of starting Robert J. Burdette as public lecturer. Mr. Clendenin's city editor on the Keokuk Constitution was Thomas Eichelberger who had worked with Burdette on the Burlington Hawk-Eye. Burdette wrote a sketch called "The Rise and Fall of a Moustache." Clendenin asked him to come over to Keokuk and deliver it as a lecture. Advance notices of the lecture were promised in the local pages of the Constitution. Bob came, saw, and conquered the audience and was so elated with the success that he began repeating the lecture in other places. Anecdotes like this are sprinkled throughout the volume.

I have no desire to spoil the perusal of the volume for the many newspaper friends of Mr. Clendenin. The pages of the volume tell his life story. It is an interesting story, even if spectacular features are seldom found. His political views are irritating at times, as doubtless have been his editorials. Those who do not like them, however, may easily turn to the chapters on home and family life. Indeed, one closes the volume with the feeling that he would rather have Mr. Clendenin as a neighbor than as a political opponent.

Throughout the volume the author pays numerous tributes to his business partner on the State Register, Thomas Rees. His greatest tribute, however, he reserves for his partner in life's joys and sorrows, Mrs. Henry W. Clendenin.

* * *

MISS IRENE DAVIS, assistant editor of the Toledo (Ia.) Chronicle, opens the Iowa Journalist for July with an article, "Training Country Correspondents." Among the practical suggestions offered by Miss Davis is the establishment of a house organ.

On this point she says:

> A year ago this month The Chronicle Cub emerged from The Chronicle office, the first organized step towards training our country correspondents.
>
> We decided that we must have, first, a regular house-organ; second, this organ must have interest to our correspondents; third, it must be personal. The idea of a publication to be issued at definite intervals led us to decide upon the monthly edition. Next, we must sugar-coat the instructions with interesting attention compellers, and what is more flattering and thrilling to the average person than seeing his name in print? That led, finally, to our instituting the personal element: to let the Cubs themselves feature in the issues of The Chronicle Cub in every way possible.

Mention has been made in this department of some of the house-organs of metropolitan dailies such as the Trib of the Chicago Tribune, the Sun Rays of the New York Sun, the Little Times of the New York Times, etc. Miss Davies shows how practical is the idea for small city dailies and possibly for community weeklies.

* * *

LAFCADIO HEARN deserves his place in "Our Own World of Letters." His editorial connections with New Orleans newspapers have had scant treatment in the various biographies that have appeared. Yet those days when he sat in the editorial chair were among his most productive. "Fantastics" and "Creole Sketches" were gleanings in this field.

Charles Wood ward Hutson has been going through the files of the papers upon which Hearn worked in search for the editorials that came from the latter's pen. Such a collection deserves preservation in book form and will help round out the collected works of one of the greatest word painters in English literature. In a cursory way a few editorials bearing the imprint of Hearn have been resurrected and published in feature articles, but nothing in the shape of a comprehensive survey had been made until Hutson took up his task of pouring over the Item and the Times-Democrat for those years when Hearn was associate editor, first on the former and then on the latter.

Hearn began his editorial duties on the Item June 15, 1878. He was really the literary editor, though it may be doubted whether he ever had that title. In addition to his book reviews and his dramatic criticisms he was a frequent contributor of editorials on all sorts of topics except that of politics. Bigney, the editor, reserved that field for himself.

How industrious Hearn was may be learned from one of his letters where he made the passing remark, "Editor away and whole paper on my hands." In the back office the compositors who set Hearn's copy always spoke of him as "old semi-colon"—the punctuation point of which he was very fond and which to some extent he often overworked. Hearn had another peculiarity about his copy: he insisted upon beginning a new series of paragraphs with a triangle of asterisks. So brilliant were the editorials from Hearn's pen that they frequently drew forth from exchange editors the ejaculation, "Somebody on the New Orleans Item knows how to write interesting stuff."

Hearn suffered from myopia but he had a literary vision that let him see a new editorial field where realism blended with romance. This vision was broadened through extensive reading of foreign papers. The result was that the Item, and to some extent, the Times-Democrat, showed a wonderful catholicity of taste in expression of opinion.

The editorials collected by Mr. Hutson ought to do much to answer the question, "What kind of an editorial writer was Lafcadio Hearn?" The book will be published by Houghton-Mifflin Company.

* * *

BOOKS about Benjamin Franklin have covered almost every phase of his life, including that of his newspaper connections. Philips Russell, however, will publish this fall through Brentano's, Inc., "Benjamin Franklin: The First Civilized American." In it Franklin's relations with the London "Hell Fire Club" will be set forth for the first time. The club was one of those rather rakish organizations that abounded in London during the eighteenth century. Something like an American branch must have existed because the New England Courant founded Franklin's by brother, James, was said by the clergy of Boston to have been run by the "Hell Fire Club."

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service

Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.

Six Pages Daily Illustrations in Mat Form

Write or wire for samples, price and territory.

Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service
Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original
Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.
Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal	Philadelphia Sun
Detroit News	Buffalo Times
Toledo Blade	Louisville Courier J'l
Omaha Bee	Oakland Post Enquirer
Peoria Star Journal	Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY
Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief — Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

features* SINCE 1899
WEEKLY
Camera News, Fashion, Feature and Children's Pages; House Plans; Automobile Cartoon.
3-A-WEEK
Hints for the Motorist; Handicraft in the Home.
DAILY
Cross-word Puzzles, Dots and Cut-outs; Radio; Noozie; Fashion hints; 1 col. Comics; Portraits; Gillilan's Letters; News-Maps, also The Ad-route (house organ).
The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

RADIO PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES
Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers
Send for samples and prices
AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?
AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS
Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right
Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN
We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges Without obligation to us, you may submit details terms etc
Our last Campaign was run
Name of paper City
By Title State
Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about
Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,
W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

PHOTO-LINOTYPE BEING PERFECTED IN U. S.

Holyoke, Mass., Inventor's Machine Records Letters on Films—Correction Method Provided—Has New Roto Process Also

R. J. Smothers, of Holyoke, Mass., for the past eight years manager of a printing plant in that city, has worked out two new inventions pertaining to the art of printing, both of which have a direct bearing on newspaper production. Revolutionary results are promised from the industrial application of the principles evolved by Mr. Smothers and his devices are now undergoing tests by engineers to determine their practicality.

One invention introduces an offset rotogravure process that promises an increase of efficiency over the present rotogravure system and is claimed also to offer great advantages over the system of offset lithography that has gained an important and profitable place in the printing industry. A salient feature of the new process is that instead of printing paper directly from a copper roller, the impression is first transferred from the copper to a rubber roller and thence to the paper in a manner that entails the use of less ink, eliminates artificial drying and enables five or six times as many impressions to be made in an hour as by the present rotogravure methods.

A second invention is that of a photo-linotype, which does away with the casting of metal slugs by photographing the characters appearing in an assembled line of matrices on a film or sensitized paper and rephotographing on a metal plate that goes on the cylinder of the press.

Mr. Smothers claims that his new offset rotogravure process does away with the making of separate half tone engravings, applies the principal of the photo-linotype, substitutes the fast cylinder press for the flat bed press used in offset lithography, vastly increases the speed of printing the familiar rotogravure supplements, and opens up advantages in catalog and other forms of commercial printing. He claims that the hard copper employed is good for 1,000,000 impressions or more, whereas the lithographic plate is limited to from 25,000 to 75,000 impressions, and the ink distribution system is much simpler and more economical, one roller taking the place of 20.

Instead of printing the paper directly from the copper plate already described, the impression is first taken by a roller having a specially prepared rubber blanket, which, owing to its resilient nature and the use of a special ink, produces exceptional sharpness and clearness on the printed page with the use of much less ink than formerly and enables a high speed to be attained in the printing. In this case a positive print is made on the copper, producing a negative on the rubber roller, which moves in unison with the first, and finally leaves its imprint on the paper which is fed in from a web.

In rotogravure and lithography, as in newspaper and book printing, wherever type is used, it must be cast in metal slugs, a proof taken and this proof photographed. This is obviated in offset rotogravure, as in general printing by the use of the photo-linotype, and this principal likewise may be applied in offset lithography.

Matrices of a special design are assembled in the same manner as on the common linotype machine, but at the point where the slugcasting now takes place a photograph of the assembled line is made on a film which is automatically moved the right distance and the process repeated, the edges of the film being slotted as in motion picture use. This film is cut to the size of the newspaper column or book page.

Provision is made for the correction of errors in this first product. To do this the film is put through an attached machine which prints a new line and with mathematical exactness cuts out the line containing the error or errors and inserts the new line, which is fused with the original film by the use of a special glue. The film used for making corrections is passed through a separate slot above that used for the regular film, and is operated with a ratchet movement, the new line being passed to its place through the use of a shift key. The correcting machine also cuts the slots off the film and then trims it to the necessary width.

From the finished film the printing is photographed and etched on the zinc or copper, as already described. If desired, an entire page including column rules may be photographed and it is an interesting point that a separate patent was deemed necessary to include this use of a column rule.

A machine is now being built which is designed to become a standard for the new photo-linotype. In general appearance it is not unlike the linotype machine.

Supplies and Equipment

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT SLUG FEEDER

Eliminates the Metal Furnace

The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

24 PAGE
GOSS PRESS
FOR SALE

Through the purchase of the Republican-Gazette by The Lima Morning Star, we offer at a low price for immediate disposal our 24 page Goss Straightline Press with complete stereotype equipment.

PRESS—7 or 8 col. 3 decks. 36,000 papers per hour up to 12 pages, 18,000 up to 24 pages. Nearly new G. E. electric station control. Extra set of rollers.

STEREOTYPE—3 ton pot with gravity feed oil burner, also grates for coal or you can use gas. Plate casting box with pump. Flat casting box. Saw, Trimmer, Shaver. Plate routing block. Mat roller. Electric mat scorcher, 100 mat size electric humidor.

Outfit in first class condition and now in use. Current copies and further information will be mailed on request.

THE LIMA STAR
Lima, Ohio

The Buyers of Equipment and Supplies read the EDITOR & PUBLISHER

GOSS STEREOTYPING MACHINERY

Carried in Stock

Some outstanding and exclusive features of The Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Roller: Patented stretching roller produces dry mats without a wrinkle. Both ends of cylinder are set at same time. Heavy cast-iron cylinders with forged steel shafts. Extra heavy bed—no racks—large enough to run chase with columns crosswise. Rolls wet mats in 11¼ seconds; dry mats in 22½ seconds. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World"

For large and small plants

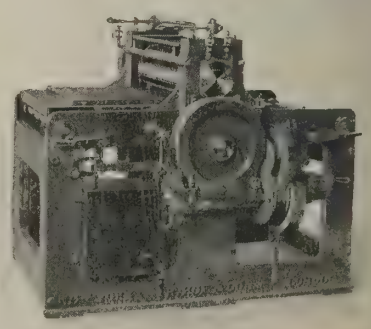
Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.

Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

CUTLER-HAMMER

Fight hot-weather fatigue

Fresh, cool, invigorating air—supplied by Sturtevant Ventilating Fans—would keep your men working at top-notch efficiency during the hot summer months.



B. F. STURTEVANT CO.
Hyde Park, Boston, Mass.
Branch Offices in Principal Cities

Sturtevant REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
Ventilating Fans

Rebuilt GOSS & HOE PRESS BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO—NEW YORK—LONDON

HOE New-Design Heavy-Duty Matrix Roller

Built especially for heavy-duty work from the best grade of materials. Heavy supporting Frames are cast in one piece and secured by two substantial crossbar castings. Bed, with five second travel in one direction for wet mats and twenty second travel for dry mats, accommodates the largest single and double-page chases in ordinary use.

Designed Especially for Dry Mats

R. HOE & CO., INC.
7 South Dearborn Street
CHICAGO, ILL.
504-520 Grand St., New York City also at DUNELLEN, N. J.
7 Water Street
BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 241 Broadway, New York City.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

Duly Opportunities—Evening paper, Ohio, earning 12% net. Evening paper, South Carolina, earning 15% net. Evening paper, Pennsylvania, earning 20% net. Evening paper, Oklahoma, earning 25% net. Each occupies exclusive field. Also several desirable weeklies. J. B. Shale, Times Bldg., New York.

Western Pennsylvania Weekly, only paper in county seat of large county. Profitable business and splendid equipment. Available for $21,500 on terms. Prop. 1450x. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Interest for Sale

Interest, carrying position of business manager; Oklahoma city of ten thousand; only daily in rich and fast growing city; salary commensurate with ability; applicant should have from five to seven thousand. Address A-612, Editor & Publisher.

Newspapers Wanted

If the 2000-odd Daily Newspaper Owners in the country, I want to reach just one. It is like looking for a needle in a hay stack, but you are there, and I am going to find you. It is to our mutual advantage that I do.

You are thinking of retiring from the newspaper business and it worries you. You are pondering right now whether to sell, and drop out of the picture altogether, or whether there is some more gradual and graceful way.

I want to help solve your problem. You can retire as slowly or as fast as you wish. I can believe you of either the business or editorial side, or of both, when and as you choose.

For 15 years, I have been working on newspapers for a salary. It is in five figures now, and has been for some time. I am editing and publishing a newspaper in a city of one hundred thousand. Previously, I edited and published a newspaper in a city twice that size. I have had to do with the management of a newspaper in a city of a million, and I started as one of ten thousand.

I know newspaper making. As editor, I write my own editorials, and they are effective; I direct the news policy. As manager, I increased advertising and organized circulation on a home delivery basis; I cut costs and increased profits. As operator, I handle the mechanical departments efficiently and economically, because I know them. I made a national reputation for promotion. Those are facts.

I can't see another fifteen years working for a salary. I want my own newspaper some day. You want every cent your paper is worth, and you will get it, but first of all you want to make sure that I can run your paper. You want to know that I have the character, the ability, the experience, to build on your success. So to start I want to understudy you and share your responsibility. You will pay me well, and you will see the wisdom of giving me a contingent interest in the business, based on my production. Eventually, after I am established in the community, and you are convinced I am the right man, I hope to assume full responsibility; and when you are ready, even the responsibility of complete ownership.

I will be delighted to serve you if you will write A-659, Editor & Publisher.

Partner Wanted

Newspaper Feature Syndicate, just formed, having profitable material with plenty more for expansion. Want party with few thousand dollars and newspaper experience, preferably in syndicate. Money would be repaid out of first returns. Interested parties will all work on small salary till venture has successfully progressed. Write A-653, Editor & Publisher.

Representative Wanted

New York Representative wanted for list of dull daily newspapers: growing. Splendid opportunity for man desirous of building a list. Give complete information: confidential. W. & J., 1501 Marquette Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

CIRCULATION

Premiums

Steel Coaster Wagons—A Philadelphia daily offers 10,000 (ten thousand) and numerous large dailies throughout the country are offering thousand lots. Parents will work on a wagon offer. Let us quote you. Circulators report a wonderful summer for kid offers. Plenty of Copy. The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation coverage becomes necessary, remember that our twenty years in this one line of endeavor is your proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

How Many New Mail Subscribers do you want? We will tell you how to get 'em and get 'em fast. A large daily secured ten thousand (10,000) subscribers on this offer. The Allbright China Co., Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Cartoons—When you want a cartoon for a special edition, a convention or some other local subject, write us. We will draw it. Price to cover both drawing and engraving $5.75. Size of cut three col. six in. deep. Guido D. Janes Service, Quincy, Ill.

Toronto, Ohio, Tribune is the new customer this week. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Salesman—We want an alert and immediate producer of results with fresh ideas and ability to sell space, also able to develop new accounts. State age and salary. Republican, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Assistant Manager—Man, age 30 to 40, as assistant to the manager of internationally known and fast growing photographic news organization. Must have editorial and managerial experience. This position offers an unusually bright future for the right man. State all of your qualifications including age, education, past experience and earnings. Write freely as your letter will be held in strictest confidence. Address President, A-649, Editor & Publisher.

Established newspaper, city of 50,000, wants young man for position with chance of advancement, in display advertising department. Must have had some experience in copy-writing, planning and salesmanship. Record for personal character important. A-660, Editor & Publisher.

Experienced Newspaper Advertising Salesman wanted by Publisher's Representative in the national field to take charge of long established Eastern office in New York. Salary $5,000 to $7,500. Unusually happy working conditions assured. A-647, Editor & Publisher.

Live Advertising Solicitor—Internationally known trade publication wants live advertising solicitor in every city of the United States over 25,000 population. Must be dependable creator of new accounts. Commission basis only. Write full particulars regarding service you can render and territory desired. All correspondence treated confidentially. A-656, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter Wanted—Middle aged man, thoroughly experienced, sober and accurate. Steady position. Apply A-652, Editor & Publisher.

Young Man wanted with thorough reportorial and good desk experience as state editor on midwest daily, city of over 30,000. Must be hard worker, able to handle telegraph copy. A-635, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager, successful small city, seeks northwest or Canadian connection. Effective copywriter-salesman. A-642, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Executive, several years' agency and general commercial experience, desires immediate connection. A-651, Editor & Publisher.

Assistant to Copy Man or in advertising department of newspaper or advertiser; or with advertising agency. Young man with four years' experience desires position with opportunity for advancement. B-662, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, in present position seven years, desires change. Showing steady increase, A. B. C. Audits clean, know circulation from ground up. Best references from present employers. Prefer South or Southwest. A-634, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—Don't slight the circulation. It's the life blood of your paper. Secure man who will make you proud of your next A. B. C. audit. Address "Circulation Manager" 434½—19th Ave., Moline, Illinois.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation and Promotion Manager seeks confidential correspondence and interview with publication or combination needing new life in the direction and leadership of its circulation department.

Study this ad, it's your paper's opportunity.

The writer with years of experience, enjoys a constant flow of productive ideas; is a good leader and pusher; never hibernates; knows cost, where his figure is at all times and how to control it; accustomed to the keenest competition, yet able to eliminate lost motion in promotion; will show tangible results within ninety days and thereafter until you say "enough." Metropolitan and provincial experience.

Judicious spender, showing 100% results for your dollar.

Actual working experience covers every cog of a circulation department, consequently the applicant can immediately place his hand on any part of an organization not functioning 100%.

Location—no objection.

Salary reasonable with provision for compensation in accordance with results. Future prime thought, not a drifter.

Age 35, family, excellent health. At liberty with due notice. Excellent reference.

Now is the time to change a circulation executive to perfect your organization and show fast, sound growth. Address A-618, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Man, young, experienced, seeks position. Roadman, crew manager promotion. A-644, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager—Young man now employed, 24 years of age, married and with 5 years' experience, desires change. Has an exceptional record for procuring new business. Thoroughly experienced with all successful classified methods; also very familiar with Basil Smith System. Salary expected $60 a week. Write A-658, Editor & Publisher, for full particulars.

Editor desires position country weekly; preferably New England or New York State. Experienced. Sam J. Banks, General Delivery, Cambridge, Mass.

Editor - Engineer—Will edit house organ, assist in the getting up of descriptive matter, write reports, booklets, or proofread. Three and a-half years' experience in editing department of magazine, and electrical engineer by profession. A-648, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, now employed, seeks change. Ohio preferred. Qualified for managing editor, editorial writer, any desk work. Would consider investment proposition. B-665, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer; also syndicated features; considerable sold fiction—traveled, mature, married, dependable. Seeks change. A-642, Editor & Publisher.

Expert Promotion Man, 43, with record of achievement, knowledge of human nature, indomitable will to succeed, seeks position. Circulation Manager or Promotion Manager anywhere. Not a cheap man, but a good one. A-657, Editor & Publisher.

General Manager—Some Newspaper Publisher in a city of 250,000 or more, needs a new General Manager. If you are that Publisher or Owner you can now get the man you want. He has brains, youth (33 years old) experience, ability and personality. A wire or letter addressed to A-539, Editor & Publisher, will bring him for an interview.

Managing Editor, 15 years' successful experience. Age 35, college graduate. Open for offer August 1. Metropolitan and small town experience. Capable executive, forceful writer, news and make up expert. Prefer daily in town of 20,000 to 200,000 where there is opportunity to build future for myself and paper. A-654, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Highly capable, 17 years, mostly editorial executive, on metropolitan newspapers, wants chance to build "second" paper on sharing basis. Would take paper on lease. Editorial executive now on New York City daily but not afflicted with New Yorkitis. Prefer West Coast paper. I'm married, 34, hard and intelligent worker. Have record of achievement behind and ahead of me. Highest references. A-646, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor for a country weekly. Young, married, wide awake, has new ideas, knows what the people want. Will locate anywhere providing chance for advancement. Hard worker and has had experience. Excellent references. Albert R. Beatty. P. O. Box 72, Washington, New Jersey.

Newspaper and Commercial Artist, experienced, wishes position with Syndicate or Newspaper. Write Earl S. Johnston, 5810 Holden St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Veteran Editor, metropolitan and interior experience, wants responsible executive or editorial position; now on New York daily. A-615, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Complete Newspaper Plant for Sale—We offer for sale the entire mechanical equipment of the Tampa Telegraph newspaper plant.

This equipment is thoroughly modern in every respect and less than a year old. Included in the equipment are 15 Mergenthaler Linotype machines including ten 2-magazine model 8, 3 model 14, 1 model 22 and 1 model 26 machines.

There are also 2 of the latest of the model Lanston monotype machines and a complete all-steel equipment in the make up and ad room department, as well as a varied and complete assortment of ad type faces.

The equipment also includes 1 high-speed Hoe Sextuple printing press and a complete modern stereotype equipment. Especially attractive terms will be offered upon the sale of the plant in its entirety although the purchase of individual items will be considered.

For further particulars, address J. S. Mims, General Business Manager, Tampa Tribune, Inc.

Duplex 8-page flatbed angle-bar press, complete, with 16 chases, for sale; in good condition; also Model C Intertype and Model 5 Linotype. Times, Okmulgee, Okla.

Goss Comet and Duplex Flat-bed Presses for immediate delivery. Good condition guaranteed. Also several good bargains in stereotype presses and machinery. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Hoe Dry Mat Roller, new only one year ago. Alternating current motor, 40 seconds travel. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau street, New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Single Width, Three Deck Goss Straightline for sale with motor drive, switchboard, etc. Priced at $6,500 for quick sale. Immediate delivery. Roy C. Goodwin, Geneva, N. Y.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER

350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

SUMMER brings once more into the limelight—or rather the moonlight—the ukele, the banjo, the guitar, mandolin, and Hawaiian instruments, for picnics, porch parties, and the girl friend. Why not get up a group of ads of these instruments for summer night serenaders?—C. M. L., Seattle, Wash.

Food is a never-failing source of interest, and the grocers' ads will take on added pep if they surround a group of choice recipes signed by well known cooks in your town some day. Refrigerator ads and gas cookers and stoves may get in on the recipe composite ad. The ice cream parlors will come in as desserts for hot days. Amusement concerns will come, too, healthy people must be happy when they eat, etc. A two-page spread can be picked up.—Jean Strachan.

The cosmetic counters, of the drug and department stores have some unusual wares for the summer, such as "cooling drugs"—powders, sunburn preparations. A good leader to get people out shopping during the hot days, too.—R. M. C.

The affiliated papers of the News League of Ohio carried several pages of advertising on supplementary market pages, used in connection with the semi-annual business review by J. C. Royale.—E. L. Bettis.

Pressing the theory that the Chamber of Commerce would be of more value to the community if it had more friends, and that these friends could only be obtained through some sort of "service," one newspaper induced the local Chamber to advertise its general information telephone service that is open to the general public. Tripled number of calls for information after the first of the ads appeared attested the value of the publicity.—B. A. T.

The alert advertising man can pick up yesterday's news stories and use them for exceptionally good ad copy. Recently a southern Indiana daily carried two stories in the news section, one told of an increase in the price of ice, another of the purchase of an iceless refrigerator for the county hospital. The following day these two stories, lifted from the news section, were used as an ad which was sold to an agent for electric refrigerators. The news appearance of such copy gives them unusually good attention value—Yandell C. Cline.

The Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal publishes a two page cooperative advertisement each Sunday on a model demonstration home erected in the city. Of approximately 100 merchants, contractors, architects, plumbers, etc., who have supplied material and equipment for the home, about 20 advertise each Sunday. Each two page ad contains a description of some phase of the home by the architect, contractor, or another joint builder. All of the 100 participants will have advertised their contributions in the next four weeks.—R. L., Madison, Wis.

Display advertising, considered by the majority of used car dealers to be unprofitable when compared with classified, can be made a new source of revenue if the dealer will co-operate. Recently the Franklin (Ind.) Star has obtained splendid results with big display used car ads when the dealers co-operated to the extent of lining-up the cars in front of their garages with plain price figures painted on the windshields and having their entire sales force on the job.—Davis O. Vandivier, Franklin (Ind.) Star.

The Aurora (Ill.) Beacon-News issued a 16-page section recently that introduced some new ideas in booster editions in the form of editorial layout. The souvenir edition was labeled "Greater Aurora" and a sub-head explained it had "15 reasons for Aurora's future progress and prosperity."

In the center of each succeeding page was a four-column layout of about 750 words, semi-editorial in nature, relating the growth of various factors that had contributed to the town's upbuilding. The editorial matter was set about 50-picas wide, 10-point, with about 40-picas, indent, column interviews with the leaders in the field represented alongside. The various pages were devoted to factories, utilities, transportation, trading facilities, churches, homes, playgrounds, amusements, schools, banks, government, public improvements, hospitals parks, growth, etc.—S. J. L.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

"TIPS Get to Police in Strange Manner," a feature run by the New Castle (Pa.) News, offers a good lead for a human interest story, and recalling some interesting cases of the past in almost any city.—T. E. R., Chicago.

Every day the Ashland (Wis.) Daily Press carries a quotation above its nameplate on page one, suggested by a reader, whose name follows the quotation. It creates a large amount of reader-interest. Wm. L. Doudna.

Taking the present status of radio legislation as the base, the Dayton Daily News is conducting a campaign to increase summer radio activity by editorial education against the "fallacy" of summer static interference.—E. L. Bettis.

Trees are good for a feature story in almost any city. Most towns, strange to say, have shade trees in numbers that are not native to their soil while the native trees do not thrive so well. A story telling of the public spirited early dwellers who advocated tree planting; how many trees there are at present and how they are cared for; how they have grown, would be interesting.—Gordon MacQuarrie.

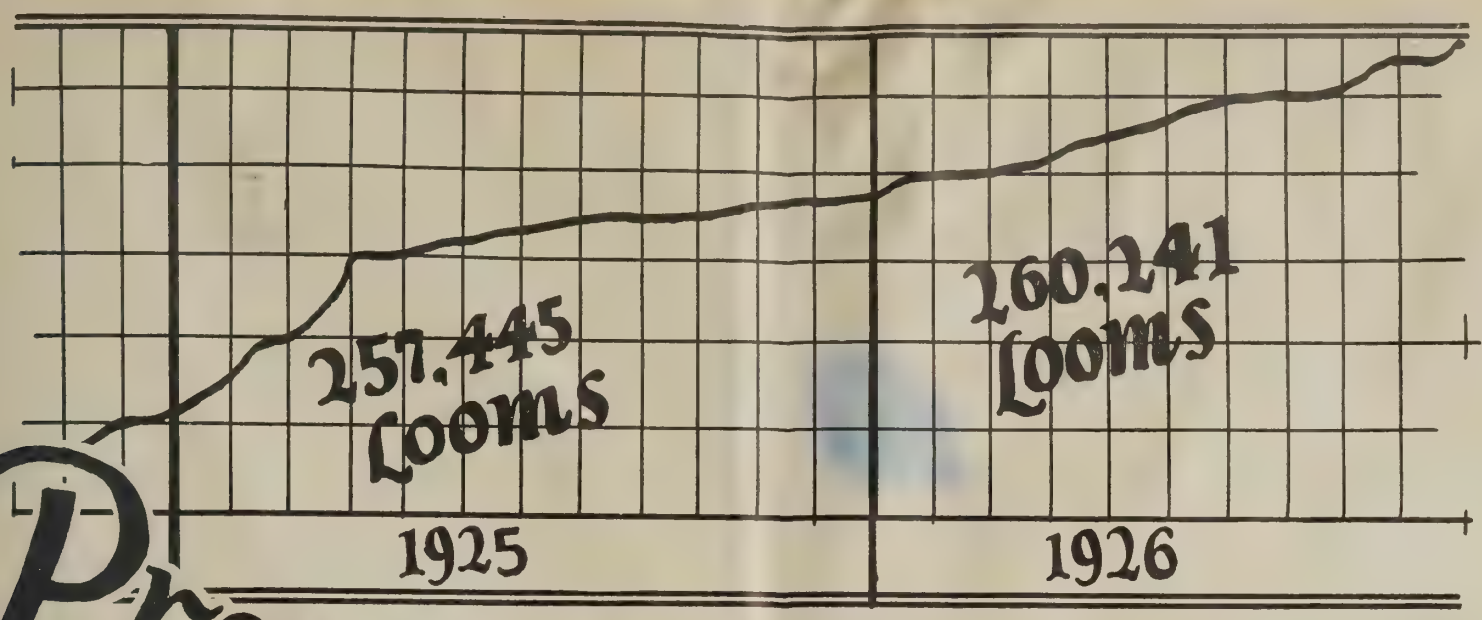
Two Salt Lake City dailies, the morning Tribune and the afternoon Deseret News, feature, throughout the spring, summer, and fall, articles on the condition of the roads, and other travel information, of interest to the thousands of tourists who make the city their headquarters in tours of the national parks. In order to make this information as timely and as authoritative as such must be to be of value, the Tribune and the News keep staff members continually on the road during the touring season. These men drive official newspaper cars labeled Pathfinder, and they are in constant touch with road and travel conditions in their sectors.—Solon R. Barber.

"Are Cincinnati Business Women Good Cooks? If You Doubt It Try This Tested Recipe?" is the heading of a good household page feature run by the Cincinnati Times-Star. The recipes supplied by local women are run in a box kept to 3 x 5 inches for clipping and pasting on the cards now used so extensively by women.—T. E. R., Chicago.

The Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal is publishing two special departments daily and Sunday—one headed "Over in Arkansas" and the other called "The Point of View in Mississippi." Both occupy about a column each issue. Miscellaneous news, comments and editorial quotations from the state exchanges are used in these departments.—R. S. West.

How To Play GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game
24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

A Fast Selling Comic Gaining Momentum Every Week!
THE NEBBS
By SOL HESS
Combines all features of a strong strip—humor, suspense and human interest. Order it now and watch Rudy Nebb's big fight to regain his lost fortune
[The Cleveland Plain Dealer bought it last week]
The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City



"Soch a Life"
By J. L. LEIBSON
A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in
One Thousand Word Stories
Illustrated by the well known artist
ALBERT LEVERING
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

Let Us Tell You
—about our plan of securing advertising from manufacturers, industrial plants, jobbers, wholesalers and other concerns in your city who are now spending their appropriations for other forms of advertising.
Let us explain how we can place this business in your paper regularly without selling expense to you. WRITE—
THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS • • TENN.

BY UNITED PRESS
AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK
UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service
Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.
4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates
NEA SERVICE INC.
1200 W. 3RD. STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Proof—of the South's steady Progress

The substantial growth of the South, is best illustrated by the Textile industry's progress from year to year.

It is not a spectacular growth due to booms, but a steady, reliable increase which is there to stay. And, every year more and more mills are locating in the South, where labor is dependable and where conditions are ideal for industrial progress.

Not only in textiles, but in iron and steel, coal, lumber and hundreds of industries is this growth apparent.

The South is enjoying prosperity, unprecedented in the history of industry.

For the National Advertiser the opportunities are unlimited. Get in on the ground floor now. Advertise in the daily papers. The medium that reaches direct.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Birmingham Age-Herald (M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald (S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item (E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register (M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register (S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 (S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger (E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald (M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald (S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star (E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel (M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal (E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Augustine Record (E&S)	3,382	.04	.04
†St. Petersburg Independent (E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times (E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841 (S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
*West Palm Beach Post (M)	12,243	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald (E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald (S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph (M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph (S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015. (S)	23,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*The Lexington Leader (E)	19,640	.06	.06
*The Lexington Leader (S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun (E)	9,255	.04	.04

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News (M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News (S)	31,505	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post (E)	7,188	.06	.06
†Winston-Salem Journal (M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal (S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel (E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State (M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State (S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News (M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal (E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860 (S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times (M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times (S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal (S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner (E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner (S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee (M&E)	14,313	.05	.05
*Danville Register (Sunday)	9,065
*Newport News Times-Herald (E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press (S&M)	5,413
*Roanoke Times & World News (M&E)	25,772	.08	.08
*Roanoke Times (S)	16,076	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader (E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

Freshest Advices

WHEN good John Powell, of old Boston Towne, took his goose-quill in hand to pen the "freshest advices" for the great-grandad of the American newspaper, he had no fear of competition.

But even in the tavern and stage-coach days there were certain items in the first "news-letter" which stood out boldly from the routine of "Publick Occurrences, Ships, Wares, Merchandises and Runaway Slaves."

Because of their piquant, human flavor these "fresh advices" quickened the eye and touched the hearts of our founding fathers.

Today, in the fierce competition of an age of a thousand distractions, it is still the story with atmosphere and background, written with the human touch of the master craftsman, that stands out from the news grist of the day.

Such are the distinctive stories on sports, politics, finance, business, radio and fashions which the skilled writers of The Consolidated Press Association furnish to its member papers.

Exclusive publication rights are still available in a few cities. Special toll-saving propositions are open to the smaller papers.

A telegram will bring details.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

THIS ISSUE:—PUBLIC OPINION DEMANDS MELLETT'S DEATH BE AVENGED

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 9 NEW YORK, JULY 24, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

Local Business Makes the "Profit Area"

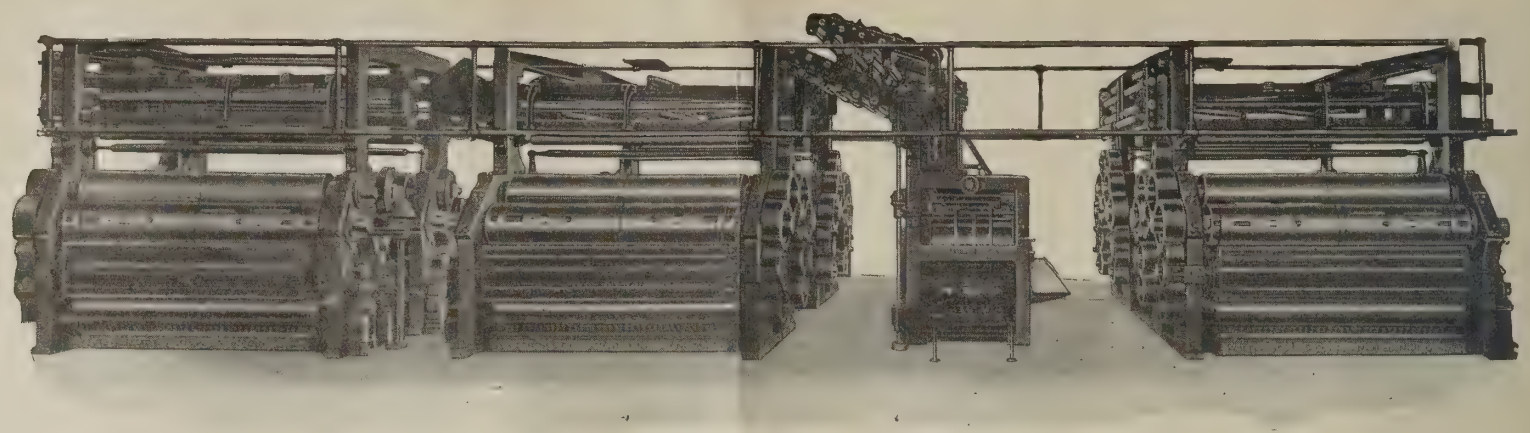
How far from the city in which a newspaper is published is reader interest extended to its advertising contents?

CHICAGO local advertisers are certainly not averse to getting business from territory outside of the 50-mile zone—yet looking to profit-from-advertising they advertise more in The Daily News, with 94% of its circulation in Chicago and suburbs, than in any other Chicago daily paper.*

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

*Chicago local display advertising in agate lines, first six months of 1926:

The Chicago Daily News	7,260,217
Second daily paper	5,242,733
Third daily paper	4,737,980
Fourth daily paper	2,278,591
Fifth daily paper	1,807,937



The fact is that local advertising gives a newspaper its advertising interest — the interest through which national advertising is assured a reading. When local advertising is essentially complete, as it is in The Chicago Daily News, circulation concentrated in the local trading area is a paying investment for the national advertiser. He pays for circulation in the "profit area"—and there only.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

First in Chicago

Advertising Representatives:

NEW YORK — J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St.
DETROIT — Woodward & Kelly, Fine Arts Building
CHICAGO — Woodward & Kelly, 306 N. Michigan Ave.
SAN FRANCISCO — C. Geo. Krogness, 353 First National Bank Bldg.

Scott "Multi-Unit" Double Sextuple Underfed Press
Consisting of 6 Units and 2 Central folders

("Multi-Unit" Presses are most flexible)

Production in Proportion to Speed

Scott Presses were recently run at speeds which have never before been reached in standard newspaper press operation.

In attaining these record speeds, however, Scott Presses kept their production proportionately high.

Samples of presswork taken at speeds varying from 22,000 to 48,000 per hour showed no change in the quality of the printing.

Scott "Multi-Unit" and "Straight-Unit" Presses, regardless of their running speed, give maximum actual production, —regularly, safely, and with a minimum of effort by the pressmen.

To Obtain the Greatest Production Install

Scott

"Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" Presses

Cylinder Speed—400 r. p. m.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office and Factory - - - Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A.
New York Office - - - - 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - 1330 Monadnock Block

Cable Address: WALTSCOTT NEW YORK

THE BALTIMORE SUN

Shows Advertising Gain of

1,168,030 Agate Lines

For First Half of 1926

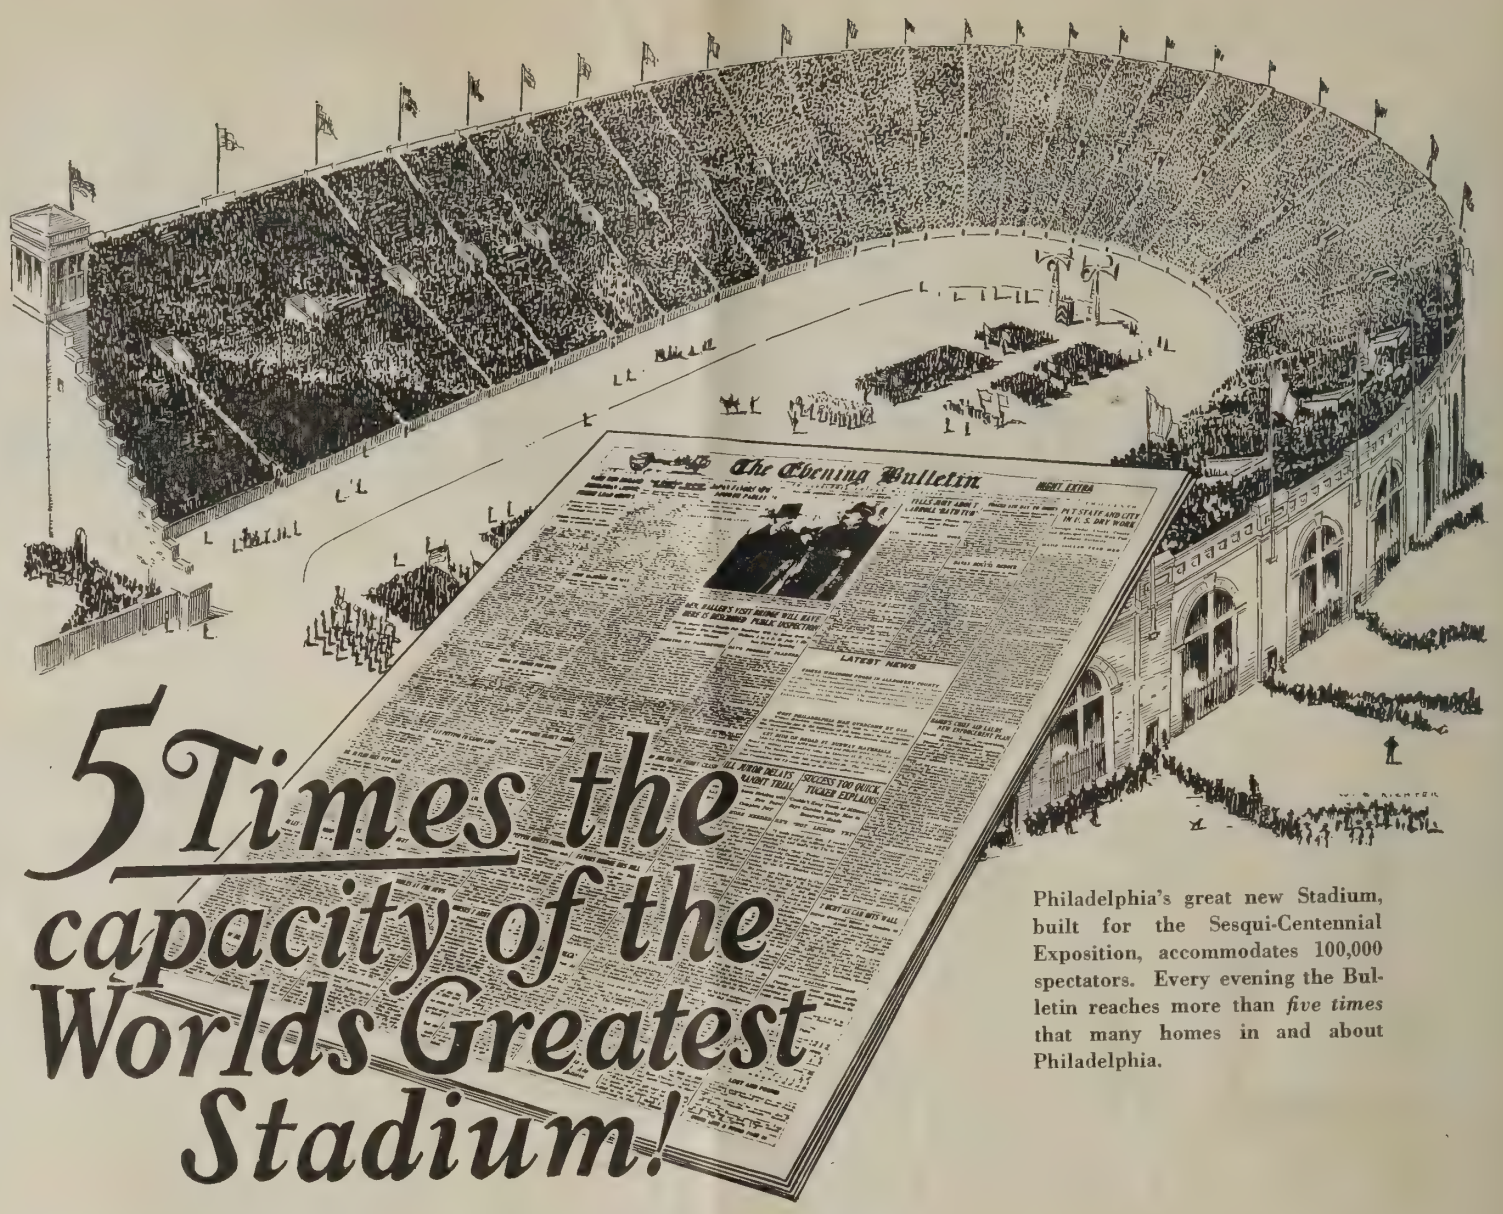
OVER A MILLION agate lines of paid advertising were gained by the Baltimore Sun (morning, evening and Sunday issues) during the first six months of 1926 as compared with the corresponding period of 1925. Here are the figures:

Paid Advertising Lineage of the Sunpapers for the First Six Months of 1925-26

	1926	1925	Gain
Morning and Sunday	9,089,197	8,700,558	388,639
Evening - - - -	9,133,210	8,353,819	779,391
Total - - - -	18,222,407	17,054,377	1,168,030

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.,
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago



C. GEORGE KROGNESS
First National Bank Bldg.
San Francisco

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

5 Times the capacity of the Worlds Greatest Stadium!

Philadelphia's great new Stadium, built for the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition, accommodates 100,000 spectators. Every evening the Bulletin reaches more than five times that many homes in and about Philadelphia.

That's only part of The Bulletin's circulation story.

There are about 550,000 separate dwellings in the Philadelphia-Camden retail trading area.

According to U. S. Census figures 5.4 persons comprise the average family. 3,300,000 people live in this section.

Thus it is plain that not only does The Bulletin go daily into practically every home in America's third largest market, but also "nearly everybody reads The Bulletin."

Not only does The Bulletin "dominate Philadelphia," but its circulation is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper, and is the third largest in the United States.

By advertising in The Bulletin you can "cover Philadelphia at one cost."

Net Paid Daily Circulation for Six Months Ending March 31, 1926

533,169 copies

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA

NEW YORK
247 Park Avenue
(Park-Lexington Building)

CHICAGO
Verree & Conklin, Inc.,
28 East Jackson Boulevard

DETROIT
C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
321 Lafayette Boulevard

SAN FRANCISCO
Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc.
681 Market St.

(Copyright, 1926, Bulletin Co.)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, JULY 24, 1926 | No. 9

Coward's Bullet Stills Voice of Editor Crying in Wilderness for Decency

Nation Outraged by Don Mellett's Complete Sacrifice Serving His City—Story of Crime and Amazing Crusade Which Prompted It—Canton Now Aghast

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

CANTON, Ohio, July 20.—"'Get busy or get out' is the News' greeting to Chief Lengel for the New Year. The News has little confidence in Lengel, and less in Ben Clarke and Ed Swope."

Thus Donald R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News, whose life was snuffed out early on the morning of July 16 by unknown gunmen, editorially announced his crusade against political corruption in the police department after exposés of vice conditions had been printed.

Don, as the youthful publisher was affectionately known to intimate friends and all employes of the News, was a smiling fighter. No matter how bad things seemed, Don never expressed malice toward individuals, always claiming civic pride and hatred for the practices of the underworld as the motives for his fight.

Don R. Mellett, journalism's forfeit to stupefied civic consciousness.

"But that's the way he always was—always smiling and so enthusiastic about everything. Even when he was receiving the threats against his life he never ceased being cheerful and took them as a joke."

Coming to Canton in January, 1925, as business manager of the News, Mellett through his association with the business men learned at first hand the background of the vice and political corruption which held Canton in its grasp. Always a staunch Christian, he advised a campaign against these conditions.

"They are too powerful to successfully cope with," he was told on all sides. "Leave things alone, for as sure as they are stirred up there will be murder. At present murder has been forgotten for a time. We don't want a revival of the wholesale murders of a few years ago."

Fear of the underworld could not be instilled into the heart of this intrepid newspaper man, as it had been into those of the business men. The besmirched name of Canton rankled in the heart of Canton's new citizen. His civic pride rose and he advocated a cleanup. Though no one would aid him, he started a campaign through the News. Staff reporters were assigned to write exposés of conditions as they found them. This was done under the supervision of Lloyd Mellett, city editor of the News, and brother of Don. Lloyd did most of the writing at the suggestion of Don.

In November, when Donald Mellet was made publisher of the News, he launched an editorial campaign against rampant vice and political corruption. The citizenry of Canton stood aghast at the nerve of this man who dared to take up the cudgels of righteousness. No one came to his aid and many even scoffed, while others predicted that he would not last long.

The citizens evidently knew whereof they spoke. He didn't last long—eight months. But those eight months were ones of the most unrelenting and uncompromising newspaper wars against vice.

The actual circumstances leading up to the dastardly shooting from the rear of Mellett were not of only eight months' standing. They started in actuality more than five years ago when bootlegging and hijacking became the leading occupations of the underworld characters.

These characters were and still are tenaciously holding the city in a grip of fear.

There have been many murders among the gangsters, bootleggers, dope peddlers and operators of bawdy houses which have been taken as a matter of course by the citizenry. Three outstanding unsolved murders are being recalled vividly since the slaying of Don.

The first of these was when "Mooney" Kitsiz was strangely slain from ambush.

Next was the Florence Nitzman killing, little more than a year later.

The third was that of Ruth Hunter nearly two years ago. Although never proved it is believed that the bootlegger's ring, dopesters and ill fame house operators were the sinister forces back of the killings.

During that period of two and one half years there were many other minor murders, almost in wholesale lots, but not of a prominent character.

Wanton murder then died down for a time as the Curtis brothers came into power in the city government. It was shown at later trials of E. E. Curtis, removed safety director, that he had the underworld so organized that they paid him regularly to operate. His two collectors, Harry Bouklias and Harry Turner, after perjuring themselves, turned state's evidence and caused the conviction of Curtis.

It again was the News which caused this exposure. W. Bernard Rodgers, then a reporter for the News but now an attorney, wrote a series of articles of conditions of graft prevailing about the City Hall, which aroused the citizens to action. The result was the removal by Governor Vic A. Donahey of C. C. Curtis as mayor and the ultimate sentencing to the Ohio penitentiary of E. E. Curtis, his brother.

Coming from a newspaper family, Don Mellett had the ethics and inspirations of progressive journalism instilled into him. He was the sixth youngest of a family of seven boys, all but one of whom are in responsible newspaper positions. He always claimed that a newspaper's work was to keep the public informed of what was going on and to protect it from corruption on the part of any public officials.

"A newspaper is the public's servant," Don often told his associates, "and anything either directly or indirectly of interest to the public, whose money goes to conduct our nation, city and state, should be given to them and trust to their spirit to cooperate."

In Canton Mellett found this spirit on the part of the citizens lacking. He fought a lone battle, except for a few of the more staunch citizens who helped him in a small way. None seemed to believe that the conditions were as bad as he pictured them.

Until the very last, he showed no relenting spirit. It was always on and upward. So strong did his attacks become, none of which were made until he had the actual facts and proof at his command, that threats began coming in from several sources.

Not knowing the meaning of fear and refusing to be intimidated, he fired volley after volley of editorial comment into and against the ranks of the bootleggers, dope peddlers, gamblers and bawdy house operators.

The police department also was under fire in Mellett's crusade against vice. He charged that the influence of all the underworld vices reached up through the entire department. So strong did the crusade become against the Police Department that Chief Saranus A. Lengel was dismissed by Mayor Stanford M. Swarts on charges of inefficiency.

After a turbulent trial lasting more than 15 days and during which over 100 witnesses were examined, the chief was ordered reinstated by the Civil Service Commission. The mayor, refusing to abide by the decision, carried the case through several courts. but finally ordered the chief back.

Mrs. Don Mellett

The crusade continued after this serious setback. Much sport was made of Mellett for the failure to oust Chief Lengel, which was termed by many as a personal grudge fight between Mellett and the chief.

Chief Lengel then filed suit against the Daily News for $50,000, charging defamation of character and holding him up to ridicule. The case has never been heard.

Turning his attention to the "big guns," behind the moonshine liquor business, Mellett secured the evidence upon which the conviction for violation of paroles by Harry Turner and Harry Bouklias was based. They had been star witnesses against E. E. Curtis and received suspended sentences for turning state's evidence.

In doing this a scare was thrown into the police department and for a time they were extremely active. Several of the largest catches of rum-runners and wine-sellers were made, but this stopped when Sergeant John "Jiggs" Wise apprehended one Louis Mazer with an automobile-load of Canadian liquor en route to a party given by police officials.

The summer drew on and the attacks became more and more pointed as Mellett became surer of his ground and backed assertions by proof, then a string of murders came. It is thought, although not proven, that those killed had aided Mellett or in some way allowed information to leak out.

The week immediately preceding the slaying of Mellett, there were three murders on consecutive nights in the "jungle" territory. None of these have been solved as yet. Mellett wrote his last editorial on Wednesday. He was murdered on Friday morning shortly after midnight. The editorial was an attack on the Chief of Police for suspending Sergeant Wise on unreliable information. The suspended officer was reinstated by Safety Director Earl Hexamer, on the morning the gunmen "got" Mellett.

The last editorial from the pen of Mellett was under the heading "Lengel Shows Hand." It follows:

"Jiggs W. Wise, sergeant of police and catcher of bootleggers extraordinary, yesterday received a 30-day suspension from the force without pay. Chief Lengel took summary action when he was told that Sergeant Wise was under the influence of liquor early Tuesday morning after a car which he was driving was in a collision. . The surprise lies not in the fact that Wise has fallen a victim of Chief Lengel's operations, but rather that the chief would be so brazen in his method of trying to discredit Sergeant Wise. One would have thought the chief would have found some better ground upon which to take action against his much disliked officer.

"It is understood that Safety Director Hexamer is taking a hand in the affair and will give Wise a hearing on Friday morning. The facts in the case will come out at that time and the public will know whether there is any basis for the suspension given Sergeant Wise, or whether it is another piece of spite work on the part of Chief Lengel.

"In fairness to Sergeant Wise it should be said that he does not use liquor and that he reported for duty yesterday morning only ten minutes late and put the entire day in on his job. On the face of the case it would appear t an effort had been made to discredi Wise, whose activities in apprehending law violators have been entirely too intensive and covered too wide a territory to please the bootleggers and their friend."

Heading the list of items for which the News has stood is "honest enforcement of all laws." In his fight for this measure Mellett did not forget the other standards for which he believed a newspaper was in business. But he specialized on the former, believing that the others would be easier of accomplishment if first the city was cleaned up. He did not compromise with definite wrong.

The week preceding his murder, charges were filed against two members of the Civil Service Commission by a police officer. Mayor Swarts set a hearing of the charges, but was frustrated in this by an injunction granted Price Jansen, chairman of the commission.

In his petition Jansen made scathing charges against Mellett.

The complete statement of Jansen was printed in the News over the signature of Herve W. Miner, managing editor, stating that had it pertained to any other person other than the publish of the News it would not have be printed. A partial review of the stat ment will furnish an idea of what ser ous obstacles Mellett faced.

"I am very thankful for this attac on me and it gives me an opportuni to explain for the first time the real fac and truth surrounding the Lengel trial- facts which I feel the public does n know, as it has been purposely misle would have purged itself of this nuisanc by riding him out of town on a rai amidst the praise and applause of th enraptured multitude.

Above are the four children of the late Don Mellett, publisher of the Canton Daily News. They are Betty Lou, Margaret, Jean and Evan

The five brothers of Don Mellet, Canton editor, slain for his crusade against vice. Left to right: Lloyd Mellett, W. S. Mellett, Lowell Mellett, J. H. Mellett and R. L. Mellett.

Photograph shows the funeral of Don Mellet, slain editor of the Canton Daily News, as the casket was being taken from his residence.

"Signed Price Jansen."

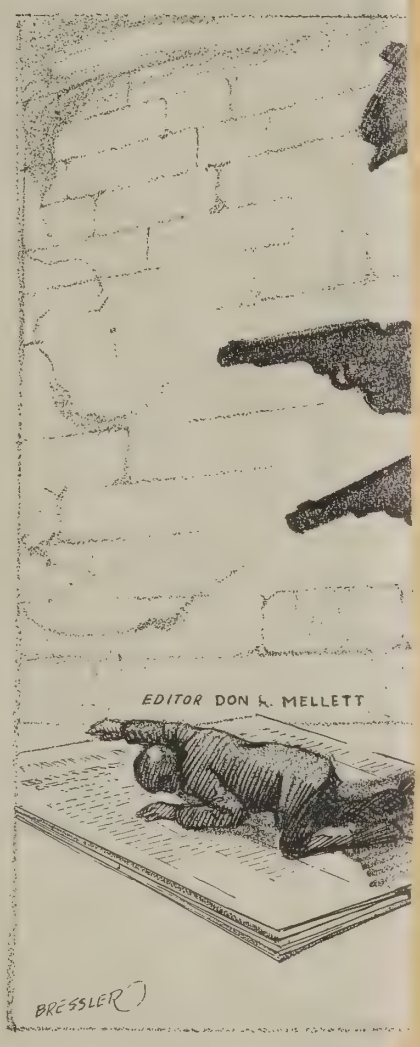
Garage where Mellet was killed. Note bullet scars and broken glass panel.

ASSASSINATION IS PROTECTED V

Editors and Publishers Declare Time Has Come for a Show Newspaper Convention

"THE courageous, uninfluenced newspapers of America must meet the challenge of the men who killed Don R. Mellett in Canton, says Harris M Crist, managing editor and treasurer, Brooklyn Eagle. Are law-breakers, evildoers, the thugs of the underworld to throttle the voice of the American press when raised in protest against crime condition? That is the question which American newspaper proprietors must answer.

"Nobody attempts seriously to deny that law and order in this country are at a low ebb. A few independent newspapers have spoken frankly of conditions and struggled bravely to bring about improvement. But the stone wall every paper has encountered is the utter indifference of the public. The moral consciousness of the public is undoubtedly so blunted today that it is almost impossible to get any reaction from it. Exposures of shocking wrongdoing in high places pass over the heads of the public and attract little or no attention. Officials charged with punishing crime are lax and indifferent. An intrepid soul here and there brings out facts of corruption, law violations and other evils and few pay any attention to him. Prosecuting officials are sluggish, the courts slow and easy to hoodwink, the great public interested only in gin and the movies and it takes the murder of a crusading editor to get a rise out of anybody.



"This merely emphasizes the duty and responsibility of American journalism. The press must arouse the conscience of the public, keep hammering away at the evils that are destroying the ideals of our nation and re-establish law and order.

"It is said that the frauds against prohibition have broken down respect for law everywhere and are responsible for prevalent crime and the appalling indifference of the public. I think this is true. The records in this respect in all large cities are practically the same. Crime is rife, prosecution is weak and judicial administration is loose. Officials whose duty it is to check and punish crime are human and they respond to the greatest pressure. Just now this comes from the lawless element, through political pull, with the result that we have disturbing experiences with juries that will not indict or convict, judges who give suspended sentences, or light sentences, ridiculous bail practices and parole boards which release prisoners on the slightest excuse.

"There is no agency at work to correct conditions. The press alone, as I see it, is to be the reformer. And the work must be pressed in spite of gunmen hired by criminals. What is needed is a convention of independent, uninfluenced newspapers to map a program to fight crime. It can and should be done.

"The Eagle has been giving many columns of space every day to campaigns against general and specific crimes. More than a year ago we started with a two-column measure appeal to the public, on page one, setting forth our determination to show up local looseness in the district attorney's office and among judges. We cited instances of crimes by notorious thugs with long records, of their light sentences and early release by the state parole board. We quoted the records of the judges. We gave details of operations of bootleggers and other criminals. We brought the churches into the campaign, gave full page ads. to their work and in other ways endeavored to bring the people back to the houses of worship. We printed in all 26 full pages of material of this sort and have given mats on all of it to other newspapers.

"The Eagle obtained the passage of a number of remedial laws by the state legislature, increasing the penalties for crimes, limiting the granting of bail and generally making more unhappy the lot of the wrong doer. A law was passed authorizing a Crimes Commission to investigate further and Gov. Smith appointed on this commission Thomas S. Rice, of the Eagle staff, who had been writing most of our stories.

Censorshi
Drawn for EDITOR & PU

"The Eagle has labored in the national field. About a month ago we started a daily attack on the delay in bringing to trial Albert B. Fall, Edward L. Doheny and Harry F. Sinclair who were indicted more than two years ago and have not yet appeared before a jury. We appealed to every member of Congress, every Governor and the principal members of the American Bar Association to aid in crystallizing sentiment on this case so as to put an end to delays in the trial of wealthy indicted men protected by skillful counsel. On the closing day of the last session of Congress the House adopted a bill, already passed by the Senate, providing for the punshment of certain oil barons who fled the country when the scandals broke and who have ignored federal subpoenas to come back and testify. A second law ends the right of appeal on technical issues in the District of Columbia and will speed up the oil trials there. Senator Thomas J. Walsh announced that the influence of the Eagle had obtained action on these bills in the House on the final day of the session.

"I cite these instances to show what an aggressive, courageous paper can accomplish. In the present callous state of the public conscience, the growing audacity of crooks, and impotence of the courts, the American press has a great duty to perform."

Challenge to America

"Don Mellett's death is a challenge to America," repeated Carl C. Magee, editor Albuquerque New Mexico State Tribune.

"Can vice and crime utilize violence

"NEVER FINER MORAL COURAGE"—COX

ellett's Employer Reveals Unselfish Motives Which Prompted Canton Publisher's Fight

mes M. Cox, proprietor of the Canton and other daily newspapers, this k published the following appreciaf Don R. Mellett in all of his ers. It was signed "A Tribute to Don Mellett—By His Employer." The ar- follows:

or 35 years I have been in the news- er business, and have met many kinds nen. None, however, possessed a finer racter than Don R. Mellett. He was full of ambition and the desire to ve his time that he exhibited a variety unusual qualities. His love of the vspaper profession and his ideas as to responsibility of any journal to the mmunity which fosters it were inher-

The daily paper has become one of the st active instrumentalities of society. possibilities for good or bad service boundless. In many instances it is essary for it to articulate the things t are seated in the minds of its read- ; in other words, to asume a leadership many community matters. In the face a grave menace there can be a wide- read feeling of indignation, but if pro- ts were not voiced, nothing would ne of it. Citizens rarely join together concerted movement to redress a wrong to provide protective measures against gs that portend danger. As we search history of bills-of-rights, particularly the very early days of reformation, we an insistence upon the privilege of zens foregathering for the purpose of cussing matters relating to the general lfare. Newspaper-reading constituen- s, as we know them now, did not exist n. As necessity begets invention, so s it provide the means and devices of tecting the public interest. Out of this he new functions to certain agencies, among these evolutionary develop- nts is a new and enlarged duty which thoughtful citizen imposes upon a vspaper.

We find many men in our profession treasure the good name of their vspaper as they do their own reputa- . They look upon it as an animate g, and they covet for it as priceless respect of decent citizens. They want be tolerant when forbearance is sug- ed by common sense. They want it e unbossed and unafraid. They want o be as keenly disposed to protect weak as to make a stand against strong. They want it to generate lic faith, and by fidelity to the people's rests to justify that confidence.

Don Mellett was this kind of a news- per man. The growth of the Daily ws in Canton has been an interesting perience. The development of a news- per in any field always is. I had Mr. ellett under observation for almost a ar before I employed him, and the first position assigned to him was intende as a test of his mind, industry and gen eral inclinations. He met the trial suc cessfully, and was made publisher.

He was frank, truthful, honest, loya and respectful toward his trust. He wa reared in a God-fearing family. He wa not obtrusively religious, but he had a intensely deep religious feeling. Out o this came his concept of duty as a ma From his appraisal of the functions o a newspaper grew the policy, of his ow initiation, by the way, which invigorate the Daily News and made it feared b those whose methods are not to be see in the sunlight.

I never knew a finer moral courag than his. He came to me many month ago with the recital of what he conceive to be fundamental wrongs in the life c the city of Canton. I subjected him t an extensive and intensive inquisitio On one occasion he replied in his char acteristic affable way, that my inquirie seemed to imply lack of confidence i him. My response was that I only soug to save him from the mistakes I mad when I was his age. This was not onl satisfying to him but very reassurin It seemed to form the beginning of relationship which approached the fond ness of a father for his son.

Don Mellet never dissembled. Once h thorough steadfastness was established i my own mind, confidence of the kin which gave him our whole support wa progressive. I remember reminding hi of a truism that the affairs of community cannot be made any bette than the people themselves want the to be. This brought from him a beaut ful tribute to the citizenry of Canto He said its interests were worth fightin for, that as many of his children as ha reached the required age were in th schools, and he wanted to spend his da in that city. When he made his case to existing conditions and reminded m of our professional responsibility, th there was no answer to his expressed d termination to expose wrong wherev found, regardless of any conditions, p litical or otherwise, which might be e countered.

No one who reflects upon the situati developed by Mr. Mellett's reformati movement will question that he was ea day approaching his objective. Temp rary reversals meant nothing to him. H felt in his very soul the strength of rig and he knew it must prevail. He w driving the agents and mesengers of ev to their lair. Even in their hate, ho they must have respected his continui courage and the clarity of every diagnos of conditions that he made!

Driven to their extremity, these u fortunate persons decided that he mu

(Continued on page 43)

TION OF MURDERER

nowledges a telegraphic offer by a (O.) Morning Star to subscribe R & PUBLISHER and used as a murderer or murderers of Don R. best traditions of the newspaper

d to raise funds for this purpose brated in the $50,000 reward fund

sday from Lowell Mellett, brother HER was advised that the reward per men and anyone desiring to ther to EDITOR & PUBLISHER

LISHER this week from various newspaper circles for the benefit also acknowledged. EDITOR & mbers of the Mellett family and reciated, we are advised that Don

REWARD FUNDS AMPLE

Newspapers Employ Several Detecti Forces to Run Down Murderers

More than $25,000 has been offered rewards for the capture of Don Mellett's murderer, with Ohio newspape supplying most of the funds.

James M. Cox, owner of the Cant News, has offered a $5,000 reward, as h Scripps-Howard group of Ohio new papers. The Cleveland News and t Canton Repository have offered $1,0 each, as have the newspapers owned Louis H. Brush and Roy Moore. T Lima (Ohio) Star offered $100 to start fund among newspapers all over t country.

Detectives employed by the Scripp Howard papers are working with t county prosecutor with assurances th the entire resources of that group are their disposal. The Canton News h detectives working independently.

THIS SMALL CITY DAILY KNOWS ITS COSTS

Sheboygan (Wis.) Press Has Seen Its Competitors Drop Out Because They Undersold Their Space—Efficiency Department Has Cut Expenses—Office Methods Told

By NORMAN J. RADDER

Associate Professor of Journalism, Indiana University

IF an efficiency department is good for a big paper, why shouldn't it produce results for a small newspaper, too?

So reasoned C. E. Broughton, editor and publisher of the Sheboygan (Wis.) Press, two years ago when he decided to establish an efficiency department.

The Press, with an A. B. C. circulation of 14,000, is the only daily in Sheboygan, a city of 38,000, and also the only daily in Sheboygan county, the leading dairy county in the state.

Miss Mona Pape, a clerk, who had training in the editorial and business divisions, was put in charge of the new department, under the direction of H. H. Born, business manager. Miss Pape divides her time between efficiency work and classified advertising. Costs have been cut along the line as a result of her daily watchfulness over all departments.

For instance, paper and ink cost per page was $8.65 in May, 1925; in May, 1926, it was $8.40.

Composition cost was .036 cent per inch in May, 1925. In May, 1926, it had dropped to .034 cent.

Paper, ink, and composition costs were 9.1 cents an inch in May, 1925. These costs in may, 1926, had fallen to 8.3 cents

Other departments show a similar drop in costs. Whereas in January, 1925, the percentage of advertising cost to advertising earnings was 16 per cent, in January, 1926, it was 14 per cent. (By advertising cost is meant the total expense of the advertising, local, national and classified departments, salaries, mat service, percentage of total plant overhead, etc.)

While costs have been cut all along the line, perhaps the most significant result of the efficiency department is reduction of newsprint consumption. Mr. Born and Miss Pape, knowing how many papers a roll should produce, check actual production against this known standard. Employes, aware there is somebody watching production, are more careful. Hence there is less spoilage and fewer overruns.

The foregoing sentence gives a clue to what, in Mr. Born's opinion, is the outstanding accomplishment of efficiency work, namely, the effect on the morale of employes in that they will be more careful if they know that somebody is keeping daily tab on output and costs.

Take the little matter of pencils used by reporters. Before the advent of efficiency in the Press office, reporters used half a dozen pencils a week. They were easy to get and there was no reason why they should use them economically. Now, however, Miss Pape will issue a pencil to a reporter only when he turns in his old stub. These are given to men in the composing room who prefer short pencils. Pencil consumption has been cut to such an extent that the Press hasn't bought any for a year and a half.

Efficiency in the Press office, however, is by no means confined solely to the department responsible for it. System and time-savers are found in every department.

Since December, 1924, the Press has been in its new $200,000 plant. The composing room is in the center and round about it are ranged the various departments, each with a door opening on that part of the composing room with which they are concerned.

Thus national advertising, classified and local, each have a separate room. Around the walls of the national advertising department are cabinets built especially to meet the needs of national advertising. Those along two walls contain plates for national advertisers. These are all arranged alphabetically according to product so that at a moment's notice Mrs. Elda S. Gerlat, who has handled national advertising for the Press for 7 years, can find any plate she may need. Compartments were built large enough to accommodate the biggest plates. There is room enough in each compartment for the arrangement of the plates in series as called for by schedule. Plates for automobile advertisers and tobacco, cigarette and cigar advertisers are filed separately. Correspondence, orders, schedules, copy and contracts with national advertisers are filed in cabinets along a third wall.

Charles E. Broughton

Mr. Broughton and Mrs. Gerlat are enthusiastic about a daily schedule for national advertising which they have perfected as a result of years of experience. It is a blank form upon which Mrs. Gerlat indicates every afternoon the national advertising which is to run the next day. Name of the advertised product, size of the ad, and page upon which it is to run are indicated. It is according to this daily schedule that the necessary cuts, copy, etc. are gathered for use in the composing room for each day's issue. Between 4 and 5 in the afternoon the schedule goes to A. C. Van de Repe, local advertising manager, who makes out his dummy of the entire paper on the basis of this schedule and a similar one for local advertising. A third advertising schedule takes care of readers and legals. As a result of this combination system of ad schedules for each department and a dummy upon which all ads are marked for inches and columns, the problem of missed ads and wrong position ads has been eliminated.

Assisting Mr. Van de Repe are three solicitors, N. M. Root, H. V. Friedrich, and C. M. Wondergem. Under the glass top on Mr. Van de Repe's desk is a schedule of the contract advertisers divided among the three solicitors and Mr. Van de Repe and according to the days of the week. Mr. Van de Repe himself handles the department stores and a number of other local advertisers.

One solicitor handles most of the downtown accounts while another specializes in outlying accounts. Mr. Root works on special pages.

Sometime between 4 and 5 o'clock every day, each of the solicitors hands in his schedule of ads to run the next day. From this and from the list of his own accounts, Mr. Van de Repe makes up a schedule of ads and a dummy.

On his desk Mr. Van de Repe has a card index of all advertisers. The accounting department keeps this list up-to-date by entering upon it the daily record of space used by each advertiser. Monthly linage totals from the cards are compared with last year's records to see if individual advertisers showed a gain or a loss for the month.

Mr. Van de Repe also has closely at hand a book giving total linage for every month. For 19 consecutive months his department has succeeded in making every month a better one than the corresponding month a year before.

Through the efforts of the local advertising staff, Sheboygan advertisers have been convinced that advertising, to be worth while, must be regular and consistent. Furthermore, advertisers have been told that irregular, spasmodic advertising increases newspaper production costs. All contracts call for a regular weekly schedule in accordance with a graduated scale of rates. Only one form of contract is sold by the local advertising department. It requires a specific number of inches to be run on a given day each week for 13, 26 or 52 consecutive weeks, the rate being inversely proportional to the duration of the contract. No "open space" contracts are sold.

In line with Mr. Broughton's policies, there is close co-operation between the news and advertising departments for the elimination of free publicity and similar co-operation between the credit and advertising departments for the prevention of losses through poor accounts.

The Press has developed the best filing system for copy service that has ever come under the observation of the writer. The system consists of a proof file and a mat file.

The proof sheets are clipped and all the proofs are placed in folders in a four-drawer legal size filing cabinet. Folders are arranged alphabetically according to advertisers: Attention compellers, American Legion, Armistice Day, Auto Accessories, Army Goods, Auto Repairs, Awning and Tents, etc.

Each proof has stamped upon it the month and year it was released. Files of mats for three years are kept in a 36 compartment cabinet made especially for that purpose. Thus when a proof of a mat is found in the "Furniture" folder it is an easy matter to look up the correct mat stamped say February, 1926, in the mat file. Each month when a new service is received, the one two years old is discarded. But before destroying the mats, Mr. Van de Repe goes through them and selects those which appeal to him, and these are placed in a proof file.

Ten years ago there were three dailies in Sheboygan—the Journal, the Telegram and the Press. The Journal suspended publication in 1917, the Telegram was absorbed by the Press in 1921.

I asked Mr. Broughton: "How do you explain the fact that the Press survived instead of one of the others?"

After a minute's reflection he replied: "We never undersold our commodity."

He added, "As far back as the days when the Press had only a circulation of a thousand, we knew our costs and never sold advertising below cost. We knew what it cost us to produce an inch of advertising. Our competitors sold advertising for anything they could get. We had a definite rate and stuck to it."

Mr. Broughton explained that at one time owners of one of the newspapers sold advertising for $2 a page. Advertisers would come to Mr. Broughton and tell him that they could get a page in the other papers for this or that price, and wanted to know why he charged more. In time his unvarying insistence on a fair price for a known commodity won the confidence of advertisers.

Linage gains by the Press have been consistent and steady. In May, 1925, 7,025 inches of national advertising were printed. Last May, 1926, the total was 8,677.

Local advertising for that month showed even a greater contrast with the corresponding month a year ago. The figures were 23,594 inches as contrasted with 29,116 inches a year later. Mr. Broughton is insistent that a newspaper cannot afford to sell a re-run on an ad for less than the first cost.

"Overhead costs go on just the same," he points out. "Men in the ad alley have to be paid. Our figures show that we must charge a fixed rate for the space we sell, not for composition. If we charged less for re-runs, many merchants would run the same ads twice or oftener. The result would be lack of interest in advertising among our readers and a consequent loss of business to merchants.

The Press has 30 correspondents in various parts of the county. They are paid $1.50 a column. Two trucks deliver papers to these villages on the afternoon of publication. With reference to a news policy that builds success, Mr. Broughton's advice to editors of small papers is this: Neglect not the obituary. Until a few years ago, Mr. Broughton himself wrote the obituaries for all people whom he knew.

Other factors which, in the opinion of the writer, are responsible for the success of the Press are: Mr. Broughton's intimate and personal relationship with his employes, original editorials written by Mr. Broughton, and a square deal for the reader in news and advertising percentage.

John R. Wolf of the Milwaukee Journal at one time said: "I'd rather work for Charley Broughton than be in business for myself." This expresses the loyalty and friendship which men and women in all departments of the Press have for Mr. Broughton. No need for an expensive personnel department here! Mr. Broughton is advisor, confident, and friend of all.

No canned editorials are used.

Here are news and advertising percentages for typical months of this year:

Advertising	News
44	56
47	53
46	54
39	61
40	60

Walter J. Pfister, a graduate of the course in journalism of the University of Wisconsin, is city editor and head of the news department. Three reporters cover news runs in Sheboygan and are ready for special assignments in the county. Miss Esther Pape is editor of the society and club page.

In the summer of 1922 the Press organized a library which since that time has built up a current history of Sheboygan city and county. The library contains about 450 biographies of local men and women and some 2,000 biographies of persons outside of this locality. In addition there are histories of business firms, officers and activities of organizations and clubs, accounts of crimes committed, complete court news, accounts of accidents, and other general informative news. Some 40 or 50 stories are clipped and filed from each day's issue.

Miss Marion Koch, librarian, and her assistant, also take care of general information requests from the public.

The foreman of the composing room is George Brand. Fred Ruhe is head of the press room.

Ottoe Stielow is circulation manager. As soon as roads open in the spring, he visits rural subscribers, making collections, soliciting and building good will through personal contact.

DALE ASKS FUNDS TO CARRY TEST CASE ON CONTEMPT TO HIGHEST COURT

Chief Justice of Indiana Grants His Appeal for Hearing by U. S. Supreme Court on Validity of Truth of Utterances as Defense

By GEORGE R. DALE

Editor Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat

(Written Exclusively for EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

MUNCIE, Ind., July 20.—The press of America owes a deep debt of gratitude to Judge David A. Myers, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Indiana, whose action Monday morning in permitting my contempt case to be transferred to the United States Supreme Court will make perfectly clear the present and future status of American newspaper publishers.

George R. Dale (left, editor Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, is shown receiving a check for $500.00 from Emmet Cavanaugh, Chicago Stock Yards man. The check is the first contribution to a $5,000 fund with which the editor will carry his case before the United States Supreme Court.

I had been telling the truth about the Ku Klux Klan and its control of the judiciary and other instrumentalities of the court. The county judge, the prosecutor, the sheriff, the grand jury and the jury commissioners were all members of the Klan.

The Klan oath superimposes an obligation upon members which takes precedence over the obligations imposed upon individuals and public officials by the laws and constitution of Indiana and the laws and constitution of the United States.

My newspaper declared that the visible processes of the court were being directed and commanded by an invisible government which had vested supreme power in the person of one individual, whose autocratic decrees were put into execution by public officials who took orders from subordinates of a feudal lord who sat on a tinsel throne in Atlanta, Ga.

For calling attention to specific instances of this control of the courts by this alien government, I was sentenced to six months' imprisonment on the State Penal Farm and fined $500 for contempt, this extraordinary judgment being rendered by a judge who belonged to the Klan and who had been nominated and elected by the Klan.

In my verified answer to the citation for contempt, I offered to prove both by affidavit and oral evidence every allegation set forth in the alleged contemptuous editorial. The court refused to listen, and the sentence followed.

In affirming, the Supreme Court of the State of Indiana handed down the startling dicta that the truth was no defense, that the editorial was direct contempt, that the courts have the inherent right to punish newspapers for contempt, that legislatures are powerless to deprive the courts of this prerogative, that a change of venue cannot be taken from the aggrieved judge and that the judge has the sole power to discover and interpret the meaning and intent of the words spoken or written.

Thus, the Ku Klux Klan, which boasted of its pioneer service in behalf of free speech and a free press, has bequeathed to the newspaper profession with its dying gasp, a heritage of doubt and misgiving which can only be cleared up by an unmistakable pronouncement from the court of final resort.

The press of America should recognize its perilous predicament. If the Indiana decision is affirmed, the press is muzzled forever. My attorney, William Velpeau Rooker, is now preparing a brief which I hope will become the law of contempt in America. It will take a large sum of money to carry this case through.

The newspapers of the United States, whose freedom is attacked, should be quick to respond to the appeal for financial aid. I am only one of many thousands who are directly affected by this pernicious decision, which will become the law of the land if affirmed by the Federal Supreme Court.

TO DISCUSS FARM NEWS

Kansas newspapermen will meet in Manhattan, Oct. 14 to 16 with Kansas county farm agents to discuss handling of farm news. George W. Marble, editor of the Fort Scott Monitor-Tribune, will be chairman.

BOND REJOINS CURTIS

Now M. E. of Public Ledger After Five Days as Agency Man

Merritt Bond has become managing editor of the Philadelphia Morning Public Ledger. Five days' experiment convinced him that after twenty years in newspaper work he would be unhappy in advertising so he returned to the Curtis organization, he said.

Mr. Bond resigned as managing editor of the New York Evening Post to join Barton, Durston & Osborne, New York advertising agency and left that organization to assume his new position. This causes no changes in the Public Ledger organization.

CRIME NEWS NECESSARY TO STIR PUBLIC

Thomas S. Rice of N. Y. Crime Board Declares Present Fight Against Evil Impossible Without Aid of Press

"The newspaper and its effect on crime," was discussed as a prominent feature of the meeting of the Crime Commission of New York State in Elmira, New York, on July 15. The meeting was attended by seven of its eleven members, among whom was Thomas S. Rice of the Brooklyn Eagle. The remaining number present were senators and an assemblyman with the exception of W. L. Butcher, director of the Department of Boys' Welfare in New York, and Miss Jane Hoey, assistant director of the Welfare Council of the City of New York. Senators Baumes, Knight and Wales, and Assemblyman Esmond completed the list.

In bringing out many forces which cause juvenile vice, Recorder Otis H. Gardner of Elmira, who was called before the commission, named the playing up of crime news by newspapers as one condition which had a bad effect upon the adult as well as the juvenile mind. He said:

"I believe that the newspapers have a big part to play in this field of crime prevention. I doubt the wisdom of the policy whereby newspapers make the more vicious, atrocious forms of crime one of their features. The public gets many pictures of these crimes through frequent recital of the case, its history, and all connected with it. And the newspapers fail to impress on those who ought to be impressed that crime is a detriment; rather the newspaper article has the tendency to arouse sympathy for the criminal."

After Recorder Gardner had spoken concerning the newspapers, Commissioner Rice, the sole member of the press represented on the commission, stated that the Crime Commission would never have been possible had not the newspapers alarmed the people to the need of such a body by emphasizing the increase in crime.

Recorder Gardner declared his point was not that crime news should be suppressed entirely, but that the frequent repetition of all its details, the glorification of crime, was what should be avoided. He declared such news should be passed on to its readers in a fashion such as would create an abhorrence of crime.

The issue was brought to a close when Commissioner Rice stated that it was not his purpose to uphold "yellow journalism," but rather that the newspapers should be used as a medium to inform their readers of the rapidly increasing crime peril.

I. T. U. Officers in New York

President James M. Lynch of the International Typographical Union, and other I. T. U. officers arrived in New York Thursday and immediately began conferring with New York City publishers. Local union officials invited I. T. U. intervention following a deadlock with the newspapers over a new contract. The former agreement expired July 1.

BOOTH HAS AUDIENCE WITH MUSSOLINI

In Address to Premier, Grand Rapids Editor Praises Premier for Stern Rule, Even Over Press Freedom

Edmund W. Booth, editor and publisher of the Grand Rapids (Mich.) Press, wrote EDITOR & PUBLISHER July 9 from Florence details of an interview he had had a few days previously at Rome with Premier Mussolini. The Premer, according to Mr. Booth, is rather inaccessible to American newspaper men, who, he feels, have unfairly quoted him, and Mr. Booth assured him that an interview for publication was not sought. The Grand Rapids editor departed from usual journalistc procedure by formally addressing the Premer, in the following words:

EDMUND W. BOOTH

"Mr. Premier: I am grateful for the honor of meeting you and for the opportunity to tell you personally of the admiration which I hold for you because of the great social and political achievements realized for Italy in a few short years, due to your forceful and sagacious leadership. I come from the State of Michigan, which produces among many other things two-thirds of the motor vehicles of the world, and when I go back I expect to tell our people a story of enthusiastic appreciation for Italy, for Italy's new government and for Italy's Mussolini.

"Having faithfully endeavored to grasp the complex and serious problems which confronted Italy following the war, I am prepared to tell our people that the political tools which you selected were the tools of a wise statesmanship, and this includes the limitations placed by your government on the freedom of the press and I say this as one who strongly holds the American view of the freedom of the press.

"I congratulate Italy on the truly marvelous strides in progress thus far made and to you, Mr. Premier, to your King and to your people, I extend heartfel good wishes for a still larger measure o happiness and for solid success in all tha goes to make a great nation."

Mussolini, according to Mr. Booth, wa smilingly appreciative of the compliment and sent the editor away with his signed photograph.

CLEVELAND PRESS MILK FUND

Children at 48 Playgrounds Get Mid summer Luncheons

The Cleveland Press has established permanent summer milk fund to provid undernourished children who attend 4 city playgrounds with free milk. Th fund is handled through a board of trus tees and the milk distributed by the schoc board to the playgrounds. The schoc board maintains clinics at each play ground.

Children who are unable to purchas milk are given it daily upon applicatior The children who are undernourished bu feel that they wish to pay for the milk ar enabled through an arrangement with th school board to obtain a pint of mil and three crackers for three cents. Fund are all audited daily. The amount re maining in the fund at the end of th playground year remains as an endow ment for the following year.

HUDSON SUN CHANGES HANDS

Allan Markley has purchased th Hudson (Mass.) Daily Sun from Dusti S. Lucier and C. H. Tobey.

LINAGE RECORD MIRRORS NEW CIVILIZATION

Higher Standard of Living Fostered and Maintained by Advertising—Unprecedented June Volume Also Explained by Tie-Up Advertising Which Agencies Are Now Encouraging

By WARREN BASSETT

NEWSPAPER advertising last month established a remarkable and unprecedented record.

Linage figures for June in the 30 principal cities in every instance surpassed those of a year ago. Not a city showed a loss as compared with the previous year—a situation never before encountered.

What is the economic meaning of this achievement?

What forces at work in industry and commerce have revealed themselves through this record of paid newspaper advertising?

James O'Shaughnessy

Speaking in a broad sense it indicates the continued progress of the American people toward a higher standard of living. New wants are being created; manufacturing genius is placing them on the market at prices available to families of average income; and newspaper advertising is being called upon to make sales keep pace with production.

Viewed concretely it indicates:

1. That excellent business conditions obtain in all parts of the country.
2. That increased skill in the use of advertising is making it a safer buy for merchants and manufacturers.
3. That competition between industries and also between local stores has sharply increased.
4. That national advertising is creating more local advertising.
5. That under the improved business management demand by mass selling (through advertising) the business "cycle" bogey is being dissipated.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER asked James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, to discuss the June linage record from an economic standpoint.

"The two outstanding factors in this increase in newspaper advertising are the heightened skill with which advertising is being used, and the increasing tendency for national advertising to influence local tie-up campaigns, and local advertising generally," he declared.

"On the first point, the agencies know more about advertising than they ever did before. Advertising now has a developed precision.

"Surveys and analyses have given advertising its desired business character. And what is true of the agencies is also true of the newspapers. They have solidified their circulations and are giving better basic values and better service than ever before.

"Audited circulations have been a great boon to business. Advertisers today can buy circulation more soundly than they can buy their raw materials; advertising produces values that do not deteriorate—or diminish in fluctuations. This is a large factor in selling and has enabled businesses to progress on a firm basis. The lack of audited circulation in other countries for instance has restricted advertising and acted as a brake upon business.

"And the same refining process which has operated in the agencies and newspapers has been operating within the firms producing and handling advertised products. They are more carefully managed, their products have been improved and perfected. The United States is constantly improving its products, and today many advertised goods are near perfection. They deserve to be sold because they are well made and give the desired value to the purchaser. Advertising has increased the satisfaction of the buyer.

"All these facts have their influence in the year-to-year increase in linage. In 1923 the agencies constituting the American Association of Advertising Agencies placed $250,000,000 worth of advertising. In 1924 the figure reached $300,000,000 and in 1925 $320,000,000. That figure will be exceeded this year and this year's figure will be surpassed next. The steady increase is due both to keener competition, which demands larger expenditures and greater sales efforts, and to the recognized power of advertising as an economic force."

The second factor working to increase newspaper linage is the general and welcomed effort being made by national advertisers to obtain local tie-up copy, Mr. O'Shaughnessy said.

"National advertising begets local advertising both directly and indirectly," he went on. "The national advertiser is becoming increasingly successful in obtaining dealer tie-ups."

Mr. O'Shaughnessy gave the writer a copy of a recent address made by Guy Richards of the Erickson Company, which illustrated the manner in which agencies are working to influence dealer advertising.

Mr. Richards quoted the following typical letter sent to publishers with an order for 15,000 lines:

"GENTLEMEN:

"We take pleasure in enclosing our contract for 15,000 lines covering 1926 advertising of our client, the Blank Company. On our recommendation this advertiser has been using your good paper for some time, and we feel confident that we may count upon your heartiest co-operation in extending every possible favor to an old friend.

"We ask two things of you. With the large amount of advertising now carried by daily newspapers, position has become an important factor in the selection of mediums, and we look for your full co-operation in this regard.

"Secondly, put your local salesmen on the job, solicit Blank Company dealers, and get them to tie up with our advertising. This is profitable business for everyone concerned, including yourselves, and we do not hesitate to demand your services. A copy of our proposed schedule is enclosed. Mats or electrotypes may be had without charge, on demand. Our client will likewise urge the dealers to advertise, and we believe you will find them all most responsive to your solicitations.

"We call your attention to the special note at the foot of our contract asking that checking copies be sent to our client as well as to this office. We shall check all advertisements carefully both for position and for dealer advertising. If you prevail upon dealers to run copy in issues in which our own advertisements do not appear, please be sure that these issues, as well, reach us."

"This letter was sent to all papers carrying Blank Company's advertising, 68 in number," Mr. Richards went on. "The campaign started in the middle of March. A check of tear sheets up to the end of May shows that dealers ran advertisements in 93 issues and that the total amount of tie-up copy was 154,084 lines. Occasionally, the volume of local advertising has actually exceeded that of the national advertiser. On an average, dealers are running 100 lines to every 300 lines ordered by the agency. By the end of the campaign, their total tie-ups should amount to well over 300,000 lines."

Mr. Richards had figures collected by one agency showing the growth of dealer copy, in connection with a national account, as follows:

First season dealers ran				81,000	lines
Second	"	"	"	285,000	"
Third	"	"	"	571,000	"
Fourth	"	"	"	609,000	"
Fifth	"	"	"	720,000	"
Sixth	"	"	"	773,000	"
Seventh	"	"	"	739,000	"

"There are but single instances of the volume of collateral advertising which an agency is instrumental in creating," Mr. Richards said in his address. "The total for all national accounts is beyond accurate computation. Twenty-one agencies and three Four-A clients not covered by an agency statement, report figures which are truly amazing. The two examples already given are not included. Collateral advertising which had actually been checked by these concerns during the period 1920 to 1925 ran as follows:

"Lines	34,150,000
"Dollars	845,000
"Mats or electros	63,748

"If these were all reduced to lines, the total for six years would probably approximate 50,000,000. This is only such advertising as was actually traced and is the report of only a few companies. Multiply it by ten and you'll have a fraction of the total. Multiply it by twenty and you'll still be short. Set your own figure. The best estimate I can make is 300,000,000 lines a year, indirectly created by advertising agencies."

Mr. O'Shaughnessy cited a specific case in Indianapolis where the national firm spent only one-third as much to promote its product as did the local dealers.

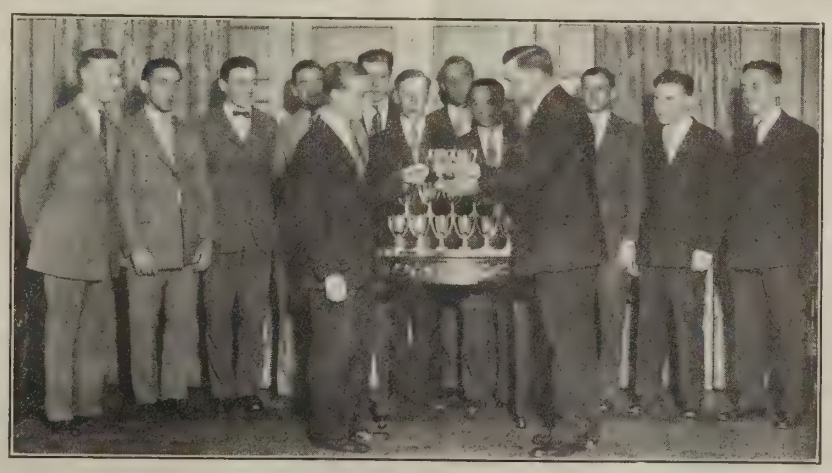
"Manufacturer pressure on the dealer is constantly working in favor of increased local linage," he continued. "And indirectly, good national advertising by its impressiveness and appeal inspires local effort and serves as a model for larger and better copy."

During his discussion Mr. O'Shaughnessy touched on three subjects which have loomed large in the business view—instalment buying, the "saturation point," and the "cycle theory."

"Despite criticisms of instalment buying, I do not believe it can outrun itself," he declared. "For generations people have bought groceries and paid their rent in instalments. The modern extension of this idea into many fields has been a great aid to business. I do not view it as a thing that can get out of control.

"I have personal knowledge of a Chicago firm which last year sold 15,000 units of a single product at $80 each on the instalment plan with a very small down payment. A member of the firm told me that the credit loss on this transaction amounted to but one-fiftieth of one per cent!

"And the much talked of 'saturation point' I believe to be much misunderstood. You achieve saturation only when people can have no more wants. New wants are being created constantly. Because a man has a certain food capacity per day, it does not follow that sales of food products have no chance for expansion. New products, new wants are created. Habits and tastes change, new markets are developed."



Advertising is helping to eradicate the "cycle" bugaboo in business, according to Mr. O'Shaughnessy. Every year is a good year for businesses which are scientifically managed and which maintain a selling pressure accurately correlated with production.

The advertising director of one of New York's largest department stores, who wished to withhold his name, declared the linage increase due generally to the fact that advertising is now more effective than ever before and people read it more intelligently.

"Advertising technique is improving every year," he stated. "Today we have three people engaged solely in compiling advertising statistics for our store. Two years ago no one was doing this work.

'It is a fact that in many sections the first three months of this year did not show the expected volume of sales. Department heads undoubtedly got busy and demanded more advertising pressure, which has been sustained as business responded."

HERALD TRIBUNE CUPS FOR AGENCY NINE

A. G. Anderson, of the New York Herald Tribune, presenting silver cups to players of the Calkins & Holden Advertising Agency baseball team, winners in the New York Advertising Agencies Baseball League. Left to right, back row, are J. Jeffrey, E. Gormley, G. Rupprecht, D. Berry, H. Augustine, R. Gormley, W. Preussner, A. Cozzi, J. Fuchs, F. Mullen, F. Kearney; front row, J. Scheideler, Mr. Anderson.

Members of the baseball team of the Calkins & Holden Advertising Agency, winners in the New York Advertising Agencies Baseball League, were entertained at luncheon by a group of advertising men on July 15. They were presented with cups by the New York Herald Tribune, and addresses were made at the luncheon by George J. Auer, national advertising manager of the Herald Tribune and William Haskell, also of the Herald Tribune.

HARVARD AD AWARD CONDITIONS NAMED

Four General Classifications With Subdivision—Prizes Total $20,000 and a Gold Medal for 1926 Achievements Conditions governing the Harvard advertising awards for 1926 were formally announced this week by the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard, which administers this activity founded by Edward W. Bok, for many years editor of the Ladies' Home Journal. The jury is instructed, the announcement states, to lay particular stress on accuracy and fair statement in all manuscripts and advertisements considered, to the end that truth shall be recognized as a factor of greatest practical value in advertising.

For the current year in all the awards, only advertising published or advertising research conducted wholly or in part during the calendar year 1926 is eligible.

The awards and conditions follow:

I. For Distinguished Services to Advertising—A gold medal will be awarded to the individual or organization deemed by the jury of award to merit recognition for distinguished contemporary services to advertising.

II. For Advertising Campaigns—Four prizes of $2,000 each for advertising campaigns. Only advertising campaigns which have been directed primarily through the media of newspapers or periodicals may be submitted. These awards require submission of manuscripts, as later described.

1. For a National Campaign—This award will be given for the advertising campaign most conspicuous for the excellence of its planning and execution which seeks publicity on a national scale or over a large territory for products or an institution.

The jury of award may make two awards of $2,000 each under this head; one for the national campaign of a general or institutional character deemed best; the second for the national campaign deemed best in advertising specific products.

2. For a Campaign of Industrial Products—This award will be given for the advertising campaign of the year most conspicuous for the excellence of its planning and execution which seeks publicity for industrial products primarily through the media of industrial, trade, or professional journals. Industrial products seeking publicity through general popular magazines will be judged under the award for national campaigns.

3. For a Local Campaign—This award will be given for the advertising campaign of the year most conspicuous for the excellence of its planning and execution which seeks publicity in a relatively limited territory or in a single locality for products or an institution. The jury of award may make two awards of $2,000 each under this head; one for the local campaign of a general or institutional character deemed best; the second for the local campaign deemed best in advertising specific products.

4. For a Campaign Executed Locally in Cities of 100,000 Population or Less—This award will be given for the advertising campaign of the year executed locally in cities of 100,000 population or less most conspicuous for the excellence of its planning and execution. Local campaigns executed in cities over 100,000 will be considered under the general award for a local campaign mentioned under 3.

III. For Scientific Research in Advertising—An award of $2,000 will be given for the advertising research of the year most conspicuous because: (a) it has brought about economy or secured efficiency in advertising by producing information of general value in furthering the knowledge and science of advertising, or (b) it has reduced or precluded unwise and wasteful expenditure in a specific advertising program. Research connected with any advertising campaign which receives an award under the second classification above will not be eligible also for this award.

The jury of award may make two awards of $2,000 each under this head.

IV. For Distinguished Individual Advertisements—Four prizes of $1,000 each for excellence in the technique and substance of particular advertisements which have appeared in established American or Canadian newspapers or periodicals.

Ordinarily, but not necessarily, the jury will make awards under the following classification:

1. For the advertisement most effective in its use of text as the chief means of delivering its message.

2. For the advertisement most effective in its use of pictorial illustration as the chief means of delivering its message.

3. For the advertisement most effective in its combination of text and illustration as the means of delivering its message.

4. For the advertisement most effective in typography.

In its consideration of advertisements the jury will give attention to the excellence of typography. Correct and effective use of English will be deemed of first importance.

No advertisement shall be awarded more than one prize.

NEWSPAPER MEN ON ADVERTISING COMMISSION

HARVEY R. YOUNG (centre), advertising director of the Columbus Dispatch, has been appointed a member of the Advertising Commission of the International Advertising Association. Frank T. Carroll, advertising manager of the Indianapolis News and president of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives, appointed Mr. Young to succeed L. B. Palmer, manager of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, as one of the association's three representatives. The A.N.A.E. group on the commission now numbers three active newspaper executives. The other members who were reappointed are A. L. Shuman (right), vice-president and advertising manager of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Record-Telegram, and George M. Burbach (left), advertising director of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

STAR TO ASK INJUNCTION

Would Prevent Commissioner from Proceeding With Libel Suit

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 22.—All objections which had been raised by counsel for five executives of the Kansas City Star and Arthur M. Hyde, former governor of Missouri, to the taking of depositions in the $3,000,000 libel suit of Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post, against the Star men and Mr. Hyde, were overruled Wednesday by George H. English, special commissioner.

The suit is based on statements made by Mr. Hyde in a political speech and published in the morning edition of the Star July 7. Mr. Hyde made a personal attack on Mr. Dickey.

Although depositions are scheduled to start Monday, the defense has announced intention of going into circuit court with an application for an injunction to prevent Commissioner English from proceeding.

The defense questions the jurisdiction of Mr. English. One of the points overruled Wednesday by the commissioner, was that Mr. Hyde, not being connected with the publication of the Star, could not be included in the suit for libel. It was contended he could only be sued for slander, and held no joint liability for libel.

"I rule that point against the defendants, and hold that a fair construction of the petition charges all the defendants with having participated in the libel," the commissioner ruled. "Whether it can be proved is not the question at this time."

Commissioner English further ruled the petition in general terms stated a cause of action recognized by law.

"Although I am not passing on the sufficiency of the petition, I do not say the petition fails to state sufficient grounds for action," he concluded.

I. N. Watson and Cyrus Crane are attorneys for the defendants. Miller, Winger and Reeder represent Mr. Dickey.

JUNE 5-10 SET AS I. A. A. 1927 CONVENTION DATES

New Financial Plan Approved at Meeting of Executive Committee in New York—Finance Group Named

The executive committee of the International Advertising Association meeting in New York this week set June 5 to 10 as the dates for the 1927 convention in Denver, Col. The meeting, held at the New York Advertising Club, was presided over by President C. K. Woodbridge.

A new financial plan presented by Francis Sisson, of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, treasurer of the I. A. A., was adopted and a finance committee appointed with Mr. Sisson as chairman.

Details of the financial plan, as well as the personnel of the finance committee will be announced later, Earle Pearson, general manager of the I. A. A. stated, when acceptances have been received from those named to the committee.

The I. A. A. up to the present time has not had a finance committee.

ELIZABETH TIMES SOLD

Moran, Ivins and Unnamed Third Partner Are New Owners

The Elizabeth (N. J.) Times, evening daily which has been operating under a receivership was sold Tuesday to Joseph F. Moran of Brooklyn, Haddon Ivins, and a third man whose name was withheld, for $40,000.

The sale was authorized by Vice Chancellor Backes in Newark after J. E. Strikes, receiver, had recommended acceptance of that sum for the assets of the paper.

A new corporation is being formed with Mr. Moran as president and Mr. Ivins as editor and publisher. Mr. Moran is a Brooklyn business man while Mr. Ivins is a veteran New Jersey newspaper man. He was former managing editor of the Union City Hudson Dispatch and joined the Elizabeth Times as managing editor in April of this year.

The Times was bought last October by a group of Hearst executives. The Times' daily editions were sold in combination with the New York Evening Journal.

CAMPAIGN FOR RELIGION

Church Advertising Department, I.A.A. Has World-Wide Plans

A world-wide campaign in behalf of religion, via newspapers, radio, advertising, bill-boards, exhibits, posters and other methods will be carried on during the coming year by the International Advertising Association through its Church Advertising Department, of which the Rev. Charles Stelzle, of New York, has been elected president. Campaign headquarters are at 1 Madison avenue, New York City.

Mr. Stelzle will appoint an outstanding advertising man as vice-president in each of the eighteen districts of the association. Advertising conferences will be held for ministers and church workers, advertising men, representatives of national religious bodies, editors of the religious press, and courses of lectures on advertising will be given in theological seminaries.

EIGHTY-YEAR-OLD FIRM STARTS ADVERTISING

Business Has Shown a Steady Growth, But Church & Dwight Company Learn That Many Users of Baking Soda Need Education in Product's Varied Utilities

By WARREN BASSETT

AFTER hiding its light under a bushel for 80 years, a firm doing millions of dollars' worth of business every year has called upon newspaper advertising to expand the use of its product.

The firm is the Church & Dwight Company of New York, and its products are The Arm & Hammer and Cow Brand Baking Soda. It is one of the four largest companies in the United States in its line.

It has not been forced into advertising by any loss in sales for the business has shown a steady increase. It is not seeking new users of its product, for its two brands of baking soda have been on the kitchen shelves of American homes for many years. It is not seeking new distributors, for there is scarcely a grocery store in the country which does not carry its products.

Clean Teeth—free from film

To protect the enamel of the teeth from the danger of albuminous film, use baking soda, either ARM & HAMMER BRAND or COW BRAND, as a dentifrice: spread the soda on a moist brush or pour a little in the palm of your hand, dip a moist brush in the soda, and brush the teeth thoroughly—it keeps the mouth wholesome and keeps the teeth free from film.

Both of these famous brands of baking soda are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., and both are the same product—pure bicarbonate of soda of the finest quality, a household necessity with a hundred important uses, a friend of the whole family—get a package today at your grocer's.

CHURCH & DWIGHT CO., INC.
27 Cedar Street New York

Single column copy (almost exact size) telling the public baking soda can be used as a dentifrice.

What then, is the Church & Dwight Company asking newspaper advertising to do?

In the words of Sturges Dorrance of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., the New York agency handling the account, "it is a case of informing the public of new uses of baking soda, in other words taking it from the kitchen into the bathroom."

"We cannot create new users, for nearly everybody buys 'Arm & Hammer Soda,'" he declared. "The present campaign is to teach the housewife that what she has been using exclusively for culinary purposes also has hygenic and medicinal uses; that the same product she uses in baking is also good for her children's sunburn.

"An interesting and heretofore practically unknown fact is that baking soda is really bicarbonate of soda in its purest form. The latter is sold by druggists and has many medicinal uses. The present campaign is telling the public that it does not need to buy a package of baking soda at the grocery store and a package of bicarbonate of soda at the drug store, because the former is exactly the same as the latter. In this way we expect to broaden the use of a product rather than find new users."

Newspapers were chosen instead of magazines because through them selling pressure can be concentrated upon a definite and compact market, Mr. Dorrance said.

The present campaign is in the nature of a laboratory test. Results obtained will be used to guide the larger national campaign which is expected to follow. The New England states—Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and Vermont,—were chosen for the testing ground and $50,000 is being spent in 68 daily newspapers, the total circulation of which is 2,221,218. The present merchandising drive will cover a six months' period. Twice-a-week copy is being used, which started out in large space—four columns by fifteen inches—and grades down to one column by 11 inches. In all 1,858 separate insertions will be run.

"Upstairs, Downstairs—Helpful Everywhere" is the caption of one of the larger pieces of copy.

"That package of baking soda on the kitchen shelf can be immensely useful all over the house," it declares.

"Baking Soda, whether Arm & Hammer Brand or Cow Brand, is pure bicarbonate of soda of the highest quality, untouched by human hands until the package is opened by the consumer.

"Both brands are the same, both made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc., specialists in this line for over eighty years, and both brands will give exactly the same service—this baking soda is helpful everywhere, upstairs, downstairs, all around the house—it is a household necessity with a hundred important uses."

The copy goes on to tell of its value as a first aid for scalds and burns, as a soothing, sanitary mouth wash, and as a disinfectant for the baby's bottle. How to use baking soda for these purposes is explained in detail.

The copy reproduced on this page is typical in style and appeal of the entire campaign.

It took eight months for Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., to convert the Church & Dwight Company to the idea of advertising.

The agency was retained to work out plans and submit ideas. The first plan of the soda company was to sell a package product through the drug trade. The agency prepared various types of packages and surveyed the possible market for soda as a dentifrice and mouth wash. The company decided against this plan, however, preferring to use newspaper advertising to tell the medicinal qualities of its product.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co. then sent questionnaires to 2,500 housewives, discovering that very few of them knew the hygienic uses of baking soda. Information gleaned from this survey was used in the preparation of copy. A survey of New England followed.

"We are very much pleased with the co-operation we have received from newspapers on this campaign," Mr. Dorrance said. "Their merchandising departments have sent out broadsides, circularized dealers, and obtained large window displays in local stores. Newspapers are becoming better and better co-operators.

Previous to the present advertising venture the Church & Dwight Company had never placed copy in newspapers or magazines. The business, long established, had grown steadily to a position of nation-wide importance in its field. The only printed promotion matter used consisted of recipe booklets and picture cards for children placed in the packages.

The Church & Dwight Company had its inception at Needham, Mass., when John Dwight, associated with his brother-in-law, Dr. Austin Church, started the manufacture of baking soda in 1846. In 1847 the firm of John Dwight & Co. was formed, which subsequently adopted the Cow Brand as its trademark.

This rather unusual brand name was picked because baking soda at that time was widely used for the preservation and sweetening of milk.

In 1865, Dr. Church seeing the need of some larger development to supply the demand for this product entered in the same business with his two sons under the name of Church & Co., using the Arm & Hammer as their brand. The two firms remained separate until 1896, when they were consolidated. The brand names were continued.

First copy run in the campaign (original size 4 columns by 15 inches)

URGES THRICE-A-WEEK COPY

Agency Man Discusses Retail Advertising Before Leather Men

Retailers should advertise at least once a week, but three times a week is better, Alden H. Kenyon of the Kenyon Company, national advertising agency, told his hearers in an address before the New England Shoe and Leather Exposition at Boston last week. He said merchants should not confine their advertising to the day before pay day.

He also argued against the use of so-called "canned" advertising, urging merchants to prepare their own copy, especially something that would suit local conditions. He also suggested liberal use of advertising to insure success, and urged that the message be specific and not general.

"Most important is the selection of the mediums to carry your appeal," he said, "and the detailed knowledge of the class of readers of each particular newspaper in your locality. Do not expect your advertising to produce unusual results the day after it appears. It is much better to have it work steadily and surely and thus build your business on a sure foundation."

CUBA RAISES $250,000 FOR ADVERTISING

Government to Use U. S. Newspapers and Magazines to Attract Tourists —Asking Better Rail and Boat Service

Plans of the Cuban government to spend $250,000 in advertising for tourists in U. S. newspapers and magazines were told EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week by Augustin Aguero, manager of the publicity and information bureau of the Cuban National Tourist Commission. Mr. Aguero, who has spent several weeks in this country conferring with advertising men and transportation officials, sailed for home Saturday to report to the Commission.

"The campaign will be solely for the purpose of attracting tourists to Cuba and will not promote real estate or any industry," he declared. "Nor will it be directed only to people of wealth. We expect to appeal to the common people and tell them the attractions of Cuba. It is the purpose of the Tourist Commission to advertise Cuba as an all-year playground."

A small amount is now being spent in magazines, Mr. Aguero said, but the bulk of the $250,000 remains to be disposed of by the Commission. Action will be taken shortly after he makes his report to that body, he said. Newspapers will undoubtedly be used.

Preliminary work has been carried on with transportation officials in this country in the interests of better rail and boat service to Cuba.

Emil M. Sholz, president of the World Wide Advertising Corporation, gave a luncheon in honor of Mr. Aguero on Thursday at the Bankers Club. Among the guests were Hon. Felipe Taboada, Cuban Consulate General, Theodore P. Seymour, of the A. N. P. A., W. A. Thomson, Bureau of Advertising of the A. N. P. A. and advertising managers of several New York newspapers.

Mr. Aguero will return to New York in August and open an office.

DINNER FOR DR. KNECHT

H. R. Swartz, Hoe President, Host to 15 at Union League Club

H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co. and chairman of the board, Intertype Corporation, tendered a dinner to Dr. Marcel Kuecht of Le Matin, Paris, at the Union League Club, New York, Tuesday evening. Dr. Knecht, who came to this country with the French delegation to the convention of the International Advertising Association, sailed for home Friday.

Guests at the dinner were: Dr. Marcel Knecht, Leon Renier, Jr., H. M. Tillinghast, Neal Dow Becker, Fred Hume, Jesse H. Neal, Edward Pidgeon, C. K. Woodbridge, James Wright Brown, H. H. Charles, Gilbert Hodges, Louis Meyer, J. H. Palmer, J. M. Masterson, F. G. Kent.

NO ANSWER TO TRADE BOARD CHARGE BY PUBLISHER HUMPHREY ACCUSES

Plan Is to Force Magazine Head Before Full Commission or Into Court—Other Members Hold Fraud Order Gives Ample Protection

By J. BART CAMPBELL

(Washington Correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

WASHINGTON July 21.—Commissioner William E. Humphrey's personally-conducted campaign to place the onus for misleading or fraudulent advertising upon publications which accept it as well as upon concerns who place it is being aimed now at certain of the Bernarr MacFadden magazines, EDITOR & PUBLISHER was informed at the Federal Trade Commission offices here this week.

While Secretary Otis B. Johnson joined with Commissioners other than Mr. Humphrey, who is at his Seattle home on a vacation, in refusing EDITOR & PUBLISHER a copy of the complaint issued last week against True Romances Magazine, described as a MacFadden publication, it was learned from authoritative sources the Commission's legal department is seeking to force Bernarr MacFadden and his associates, if possible, either before the full Commission, or, into court in a test case.

Mr. Humphrey was represented as confident True Romances magazine would provide the basis for such a test case. The June issue of the magazine, upon which the complaint was based, gives as its publisher the Beautiful Womanhood Publishing Corporation, of which A. H. Young is described as president and advertising director, and Mrs. E. Zoty as secretary. The address of the editorial offices is given as the MacFadden Building, New York City. The leading editorial, entitled, "Out of the Past," is signed by Bernarr MacFadden.

Mr. Humphrey is to be permitted by his associates on the Commission to pursue alone his efforts to establish through the True Romances case the right of the Commission to hold legally or otherwise responsible publications which throw open their space to advertising the Commission's law department may hold is misleading or fraudulent. Mr. Humphrey possesses the reputation of being a capable and experienced lawyer. He gave careful study to the law governing the True Romances case before directing it to the attention of the rest of the Commission. His associates, as set forth by EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week, profess, however, not to be interested especially in the case. Conflict of opinion between Mr. Humphrey and them is not unusual. Mr. Humphrey has frequently dissented in other cases he found himself overruled by his fellow commissioners.

It may be stated as Mr. Humphrey is recognized as an Administration man, and as President Coolidge is expected to fill two, perhaps three, impending vacancies on the Commission this fall, Mr. Humphrey's influence as a member of the Commission is likely to grow and it will not be long before he will become its chairman.

The principle of "clean advertising" Mr. Humphrey is represented to be battling for is in his judgment well illustrated by the True Romances case. The publisher or publishers of this magazine have forty days in which to make answer to the complaint issued against the magazine because of an "anti-fat" advertisement said by Mr. Humphrey to have been inserted in it by the McGowan Laboratories of Chicago. Under the rules of the Commission the text of the complaint cannot be made public until an answer is filed, and the complaint and answer given out together.

No word was received at the Federal Trade Commission offices this week, EDITOR & PUBLISHER was informed, as to whether an answer would be filed in the case. It was therefore not known, if an answer does not materialize, if the full commission may support Mr. Humphrey and authorize the Commissioner's law department to carry the case into court.

Should the complaint be upheld, it is Mr. Humphrey's intention to press for the issuance of further complaints against other publications, copies of which he is reported to have assembled preparatory to his return from his vacation in September. It is evidently his purpose to pursue the matter irrespective of whether he receives the support of his fellow Commissioners or not. The situation will probably have to be threshed out, however, by the full Commission, and a favorable decision reached, or else Mr. Humphrey is likely to find himself again in a minority.

The advertisement in True Romances magazine, which furnished the basis for the complaint, according to information received by EDITOR & PUBLISHER at the Federal Trade Commission offices this week, makes the claim, under the heading "Scientist Discovers Fat Solvent," that the "preparation" it describes can "Reduce any or every part of your figure with amazing new Reducing Cream which melts away excess fat on any part of the body—slenderizing the figure to perfect proportions without drugs, strenuous exercise, rubber suits or painful denial of any kind."

The text of the advertisement is addressed to "Milady!" and voices the appeal that "if you have a single ounce of unwelcome flesh on your figure, here's good news for you, and that getting thin is now pleasurably simple and easy for any one."

"For I, M. J. McGowan," continues the advertisement, "after five years of tireless research, have made the discovery you have all been waiting for. At last I can tell you how to reduce quickly, comfortably—without the bother of tiresome exercises, without resorting to enervating salt baths, without rubber suits or belts, or my advice isn't going to cost you one single penny.

"My discovery I call Reducine—McGowan's Reducine. It is not a medicine, a bath salt or a course of useless gymnastics. NO—Reducine is a pleasant cream you can apply in the privacy of your own room, putting it gently onto the part you want to slenderize and promptly you will notice a change. A harmless chemical reaction takes place, during which the excess fat is literally dissolved away, leaving the figure slim and properly rounded, giving the lithe grace to the body every man and woman desires."

The advertisement promises that the "treatment" will take only 21 days. One jar of "Reducine" may turn the trick, but three jars are described as a necessary "treatment" for "permanent reducing."

"No matter how much or how little over-weight you are, I guarantee that my Reducing Cream will reduce any, or every part of your body, quickly, surely. I do not merely promise these results—I guarantee them," also runs the advertisement which offers "Reducine" at $2.47 a jar plus a few cents postage, the mails and the postman to be employed to deliver it to the prospective purchaser. The entire treatment is offered, however, at $7, the full amount to be refunded "if it has not reduced my figure," according to the coupon furnished the prospective purchaser.

In the judgment of some of Mr. Humphrey's associates on the Commission a simple investigation by the Postoffice Department, with the possible issuance of a fraud order, if found justified, is all that is necessary to deal with such a case. Mr. Humphrey believes, however, "it is about time the Commission took drastic action against not only a concern placing such an advertisement but against a publication carrying it."

If the publishers of True Romances ignore the complaint, the test case Mr. Humphrey is seeking may possibly fall, unless the Commission's legal department can find some way of getting it into court, but it is said to be Mr. Humphrey's purpose to continue his efforts to provoke some advertising medium to so oppose the commission in such a case as will force a show-down on his plan to divide responsibility for "quack," "fake," or otherwise questionable advertising between those who accept it and those who place it. Conceding this may take some time to accomplish, Mr. Humphrey is confident of attaining his objective eventually—the prevention and prohibition of such advertising matter as that alleged to have been placed by the McGowan Laboratories and alleged to have been accepted by True Romances magazine.

HUMPHREY PLAN A "PROGRESSIVE STEP"

Better Business Bureau Officials Believe Citing Publishers Who Print Fraud Copy Will Aid in Purifying Business

The National Better Business Bureau is fully in sympathy with any move to make operation increasingly difficult for fraudulent concerns, E. L. Greene, manager, declared when asked his opinion on Commissioner Humphrey's plan to cite publishers who knowingly print fraud advertising.

"The Bureau has always maintained that every party aiding in the perpetration of a fraud should be held responsible," he declared. "It is a bad thing to have any person engaged in a fraud exempt from responsibility, whether an advertising agency, a publsher, or a group of salesmen.

"However, the Better Business Bureau believes that the legal attack on fraudulent advertising is only one phase of the movement to eliminate abuses from advertising and selling practices. Many of these the Bureau has found in its experience can be more readily eliminated by direct action with representatives of industrial groups as a whole without recourse to prosecution."

B. L. Shinn, of the Bureau's staff, viewed Mr. Humphrey's plan from the lawyer's standpoint.

"If it is Mr. Humphrey's plan to cite publishers of fraud advertising along with the firm behind the copy, making the publishers who knowingly participate in fraudulent schemes also responsible, I believe it will be a forward step in eliminating bad practices," he stated.

"However, if it is the Commissioner's plan to proceed solely against publishers as a short cut in the elimination of fraud in business, I believe the effort is doomed to failure. As a lawyer I cannot quite see the Commission's jurisdiction.

"Publishers can do much toward censoring advertising copy, and most of them do. But when the courts themselves, in many cases, have difficulty in drawing a sharp line between what is merely inaccurate, what is deceptive, and what is purely fraudulent, how can the individual publisher, who is not a lawyer, make an arbitrary distinction?

"If it is Mr. Humphrey's plan to set up a fence of publishers against fraudulent businesses, without proceeding against the businesses themselves, I do not believe the situation will be greatly improved. The plan must include both.

"The Bureau is in complete sympathy with the Federal Trade Commission in its effort to improve business conditions.

"If the Commission holds those who knowingly print fraudulent advertising responsible, as well as the company which pays for it, I believe it will be a progressive step."

Ties Up Lumber Campaign

Advertising of west coast lumber has brought to the West Coast Lumber Trade extension bureau of Seattle more than 200 requests from retail lumber dealers for illustrations and advertising copy to be used by them in aiding the national lumber advertising campaign through local newspapers.

FRAUD ORDER BARS FAT CURE ADS

Post Office Acts Against Clevelan Nostrum Manufacturer Who Claims He Spent $120,000 in Advertising

Coincident with the clamor raised b Federal Trade Commissioner Humphre for new machinery by which the com mission may proceed against publisher of "fraudulent advertising" as well as th advertisers, the Post Office Departmer issued a fraud order debarring from th mails the advertising of the La-Ma Laboratories, advertising a soap to reduc obesity. A reducing cream advertiseme in a New York magazine was one of th advertisements referred to by Commi sioner Humphrey in his adress at Seattl reported in EDITOR & PUBLISHER la week. The order was issued in Jun following this report by the solicitor fo the Post Office:

"The business consists in the sale, throu the mails, of an article called La-Mar Reduci Soap. The ingredients of the soap, as given the Post Office inspector who investigated th case by H. J. Brown, who is the husband Mrs. Enda B. Brown, and who is designated secretary and treasurer, are iodide of potassiu sassafras and cocoanut oil. The soap is mar factured by Lancaster, Pa., and Cincinnati co cerns. The evidence shows that H. J. Bro holds the capital stock of $50,000, that he general manager as well as secretary and tre urer. His wife is president of the concern, a is also active in its management. Mr. Bro informed the inspector that he spends abo $120,000 annually for advertising purposes, a that the gross receipts are between $125,000 a $150,000 per year. He stated that between 2 and 300 orders are filled daily. Mr. Bro claims that he was once in the drug busine and in this way originated the soap formula. little printed folder used by the La-Mar Labo tories is captioned as follows in large disp type:

"'Wash Away Fat and Years of Age w La-Mar Reducing Soap.'

"This page also contains a cut showing th female figures, one very stout, one not so sto and the third, slender, with the word 'reduc printed alongside in such manner as to plai indicate that the very obese woman can 'redu to the lines of the slender woman.

"From the evidence I find that such cla as those hereinbefore quoted from the concer printed folder are, one and all, false and frau lent. Fat can not be washed away, whet from any particular portion or from the en body. Dieting and exercising which the p moters claim are unnecessary, are, in fact, only effective means known by medical exp for fat reduction when practiced under the rection of the physician and in certain sele cases.

"That the promoters realize that dieting really the effective agent in fat reduction indicated by a statement in the circular giv directions for the use of the soap.

"In the literature of the concern there is fered for sale at $3 each, an article called Slen-Mar Reducing Brush, recommended to used in conjunction with La-Mar Redu Soap. Fourteen cakes of soap and the re ing brush offered for $4.50. From this it wo appear that the soap needs the assistance o brush and the exercise incident to its use.

"According to the evidence, the concern not hesitate to recommend and sell its soa persons who want to reduce as much as s pounds or more, without any information a the cause of the obese conditions, the phys condition or habitts of the patient. There i evidence the case of a woman who said was sixty years old, weighed 240 pounds, who asked that if the soap would take off s pounds and make her ten years younger, concern might send three cakes of soap, pr at $1. The soap was forwarded to the write a few days without further question. * *

"The concern also claims that the fat is solved' and removed and the skin left smo unwrinkled and healthy. According to the dence, there is nothing in the soap that dissolve and remove fat, or that will 'sh the skin as claimed by the concern. There be no such dissolution and removal of fa to affect the skin. The soap is principally and it is quite apparent that fat will not solve fat.

"The evidence shows that H. J. Brown merly operated the H. J. Brown Medical C pany, selling Tescum and Nicotol as a cure the tobacco habit. This business received attention of the Department at the time. cording to newspaper advertisements, Brow still in this business, although he informed Post Office inspector at the time of an i view in the instant case that he had no c business.

"It is reported by the postmaster at C land, Ohio, under date of April 3, 1926, the concern receives an average of 200 le daily. According to the evidence, very l if any, mail relating to the business is addre to H. J. Brown, and I therefore recom that his personal name be not included in fraud order.

"The evidence shows, and I so find, that is a scheme for obtaining money through mails by means of false and fraudulent tenses, representations and promises.

"I therefore recommend that a fraud o be issued against the La-Mar Laboratorie Cleveland, Ohio."

WHAT JUDGES HAVE SAID ABOUT LIBEL CASES

Old Law Reviews Show Decisions Forming Basis for Present Day Judgments—Courts Uphold Freedom of Press But Are Hard on Careless Reporting

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

This is the 19th article of a series obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage. Next week the series will be continued with an article describing how three editors sum up the law of libel for their staffs.

DECISIONS and opinions of judges of another day form the basis for many judgments in libel cases before the courts of today. By searching old files of law reviews in the New York Public Library, the writer of this series has gathered together some of the decisions considered most significantly by legal authorities during the last 15 years. In a subsequent article consideration will be given to more recent judicial remarks concerning libel.

Fundamentals of libel law have been clearly laid down and interpreted by the American bench. Important cases that have merited the attention of writers on libel law, such as William Henderson, member of the New York bar, and author of "Newspapers and Libel," bring out clearly the following points:

1—American courts, as far as libel is concerned, uphold the freedom of the press.

2—Judges are generally harsh, however, in punishing newspaper carelessness.

3—Mere gossip in the news is severely censured.

4—Big circulations intensify the wrong done by libelous publications and therefore necessarily imply the need of greater editorial carefulness.

5—Criticism of men in public office is an important duty of the press, but the criticism must be based on facts not fancies concerning the officials' acts, and not the motives for those acts.

6—Where malice is a legal fiction and not a natural fact, it is the general disposition of juries to deal leniently with libel defendants, one judge declared.

7—The law cannot be eluded by any artful and disguised style in which men attempt to conceal treason or libel. In other words, courts of the land invariably take into consideration the language in which the alleged libel is written.

Justice Freedman in superior court of New York in the case of Roediger vs. the New York Staats Zeitung, thus defined press freedom:

"The freedom of the press is guaranteed by constitutional provisions and, while, in the exercise of the police powers inherent in every state, every other business may be regulated to a point of prohibition, no law can be passed to restrain or abridge the liberty of the press. The freedom of the public press is recognized as one of the cornerstones of our republican institutions, and the fact has an important bearing in the determination of the case of libel alleged to have been published by a journal of respectable standing * * *

"In this country it is considered not only the right but the duty of a newspaper to discuss questions of public interest and to criticize the acts of those who may be temporarily entrusted with power. So it is considered not only the right, but the duty of a newspaper to inform its readers of the current news of the day.

"Of course, the right must be exercised fairly and duly discharged with due regard for truth and propriety. But, as a matter of fact, no caution that human art can devise will totally exclude libel from a newspaper.

"They come in a hundred forms—in reports, in correspondence, in cuttings from other papers, even in the advertisements, and if the law is enforced in its full severity, as it was in England at the time the doctrine prevailed of 'the greater the truth the greater the libel,' no journal in this country could live for a month and fulfill its mission."

Although Justice Freedman thus hinted at the impossibility of enforcing libel law in "its full severity," judges are invariably harsh in dealing with cases arising from reportorial carelessness.

For instance, when two men were arrested in Windsor, Ont., charged with selling U. S. stamps, a misdemeanor in that city, the reporter took the word of the police chief that they were wanted in a Michigan city in connection with the recent robbery of a post office, and immediately wired a story to a Detroit paper, which stated it was believed the thieves had been caught. The pair were in no way involved in the post office robbery and when released for lack of evidence on the lesser charge, sued the Detroit paper for libel. They recovered substantial damages.

Justice Morse of Detroit, before whom the case came, considered the Windsor reporter entirely to blame for spreading the libel. It wasn't the mistaken police chief he censored. Instead he used the birch rod on the newspaper man and his paper in the following lashing words:

"The greater the circulation of a newspaper, the greater the wrong done by an unwarranted publication and the more reason why greater care should be exercised in the publication of personal items.

"No newspaper has any right to trifle with the reputation of any citizen, or by carelessness or recklessness to injure his good name and fame or business; nor has its reporter any more right to collect the stories on the street or even information from policemen or magistrates out of court about a citizen and to his detriment and publish such stories as facts, than has a person not connected with a newspaper to whisper from ear to ear the gossip and scandal of the street.

"If true, such a publication may be privileged, but if false, the newspaper as well as the citizen (the reporter) must be responsible to anyone who is wronged and damaged thereby.

"It is indignity enough for an honest man to be arrested and put into prison for an offense of which he is innocent and for which indignity ofttimes he has no address, without being further submitted to the wrong and outrage of a false publication of the circumstances of such arrest and imprisonment, looking toward his guilt, without remedy.

"No sophistry of reasoning and no excuse of the demand of the public for news or the peculiar nature and magnitude of newspaper work can avail to alter the law, except, perhaps, by positive statute, which is doubtful, so as to leave a party thus injured without any recourse for a wrong, which can even now as the law stands never be adequately compensated to one who loves his reputation better than money."

The editorial writer or reporter who dislikes a man, and desires to attack him in print, needn't think that any clever writing will keep him out of libel.

"The law cannot be eluded by any of the artful and disguised modes in which men attempt to conceal treason or libel and slanderous meanings and designs," Chief Justice Shaw has declared in a frequently cited Massachusetts decision; "that, in truth, language is published and circulated with intent to slander and defame others, though such intent is artfully concealed by use of ambiguous, technical or conventional terms or court phrases, or in any of the other thousand forms in which malice attempts to disguise itself."

Criticism of men in public office is among a newspaper's most important jobs. But whether the criticism should be limited to acts, or privileged to extend to motives is a moot question.

Chief Justice Cockburn set the rule down this way:

"I think the fair position in which the law can be settled is this: that where the public conduct of a man is open to an animadversion and the writer who is commenting upon it makes imputations on his motives, which arise fairly and legitimately out of his conduct, so that the jury shall say that the criticism was not only honest, but also well founded, an action is not maintainable.

"But it is not because a public writer fancies that the conduct of a public man is open to the suspicion of dishonesty, he is therefore justified in assailing his character as dishonest."

At another time the same Chief Justice declared:

"Those who fill a public position must not be too thin-skinned in reference to comments made upon them. It would often happen that objections could be made about public men, which they knew from the bottom of their hearts were underserved and unjust, yet they must bear with them and submit to be misunderstood for a time knowing that the criticism of the press is the best security for the proper discharge of public duties."

"But," Justice Van Vorst cautions in a New York case, "this privilege accorded to journalists and regular correspondents of the press in writing and commenting upon current affairs is not to be abused by using it intemperately or recklessly as an instrument to injure individuals or substantial interests through statements or inferences maliciously made, justified neither by the facts nor the occasion"

A most lenient view of libel law is taken by Judge Cooley in his work on constitutionial limitations:

"The newspaper press has become one of the chief necessities of our alert and commercial civilization," he wrote. "It bears its official relations to the government, national, state and local and it comes nearer to the popular eye and heart than any other agency for influencing public opinion. In the main, it recognizes the importance of these relations which have grown up between it and the communities it serves and discharges the functions assigned to it with a dignity, sagacity and enterprise not surpassed by laborers in other fields. It is a fact that the general disposition of juries in such cases where the malice is a legal fiction and not a natural fact, is to deal leniently with the defendant. Verdicts of six cents are of common occurence. The significance of these verdicts is that while the publication has been guilty of a technical libel his guilt was done in innocence and the plaintiff is not entitled to smart money."

HOUSTON CHRONICLE'S NEW EXECUTIVE TRIO WELL KNOWN IN TEXAS JOURNALISM

C. B. GILLESPIE

G. J. PALMER

STEVE KELTON

HOUSTON, Tex., July 20.—Three of the best known newspaper men in the Southwest are directing the affairs of the Chronicle, since its purchase by Jesse H. Jones, and the retirement of M. E. Foster.

C. B. Gillespie, who has been elevated to the position of vice-president and editor and active head of the publication is one of the editorial veterans of the state. Coming to the Chronicle at the time it was launched in 1901, Mr. Gillespie has served as managing editor of the paper, up through its years of growth until his recent promotion. He has been constantly in touch with editorial affairs in the Southwest. Tolerance in judging the frailties of humanity, and a strong and vigorous treatment of public questions has marked his work.

G. J. Palmer, who has been made vice-president and business manager, is likewise a veteran in the publishing field—his newspaper service in Texas dates back nearly three decades. Mr. Palmer was with the Houston Post in charge of business affairs from 1897 until 1918, when that publication was taken over by Roy G. Watson. Mr. Palmer went to the Chronicle in 1924, as assistant to the publisher. Active in A. N. P. A. affairs, he has been for several years special commissioner for the Texas Newspaper Publishers' Association. He has also been an active member of the Interstate Inland Waterways Association, being at this time vice-president and treasurer of that organization.

Steve Kelton, national advertising manager, and now promoted to assistant business manager, in addition to the national advertising work, is well known throughout eastern publishing and advertising circles. Mr. Kelton joined the Chronicle in 1919 as merchandising service man, and 18 months later became national advertising manager. In his new position, while continuing active in national advertising circles, Mr. Kelton will be more closely associated with the executive management of the paper as Mr. Palmer's assistant.

GRANT WEEK'S VACATION

The Mergenthaler Linotype Company will grant a week's vacation with full pay to all employes of its Brooklyn factory beginning Aug. 2. Only a small organization will be retained to take care of emergencies.

SARGENT ON CLASSIFIED BOARD

Charles S. Sargent, classified advertising manager of the Miami (Fla.) Herald, has been elected to the board of directors of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers.

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By LUCILE BRIAN GILMORE

HENRY JUSTIN SMITH, managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, now spending a well-earned vacation in Europe, is a refutation of the common belief that one cannot work on a newspaper for long, peering through the grimy, uncurtained window of life, without becoming calloused and hardened.

Twenty-seven years ago, a young man just out of college with the temperament of an artist and musician, he went to work as a reporter on the Daily News. He has spent the greatest part of the past twenty-seven years in the city room or just off the city room of that newspaper, serving in the various capacities of reporter, copy reader, city editor, news editor, and managing editor, and he still has the temperament of an artist and musician, mellowed and enriched by his work.

As a youth, Mr. Smith had ambitions of becoming a professor of English, but after his graduation from the University of Chicago in 1898, he went to work as a newspaper reporter instead, bringing his undeniable literary talents to the city room rather than to the class room. His influence has been felt on the Daily News where he has consistently encouraged and aimed at good writing and frowned on haphazard, carelessly written copy. He has also found time to do some writing himself. He is the author of "Deadlines" the book that has sold better than any other book about newspapers; "The Other Side of the Wall," a romantic novel, and "Josslyn," a more or less autobiographical novel.

Mr. Smith's best is literature, and that bent has found expression in his newspaper work. He has an extensive personal library, and a special leaning toward French literature. He is an accomplished pianist and has an ardent love for French music. His wife, too, a highly-cultured and talented woman, was at one time a teacher of French.

In his work Mr. Smith is alert in recognizing ability in the work of others, and in helping foster that ability. He is accessible and ready to listen to the ideas of others. There is nobody at the door of his office who has to be passed before admittance can be gained. He is quick to notice new faces in the office, and to enquire about them, whether they be the faces of subs aimlessly pecking away at their typewriters while waiting for their "big opportunity," or the faces of the older, perhaps wiser, and usually more disillusioned copy readers. Often too, he smokes and chats with the members of his staff in the little smokeshop alongside the Daily News building.

Mr. Smith's service with the Daily News has been continuous since he first joined the paper in 1899, except for a brief year and a half when he was given a leave of absence in 1924 to take charge of public relations for the University of Chicago, as assistant to the president. Part of his work at the university consisted of creating a closer relationship and clearer understanding between the university and the public, part of it was concerned with the publicity program in connection with the university's campaign for $17,500,000 for buildings and endowments. He took up his work with the university when he was news editor of the Daily News, and returned to the paper in February, 1926, after the death of Victor F. Lawson, as managing editor. Mr. Smith was a confidential friend of Mr. Lawson, who had so high a regard for his young news editor that he left him a bequest of $10,000 in his will, as a token of his appreciation of his loyalty and devotion.

Mr. Smith never tires of his newspaper work, the novelty of which intrigues him and never wears off. He is insistent on absolute truth in news stories, but encourages descriptive news stories not merely a statement of bare facts.

Printing crime news, he believes, is merely facing the facts rather than ignoring them. An "ostrich policy" in regard to the use of crime news, he declares, will not lessen crime.

"The question of crime news, like most other questions of news values, is a simple issue as between facing facts and being blind to them," Mr. Smith says. "A majority of newspaper men believe that the 'ostrich policy' is dangerous, not only to circulation but to society. We do not think about circulation so much as some critics suppose; we do think about wise and sane policies more than we get credit for. And the most of us, having observed the effects, in some fields, of timidity, wilful ignorance and self-delusion, are determined not to fall into these errors, even if we commit other errors."

Henry Justin Smith

Mr. Smith was born in Chicago in 1875, the son of Dr. Justin A. Smith, for years editor of the Standard, a weekly paper of the Baptist denomination. During his work with the Daily News, he has had the opportunity to train many men in principles of good journalism, and has been brought into association with many who have since attained considerable fame as writers, among them are Carl Sandburg, poet and author of "Abraham Lincoln, the Prairie Years"; Ben Hecht, novelist; whose vivid sketches of bits of life in Chicago were for a long time a feature of the Daily News; Keith Preston, humorist and literary editor of the paper; Sherwood Anderson, novelist, and scores of others. The Daily News seems always to have attracted men with writing talent, perhaps because for years there has been on the staff a man like Henry Justin Smith who was able to recognize talent and encourage it. His own book "Deadlines" has been accepted as a classic portrayal of newspaper life, and has been adopted in Europe, in Japan, and in China.

Mr. Smith is loyal to the people who work with him and ever ready to help iron out their difficulties, professional or personal. He is good at judging character and can usually tell sincerity from bluff. He has an aversion for politics and politicians, big or little.

Mr. Smith goes to work with a memorandum pad ever at his side, on which he jots down ideas as they come to him. His pad is his guide in his work. And he digs into his work wholeheartedly, with his sleeves rolled up literally and figuratively.

In 1918 Mr. Smith was sent abroad for the Daily News and served for a while as its Paris correspondent.

A newspaper colleague has this to say of Mr. Smith's literary work:

"The news room of the Daily News provided themes which took an absorbing, magical interest from their transmutation into literary gold within the sympathetic, analytical mind of Henry Smith. It may serve still further to illustrate the fact that though interesting personalities and curious or dramatic incidents are abundant in a newspaper's news room, it is only when an observer and an analyst with an understanding heart like the author of 'Deadlines' and 'Josslyn' is there that such material gets transformed into literature."

ORANGES DAILY ORGANIZED

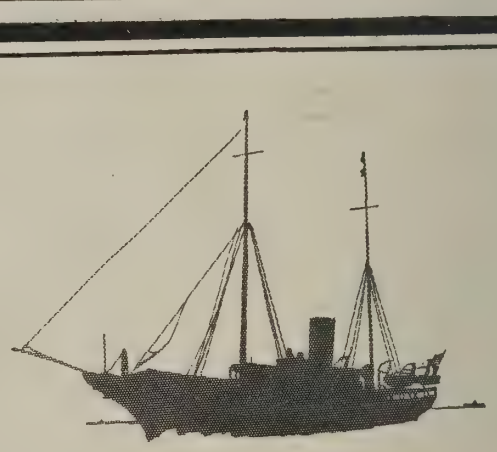
Bayonne Plant and New Press Bought by Jersey Paper

The Publishing Company of the Oranges and Maplewood has recently acquired for its projected daily in that New Jersey section, the plant of the Bayonne Public Opinion, including six linotype machines and the usual composing room equipment. The press room equipment was not taken over. A Simplex press with a capacity of 15,000 40-page papers per hour has been contracted for from R. Hoe & Co., and delivery is expected in September.

G. Clifford Jones

Officers of the new concern are: President, Arthur T. Muir, president of a department store in the Oranges; vice-presidents, Wilbur Munn, president of the Second National Bank of Orange and G. Clifford Jones, publisher of the Courier, the existing weekly in the Oranges; secretary, Thomas F. Burley, Jr., secretary of the Chamber of Commerce of the Oranges and Maplewood; treasurer, Edwin Balch, Jr., head of the John O'Rourke Company.

The executive committee is made u of the officers and Col. Austen Colgat of the Colgate Co.



The directors, in addition to the abov are: Alfred J. Grosso, attorney; Charle Edison, son of Thomas A. Edison an business head of Thomas A. Edison, Inc. Harrison M. Lang, president of th Chamber of Commerce; Oscar Schoer herr, head of the Welfare Federation o the Oranges; J. R. Monroe, president o the Monroe Calculating Machine Com pany; Charles C. Huitt, secretary Finla J. Sheppard; William J. Orchard, manu facturer; P. A. Smith of the A. P. Smit Manufacturing Company, John S. H Hart, Jr., chairman of the Maplewoo Township Committee, and Frederick I Reeve, New York, business man.

All of the above are stockholders ar in addition, the following business me are included among the stockholders ar incorporators: Farnham Yardley, vic president Jenkins Valve Co.; John A Gore, vice-president Prudential Life In surance Company; Jacob Roth of th National Beef Company; and Edwar Prizer, head of the Vacuum Oil Com pany.

Of the $250,000 authorized capit $200,000 will be paid in advance

GRAND RAPIDS SEEKS FAME

A "publicity bureau" to spread amon newspapers, trade journals and gener magazines "authentic information regar ing home furnishings and Grand Rapi furniture construction," is being plann by the Grand Rapids Market Associatio

Commerce at the port of Jacksonville vaults 538%

Port commerce in Jacksonville for 1925 showed an increase in value of 538 per cent over that of 1921. This is shown in the report recently released by the Chamber of Commerce. The report contains fifty pages and required more than three months to compile.

The solidarity of Jacksonville is evident from the universal gains of all businesses. The Florida Times-Union is in accord with a gain of nearly two million agate lines of paid advertising so far this year.

The Florida Times-Union
~JACKSONVILLE~

DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

Advertising Executives

read and prefer

The New York Times

The report* of an investigation of "Newspaper Reading Habits of Advertising Executives in New York," by Professor George Burton Hotchkiss, Chairman of the Department of Advertising and Marketing at New York University, just published by The Association of National Advertisers, indicates that The New York Times is the newspaper preferred by the majority.

Answers to a simple questionnaire were received from 800 advertising managers and 200 advertising agency executives. The report, referring to the proof of the accuracy of the results, states: "This test of 1,000 cases can be taken as a thoroughly safe indication of the newspaper reading habits of all advertising executives of the New York territory."

Of the men who read only one morning newspaper, about 48% read The New York Times, 40% a second morning newspaper and 9% a third morning newspaper.

The answers "indicate that readers of The Times like particularly its handling of the general news, of foreign news, and of finance, with a very good percentage who are interested in its business pages and its advertisements. The Times was listed as the favorite Sunday paper. It received over 57% of the total number of possible choices.

"Many reasons were written in—237 in all—including 75 mentions of The New York Times Book Review and 69 of The Times Rotogravure Section."

Distribution of 1,331 morning newspapers and 1,351 Sunday papers read by 800 advertising managers and 200 advertising agency executives:

	Morning Papers Read	Morning Papers Preferred	Sunday Papers Read	Sunday Papers Preferred
The New York Times	571	445	696	573
Second Newspaper	478	345	410	250
Third Newspaper	204	129	131	47
Fourth Newspaper	44	11	81	18

*A prefatory note in the report states that the investigation was initiated and financed by The New York Herald Tribune. The name of The Herald Tribune, however, was not connected with the investigation in any way, eliminating all element of bias.

LOS ANGELES DAILY NEWS RE-FINANCING UNDER STATE'S CLOSE SCRUTINY

New Nevada Corporation's Premature Sale of $45,000 Stock Stopped—Commissioner Demands Changes in Planned Allotment of Shares

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 20.—At the hearing last Friday of the recently formed Daily News Corporation it was found that the corporation had violated the California securities act by accepting $45,000 in stock subscriptions without obtaining the sanction of the State Corporation Commission. The hearing of the Nevada corporation was on its application for permission to sell $250,000 worth of stock.

Claude B. Andrews, first vice-president of the new corporation, which was formed to take over the Illustrated Daily News, admitted the premature stock subscriptions to which Chief Deputy Corporation Commissioner Walther took exception.

The violation must be remedied and the money accepted for stock be returned before a permit will be issued, according to the commissioner. Andrews stated that the practice had already been discontinued and some of the money had been returned. He agreed to send out notices recalling the stock purchases.

That the Illustrated News had never showed a profit, but that its monthly deficit was "from $15,000 to $50,000," was the assertion made by H. B. Granlee, secretary and treasurer of the new corporation, who had served in a similar capacity with Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc. More than $1,300,000 has been dropped in the operating expenses of the paper, he said, expressing the belief that with the proposed new management the paper would be breaking even in four months. Within six months monthly profits would be $10,000, he stated.

At the hearing testimony indicated that the Illustrated Daily News Publishing Company is in debt to Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., for $1,600,000, and the latter corporation owes Cornelius Vanderbilt, Sr., $901,000, which figure it is declared Gen. Vanderbilt has agreed to cancel, dependent upon the cancellation of the $1,600,000 debt and the giving of the control of the paper to the present stockholders.

Certain details surrounding the proposed plan of disposing of stock in the Nevada corporation were objected to by Walther. The plan explained at the hearing is to sell 25,000 shares of Class A preferred stock, par value $25, paying 8% dividends; 25,000 shares Class B common stock, no par value, paying $1.40 a share after the 8% dividend paid on Class A stock, and 25,000 Class C common stock, no par value, to share equally in any other dividends after the 8% and the $1.40 is paid on Classes A and B.

It was planned to issue Class A and B stock in exchange for stock in the Illustrated News Publishing Company, plus fifty percent of the value of the latter, with the alternative of Class C stock share for share, for those who do not wish to pay the additional 50 percent. As stockholders who already have bought stock in the paper and cannot afford to invest more would have no alternative but to take Class C stock, having no voting power, Walther took exception to the scheme.

He also objected to the articles of incorporation which are understood to give directors power to prevent stockholders from examining the books, except for record of stock transfers.

The case was continued from last Friday to today to allow the committee, representing various interests, to confer with the federal receiver of the Vanderbilts Newspapers, Inc., who was due in the city from Florida. Federal Judge McCormick, it was announced at the hearing, favored a plan by present stockholders, but urged immediate action.

Corporation Commissioner Daugherty, who was in attendance at hearing, insisted upon further safeguards for the stockholders of the Nevada Corporation organized to take over the Illustrated Daily News Publishing Company.

A permit to sell stock in the new corporation will not be issued, it was declared, unless all of the money collected is impounded until such time as the Corporation Commissioner is satisfied that there is enough to make a bid on the newspaper property. Books of the corporation must be open at all times to inspection by the commissioner also.

"No permit that I issue will be a bar to any possible criminal action in connection with the old company or the sale of its stock," stated Daugherty. Mr. Andrews reported that 90 per cent of the $45,000 collected before a permit had been issued had already been returned to stockholders and all have been notified that their money awaits them.

It was suggested that class C shareholders be permitted to vote in case they do not receive a dividend on their stock for five successive years.

VANDERBILT NURSING CHAIN DAILY DREAM

In Philadelphia Interview He Declares He Wants to Be a Newspaper Magnate, Possibly Within Next Year

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

PHILADELPHIA, July 20.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., in Philadelphia today for a brief visit, announced his plan to invade the eastern field with a new chain of newspapers next year, if he is able to recoup the fortune he lost in the crash of his western and southern tabloids.

He declared that it is his ambition to become a power in American journalism.

"I want to be a newspaper magnate," he said.

Mr. Vanderbilt returned to New York yesterday on the Leviathan from Europe and came to Philadelphia last night to seek his chauffeur, and to get his motor car which is undergoing repairs.

He was still in bed in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, when he admitted interviewers, but was at ease in striking blue and white pajamas. On his bed were strewn at least a dozen newspapers, with New York publications carrying the interviews he granted New York ship news men yesterday, predominating.

Mr. Vanderbilt opened the conversation by denying that his trip to Europe had been made principally for the purpose of obtaining interviews with the statesmen of the continent for the purpose of rebuilding his fortune through syndication of the sketches.

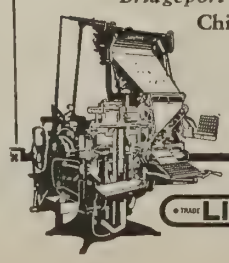
"I made the trip to visit several plastic surgeons in Munich and Paris to treat my teeth," he said. "The interviews were incidental and were prompted by my reportorial instinct.

"However," he continued, "I intend to use the interviews first in my Los Angeles paper and then to syndicate them to the newspapers throughout the country."

He spoke of the work of his attorneys, Arthur Garfield Hayes, Dudley Field Malone and Clarence Darrow, who are aiding him reconstruct his wealth, and expressed satisfaction with their work.

"I met Mr. Hayes in Munich and Mr. Malone in Paris," he asserted, "and both reported to me that they were progressing in their task of straightening out my affairs."

Mr. Vanderbilt stated that his talks with his attorneys had inspired him with the hope that he would be able to launch his program toward the acquirement of a chain of eastern newspapers within a year.



He stated that he plans to visit Chicago to confer with Mr. Darrow before returning to Los Angeles to resume the direction of his one remaining tabloid in that city.

From the Linotype Mailbag

14 cents repairs in 18 months

"In regards to the machine, I must say that we are more than pleased with it. The entire repair bill, for the last 18 months, amounted to the unbelievable sum of 14 cents. Just think, 14 cents for repairs since the installation of the machine a year and a half ago."

Bridgeport Printing House
Chicago, Illinois.

NEW OREGON BEACH DAILY

E. N. Hurd, publisher of the Seaside (Ore.) Signal, has changed his newspaper from a weekly to an afternoon daily.

TARTE SELLS INTEREST IN LA PATRIE

Transaction Involves $1,500,000—Former Owner Remains as Director and General Manager—Syndicate Now in Control

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

MONTREAL, July 19—L. J. Tarte has sold his interest in La Patrie to a syndicate of prominent French-Canadians headed by Senator D. O. L'Esperance. The transaction is said to involve more than $1,500,000. Ill health is said by Mr. Tarte to be the reason for disposing of the paper, with which he has been connected for 30 years, but relieved of the burden of ownership, he will remain as a director and general manager.

The new board includes besides Senator L'Esperance and Mr. Tarte J. H. Fortier and A. Bechard of Quebec and Eugene Tarte, as director and advertising manager.

Under the new management La Patrie will be a conservative paper.

TIMES NAMES BOSTON SPECIAL

The New York Times has appointed Gilman Nicoll & Ruthmann, Inc., to represent it in New England. Stanley Pratt will be in charge of the Boston office.

MONTHLY C. OF C. SUPPLEMENT

Topics is the title of the new official monthly publication of the Olympia Chamber of Commerce issued as a supplement to the Morning Olympian.

New England's Second Largest Market

72,468

Personal Income Tax Returns

in the

PROVIDENCE TRADING TERRITORY

(As defined by the A. B. C.)

in 1923

The net paid circulation of

The Providence Journal

and

The Evening Bulletin

in the same territory is 96,174

Total circulation 105,000

Providence Journal Company

Providence, R. I.

Representatives

CHAS. H. EDDY CO., Boston New York Chicago

R. J. BIDWELL CO., San Francisco Los Angeles Seattle

What have you to sell in Los Angeles, gentlemen?

Here is a little evidence that may help you to an advertising decision.

MORTGAGE INSURANCE . . . . . .

"Of forty coupons returned by prospective purchasers, of Insured First Mortgage Certificates, 21 bore unmistakable evidence of having appeared in our advertisements on the financial pages of The Los Angeles Examiner. This was four times as many coupons as the medium nearest your record produced."

—Mortgage Insurance Corp. of California

WOMEN'S SPECIALTY WEAR . . . . . .

"With a material decrease in our advertising appropriation against last year, we increased our sales 32% Monday. We used only The Examiner . . . . we were absolutely unable to take care of the crowd."

—Maxime's, 519 So. Broadway, Los Angeles

DEPARTMENT STORE MERCHANDISE . . . . .

78,350 people laid down cash in Walker's Fifth Street Store in Los Angeles recently, on the occasion of its Annual Booster Sale. Of 11 pages of newspaper advertising heralding the event, 9 appeared in The Examiner.

$850 BRUNSWICK PANATROPES . . . . . .

"There was directly developed, from this one exclusive insertion, over $13,000 worth of business. No words of mine can strengthen the actual facts of the case. You ran the advertising, we did the business!"

Howard L. Brown, District Manager,
BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER CO.

"If we could but accomplish the same things at all points throughout the United States where we advertise, as we do in the 'Examiners' of California, our problem would be a very happy one."

H. D. Leopold, Advertising Manager,
BRUNSWICK-BALKE-COLLENDER CO.

FOODSTUFFS . . . . . .

"On the Monday following (14-page section exclusively in The Examiner), our business increased over 16% over the average sales for the previous six Mondays."

PIGGLY WIGGLY WESTERN STATES CO.,
A. J. Jones, President

TIRES . . . . . .

"We put out over 1900 tires during the week . . . . only two newspaper advertisements were used. One on Sunday, in the Automobile Section, the other a 40-inch Midweek Advertisement, both in The Examiner."

CORDUROY TIRE STORES, INC.,
B. Loren Welch, Secty. and Treasurer.

Sell it in Los Angeles with The Examiner; tell it to more than half a million readers daily, more than a million and a half readers every Sunday. The Merchandising Service Department will help you put your story over with the dealers, bring its enthusiasm and knowledge to bear to increase your distribution, and in many ways make this market an easy one for you to enter.

170,000 DAILY

CHARACTER QUALITY ENTERPRISE ACCURACY

Los Angeles Examiner

AN AMERICAN PAPER FOR THE AMERICAN PEOPLE — THE GREAT NEWSPAPER OF THE GREAT SOUTHWEST

Largest morning & Sunday circulation west of the Missouri

390,000 SUNDAY

T. C. HOFFMEYER
West Coast Representative
571 Monadnock Bldg.
Telephone Garfield 2858
San Francisco

W. W. CHEW
Eastern Representative
Room 1512—285 Madison Ave.,
Telephone Caledonia 2093
New York City

WM. H. WILSON
Mid-West Representative
915 Hearst Bldg.
Telephone Main 5000
Chicago

HUMOR IN WORD AND ARTIST'S LINE FINDING ADVERTISERS' FAVOR

After-Dinner Story Atmosphere Marks Copy of Alabama Store —Cartoons by Famous Craftsmen in Growing Demand For Local and National Copy

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

IT was back in '91 down on the old farm in Russell County, Alabama.

Malindy was upbraiding Ancy for associating with Pute. She said to him, "Don't you know, ef yer continue to associate wid crooks, you will get stung in the end?"

Ancy replied, "Dat's what happened ter me when I sot on a bumble-bee hole."

This is not an after-dinner story, but the start of a large piece of copy in the Birmingham Age-Herald, published and copyrighted by W. O. Broyles of the

there was a little man and he worked in a little office and there was a draught came in the rear window. Handkerchief-thin underwear that came to the knees made him sneeze and be chilly. Too heavy underwear made him hot. When he went out to call on a customer, he was too cold.

So Root's made a special medium weight undergarment for him and millions of other men with the same underwear problems and it suited them all. It is worth looking at. Your nearest dealer has a selection. Ask for Root's Tivoli with the bear trademark.

UNION SUITS
SHIRTS AND DRAWERS
70 Years of Honor!

ROOT'S
TIVOLI STANDARD
UNDERWEAR

No. 10

Advertising copy in the conversational, commuter-smoking car language, carries the autumn underwear message

W. O. Broyles Furniture Company, an advertiser who has succeeded in combining humor with humanness, frankness with common sense, to give his store a distinct personality and to draw in "the great common people" (of which there are so many!).

A crudely humorous drawing shows Hubby expounding to his wife under the banner-line, "Those who are careless in selecting their furniture merchant will get stung in the end."

More homespun humor about Ancy and his bosom friend, Pute, follows, leading into hardpan talk on the folly of expecting to buy at "half price" with a homely moral. The store states, "We won't have collectors—20% off for cash, 10% off if paid in office when due—90 days same as cash." In a box, Mr. Broyles makes a plea for underpaid policemen and firemen and in another box commends the new Mayor of Collinsville, Ala.

Under a photo of Mr. Broyles, appears this comment, "He uses his own home to demonstrate better homes." The store uses the slogan, "Where the rattle of calico is as sweet as that of silk" and "Where prices are right and clerks are polite." The advertisement says, "No Sunday advertisements—W. O. Broyles is a six-day man—look for our ad in every Monday's Age-Herald."

The Broyles advertising is followed regularly by masses of people just because it is different. It is amusing as well as convincing—homespun humor gives it life.

Last winter a small-space campaign appeared in the New York Times, Evening World, Evening Journal, Jewish Daily Forward, Il Progresso and Newark News, which was refreshing because it treated a deadly dull subject, men's underwear, in a way bound to arrest attention instead of the usual moronic men standing about in underwear. Cartoons and copy of a flippant nature, yet with specific ideas, were published by the Root Manufacturing Company, maker of Root's Tivoli Standard Underwear.

Art Helfant, a New York newspaper staff cartoonist and contributor to humorous weeklies, drew the picture comicalities for the single column and double-column copy. Electros of the copy were supplied to dealers.

One advertisement, with a whimsical white-collar office man busy at his desk, captioned, "There was a little man," told this yarn:

"And he worked in a little office and there was a draught came in the rear window. Handkerchief-thin underwear that came to the knees made him sneeze and be chilly. Too heavy underwear made him hot. When he went out to call on a customer, he was too cold.

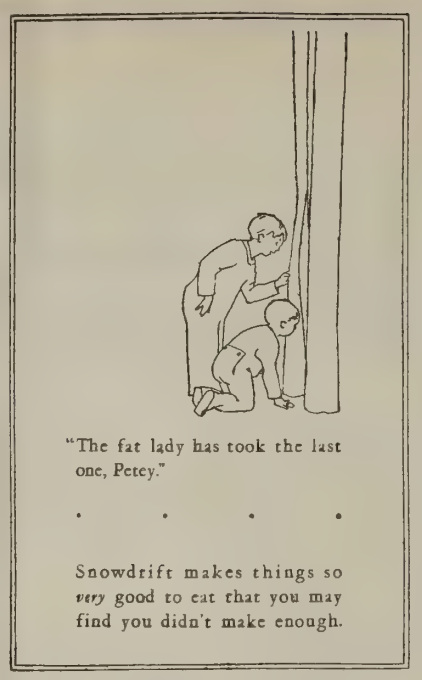
"So ROOT'S made a special medium weight undergarment for him and millions of other men with the same underwear problems and it suited them all. It is worth looking at. Your nearest dealer has a selection. Ask for Root's Tivoli with the bear trademark."

Humor combined with common sense!

"Gentlemen prefer blondes" heads an advertisement of Young's Shoe Stores of Los Angeles, which facetiously capitalizes the interest in a popular novel of that name. A jazzy figure of a young man is shown looking at a large tan shoe. An arrow points to the chap's feet to direct attention to the fact his footwear is "blonde." The copy says:

"Blonde shoes for men are all the rage and we have the largest and most complete showing of men's smart blonde shoes in America."

The Western Electric Company some time ago was especially happy in dramatizing parts, wrenches and tools in one of their series of institutional advertisements headed "Feeding time at the electrical contractor's zoo." A large wrench was given a body, legs and a tail and shown eating bolts out of a feed-bag. Behind him was a wire fence with other animals such as duck bill pliers, ratchet brace with alligator jaws, gooseneck, behive reflector, fish wire, all drawn by Tony Sarg. With this for attention, the ad swung into an institutional vein.



Our Customers Write Our Ads

RED BANK, NEW JERSEY, REGISTER
Says—

"In the Duplex Tubular press we have not only secured dependability and production, but also have an economical operation."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

"The fat lady has took the last one, Petey."

. . . .

Snowdrift makes things so very good to eat that you may find you didn't make enough.

The child appeal in eye-restful pen drawings is effective in this two-column newspaper copy.

A clever idea for tie-up of humor with selling a full page of special page copy was used on June 18 by the Sioux City Daily Tribune in connection with Father's Day. It was conceived and sold by J. K. Lawler of the advertising staff and the cartoon was drawn by Roy Justus, the paper's cartoonist.

The cartoon was headed, "He's proud of us—." It showed Dad with a broad grin enjoying a new electric fan, tie, fishing rod, flowers, ice cream, mashie, house slippers and cigars, received from his children. Below local advertisers for all these commodities made their claims for business. It was handled in such a way that it did not seem far-fetched. The cartoon idea can be applied to almost any special occasion the newspaper staff desires to celebrate with a special page,—and the cost is slight.

Moody's Morning Glory Coffee was advertised by a series of light cartoons by Bliss with copy in harmony on such themes as "How to ponzi husband" (getting him in a mellow mood so he will cough up that ten-spot), etc.

P. Lorillard Company in a campaign in New England for Old Gold, a new cigaret, makes it spicy with flamboyant drawings of jolly pirates, treasure islands, chests of rare value and all the fixings to illustrate its slogan, "The treasure of them all." The company is reputed to be spending a sum in six figures on this campaign which appears in virtually every large and small paper in that section.

A coal company employs a funny, fat old trade character called "Old Man Winter" who gives his advice to the public.

The Radio Corporation of America distinguished its newspaper advertising in the maelstrom of competitive claims by making it distinctly humorous with familiar family figures in cartoon style.

Many trademarks, such as the Cliquot Club Ginger Ale Eskimo, get their value from their humorous form: "Mr. Peanut" who stands for Planters Peanuts is an example. He is a peanut given arms, legs, stovepipe hat and monocle.

The Wesson Oil people in their newspaper advertising of Snowdrift cooking fat have ben outstanding utilizers of white space, restraint clean-printing thin-line drawings of unique character, brief copy, all permeated by a whimsicality which has won for it an inordinate amount of attention and, I believe, sales.

It "takes nerve," for instance, to dare to publish an advertisement with the following constituents:

Much white space. At right two kids peeking through curtains. "The fat lady has took the last one, Petey" . . . Snowdrift makes things so very good to eat that you may find you didn't make enough." That's all!

Coverage in Buffalo That is Definite and Absolute

In a single effort The Buffalo Courier-Express gives you a coverage in Buffalo and adjacent territory that is definite and absolute. The necessity of using two newspapers to reach the same people is now a thing of the past.

This consolidated newspaper stands alone in the morning field—a powerful paper giving you maximum impression at a minimum cost. There is no guesswork about it.

Also there is a metropolitan Sunday newspaper, The Buffalo Sunday Courier-Express, which will carry your message to the largest audience reached by any paper in New York State outside of New York City.

Courier BUFFALO Buffalo's Best Newspaper EXPRESS

Lorenzen & Thompson, Incorporated
Publishers' Direct Representatives

CHICAGO NEW YORK SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE

THE WATERTOWN STANDARD

Sell to Northern New York

Through Northern New York's Leading Newspaper

THE Watertown Standard dominates its field.

In this typically American trading center where 86% of the population is native born white, the Watertown Standard leads in total circulation, in home delivered circulation and in volume of local advertising, and the Watertown Standard is growing.

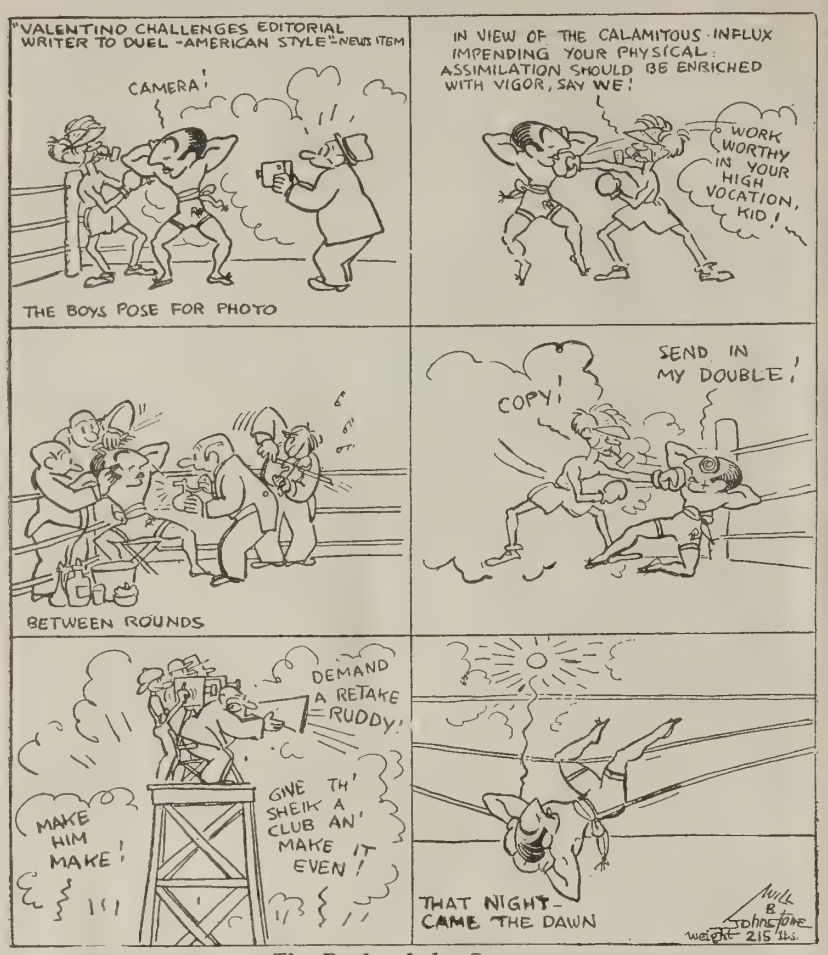
If you want to sell to Northern New York it is obvious that your proper advertising medium is Northern New York's leading newspaper, the Watertown Daily Standard.

WATERTOWN STANDARD

Largest total circulation.
Largest home delivery.
Largest Department Store advertising volume.
Largest local advertising.
Largest classified volume.

WATERTOWN, NEW YORK

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY



New York · Boston · Chicago · Philadelphia

National Advertising Representatives

Watertown, the hub of Northern New York's great dairy and paper manufacturing industries, a rich market for national advertisers.

NORTHERN NEW YORK'S LEADING NEWSPAPER

SHEIK SEEKS EDITORIAL WRITER'S GORE

The Battle of the Century

AN editorial writer on the Chicago Tribune was challenged to fistic combat this week by Rudolph Valentino, sheik of the movies, when the film star, passing through Chicago, read an editorial in last Sunday's Tribune under the title "Pink Powder Puffs."

"A powder vending machine! In a men's washroom!" the editorial writer exclaimed. "Homo Americanus! Why didn't someone quietly drown Rudolph Guglielmo, alias Valentino, years ago?"

The editorial outburst was due to the opening of a new ballroom where, in the men's lounge, a slot machine provides powder puffs and powder.

Chicago newspapers received in the mail a letter purporting to have been signed by him and demanding satisfaction, American style, for what the letter termed a "scurrilous personal attack upon me, my race, and my father's name." The letter explained that Valentino bore no grievance toward the Tribune, but only against the "cowardly writer."

Will Johnstone cartoonist for the New York World, visualized the possible combat between Rudolph and the editorial writer in the form of a cartoon reproduced on this page.

Aware of Valentino's belligerent nature he signed it "Will Johnstone—Weight 215 lbs."

To date the movie star's challenge has been ignored by the Chicago writer.

HE SUBSCRIBED AT ONCE

Salesman Learns He Is Heir to a Million When Boy Buys Wrong Paper

Because a boy he sent for a newspaper purchased the wrong one, Robert H. Brooks, 44, a real estate salesman of Atlantic City, N. J., learned Wednesday that he is probably heir to an estate valued at more than a million dollars, according to a story in the New York Times.

The information was contained in an advertisement in the Philadelphia newspaper the boy brought back in place of the local paper he had been sent for.

The advertisement said the police in Philadelphia had been asked by Daniel Francis Sullivan, a wealthy and aged resident of Anaheim, Cal., to seek relatives who he thought were in Philadelphia. Brooks, who is married and has three children, says his mother had a brother named Daniel Francis Sullivan and he believes the aged Californian is he. Brooks communicated with the Philadelphia police and later received a letter from Sullivan attorneys, who wrote, Brooks says, that he probably is the missing heir. He is awaiting further word.

PAPER RESEARCH IN CANADA

Manufacturers' Association Financing Institute at McGill University

The Canadian Pulp & Paper Association, in association with McGill University, is financing a pulp and paper research institute at Montreal. The amount involved is $350,000, of which 70 per cent has been subscribed, and this sum is over and above the annual expediture by the association of $35,000 for research work.

It is hoped by the application of research to the cellulose industry to reduce the cost and improve the paper output of association members.

CONFESSIONS of a CAMPAIGN MANAGER

as told to

Oliver P. Newman

Twelve daily releases beginning July 26

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BLDG.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

MEET ON MOUNTAIN TOP

Idaho Editors Approve Co-operation With State School of Journalism

Eighty members of the Idaho Editorial Association held their mid-summer meeting July 17 and 18 at McCall, Idaho, a feature of the meeting being Saturday morning breakfast on top of Mt. Brundage.

Lloyd Adams, secretary to Senator Frank R. Gooding, addressed the editors on the reasons for the failure of the long and short haul rate bill to pass the Senate. Evelyn Melvin, the only woman publisher in the state, was another speaker.

At the business session, the association recorded itself in favor of better roads, an increase in legislators' pay to $10 per day, and co-operation with the university school of journalism.

Social activities, in charge of the McCall Commercial Club, included an entertainment program and a lake-shore picnic.

GERMAN EDITOR VISITS N. Y.

Prof. H. K. Frenxel Is Director of Berlin Advertising Monthly

Prof. H. K. Frenxel, editor of Gebrauchsgraphik, Berlin, Germany, an illustrated monthly magazine for the furtherance of art in advertisement, spent several days this week in New York City, returning from Philadelphia where he attended the International Advertising Association convention.

Dr. Frenxel said he would join his German colleagues and attend the Press Congress of the World sessions in Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, Sept. 14-18.

OKLAHOMA RAISES $180,000

Plans of Oklahomans, Inc., to advertise Oklahoma nationally, with a fund starting at $200,000 and increasing to $675,000, have been endorsed by the Tulsa Real Estate board. N. R. Graham, president of Oklahomans, Inc., and K. C. Shelbourne, of the Shelbourne Advertising agency spoke at the recent meeting, as did Judge Browne of the Daily Oklahoman. Of the $200,000 needed to start the campaign, $180,000 has been underwritten, it was announced.

BRIGHAM JOINS INLAND

S. B. Brigham, former Eastern manager for Carpenter & Co., newspaper representatives, has resigned and is now vice-president of Inland Newspapers, Inc. with offices at Chicago and New York. The newly formed company will represent a score of mid-West newspapers. Mr. Brigham was formerly American representative for the Northcliffe Press, and also American representative for the European edition of the Chicago Tribune and its Oceanic edition.

DAILY NEWS PAYS BONUS

A bonus of $100 each was paid this week to Al Willard, photographer and Jack Reilly, reporter, by the New York Daily News "in recognition for valiant and efficient work in the explosion at the Dover arsenals when, in the face of shell fire, covered their assignments."

New York Sun Artist Dies

P. T. Knight, staff artist of the New York Sun, died Wednesday of pneumonia. He was a graduate of Dartmouth College and had studied in Berlin and Paris. Prior to joining the Sun two years ago, he was for three years a member of the art staff of the New York Times.

Meets Demands of Rush Days

WHEN things are comparatively quiet and ads are coming in on time, there is little opportunity for the Ludlow System to show what it really can do. But when rush days arrive—and most every newspaper has them—then is when the true test comes.

Saturday is rush day for the Greenville (Texas) Morning Herald. Ads come pouring in—many of them late. Any but the most efficient and most flexible equipment would fail to meet such exacting conditions. Just how the Ludlow stands up on such occasions is told in the following letter from Madison Wolfe, foreman of the Herald:

"Recently we surely had a bunch of ads in a 14-page paper. The ads were late getting in and we had to put some speed behind things. With the old system we never would have been able to handle the ads.

"We never have had a hitch since the Ludlow equipment has been on the job. It beats any other method I have found. Anyone who never has worked with the Ludlow does not know what this system of display composition means to a shop until he has tried it."

Ninety-nine percent of the Herald's typefaces are in sluglines. A marked improvement has been noted in their ads and heads since they installed the Ludlow. They no longer have to depend on battered, worn or broken type, as the Ludlow casts new sluglines in abundance as needed.

Ludlow Typograph Co.

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago

San Francisco: 5 Third Street
Atlanta: 41 Marietta Street
New York: 63 Park Row
Boston: 261 Franklin Street

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

More than three-quarters of a million lines of advertising have been gained so far this year by the Cincinnati Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. The Post is first in circulation —a leadership of many years standing.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

"FIRED" PRINTER LOSES APPEAL FROM CHAPEL O. K. OF HIS DISMISSAL

Kansas City Arbitrator Finds That Jurisdiction of Local Joint Standing Committee Holds Only When Foreman and Chapel Disagree

THE discharge of a composing room employe by the foreman of a Kansas City newspaper recently raised an unusual question regarding the settlement of disputes by a joint standing committee operating under a clause in the contract between the publishers and the local typographical union.

The foreman discharged a printer, who appealed to the chapel, which approved the foreman's action. The discharged man then contended that he had the right under the contract to appeal to the joint standing committee. The publishers, while refusing to agree that the decision would be retroactive, did agree to submit the interpretation of the clause concerning the joint standing committee to an arbitrator, as the contract provides.

The award of the arbitrator, Judge O. L. Miller, sets forth the controversy clearly and is reproduced in full below:

"Having heard the matter presented by the committee of both organizations, I now make my report and give you the conclusions at which I have arrived in the matter. Section 35 of the agreement reads as follows:

" 'The union shall not discipline a foreman for any act in the performance of his duties when such action is warranted by this contract and scale. In case a discharged member feels aggrieved he shall have the right to appeal to the chapel. If the chapel votes to reinstate and the foreman refuses to accept the chapel's decision and the matter cannot be settled by conciliation, the controversy shall immediately be referred to the joint standing committee. If at the end of 48 hours no settlement of the controversy has been made, a fifth member shall be named and a decision of the joint standing committee shall be final and binding. No appeal is to be allowed either party. In case the decision should be in favor of the employe, he shall be awarded straight time for the interim between the time he was discharged by the foreman and the time he was reinstated by the joint standing committee.'

"The controversy which has arisen is as follows:

"Where a member has been discharged by the foreman and feeling himself aggrieved, has appealed to the chapel and the chapel decides against him and in favor of the foreman's order of discharge, can the member take the matter before the joint standing committee for further ruling?

"In the interpretation of this contract, as in every case, we must first look to the language employed to ascertain the meaning of the contract and from that determine the intent of the parties.

"If the language employed is clear and definite, that alone must determine the matter.

"If the language is ambiguous, then the circumstances of the parties and the conditions under which the contract was made may be considered in determining the meaning and intent of the parties.

"Following are some of the cardinal principles laid down by the courts in interpreting contracts:

" 'The intention of the parties is to be deduced from the language employed by them, and the terms of the contract, where unambiguous, are conclusive, in the absence of averment and proof of mistake, the question being, not what intention existed in the mind of the parties, but what intention is expressed by the language used. When a written contract is clear and unequivocal, its meaning must be determined by its contents alone and a meaning cannot be given it other than that expressed. Hence words cannot be read into a contract which import an intent wholly unexpressed when the contract was executed. Where the contract evidences care in its preparation, it will be presumed that its words are employed deliberately and with intention.

" 'It is not the province of the court to alter a contract by construction or to make a new contract for the parties; its duty is confined to the interpretation of the one which they have made for themselves without regard to its wisdom or folly, as the court cannot supply material stipulations or read into the contract words which it does not contain.

" 'Whenever parties themselves define the limits of their rights and obligations, the compact controls and there is no room for the application of a legal theory to the contrary.'

"It will thus be observed that we may not read into this contract, words or phrases conferring rights or denying privileges which the language employed does not contain, upon the theory that some other or further rights or privileges were in the contemplation of the parties.

"From the reading of Section 35, of the agreement, it seems to me quite plain that only one contingency is provided for under which the controversy may be placed before the joint standing committee for decision.

"This is; Where the discharged member feels aggrieved and appeals to the chapel and the chapel votes to reinstate and the foreman refuses to accept the chapel's decision.

"This appeal to the joint standing committee is not for the foreman alone, but is the right of the member whenever the chapel votes to reinstate and the foreman refuses to comply.

"By section 34, of the agreement it is provided that: 'Upon demand the foreman shall give the reason for discharge, in writing.'

"This writing, with proper proof, may be placed before the chapel upon the member's appeal thereto. This is the remedy provided for the discharged member and seems to be the only remedy unless the chapel votes to reinstate and the foreman refuses to comply with the chapel's decision, when he may bring the matter before the joint standing committee.

"To give the member the right, under the agreement to bring his controversy with the foreman before the joint standing committee when the chapel decides against him and in favor of the foreman, it would be necessary to read into the agreement words providing for such appeal to the joint standing committee, not contained therein and which the language employed in the agreement does not seem to justify.

"The remedy provided the member may not be, as argued, entirely adequate, but it is that which the parties have provided and should stand until modified by mutual agreement.

"Where a contract in language clear and direct gives a suitable remedy, though an inadequate one, a construction based upon a supposed intention of the contracting parties, to give a more effectual remedy would be unwarranted.

"I, therefore, conclude that where a discharged member, feeling aggrieved appeals to the chapel and the chapel votes to sustain the foreman's order of discharge and against the member's right of reinstatement, this ends the matter and the controversy cannot be taken by the member before the joint standing committee for further decision."

PLANS TEXAS DAILY

Charles C. Woodson of Quanah, Tex., is moving a plant to Palestine to establish a daily paper in the latter city.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING FOR YOUR RELIGIOUS READERS?

A TALE OF THE DAYS OF CHRIST

Laila

by JOHN NEWPORT

It is a stirring story of adventure, reverently told. Its characters live and breathe and love and hate, and in the background gradually appears, shining with increasing brightness, the light that was kindled in a manger of Bethlehem. A story written especially for newspaper publication, written to reach your regular fiction readers, yet intended for the tremendous population of church-goers of every sect.

Superbly illustrated from start to finish.

Mats and Promotion Material

Immediate Release

Eugene Maclean

827 Folsom Street San Francisco

"Laila listened, quivering, her own face tinged with the glow that came from above"

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

6½ pt. Ionic No. 5

COMBINES WORD COUNT AND LEGIBILITY

WORD COUNT of 6 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

Mr. MacPherson also noted that the welfare facilities offered by the American plant were much more elaborate than in England and that equipment and quarters were more beneficial. This was evidently the result, he observed, of the frequent scrapping of plants here to make way for expansion and development. His countrymen are

6 Point No. 2 with Bold Face No. 1.
Set on 7 point slug

LEGIBILITY
6½ Point Ionic No. 5 with Bold Face No. 2.
Set on 7 point slug

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

Mr. MacPherson also noted that the welfare facilities offered by the American plant were much more elaborate than in England and that equipment and quarters were more beneficial. This was evidently the result, he observed, of the frequent scrapping of plants here to make way for expansion and development. His countrymen are loath, he said, to tear down a building that has

LEGIBILITY
8 Point No. 2 with Bold Face No. 1.
Set solid

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They were curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Composed on the Linotype, display in Cloister Bold except for enlarged title line

330.25.6-F.

EDITORIAL

MELLETT'S MARTYRDOM

A NOBLE, red-blooded, young American newspaper man, public-spirited to his finger-tips, is a savage assassin's sacrifice to bring to public attention the triumph of a lawless element over an incompetent or corrupt local government. The burning fact, however, is that the conditions revealed at Canton are not peculiarly local to it, but are shamefully common to many cities and towns.

If there has been any doubt of official winking, blinking and occasional active participation in the bootlegging traffic and associated evils, and if simple-minded people have regarded this as something beyond control, the martyrdom of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton (O.) Daily News, comes as a ringing challenge to the nation.

Canton is a city of 100,000 population, in recent years developing an important iron industry which has absorbed into an hitherto typical American community 18 foreign born residents for every 100 Americans. To one who, years ago, reported the celebrated "door-yard" presidential campaign of William McKinley, and to this day associates with Canton memories of quiet streets arched by elms and fringed by the homes of self-respecting, law-abiding families, reference in the news despatches to the "Canton Jungle" shocks the senses. It seems inconceivable that in such a setting, ornament to Ohio and the nation, slums of vice, crime and debauchery could grow, fester and expand until their poison has contaminated the very heart of the municipality.

The hideous revelation plainly is that cynical political corruption, in combination with a criminal minority, has held the good citizenship of Canton in terror. Don R. Mellett and his newspaper associates heroically fought the malignancy of municipal corruption, a protected underworld and a cowed or apathetic public. They defied or ignored threats of violent revenge. Don Mellett's course shows his courage was inspired by the finest journalistic ethics. He believed in and practiced the rule, though it cost him his life, that a newspaper's first duty is to tell its readers what they have a right to know concerning the conduct of their government. For this the man was brutally abused by public officials who normally should have welcomed his aid and valued his civic spirit. Finally, he fell, victim of an assassin that crept upon him from behind, in the shadow of his home.

The news facts, broadcast to the nation, have stirred the blood of newspaper men and honest public officials as no incident of recent times. The pathetic fact has this week been broadly written that this fine young journalist had to die, leaving a sorrowing family, in order that drowsy public opinion might be aroused to an obvious peril.

How weak, vaporing, puerile the recent protests against the publication of the news of vice and crime appear in the light of this tragedy! The exponents of "crimeless newspapers" would have had Don Mellett hold his peace concerning his town's jungle. They would have been willing blindly to trust public officials to do their duty, but Mellett demonstrated that public officials may be viciously corrupt. This is not uncommon newspaper experience. Hundreds of editors are printing the news of crime, not for sensation, but because their revelations are the sole means of protecting their communities from orgies of lawlessness.

Nothing that has come to our notice in the Mellett case has so stirred our indignation as a statement, appearing in a New York Times' despatch on Wednesday, quoting Canton's Chief of Police, one Lengel, as having said to reporters that Don Mellett's crusade was "insincere" and asserting that his "real motive was to increase the circulation of his newspaper." That slant-eyed view of Don Mellett's public service and complete sacrifice does more to convince us that Mellett's crusade was a public necessity and his assaults upon Lengel were well justified than anything that Mellett ever printed. It measures Lengel. If public opinion in Canton does not quickly retire this cynical official from his position of power all we can say is that Canton deserves the ugly reputation that it is now getting.

The capture of the assassin is a police job, spurred by indignant public opinion expressed through the press. The demand is so hot that even indifferent or grafting police departments may bestir themselves. Surely there are efficient and honest public officials in Ohio to demand that the job be thoroughly done. Substantial rewards will aid the cause and we honor those who are offering them. We hope the cowardly hand that killed Don Mellett will pay the price. But the big thing, now that the fighting publisher is gone beyond recall, is to support his great cause and effect his crusade. It is our hope and belief that the newspaper press will not let up on the Canton political situation until city jungles are mere bad memories and political grafters wear stripes.

They that go down to the sea in ships, that do business in great waters;
These see the works of the Lord, and his wonders in the deep.—Psalms; CVII, 23, 24.

An EDITOR & PUBLISHER reader in Ohio this week suggested that there should be an organized resistance by newspaper men against the occasional ugly assaults upon individual members of the craft. He had in mind the Magee case in New Mexico, the contempt of court outrage against George R. Dale, in Muncie, Ind., and the Mellett tragedy. "It seems to me that the papers should unite in creating a fund for the prosecution of such cases, so that notice will be given that assaults upon newspaper men, or upon their constitutional rights, will be relentlessly prosecuted," he wrote. Other similar suggestions came during the week from other sources. Our Ohio correspondent evidently had in mind some organization akin to the Civil Liberties' Union, which valiantly fights many free speech cases in the country. The idea is good, but we doubt if such organization is demanded by the present situation. There is, for instance, no lack of support in the Mellett case. The Scripps-Howard organization aided Magee to win a complete victory over official brutality. We have faith that the case of Editor Dale will reach the U. S. Supreme Court, where it belongs. Governor James M. Cox's statement in EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week shows his disposition to fight Mellett's case to the finish. If newspaper men desire to create a defense organization, and raise an appropriate fund, EDITOR & PUBLISHER offers its good offices.

The crusading spirit has not gone out of the American press, all statements to the contrary notwithstanding. Editors are on duty for their communities everywhere, fighting the old fight with the old sharp weapons. The job requires as much courage as it ever did and much higher skill. The sacrifices continue great; the rewards are ever in finer coin. Life's complexities are vastly intensified in this generation. Greed is the stalking monster of the age and disrespect for law and contempt of individual rights are among its scabby progeny. Good citizens often make the editor's work more difficult by attitudes of servility, indifference or cowardice. The prudish notion that a rotten social condition must be hushed up to preserve an undeserved "good name" is a leading obstacle.

Don Mellett heroically met his public and professional responsibilities. His name is graven deep in journalism's hall of fame. His gift to his city will in some future day be regarded at its true worth. His life will inspire a thousand needed reforms by newspapermen. One does not know how far such influences may reach. The sorrowing family may find consolation in the fact that a life devoted to such high purpose is not lost in death.

Good newspapers tell how both halves live.

FRAUDULENT ADVERTISING

FEDERAL Trade Commissioner William E. Humphrey's proposal that publishers be held "equally responsible" with advertisers for fraudulent paid announcements appearing in their columns, raises many old questions. Mr. Humphrey, according to an Associated Press dispatch, says that newspapers carry very little fraudulent advertising. A Federal Trade Commission complaint has been filed against a magazine as party to a case against an alleged fraudulent advertiser.

If there were no machinery for the control of fraudulent advertising, and if publishers were not vigilant to protect their readers against fraud, Mr. Humphrey's suggestions would be important. Newspapers are solidly committed to the proposition that, insofar as is humanly possible, frauds must be detected and barred from print. The financial sacrifices that are gladly made on this score run to a stupendous figure. We know of one newspaper that rules out more than a million dollars' worth of questionable advertising annually. The advertising and publishing interests of the United States support in the Better Business Bureaus an organized system of vigilance for protection of the public. The postal regulations are strict and usually efficient. Certainly they have the united approval of the newspapers.

Fraudulent advertising does "get through," but we challenge the statement that there is conscious publisher participation, except in rare instances. Aside from all questions of righteousness, publishers do not play with this fire for business reasons. Newspaper good-will is the major asset.

Mr. Humphrey would set a bad precedent and tangle publishers in an endless web of investigation of advertised claims. Some newspapers have tried to censor every advertisement by expert means, but the plan has been impracticable. The rule of common sense has been found to be the better method of controlling fraudulent advertising. Some newspapers follow the plan of fiscal agents and give printed notice in every issue that while advertisers' claims are believed, their accuracy is not guaranteed. This is not a bad plan and may act as a protection for blind buyers. The average publisher assumes that the public is discriminating and able to protect itself before investing.

Where to draw the line between questionable and warranted advertising is a problem in every newspaper office. If Edison, Ford, Marconi or Dr. Banting had, in the early stages of their great contributions to society, been prevented from making advertising claims which taxed ordinary credence, an injustice would have been done to them. On this ground publishers are disposed to be liberal in their censorship. Sometimes they guess wrong, but to hold them "equally responsible" with the conscious instigator of a fraud would be harsh injustice.

Dictators now control Italy, Spain, Greece, Turkey, Portugal, Poland, and several amateurs are operating with more or less success in Central and South America, and the first blow each has struck has been at the principle of free press.

ADMITTING WEAKNESS

IN a communication transmitted through the Legation at Washington the provisional president of Equador recently informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER of his government's attitude toward the press of that country. It will be recalled that this dictator recently suppressed a local newspaper, the El Guante, and that his high-handed action called out a protest from the Press Congress of the World.

The provisional president's view of the matter is a curious exhibit. He "respects the freedom of the serious, honorable, patriotic and sincere press," although it may oppose him, he says, but El Guante, carried on a "bold, obstinate campaign against national unity and the fundamental organization of the Republic" and was therefore unpatriotic and insincere and as a "moral" measure the government closed its plant.

The obvious reply is that the provisional president of Equador may consider his government a good one, but it was not good enough to withstand the opposition of a "bold and obstinate" newspaper editor.

PERSONAL

HOWARD DAVIS, business manager of the New York Herald Tribune returned this week from a trip abroad.

Major Oldham Paisley, managing editor of the Marion (Ill.) Daily Republican, is spending six weeks at Jefferson Barracks, Mo., handling publicity for the Citizens Military Training Camp. Major Paisley went overseas with the 86th Division and after the armistice was assigned to G. H. Q. at Chaumont to handle medal citations until he returned home.

James H. Skewes, publisher of the Meridian (Miss.) Star, was taken suddenly ill last week while visiting relatives at Racine, Wis., and was forced to undergo an operation.

John K. R. Schropp, vice-president of the Lebanon (Pa.) News, fractured a leg while entering his automobile recently.

James B. Haskins, editor and publisher of the Howard City (Mich.) Record, is publicity director this year for the Michigan State Fair which will be held at Detroit in September. He was formerly field director of the Michigan Press Association.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

JOHN C. CAHILL, first business manager of the Halifax (N. S.) Herald, is visiting in Halifax after an absence of 42 years. He now lives in Pasadena.

William S. Cady, manager of national advertising for the Cleveland Press, is spending his vacation with Mrs. Cady in Wichita, Kan., with his brother, King Cady, of the Wichita Beacon.

Frank Clancy, former circulation manager of the Buffalo Express, and now secretary of the new Courier & Express publishing company, is directing business promotion for the merged dailies.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

ROBERT BURNS MANTLE, dramatic critic of the New York Daily News, spent last week visiting relatives in Denver, his "old home town."

L. U. Spehr, city hall reporter, has been made city editor of the St. Paul Dispatch succeeding L. L. Perrin, resigned.

Fanny Fern Fitzwater, fashion artist, New York Herald Tribune, who has been in this country for a short vacation, returns to France July 24 on the "Paris."

John A. Lloyd has been made managing editor of the Portsmouth (O.) Sun.

Floyd Maxwell, moving picture editor, Portland Oregonian, has resigned to become director of public relations for the American Theaters Corporation. He is succeeded by Marc Bowman.

Frank R. Kent, political writer for the Baltimore Sun, was in Richmond recently gathering material for articles on Virginia he is to write shortly in his series the Sun is now publishing on the Southern States.

Forrest Lowry who was joint city editor of The Salt Lake City Tribune with William T. Igleheart, recently appointed private secretary to Gov. George H. Dern, has become city editor. He will be assisted by N. L. Wilson who has had the State Capitol run.

B. A. Butler, for several months publicity director and assistant secretary of the Amarillo (Tex.) Chamber of Commerce has resumed his former work as editor of the Breckenridge (Tex.) Daily American.

Robert W. Madry, director of the University of North Carolina news bureau, left last week for New York, where he sailed for Paris. He will spend the remainder of the summer on the reportorial staff of the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune.

Albert Goodyear of Milwaukee has joined the staff of the Des Moines Evening Tribune as assignment reporter.

W. G. Hale, associate managing editor of the Des Moines Evening Tribune who has been on a four months leave of absence will return to his duties about Aug. 1.

Fred L. W. Bennett, commercial writer and Salt Lake City correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER for several years, is a member of the Salt Lake Tabernacle Choir which leaves this week on a concert tour of the Pacific Coast. Mrs. Bennett is also a member of the Choir and she will also make the trip.

Roy J. Dunlap, assistant managing editor, and Jack Hammond, financial editor, St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press, are visiting in New York and Washington.

Pete Wheeler, formerly of the copy desk of the Milwaukee Sentinel, is now on the copy desk of the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger.

E. J. Collins, rewrite man on the Jersey Journal, Jersey City, N. J., has had a physical breakdown and is under medical care at his home, Branford, Conn.

Walter Wyrick, formerly makeup editor of the Milwaukee Journal, has been assigned to the New York bureau, succeeding Phil Stitt, resigned. E. P. Schwartz, assistant Sunday editor, has been made makeup editor.

Mark E. Peterson of the editorial department Salt Lake City Deseret News and Mrs. Peterson are parents of a daughter.

Allen Collins has resigned from the staff of the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger to join the Ladies' Home Journal.

HOLDING NEW POSTS

TULLY A. NETTLETON, from city editor, Norman (Okla.) Transcript, to staff, Christian Science Monitor, Boston.

Padraic King, from Boston Telegram to Boston Post as feature writer.

Albert Newberry, from Baltimore American, to staff, Hagerstown Evening Globe.

Ray H. Pfau, from police reporter, Indianapolis (Ind.) Star, to convention bureau, Milwaukee (Wis.) Association of Commerce.

Richard Rauth, from Hagerstown (Md.) Globe, to Hagerstown Daily Mail.

MARRIED

P. MONTGOMERY BARRETT, assistant to the managing editor, San Antonio Light, to Miss Mary Helen Caruth, assistant society editor, San Antonio Express.

Ralph S. Carpenter, editorial staff, Des Moines (Ia.) Capital, to Miss Gladys Pinney.

Louis W. Guenther, formerly of the Los Angeles Examiner and now of the Orange bureau of the Newark (N. J.) Evening News, to Miss Marville V. McKenzie, July 21, in New York. Miss McKenzie is a member of the business staff of the News.

Thomas H. Dinneny, formerly telegraph editor of the Providence Journal, and publicity director of the National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, New England branch, to Senorita Cecelia Meisel, of Ocana, Colombia, South America, at Kingston, Jamaica.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

ONE of the most popular columns in the Des Moines (Ia.) Register and Tribune, is conducted by Gordon Lathrop, who is blind. For years Mr. Lathrop has lived behind the curtains of darkness, yet he sees and feels with uncanny clearness the realness of life and its many colorful situations.

GORDON LATHROP

His column is called "Etherwise and Otherwise." Radio topics and general subjects are treated in humorous vein, and Lathrop's ideas are given in language everyone understands.

Mr. Lathrop is also an active reporter and fills pages with feature material about unusual broadcasting stations and their announcers. He travels to different stations with his typewriter, and returns to his paper with stories of amusing incidents his feeling eyes never fail to see.

At 12, Mr. Lathrop learned telegraphy and worked for railroads, the Associated Press, the International News Service and for a produce house. He had the wanderlust and followed the lure of it into the west. He came back east as secretary to a Congressman, was later supervisor of an automatic telegraph instrument, a salesman, moving picture cameraman's helper and author of humorous book and of many song lyrics.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

W. A. DILL, publicity director and professor of journalism at the University of Kansas, is working as relief man for the Associated Press at Kansas City, Mo.

Marquis W. Childs, head of the United Press St. Louis bureau and Miss Lue Prentiss of Iowa City, Ia., have become engaged. They will be married Aug. 26 in Trinity Episcopal Church, Iowa City.

Good News is Contagious

Some day one of your neighbors will tell you about Central Press.

Then we'll have another client. We have OVER FOUR HUNDRED NOW

Have you seen recent proofs of the service?

Try writing or wiring us today.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

METROPOLITAN NEWSPAPER SERVICE

150 Nassau Street New York City

Announces

THE ELLA CINDERS COLORED COMIC PAGE

By Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb

STARTING SEPT. 19

The ELLA CINDERS COMIC STRIP is already running in 87 newspapers

WITH THE SPECIALS

ASBURY PARK (N. J.) PRESS has appointed Howland & Howland to represent it in the national advertising field, effective Aug. 1.

The Chicago office of Frost, Landis & Kohn will move Aug. 1 from the People's Gas Building to the Jewelers' Building, 35 East Wacker drive.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

H. E. (JACK) SIMPSON, for 36 years foreman of the Galveston News stereotyping department, has retired. He plans an automobile vacation trip to the Northwest.

Earl Britton, composing room foreman of the Columbia (S. C.) Record, inspected the plant of the Philadelphia Public Ledger on a recent visit to the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

RUSHVILLE (N. Y.) COMMUNITY LEADER is completing negotiations for property on which it will erect a new building.

Salamanca (N. Y.) Republican Press is installing a new Duplex press in its new building.

Hoquiam (Wash.) Washingtonian will soon finish moving into its new quarters.

Tulsa World has purchased an X-Pattern Octuple press from R. Hoe & Co., Inc.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

FRANKLIN (Ind.) STAR, 16-page Trade Extension edition, July 14.

ASSOCIATIONS

THE 30th annual meeting of the AMERICAN PHOTO ENGRAVERS ASSOCIATION opened in Detroit on Thursday, July 22.

SEATTLE ADVERTISING CLUB boasts the distinction of having the largest number of silver cups of any advertising club on the Pacific Coast, won in competition with all other clubs at the recent advertising meeting in San Francisco. The most prized of them all is the Stunt's Night trophy, awarded for a sketch best showing the value of advertising.

Theodore Sewell, retiring president of the TOLEDO (Ohio) ADVERTISING CLUB was presented with a wrist watch by the members at the weekly luncheon at the Chamber of Commerce.

The CANADIAN WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB met in Toronto, Ontario, recently guests of the Toronto Branch of the C. W. P. C. One hundred and forty-two members, representative of the provinces of Canada, out of 365 members were present. Miss May S. Clendenan of the Farmer's Advocate, London, Ont., was elected president succeeding Miss Kenneth Haig of the Winnipeg Free Press.

The sixth annual convention of the TRI-STATE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION at the Hotel Martin in Sioux City, Sept. 23-25, in conjunction with the Interstate Fair is expected to attract 125 editors and publishers of Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota. Clarence Johnson, publisher of the Danbury (Ia.) Review, is president and J. P. O'Furey, publisher of the Cedar County News, Hartington, Neb., secretary.

The annual summer meeting of the WASHINGTON PRESS ASSOCIATION will be held August 20 and 21 at the Hotel Davenport, Spokane, Wash.

Members of the INTERNATIONAL CLUBS OF PRINTING HOUSE CRAFTSMEN will gather in Philadelphia from all parts of the United States and Canada for the annual convention for July 24-30.

According to W. R. Morehouse, chairman of the Better Business Bureau of the ADVERTISING CLUB OF LOS ANGELES, a report covering the activities of the bureau for the 10 months period from July 1 to May 1, shows that 2,212 investigations of suspected false advertising were made.

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Newspaper Woman Responsible for New Prison Building in Oklahoma—Edith Whitlock is Secretary of Agency Handling Listerine Account—Advertising League to Establish Two Scholarships

A NEW women's prison was opened a few days ago in Oklahoma. Behind the opening is the story of a newspaper woman, Dorothy Dayton Jones, now a member of the New York Sun's editorial staff.

DOROTHY DAYTON JONES

While on the staff of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman, Mrs. Jones to report the truth in stories of inadequate housing conditions for women prisoners lived in the penitentiary for two weeks, without favors, as "Dolly Smith, shoplifter."

She was put into a ward with about sixty prisoners, of whom about half were negresses. There were murderesses, narcotic dealers and addicts, thieves and other types of criminals herded together in a common runway and living under the law of every one for herself.

Twenty wall bunks in a crowded ward accomodated twenty of the women, including the "shoplifter." Matrons were not within calling distance and there was no night supervision. Sleep was interrupted by the foul and maudlin drug addicts who wandered about in agony from enforced abstinence.

Quarrels and fights broke the daily tedium. Windows were smashed and floors were flooded in some of the outbreaks. Negro women held the balance of power and exercised it over the whites.

The revelations of the newspaper woman little more than a year ago brought action by the State and resulted in the erection of a new prison building.

Edith Whitlock is secretary of Lambert & Feasley, New York advertising agency, that handles the famous Listerine account of the Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo.

"We don't discuss the Listerine advertising we place," Miss Whitlock said. "We let results speak for themselves."

Miss Whitlock has complete charge of the Listerine advertising, writing most of the copy. She became secretary of Lambert & Feasley when the agency was first started in New York four years ago. Prior to that she had 11½ years experience with Williams & Cunnyngham, Chicago agency.

The question of helping young women who are coming into the advertising profession has always been one close to the hearts of members of the League of Advertising Women of New York.

This year it was decided to devote a share of the profits of the one social event of the year to the establishment of two advertising scholarships in loving memory of two prominent members—Helen Louise Johnson and May S. Thayer. The club has set aside a sinking fund of $500.00 which will be augmented by contributions from members.

At a recent meeting of the League at which the scholarships were discussed, the question was asked "How many members would have welcomed this assistance when they were starting out in their chosen careers"—promptly without a moment's hesitation every member present raised her hand. The two successful candidates for the scholarships will have the wholehearted and interested support of the entire membership, which should prove an inspiration.

The Scholarship Committee hopes to be able to announce in a few days complete details regarding the filing of written applications and date of oral examinations. These are being worked out in conjunction with Prof. Hotchkiss and Prof. Badger of New York University. The committee will be increased by three prominent men in the advertising profession to act as Judges.

The League of Advertising Women is the largest women's advertising club in the International Advertising Association.

Mrs. C. A. Robertson, classified advertising manager, Berkeley (Cal.) Gazette, was awarded the trophy for the best address delivered at the classified advertising departmental, Pacific Coast Advertising Clubs' twenty-third Convention, San Francisco, last week. Her subject was "Women in Classified." Mrs. Robertson maintains an all feminine sales organization which succeeds in selling an average of two pages a day under the very noses of the metropolitan press. She is scheduled to repeat her talk before the Oakland Advertising Club.

Florence F. Rowles, recently advertising manager of the L. R. Brown Company, St. Paul, Minn., wholesale milliner, has joined the staff of the Harrison-Guthrie Agency, Minneapolis.

Miss Marguerite L. Sitgreaves, proprietor of Sitgreaves Advertising, Star Building, Washington, D. C., has left on a vacation trip to the Pacific Coast, Canada and the Great Lakes, to be gone more than a month. Miss Sitgreaves also is secretary of the local Advertising Club.

Miss Mary McKinney, former Oklahoma newspaper woman, has been added to the reportorial staff of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch.

7TH DISTRICT MEET OCT. 10

Advertising men from five states wil assemble in Tulsa, Okla., Oct. 10 and 1 for the annual meeting of the Seventh District, International Advertising Association. Tulsa Advertising men al ready are preparing for the convention States in the district include, Oklahoma Kansas, Louisiana, Arkansas and Texas

FLASHES

Next year's commercial census will lis the primaries as one of Pennsylvania' most profitable industries.—New Yor Herald Tribune.

America is the only country righteou enough to hire agents to keep it righteou in spite of all it can do.—Washingto Post.

Anyway, Abd-El-Krim proved that h had something in his abd-o-men.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

"One of these days," observes an e change, "America will control the rubb supply." And suppose it does? Will be any more comforting to reflect th the sand-bagging is an inside job?—Ph adelphia Inquirer.

Why we're not raising our boy to be proofreader: Hamaguchi, Moscicki, Wo ciechowski, Kyoshiro, Inouye, Wakatsu and Zaghlul Pasha.—John R. Wolf Milwaukee Journal.

For a month or two, owing to t headline writers, the Exposition will referred to by most of us as the Sesq But before long it will be Ses Gets F Jam.—F. P. A. in New York World.

The wages of sin are not yet regulat by any union scale.—Toledo Times.

The next diplomat to be picked mi very well be the editor who advised readers the other day that their poe was entirely too valuable to waste on columns.—Kingston (Ont.) Standard.

Electric frost alarms were used in C fornia orange groves last winter. T should also be sounded before so vaudeville acts come on.—Florence (Al Herald.

Judging from the revelations follow Pennsylvania's senatorial campaign name of that state ought to be chan to Dollarvania.—John R. Wolf in waukee Journal.

Detroit

Fourth Largest City

Complete coverage with one paper.

The Detroit News

Offers advertisers unusual opportunities

These 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers offer uniform cooperation in every section of the state. You may deal with this group as with one publication, if you wish.

Average wealth of Iowa people is $4146

The taxable wealth for every man, woman and child in Iowa is $4,146, according to the latest financial report of the U. S. Bureau of Census. The average for the entire nation is $2,731.

By any test, this market is one of the most desirable that you can cover.

Distribution facilities are excellent. No point in Iowa is more than 12 miles from a railroad.

Because Iowa is the foremost agricultural state, we are likely to lose sight of her industrial wealth.

The output of her 3,420 factories in 1925 was estimated at $775,000,000—more than her total field production. Iowa has the country's largest factories in the following lines: Cereals, washing machines, baskets, buttons, butter, calendars, steel furnaces, stump pullers, wall plaster, crackers and macaroni.

The cement, brick and tile and meat packing industries are among the important ones in Iowa.

About 41% of Iowa's people live on farms, the other 59% in towns and cities.

But no matter where they live, they are alike in at least one respect: they read their daily papers every day.

The ideal way to reach these excellent prospects is with the 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers of this association.

Our "Iowa plan" gives you real help in gaining proper distribution. Rates and full information upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Sylvestre Dorian Named European Director of Cosmos—Davis Goes Abroad for Science Service—Merryle Rukeyser to Write for Current News

SYLVESTRE DORIAN, who has been for several years on the staff of the Detroit Free Press, has sailed for Paris on the "France," to become European director of the Cosmos Newspaper Syndicate.

"I have been searching the country over for someone who was a trained newspaper man and, at the same time, thoroughly familiar with France," said Herbert S. Houston, president of the syndicate. "By a piece of good fortune I was brought in touch with Mr. Dorian by the Sunday editor of the Free Press, Miss Mary Humphrey. Dorian, I found, had been educated in Paris and at Oxford and then had been for several years on the staff of the Free Press. He is equipped, not only through his knowledge of the language but through his wide knowledge of French literature and French affairs, for the post that we have asked him to fill."

Mr. Houston announced that a feature his firm would offer to newspapers this fall would be fashion articles by the Paris couturiers, interpreting their creations.

To report leading scientific meetings in Europe this summer and to visit European correspondents and affiliated organizations in England and France, Watson Davis, managing editor of Science Service, sailed for Europe on July 17. A French Science Service under the name of Office d'Information Scientifique et Technique has been established and plans will be made for a closer co-operation between the two organizations.

Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, who recently resigned as financial editor of the New York Evening Journal, is travelling through Europe, studying financial and economic conditions. While abroad, he is writing for national magazines. On his return, he will write daily financial features, for Current News Features, Inc., of Washington, D. C., of which David Lawrence is president. Mr. Rukeyser will also continue as a member of the faculty of the School of Journalism, Columbia University, where he is in charge of two courses in financial writing. Rukeyser, who is accompanied by his mother, will return on the S. S. "Hamburg" Aug. 24.

The New York Herald Tribune feature "On the Radio" by "Pioneer," now carries the name of the author—Stuart Hawkins.

A complete study of the history of the two-thirds rule and the unit rule, governing the voting of delegates in political conventions, has been made by Richard Boeckel of Editorial Research Reports.

Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., has obtained the Honeymoon Diary of "Peaches" Browning. The series consists of twelve installments of 1,000 words each, accompanied by posed pictures.

William K. Ziegfeld, Jr., for the past two years manager of the Life Newspaper Syndicate, New York, has joined Grace & Holliday, Detroit, advertising agency. No successor to Mr. Ziegfeld has been appointed by the Syndicate and its features are now being sold through the Bell Syndicate.

George McManus creator of "Bringing Up Father," left Thursday on a transcontinental trip to attend the annual gala encampment of San Francisco's famous Bohemian Club late this month. Mr. McManus made a brief stop in Chicago and is scheduled to make a stop-over in Salt Lake City.

Mlle. Marceline d'Alroy, author of "You Said It, Marceline!" and lecturer on women's styles, sailed Saturday on the Paris for France. She will be abroad until October. Her work is handled by the Premier Syndicate, New York. After Aug. 2 "You Said It, Marceline" will be available with "flapper" illustrations by Virginia Huget.

Because of the thousands of letters recently received from readers, by Ella Cinders, heroine of the comic strip by Bill Conselman and Charlie Plumb, on the subject of her forthcoming marriage to "Sidney Smoothe," the Metropolitan Newspaper Service has modified its earlier request to subscribing papers, asking them hereafter to send on the tabulation only of further letters, instead of the letters themselves. Symposiums were conducted by newspapers in many cities, and in addition to letters of counsel on both sides of the question from individuals, the responses included telegrams, round-robins, and a proposal of marriage to Ella Cinders.

Jay N. Darling, ("Ding") cartoonist for the New York Herald Tribune, has recovered from an attack of summer influenza and has resumed drawing his daily pictures. "Ding," it is expected, will be able to return to his office in the Des Moines Register-Tribune building within a few days. At present he is doing his sketching at home. Mr. Darling's illness was not of a serious nature but was sufficiently annoying to prevent him from doing his daily sketch for a few days.

LATHAN RE-ELECTED

South Carolinians in Summer Meeting Tour Own State

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

COLUMBIA, S. C., July 22.—A decision to hold a mid-Winter business meeting, to take the form of a newspaper institute in Columbia, was the feature of the 15th annual meeting of the South Carolina Press Association, held July 13 to 16.

It is planned to bring noted newspaper men here for the institute to discuss various practical phases of making a newspaper. Carrying out its policy of "seeing South Carolina" the association met in Darlington the night of July 13 and on the following day made a 140-mile tour of the Great Peedee section of the state, arriving at night at Myrtle Beach where the business sessions were held. The association was most hospitably entertained by the people of the Peedee.

The business session this year was featured by the number and excellence of papers read by members of the association and the discussions which followed them. These papers and discussions involved the practical part of making newspapers and also the agricultural and political conditions in South Carolina at this time.

Robert Latham, editor of the Charleston (S. C.) News and Courier, was re-elected president and all other officers were reelected as follows: B. H. Peace, Greenville News, first vice-president; W. W. Harris, Clinton Chronicle, second vice-president; Harold C. Booker, Columbia, secretary; August Kohn, Columbia treasurer; W. W. Smoak, Walterboro Press and Standard, J. L. Mims, Edgefield Chronicle, E. H. Aull, Newberry Herald and News; C. O. Hearon Spartanburg Herald, J. W. Hamel, Kershaw Era, A. B. Jordam, Dillon Herald, and S. L. Latimer, Jr., The State, Columbia, Executive Committee.

A. W. Huckle, of Rock Hill Herald, commended EDITOR & PUBLISHER for its fight on the space grafters.

HOUSTON DOMINANCE IN DRUG LINEAGE

—As audited by DeLisser Bros. THE HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH GAINED 28,716 LINES in this Classification during the first five months of 1926. The Houston Chronicle lost 5,718 LINES.

—Every retail druggist in Houston who advertises uses the HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH. Not one of them now use the other leading paper.

—In 1925 we carried 93,120 lines of retail drug store advertising. The Chronicle carried 29,226 lines. To June first this year, we carried 64,727 lines—the Chronicle 8,319=For us this was a GAIN of 28,716 lines—for the Chronicle a LOSS of 5,716 lines.

—AND THAT MEANS ABSOLUTE DOMINANCE IN THE RETAIL DRUG TRADE OF HOUSTON.

Electrical and Radio Lineage, Year 1925

Post-Dispatch 252,270
Chronicle 121,086

FIRST 5 MONTHS, 1926

Post-Dispatch 124,372
Chronicle 64,749

GAINS OR LOSSES

For First 5 Months of 1926 over same period of 1925

The Post-Dispatch GAINED 78,940 lines; The Chronicle GAINED 31,980 lines.

Department Store Lineage, Year 1925

Post-Dispatch 1,322,736
Chronicle 2,855,692

FIRST 5 MONTHS, 1926

Post-Dispatch 727,919
Chronicle 1,095,107

GAINS OR LOSSES

For First 5 Months of 1926 over same period of 1925

The Post-Dispatch GAINED 182,227 lines; The Chronicle LOST 102,278 lines!

THE FASTEST GROWING NEWSPAPER IN TEXAS!

Houston Post-Dispatch

Owners and operators of Radio Station KPRC

R. S. STERLING, Chairman of Board — W. P. HOBBY, President
C. C. MAES, General Manager
R. J. MEEKER, National Advertising Manager

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

National Representatives

New York — Kansas City — Detroit — Los Angeles
Chicago — St. Louis — Atlanta — San Francisco

NO STANDARDIZED INTERTYPE HAS EVER BECOME OBSOLETE

The Intertype "Mixer"

Reduces the Cost of Setting Ads

Saves time! No waiting for the Distributor!

The Intertype "Mixer"

Watch your ad man as he changes from one size or face of type to another. Notice how he sits back and waits while the distributor puts away the last line set.

Wasted labor! Wasted machine time! Wasted overhead!

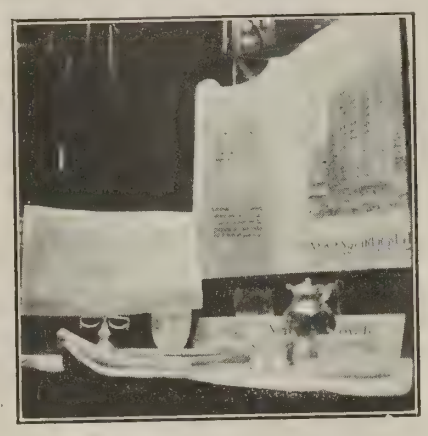
With the Intertype "Mixer" the operator sets one size or face right after another. The first line may be 5½-point and the next one 36-point. No waiting! The automatic distributor takes care of anything — without mechanical complications! Quick changes: time saved!

And the Intertype "Mixer" is STANDARDIZED — which means protection against obsolescence.

Write for Intertype literature. If you wish to see our local representative, please so state.

Standardized INTERTYPE TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION, 1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK



CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES TORONTO LONDON

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Making Use of Windows for Reader-Getting Display—Close Tie-Up with Schools in Rochester—Reporting Contest Conducted by Wakefield (Mass.) Daily Item—Analyzing Bobs in Milwaukee

MANY newspapers have front windows which are allowed to get dusty and flyspecked, or if kept clean, simply permit passers-by to see the head of the auditor as he bends over the ledger or a stenographer at work.

And yet these same windows can be, and in many cases are, effectively used to attract new readers, new advertisers, and to build good will.

A Cincinnati Enquirer window

It didn't, of course, require any great amount of originality for the New York Times to perceive the enormous value of the window space it owns in the Times Building overlooking Broadway and Seventh avenue in the very heart of the theatre district. Eight years ago, the Times began to make use of this form of promotion. But the method of handling window display by the Times has undergone considerable improvement in the last two years. Now the promotion matter placed in the window isn't allowed to get "cold," but is changed each week, kept on top of the news, and kept interesting.

Arnold Sanchez, assistant business manager of the Times, is responsible for the appearance of the windows in the main building and also in branch offices in Harlem and Brooklyn. Direct supervision is by E. H. Taylor, supervisor of branch offices. Windows are at present being used chiefly to promote the Times' Sunday rotogravure supplements and the Mid-Week Pictorial.

"I think window dressing a great help in getting new readers and in creating interest in your paper," Mr. Sanchez said.

In the middle west, the Cincinnati Enquirer makes good use of its windows. A recent display may give a hint or two worth while.

The window in question was dressed with a tidy "breakfast-for-two" table. The board was set with an immaculate white-linen cloth to start. On this there was a plate, cup, saucer, napkin, fork and knife, egg cup, bowl for the oat meal at each place for the two. Goblets awaited water, salt and pepper shakers, brightly shined, stood ready to dress the eggs. A nickled container stood brimfull with steaming coffee—at least so it might be supposed. Chairs were drawn up on either side of this tempting table with everything set and waiting.

Then at each place was a metal holder for the morning paper. At the man's place was the Enquirer, the first page showing. On the woman's side the society page was unfolded.

As a background to the display was a sketch of the new home of the paper, with some facts as to the building printed on panels at each side.

These summer months are not too early to plan for the opening of school in the fall in the opinion of Jay Donnovan, promotion manager, Rochester-Times Union. And he told of a close tie-up with the Rochester schools worked out this year by his paper.

It has three appeals guaranteed to build good will and circulation for any newspaper anywhere—an appeal to patriotism, an educative appeal, and an incentive to satisfy the urge to travel most mortals have.

Mr. Donnovan writes:

"There are 55 public schools in the city of Rochester. Each school, as it came into being, was presented with a large silk American flag by the G. A. R. Each school has its official Standard Bearer, chosen every six months and selected on a basis of scholarship. The 'Transfer of the Flags' from the outgoing group to the incoming group takes place each year on the morning of Washington's Birthday. Hundreds of people vainly strive for admission owing to city-wide interest in the event.

"In an effort to create more interest on the part of the students in this scholarship award, the Rochester Times-Union, this year, during the program at the theater, officially invited both the outgoing and the incoming groups on a trip to Washington as guests of the newspaper. The school board accepted the invitation for the boys and plans were begun.

"There were absolutely no strings or conditions attached to the trip, no expense whatever to the boys. A special train of sleeping cars was chartered for the party, which consisted of 110 boys, two school principals, a doctor, one of Rochester's leading citizens, a moving-picture operator and myself.

"Owing to the high grade of mentality of these boys the whole trip was one of exceptional educational value and the appreciation of the boys themselves, coupled with the hundreds of letters of commendation from Rochester's citizens, has been ample reward to the Rochester Times-Union for its investment in future citizenship."

"An investment in good will of the readers" (and the contestants) is the way the Wakefield (Mass.) Daily Item characterized a reporting contest now in progress. Space rates and a weekly bonus of $5 is offered the contestant who gets the most space in what the paper calls its "Personals-Chasing Race."

The Item told EDITOR & PUBLISHER about the stunt this week, as follows:

"Personals constitute the most widely read news in any local daily or weekly newspaper. How to get more of them is the problem with most publishers. In past summers the Item has tried various methods, with varying success, but with results several hundred percent short of the success of the present idea.

"About the middle of June the Item had a happy thought. A full-page advertisement announcing the contest was published and immediately registrations began to come in from high school girls and others. Twelve were selected. The number was purposely limited in order that too many might not cover the same ground.

"On Monday, June 21, the contestants started with a rush. The whole town except Greenwood, was 'open' territory. To have restricted the contestants to the neighborhoods in which they lived would have given some an unfair advantage in newsier sections. The first week's payroll was on a basis of 19 columns of strictly personal items, an average of more than three columns a day. The second week brought 26 columns or an average of more than four columns a day. The third week, with many vacationists already at the seashore and mountains, the average fell off a little—as was expected—to 12½ columns, but the Daily Item anticipates that by Labor Day this newspaper will have established a national record for the number of strictly personal items printed.

"The contest has several interesting phases. Most people like to see their names and those of friends in print, but hesitate to offer them. They will, however, gladly put aside their modesty to help these hustling girls earn money and perhaps win the weekly prize—every week someone must win it. In the second week of the contest, one contestant earned more than the average weekly pay of a fairly experienced office girl. Of course she could not hold this pace the year 'round and neither could the Item afford to invest so heavily in one department of news, but as an investment in good will of the readers (and the contestants) and to produce a notable asset to our advertisers (few of whom probably really appreciate the Item's value to them today) the season's cost will be counted as well worth while."

L. T. Ward, who for the past year has been associated under E. A. Scholz, in circulation work for the Butterick Publishing Company, having charge of the Columbus, Ohio, group of offices in the reading club work, has resigned to re-enter the newspaper circulation field. He had previously been with the Canton (O.) Daily News and Des Moines Capital.

Milwaukee Sentinel is analyzing local bobs. Various ways of having the crowning glory cut short are described daily, illustrated by a photograph of some Milwaukee girl who has clipped her tresses.

Louisville Courier-Journal is co-operating with the Optimist Club of its city in a slogan hunt. A slogan that will describe Louisville better than the present one: "The Gateway to the South" is wanted.

"Whose name has appeared the most number of times in Sharon newspapers?" The Sharon (Pa.) News-Telegraph asked this question, then started a contest to find the answer, offering a $5 prize to the reader picking the right name and telling why he chose it.

A. C. Dickinson, president of the News-Telegraph, was picked by the contest winner. His name, said the winner, had appeared in the masthead of the paper's editorial page in the daily and weekly News-Telegraph since March 4, 1906, or more than 6,340 times.

John H. Kuntz, circulation manager of the Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer-News Journal believes plenty of contests and entertainments keep the carrier force happy and efficient. Recently a group of carriers winning a subscription contest were sent to Washington, D. C., as a reward for their work. A picnic was held July 12, and a few weeks ago the carriers were taken to the Miller Brothers 101 Ranch Circus. Following a recent contest the entire force was treated to a banquet. Plans are now being made to take a group to Atlantic City for an outing.

Terre Haute (Ind.) Post carriers have been promised a picnic when 300 new subscribers have been obtained. The Post circulation department is running a series of one-eight page advertisements telling the public about its carriers and urging prompt payments.

Louis Gautier, circulation manager of the New York Morning Telegraph-Running Horse, this week claimed the consolidation of two papers had been effected and the price boosted 50 per cent, with "very little falling off in renewals." The merger occurred a month ago.

"I raised the price of a 10 cent daily and Sunday newspaper to 15 cents, no considering the subscription price to the individual, which is the largest subscription rate asked for a daily in the United States—$31.30 a year—with very little falling off in the renewals," he said.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

Live Advertising Solicitor Wanted In Every Large City

Internationally known trade publication wants live advertising solicitor in every city of the United States over 25,000 population. Must be dependable creator of new accounts. Commission basis only.

Write full particulars regarding service you can render and territory desired.

All correspondence treated confidentially.

Address Box A-655, Editor & Publisher.

All of these Notes have been sold.

$4,300,000

Consolidated Publishers, Inc.

The Toledo Blade The Newark Star-Eagle The Duluth Herald
The Lancaster (Pa.) New Era Paul Block, Incorporated

Ten-Year Collateral Trust 6¾% Sinking Fund Gold Notes

Dated July 1, 1926

Due July 1, 1936

To be authorized and issued $4,300,000. Coupon Notes, registerable as to principal only, in interchangeable denominations of $1,000 and $500. Interest payable January 1 and July 1, without deduction for any Federal income tax not in excess of 2% per annum, at the office of Lehman Brothers, New York, N. Y. Redeemable for sinking fund only on 30 days' notice on July 1, 1927 and on July 1, 1928 at 102 and accrued interest, and on each July 1 thereafter at a redemption price ¼% less each year. Redeemable, other than for sinking fund, in whole or in part by lot on any date on 30 days' notice at 102 and accrued interest.

Annual Sinking Fund beginning July 1, 1927, calculated to retire all of this issue at maturity

The Company will agree to refund to holders of the Notes, resident in such states, respectively, upon application within 60 days after payment, as provided in the indenture, the Pennsylvania Four Mills Tax, California and Ohio personal property taxes not in excess of four mills per annum, the Maryland Securities Tax of four and one-half mills, and the Massachusetts tax on the interest not exceeding 6% of such interest per annum.

THE CHEMICAL NATIONAL BANK OF NEW YORK, Trustee

The following information is summarized by Mr. Paul Block, President of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., from his letter describing the Company:

ORGANIZATION AND BUSINESS

"Consolidated Publishers, Inc., will own all the outstanding stock (except directors' qualifying shares) of the companies publishing The Toledo Blade, The Newark Star-Eagle, The Duluth Herald and The Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, as well as of Paul Block, Incorporated. These papers are among the most important and oldest in their respective territories, having been founded 43 to 96 years ago. All are members of the Associated Press. Paul Block, Incorporated, exclusive national advertising representative for these and a number of other important publications, is the largest organization in its field.

The Toledo Blade was founded in 1836 and is the leading newspaper in its territory, and one of the most successful and influential in the Middle West. It is the only evening paper in Toledo having membership in the Associated Press. Its circulation of 120,000 daily is as large as or larger than the combined circulations of all the other Toledo newspapers. In advertising, it occupies the same predominant position. For nearly 50 consecutive years the Blade has yielded its owners a profit.

The Newark Star-Eagle, established in 1832, is the second largest newspaper of New Jersey, having a present circulation of 95,000, and is the most important Republican paper of the State. The Duluth Herald and The Lancaster New Era, both leading papers in their territories, have a considerably larger circulation than any of the other papers in their own cities.

PROFITS

Combined profits, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., of the four newspaper companies and of the publishers' national advertising representation business of Paul Block, Incorporated, after interest paid, but before Federal income taxes, excluding profits from sales of securities, and, in the case of the Newark Star Publishing Company, without deducting certain payments to stockholders and others (discontinued in January, 1926) averaging $60,000 per annum, have been as follows:

Year ending Dec. 31*	Combined Profits as above	Times Interest Requirement Earned
1923.....	$859,109.16	2.9
1924.....	902,811.12	3.1
1925.....	1,241,016.18	4.2
*Four months ending April 30, 1926	492,004.18	5.0

* Year ending the following Jan. 31 in the case of The New Era Publishing Corporation and  including only three months for that company.

Such combined profits for the period shown above have averaged $1,047,639, or over 3.6 times the $290,250 maximum annual interest requirement on this issue. In the first four months of 1926 such profits were already equivalent to 1.69 times the full year's interest requirement on these Notes.

SECURITY

This issue of Notes will be a direct obligation of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., and, in the opinion of counsel, will be secured by pledge with the Trustee, under a collateral trust indenture, of all of the issued and outstanding stock (except directors' qualifying shares) of the five above described companies."

Further information and a consolidated balance sheet as of April 30, 1926, are contained in the circular, copies of which may be had upon request to the undersigned.

Price 100 and Accrued Interest to Yield 6.75%

This offering is made in all respects when, as and if issued and accepted by us and subject to the approval of our counsel. We reserve the right to reject any and all subscriptions in whole or in part, to allot less than the amount applied for and to close the subscription books at any time without notice.

It is expected that delivery of Notes in temporary or permanent form or interim receipts will be made on or about August 16, 1926, at the office of LEHMAN BROTHERS, 16 WILLIAM STREET, NEW YORK, N. Y., against payment therefor in New York funds.

LEHMAN BROTHERS HALLGARTEN & CO.

The statements contained in this advertisement are not guaranteed, but are based on information which we believe to be true.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

New Buffalo Agency—McDougall Transferred to Chicago—Caeser Joins H. E. Lesan Agency—Cleveland Honored —Fox and Bartel Firms Merged in Detroit

PAUL HILDRETH advertising agency has been formed at Buffalo with $100,000 capital, the firm name being Adams, Hildreth & Davis, Inc. Associated with Mr. Hildreth are M. Wayne Davis, vice president; and Alexander H. Adams, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Hildreth, president has been advertising manager of the Kardex companies at North Tonawanda. Mr. Davis formerly was advertising manager of the Safe-Cabinet Co. of Marietta, O. Levant H. Harvey will be account executive of the new agency and Allan Murray will be art director.

Charles H. McDougall, who has been associated with the art department of the George Batten Company, Inc., for many years, has been transferred to Chicago as art director of that agency.

David E. Caesar has joined the Chicago office of H. E. Lesan Advertising Agency in charge of the Service Department. Caesar started upon his advertising career with the Chicago American in 1911 and for the past 14 years was connected with the Chas. F. W. Nichols Agency.

Paul C. Foley has joined the Fred M. Randall Company, Advertising Agency, Detroit, in their radio and mail order division. Foley was formerly with the F. R. Steel Company of Chicago.

At the annual meeting of the Roosevelt Club of Boston, Cleaveland A. Chandler of the Cleaveland A. Chandler Advertising Agency, was re-elected secretary.

A new agency has been opened in Omaha by Stanley H. Jack, formerly of the Omaha office of the Potts-Turnbull Company, advertising agency. It is called the Stanley H. Jack Company, of which Mr. Jack is president. Edward F. Leary is vice-president and B. P. Kissane, secretary.

Two Detroit agencies, the Fox Advertising Agency and the Tom H. Bartel Company, have merged. H. V. Fox is now vice-president of the Bartel Company, of which Mr. Bartel is president.

Joseph Xavier Netter, for many years advertising manager of the Lightolier Company, has opened an advertising agency in New York under the name of J. X. Netter, Inc. During the past four years he has been with Creske-Everett, Inc., New York agency, as vice-president.

PROMOTING ADVERTISING

The New York Sun has just issued a map about four feet square to fold within a board cover 10 x 14 inches, showing the names, location and product of 854 manufacturers who carried schedules in that paper during 1925. The large map is a condensed version of the United States, showing the 26 states in which the 854 firms are located and the state groups are connected with New York City by long red arrows. An explanatory note states that in these 26 states are located 82 per cent of all the manufacturing plants of the country, producing 88 per cent in value of all manufactured products in the United States. The map bears the title "How Manufacturers Reach New York."

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

W. W. Lewis Promoted to Assistant General Sales Manager, Cadillac Company—Purina Buys Ry-Krisp Company—Canadian General Motor Factories Break Record

WILLIAM W. LEWIS, advertising manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Company, has been promoted to the newly-created position of assistant general sales manager and director of advertising. He will assist H. M. Stephens, general sales manager, in the conduct of all activities in the sales division, which includes the sales, advertising, parts and technical departments.

W. W. Lewis

The newly-appointed sales executive joined the Cadillac organization as district sales manager in August, 1922, and advanced to advertising manager in November of the following year. In his former automobile connection, with the Peerless Motor Car Company, he spent six years as district manager.

The Ralston Purina Company, large cereal manufacturers with executive offices in St. Louis, has purchased the Ry-Krisp Company of Minneapolis, makers of Ry-Krisp, a Swedish health bread. The transaction is of the largest that has taken place in the cereal industry for several years. It involves taking over the milling, sales and distribution of Ry-Krisp, including all rights to patented processes of manufacturing and trade marks. The amount involved in the purchase was not stated. According to William H. Danforth, president of the Ralston Purina Company, an extensive sales and advertising campaign will be put behind Ry-Krisp by the new owners.

Canadian factories of General Motors located at Oshawa, Ont., set a new production record during the first six months of this year, according to the Oshawa (Ont.) Daily Reformer. The six months' sales record also reached a new figure, exceeding the previous best twelve months record by 3,459 cars. There were 749 more unfilled orders on the books on June 30, than a year ago, J. H. Beaton general sales manager stated.

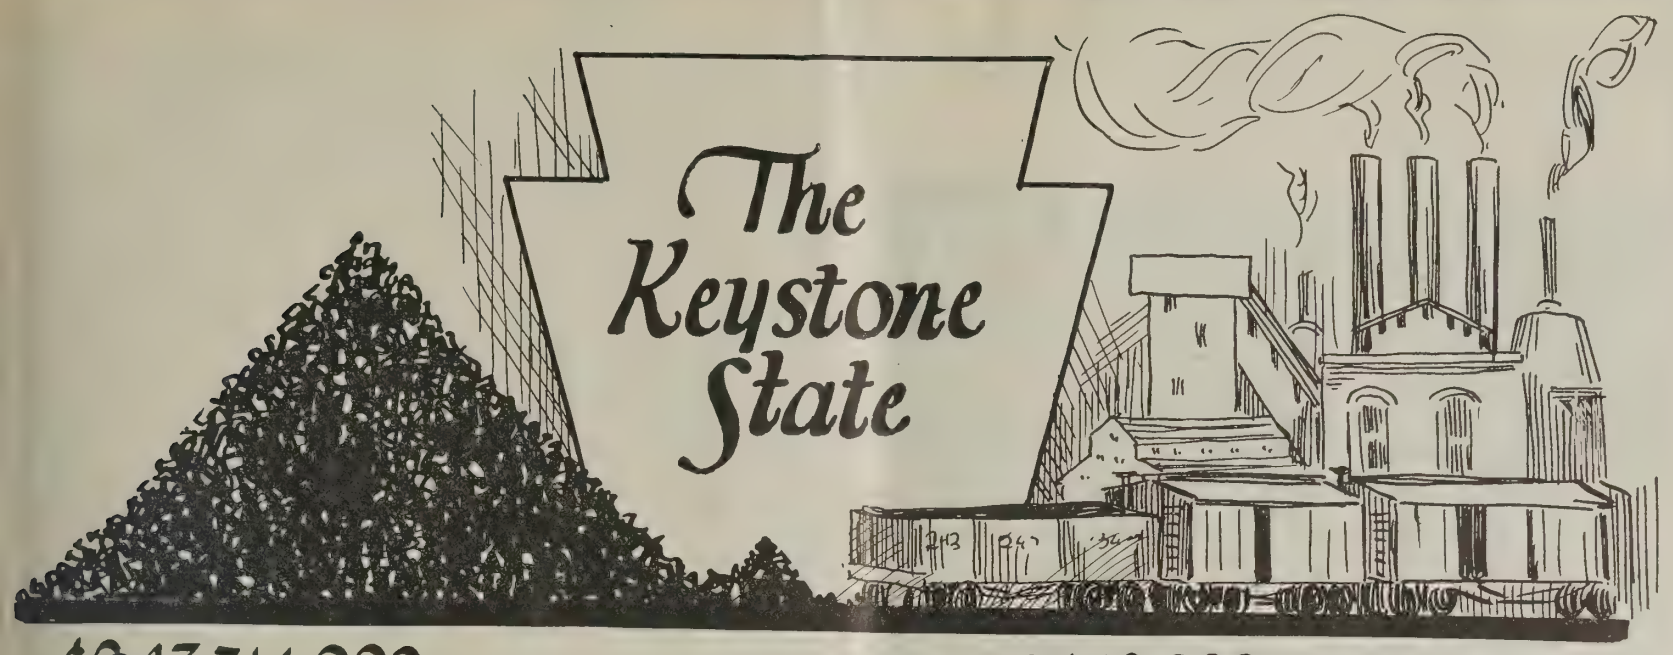
O. A. D. Baldwin Nursery Company, Bridgman, Mich., has succeeded the Whitten-Ackerman Nurseries. With the change in ownership the advertising account of the company has been returned to the Frank B. White Company, Chicago, which will place copy for the ensuing year.

Orin S. Wernecke has been appointed advertising manager of the Harvard Business Review and the Journal of Land & Public Utility Economics, to succeed Claude E. Hooper, now associated with the advertising department of Scribner's Magazine. Mr. Wernecke is also in charge of the new Eastern book division offices of the A. W. Shaw Company, New York.

Samuel F. Head, formerly of the Buffalo Star, has been appointed director of advertising publicity for the Steel Consolidated Stores, Inc., at Buffalo.

The

Richmond Times-Dispatch



Announces
The Appointment Of

THE JOHN BUDD COMPANY

As Its

NATIONAL ADVERTISING REPRESENTATIVES

Effective August 1st, 1926

$843,314,000 $7,438,609,142.

Leads in Mineral and Industrial Production!

The wonderful opportunity for every National Advertiser in telling the story of products to the people of Pennsylvania is shown by the Government statistics.

Pennsylvania is among the leaders in wealth, earning power of its workers and in steady, all year 'round prosperity. In coal it leads all States. In commerce, it is unsurpassed, and in industry Pennsylvania has few competitors.

Do not overlook this state when planning your campaign.

The daily papers listed here can give you service in merchandising and distribution.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call .....(M)	31,400	.10	.10
Allentown Call .....(S)	22,349	.10	.10
††Beaver Falls Tribune.....(E)	6,553	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times.....(E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Bloomsburg Press .....(M)	7,673	.04	.04
Chester Times .....(E)	18,295	.06	.06
††Coatesville Record .....(E)	6,783	.035	.03
Connellsville Courier .....(E)	5,928	.02	.02
Easton Express .....(E)	25,473	.08	.08
Erie Times .....(E)	28,596	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review...(EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker.....(E) ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel..(M)	19,852	.07	.06
Mount Carmel Item .....(E)	4,307	.0285	.0285

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Oil City Derrick .....(M)	8,588	.04	.04
Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper .....(EM)	15,346	.08	.07
Scranton Times .....(E)	43,230	.13	.12
Sharon Herald .....(E)	7,236	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item .....(E)	5,224	.03	.03
Washington Observer and Reporter .....(M&E)	17,589	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News .....(E)	11,860	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader ....(E)	26,204	.06	.06
††Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin.....(ME)	28,000	.09	.09
††York Dispatch .....(E)	19,632	.05	.05

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

New Want Ad Headquarters for Pittsburgh Press—Dayton News Instructing Readers How to Write Classified Ads—New York Times' List of Objectionable Copy

Exterior of new Want Ad headquarters of the Pittsburgh Press

THE Pittsburgh Press recently opened a new Want Ad headquarters at 254 Fifth avenue, a building designed especially for handling classified copy. It has a frontage of 25 feet on Fifth avenue and a 50 foot depth.

The front of the building is cast bronze and glass with two beautiful show windows of walnut finish. The structure encloses a large room with a 32 foot ceiling. A large horseshoe counter occupies the center of the room while nearby is a lareg writing desk. Ten clerks are employed in this office. There are two direct telephone lines to the operating plant.

There is a small mezzanine in the rear of the office which accomodates the Downtown Travel and Information Bureau of the paper. In the front is another mezzanine for the bulletin service. News bulletins are flashed to the downtown office by a direct telephone connection from the city editor's desk. The bulletins are painted in large letters and pasted on swivel windows which are floodlighted. The above photograph shows how the Press is using this bulletin service to promote the paper.

Owen M. Phillips is business manager of the Press.

All newspapers are now vigorously working to keep their classified pages free from fraudulent advertising. Objectionable copy, refused by the New York Times, is listed as follows in the newspaper's "Classified Manual":

1. Fraudulent or doubtful advertisements:

Make a million by investing $10,000 in our oil wells. Produce 1,000 barrels daily. Your investment will triple itself in four months.

2. Offers of something of value for nothing; advertisements that make false, unwarranted or exaggerated claims:

A high grade automobile given away to the first 20 persons answering this advertisement. Send 10c for booklet, "How to make $25 daily."

3. Advertisements that are ambiguous in wording and which may mislead:

Women—earn $100 weekly giving beauty treatments. Experience unnecessary. Apply Room —.

4. Attacks of a personal character; advertisements that make uncalled-for reflections on competitors or their goods:

You can not be sure of your radio unless it is bought from us. Only our Radio sets are sold to you fully as represented.

5. Advertisements holding out the prospect of large guaranteed dividends or excessive profits:

Ladies Apparel Shop for sale. Will guarantee a net profit of $15,000 yearly. Sacrifice for $5,000 if bought immediately.

6. Bucket shops and offerings of financial prospects:

Safe Gold Mine—$50 per share on curb. Price of $100 assured as soon as mine becomes producing.

7. Advertisements that are indecent, vulgar, suggestive, repulsive or offensive.

8. Matrimonial offers; fortune telling:

Young man, cultured, owning producing farm, wishes to correspond with young lady 25-35 or young widow. Object matrimony.

9. Objectionable medical advertising and offers of free medical treatment; advertising that makes remedial, relief or curative claims (either directly or by inference), not justified by the facts or common experience:

Brown's tablets positively cure kidney trouble, liver trouble, colds, etc.

10. Advertisements of products containing habit-forming or dangerous drugs.

Note—All medical advertisements are subject to investigation before being published.

11. Want advertisements which request money for samples or articles:

Salesmen wanted for quick seller, auto cleanser. Send $1.00 for sample.

Mailing lists offered for sale:

Example: Mail order house going out of business wishes to dispose of an up to date national automobile dealer mailing list.

12. Any other advertising that may cause money loss to the reader, or injury in health or morals, or loss of confidence in reputable advertising and honorable business, or which is regarded by the New York Times as unworthy.

A wide variety of articles and services offered to the public by means of classified advertising is shown by this analysis of 325 advertisements reported on for newspaper publishers by the National Better Business Bureau. This makes even more apparent the number of advertisers and readers of advertising to whom dependable classified copy is a live issue.

Automotive		8.75%
Correspondence Schools		12.
Clothing		9.5
Financial		3.5
Foodstuffs		1.5
Jewelry		1.5
Household Appliances		3.5
Machinery		1.5
Musical		1.5
Miscellaneous		8.75
Mail Business		37.75
Fountain Pens	6. %
Formulas, Etc.	2.5
Gilding cards	1.
Home Work Schemes	10.
Mail Order Plans	12.5
Needlework	5.75
Printing Devices		2.75
Toilet Accessories		5.75
Tobacco		1.75
TOTAL		100%

H. G. Barringer, classified advertising manager of the Indianapolis News for the past ten years, has joined the Hearst organization as classified advertising manger of the Syracuse Journal and manager. Barringer is a charter member of the Association of Classified Managers and a former Director.

AD TIPS

Blaine-Thompson Company, 4th National Bank Building, Cincinnati. Trying out three Southern towns in a test campaign on International Products Company, Lexington, Ky.

Cramer-Krasselt Company, 1201 Bank of Italy Building, Los Angeles. Trying out some far Western cities for the Samson Tire Company, Los Angeles.

Cramer-Krasselt Company, 354 Milwaukee street, Milwaukee. Running schedules on Maytag Company, Newton, Ia., in western papers.

Dauchy Company, 9 Murray street, New York. Has secured account of the Fales Chemical Company, Inc., Cornwall Landing, N. Y.

Gardner Advertising Company, 1627 Locust street, St. Louis. Reported will place account of the Ry-Krisp Company, Minneapolis, makers of Swedish Health Bread, which has been purchased by the Ralston Purina Company, St Louis.

Greenleaf Company, 80 Federal street, Boston. Now handling account of the Carpenter Morton-Company, Boston, manufacturers "Colorite" and "Carmote Cow-Ease."

J. R. Hamilton Company, 326 West Madison street, Chicago. Will use some newspapers for Altorfer Bros. Co., "A. B. C. Washer" Peoria, Ill.

Henri, Hurst & McDonald, 58 East Washington street, Chicago. Now handling account of the Houde Engineering Corporation, Buffalo also placing account of the Nachman Spring Company, Chicago, "Nachman" spring units.

Arnold Joerns Company, 26 East Huron street, Chicago. Are adding a number of towns to their list for Hanley and Kinsella, St. Louis McJunkin Advertising Company, 5 South Wabash avenue, Chicago. Preparing a list of newspapers for the Mohawk Electric Co (Radio), Chicago, and trying to secure more dealers.

Mitchell-Faust Comapny, 7 South Dearborn street, Chicago. Placing account of the Savo Manufacturing Company, Chicago, manufacturers "Savo" air moisteners and flower and plant boxes.

Pedlar & Ryan, Inc., 250 Park avenue, New York. Placing account of Bristol-Meyers Company, New York, manufacturers "Sal Hepatica," "Ipana" tooth paste and "Gastrogan" tablets.

Frank Presbrey Company, 247 Park avenue New York. Now handling account of the Florida East Coast Railway and Hotels.

Procter & Collier, McMillan street at Reading Road, Cincinnati. Preparing a list of newspapers on Fishback Company, Indianapolis.

Suedhoff-Ross Company, Tri-State Building Fort Wayne, Ind. Adding papers to the list for Rub-No-More Co., Fort Wayne.

BAR GOVERNMENT NAME OUT OF AD COPY

Trade Commission Finds Practices of Philadelphia Civil Service Coaching School Unfair Competition

An important decision involving the use of a familiar government title in advertising placed by a private concern was handed down this week by the Federal Trade Commission.

According to an order issued by the Commission the Civil Service Correspondence School of Philadelphia must discontinue its practice of using the term "Civil Service," in advertising or other matter to solicit students.

The Commission found that the respondent used a catalog bearing a picture of the Capitol of the United States, and of "Uncle Sam" in conjunction with the words "Civil Service Correspondence School, Philadelphia, Pa." These catalogs contain statements to the effect that its courses of instructions consist of questions and answers similar to those propounded by the Civil Service Commission and further implies that its students promptly will secure positions in one of the government departments.

Many other statements are made by the respondent, the findings recite, which cause the erroneous impression that it is connected with the United States Government, and is therefore an unfair business practice, which deceives its student customers and is prejudicial to competing schools.

FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY

8-page Duplex Angle Bar Press—8 column, 22½" cut-off
20-page Duplex Single Deck Web Press—8 column, 22¾" cut-off
Model 8 Linotype, serial No. 28228, with 3 magazines
Model 5 Linotype, serial No. 13627
Monotype Caster, with Lead and Rule Attachment
Hoe Linotype Melting Furnace, complete
Hoe Heavy Duty Pedestal Saw

Send for Current List of Offerings

THOMAS W. HALL COMPANY INC.

575 Washington Street New York — 10 High Street Boston

BELLINGHAM DAILIES NOW HOUSED IN NEW PUBLISHING PLANT

Handsome New Plant of the Bellingham (Wash.) Herald-Reveille

NORTHWEST and British Columbian publishers who have recently inspected the new home of the Bellingham Herald and the Bellingham Reveille, agreed that it is one of the most complete newspaper plants in the west.

The new Herald Building was formally opened June 27 when it was estimated over 7,500 persons inspected the building and newspaper plant. Twenty odd outside newspaper publishers attended the opening and were given a dinner by President S. A. Perkins and Vice-President and General Manager Frank I. Sefrit.

The Herald Building is all-steel construction fire-proofed with gypsum. It is a beautiful building throughout, the exterior being terra cotta designed in the Gothic style. It is seven stories in height; the seventh story is not shown in the engraving herewith because it is hidden by the high parapet walls. But this story, as all others above the first, has a fine marine view over Bellingham Bay. The seventh story is to be made into a modern club with roof garden features.

The trim of the building is in marble and Philippine mahogany. The cost exceeded $350,000 exclusive of land values. The building occupies a ground space of 37½ feet on State street by 125 feet on Chestnut street. A railway spur in the rear serves to unload newsprint and other heavy freight.

About one third of the building is occupied by the publishing company. The other is for stores and offices. A commodious space for parking cars of tenants is provided in a part of the basement. This is reached by twin elevators.

The Bellingham Publishing Company, owners of the Herald Building and the newspapers, has erected a building and installed a plant that will meet the demands of a rapidly growing population and business. The building was designed for speed and economy in publishing. The business offices are on the ground floor with the editorial and composing rooms directly connecting on that floor. The mats are molded on the first floor and sent to the foundry in the basement. The presses, stereotype machinery and mailing departments are in the basement. The mailing room delivers directly to the street level in the rear. The equipment is electric throughout, even to the use of monomelts on the Mergenthalers. A Hoe sextuple and a Hoe 16 page press serve the needs of the business, the latter for supplements.

General Manager Frank I. Sefrit came to Bellingham 15 years ago from Salt Lake City where for nine years he was an executive of the Tribune, six years as general manager. Previous to that he had been an Indiana newspaperman. President S. A. Perkins, publisher, makes his headquarters at Tacoma. The secretary-treasurer of the Bellingham Publishing Company is E. G. Earle, a veteran western newspaper man.

FLASH BURNS PHOTOGRAPHERS

Williams Brothers Hurt in Boston by Accidental Explosion

John ("Jack") Williams, Boston Post photographer, was badly burned about the head and his brother, Gus Williams, Boston American photographer, was cut about the face by flying glass, when the former's flash-lamp exploded outside the Suffolk county courthouse, Boston, early in the evening of July 15.

The accident happened when a group of newspaper photographers were assembled outside the courthouse in expectation of the arrival there of a certain man for whom a warrant had been issued in connection with a girl's death, and dismemberment of her body. Seing a man approaching with a police officer, "Jack" Williams had his camera loaded for a flashlight. When it was discovered that the man with the officer was a lawyer and not the man whose photo he sought, Williams started to pour the flashlight powder, which was already in the gun of the camera, back into its glass container when his sleeve accidently caught the trigger release, causing it to go off.

BARRE PAPER INCORPORATED

A charter of incorporation was granted last week in Massachusetts to the Barre (Mass.) Gazette Inc., of Barre, with a capital of $15,000. The incorporators are Irving F. and Beatrice K. Carpenter, both of Barre, and Carolyn M. Kinne, of Somerville.

The Money That Goes to Florida Comes Back to You

Millions of dollars are going to Florida every week. The fact that bank deposits in Florida more than doubled during 1925 is sufficient evidence of this.

But this fact need not worry the other sections of the United States. The money that is going to Florida is being put into circulation and the important thing is that—

This money that is going to Florida will come back to every part of the country which goes after Florida business.

Florida has money and Florida is spending it. It is buying unfinished products and manufactured articles and food supplies from the rest of the nation just as fast as railroads and steamship lines can carry them. It has bought so fast indeed that the railroads during the past winter had to put an embargo on freight and express shipments.

Florida is a wonderful, growing market. It offers an unusual opportunity to the manufacturer.

Reach this market NOW. Cultivate it consistently. The most economical media to cover Florida completely are the Associated Dailies.

ASSOCIATED DAILIES of Florida

510 Clark Bldg. Jacksonville, Florida

Bradenton News
Clearwater Sun
Daytona Beach Journal
Daytona Beach News
Deland Daily News
Eustis Lake Region
Ft. Lauderdale News
Ft. Myers Press
Ft. Myers Tropical News
Ft. Pierce News-Tribune
Ft. Pierce Record
Gainesville News
Gainesville Sun
Jacksonville Florida Times-Union
Jacksonville Journal
Key West Citizen
Kissimmee Gazette
Lakeland Ledger
Lakeland Star-Telegram
Lake Worth Leader
Melbourne Journal
Miami Daily News
Miami Herald
Miami Tribune
New Smyrna News
Ocala Central Florida Times
Orlando Morning Sentinel
Orlando Reporter-Star
Palatka News
Palm Beach Daily News
Palm Beach Post
Palm Beach Times
Pensacola Journal
Pensacola News
Plant City Courier
St. Augustine Record
St. Petersburg Independent
St. Petersburg News
St. Petersburg Times
Sanford Herald
Sarasota Herald
Sarasota Times
Stuart Daily News
Tampa Times
Tampa Tribune
Winter Haven Chief

EMPLOY YOUTH, BUT DON'T NEGLECT TRAINING, FOSTER'S ADVICE TO EDITORS

Veteran of Scripps-Howard Staff Sees Great Waste in Attitude of Executives Toward Juniors of Newspaper Staffs by Failure to Guide Their Energies

J. W. FOSTER, recently appointed as assistant to G. B. Parker, general editorial executive of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers and also as assistant to E. E. Cook, editor-in-chief of the Ohio-Pittsburgh group, is a native of Texas. He was born in Galveston.

J. W. Foster

He cubbed on the St. Joseph (Mo.) Gazette in the days when that newspaper was controlled by the late George H. Larke who afterward became a New York publisher.

Foster went to Oklahoma 20 years ago and became editor of the Oklahoma City News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. He was transferred to the Cleveland Press 13 years ago. There he served as feature writer, city editor and managing editor. A little more than a year ago he became chief editorial writer.

His hobby is the development of men.

"We concern ourselves too much about the waste of white paper and too little about the waste of man power," he says.

"There is too great a tendency on the part of many newspapers to employ youngsters in the hope that they possess the spark so necessary to successful careers in this business, then to neglect the development of these youngsters.

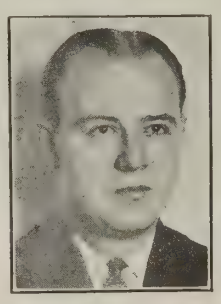
T. O. Thackrey

"The result is an alarming amount of deadwood on payrolls. The financial loss, while unfortunate, is not the most important thing. The most important thing is that we lose for too long a time the talents and the energies and the optimistic points of view that belong to youth. We need these things to keep our newspapers out of the rut. The spirit of the times is effervescent. It demands recognition by newspapers. The newspaper that does not respond to that demand pays the penalty in dwindling circulation.

"Young energies, properly directed, keep alive the fires in the breast of the veteran. Show me a newspaper staff in which rapidly-developing young men and women are given place, and you'll show me a staff that is on its toes.

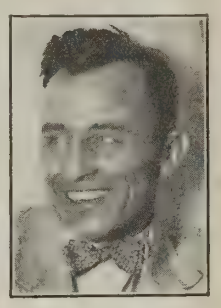
"Oh, yes, we need balance wheels—veterans who control the brakes. I by no means estimate their importance. I don't believe that a newspaper should be a three-ring circus. As the same time, I am not forgetful of the fact that a circus usually draws a pretty fair crowd."

Foster's oldest son is 20. Three years ago, while Foster was managing editor of the Press, the son applied to him for a job. The father turned him down. Three days later the boy came back to the Press office:



"Dad," he said, "I work for you. The editor has given me a job."

The young man is still with the Press, doing re-write at the age of 20.



The youthful nerve which Mr. Foster admires has been given prominence on the Cleveland Press, as stated in Editor & Publisher last week. An editor, a managing editor and a chief editorial writer were appointed and the oldest of them is 30, the youngest 24 years of age. Their work will be under the general supervision of Messrs. Parker, Cook, and Foster.

Ted. O. Thackrey, the new editor of the Press, is 24 and until recently was managing editor. He has been in newspaper work since his high school days and among the other newspapers where his hat has hung are the old Kansas City (Kan.) Gazette-Globe, Kansas City (Mo.) Journal, Manhattan (Kan.) Mercury, Topeka Capital, Kansas City Star, Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Topeka State Journal.

Louis B. Seltzer, chief editorial writer

L. B. Seltzer

J. B. Sorrells

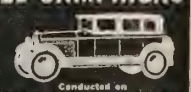
of the Press, is 28 and started as an office boy for a Cleveland newspaper 14 years ago. He became city editor of the Press when he was 22, then assistant managing editor, political editor, and at various times as star reporter.

John H. Sorrells, now managing editor at 30 years of age, began his career on the Graphic in his home town of Pine Bluff, Ark., holding all important posts on that daily. He worked in Fort Worth and Oklahoma City before joining the Cleveland Press as news editor last year.

KANSAS DAILIES TO ADVERTISE

Plans Discussed at Topeka Meeting—Capper Publications Host

Plans for advertising Kansas, especially in the east, were discussed by a score of members of the Kansas Daily Newspaper Advertising Association at a special meeting, held in Topeka last week.



Advertising councillors were asked to prepare copy for use in newspapers and magazines and to submit their recommendations.

The Capper Publications was host to the visiting newspapermen. Another meeting will be held soon.

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?

AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS

Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right

Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN

We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges. Without obligation to us, you may submit details, terms, etc.

Our last Campaign was run _____

Name of paper _____ City _____

By _____ Title _____ State _____

Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about _____

Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,

W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

July 26-Aug. 31—Institute of Politics, Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.

July 30—Northeast Missouri Press Assn., mid-summer Meeting, Monroe City, Mo.

Aug. 6-7—Wyoming Press Assn., annual convention, Thermopolis, Wyo.

Aug. 7—Southwest Minnesota Editorial Assn., summer outing, Lake Sheat, Minn.

Aug. 9-11—Georgia Press Assn., annual meeting, Louisville, Ga.

Aug. 11-13 — South Dakota Press annual meet, Brookings.

Aug. 12—Wisconsin Press Assn., Meeting, Wisconsin Rapids.

Aug. 12-14—Virginia Press Assn., meeting, Pulaski, Va.

Aug. 13-14—Iowa Press Assn., meeting, Cedar Lake.

NEW ELECTRICAL CONTROL

Acceleration and Braking Device Developed for Printing Machines

A new device for automatically controlling the acceleration and braking of alternating-current motor-driven equipment has been developed and placed on the market by the Cutler-Hammer Manufacturing Company of Milwaukee and New York. It is called the Carpenter automatic control station, and has been applied to cylinder presses, web presses, lithographic presses and other printing equipment.

The station is used in connection with the standard types of automatic pushbutton-operated magnetic controllers which are employed for the control of slip-ring motors, although it also can be used with controllers for squirrel-cage motors. When the "run" button is depressed for starting the motor, the device functions to keep the external resistance in circuit (thereby limiting the current inrush) until the motor has attained 40 per cent of normal running speed, at which time it automatically opens the torque switch, shunting out the external resistance, and closes the run switch for normal operation of the motor. When the "stop" button is depressed for stopping the motor, the device functions to open the line switch, which opens the run switch through an interlock. At the same time it closes a reverse line magnetic switch with the external resistance in circuit, thus creating a field in direct opposition to direction of rotation and exerting a braking effect equal to the rated torque of the motor. Just before the motor comes to dead rest the reverse switch circuit is opened, thus compensating for the switch lag. The motor is stopped without any possibility of reversing or coasting.

Essentially, the device consists of an oil pump which operates a contact-making device. The pump is belt-connected to the driven machine, and when the speed of latter reaches 40 per cent of normal running speed, the pressure generated by the pump serves to operate a contactor which opens the torque switch and closes the run switch.

STAFF SHIFTS IN BUFFALO

Following the merger of the Buffalo Express, Courier and Star further reductions in the staff have been necessary and a number of Buffalo newspaper men are now engaged in other fields. Their number includes Frank Dooley, Harry Mullany, Alex Rosenberg, Richard Murray, William Devereaux, Walter Mason and Fred Fails. M. W. Wilner has gone to the Buffalo Evening News as an editorial writer and Louis Atlas has sailed for Paris to joint the staff of one of the American publications there.

Unusual Business Opportunity

Other manufacturing interests necessitate the sale of a northwestern daily newspaper in exclusive field. Circulation over 5,000. Will pay twenty percent on investment of $150,000 to $175,000. Price for immediate private sale $100,000. Will require $60,000 cash to handle. Books open to inspection by reliable parties.

If you are not listed by credit agencies, please send bank references.

Wire Box A-678, care of Editor & Publisher.

PAUL BLOCK $4,300,000 BOND ISSUE FOR TOLEDO BLADE OVERSUBSCRIBED

New Corporation, Consolidated Publishers, Inc., Will Own Four Newspapers and National Representation Business of Paul Block, Inc.

BECAUSE of its novel character, considerable interest was manifested in newspaper and financial circles this week in the offering of $4,300,000 ten-year collateral trust 6¾ per cent notes of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., and the immediate success which the issue met. The notes were offered at 100 on Tuesday by a nation-wide syndicate headed by Lehman Brothers and Hallgarten & Co.

Consolidated Publishers, Inc., which is to own the Toledo (O.) Blade, Newark (N. J.) Star-Eagle, Duluth (Minn.) Herald, Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, and Paul Block, Inc., is to be headed by Mr. Block as president. Heavy over-subscription of the bonds was attributed not only to the favorable conditions of the newspapers but also to the reputation of Mr. Block in the publishing and advertising fields.

Paul Block

A novel feature of the offering of the Consolidated Publishers, Inc. bonds, was the use in a published circular of an appraisal by Palmer, DeWitt & Palmer, which gave the fair realizable value of the four newspapers at $11,000,000. This also gave the investing public assurance that the assets behind a newspaper security are to be found almost entirely in its intangible or good will values.

The subscription books for the offering to dealers were almost immediately closed, and a heavy over-subscription reported. In addition to the syndicate managers, Bond & Goodwin & Tucker, Inc. appeared in the Pacific Coast advertising, the Collin-Norton Company in Ohio, Stix & Co. in St. Louis, Trust Company of Georgia in Atlanta, and Lehman, Stern & Co. in New Orleans.

The entire proceeds of the issue are to be devoted to the acquisition of the Toledo Blade. Security of the issue is established by pledge with the Chemical National Bank of New York, as trustee under a collateral trust indenture, of all of the issued and outstanding stock, excepting directors' qualifying shares, of the five subsidiary companies.

Combined profits, as certified by Messrs. Price, Waterhouse & Co., of the four newspaper companies and of the publishers' national advertising representation business of Paul Block, Incorporated, after interest paid, but before Federal income taxes, excluding profits from sales of securities, and, in the case of the Newark Star Publishing Company, without deducting certain payments to stockholders and others (discontinued in January, 1926) averaging $60,000 per annum, were announced as follows:

Year Ending Dec. 31*	Combined Profits As Above	Times Interest Requirement Earned
1923	$859,109.16	2.9
1924	902,811.12	3.1
1925	1,241,016.18	4.2
Four mos. ending Apr. 30, 1926	492,004.18	5.0

*Year ending the following Jan. 31 in the case of the New Era Publishing Corporation, and  including only three months for that Company.

Such combined profits for the period shown above have averaged $1,047,639, or over 3.6 times the $290,250 maximum annual interest requirements on the issue. In the first four months of 1926 such profits were already equivalent to 1.69 times the full year's interest requirement on these notes, it was pointed out.

An annual sinking fund, beginning July 1, 1927, is provided sufficient to retire all the issue at maturity. The notes are redeemable for sinking fund on thirty days' notice at 102 and interest on July 1, 1927 and 1928, and thereafter on July 1 at a redemption price ¼ per cent less each year. The issue is redeemable as a whole or in part at 102 and interest.

In his letter to the bankers, Paul Block, president of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., said:

"With their present prosperity based on many years of development, I look forward to the increased success of each of the subsidiaries of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., and to the continued growth in circulation, advertising volume and editorial influence of each paper. The policy of the companies to be subsidiary to Consolidated Publishers, Inc., will be under my personal direction, with the assistance of my loyal associates, many of whom have been with me from fifteen to twenty-five years." He reviewed the history of the newspapers and Paul Block, Inc., concerning the latter he said:

"Paul Block, Inc., was organized in 1908 to continue the business founded by me in 1900, and which has since been continuously under my personal direction. The company is the exclusive national advertising representative for the above-mentioned newspapers, as well as for a number of other important publications, including Pictorial Review, the Washington (D. C.) Post, Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat & Chronicle, Syracuse N. Y.) Post-Standard, Worcester (Mass.) Telegram and Gazette, Memphis (Tenn.) News-Scimitar, Manchester (N. H.) Union-Leader, Scranton (Pa.) Republican, Topeka (Kan.) State Journal and others. Paul Block, Incorporated maintains offices in New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit and Boston."

The serial notes have not only the Block properties behind them but in addition are secured by the unconditional personal guarantee of Mr. Block endorsed upon each note. Application will be made to list the notes upon the New York Stock Exchange.

NEAL ON AD COMMISSION

Jesse H. Neal, executive secretary of the Associated Business Papers, Inc. has been appointed to represent that Association on the Advertising Commission of the International Advertising Association.

STAFF NOW CONTROLS DALLAS NEWS

George B. Dealey on 52nd Year with Firm, Takes 52% of New Corporation's Stock—Employes Hold Minority

On the 52d anniversary of his connection with A. H. Belo & Co., publisher of the Dallas (Tex.) News and associated publications, George B. Dealey, general manager of the property, assumed 52 per cent of the stock of the A. H. Belo Corporation, which on July 15 took over the papers from the old organization. This step completed the process of transferring control of the news from members of the Belo family to Mr. Dealey and other employes of the News associated with him. Other publications concerned are the Dallas Journal, Semi-Weekly Farm News, Texas Almanac, and State Industrial Guide.

Officers of the new corporation are: President, George B. Dealey; vice-president, Walter A. Dealey; secretary-treasurer, John F. Lubben. Directors include the officers and also Tom Finty, Jr., Ennis Cargill, E. M. Dealey, and E. B. Doran.

Members of the Belo family have transferred their interests in the old corporation into the new, but in form which divests them of control, the announcement in the Dallas News stated. This passes to George B. Dealey and those who have been long associated with him in the management, by Mr. Dealey's acquirement of a majority of the voting stock, the minority of which will be held by the other officers and directors.

(C) NEA

Pop Gunn

is making friends for the N. E. A. Service, Inc., all the time.

And the N. E. A. knows that it is not only necessary to have the BEST features, but that it pays to give their clients the best possible kind of service.

Small wonder then, that the N. E. A. should choose Certified Dry Mats as the medium to send out their newspaper feature services.

Remember, please, that the N. E. A. is the "World's largest newspaper feature service," and that they use only the best the market affords.

Certified Dry Mats will appeal to you for the same reasons that led the N. E. A. to adopt them, and their use will give you just as much profit and satisfaction.

Won't you get acquainted — there's no obligation on your part.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue, New York
For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds
Made in the U. S. A.

THE TELEGRAM
now has the largest paid circulation in
CLARKSBURG, W. VA.
13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday
guaranteed.
Member Audit Bureau of Circulations
Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

CLINE SYSTEM
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO
QUALITY NAME SERVICE FAME CLINE WESTINGHOUSE
Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control is used by
Columbus Dispatch
Columbus, Ohio
Ask them about it.
CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.
Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS
A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

MRS. MELONEY JOINS N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE

Former Editor of Delineator Named Sunday Magazine Editor—Arthur Folwell Becomes Art Director

Mrs. William Brown Meloney, until recently editor of Delineator, has been appointed editor of the New York Herald Tribune Sunday Magazine, according to an announcement made this week by Ogden Reid, editor.

Mrs. William B. Meloney

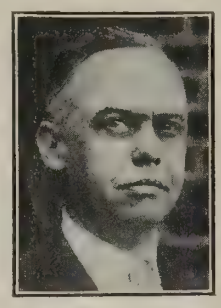
Mrs. Meloney succeeds Arthur Folwell, who has been appointed art director of the Herald Tribune.



Prior to taking over the direction of Delineator in 1920, Mrs. Meloney was associate editor of Everybody's for three years, editor of Woman's Magazine, staff member of the New York Sun, and occupied a seat in the Press Gallery in Washington—the first woman ever to be so honored.

In discussing her appointment, Mrs. Meloney said: "Since newspaper work was my first love, I am happy to return to it. In the past twenty years there has been a tremendous change in the attitude of the reading public toward newspapers.

"People are no longer willing to wait for monthly publications to learn what is going on in the world of art and science, and what the best minds are thinking with regard to matters of international interest.

"Consequently newspapers have had to absorb the best there is in magazines and combine it with the news. There is a solidity to the content of newspaper magazines that was not found formerly."

Among Mrs. Meloney's contributions to Delineator of special interest to women were:

Arthur Folwell

The breaking down of the prejudice among physicians and surgeons against appearing with signed articles in lay publications. She persuaded Dr. Will Mayo of Rochester to contribute a series of articles on cancer, and Dr. L. Emmett Holt to write articles on the bringing up of children.

The raising of money to rebuild the town nearest the great American Argonne cemetery, and the raising of money to buy a gram of radium for Mme. Curie, and to provide her with an income for life.

The founding of Better Homes in America, which was incorporated as a public service corporation with Herbert Hoover as president and financed by the Laura Spellman Rockefeller Foundation. Committees were formed in 3,200 cities in the U. S. this year and it was estimated that 19,000,000 persons passed through the model houses.

Mrs. Meloney was decorated in 1917 with the Medaille de Charleroi, for service in behalf of Belgian children and in 1919, with the Ordre de la Reine Elisabeth for distinguished service to Belgian cause in U. S., and also with the Chevalier Legion d'Honneur of France as organizer of the Marie Curie Radium Committee.

Mrs. Meloney is the widow of William Brown Meloney, who was an editorial writer for the Herald Tribune for several months, specializing in comment upon shipping.

Mr. Folwell, whom Mrs. Brown is succeeding, first joined the Herald Tribune in 1916. He left for a while to go with the Leslie-Judge publications, and returned five years ago to become Sunday Magazine editor. His association with feature writers and illustrators began in 1902 when he succeeded Harry Leon Wilson as editor of Puck. Mr. Folwell is himself a contributor of light verse and prose to the Saturday Evening Post, the Ladies' Home Journal, Life, The New Yorker, and numerous other periodicals.

CADETT GOES TO COAST

Thomas T. E. Cadett, foreign subeditor of the London Times and first newspaper man appointed as junior fellow under the American Newspaper Fellowships in memory of Walter Hines Page, started this week for his first American job. He will report to the San Francisco Chronicle about Aug. 1 and after two months there will start eastward with short working periods at various newspaper centres. He will conclude his year with a work on New York newspapers.

JEFFRESS IS AGENCY RECEIVER

Court Names Greensboro Publisher to Administer Carl J. Balliett, Inc.

Carl J. Balliett, Inc., advertising agency of Greensboro, N. C., was last week placed in the hands of a receiver by Judge T. B. Finley, at Albemarle. Action for a receiver was brought by the North State Engraving Company, of Greensboro, creditor to the amount of $3,297, for itself and other creditors.

In its answer to the complaint of the North State Engraving Company, the agency admits that it is unable to pay the plaintiff and other creditors, and "believes that the best interest of all its creditors and of its stockholders will be best served by the court, acting through a receiver, taking charge."

E. B. Jeffress, mayor of Greensboro and manager of the Greensboro Daily News, was named as receiver. It was stated that the assets and liabilities are about equal, approximating $90,000 each. Both firms occupy space in the Daily News building.

PROGRESS EDITION FOR TARHEELS

The Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News will put out a "progress" edition of its paper some time during August. The edition will feature the progress of the state in various phases in the last quarter of a century. The vice-chairman of the state board of Charities and Public Welfare, A. W. McAlister, of Greensboro, will contribute an article on the progress which has been made in public welfare work, as one of the articles which will compose the edition.

COAL FIELD DAILIES MERGE

The Mahanoy City (Pa.) Record-American has purchased the plant and good-will of the Mahanoy Press, and the latter paper was suspended July 17. James H. Kirchner and David B. Davies are owners of the Record-American. The Mahanoy Press was the official organ of the United Mine Workers in District No. 9 and was edited by James A. Sullivan and managed by Edward R. Williams.

Read Editor & Publisher—$4 a year

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization
Wire or Write us at Exchange Bldg.. 717-718 Commercial LOS ANGELES

Eight Out of Every Ten

Regular Readers of

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Renew their subscriptions year after year. And many's the ten in which one or both of the other two come back into the family as soon as they begin missing its inspiring, helpful weekly visits.

ISN'T THIS A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE TO THE VALUE OF THE SERVICE OF The Newspaper Man's Newspaper

The National Advertiser's Guide to Markets and Media

The Agency's One Authentic Source of All the Facts and Figures Upon Which National Newspaper Advertising is Based?

If you are not already getting EDITOR & PUBLISHER the coupon below will start it coming to you right away.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER,
Times Bldg., New York, N. Y.

Send me Editor & Publisher every week for a year, including with my subscription at no extra cost all the Special Numbers and the International Year Book and Space Buyers' Guide, as they are issued during the term of my subscription. Enclosed is my check for $.....
(Or, if you prefer, send me your bill.)

Name .....
Address .....
Paper (or Company) .....
Title or Position .....

Subscription Price, $4 per year
(In Canada, 50c extra; Foreign, $1 extra)

321 Satisfied Subscribers

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

AME CORRESPONDENTS FOR PRESS CONGRESS

therings at Geneva and Lausanne ept. 14-18—Front Seats in League of Nations Hall Assigned Delegates

News-gathering associations of the rld are assigning their representatives report the Third Press Congress of World to be held in Geneva and usanne, Switzerland, September 14-18. e sessions on Tuesday and Wednesday, t. 14-15, will be held in Geneva, and sessions on Thursday, Friday and urday, Sept. 16-18, will be held at usanne, following which the official ty will tour Europe.

he Polish Telegraph Agence, with dquarters at Warsaw, will be repre-ted by Pierre Gorecki, general man-r; Leon Chrzanowski, correspondent Geneva, and Paul Kleczkowski, cor-pondent in Paris.

gence Avala, with headquarters in grade, Jugoslavia, will have a repre-tative present.

Paul Scott Mowrer, director in Eu-e for the Chicago Daily News, and lliam Bird, European director for the solidated Press Association will go n Paris to attend the sessions, and S. bar Weyer, manager for Central Eu-e, located at Berlin, will represent the rnational News Service.

Russell Kennedy, managing director Tokio, Japan, and Hugh A. Studdert medy, director in America, located at Francisco, will represent the Russell-nedys, Inc., Interpretative News Ser-s, of Tokio.

. Terry Champion, London repre-ative of the Canadian Press, and F. Ellis, publisher of the St. John Globe, -president of the Canadian Press, will resent that organization.

uy Innes, London representative, and W. Tonkin, Jr., editor-manager, will esent the Australian Newspaper le Service, and Joseph E. Starkey, eva correspondent, the Associated s. The United Press will also have men in attendance, who like the r correspondents will not only cover Press Congress of the World ses-s, but will also report the League of ons which will be in session at Ge-, and to which the members of the s Congress party will be accorded t seats in the Press Gallery.

l interim committees of the Press gress will make reports upon data ered during the past year on such ects as news communications by s, radio, telephone, mail, etc.; the in-nange of journalists; journalistic edu-n, journalistic organizations, jour-ltic ethics and standards of practice. e subjects will be discussed from the , and representatives of the press ll countries will participate in the ission.

e official party from the United s, Hawaii, Canada, and South and ral American countries will gather ew York City Aug. 31 for several of sight-seeing and entertainment e sailing on the Carmania, Sept. 4. New York City Publishers and the d Trades will be the hosts.

rangements for entertainments in York are going foward, as are also gements for entertainment in Gen-Lausanne, Paris, London and other and towns to be visited on the tour h will place the party in Southamp-Oct. 9 for the westward voyage .

TENBORN TO STUDY RUSSIA

klyn Eagle Associate Editor Also Going to Geneva

V. Kaltenborn, associated editor of Brooklyn Eagle, sailed July 22 on Stockholm" on a survey trip through ern Europe. His itinerary will him through Sweden, Finland, a and Poland. His most extensive will be in Russia where he plans ake a special study of the Soviet system. In Sweden and Finland he will inquire into the way these two countries handle the liquor problem. While at Warsaw he hopes to observe conditions under the new Pilsudski dictatorship.

Mr. Kaltenborn is a member of the World Press Congress, which meets at Geneva Sept. 14-18. He hopes to arrive at the seat of the League of Nations in time to witness Germany's admission to membership. In the course of the Press Congress he will deliver an address on "Radio and the Press."

ERIE TIMES ADDS TO HOME

Annex Costing $40,000 to Adjoin Two-Year Old Main Plant

A $40,000 addition is being built to the new Erie (Pa.) Times building. The main building was completed just two years ago and the additional space will consist of a store front, second floor offices and paper storage space in the basement.

The addition will be 40 x 80 feet. The main Times building is 65 x 165 feet, two stories high with provisions for three additional stories. It was completed in March, 1924, at a cost of over $250,000. Its basement now has a paper storage capacity of 14 carloads. The addition will take some of this storage space which is on falsework over a press pit.

PRESS AGENT TOUCHES OF THE WEEK

New Insurance Policy Offered as "News"—Hooking N. E. A. to Free Space Campaign—Concealed "Celotex" Copy

Among the business institutions soliciting free advertising this week from the newspapers was the Southland Life Insurance Co., whose publicity manager offered as "news" the following:

"DALLAS Texas, July—Answering a long-felt need, The Southland Life Insurance Co. announces a new policy to be known as the 'Paid Up at Age 65 Policy.' The rates on the policy are slightly higher than those for the ordinary life policy and much lower than those for the '20-pay life,' the new policy having as its feature the fact that all payments cease at age 65 when the earning power of most men decreases appreciably."

In justice to the man who wrote this free advertisement it must be said that in his covering letter he expressed "hesitancy" in offering it. "We try," said he, "never to send out a story that does not contain sufficient news to justify its publication." As one editor remarked to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, "This Dallas item does not indicate to me any particular effort to discriminate between advertising and news."

A press agent for fruit interests of California has just broadcast a picture of the members of the N. E. A. seated at banquet tables "eating Calavo Ice Cream made of California Avocados." The caption read, "News Kings Discover Calavo Delicacy." How that press agent must have grinned as he went about his job of hooking the press with the faces of the members of the N. E. A! The envelope in which the free publicity was mailed was labelled "Gordon S. Chapman, publicity director N. E. A., Los Angeles, California."

Another free publicity offer of the week came from the Celotechnic Institute of Chicago, to advertise Celotex, a building material. Architectural plans for homes were offered in mat form, Celotex being specified in the text descriptions, but always with a lowercase "c."

In a covering letter the institute's press agent asserted that the Institute was "established as a public service to aid home builders in the construction of better homes and to place at their disposal the very latest scientific discoveries along building lines."

Plates of this free advertising were offered through the Western Newspaper Union.

Business Is Good in Indiana—with 4909 Establishments and $2,031,821,938 in Value of Manufactured Products.

Business has never been better in Indiana. Its mills and factories are producing. Its workers are employed steadily and bank clearances were never greater.

Indiana is forging to the front as a great industrial State. A rich farming country and a State where contented workers are buying the better things.

Reach these buyers through the daily papers, the home medium.

Merchandizing and distribution Service given National Advertisers.

		Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Columbus Republican	(E)	4,912	.03
††Connersville News-Examiner	(E)	4,681	.025
††Decatur Democrat	(E)	3,215	.025
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette	(M)	35,247	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette	(S)	28,468	.08
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel	(E)	43,365	.10
Gary Evening Post-Tribune	(E)	15,514	.06
Huntington Press	(M&S)	4,079	.025
††Indianapolis News	(E)	128,341	.25
Lafayette Journal & Courier	(M) 7,878 (E) 13,583	21,461	.06
††La Porte Herald-Argus	(E)	6,726	.04
Marion Chronicle	(E)	9,364	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat	(E)	4,012	.025
South Bend News-Times	(M) 9,751 (E) 16,603	26,354	.07
South Bend News-Times	(S)	24,500	.07
††South Bend Tribune	(S) 21,431 (E)	22,254	.06
††Terre Haute Tribune	(E&S)	23,442	.06

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1925.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

THREE-YEAR TEST OF 1925 POSTAL RATES COVERTLY URGED IN WASHINGTON

Post Office Department Encourages Delay and Despite Promises of a Bill, Next Session Will Be "Too Short" for Legislation

By BART CAMPBELL

(Washington Correspondent of EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

WASHINGTON, July 20—Post Office Department officials are secretly disseminating the idea it would be better to give the existing make-shift postal rates a three-year try-out before attempting to revise them, it was disclosed to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week.

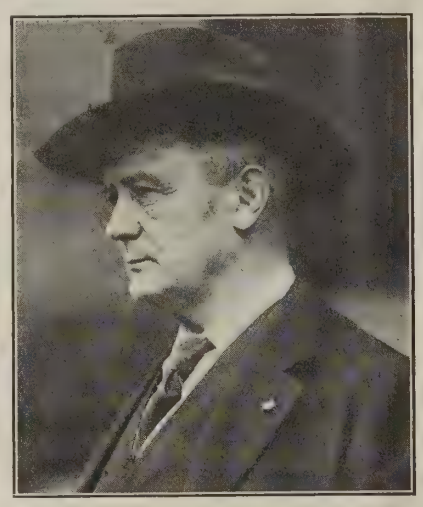
The idea is being put out as a "feeler" among members of Congress as well as among others in official circles at the National Capital who profess to entertain the greatest respect for the "power of the press" but are known to have secretly enjoyed the failure of the publishing interests to secure a cut in second-class rates at the late session of Congress.

While representatives of the publishing interests are now being patted on the back in the midst of a Congressional campaign by members of the joint Congressional postal committee, of which Senator George H. Moses, of New Hampshire, is chairman, and are now being told the next regular session opening in December should bring a revision of second class rates, the opinion is being quietly fostered here the session may prove too short to permit the enactment of such "controversial" legislation.

This opinion is being encouraged by Post Office Department officials who are opposing any immediate return to lower second-class rates. In their case, the wish may be said to be father to the thought.

Publishing and other groups demanding a reduction in rates are receiving what purport to be official assurance that a "postal bill will be brought up next session," it was stated, this week, "and they are accepting this as a promise that it will be passed."

This statement, supporting information gathered in other channels by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, added this forecast:



"The feeling of those who know the postal situation here is that the session will be too short and the differences of aim in the various groups too divergent, to make probable any effective rate reduction. The private comment emanating from the Post Office Department is to the effect that the present rates will have to be retained for two years yet."

The present "stop-gap" rates, a term given them at the time by Chairman Moses, became effective on April 15 of last year. The next session of Congress starting in December will end early in March, and will not be followed by another one for another nine months unless Congress should be called in special session by President Coolidge, a course hardly likely to be followed by him except in case of most imperative necessity.

The Post Office Department admittedly would like to see the situation, especially as it involves the publishing interests and second class matter, drift on until April 15, 1928, thereby providing a three-year period of delay which would permit its "experts" to stave off further any proposed reduction in the rates for carrying newspapers and magazines.

With the majority of the Senate and House post office committees manifestly willing to bend to any suggestion emanating from the Post Office Department, whether it opposes a cut in second class rates, or some other legislative proposal with which the publishing interests are concerned, the chances of any real postal legislation being passed at the next session appear from the further canvass made this week by EDITOR & PUBLISHER to be just as remote as they were at the last session.

The Post Office Department is obviously determined the publishing interests shall not secure any legislation from Congress unless it first has the Department's approval. In the opinion of experienced observers here the sooner the publishing interests unite on a determined campaign to offset in both Senate and House this thus far successful "dog-in-the-manger" attitude of the Department the better the chances of a reduction of second class rates are likely to be.

Postmaster General Harry S. New.

His department encourages delay in revising onerous rates on second class mail.

The prevailing judgment at Washington is, however, that unless the publishing interests do get busy and exert the right kind of pressure upon Senators and Congressmen alike before Congress meets again about all they will continue to receive from the Senate and House post office committees, as well as from the joint Congressional postal committee will be the same kind of light promises which were so glibly made but never kept by Chairman Moses and his associates during the recent session which ended in no postal legislation at all.

NEW PROMOTION MANAGER

Calvin E. Austin has been appointed promotion manager of the Chicago Herald-Examiner. Austin joins the Hearst organization from Lord & Thomas Advertising Agency where he handled the Studebaker Automobile account.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER classified "ads" pull!

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

TULSA WORLD EXPANDING

Adds Four Stories to Plant and Orders Two New Presses

More than $300,000 will be spent for new equipment by the Tulsa (Okla.) World, it was announced last week by Eugene Lorton, publisher. Four stories will be added to the World's present building, making it when completed, nine stories and basement.

Two octuple presses have been ordered from R. Hoe & Co., Inc., and composing room equipment will be increased by several linotypes.

The remodeled building will be ready for occupancy Nov. 1, and the World will occupy the lower three floors and basement.

NEWS MEN VISIT SESQUI

Twelve Indiana newspaper men left last Saturday for a two-day visit at the sesquicentennial exposition at Philadelphia, as guests of William W. Finch, secretary-treasurer of the Indiana advisory committee of the exposition. Those who made the trip are Adolph Schmuch, Indianapolis News; Ross H. Garrigus, Indianapolis Times; Earl Mushlitz, Indianapolis Star; Humbert P. Pagini, Indiana Catholic and Record; Myron R. Green, J. C. Smith, Seymour Tribune; F. J. Prince, Richmond; R. H. Horst, South Bend Tribune; Robert C. Hillis, Logansport Press; John R. Emison, Vincennes; Edward J. Fehn, Evansville Courier-Journal, and R. Earl Peters, Fort Wayne.

FUND FOR MAHONY FAMILY

Friends and associates of the late John F. Mahony, Boston newspaper and publicity man, whose death occurred recently at Douglaston, N. Y., have started a fund for his family as a public tribute to his memory. The first contribution was that of $2,800 from a group of New York friends. Several hundred dollars more have been added by Boston friends. Pl are under way for an outdoor box bout, the proceeds of which will go ward the fund. Charles E. Young, B ton Post, is chairman of the tribute co mittee.

BULKLEY S. GRIFFIN MARRIES

Bulkley S. Griffin of the Griffin Ne paper Service, Springfield, Mass., Isabelle Wilson Kinnear were mar Thursday in the Cathedral of St. J the Divine, New York. Griffin is son of late widely known manag editor of the Springfield Republican.

C. F. STOUT PROMOTED

Chauncey F. Stout, for the last years in charge of the circulation dep ment of the Plainfield (N. J.) Cour News, has ben named business mana to succeed the late Charles H. Fr proprietor and manager for many ye

The Average Sunday Circulation of

LA PRENSA

of

Buenos Aires

has increased to 290,000

since the installation of its ROTO GRAVURE plant last Autumn. Th reception of the weekly eight-page pic ture supplement was so enthusiastic tha a second big press was ordered imme diately to take care of increased circu lation. Increases also extended to th daily edition, which now average 235,000.

For Information and Rates Apply to

JOSHUA B. POWERS

Exclusive Advertising Representative,

250 Park Avenue New Yor

"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

You can't run a shoe store without shoes—or succeed with a classified medium that isn't really classified.

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.

International Classified Advertising Counsellors

Packard Building Philadelphia

FLORIDA

continues to be the fastest growin state in the Union.

TAMPA

is the recognized industrial cent and the most substantial city Florida.

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

is the only morning and the onl Sunday newspaper in Tampa, cove ing the entire rich, productive ar populous territory of Southwe Florida, reaching a population 713,943.

200,000 Daily Readers.
300,000 Sunday Readers

Represented nationally by The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency.

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

THE WELFARE COMMITTE of the INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGER ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with com petent circulation men c capacity and ability capabl to take entire charge of you department or to fill impor tant posts in the department

Address the Secretary Treasurer please, Mr. Cla ence Eyster, care Sta Building, Peoria, Ill.

WHAT THEY ARE SAYING

REDUCING WASTE

"WASTE in advertising can be reduced. First—By educating those who will become producers and disseminators of advertising, so that counsel ıl be based upon a sound knowledge of fundamental principles. There are many campaigns launched today with no real analysis of markets or study the advertisers' problems."—Hal S. King, Advertising Club of Los Angeles.

* * *

WORLD PRESS CAN PERPETUATE PEACE

"THAT the press of the world is today the greatest moulder of public opinion is universally conceded. That this press, were it united in an ort to promote and perpetuate peace on earth could accomplish more in this lection than any other single agency, seems quite as indisputable."—John B. ndrick, U. S. Senator, Wyoming.

* * *

ADVERTISING AIDS BUSINESS GROWTH

"I SINCERELY believe intelligent advertising is as much responsible for the healthy growth of a business institution as the guiding hand of the sident and his board, or the managers, or production and sales. The influ- e of advertising is one of the great constructive forces in America."—M. H. lesworth, managing director, National Electric Light Association.

* * *

THE DANGERS OF ADVERTISING WASTE

"ADVERTISING must eliminate waste or waste will eliminate adver- tising. We cannot go on indefinitely, squandering huge fortunes in ional advertising for products that are not nationally distributed. Manu- eturers cannot afford to pay $10,000 a page just to get you and me to clip coupon or write for the booklet and then ignore or fumble the inquiry."—Raymond P. Kelly, Spokane Advertising Club.

* * *

LESS FANCY SALESMANSHIP

"WHAT this country needs is less of this fancy salesmanship and a more sincere desire to honestly serve people. This cry for 'go-getters' and ng home the bacon, boys' and 'wrecking crews' gives me a chill. Who wants ers that are taken by men using laughing gas and lead pipes? Believe me, ers are looking for sellers who have good stuff to sell at fair prices. Buyers looking for courtesy, promptness, intelligence. Give them these and you can nt on their continued business."—The Toledo.

* * *

"DON'T UNDERSELL COMPETITORS"

"DON'T undersell competitors to sell your own medium. There is no solicitation so distasteful to space buyers as an underselling solicitation. hen your publication is left off a list, do not go to client with a constructive ng story on additional advertising. Talk coverage of markets through the ition of your publications. Give wise, economic reasons for the addition of r media. Yet recognize the client's financial limitations lest you sell un- ly."—Don Belding, Space Buyer, Lord & Thomas & Logan, Before blishers' Representative Departmental, Pacific Coast Ad Clubs.

HINA ALUMNI GROUP FORMED

of Missouri Graduates in Shanghai Elect Wang President

he University of Missouri School of nalism Alumni Association, Shanghai nch, was formed Friday, June 11, n ten graduates and former students the University were entertained at er by P. Y. Wang, assistant business ager of the Shun Pao, Chinese daily. hose present were: Messrs. J. B. ell, editor and publisher, China kly Review; Thomas F. Millard, nghai correspondent, New York es; P. Y. Wang, of the Shun Pao; F. McEuen, formerly of the Tokio n Advertiser staff, who is leaving for United States by way of Russia after years in Japan; Maurice Votaw, in- tor in journalism at St. John's Uni- ity, Shanghai; Horace L. Felton, ch China Daily News staff; Norman lbright, China Weekly Review, and es Louise B. Wilson, editor of the en's page, North China Daily News; Chang, publicity department, Shang- Y. W. C. A., and Margaret C. ell, publicity, British-American To- o Company.

Y. Wang was elected president of organization and Miss Louise B. on secretary-treasurer.

HART'S WILL SET ASIDE

The long drawn out litigation in the Orphan's Court of Allegheny County of John Scott Hartje and Mary Louise Hartje Rambach, children of the late Augustus Hartje, paper manufacturer of Pittsburgh, Pa., who died in August, 1922, came to an end on July 20 when Judge Thomas Trimble made a formal order, setting aside the will, which disinherited the two children. At the same time announcement was made that a settlement had been effected between the children and the brother and sisters of Mr. Hartje who were made beneficiaries under the will. Under the terms of the settlement the children receive 60 per cent of the estate which is valued at about $650,000. The other relatives will divide 40 per cent of the estate. The children had been disinherited because of their loyalty to their mother against whom Mr. Hartje had filed suit for a divorce.

HONOR FOR WELLS HAWKS

The Theatrical Press Representatives of America has just elected as its president emeritus Wells Hawks who recently removed to Florida to handle the Florida Exposition. Mr. Hawks founded the organization and was its president for three years.

Very Shortly, Now, Five Thousand Typewriters in the 1300 American Cities and Towns where Daily Newspapers are Published will begin clicking out the changes, corrections and additions necessary to bring

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S

MARKET GUIDE

up to the minute as the only thoroughly complete, authentic, unbiased, universally consulted and used compendium of the thousands upon thousands of facts and figures which picture the exact trading conditions in the markets covered by the daily newspapers of the country.

Already National Advertisers and Agencies are renewing their subscriptions or placing new ones, so as to be sure to get their copy of the 1926 Edition, out in November. Never a day—scarcely a mail—passes without its inquiries, its orders, its expressions of appreciation of the Service.

AND—foresighted Publishers are already thinking and acting in terms of the space they will use in this great Annual, to cash in on its unparalleled opportunities for telling National Advertisers and Agencies why THEIR papers can be used to advantage in covering these markets. How soon will you join them?

Full particulars on request—no obligations

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Suite 1700, Times Building, Broadway and 42d Street,

NEW YORK

MARTIN NOTED EDITOR AND PUBLICIST

Late Editor Built Successful Hudson Dispatch from Dead Weekly —Had Long Career in Politics

In the death on July 20 of Thomas F. Martin, editor and publisher of the Hudson Dispatch, Union City, N. J., and Secretary of State of New Jersey, journalism in the New York metropolitan area loses a striking figure. Taking over a bankrupt weekly newspaper in 1901, while himself without resources, Thomas F. Martin quickly converted the Hudson Dispatch into a successful daily newspaper.

THOMAS F. MARTIN

While it is true that Mr. Martin's political interest and achievements in recent years tended to eclipse his journalistic accomplishments in the minds of many, he was a much more able and intelligent editor than was generally realized.

Born in Hartford, Conn., on Jan. 30, 1858, Mr. Martin moved with his parents to Vermont in early youth. At seventeen he owned his own newspaper in Rutland. Seeking a wider field, he came to New York in 1898, crossed on the ferry to Hoboken, and came up to the town then known as Union Hill, now a part of Union City.

Unable to find an opening as a reporter, he took a job as printer on the Hudson Dispatch. Three years later the struggling weekly, which had been edited by John T. O'Brien, died. Mr. Martin, a twenty-two dollar a week reporter, with a wife and three children to support, assumed ownership. All he had to offer for the property was a promise to pay for it out of the prospective earnings.

He kept his promise. Within a remarkably short time, the Dispatch became an afternoon daily.

In 1912, Mr. Martin determined to enter the morning field.

Meanwhile the influence and power of the Dispatch had been increasing, and in 1912 Mr. Martin, then assemblyman in New Jersey, dared to give battle to Woodrow Wilson on the issue of the gubernatorial nomination. Mr. Martin's candidate, James F. Fielder, won the nomination and election after the Dispatch had brought Wilson to practically ask his candidate to withdraw.

Mr. Martin was "marked, labelled and remembered" by Wilson, who seldom forgot an animosity. Yet Mr. Martin's ability was so widely recognized that he later became one of President Wilson's advisers. In 1915, Mr. Martin was appointed Secretary of State for New Jersey.

Probably the greatest victory of Mr. Martin's life, both journalistically and politically, came when he succeeded through the strong influence of the Dispatch, in bringing about consolidation of two of the seven towns in North Hudson County.

In 1904 the Dispatch had endeavored to bring about the same result, and met with a failure that would have disheartened a less determined man. Fighting the prejudice of generations, the Dispatch continued the battle alone. In 1924, after 20 years, the initial victory came with the uniting of Union Hill and West Hoboken into Union City.

As editor, Mr. Martin deservedly won the respect and admiration of all his fellow workers. One reporter who developed tuberculosis two years after joining the Dispatch staff, still draws his full salary, 18 months later, although forced to live in the mountains. The widow of a hunchback reporter who died in 1924 continues to draw her husband's salary each week at the Dispatch office.

Numerous officials and dignitaries, among them Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey and U. S. District Judge William Runyon attended the funeral as honorary pall-bearers. Mr. Martin's body was interred in a mausoleum in Union City.

Obituary

FRANK C. BIRDSALL, 70, for 35 years secretary and treasurer of the Denver Typographical Union, was found dead recently in his apartment. Death was caused by heart disease.

E. POTTER HALL, for a decade a member of the Spokane (Wash.) Spokesman-Review editorial staff, died at Conkling Park, Idaho, recently after a long illness.

ARTHUR C. PARKER, treasurer of the Boston Newswriters' Union No. 1, and an old time Boston newspaperman who was connected with the Boston Post as reporter for the past 20 years, died at his home in Roxbury, Mass., last week. He formerly was employed on the old Boston Journal.

MIECZYSLAW S. DUNIN, 59, editor of the Toledo American Echo, died of heart disease at his home in that city this week.

JOHN R. HESS, 67, for 35 years an editorial and special writer and photographer for the Providence (R. I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin, died in Providence, July 17.

CHARLES H. HOWLAND, 66, for 20 years an editorial writer on the Providence (R. I.) Journal and Evening Bulletin and for 24 years recording clerk for the House of Representatives in Rhode Island, died recently in Providence.

ROGER W. FOSTER, 24, telegraph editor of the Springfield (O.) News, died of pneumonia this week after a short illness. He was formerly night editor of the Cleveland Times.

CHARLES A. SCHIERLOH, 62, manager of the Ottawa (O.) Putnam County Sentinel, died suddenly of heart disease a few days ago. He had occupied virtually every position on the paper since joining it in 1880.

F. A. GORDON, 32, advertising manager of the Albert Lea (Minn.) Evening Tribune, died July 14, following an operation for appendicitis. He had worked on the paper four years.

WILLIAM B. WELLS, 81, veteran Michigan newspaper man, died this week in Greenville, Mich. Born in England, Wells went to Greenville at the age of 24, and ten years later started the town's first daily newspaper, the Greenville Call, which he managed until two years ago.

FRANCIS MARION SANDERS, 65, and for 25 years identified with Long Beach, Cal., newspapers in various editorial capacities, died last week. He started his career on the Evansville (Ind.) Courier as a boy. Six months later he became sporting editor, and when he was but 18 years old, was appointed city editor of the Evansville Journal. He was for many years connected with the staff of the Los Angeles (Cal.) Times. In 1901, Mr. Sanders went to work on the old Long Beach, (Cal.) Tribune as foreman of the composing room, and within two months became city editor. In 1906 he became city editor of the old Long Beach Daily Telegram. When the Telegram merged with the Press in 1924 he was appoin librarian of the Press-Telegram.

AGENCY MAN DIES

Fred Gordon Hatcher, 60, head of Hatcher and Young advertising age 508 South Dearborn street, Chicago, d July 17, at the age of 60, following operation. He had been ill for months. Mr. Hatcher was born in L ington, O., and came to Chicago in 18 when he was 20 years old. He was of the founders of the firm of which was president for 25 years. His wid Mrs. Lydia Hatcher, and one son s vive him.

EARLY MASS FOR PRINTERS

For the benefit of printers employed morning newspapers an early morn mass is to be held each Sunday morn at 1:30 o'clock in Saint Colomba's chu in Buffalo. No other New York s city outside of New York has suc service. it is said.

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

and

Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of

New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American

are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office: F. E. CRAWFORD, Western Manager, 913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office: FRANKLIN PAYNE, Representative, 1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

—gives you more on each count

The Miami Herald gives you—

—15% more circulation—95% home-delivered;

—58% more advertising to help carry your own;

—a wider audience among the more substantial Miami families;

—thus, more ready access to a market that demands more and more attention —that is growing more rapidly than any other in the world.

Facts easily verified.

The Miami Herald

"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"

Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

NEW YORK STATE

Westchester County's

Fastest Growing Cities

Mount Vernon and New Rochelle and The Vicinity Towns

Are Covered Completely by

THE DAILY ARGUS

of

Mount Vernon

THE STANDARD STAR

of

New Rochelle

Both Members of A. B. C.

Westchester Newspapers, Inc.

Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

Lafayette Young
Publisher

COX TRIBUTE TO MELLETT

(Continued from page 6)

He, and he alone, more than any en or any group of citizens in Canton, d before them and the loot which dragging their souls to the very gates ell. What cruel men they must have
! Years ago, when the murder trials ving out of the Idaho labor troubles being conducted, a confession was e by one of the guilty wretches who Governor Steunenberg. It ran in ds substantially like these: "We fold the governor one evening to his
e. As he went through the gate we two little children running towards We turned away. We didn't have heart to shoot; we had to wait for her occasion. These little ones took us the power or the courage to pull trigger to kill."
the shadow of his home, with his little children asleep in their beds, Mellett was cruelly murdered. The of conscience which tempered the o assassins had no effect in the pres-instance. No doubt the men who d were professional gunmen. Au-ities on criminal practices are con-ed that on enterprises such as this, drug themselves in order that they be steeled agaist human emotions.
se drugs, perchance, were brought to ton by the very ring which has de-led government and left in its path isery strewn with unfortunate addicts.
on Mellett was not a crusader bent adventure. He sought neither to oit himself nor his newspaper. He ussed with me once how disagreeable affair it was. He was moved purely a sense of duty.
ow foolish were the assassins and e who goaded them on! The taking a single life in the present circum-ces is of no avail. When a general s at the head of his army, the spec-e of his sacrifice moves his followers ard to increased devotion to the cause.
soul of Don Mellett will go marching o one deserving of the name of citizen s to know now that what Don Mellett was so in Canton, is so. In fact, conditions are even worse than pic-

d. The cruel deed of assassination is ndant evidence of that.
is sad to think that his career ended t did, in the very flower of his young hood, and yet time will not be long revealing that the aggregated results his labors were stupendous. The sig-ance of his death will be more genercommented upon later. That is the of continuing days. Crooks, offi-and otherwise, have but made matters se for themselves.
am moved now by an impulse to pay a le tribute to an honest, courageous,
-fearing public servant, because a spaper publisher whose deeds match meaning of the term is nothing else.
met all the requirements of fine cit-ship. He deserves the joys of an immortality into which he has certainly entered.

DONAHEY VOWS PUNISHMENT

Mellett's Murder Most Atrocious Crime in State's History, Says Governor

PHILADELPHIA, July 20—Governor Donahey, of Ohio, who came to the sesquicentennial here today to dedicate the Ohio Building pledged himself to the task of running down the slayer of Don Mellett, murdered publisher of the Canton Daily News.

"The State Government will leave no stone unturned," he said, "to see the ends of justice properly served and the man responsible for the crime be made to expiate the wrong doing.

"It was one of the most atrocious crimes in the history of Ohio and the entire commonwealth is aroused. I am much upset. I knew Don Mellett personally. He was a fine chap and his death is the most regrettable thing I ever heard."

NATIONAL PRESS CLUB ADDS TO STATURE

Special Legislation Permits Addition of 3 Stories to Original 11—New Preferred Stock Issue of $1,500,000

By special act of Congress, the National Press Club's new building in Washington will be permitted an additional height of three stories over the regular structural limit in Washington and the plans have been changed to provide a 14-story building. The old plan was for an 11-story building. To build this additional height a new issue of $1,500,000 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock has been offered. This issue is also designed to consolidate all junior financing into a single security issue, retiring two existing junior trusts aggregating $950,000.

The stock issue, according to the directors' announcement, represents an actual increase of only $550,000 in liabilities against the property, while providing an increase in physical assets estimated at $1,760,000 due to the larger rentable area.

Members of the club this week received the prosperties of the altered building and an opportunity to subscribe for the new stock.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESS IN SESSION

150 Meet at Hickory with Mercury at Century Mark—S. N. P. A. President a Speaker—Agency Suit Discussed

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

HICKORY, N. C., July 22.—The North Carolina Press Association, with the thermometer hovering near the century mark, plunged into a heavy program today after an opening session last night. The publishers more than 150 strong, heard the annual president's address by J. W. Atkins, publisher of the Gastonia (N. C.) Gazette, a discussion of newspapers as public utilities by John A. Park, president of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association and publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times and an address by Galt Braxton, publisher ot the Kinston Free Press, on the fight for agency commission rights before the Federal Trade Commission.

The convention opened last night with an address by Dr. Forrest J. Prettyman, Chaplain of the United States Senate during the Wilson and Roosevelt administrations. He declared that war clouds hovered over the world, paid high tribute to Woodrow Wilson and expressed the opinion Wilson's League of Nations, if adopted would have prevented great troubles now menacing civilization.

Mr. Braxton declared if the fight before the Federal Trade Commission is lost the entire business structure of newspapers would have to be made over. His address was delivered in executive session.

The Separk prize for the best newspaper work in the state during the year and the Savoy Cup for the best weekly paper were to be awarded at tomorrow's session.

The matter of a permanent full-time secretary for the organization also was to be considered Friday.

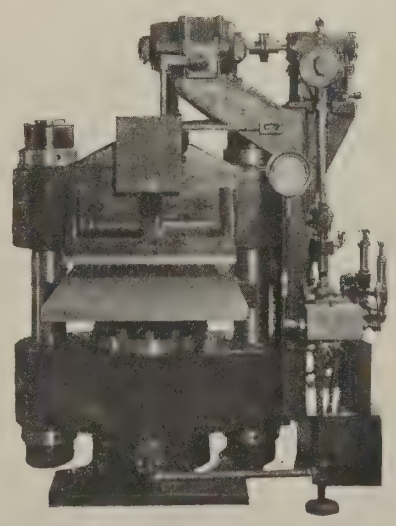
VIRGINIA WEEKLY MERGER

The Valley Virginian, a weekly newspaper published at Waynesboro, established in 1896 by Col. J. E. Cooke, has acquired the subscription list of the Waynesboro Times and will, in the future, be edited by Louis F. Jordan, Waynesboro lawyer, with Miss Marion Cooke, daughter of the founder, as local editor. J. Taylor Collins, formerly editor of the Times, will enter the service of the Virginian as an advertising representative.

NEW LIBERTY EXECUTIVE

Nelson R. Perry has been appointed advertising manager of Liberty, effective July 15, succeeding J. B. Linerd, resigned. Perry joined Liberty in November, 1924, as Eastern advertising manager. Previous to that time, he was connected with the New York office of Saturday Evening Post.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER—everyweek—$4 a year.



If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

MICHIGAN
is growing faster than any State in the Union.
Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.
BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
cover Michigan outside of Detroit—Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.
The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News
National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

first! in OHIO
11,492,383 Lines
Dispatch advertising record for the first six months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,665,911 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.
NET PAID CIRCULATION
CITY 55,812
SUBURBAN 26,973
COUNTRY 23,666
Total Daily Circulation.....106,451
Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

A paper with the people
The public decides the progress of a newspaper.
The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.
Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.
With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.
Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS
Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.
AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.
Member A. B. C.
URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America
Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers
Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the
BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes
Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg., New York, N. Y.
Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg., Philadelphia
Waterman Bldg., Boston

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

MR. BARRON SPEAKS

To Editor & Publisher: I regret that you have such a poor opinion of the editors and publishers of the middle west as is indicated by your recent comment upon my offer to certain papers of a 300 line advertisement of the works of Emanuel Swedenborg to follow the publication of an abstract of my recent article in Henry Ford's Dearborn Independent on Galli-Curci and Swedenborg.

For more than 50 years I have understood that newspapers had editors and also publishers; that the business of an editor was to edit, and that the business of a publisher was to serve his elected clientele in the field of advertising, news and comment. I see nothing blameworthy in anybody offering both reading matter and advertising matter for publication. But it seems that you hold, as do some narrow-minded publishers, that it is all right to offer matter for publication, provided there is no possibility of advertising connection, and that the moment advertising appears on the horizon everything in the reading line, news line and editorial line must be judged or measured by the advertisement—just as you measure it—so many inches of agate measurement advertising, and so many inches of reading notice advertising.

In this view editors are permitted no jurisdiction concerning any matter where there may be advertising.

I believe I have had more than 50 years' experience in reporting and publishing, and I think nobody has kept a straighter line of demarcation between news and advertising.

I have never hesitated to give columns of news presentation, valuable to advertisers, and without compensation or prospect of compensation, provided the matter was serviceable or useful to my readers.

If it was not serviceable or useful to my readers the matter was referred to the business and advertising departments.

It may interest you to know that I sold the article on Galli-Curci and Swedenborg to the Dearborn Independent and received handsome check therefor. I thought I had discovered something that might be as interesting to other people as it was to me; that a woman could do what I had never known a man to do—master 32 volumes of Emanuel Swedenborg in a few months. The Dearborn Independent asked for photographs which I reluctantly furnished, because I did not think that my face was worthy to appear in such company.

I pride myself on being a first-class reporter: editing and publishing are secondary matters. But Emanuel Swedenborg was the greatest reporter that ever lived on this planet. He reported practically all the sciences in this world, and then for nearly 30 years he reported concerning the other world, or the world wherein is revealed all the causes in creation.

Of course I understand that the great world movements are rarely at their beginning in the newspapers.

I do not imagine that the Work, or crucifixion, of Jesus the Christ was reported in the news of the day either at Rome or Athens. The revelation of Emanuel Swedenborg concerning all the causes in creation was published by himself in the Latin tongue and placed in the libraries of the world. It has taken 150 years to dig out this revelation and make clear translation into English.

The trustees finished the so-called Rotch Edition translation about 30 years after it was begun, and arranged for publication by the Houghton, Mifflin Company in 32 volumes some years ago.

The problem of how to get this revelation before the public has been a serious one. A million dollars in display advertising might accomplish little; but if the subject of Swedenborg's Works should come interestingly into public view, several thousand dollars in my judgment might be usefully spent in presenting the titles and some description of Swedenborg's Works by advertisement.

My article on Galli-Curci and Swedenborg created considerable interest, and was published in many papers over the country. Mr. Ford's paper does not accept advertising, but wherever this article reappeared or the subject of Galli-Curci and Swedenborg was under discussion, as by Prof. Garrett Serviss in the Hearst publications, I ordered the advertisement of Swedenborg's Works sent to those papers—with the sole idea of following up interesting publicity with informing advertising.

I doubt if you, Mr. Editor, or anybody else could take exception to this procedure. Then it was suggested to me that I should not confine my advertising to the papers in the larger cities.

A study of the movement of population over some years has convinced me that the real thought of this country in the future will arise in the west and not the cities of the east. I therefore accepted a suggestion to make an abstract of my article and send it throughout the west for such papers as wished to publish either this or the full article, to be followed by informing advertising. I have not money enough nor can I earn money enough to put a 200-line advertisement in all the papers of the United States. But it was estimated that some 10 per cent of the smaller newspapers of the country might see their way to give some publicity to my article.

Many more than this number of papers have accepted my proposition, which is not, as you represent it, a proposal either to cut rates or bribe publicity.

Editors and publishers select what they want to publish, and wherever there is publication in that line I propose to follow it with advertising.

The basis of your complaint is that the whole matter is pure advertising, which it is not. The newspapers publish sermons and articles upon religious and theological subjects with no thought of advertising, because neither churches nor ministers can afford to pay for the publication of sermons or religious discussions. Neither can one afford to advertise the Works of Swedenborg as I have proposed to advertise them except when public attention is called to the position of Swedenborg either in the domain of science or revelation.

The only alternative is not to advertise at all lest the publishers take exactly the view that you take, that it is an offense to tender advertising in conjunction with matters of public interest.

I have no expectation that with the expenditure of $50,000 or more I can sell $10,000 in gross value of the books of the Rotch Edition of Swedenborg, but I have hoped that by spreading the record of Galli-Curci in respect to Swedenborg and following it with an advertisement concerning who Swedenborg was, and what his books are, there will be a few hundred people, and in time a few thousand who will thereby find the light and joy that thousands within the Christian churches have already found in an understanding of the internal sense of the Bible. Clarence W. Barron.

Editor's Note—Whether Mr. Barron offered his advertising and publicity to the newspapers with consideration of the right of "editors to edit" our readers may best judge by his letter, dated June 19, 1926, broadcast to publishers of newspapers in the Middle West. That strictly business proposition read as follows:

"To the Publisher:

"The enclosed article originally appeared in The Dearborn Independent, and by courtesy of its publishers I am now able to offer it to you.

"It is meeting with wide acceptance and commendation by the metropolitan newspapers, and I know it will appeal to your readers.

"As I say in my article, I am interested in advertising to the public the value of Swedenborg's works, and the publishing by you of this article entitles you to the insertion of the ad in your paper. Proof of the article and the ad are enclosed.

"The attached post card properly filled in and returned will cover the ad insertion, plate or mat of which, together with the news story, will be sent to you.

"Please mail this card to me promptly.

"This and any further advertising should be billed to Doremus & Company Advertising Agency, the Wall Street Journal Building, 44 Broad street, New York, of which agency I am also president.

"C. W. Barron, Publisher.

"P. S.—Please send to me personally at 'The Oaks,' Cohasset, Mass., two copies of the edition in which you make use of the Galli-Curci article."

The card referred to was as follows:

"Dear Sir:

"Pursuant to your offer, send me the 23-inch advertisement, 'The Most Wonderful Book in the World,' which I will run at ..... per inch less agency discount .....

"In consideration of the above send me at the same time the Galli-Curci article free of cost, which I will insert without additional charge.

"Furnish

"[ ] Mats [ ] Plate.

("Check Which)

"Publisher .....

"Paper .....,

"City ..... State ....."

The advertising was being offered as a business matter, not as a piece of altruism in which editors would be interested, as Mr. Barron now contends. The contract made the advertising contingent upon the publication of the article. It was an integral part consideration. Unless the editor agreed to give his news columns the business office could not have the advertising. Mr. Barron's letter to Editor & Publisher, published herewith, is largely about education, religion, ethics, experience, etc., which are issues wholly beside the point. Editor & Publisher has been discussing a business proposal which Mr. Barron made to newspaper publishers on June 19.

While it is obvious that Mr. Barron has acted ill-advisedly and is all twisted in his second thoughts of the subject, perhaps being indignant that we published the matter at all, the fact is revealed that he is not in the book business, but is promoting an interesting educational movement, and Houghton Mifflin Company are to be congratulated in having so vigorous an exponent in view of the business facts in relation to the publication of Swedenborg's books, as stated by Mr. Barron. Leave it to Mr. Barron to "start something."

In our humble and faltering way we beg to suggest that the way to address editors is to address them. If it be "narrow minded" to object to advertising contracts which force the publication of publicity on any subject, we must confess that we are sharp to a razor's edge. The way to advertise in newspapers is to advertise. Mr. Barron will find, by slight investigation, that newspaper advertising is not nearly so expensive as he believes it to be. He talks about a "million dollars" for display advertising. For $25,000 he can buy the 200 lines of space that he is talking about in all of the daily newspapers of the land.

Mr. Barron made a poor business proposal to newspaper publishers, as we pointed out. That some have accepted it means nothing—we knew some would. In view of the facts it is scarcely sporting for Mr. Barron to now represent that his offer was "both reading matter and advertising." It was reading matter or no advertising. We value the Old Master's zeal for a subject close to his heart, but our offer of 100 shares of Nutmeg, pf., still stands for the advertiser who will get a similar contingent advertising contract with the Wall Street Journal.

AUTOMOBILE CASUALTIES

To Editor & Publisher: Returning from my vacation, I hastened to read the accumulated copies of the Editor & Publisher, and wa interested in the editorial you carried last m about the importance of playing up news a auto accidents that I am writing to ask permission to circulate reprints of that a in our clip sheet.

I feel there are too many editors who are tent with merely publishing reports about dents, instead of pointing out that acci don't just happen but are caused, and elimination of these causes will prevent fatalities that follow. Surely no paper ca a greater duty to its supporters than to how accidents are caused and how they ca prevented. For instance, thousands of dru drivers try to operate machines, usually sad results. A campaign against the dru driver is something that any newspaper conduct.

Your attention is called to the fact that institution is not interested in trying to the products of any industry, corporation dividual but, like the American Red Cross, tional Association of Credit Men, Boy Sc etc., is supported by thousands of members affiliated community safety councils. We now engaged in an effort to raise a m dollar fund for an intensive nation-wide paign to prevent accidents on the street public places and at home.

A. A. Mowbray,
Director of Publicity, National Safety Co

DOMINANT
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPE
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest
Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPAN
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

creating Impression!
nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.
The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium—ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it
J. B. Woodward, 110 E. 42d St., New York
Woodward & Kelly, 360 N. Mich. Ave., Chicago

MERCHANT & EVANS C
PHILADELPHIA
Producers of
SPARTAN TYPE METAL
Since 1866
LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION
Stocks in Principal Citi

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION
An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.
S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
120 West 42nd Street New York

HALF A STATE COMPLETELY COVERED
at one Combination Rate
EVENING COURIER MORNING POST
Two Great Newspapers—Published at Camden, N. J.
National Representatives
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
in
The Christian Science Monitor
An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request
ADVERTISING OFFICES
Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit
New York, London, Paris, Florence
Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland
"Buy What You Can Use"

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

A PRAYER for editors concludes the article with which Wilbur M. White, managing editor of the Toledo Times, opens the Ohio Newspaper for July. His article deals with the "well of English, pure and undefiled" in general and with the newspaper bucket in particular.

Mr. White has no use for the editor or reporter who pilfers the phrases of the man-about-town, the tricky expressions of the theater, or the "sharp cracks" of the college "chap." He is perfectly willing that the infinitive should split like the Chicago—at its own will. But he does insist that editors may be delivered from writers who believe that pomposity and ponderousness are necessary to hold big ideas.

Another article is a survey of the community weekly in Ohio. It won for the author, Ralph Louis Peters, the Robert Wolf Journalism Honor Medal awarded by the Department of Journalism of Ohio State University.

Mr. Peters, who by the way is now on the staff of the Columbus Dispatch, outlines the field of the country press, shows how it dresses up the news, handles its boy's departments, makes a plea to keep the editorial page free from "the inane driver dumped upon it by the campaign headquarters," discusses suitable features, preaches upon the subject of advertising, and concludes with a summary of plate matter used. Although Mr. Peters says he is going to dismiss the subject of advertising with little comment, that section of the survey is one of the most practical. The Department of Journalism at Ohio State University publishes the Ohio Newspaper ten times a year in the interests of newspaper making in Ohio. It is sent free to all Ohio newspapers—others pay two dollars a year.

* * *

The Kodak Salesman for July is a little article about a hookup with newspaper advertising. It prints four maps and under each it lists the various newspapers in that territory to be used on a certain date by the Eastman Kodak Company.

The suggestion is then offered that the full page advertisement be cut from a used newspaper, stuck on a stiff mount, and used as a window trim described somewhat in detail on another page of the house organ. For some reason, house organs are paying more attention to dealer-co-operation with newspaper advertising.

* * *

An editorial in the New Republic for July 21 deals with the sale of the Kansas City Star. The first part of the editorial, treating as it does the conditions of the sale, may be skipped. The concluding paragraph, however, is one of criticism and comment not only of Col. Nelson but also of Munsey and Lawson who have in the recent past shown an extraordinary lack of public responsibility and vision in disposing of their properties."

The editorial concludes:

"All three men made large public gifts in their communities, ignoring the obvious fact that the continuance of a good newspaper is of infinitely greater value than additional contributions to art museums or charities. From time to time there is some debate among newspaper men as to whether journalism may properly be called a profession. We should like to hear the views on that subject of some of the Munsey, Lawson or Nelson editors who still face or have barely escaped the prospect of being, in Arthur Brisbane's phrase, "sold with the plantation."

* * *

AN excellent text for college classes in advertising may be found in "Advertising, Its Problems and Methods" (D. Appleton & Co.) by John H. Cover. As a matter of fact, the text is an outgrowth of the author's work in teaching at Columbia University and at the University of Denver. At the latter institution he is professor of Statistics and Marketing and director of the Bureau of Statistical Research in the School of Commerce, Accounts, and Finance. The volume is a rather remarkable survey of the whole field of advertising.

The volume opens with an introductory chapter "Market Analysis as a Basis for Advertising" by Percival White. This chapter lets the student see the relation of advertising to marketing. Other chapters show how the advertising department and the advertising agency function in a practical way. The subsequent chapters then go into detail of actual practice and deal with slogans and trade marks, containers and packages, attributes of good copy, display and layouts, illustrations, type and paper, choice of media, and advertising aids for the dealer. Emphasis is put upon preparation of copy and the analysis of media.

At the end of each chapter practical problems are suggested for the student. These problems make the text even more valuable for classroom work. Indeed, the author frankly admits that the laboratory is the most efficient teacher. That the author himself is a good teacher is shown by his choice of illustrations to supplement the text. Indeed, it is no reflection upon the text proper to say that these illustrations are nearly as helpful as the pages contributed by the author. The frequent footnotes indicate that the author has availed himself of about everything that has appeared in type about advertising.

The style of the author is so direct that his volume is an excellent one to recommend to local merchants who prepare their own copy. He is to be congratulated upon keeping to his text of problems and methods and not wandering too far into the field of theory.

One wonders why the EDITOR & PUBLISHER was omitted in the appendix which lists the periodicals dealing with the subject of advertising. This omission is the more noticeable because of some of the periodicals that are mentioned by name. But this is another story—as Kipling would say. Professor Cover on the whole has "covered" his subject well.

* * *

FORTY years ago, on July 3, 1886, to be specific, a group of persons stood around a queer looking machine in the composing room of the New York Tribune—then in the heart of old Newspaper Row. This machine resembled in a way a small pipe organ. At the key board sat a man with his shirt sleeves rolled up. He touched a key and a small metallic object slid down a brass tube. He touched other keys with the same result. He then shifted a lever and out came a shining line of type. The man at the key board was the inventor of the machine, Ottmar Mergenthaler. The man who stood the closest to the machine was the editor of the Tribune, Whitelaw Reid. Indeed, it was Mr. Reid who gave the machine its name—the linotype.

These and other interesting facts about the machine may be found in an article published in The Linotype News for July. I have no desire to give any free advertising to the Mergenthaler Company, but I was tremendously interested to learn in how many different countries the linotype may be found today and to be informed in how many different languages the linotype is setting copy. I was somewhat surprised when told how extensive was the use of the linotype on ship board and elsewhere.

The article in The Linotype News pays a fine tribute to Whitelaw Reid, a national figure in American journalism. His able and brilliant work as ambassador to the court of St. James has detracted some from the position he once held in American journalism. At the time he gave the name to the linotype he was a national figure in the newspaper world. Through his public speeches he was interpreting journalism to the American people. This service by Mr. Reid is too often overlooked by those who recall him only in a diplomatic connection.

END "BUY BRITISH GOODS"

Rotary Protest Brings British Decision for New Post Mark

Following a protest by the Rotary International the British Postmaster General has decided that the present postage stamp cancellation mark "Buy British Goods" shall in future be replaced by commercial and revenue-producing advertisements. Rotary International pointed out, in a letter to Sir W. Mitchell Thomson, the Postmaster General, that the "Buy British Goods" slogan had the reverse of a good effect on international friendly relations when it appeared on letters sent to the United States.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service
Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.
Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series
Chicago Journal — Philadelphia Sun
Detroit News — Buffalo Times
Toledo Blade — Louisville Courier J'l
Omaha Bee — Oakland Post Enquirer
Peoria Star Journal — Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript
Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory
COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY
Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service
Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.
Six Pages Daily
Illustrations in Mat Form
Write or wire for samples, price and territory.
Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

Traveling with Gillilan
A series of letters by this well-known humorist, covering a six weeks' trip to Europe—illustrated with sketches by the author.
The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?
We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.
It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.
Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.
When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.
Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

RADIO
PROGRAMS NEWS NOTES FEATURES
Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers
Send for samples and prices
AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St. Chicago

DAILY PUTS PUBLICITY PICTURES TO WORK

Rochester Times-Union Builds Series of Six Full-Page Ads Paid For by Local Merchants, Using Photos of Stage Stars

Publicity pictures of stage stars appearing at a local theatre, usually printed free by newspapers on the alleged grounds of reader-interest, are being put to work to earn money for the Rochester (N. Y.) Times-Union.

Local merchants and the theatre management are paying for a series of six full-page advertisements using the photographs of stock company players at the Lyceum theatre of Rochester, played up in regular picture page lay-out. Promotion for the stores is carried in the picture captions. The actors and actresses display merchandise that these stores carry.

The small-type caption of one picture, for example, reads:

"Miss Rosamond Pinchot of the Lyceum Players displaying the last word in golf outfits from the sporting goods store of Rudolph Schmidt & Company at 43 South Avenue, where one will find one of the most complete stocks of Sporting Goods and Radio. Sport hat courtesy of The Kathryn Shop."

Eight stores co-operated in purchasing the full page of July 10, which ran under the general heading of "Summer Fashions."

The campaign, according to E. P. Gosling, advertising manager of the Times-Union, includes three pages of men stars and three pages of women stars. It is running through this month and will continue through August.

The plan was worked out jointly by the manager of the stock company and a member of the Times-Union advertising staff.

"It appealed to us as not only a good promotion stunt for the stock company, but also in the way of advertising for our stores which would be decidedly beneficial," Mr. Gosling said.

"Our merchants have expressed themselves well pleased with the initial page published."

A NEW "DIGEST" PLANNED

Virginia Publication Will Quote Opinions from Press and Public Leaders

Publication of the Virginia Digest, a weekly paper, quoting the opinions of the Virginia press and views of prominent Virginians on current topics, will be begun within the month from the plant of Crawford's Weekly, at Norton, Va. A Richmond office will also be maintained.

Issued as a tabloid, the publication will use many illustrations. In addition to a digest of topical editorial comment and statements by public men in the state, there will be published articles on various phases of Virginia life, some reprinted from other publications, but most written exclusively.

An editorial page will be conducted for the interpretation of Virginia news, the expression of liberal opinions, and the criticism of books by Virginia authors.

CLUB IN NEW QUARTERS

Chicago Press Organization Moves to Hotel Claridge

The City Press Club of Chicago is now housed in its permanent headquarters in the new fourteen-story Claridge Hotel at 1244 North Dearborn street.

The club-hotel was built especially for club purposes, and has every club facility including exclusive club headquarters, dining rooms with allnight service, a roof garden, a swimming pool and gymnasium, a handball court, a library, and midnight entertainments every night, with dancing.

The Press Club Rodeo, a revival of the old Press club days, was held at the hotel July 17. Stars of the leading shows in Chicago furnished the entertainment.

"PROFESSOR F. P. A.!"

Bard of N. Y. World's "Conning Tower" Teaches Journalism Rule

Franklin P. Adams, widely known as F.P.A., conductor of the column called "The Conning Tower" in the New York World, turned professor, July 15, to teach reporters an important rule in journalism. In his column he wrote:

For years this column has tilted at those busy windmills, the city editors of New York City, in an effort to make their reporters tell readers one of the most interesting details of occurrences of crime or accident. That detail concerns the approximate time of the happening. When a shooting or a motor car accident occurs, one of the things the reader wants to know is when it happened; he, or especially she, wants to know by how many minutes she missed it, or where she was when it happened. Tuesday afternoon there was a shooting near the corner of Fourth avenue and 21st street. All yesterday's papers printed the story on the front page. The Times had it occur "yesterday;" the Herald Tribune "yesterday afternoon;" the American "last evening;" the Daily News "yesterday;" and the Mirror "yesterday afternoo The World, we are proud to say, t us that the shooting occurred at 4 P. M. This, we contend, makes story far more interesting to everyb who was or might have been in t neighborhood within two hours of t time.

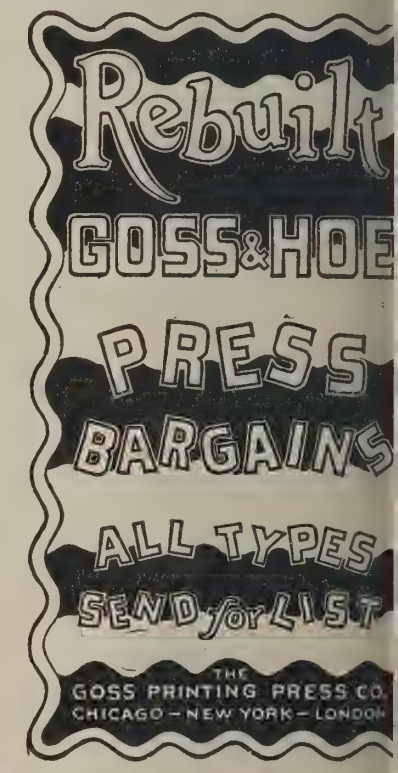
SPANISH EDITOR ATTACKED

Amado Gutierrez, editor of a Spani language newspaper in Del Rio, Tex. border city, recently was assaulted badly beaten by assailants in Pilla Acu Mexico, across the Rio Grande from Rio.

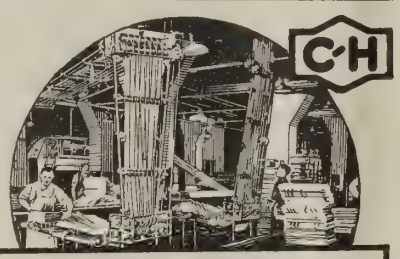
Supplies and Equipment

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.



Do it now!



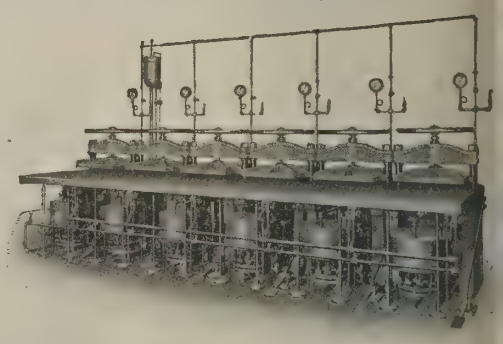
HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Newspaper Conveyors

take the papers in a steady stream, as fast as the presses can deliver them, up, overhead, around corners, through a ceiling or a wall to wherever they're wanted for mailing or delivery. Eliminating waste and delay by their speedy, dependable operation they are profitable equipment for papers large or small. Newspaper plants from London to Tokio have been using them for years.



Let us tell you how you can speed deliveries from your presses.

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Mfrs. of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN
CUTLER-HAMMER

BATTERY OF SIX HOE PNEUMATIC MATRIX-DRYING PRESSES

With Independent Gas-fired Steam Generators.

The quickest and the most economical Presses for the moulding and drying of Matrices.

More than 800 in use

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL. also at DUNELLEN, N. J. 7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT
SLUG FEEDER

Eliminates the Metal Furnace

The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

INFLUENCE

The prestige of the advertising medium is often the deciding influence in the consummation of a sale.

Good products, introduced by strong copy, in the medium of greatest prestige is what makes sales for advertisers in

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Employment—Equipment—Services

ITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

te space charge at same rate per line per tion as earned by frequency of insertion. ial rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. Editor & Publisher reserves the right to ify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

ertising Promotion—If you want more ness, communicate with the International lications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, Broadway, New York City.

ething Entirely New. Individual comic t ad strip for your classified ad pages. kly, semi-weekly, daily. Write for samples cost, etc. Guido D. Janes Service, Quincy,

USINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

e Opportunity to Procure Splendid Publi-on—Population 15,000; exclusive field; mod- equipment; circulation over 2,000; gross ness $25,000, net earnings 25 per cent; e $18,000, half cash. J. B. Shale, Times g., New York.

stern Pennsylvania Weekly, only paper in ity seat of large county. Profitable busi- and splendid equipment. Available for 500 on terms. Prop. 1450x. The H. F. richs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Interest for Sale

rest, carrying position of business mana- Oklahoma city of ten thousand; only daily ich and fast growing city; salary commen- te with ability; applicant should have from to seven thousand. Address A-612, Editor ublisher.

Newspapers for Sale

ou have $60,000 and want to double it in years, read the quarter page ad on page 36.

Newspapers Wanted

y Wanted in small city, with future, by or and a business manager. P. O. Box 382, en Bay, Wis.

Hunt for the One Owner or Publisher is on. See Editor & Publisher of July 17, ul, under "Newspapers Wanted." My ad d alone. A-659, Editor & Publisher.

Printing

re Available for use of any kind of news- er, complete modern newspaper plant. Will outright or make arrangements long time ract for printing of publication. Address O. Box 28, El Paso, Texas.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

ulation—When quick, additional circulation rage becomes necessary, remember that our nty years in this one line of endeavor is r proof against experimenting. Write or Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell k, Cincinnati, Ohio.

ulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cen- Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Sales- ship Club Campaigns.

ld Circulation—Try our "Opportunity Club" n, Sherman & Eckert, 353 Northampton et, Easton, Penna.

Newspaper can secure circulation and e their entire field canvassed at practically cost. Let us put our plan before you now. Albright China Co., Palmyra, N. J.

Equipment

wspaper Display Racks—The Steel Co., Box Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

New Brunswick Spokesman and Detroit World Graphic are the new customers this week. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Daily and Sunday Newspaper in Metropolitan City, overnight from New York, has excellent opportunity for live man in Advertising Department who can assist local retail merchants in merchandising problems, advertising copy and all forms of similar service. Salesmanship ability not entirely a requisite. This is not an advertising solicitor's position but a place for a man who can become valuable in the Advertising Department because of the service he can give to the retail merchant. Good salary for right man. An excellent opportunity for advancement. Write fully stating age and experience. All communications will be held strictly confidential. The John Budd Company, 9 East 37th Street, New York City.

Daily Newspaper near New York City has opening on Display Advertising staff for good salesman; permanent position with good future; car required. State age, experience and salary. A-679, Editor & Publisher.

Experienced Newspaper Advertising Man wanted on leading paper, with circulation over 110,000, in middle western city of 240,000 Must be aggressive, practical copy writer and of clean moral habits. Married man preferred. Send complete details concerning your ability, references, sample of your work and salary expected. B-663, Editor & Publisher.

Live Wire, Capable, experienced newspaper man wanted to invest some capital and his services in A-1 newspaper proposition in El Paso, Texas. Full details first letter. P. O. Box 28, El Paso, Texas.

Reporter Wanted—Middle aged man, thoroughly experienced, sober and accurate. Steady position. Apply A-652, Editor & Publisher.

We Have a Position Open for an advertising solicitor capable of developing and selling feature sections and special editions. The newspaper is leader in middle western city with over 110,000 circulation. Do not want a commission man. This is a straight salary proposition and man capable of filling the job can secure very fine remuneration. Send complete details of your ability, sample of work, etc. B-664, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Artist-Cartoonist — Layouts and retouching, wishes change to smaller city where efficiency and ability are desired. Samples and qualifications gladly furnished. Now on large eastern daily. A-667, Editor & Publisher.

Assistant to Copy Man or in advertising department of newspaper or advertiser; or with advertising agency. Young man with four years' experience desires position with opportunity for advancement. B-662, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager—Complete, well-rounded newspaper experience; 4½ years present position, gain over 50% advertising income; nearly 20% increase circulation. Prefer city 20,000 to 75,000. Age, 35 years, college graduate, married, two children. A-674, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher, now employed, seeks change. Experienced in accounting, classified and display advertising, circulation and all branches of newspaper work. Familiar with large and small cities. A-680, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation, Promotion, Business Manager, with excellent record on New York City daily newspapers; at present employed, desires to make connections in New York City with any size paper in field of promotion or improvement in any departments. A-675, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager—Young man with over seven years' experience in circulation work and as circulation manager of morning and evening papers desires position as circulation manager. Excellent reasons for wanting to change. Is thoroughly familiar with all phases of circulation work. He knows the game and produces results. If you need this kind of a circulation manager address A-673, Editor & Publisher

Circulation Man, young, experienced, seeks position. Roadman, crew manager promotion. A-644, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager — Experienced in all branches of circulation work, and thoroughly competent. Seven years with The Des Moines Capital, three and half years with Canton, Ohio, News, and over year with the Butterick Publishing Company. Good record of increases at minimum expense. For particulars address L. T. Ward, 322 South Park, Columbus, Ohio.

Circulation Manager with twenty-five years' experience on morning and afternoon newspapers having circulation around fifty thousand, seeks another connection. Available in two weeks. A-677, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Classified Manager—Young man now employed, 24 years of age, married and with 5 years' experience, desires change. Has an exceptional record for procuring new business. Thoroughly experienced with all successful classified methods; also very familiar with Basil Smith System. Salary expected $60 a week. Write A-658, Editor & Publisher, for full particulars.

Editor desires position country weekly; preferably New England or New York State. Experienced. Sam J. Banks, General Delivery, Cambridge, Mass.

Editor - Engineer—Will edit house organ, assist in the getting up of descriptive matter, write reports, booklets, or proofread. Three and a-half years' experience in editing department of magazine, and electrical engineer by profession. A-648, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer; also syndicated features; considerable sold fiction—traveled, mature, married, dependable. Seeks change. A-642, Editor & Publisher.

Editor seeks location on Daily in New England States. 12 years' experience on daily and weekly publications. Qualified either for editorial or advertising work. Have iron-clad references from every former employer. Will come on month's trial. Address A-671, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial—Wanted: A position in the editorial department of a daily newspaper. I am a university graduate, schooled in newspaper work and capable of reporting, writing heads, and reading copy. Will sacrifice salary for practical experience. A-672, Editor & Publisher.

Expert Promotion Man, 43, with record of achievement, knowledge of human nature, indomitable will to succeed, seeks position. Circulation Manager or Promotion Manager anywhere. Not a cheap man, but a good one. A-657, Editor & Publisher.

Foreign Correspondent — Experienced man, knows Europe and South America well, has highest connections. Am 35, American citizen, write and speak 8 languages. Organized two services in Europe. Want to connect with American service. Would be able to handle and pay expenses on news exchange basis. Thoroughly familiar with all branches of foreign and pictorial service. A-669, Editor & Publisher.

General Manager—Some Newspaper Publisher in a city of 250,000 or more, needs a new General Manager. If you are that Publisher or Owner you can now get the man you want. He has brains, youth (33 years old) experience, ability and personality. A wire or letter addressed to A-539, Editor & Publisher, will bring him for an interview.

Managing Editor, 15 years' successful experience. Age 35, college graduate. Open for offer August 1. Metropolitan and small town experience. Capable executive, forceful writer, news and make up expert. Prefer daily in town of 20,000 to 200,000 where there is opportunity to build future for myself and paper. A-654, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Highly capable, 17 years, mostly editorial executive, on metropolitan newspapers, wants chance to build "second" paper on sharing basis. Would take paper on lease. Editorial executive now on New York City daily but not afflicted with New Yorkitis. Prefer West Coast paper. I'm married, 34, hard and intelligent worker. Have record of achievement behind and ahead of me. Highest references. A-646, Editor & Publisher.

News Man, 29, eight years in writing and assignment, available on two weeks' notice, to fill post as producer of fast, sound copy. Address A-670, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—28, employed for last five years Sunday, telegraph and makeup editor on metropolitan dailies, desires similar position with wider scope of responsibility and opportunity. Would consider executive place on smaller daily. Salary must be adequate, but is secondary consideration. Am prepared to remain in present position until suitable opportunity is offered. B-666, Editor & Publisher.

Newspaper and Commercial Artist, experienced, wishes position with Syndicate or Newspaper. Write Earl S. Johnston, 5810 Holden St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

Pressroom Superintendent with several years experience in charge of metropolitan papers with large circulation, would like to make permanent connection with publisher who desires a well printed newspaper. Will furnish good references as to character and ability. A-676, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Young woman, university graduate with 3 years' newspaper experience desires reporting position in city of 500,000 or over. Excellent references. A-650, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Complete Newspaper Plant for sale. Included are five Intertype machines, 2 years old; monotype caster; Potter 16 page press; Stereotyping equipment; 12 Trucks; plenty of type, etc. Address Muskogee News, Muskogee, Oklahoma.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Duplex Tubular Printing Press, 16-page, for sale. Due to purchase of Journal by Sun, this fine machine will be released about July 10. Prints modern column paper any size up to 16 pages including 14 pages in perfect condition. Specimens of work sent. Also other newspaper machinery, including Hoe Saw & Trimmer, Hoe Mat Rolling Machine now used on dry mats, Proof presses, etc. For prices and terms, address Lewiston Daily Sun, Lewiston, Me.

Duplex 8-page flatbed angle-bar press, complete, with 16 chases, for sale; in good condition; also Model C Intertype and Model 5 Linotype. Times, Okmulgee, Okla.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Mr. Publisher—Get our catalogue of hard metal display type, 18 to 48-pt. before you buy new machinery for your display problems. Hoosier Type Foundry, 607 Lafayette St., Fort Wayne, Indiana.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

LEGAL

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY

New York, June 30th, 1926.

The Board of Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of Fifty Cents (50c) a share on the Common Stock of this Company, payable August 16th, 1926, to Common stockholders of record at the close of business August 4th, 1926.

Checks will be mailed. Transfer books will not close.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER

350 Madison Ave., New York

Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON

Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT

Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.

THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

AN interesting hot weather contest is that being conducted by the Boston American to determine "What New England Men Lie Most About." A cash award of $15 is offered the woman submitting the best letter on the subject; $5 for the second best letter, and $5 for the third best. The wide variety of answers received make an interesting story a daily feature.—C. L. Moody, Quincy, (Mass.) Patriot Ledger.

Consult the tobacco wholesalers and jobbers of your city. Determine the number of cartons of cigarettes, boxes of cigars, pounds and cans of tobacco sold to your local dealers during the first six months of the year. The figures surpass even your most generous expectation and provide the body of a story that will attract the eye of every smoker.—Allen Sauers, Logansport, Indiana.

Now is a good time to go to your morgue and fish out the cuts of the local baseball players of yesteryear. They will make a very interesting daily feature under a head something like "Baseball in Reminiscence." In your accompanying article don't forget to tell where the player is located now.—Lewis Hyman, Logansport, Indiana.

A society editor on a Southern California newspaper has a working agreement with an ice cream manufacturing company whereby she is notified of all orders for large quantities of the confection. She in turn tips the company off to coming parties. It means scoops for both of them.—B. A. A., San Diego (Col.) Sun.

The police department can undoubtedly furnish you with some interesting data on local children who have been several times reported as missing. Most cities have at least two or three small children who are familiar figures to the police because of their frequent runaways. If obtainable, a personal interview with the kids themselves, run with the pictures, makes a good feature.—Cyril E. Lamb, 309 Ballard street, Ypsilanti, Mich.

"Chats with the travelers," is an interesting little daily feature now being run in the Post-Times. It is a series of short interviews with traveling salesmen found at the local hotels, business houses and other places, the subjects being varied according to who is interviewed.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

Telling about one's vacation to the stay-at-homes often furnishes a greater kick to the returning vacationist than the actual trip. Why not get up a local contest for the best vacation story of about 300 words, offering a small prize for the best letter, and printing excerpts from the good ones? This should create greater interest in your journal and give the vacationist public opportunity to gratify a human desire ever since the days of Marco Polo to tell the stay-at-homes about his "wonderful" trip.—C. M. L., Seattle, Wash.

Who is the oldest lodge member in your city? He can tell you some interesting things about lodges and the sentiment towards lodges as it existed in the old days. The oldest church member in your city also should be the basis of a good story, at least a southern Indiana newspaper found this to be the case.—Yandell C. Cline, Columbus (Ind.) Republican.

PICKING A WINNER

Success of St. Paul Congressional Candidate, Scalp for Twin Papers

While discussion was recently raging among the eight candidates in the Fourth congressional district, Minnesota, and while their seemed to be much angling for votes by candidates straddling fences, Melvin J. Maas, a youth of 28 summers, raised a sma' wee voice in the wilderness and offered himself as a prospect.

The St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch and Pioneer Press heard the call. They also heard that the newcomer was not straddling fences on important issues; that he had a definite platform to offer the voters; that he was young, energetic and sagacious.

With editorials, features and pictures they stirred the political nest into one of the hottest campaigns ever waged in the district, and when the feathers again had settled, both candidate Maas and the twin papers were sitting atop of the heap. The returns showed Maas had whipped the field decisively. Mr. Maas promptly thanked the papers and admitted that it was because of them that he had won out.

Mr. Maas has yet to go through the general election, but his sponsors claim the primary returns show that he is on his way to Washington.

Incidentally, this marks the twentieth time in recent years in which the Dispatch and Pioneer Press have come out victors in picking and backing candidates for major offices.

SHORT COURSE IN IOWA

The first linotype operators' short course at the Iowa State college under auspices of the technical journalism department of the college, was held last week with an enrollment of 25. The Mergenthaler Linotype corporation educational division staged the course which continued over the week-end. Thor Knapp of Chicago, head of the division was in charge. Sessions were held in the plant of the Collegiate Press, Inc., a printing plant owned by the student publications of the college.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

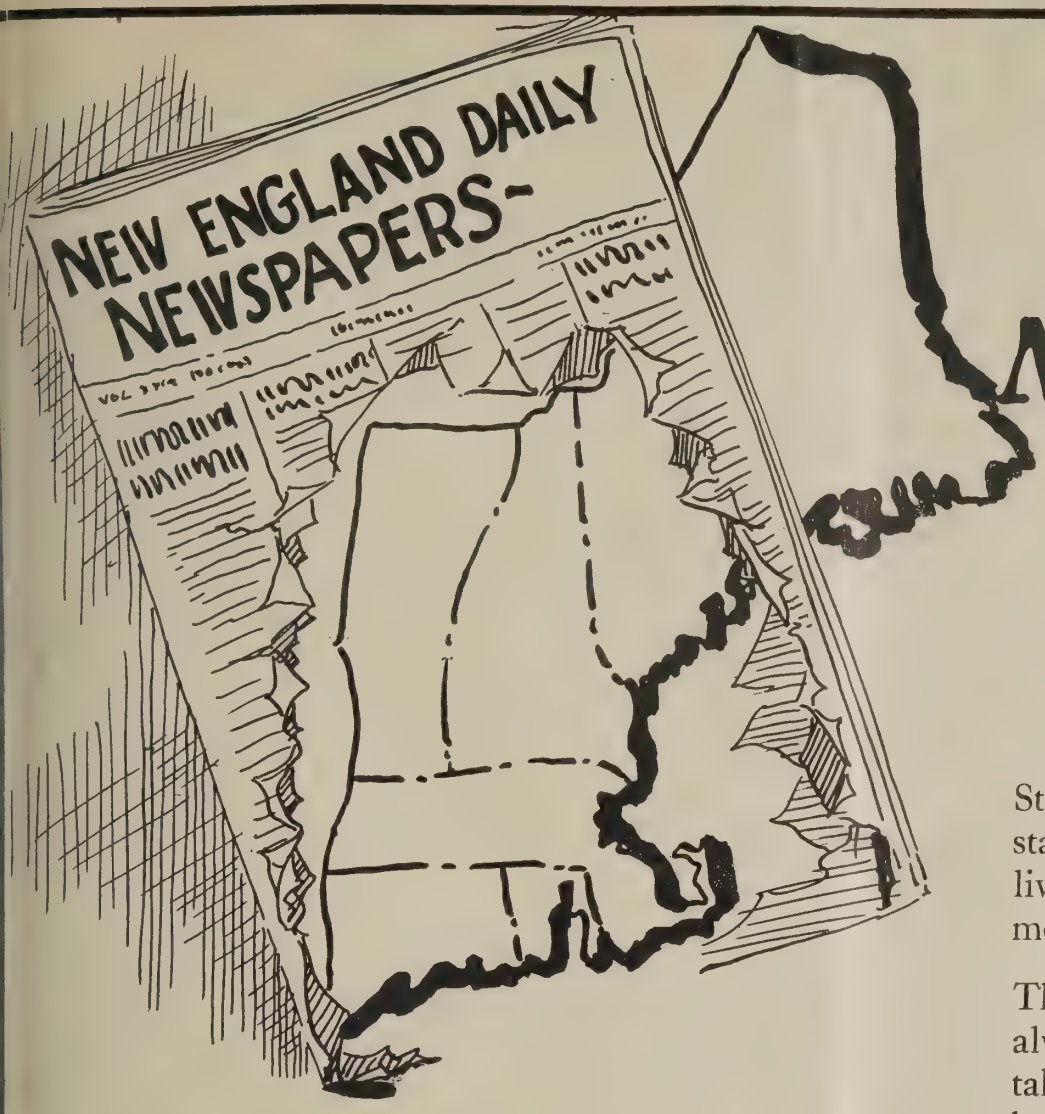
As an incentive to encourage thrift of the salaried or steady workers in your city, why not form, as did a Northwest paper, a "playtime" club, started by one of its reporters and wife, to show that by saving and placing money in safe investments from year to year, that retirement will come within a comparatively few years, leaving many years ahead for play. It was shown graphically by taking into consideration any insurance that would mature, with the average soldier bonus, and the owning of a home through monthly payments, that the saving years would not be many, before the playtime goal. Besides its real constructive value, such material can be made, with a human interest touch into excellent feature copy.—C. M. L.

What kind of a city would you have if all the prominent lawyers, doctors and merchants had realized their youthful ambitions? The city would be overstocked with clowns, policemen and acrobats, perhaps. This is not a new idea but treatment in the form of a single article would create interest.—A. C. Regli, Chippewa Falls, Wis.

Most housewives are good cooks. Still, there are a number who have but a scant knowledge of the business and there are still others who are always on the lookout for new recipes. Each of your women readers probably has a "pet" recipe that she is proud of. Invite the women to send them in and, if possible, find someone who is an authority on cooking to write articles on the subject and print them in conjunction with the recipes. Two half-columns of this matter, with an appropriate head, would not only prove of interest but might possibly bring in additional advertising from retailers of cooking utensils and materials.—R. C. Balton, Jr.

"Soch a Life"
By J. L. LEIBSON
A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in
One Thousand Word Stories
Illustrated by the well known artist
ALBERT LEVERING
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service
Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.
4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates
NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO



How To Play GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game
24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

Let Us Tell You
—about our plan of securing advertising from manufacturers, industrial plants, jobbers, wholesalers and other concerns in your city who are now spending their appropriations for other forms of advertising.
Let us explain how we can place this business in your paper regularly without selling expense to you. WRITE—
THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS • • TENN.

Football From the Inside!
Between The Sidelines
By Wm. S. Langford
Veteran Referee and Noted Football Authority
Twelve vigorous articles that lift the curtain on the hidden drama of the game —secret stuff, intimate anecdotes, and a wealth of human interest matter
The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

BY UNITED PRESS
AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK
UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

The Direct Line to New England's Buying Power!

Staid old New England with its substantial citizenry and its hundreds of livable towns and cities await your message.

The people of New England are, and always have been thrifty, but ready to take on every progressive step. The banks report large balances. Its mills are working steadily and the percentage of home owners are among the largest of any State in the Union.

The daily papers of New England give you entree to the homes—the real buying power of New England.

Let us tell you more about this rich, concentrated, easy to reach territory. The list of papers below gives you complete coverage and a service of merchandizing and distribution is yours for the asking.

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Attleboro Sun .....(E)	5,845	.03	.03
Boston Globe .....(M&E)	287,590	.50	.50
Boston Globe .....(S)	332,282	.55	.55
*Boston Transcript ....(E)	38,807	.20	.20
Boston Post .....(M)	377,443	.60	.60
Boston Post .....(S)	349,596	.55	.55
Fall River Herald-News (S)	23,150	.06	.06
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	11,828	.06	.045
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	15,729	.065	.05
††Lynn Item .....(E)	16,699	.065	.05
††Lowell Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader ..(M&E)	21,918	.07	.07
New Bedford Standard Mercury (M&E)	33,321	.10	.10
New Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	28,806	.10	.10
North Adams Transcript (E)	9,918	.0425	.035
††Pittsfield Eagle .....(E)	17,011	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	21,398	.09	.07
††Taunton Gazette ....(E)	9,279	.05	.04
Worcester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,314	.26	.23
Worcester Sunday Telegram (S)	51,096	.19	.16

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Concord Monitor-Patroit (E)	5,215	.0375	.025
††Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,887	.036	.023
Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	29,368	.13	.10

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

††Newport Daily News..(E)	6,271	.0336	.0293
Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,849	.07	.07
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	68,815	.18	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(M)	36,416	.11	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(S)	70,518	.18	.18
Providence News ....(E)	29,123	.08	.08
Providence Tribune....(E)	21,961	.10	.09
Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	4,950	.025	.025
Woonsocket Call ....(E)	14,508	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

Barre Times .....(E)	7,112	.03	.025
††Bennington Banner ....(E)	3,144	.0125	.0125
Brattleboro Reformer ..(E)	3,370	.03	.0175
Burlington Free Press (M)	11,234	.05	.05
Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,038	.04	.04
††St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record (E)	4,055	.03	.0175

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	42,743	.15	.15
Bridgeport Post .....(S)	21,162	.10	.10
Hartford Courant ....(M)	33,003	.08	.08
Hartford Courant .....(S)	56,274	.11	.11
Hartford Times .....(E)	53,121	.13	.13
Middletown Press ....(E)	8,359	.0325	.03
††New Haven Register (E&S)	46,218	.14	.13
New London Day.....(E)	12,054	.07	.045
††Norwich Bulletin ....(M)	12,724	.07	.05
Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,107	.04	.04
††South Norwalk Sentinel (E)	5,643	.04	.025
Stamford Advocate ..(E)	10,329	.05	.04

A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1926.

††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

A Great Newspaper in the Greatest Market

Behind its effectiveness as a medium for advertisers—behind its large and growing circulation among the kind of people that advertisers are most anxious to reach—stands the high quality of The Sun as a newspaper.

Vigorous and independent in its editorial policies, complete and accurate in all its news departments, entertaining in its many features, clean, wholesome and interesting throughout—The Sun naturally attracts as its readers the progressive and prosperous men and women of New York.

During the first six months of 1926 The Sun led all New York evening newspapers in total advertising in national advertising and in local advertising.

In each of these three major classifications The Sun's gain during this period was larger than that of any other New York evening newspaper.

The Sun

280 BROADWAY NEW YORK

BOSTON Old South Building	WASHINGTON, D. C. Munsey Building	CHICAGO 208 So. La Salle St.	LOS ANGELES Van Nuys Building	SAN FRANCISCO First National Bank Building
LONDON Trafalgar Building	PARIS 10 Boulevard des Capucines	BERLIN 14 Unter den Linden	ROME 25 Piazza Mignanelli Roma 6	PEKIN 8 Hsi La Huntung

THIS ISSUE:—NORTH CAROLINA PROSPERITY REVIEWED

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11. 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 10 | TWO SECTIONS SECTION ONE | NEW YORK, JULY 31, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

Chicago Tribune FEATURES

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Comic Strips

The Gumps by Sidney Smith
Gasoline Alley by Frank King
Harold Teen by Carl Ed
Winnie Winkle by Branner
Moon Mullins by Frank Willard
Smitty by Walter Berndt
Little Orphan Annie by Harold Gray
Texas Slim by Ferd Johnson
The above strips in black and white or 8-page color comic section either tabloid or full size.

W. E. HILL
page of comics

DAILY AND SUNDAY
CARTOONS
John T. McCutcheon —Carey Orr — Gaar Williams

BLUE RIBBON FICTION
Daily serial story—Weekly short story and serial.

TRUE LIFE STORIES WEEKLY
Woman's Special Page Embroidery Page
Sport Page—Science Page

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Doris Blake Articles
Antoinette Donnelly Beauty Articles
Men's Fashions
Women's Fashions

SUNDAY
Paris Fashions

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Dr. W. A. Evans Health Articles

WEEKLY
Burns Mantle Theatrical Letter (New York)
Mencken Literary Review
Movie Letter
N. Y. Society Letter
"About Broadway" by Mark Hellinger

DAILY AND SUNDAY
Woods and Waters by Bob Becker
Walter Eckersall's Football Articles
In Motordom by J. L. Jenkins
Line o' Type by R. H. L.

DAILY
Wake of the News by Harvey T. Woodruff

SUNDAY
The Nickeldicks—Children's Story
The Sporting Goods by Westbrook Pegler

DAILY AND SUNDAY
What's Wrong Here?
Cookery Articles by Jane Eddington
Farm and Garden by Frank Ridgeway

SUNDAY
Practical and Fancy Needlework
Home Harmonious
Club Ethics by Maude Evans

DAILY
The Goops by Gelett Burgess
Sentence Sermons by Rev. Roy L. Smith

WEEKLY
Book Reviews by Fanny Butcher
Confessions of Authors
Justice Series

PACIFIC AND ATLANTIC PHOTOS
Organized by The Chicago Tribune and the New York Daily News 25 Park Place, New York

CHICAGO TRIBUNE PRESS SERVICE
Foreign—National—Local

the Funniest writer in America —writing for newspapers for the first time!

HERE'S where everyone gets a laughing jag every week. Donald Ogden Stewart, the cleverest humorist in America today, has signed with The Chicago Tribune Newspapers Syndicate for a series of weekly sidesplitters under the title—"The Other Day." Stewart can get a funny twist on anything under the sun. In addition to great versatility, Donald Ogden Stewart has the one thing with which all great humorists are endowed — an uncanny knowledge of human nature. This great asset, coupled with his close association with the younger set, make his writings of universal appeal. This is one of The Chicago Tribune's greatest syndicate releases. Wire now for the rights in your territory for the sake of your readers, young and old.

DONALD OGDEN STEWART

is young, a Yale graduate and newly married. He is author of A Parody Outline of History, Perfect Behavior, Aunt Polly's Story of Mankind, The Crazy Fool and Mr. and Mrs. Haddock Abroad. He has written scores of magazine articles, a movie or two, and is now collaborating on a stage play. Very versatile—quick to express the most humorous comment of the happenings of the day.

THE
CHICAGO TRIBUNE
Newspapers SYNDICATE
Tribune Tower : : CHICAGO

NEW HIGH PEAKS
of Advertising and Circulation

The Buffalo Evening News has reached new heights in advertising. Advertising volume this year is better than ever—now running at the rate of more than a million lines better than the best preceding year—1925. The record shows for the first six months of 1926

8,012,691 Lines of Advertising

The News has gained tremendously in circulation. A steady increase continues through the ordinary slow summer months. June, this year, shows a gain of 11,362 daily.

Net paid for June, 1926,

145,735 Average Daily Circulation

The News today, more than ever, is the big, effective advertising medium for the Western New York territory.

Cover the Buffalo Market with the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

A. B. C. Mar. 31, 1926
134,469

EDWARD H. BUTLER, Editor and Publisher

Present Average Over 145,000

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, Jr., Atlanta

again in June first on weekdays in national advertising

IN the month of March, 1926, the New York Herald Tribune took first position on weekdays in total volume of National Advertising among New York morning newspapers.

The Herald Tribune held this position as well for the months of April and May, as announced last month.

And again in the month of June, the New York Herald Tribune carried more National Advertising on weekdays than any other morning newspaper in the World's Greatest Market.

This supremacy in National Advertising indicates the ever-increasing recognition by advertisers of the unexcelled responsiveness of Herald Tribune readers.

LEADING!

Of a hundred and thirty-two newspapers published in the thirty principal American cities, the New York Herald Tribune made the greatest gain in advertising lineage during the first six months of 1926.

The actual gain of the Herald Tribune was 1,847,996 lines of advertising.*

* Figures compiled by N.Y. Eve. Post Statis. Dept.

NEW YORK Herald Tribune

FIRST TO LAST—THE TRUTH: NEWS ~ EDITORIALS ~ ADVERTISEMENTS

One of the Bulletin floats in the Associated Advertising Club's Convention parade at Philadelphia, June 21, 1926.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

Many advertising men attending the Philadelphia Convention of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World were visiting that city for the first time. In trains, trolleys, busses, on the street, in the homes, they had first-hand opportunity to see the truth of the slogan —"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin."

The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper, and the third largest in the United States.

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926: 533,169 copies a day

New York . . . . . 247 Park Avenue (Park-Lexington Building)
Chicago . . . . . Verree & Conklin, Inc., 28 East Jackson Boulevard
Detroit . . . C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 321 Lafayette Boulevard
San Francisco . . Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 681 Market Street

(Copyright 1926, Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by
The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor;
Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 NEW YORK, JULY 31, 1926 No. 10

Despotic Contempt of Court Procedure Denounced By Working Editors

Favor New System Which Would Give Defendants Hearing Before Judge in Another Jurisdiction—Trial by Jury Suggested—Dale Fund Grows For Supreme Court Test of Truth Issue

By MARLEN PEW

CONTEMPT of court procedure, wherein a judge acts as complainant, prosecutor, jury and judge—sole arbiter of all questions of law and fact—is the single peace-time survival in this country of the ancient despotic principle of lese majesty.

The unchallenged attitude of the courts that power to punish for contempt is an inherent judicial function personal to the offended judge and that contempt of court may be construed to mean not only acts in the presence of the court, regarded as directly in derogation of authority or an interference with the course of justice, and acts committed outside of the court-room, such as criticism of judicial conduct or public writing which for any reason may give offense to these sacrosanct public officials. Indeed, the latest dictum from Indiana is that even truth is no defense.

Newspaper men of the nation are aroused over the spirit of judicial encroachment in contempt cases which has been particularly progressive since 1918 when the United States Supreme Court, in the celebrated case of N. D. Cochran, of the Toledo (O.) News-Bee, upset a principle in law which had stood as the rule in the federal courts for nearly 100 years, and had been accepted by most of the states, limiting the power to punish for contempt to "misbehavior of any person in their (the judges') presence, or so near thereto as to obstruct the ends of justice."

In the Cochran case the Supreme Court, with Brandeis and Holmes vigorously dissenting, wrote an opinion which stretched the meaning of the phrase, "so near thereto as to obstruct," to mean anything uttered anywhere having a tendency" to obstruct.

The world war was at the height of its fury when this occurred and the matter received but scant attention, although it was predicted by some newspapers that this new principle of "constructive contempt" would sooner or later challenge the freedom of the press.

In his dissenting opinion Mr. Justice Holmes wrote: "When it is considered how contrary it is to our practice and ways of thinking for the same person to be accuser and sole judge in a matter which, if he be sensitive, may involve strong personal feeling, I should expect the power (to punish) to be limited by the necessities of the case to 'insure order and decorum in their presence.'"

That this usurpation of power in journalistic contempt cases has become unbearable and that means must be found for relief from its increasing menace is everywhere evident today in newspaper circles. Witness the statements of some of the ablest working editors of the country reproduced with this article!

Can courts do no wrong?

Newspaper men know that they can do wrong and that their wrongs may be gross and strike at the heart of sacred institutions.

Is there any limit to aggression?

Direct contempt, meaning contempt in the presence of the court, was followed by the dictum "indirect contempt," meaning an act just outside of the presence of the court, and finally "constructive contempt" which may mean anything that an offended judge desires it to mean. And, now, behold! the proposition that even in "constructive contempt" cases truth is no defense!

Is it American, is it safe, is it wise even from the viewpoint of the dignified judiciary itself, for a judicial officer to have unchecked, arbitrary power to find the guilt or innocence of a man accused by this judge of an offense against his court or his own conduct?

EDITOR & PUBLISHER presents the proposition as indefensible on any ground, even that of occasional expediency. The wonder is that the calibre of men who compose the rank and file of the judiciary, federal, state and local, should desire such despotic powers. It is amazing that the American Bar Association not only tolerates this condition but seems to encourage it. In his Farewell Address, delivered just 130 years ago on September 17, George Washington warned the nation against those intrusted with the administration of government, in words which are pat in this instance: "The spirit of encroachment tends to consolidate the powers of all the departments in one, and thus to create, whatever the form of government, a real despotism." He said, "A just estimate of that love of power, and proneness to abuse it which predominates in the human heart, is sufficient to satisfy us of the truth of this position."

What system can be safely and sensibly substituted for arbitrary judicial power in contempt cases?

Trial by jury is often advocated, but if the case is to be heard by the offended judge the fairness of the trial would be in doubt. It is only the occasional juror who stands out in his opinion against a judge's predisposition as shown by his charge or by his general attitude during a trial, and no one, least of all the legal profession, contends that judges are not entirely mortal and do, however sincere may be their efforts to conserve absolute impartiality, indicate their preferences. No judge can or will sit in any case in which he is personally involved, except in contempt cases. It seems absurd to believe that trial by jury solves the contempt riddle if the accusing judge is to preside. Only an extraordinary man could restrain evidence of his predisposition to avenge a real or imagined wrong against himself or his court.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER asked a score of leading newspaper editors this week for their opinions on a proposal of federal and state legislation to enable a contempt of court defendant to secure a hearing before a judge of the same rank as the accusing judge, but in another jurisdiction. The suggestion is based on the established principle of change of venue.

The majority of the editors who responded expressed favorable opinions. The replies are reproduced herewith and speak for themselves. EDITOR & PUBLISHER respectively offers the suggestion to the American Society of Newspaper Editors for action.

Erie C. Hopwood, President of the Society, while saying that the hearing of contempt cases by judges in other jurisdictions would improve the present

LEADING EDITORS FAVOR PROPOSAL BY EDITOR & PUBLISHER FOR NEW CONTEMPT PROCEDURE

In reply to EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S inquiry whether they would look favorably on legislation transferring contempt cases to courts of parallel but removed jurisdiction, thus to curb the arbitrary power of judges to try and punish offenses against themselves, leading editors this week offered the following statements.

LAY COMMISSION PREFERRED

By E. C. HOPWOOD

President, American Society of Newspaper Editors, and Editor, Cleveland (O.) Plain-Dealer

NO entirely satisfactory way occurs to me to escape the illogical situation of a judge sitting in judgment on his own cause in contempt cases. To have the case heard by another judge or in another jurisdiction improves the present practice but also offers objection which are obvious. A commission made up of three members of the bar, if possible recruited outside the offended court's jurisdiction, would, in many respects be better still, unless questions of law are involved in contempt proceedings to a greater degree than is usually the case. A lay referee or commission might be the best solution of all.

PERRY RAISES THREE POINTS

By STUART H. PERRY

Publisher and Editor, Adrian (Mich.) Telegram

I FAVOR three changes in procedure for contempt. First: Require that the charge be heard by another judge, unless the act complained of was committed in open court, when perhaps summary punishment might be deemed necessary. Second: Expedite and simplify the procedure for review of judgments for contempts. Third: In all cases insure a reasonable delay in the execution of the sentence so as to enable the defendant to take proper steps for a review of this case. Otherwise, I should not favor any material change in the existing law and especially I should not favor trial by jury in contempt cases.

LET'S GO BACK TO THE CONSTITUTION

By C. P. J. MOONEY

Managing Editor, Memphis (Tenn.) Commercial Appeal

THE press failed to protest when judges stretched the contempt doctrine so as to cover violations of injunctions ten miles from the court house. The judges liked this new order so well that they took the teeth out of the Clayton Act, providing for trial of contempt committed outside of the court by jury. We permitted judges to become tyrants and then wrote powerful editorials calling them strong, courageous and patriotic judges. We wrote our journalistic practise, believed it would not be entirely satisfactory and discussed the merits of contempt hearings by commissioners to be found in bar associations outside of the jurisdiction of the offended court. It was his opinion that a lay referee or commissioner would be still better. It is greatly to be doubted if legislation could be obtained for lawyers to act in contempt cases and certainly, if we know the judiciary, laymen would be vigorously fought.

(Continued on page 4)

Casper S. Yost, former president of the Society, believes that legislation designed to restrain the arbitrary powers of the judiciary in contempt cases should be carefully weighed, not so much for journalistic cases as in view of the fact that the contempt principle applies to many conditions and circumstances not affecting the press. Truth is that contempt cases affecting lawyers and labor leaders far outnumber journalistic cases. However, if the procedure is wrong in principle for journalism it is wrong in principle for all other interests.

Unless action is taken, flatly and unmistakably throwing down the gauntlet, free press, let alone free speech, threatens to be so embarrassed in this country that no newspaper man shall be able to keep faith with the reading public. Tendencies are all in that direction. The dangers under which men now write for the daily press are sadly underestimated. For many of them, newspaper men may blame their own craft. There have been excesses and abuses by a section of the press which has richly merited curbs, but all now suffer for the sins of the few. But in contempt of court cases we are unable to cite a single instance wherein the offending editor was unable to offer a defense based upon some principle of free press, or the right of the people to know the truth concerning the conduct of public affairs, or some natural mistake wherein there was neither malice or deliberation.

The evils of "constructive contempt," as applied to journalists, were presented in exaggerated form in the case of Carl Magee, editor of the Albuquerque (N. M.) State Tribune, the details of which are still fresh in the minds of all working newspaper men. That case also served to illustrate to what depth an electorate can go in selecting material for the bench, for Magee's accuser was conspicuously revealed as a villainous thug as well as a tyrannical public official and an intellectual misfit on the bench.

In the files of Editor & Publisher's reference room are the cases of a dozen or more American editors who have encountered judicial ire for public utterances, but no case presents such an audacious assault on the right of free expression in print as that of the obscure and broken editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, a weekly paper which has apparently been dealing in direct terms with local affairs, not always in the best of taste, nor perhaps in good judgment, but with vigor and heavy sacrifice. The case of Editor George R. Dale was extensively reported in Editor & Publisher for July 17. In essence it means that a local state judge sentenced this aged man to 90 days' imprisonment at the State Penal Farm and $500 fine for publishing an editorial in which he charged, following a recital of alleged wrongs extending to threats upon his life as penalty for continued attacks upon the Ku Klux Klan, that his previous conviction for carrying a concealed weapon was obtained from a Klan jury, and that the Judge, Grand Jury, Jury Commissioners, Prosecutor, Sheriff and the city police "belonged to the Klan."

The man was cited for contempt and "in the presence of a cheering mob of Klansmen and Klanswomen who packed the court-room to the doors," to use his own words, he received the sentence. He was kept in jail three days before bond was accepted, pending appeal. The editor made an answer wherein he presented the alleged contemptuous editorial and offered to prove its truth, and the court immediately held the answer to be "direct contempt," (contempt in the presence of the court), and gave the old man three months more at the penal farm and another $500 fine. Mr. Dale was released on bond pending appeal.

LET'S GO BACK TO THE CONSTITUTION

(Continued from page 3)

birthright away. The chickens are coming home to roost. All contempt cases, except where the act is committed in the presence of the court, should be tried by a jury. Under the federal statutes now, a lawyer who has courage and good sense can force a judge to vacate or recuse himself. Individual liberty began to lose ground in 1917 and we editors are largely responsible. We set the dogs on any fellow who did not yell his head off for everything that was done during the war. Let's get back to the spirit of the Constitution, the spirit that came down to it from the Declaration of Independence.

ANOTHER FORM OF DIVINE RIGHT

By HERBERT BAYARD SWOPE

Executive Editor, New York World

I BELIEVE every indirect contempt case should be heard by a jury. I am opposed to all forms of rule by divine right. I fail to see any inherent difference between the oftentimes absurd trumped-up contempt charges made by political popinjays masquerading as learned seigneurs of the law and the lese majesty that the autocrat of Germany once had the power to bring and the autocrat of Italy still does. Frequently the charges are so clearly violations of the right of free speech as to stamp themselves menacing to the base theory of our institutions. Surely the judges in America do not seek to fasten themselves upon us as a sacrosanct priesthood.

FEARS DELAY AND NEW ELEMENTS

By JAMES A. STUART

Managing Editor, Indianapolis (Ind.) Star

THE contempt laws are aimed to enable the court to protect itself and its dignity. Legislation requiring contempt cases to be heard before other than the one offended would cause delay and tend to introduce elements that would weaken the seriousness of contempt and to lower respect for the courts. The authority of the courts under our contempt laws has been exercised many years with few causes for complaint against the arrogance or unreasonableness of the judiciary. The theory of the law and not the facts in any particular case is important. It seems unfortunate that the Indiana Supreme Court ruled in the Dale case that the truth is no defense. That is contrary to the general understanding of lawyers and of the press. As to purging one's self of constructive contempt: if the Supreme Court of the United States to which an appeal in this case is about to be taken does not reverse that ruling, then it would certainly be time to consider restrictive legislation on the subject.

GENERAL ACTION IS NEEDED

By GEORGE E. MILLER

Editor, Detroit (Mich.) News

INDIVIDUAL opinion on your question is that it will accomplish little. It is a matter which should be placed before the next meeting of the Society of Editors so that action may be general and therefore more likely to be effective.

FAVORS ACTION BY EDITORS' SOCIETY

By WALTER M. HARRISON

Managing Editor, Oklahoma City (Okla.) Oklahoman and Times

THE American press should make a concerted effort to curb petty bench autocracy in contempt cases resulting from criticizing judicial decisions. It is not consistent with basic principles of jurisprudence that a judge act as complaining witness, prosecutor, jury and judge, where his own action are concerned. I believe a principle should be established that a judge filing a complaint against an individual for contempt should file in a court of parallel jurisdiction in some neighboring city or county. As the opening gun in a campaign against offenses, such as in the case of George Dale, I favor aggressive action by the American Society of Newspaper Editors which should jump immediately to the assistance of any member of the fraternity victimized by unfair attack.

PRESENT SYSTEM IS UNFAIR

By H. R. GALT

Editor, St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch and Pioneer-Press

FOR the proper maintenance of their dignity courts should have the power to enforce respect both within the court room and outside it. But it is, as you suggest, unfair for the offended judge to sit in judgment in such matters, especially when there is a question as to whether there actually has been contempt of court. For this reason your suggestion with respect to a change of venue, so to speak seems a good one.

arrested, held nine days in jail and t was taken to the farm and set to worl
a ditch. He was released on a Supr Court order.

The Supreme Court of Indiana versed the outrageous second sentence upheld the first and replying to Da plea of justification on the ground truth the court set up this start dictum:

"Appellant says in his answer the statements made in the alleged c temptuous article are true. . . .
not a justification for contempt even though it be shown that the art published were true, if it in any hindered the orderly process of the co and brought it into contempt before people.

"It is no excuse for one charged w criminal contempt predicated upon article published in a newspaper the article in all respects was true.
The truth of an article is not a mat of defense, neither is it a defense to sh that there was no intent to commit c tempt. Such answer is insufficient purge the contemnor of guilt."

The right to appeal from this decisi on constitutional grounds, has b granted and the question ultimately come before the Supreme Court of United States, if the old editor, who s he is now penniless, is successful in ra ing the necessary $5,000 to defray expense of this expensive operatio beyond the reach of the poor.

However, outraged public sentiment coming to the rescue. The New Yo World is raising a fund, which this we reached a total of $710. Emmet Ca naugh, a warm-hearted Chicago stc yards man, heard of the pathetic case a shelled out $500 last week with alacr and pleasure. Samuel J. Barber, edit of a little weekly published in the woc in the scenic Mount Magazine region
Arkansas, The Rural Record, impress by the Dale story in Editor & Publishi wrote this week: "We are not the 'so publisher of means' your editorial
Editor Dale seeks but if Editor & Pu lisher will sponsor a popular fund f this purpose we shall be glad indeed f you to draw on The Rural Reco through the ——— bank, and it will a pleasure to honor the draft for t dollars. Ours is only a small paper pu lished in the woods three miles from railroad but in our small way we wou like to help honor men of the spunk
Editor Dale of whom there are too few

Editor & Publisher will, of cours gladly accept donations to the Dale fun

Every reporter and editor in the la should send from $1 to $5. Herbert Gunnison, publisher of the *Brookly
Eagle*, led the way for newspaper pul lishers by contributing $200 to the Da fund, through New York World. Irw
Kirkwood this week sent his check f
$100 to swell the fund.

Charles H. Dennis, of the *Chicag
Daily News*, in a letter published th week said: "I have been in communic tion with George R. Dale and his lawye William V. Rooker, an able and since man, formerly himself a journalist, an
I believe that out of the case will y come an impressive vindication of th freedom of opinion and of speech." M
Dennis also joined many other editors i urging that the American Society Newspaper Editors take positive actio in the case.

Walter M. Harrison of the *Oklahoma
Oklahoma City, telegraphed the World

"I favor the immediate employment o outstanding counsel to fight for the free dom of George R. Dale. His sentenc appeals to me as a frightful miscarriag of justice and a flash of judicial czarism that means 'Good Night, America!' if w stand by like a bunch of children and le Dale's persecutor get away with it. I the editors of the United States will no fight for freedom of opinion we might a well go to driving taxicabs."

A third director to urge action by the American Society of Newspaper Editors was Ralph E. Stout of the Kansas City Star, who declared:

"I would favor the American Society of Newspaper Editors taking up the case of George R. Dale and proceeding with tion along lines which investigation of facts justifies. A free press, as recognized from Thomas Jefferson's day down, essential to the maintenance of the public."

That Editor Dale was a two-fisted fighter, often swinging wild according to modern journalistic concepts, is shown in the files of the Post-Democrat. But the files also show that Dale fought the Klan issue up to the last issue of the paper. In one of his editorials he says that "right across the street from the Court House 'Timber' Littlefield is running a big craps game, protected by Mayor Hampton and his police force. It is here and at other places that 'our boys' are being fleeced and ruined into criminals. On Adams street, between Walnut and Mulberry, Brownie and Bob Hinshaw hold forth. They also are missionaries for 'our boys.' Craps, stud poker, horse books, baseball pools are specialties at Brownie's. Further down on Walnut street, Art Stout and Buddy Miller are running big gambling games under municipal protection.

"In addition there is a myriad of smaller gamblers and card games for checks ... beckon the youth of the city from such joints as the Banner cigar store which also faces the Court House on the north side of the square.

"Some of 'our girls,' or at least the girls favored by the Hampton Administration and the political machine, are to be found at Reba Fenwick's South Walnut street, who voted for Hampton and who boasts that she had Sam Goodpaster fired from the police force."

Under the caption "Vain Hopes," Dale wrote: "The Post-Democrat ventures to hope that Hampton will have more sense than to allow himself to be led around by the nose by a lot of cheap gamblers and bootleggers. These petty law violators are generally "squawkers" who, to save their own hides, will go on the witness stand and tell everything they know when the squeeze comes * * * Muncie does not need a voting unit composed of gamblers, prostitutes, poison minor venders and racing pool touts. By working solidly for Hampton they insured his election. He owes to them. The only coin they will accept in payment is police protection."

On the front page of one issue under the caption "A Fine Bunch Indeed," Dale wrote: "While looking into the protected vice situation in Muncie, Judge Dearth might turn the spotlight on another grafting outfit, the Hampton board of crooks.

"Harry Hoffman, a common crook, is chairman of the board. The other member is Lon Thornburg, manager of the Hotel Roberts, where rotten booze is sold and drank by 'our boys and girls' which has a lurking place on the fourth floor of the tavern.

"The Democratic member of the board is Cliff Cranor, who deserted the Democratic Party in the last city election and was rewarded for his services in helping elect Hampton by an appointment.

"A check-up on the activities of the Board of Works show that certain contractors are favored, while others have a show whatever. Contracts, in almost every instance, have been let to the high- bidder and property owners are mercilessly robbed in order that the grafters may get theirs.

"The Magic City Supply Company, managed by Harry Hoffman, chairman of the Board of Works, and one of whose principal stockholders is Claude Hines, Hoffman's business partner, has the agency of almost every kind of material used in street, alley, sidewalk and sewer work.

"Specifications are so worded that the Magic Supply Company must be patronized by contractors.

"Next week the Post-Democrat will give facts and figures which should prove to the most sceptical that the crookedness in the Police Department is more than matched in the department of Board of Works.

"With so many good jails and penal institutions scarce of help, the Post-Democrat insists that Judge Dearth take a stand against the grafters of the City and County Administrations.

"Running a few unfortunate women out of town and letting the big fish remain will not hurt the grafters."

"Pretty tough stuff" will be the comment of many editors, but if true, was the man not serving? Does this writing indicate good citizenship, or bad? Is this spirit to be broken on the wheel of the Indiana State Penal Farm?

During Dale's five years in Muncie, he says he has lost $15,000 in cash, his home, and now his newspaper has been swept away and he is penniless. Those who complain of his newspaper methods at least cannot say that his object was based on greed. Even now Dale wants to continue the battle. "The Klan has only silenced my free paper, but it will rise again," he said. A few hours later the editor was again arrested on a libel charge. But he insists that "they will not drive me out of Muncie alive."

TIME FOR PRESS TO CURB ABUSES

By R. CHARLTON WRIGHT

Publisher, Columbia (S. C.) Record

I WOULD heartily approve a law requiring the hearing of contempt proceedings before some judge other than the judge affected or in another jurisdiction. So gross have been the abuses of the power in some recent cases that I am almost driven to the extreme view that such cases should be tried by juries. I do not sympathize with journalists who deliberately affront the dignity of courts, but there is a sharp distinction between contempt of some of the individual judges whose presence on the bench is a menace not only to the freedom of speech and of the press but to the liberties of the people as well. There should be some way to curb the arbitrary and now unbridled power that unscrupulous judges employ to punish political enemies, reward political henchmen, or satisfy personal grudges. The only effective weapon the press has, through which to bring about reform, is a continued course of education to the end that the public may eventually be aroused to a consciousness of the dangers inherent in the present situation.

BETTER JUDGES NEED OF THE HOUR

By G. B. PARKER

Editorial Director, Scripps-Howard Newspapers

SINCE the court that needs to use the contempt power least is the one that commands most public respect, I believe a steady improvement in the quality of the judiciary would pretty much eliminate the whole contempt issue. Such improvement can come only through less apathy and more interest on the part of the rank and file of voters. The press of America can be a most powerful force in hammering that idea home. I believe, in addition, that statutory boundaries should be set up defining where contempt may be committed and providing for trial of contempt cases to be held in courts other than the ones offended.

NO LIMIT ON RIGHT TO COMMENT

By CASPER S. YOST

Editor, St. Louis (Mo.) Globe-Democrat, Former President, American Society of Newspaper Editors

THE first amendment, I think, applies to courts as well as to other public functions. There should be no legal limitation upon the right to comment on the conduct of a court except in relation to pending cases, and except, of course, as to libelous attacks upon the court, in which, however, the truth should be sufficient justification. But the power of a court to punish for contempt is an essential one that applies to many conditions and circumstances not affecting the press. Legislation designed to restrain that power should be well considered. I would not like to commit myself to any such proposal without full knowledge of its provisions and study of its probable effects. I believe in the Dale case the court exceeded its authority and feel confident that the U. S. Supreme Court will so rule.

HIGHHANDED PROCEDURE UNDERMINES CONFIDENCE

By M. H. CREAGER

Managing Editor, Milwaukee (Wis.) Journal

AS a rule judges are highly sensitive about trying cases in which they are in the slightest degree interested personally, yet in cases of contempt of court—the very cases in which personal feelings might be expected to be most involved—judges usually insist on being the sole arbiters. Such highhanded procedure does far more to undermine confidence in the courts and to detract from their dignity than the contumacious acts which occasion it. Newspapers would do a public service to bring all such cases fully to their readers' notice with the object of bringing about a law requiring contempt cases be tried by judges other than the one directly involved.

(EDITOR & PUBLISHER will be pleased to receive from its readers brief statements for publication, from time to time, bearing on the proposed substitution of the change of venue principle for the present system in contempt proceedings. Also we hope that the evils of "constructive contempt" will get an airing by publicists).

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CRIME GIVES MIRROR BEAT

Arrest of Mrs. Hall, Charged with Killing Clergyman and Singer in 1922 Follows Paper's Investigation

Dramatic re-opening of the Hall-Mills murder case in New Brunswick, N. J., this week resulted from eight months' work by the New York Daily Mirror to solve the mystery which has remained unsolved since the Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, a choir singer in his church, were found shot to death under a tree on an abandoned farm near the city. On evidence developed during the Daily Mirror's investigation, Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, widow of the slain clergyman, was arrested at midnight July 28, in her home, anl lodged in Somerset county jail charged with the double murder.

The arrest came after Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the Mirror, turned over to Prosecutor Francis Bergen of Somerset County, ten affidavits obtained by Hy Mayer, a reporter for the Mirror, who has been detailed to the case continuously since the beginning of the year. With the affidavits in his possession, the prosecutor issued a warrant, which was signed by a justice of Somerset County, in which the murder was committed. The warrant was then given for service to the State Constabulary, but because Mrs. Hall resided across the line in Middlesex County, the countersignature of a justice in that jurisdiction was necessary.

The Mirror, having all angles of the story safely in its own hands, induced the State police to seek the countersignature in Dunellen, 15 miles from New Brunswick, in order to guard against a possible leak, and with the document, the police party, including Mr. Payne, drove 15 miles across country through the rain in somewhat less than that many minutes.

The home of Mrs. Hall was surrounded at 11:40 p. m. by the State troopers whose commander, Capt. Lamb, accompanied by the Mirror editor, rang the doorbell and directed the servant who aswered to tell Mrs. Hall that the police were present.

"Good evening, gentlemen," was Mrs. Hall's greeting. "Your visit is a rather late one. I suppose you want to question me again."

"I have a warrant for your arrest," Capt. Lamb explained. "I have been instructed to take you to Somerville."

Mrs. Hall read the warrant, handed it back, and telephoned her attorney, who advised her that her only course was to accompany the police.

The evidence upon which the arrest was based was not made public, but it is believed to be the result of the revelation by the Mirror that Arthur S. Riehl, husband of Louise Geist, one of the Hall servant at the time of the slaying, had asserted in annulment proceedings against his wife that she had received money for keeping quiet about certain phases of the murder.

Other revelations concerning movements of the Hall household on the night of the murder were also influential in moving the prosecutor to act, it is understood.

The Mirror had a reporter ready to flash the arrest for the edition that was waiting.

The Mirror printed the story about two weeks ago and its importance was generally deprecated by the prosecuting authorities of the New Jersey counties involved as a piece of tabloid sensationalism, not likely to develop as the Mirror story indicated. Whether the Mirror men fostered this impression is not known, but the official view was apparently accepted by the other New York and New Jersey newspapers until July 29, when the Mirror's second edition, held back for release of the story of the arrest, gave that newspaper a clean beat on a story that was a 10-weeks' wonder in 1922.

COOLIDGE AND "SPOKESMAN" SATISFIED WITH SUMMER WHITE HOUSE NEWS

Relations with Correspondents Friendly and Unmarred by News Indiscretions Which Occurred Frequently at Swampscott Last Year

By ALFRED H. KIRCHHOFER

Washington Correspondent Buffalo News

(Written Exclusively for Editor & Publisher)

Executive Offices, Paul Smiths, N. Y., July 28—Contrary to a misapprehension that seems to exist in many newspaper offices, President Calvin Coolidge is well pleased with the manner in which his stay at White Pine Camp is being covered by the Press Association reporters and "Specials" assigned to the summer capital.

In official circles the situation is called a big improvement over conditions that prevailed a year ago at Swampscott, and altogether the relationship between the President and the correspondents here is cordial and happy.

The picture was marred a few days ago when the President was moved to deny a statement published in the Syracuse Herald to the effect that Mr. Coolidge felt that "virtually all reasonable hope of payment of certain debts rested in trade agreements."

This was made in a story sent to the Herald from Saranac Inn, in which E. H. O'Hara, publisher, of the Herald, gave his impressions of his conference with the President last Friday. The forepart of the paragraph did qualify the assertion by stating that Mr. O'Hara was given to understand this from "Sources close to the President."

The official denial, which helped to appease the correspondents assigned to White Pine Camp, stated:

"The President has made no statement and authorized no interview concerning our foreign debts or trade agreements. Any claim to the contrary is without foundation. He did remark to a social visitor that foreign debtors could pay their debts in part from foreign trade. He has not mentioned trade agreements."

This affair was regarded as an unfortunate incident, probably arising from lack of familiarity with the practice intended to protect the President, but there is clear realization that the correspondents had nothing whatever to do with it. The President on two occasions has uttered words, through his spokesman, which might have been accepted as a suggestion that he was displeased with the way in which he stay was being covered, but official explanations of the incidents show that it would be far from fair or accurate to say that the President was displeased.

Shortly after coming here, the official spokesman suggested that it wasn't proper etiquette to question a fisherman's story and later the spokesman again issued a word of caution about mosquito stories which had been broadcast under the White Pine Camp date line.

It can be stated on reliable authority that when the President came here from Washington he fully realized that the man whose chief recreation since becoming President had been a walk in F street, Washington, accompanied by four secret service men, would furnish news copy if he broke a long standing practice and went fishing for diversion.

The stories of his exploits as a follower of Izaak Walton were fully carried, but could not have become known if it had not been with his approval. The sources of this information are just as communicative as the President wants them to be, and it is stated that Mr. Coolidge, on the whole, was pleased rather than anything else over the way the stories were handled. His reference to fishing etiquette was intended as a pleasantry, partly designed to stop discussion which he thought had run along far enough.

After that blew over and his fishing activities no longer ranked as first rate news, mosquitoes became a subject of discussion. Several stories commenting upon their prevalence came under the President's attention and his spokesman hinted that such articles, thoughtlessly written, might do irreparable damage to a section which depends for its livelihood and income upon tourist business.

The facts are that there are plenty of mosquitoes here, just as there were at Swampscott. The presidential entourage, marines, correspondents and natives, alike, suffered from them; but Mr. Coolidge didn't want their presence "played up" beyond all proportion merely because he happened to be here and his spokesman in a few apt words dropped the hint which made some of the writers a bit more cautious and considerate.

A year ago numerous stories were sent from Swampscott, which the presidential spokesman promptly denied. There has been nothing of that sort this year, and the President is as appreciative of greater care in sending stories as the editors presumably are. The President has made it plain that he does not object to political speculation; he realizes the interest in it and demand for it. All that he asks is that such stories carry some indication that they are not official.

It is pointed out in official quarters that the President's attitude toward the correspondents is indicated by the fact that last Sunday he invited four of their number, Charles S. Groves, of the Boston Globe; Robert L. Norton, of the Boston Post; John T. Lambert, of Universal Service, old Massachusetts friends, and Russell Young, of the Washington Star, as luncheon guests at White Pine Camp.

In all probability, due to the preference of the correspondents to avoid the more unsatisfactory automobile trip, the President, when he goes to Plymouth, will travel by train. The President hopes to be able to do that as a mark of his appreciation for the fairness of the correspondents.

Since Mr. Coolidge has come here there has been a revival of talk among correspondents and visitors about the White House rules forbidding the use of direct quotations attributed either to the President, or his spokesman, unless specifically authorized. So far as known, there has been only one violation of the rule this year, whereas last summer there were several such cases. This year, it is understood, the quotation from the spokesman was used as a result of misunderstanding.

Efforts were made to have the President grant permission to use direct quotations on the day his spokesman issued the important warning intended to allay international feeling over criticism here and demonstrations abroad resulting from the British debt settlement and the French financial crisis.

The statement of the spokesman was very frank, and that is felt by some at any rate that if the President or his spokesman had been quoted, or it had been issued formally, the government would have been required to cloak it in more displomatic language which would have veiled the meaning for some readers and not have made such a good story.

NEW A. P. LEASED WIRES

The Valdosta (Ga.) Daily Times, after a quarter of a century as a pony A. P. paper, has taken on a leased wire service, using the full day report. The Thomasville Times-Enterprise has also just joined the A.P. leased wire members.

ILLINOIS GROUP INCORPORATES

The Rock River Valley publishing company has been incorporated with $100,000 capital to publish a newspaper at Durand, Ill. M. B. Dolan, H. M. Bancroft anr Charles A. Bancroft are the incorporators.

PERPETUAL INJUNCTION

New Jersey District Court Gives Decision to Star Ballplayer Co.

Joseph L. Bodine, judge of the U. S. District Court of New Jersey, has handed down a perpetual injunction restraining the Baseball Display Company, Inc., and the Playograph Company, from manufacturing or selling baseball bulletin boards or "Playographs" which embody certain mechanical features identified by the Patent Office Number 1,312,940, the court finding that these mechanical features of the bulletin-board are the property of the Star Ballplayer Company.

S. F. BULLETIN STARTS PICTURE TABLOID

Eight Pages of Full Size With Cross Fold—No Advertising Carried—Public Demand for Cuts Cited

The San Francisco Bulletin on July 19 began publication of a picture tabloid as a regular daily feature.

The Bulletin announced that the tabloid was being published in response to the wish of readers, the public reception of a mid-week pictorial it was issuing being so pronounced that plans were made to convert it into a daily feature.

C. S. Stanton

"The picture tabloid is an evolution that is readily understandable, two of the factors that have brought it about being the widespread appeal and influence of motion pictures and the increasing use of visual methods of instruction in the schools," said C. S. Stanton, publisher. "The mass of the American people is not only interested in pictures, but virtually clamors for them."

No changes or curtailments will be made in the Bulletin with the publication of the picture tabloid. All of its regular features and departments are retained. The price of the paper remains at 3 cents.

The tabloid is eight pages daily, and is devoted exclusively to pictures. The pages are 17 1-2 inches long and 10 3-4 inches wide—the equivalent of the size of the full newspaper folded once. It has five columns. No letter press is used except the picture captions, and no advertising matter is carried, not even Bulletin office advertising.

It is making a phenomenal circulation success, Bulletin executives state.

Merle Gray, assistant city editor of the San Francisco Examiner, has resigned to become director of the Bulletin tabloid.

LIBEL SUIT DISMISSED

Oil Man Makes No Case Against Florida Publisher

Miami Beach, Fla., July 28.—Criminal libel charges filed by Horace C. Alford, oil promoter and realty developer, against Kent Watson, publisher of the Miami Beach Beacon were dismissed today by United States Commissioner John Spitler on motion of attorneys for the plaintiff. Attorneys for Alford told the commissioner they had insufficient evidence to make a case.

The criminal libel charges were filed against Watson following publication of an editorial in his newspaper which branded Alford's oil drilling promises as a hoax designed to serve as bait for suckers. Watson formerly was connected with the Associated Press, International News Service and the New York Herald.

HIDDEN MOTIVES AIR IN LIBEL HEARINGS

Dickey Seeks to Attack Credit of Buying Kansas City Star, Latter Attorneys Charge in Fight on Legal Questions

Motives behind the $3,000,000 libel instituted by Walter S. Dickey, owner and publisher of the Kansas City Jou and Post against five executives of Kansas City Star and former Arthur M. Hyde, were discussed by c sel in a hearing held before Judge O Lucas this week.

The hearing was on a writ of prel tion sought by I. N. Watson, and C Crane, attorneys for the Star execut and Mr. Hyde, to prevent the takin depositions by Mr. Dickey's attorneys fore the issues in the case had been termined.

Attorneys for the Star executives c Mr. Hyde was not involved in the for libel. The only possible case ag the former governor would be for slar they claimed, since he had nothing t with publication of the article.

"There is one clear motive in suit," I. N. Watson told the court. is common and public knowledge within the knowledge of your honor the five men from the Star have named defendants in this suit, purch the Star. Mr. Dickey filed this suit $3,000,000 to attempt to impair credit.

"They (Mr. Dickey's lawyers) come in here with a demand to take positions at the same time they have the suit and before the issues have made. It was done merely to at the credit of the men at The Star."

P. E. Reeder, counsel for Mr. Dic in his argument said: "The bug u the chip in this matter is that cot (meaning Mr. Watson and Mr. Cr are seeking to delay the taking of t depositions until after the prima (August 3). And we have a per right to take depositions at this ti

CHEAPER CABLE RAT IN PACIFIC

Commercial Cables Announces a ferred Press Service to China fr New York at 20 Cents Per Wor —Press Rates Stand

In response to newspaper demands cheaper cable rates in the Pacific, Commercial Cables-Postal Teleg system announced this week that be ning Aug. 1, a deferred press cable se will be instituted between North Am and Manila and China, including H Kong.

Deferred press messages, which wi transmitted when the cables are of other traffic, will be charged for a rate of 17 cents per word between York and Manila, and at 20 cents word between New York and China. rate for this service between San F cisco and Manila will be 14 cents word and between San Francisco China will be 17 cents per word. M ages filed at the deferred press rate bear the indicator "CP" in the add it was stated.

This is the first time a deferred has been granted in the Pacific.

The present press cable rates in Pacific are: New York to Manila cents per word; New York to C 35 cents; San Francisco to Manila cents per word; San Francisco to C 29 cents per word. These will remai same.

BABCOCK JOINS CARROLL

Raymond A. Babcock has just jo the selling staff of Dan A. Carroll, lishers' representative, New York. Babcock will confine his work to hanc general accounts for the New York T gram. He was recently associated the American Weekly organization.

"DON'T MAKE A FOOL OF YOUR NEWSPAPER"

This One Injunction Sums Up All Libel Law, Says Beazell, New York World—Holcombe, Herald Tribune, Declares There Is No Formula—12 Short Instructions Repeated

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

"There is so much 'on the other hand' stuff in most libel advice that brevity is needed," John Evans, managing editor of the Des Moines Capital, wrote the other day.

Lawyers insist a pamphlet of more than a score of pages at the very least is necessary. What some editors think is told in this the 20th article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

BREVITY may be the soul of wit, but can the whole libel story be told in a set of very brief sentence rules?

"It can," declared William Preston Beazell, assistant managing editor of the New York World, and he offered:

"Don't make a fool of your newspaper!"

This one injunction he believes sums up the whole law of libel as it concerns newspaper men.

Another short rule came in by mail from Harry F. Busey, managing editor of the Columbus (O.) Citizen.

"Most libel actions result from poor reporting or bad desk handling, which may be summed up in the one word 'carelessness,'" he wrote, adding:

"Carefulness of facts plus a sense of decency in handling are the best safeguards against libel in Ohio."

A. R. Holcombe, managing editor of the New York Herald Tribune, on the other hand, does not believe that any one brief libel preventive formula is possible.

"I don't believe the law of libel can be satisfactorily summed up in any brief formula," he said. "Assuming a newspaper man knows what libel is advice that is applicable to all forms of newspaper work holds true."

This advice is short enough—three words:

"Eternal, intelligent, vigilance."

Here then are four short sentence rules regarding the libel law. Added to them would be the 12 points suggested in an editorial in EDITOR & PUBLISHER, July 1. These suggestions, offered as a basis for general reportorial instructions, are therefore repeated in the accompanying box.

Such rules and suggestions as the foregoing are important for the protection of newspapers against libel, but knowledge of the law, discussion, and further advice are necessary.

"If you don't know what libel is, there is no formula to prevent libel," Mr. Holcombe said in the same interview in which he upheld the advice of "eternal, intelligent, vigilance." "No one can save an ignorant man."

And Mr. Beazell, although he summed up the law in a single sentence, went further into the subject.

"A reporter's first thought should be of accuracy," he said. "Accuracy is the strongest bulwark against libel there is. But a reporter must also be fair. You can be accurate and still be unfair.

"An ideal newspaper man would never write anything about anyone he wouldn't be willing to say to their face. There is often altogether too much refuge taken in newspaper anonymity.

"A newspaper has a public duty to perform and there are plenty of occasions calling for plain speaking. But it wouldn't hurt a newspaper man to keep this question in the back of his mind: 'How would I say this if I were saying it in the presence of the man about whom I am talking.'"

Then Mr. Beazell came back to his one-sentence rule.

"After all," he explained, "the ideal newspaper is a product of collective intelligence, and when you begin setting up 'don't' you handicap the ideal."

It was "Jake" Dreyfus, late owner of the New York Civil Service Chronicle, and one-time noted New York reporter, who first told Mr. Beazell that the one-sentence rule he quoted was the only rule given to members of the World's staff. Mr. Beazell had come to New York from Pittsburgh and had been with the paper of which he is now assistant managing editor for only a couple of days. He was re-writing a Washington dispatch. Dreyfus sat at the next desk.

"What's the rule on the World, 'Representative' or 'Congressman'?", Mr. Beazell asked.

"The only rule of this paper," drawled Dreyfus, looking up from his work, "is 'Don't make a fool of your paper.'"

"And it is the only really necessary rule," Mr. Beazell continued. "If you get your paper into a libel suit, you are making a fool of it. If you are not accurate, if you do your job half-way, you are making a fool of your newspaper.

"There just isn't anything that doesn't come under that head. Keep this one rule in mind and you have everything on the subject that can be said."

Mr. Holcombe in discussing libel stressed the important part played by copy readers and editors in avoiding suits, told of an interesting New Orleans case, and explained the Herald Tribune's desk system, which provides careful safeguards against damage actions, with frequent consultations with the newspaper's attorney, Harold L. Cross.

"Some libels are so insidious they are sometimes almost unavoidable," he said. "As a matter of fact, every newspaper is constantly printing stories, which, if they were submitted to an attorney would be ruled out. These stories, even though they do not involve a newspaper's duty of criticizing men in public office, do supply information to which readers are entitled, and even though they are technically libellous, they should be published."

A practice of the Herald Tribune is to take up all really important and dangerous stories with its counsel, Mr. Cross. He is always available for consultation. He is awakened in the middle of the night to answer questions, if necessary.

Every effort is made to man the desk with experienced men and it is not very often that libels get through. The Herald Tribune's desk system provides for divisional supervision. Wire news is first read by the telegraph editor or his assistant before going to the main copy desk, where it is read again. The head of the copy desk passes it on to the night editor who is instructed to be on the watch for dangerous stories.

The same route is followed by city news. It is first read by the night city editor or his assistant and then goes to the main desk, and from there to night editor.

The libel suit Mr. Holcombe recalled involved the old New Orleans Picayune, a paper with which he was once associated.

A murder trial was held at Amite City, La. Two men were accused, tried, and convicted of killing an old farmer. After the trial, a reporter for the Picayune interviewed one of the murderers, before he was taken back to the jail. The man was quoted as declaring he hadn't had a fair trial, that the jury was fixed.

When the story was turned in, the copyreader wrote a very general head for it, a head that indicated that the man who made the charge against the jury was evidently mentally upset because of his conviction. In other words, the copyreader softened the libel contained in the story's text. The headline, however, didn't save the paper from litigation.

Eleven of the 12 jurors filed suit for libel. Attorneys agreed to consolidate the actions and abide by the decision in one case. The paper lost. It was a small sum, several thousand dollars, but multiplied by 11, it was worth further fight.

So the Picayune appealed to the state supreme court, the highest appellate court in Louisiana. Here judgment was reversed. The supreme court declared the article should be taken as a whole, including the headline as well as the text. The headline, it was pointed out, showed that the charge made by the convicted man was not true, and that the paper didn't believe it to be true.

"The man who edited the Picayune apparently knew the story was libelous," Mr. Holcombe commented. "Whether he did his full duty by softening it down in the headline is another question.

"In case a story is pretty rough and of necessity must be published, special care should be taken in writing the headline. It is more conspicuous in the first place; and the mechanics of headline writing are such that clear expression is difficult to obtain."

TWELVE GUARDS AGAINST LIBEL

(1) This paper, as a matter of honor and decency, subscribes to the principle of live and let live and has no prejudice or grudge against any person, class, race, party or institution which lives within the law;

(2) Reporters and editors are instructed to act the part of gentlemen in their work and write of persons with full consideration of their rights and interests;

(3) It is the reporter's business to relate to the public through the medium of the newspaper those facts concerning people and things of which society by custom is entitled to have knowledge;

(4) Accuracy of statement, insofar as it is possible to discern and describe truth, is demanded of every writer for this paper;

(5) Any writer who uses his privilege to vent personal ill-will toward any person or institution written about, or for any other selfish end, is disloyal to this newspaper and violates the first tenet of the code of ethics governing American journalism;

(6) The principle upon which this newspaper's editorial conduct is founded is one of service to the public welfare, and your treatment of individuals must be consistent with this policy;

(7) Freedom of the press is not a license, but a grave obligation;

(8) Keep faith with individuals with whom you come in contact, even as you keep faith with the readers of this newspaper;

(9) You are trusted not to invade private rights of individuals without sure warrant of service to readers of this paper;

(10) Investigate before you write and by all means avoid mistakes, but if you do make a mistake and discover it, report promptly to your editor and thus give him opportunity to make such correction as may be possible;

(11) Act and write fairly, impartially, decently, carefully with the sole object of telling the readers of this newspaper what they are entitled to know concerning the world in which they live;

(12) In other words, play the part of a gentleman, good journalist and good American.

ILLINOIS PRESS CONTEST RULES ANNOUNCED

Prizes to Best Papers in Daily and Weekly Divisions to Be Awarded by University at State Press Meet

Rules for the national community newspaper contest at the University of Illinois have been announced by Prof. Lawrence W. Murphy, director of the event.

Preliminary judging will take place at the time of the sixty-first annual convention of the Illinois Press Association at the University Sept. 30 and Oct. 1 and 2. The judges will then be allowed a longer period in which to compare the papers surviving the first test of strength.

In the weekly field the Franklin award, in honor of Benjamin and James Franklin, will be offered to the paper which, in the opinion of the judges, shows the greatest general excellence. This award was won by the Bemidji (Minn.) Sentinel in 1925.

In the daily field the Samuel Bowles award, established in honor of the founder and early editors of the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, will be offered to that paper which, published in a community of 50,000 or less, possesses the greatest general excellence. The award for 1925 went to the Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph. The contest rules follow:

1. A national award will be made for the best weekly newspaper entered in the contest. (Franklin.)

2. A national award will be made for the best community daily newspaper published in a city or community of less than 50,000 population which is entered in the contest. (Bowles.)

3. An entry will consist of two copies, representative and consecutive, of the publication submitted. They should be folded together and sealed in one wrapper.

4. Special editions will not be considered.

5. Entries should be mailed at once to the Journalism Office, 109 University Hall, Urbana, Ill.

6. The wrapper should be marked plainly with the words, "National Contest—Weekly Paper" or "National Contest—Daily Paper."

7. Twice-a-week or three-times-a-week papers will not be eligible for entry.

8. Suburban papers or papers published in large cities which serve limited communities in those cities may be entered if they are eligible as weeklies or dailies under Rules Nos. 1 and 2.

9. No fees will be charged for entry of a publication.

10. Entry may be made by an editor or any person interested in the publication submitted. The name of the editor should be written at the top of page 1 of each issue.

11. Copies may be marked to indicate significant material if the contestant wishes to call attention to certain points.

12. No entries will be accepted after Sept. 25.

13. The decision of the judges shall be final.

14. The basis of judging shall be all around excellence on the basis of opportunity.

15. No letters or special correspondence are necessary. The mailing of the papers in a properly marked wrapper constitutes an entry.

PRESS RIGHT TO CRITICIZE IS PUBLIC'S GREATEST SAFEGUARD, SAYS JUDGE

Bribery and Corruption Ask Nothing More Than the Silence of the Press, Missouri Jurist Declares in Address to Editors

By EDGAR WHITE

THE Northeast Missouri Press Association was fortunate in obtaining for its winter meeting at Macon a jurist who has won a wide reputation for the clarity of his decisions, and his views of government as expressed in his charges to the grand jury.

Judge V. L. Drain of the second judicial bench is more than a rural judge. He is a student of history and a most interesting writer on historical subjects. From his reading and experience he is convinced the average man wants to do what is right. The Judge is particularly friendly to the newspaper folks, but has an inbred aversion to getting into print as a personality. It was only after the argument was used that his observations would be of real benefit to the public that he consented to address the press gathering.

An idea as to how Judge Drain looks upon the work of the newspaper may be gathered from his handling of a case that was before one of his courts not long ago. There had been a homicide that created considerable talk. A well known man had shot and killed a popular young woman. When the case came before Judge Drain he was confronted with an application for a change of venue on the ground that the newspaper stories of the affair had inflamed the public mind against the accused.

Judge Drain met the issue by summoning all the newspaper men of the county, and instructed them to bring copies of their papers containing every story they had printed about the shooting.

It was a tremendous job to read the many columns of the story in the various papers, but his Honor held the witnesses to the task until every line had gone into the record. Then he said:

"From beginning to end this court has failed to find one prejudicial line against this accused. From the nature of the case the remarkable thing about it is that all these newspaper men have written with such fairness and with such scrupulous regard for the rights of the man who is to be tried. The motion for a change of venue is denied."

"In the very nature of things the newspapers and the courts could not be hostile," Judge Drain told the editors at the Macon meeting. "Each is a leading and potent institution in close touch with all the affairs of the people. Both are trusted agencies to encompass the welfare of the citizen.

"By their loyal cooperation in their respective channels of service is brought about better government and better conditions of life.

"In one of the early chapters of John Richard Green's History of the English people is a thrilling story of the monks who were going through great hardships to establish an educational system in Great Britain. They sought to bring across the Channel the material to lay the foundation and to build the structure that was to be the start of the educational system of a great nation, but they were swept away in the tides and lost their lives in the attempt to better the condition of the primitive inhabitants of the British Isles.

"The torch they held aloft amid the turbulent waters was thrown to the printing press, to men like you to whom is committed the solemn responsibility to keep burning the fires of education and of civilization.

"The courts, the judicial system of our country depends much upon the attitude of the newspaper for its efficiency. What you say about the administration of justice by our tribunals will be taken by the great mass of the people as true. Their views will be formed from what you write. Hence into your hands is committed the power of a giant, but, remember, he uses such power wisest who uses it like a giant. A giant in judgment, a giant in straight thinking, a giant too great to be moved by malice or personal ill-will to employ ruthlessly the mighty force which he controls.

"There lies the safeguard of the people.

"But the right to criticize? It is yours. More: it is your bounden duty to point an accusing finger at unfaithfulness in office, at the betrayal of a public trust, at the fishy eyes of incompetency, at the bloated wretch who fattens on graft wrung from the people who think they pay for honest service.

"Bribery and corruption ask nothing more than the silence of the press. They will take their chances on squaring everything else.

"Your criticism should always be constructive—designed for the welfare of the people, and that alone. It avails you nothing to single out some man you dislike and turn your batteries on him. Your readers will quickly sense the motive, and discount all you say. That means loss of influence, prestige, all that a good newspaper man holds dear.

"Now, here is a thing in which I believe all newspaper men can help, the development of the individual citizen to a feeling of personal responsibility in the operation of the courts and of the government. This may be just a hobby of mine, but if my years of practice at the bar and my service on the bench have taught me anything it is that good government and the satisfactory administration of the law depend upon the way you and I—the common people—accept our individual responsibility as American citizens.

"The sheriff goes to the head of a large business enterprise with process summoning him for jury duty.

"'But I can't serve!' protests the busy man; 'I'm up to my eyes in the work of this concern.'

"'The judge said to take no excuse but sickness.'

"'But why do you want me? Why not get some one who has not so much at stake?'

"'Weren't you talking about the "bonehead" verdict of a jury up in the circuit court the other day?' suggested the sheriff.

"It took but a moment for this to sink in; then the merchant said:

"'I'll be there.'

"There was a contagious disease in a town—a few cases. A delegation of local business men visited the editor.

"'You must keep this out,' they said; 'else people won't come to town and trade will be dead.'

"It was a time for individual action, and that editor acted. He learned the truth, printed it, along with careful location of the infected homes. The candid statement silenced exaggerated rumors, and by indicating the homes where the disease was the visitors to town could avoid those places. Instead of being harmful the publication was beneficial.

"As a people we are prone to act in masses. To join societies, meet in public, pass resolutions, go home and forget about them. If nothing is done the meeting is to blame, not me.

"Burn it in, and keep burning it in, that real accomplishment rests upon the citizen. Make him feel it! Tell him he can't delegate to others the duty that is his. Make him get out and vote, take a hand in elections. Pick out the right man to vote for, and be able to give his reasons. I like that old-time ambition the district school boys once had—they wanted to be President, or at least a United States senator or a congressman. And because of that idea they grew into stronger and more patriotic men, and when their country had need of them they were ready."

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

Aug. 6-7—Wyoming Press Assn., annual convention, Thermopolis, Wyo.
Aug. 7—Southwest Minnesota Editorial Assn., summer outing, Lake Sheat, Minn.
Aug. 9-11—Georgia Press Assn., annual meeting, Louisville, Ga.
Aug. 11-13—South Dakota Press annual meet, Brookings.
Aug. 12—Wisconsin Press Assn., Meeting, Wisconsin Rapids.
Aug. 12-14—Virginia Press Assn., meeting, Pulaski, Va.
Aug. 13-14—Iowa Press Assn., meeting, Cedar Lake.

DETROIT NEWS RAPS CLUB VENTURE

Says National Press Club's High Building in Bad Taste—Charges Wire-Pulling for Special Privilege

Under the caption "Impudence Extraordinary," the Detroit (Mich.) News on July 23, published the following editorial:

"Whoever it was persuaded Congress in the closing hour confusion of the last session to permit the building restrictions of the Capital to be abrogated in favor of an alleged national press building deserves the swift contempt of journalism in the United States and should receive a prompt and thorough rebuke from the country's newspapers which, it is grotesquely suggested, are to be 'honored' by this impertinence.

"So far from being a monument to the press, it will be a monument to bad taste, and the newspapers of the nation hold too high the ideals represented in the physical appearance of the District of Columbia to feel anything but resentment at an effort to place them before the country as seeking to impair a lovely and symbolic city by a special privilege accorded, it will be assumed, as a tribute to their skill in wire-pulling.

"The press of the nation centers its finest efforts in the Capital; the monument of the American press is to be found in a fair and intelligent reflection of national government and a stimulation of public interest everywhere in the vital methods and purposes of the people's common business. If it wishes any further monument it can achieve such a monument nobly by insisting on the rigid adherence to the original plan for the City of Washington, and the further development, with the genius of that inspiration, of the finest and most significant capital ever created by a people.

"Washington's charms are many; not least the restricted height of architecture, the relationship of that height to the street-width, and the ensuing relative grandeur of such great monuments as the people, at rare times, wish to erect. Washington is the visible expression of national government, to be refined not corrupted. The press should count it a privilege to insist on this.

"The press exists to serve. The perpetuity of its repute lies in that service. To lend its name, or to tolerate the suggestion contained in the name planned for the building which defies a wise and beautiful city plan, is to permit a monument for which American journalism would need to blush ever after.

"American journalism, we believe, repudiates the suggestion.

"If there is any way to halt such an impudent and arrogant assertion of special privilege that way should be employed, and at once."

INJURED IN PRESS

F. S. Fullerton, editor of the Orion (Ill.) Times, suffered painful injuries to his right arm when it was caught in a roller of the press last week. Both bones in his wrist were broken and he will be incapacitated for several weeks.

87 STAFF MEMBERS NOW OWN STAR

Formal Transfer to Kirkwood and Associates—Financial Details Announced—Agree to Sell Stock When Situations End

KANSAS CITY, Mo. July 29.—The s of the Kansas City (Mo.) Star a Times to Irwin Kirkwood and associa was completed today with this announc ment from the trustees:

"The deed to the Kansas City S properties was delivered to the Kan City Star Company today and a mo gage of eight and one-half million doll given the university trustees in additi to the cash payment of two and one-h million dollars.

"Both deed and mortgage were filed the office of the recorder of deeds.

(Signed) "William Volker,
"J. C. Nichols,
"Herbert V. Jones,
"University Trustees T
William Rockhill Nels Trust."

The Kansas City Star Company, cap talized at five million dollars was grant a charter of incorporation yesterday Jefferson City.

The incorporation papers list sharehol ers for organization purposes as Irw R. Kirkwood, August F. Seested, Ralp E. Stout, George B. Longan, Henry Haskell, Earl McCollum and John Barrons, all of whom were named being members of the board of director

The Company was incorporated to co tinue for fifty years.

The corporation was formed to ow acquire, establish and operate a new paper and printing business and to prin publish, circulate and sell newspaper magazines, periodicals and books. It w formed also to acquire, hold, sell, tran fer, mortgage, lease and operate re estate and buildings and personal pro erty as may be required for the purpos of conducting a newspaper.

The capital stock was divided int 25,000 shares of preferred stock (to b held in the treasury of the company) an 25,000 shares of common stock of a pa value of $100 each. The articles state that 50 per cent of the capital stock ha been subscribed in good faith and 50 pe cent actually paid. The preferred stoc would entitle holders to dividends at th rate of not more than 7 per cent annuall and the remaining dividends would be ap portioned holders of common stock.

In all there will be 87 members of th editorial and business office staffs wh will own stock in the Star Company. Thi stock has been subscribed. Members o the staff were invited to subscribe on th basis of one third cash and the rest ove a period of 8 years, deferred payments t be carried by Mr. Kirkwood at 5 pe cent. By articles of agreement the stoc is pooled and when any stockholder eithe voluntarily or involuntarily leaves the em ployment of the newspaper, his stock wil be sold back within the organization. Thi applies to Mr. Kirkwood as well as min ority stockholders. In this manner Mr Kirkwood has insured the control an ownership of stock within the Star Or ganization in the future.

Irwin Kirkwood, who becomes presi dent of the Star Company, has been edi tor and publisher of the Star since th death of William R. Nelson, 11 years ago He was Mr. Nelson's son-in-law and dur ing the period when Mrs. Kirkwood wa trustee of the estate, was active in th conduct of the newspapers. A. F. Seeste has been general manager of the Star fo many years. All of the directors were associated with Mr. Nelson during his lifetime.

HAMMOND RECOVERING

Percy Hammond, dramatic critic o the New York Herald Tribune, who ha been ill for several weeks as a result o poisoning, and who has had several opera tions, was taken to his home at East hampton, L. I., from the Southampton Hospital on July 27. Mr. Hammond is reported to be improving slowly.

FREE PUFFS MAY TELL–BUT NEVER SELL

anufacturers of the Nation Have at Last Learned This Truism, Says Stuart Schuyler, Allied Newspapers—Big Swing of National Copy to Newspapers—Sell What You've Got, His Slogan

'REE puffs may tell, but they never sell."

his truism has at last been drummed the consciousness of most manuurers in the opinion of Stuart uyler, president of Allied Newspapers, , who, in an interview with EDITOR PUBLISHER this week, reported he has ed a definite reform among both adtisers and newspapers regarding the publicity problem.

ogether with the reform has come a swing of national copy to the newsers, Mr. Schuyler said.

If only 50 per cent of the lists being de up now go into space, national ertising in the newspapers will show decided increase over last year," he lared. "Reflecting general conditions loughout the country is an increase in ional linage of from 20 to 40 per cent the Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

'Manufacturers are buying space that ually sells their merchandise," Mr. uyler declared. "They are not using ak newspapers that give away free ce with every contract.

'Both inside and outside the newspaper siness there has been a definite reform the matter of free publicity.

'Manufacturers have proved to their n satisfaction that while free puffery en tells it never sells, and therefore y are moving into paid space. Radio d automobile manufacturers particuly have thoroughly demonstrated that e publicity doesn't pay.

'At the same time newspaper pubners today are more alert than they ed to be. It was not long ago that rwspaper publishers grabbed up what ey could to fill their papers. Today ey are realizing that publishing is a nufacturing business. The cost of blication is being taken into considerain.

"Now the great majority of newspaper blishers realize that they can no more ord to give away free space, than a nufacturer can afford to give away o of his products for the price of one.

"In many notable instances advertisers ve proved for themselves that free lvertising doesn't sell.

"Not long ago, for example, the merican Can Company engaged a pubcity woman to write publicity for them out canned goods. The copy was awn up in the form of an editorial ature, and newspapers from coast to ast fell for it.

"It looked very good. But the Ameriin Can Company made a check in all e cities where the free publicity ran d found out definitely that it had not creased sale of canned goods at all.

"The stunt was killed immediately, and nances are strong that it will never be sumed. The American Can Company und out that the space obtained 'free' as the most costly it had ever 'purhased,' and results were nil.

"The most outstanding case of free ublicity reform may be seen in the autoobile industry. EDITOR & PUBLISHER ust be given some credit for this.

"Only a short while ago when newsaper solicitors called on automobile adertisers they were greeted with the plea: "'Well, how much free publicity can ou give us?"

"Today I don't know of a single autonobile factory that has been in business ny length of time making this request. Now what they want to know first is irculation and rates.

"Now they don't care whether or not newspaper runs an automobile section. The Studebaker Corporation, in fact, prefers to have its copy run in the main news section than in the auto section.

"The reform is also noted in the radio field. Two years ago tons of free radio publicity were bombarding newspapers. Today weeks go by without any handouts coming in."

Stuart Schuyler

"Sell what you've got—don't ask intelligent salesmen to sell intelligent buyers a product out of character," is the key-note of Schuyler's salesmanship and the basis of his instructions to the Allied staff of newspaper representatives who contact advertising agencies and sales managers and advertising managers throughout the United States in the interests of the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

"There seems to be a tendency to build sales arguments on those points which a product or service lacks instead of on those which it possesses," Mr. Schuyler said. "Tooth paste is tooth paste—and not medicine. Corn flakes are breakfast food and not a drug store product. Yet we all remember the flu epidemic during which tooth paste and corn flakes were offered to the public as preventives of influenza.

"This is not criticism of any advertiser's ingenuity in finding new and effective sale appeal for his product. We all remember the marvelous success of the Halitosis campaign for Listerine and many other clever evidences of effective advertising and selling. But if the Ford car were sold as a competitor of the Lincoln, then I should feel that the Ford salesman was selling what he didn't have.

"That is what I mean by selling 'out of character.' It is like introducing 'Hamlet' into 'Abie's Irish Rose.'

"Ginger ale is a product of so general an appeal that it can be readily sold to the great middle class. Yet you have seen brands of ginger ale advertised in a most exclusive and snobbish manner, with a sales appeal intended only for the affluent and socially elect. Some brands of ginger ale may be superior to others—but ginger ale is ginger ale and any one who drinks it straight or in combination with certain unmentionable liquids is able to buy it. Why not sell it for what it is, rather than for what it is not? Why use specious arguments when real sales arguments are so much better?

"As Leslie F. Tillinghast says: 'Tell a man your spade is a spade; that it is iron—not gold; that it is as good a spade as any 'dam crittur' can buy for the money—and let your statement be honest. Then your goods will be sold.'"

Mr. Schuyler, as president of Allied Newspapers, holds a position in the publication field similar to that of sales manager in other fields. He says that the business of selling white space for advertising purposes is not greatly different from the business of selling canned peaches or tooth paste or any other commodity. In the sale of advertising space, as well as in the sale of more tangible products, Schuyler believes in selling "what you've got."

"I recall an advertising campaign some years ago designed to sell fly paper. The space for this campaign was bought on what the agency business terms 'the quality appeal.' That is to say, only those mediums supposed to appeal to the very wealthy class were chosen to carry fly paper advertising. A product may be a quality product in the sense that it is made of good materials or ingredients and still be purchased by Tom, Dick and Harry. Personally, I cannot imagine J. Pierpont Morgan coming ashore from his yacht in New York Harbor to buy a dozen sheets of fly paper. It may be the finest fly paper ever manufactured but such millionaires as I have known were more interested in negotiable paper, than they were in fly paper for their own household use. A product which may be purchased by the general public should be advertised in mediums which reach the general public. The manufacturer had a middle class product. He tried to sell it as a millionaire specialty.

"In the publication field we find magazines devoted to financial matters, Wall Street news and so on. They are admirable mediums for financial advertising. Are they equally good mediums for cod fish balls or golf balls or ball bearings? The financial magazine or the golf magazine or any other specialized publication should sell what it has—and audience interested in finances—or in golf—or in whatever it may be. There are other publications still more highly specialized—trade journals for grocers—publications for poultry raisers and keepers of bees.

"A man engaged in raising chickens quite possibly would be a prospect for a motor car salesman. But when the poultry raiser is reading his poultry journal, his mind is on the subject of poultry and not on four-wheel brakes.

"The editor of a specialized publication, through a certain editoral policy, wins to his side an audience of readers interested in one particular subject. Such a publication should be an excellent medium for products related to that subject—but the editorial atmosphere is foreign to unrelated products.

"The newspapers and general magazines are best for the advertising of miscellaneous products of general sale. They are not suitable to sell technical dental equipment to dentists, but they will sell tooth paste to the consumer.

"The family doctor is ready to treat any and all kinds of diseases. But we have also doctors specializing in skin diseases, eye, ear, nose and throat troubles, and so on. The eye specialist does not seek the privilege of extracting your appendix and the stomach specialist does not go in for face lifting.

"Newspapers are suitable as mediums for products of general appeal. Space in them should be sold on the basis of what their circulation and character actually is. They can be successfully used to advertise most products. Specialized publications should keep to their specialty.

"I remember one occasion when one of the men of our own Chicago office came to me for advice. He had interviewed an advertiser who desired to push the sale of an electric flash-light among farmers. His advertising featured the conveniences of the flash-light in farm work at night. The newspaper our man had discussed with the advertiser had comparatively a small country circulation. What kind of a sales argument should our representative use?

"I told him to tell the advertiser quite frankly that our medium was not the most suitable for his purpose in connection with that particular schedule of copy. I told him to point out, however, that the city dweller would also buy flash-lights just as readily as the farmer, although for somewhat different reasons. That special copy should be prepared to run in our publication to reach city people at the same time that the other schedule of copy was running in another newspaper to reach the farm population. I cite this merely as an example of 'selling what you've got.' Sell what you have—and don't claim to have what you lack.

"The far-fetched sale appeal does not win in the long run. On the other hand, straight-forward salesmanship does win, because logic and honesty of purpose shine through every word the salesman utters and make his words ring true and carry conviction."

NEW FIELDS OF PRESS TRAINING COLUMBIA'S AIM

Advanced Laboratory Research on Great Problems of General Interest and Instruction in Busines Management Desired—Survey of Graduates' Earnings Summarized.

POSSIBLE new fields of training for the School of Journalism of Columbia University are outlined by Acting Director Roscoe C. E. Brown in the 14th annual report of the school, for the fiscal year ended June 30. Two lines of work are suggested by Prof. Brown—the development of research work for advanced students and the study of managerial problems for students who hope to become proprietors of newspapers, particularly small newspapers on which the editor attends to the entire business.

When Joseph Pulitzer established the foundation which made the school possible, Prof. Brown points out, he looked primarily to the education of daily newspaper workers for editorial staffs, and that has been the main business of the school to date. Some advanced instruction looking toward magazine writing has also been afforded and next year, in co-operation with McGraw-Hill Company, a course will be given in technical journalism.

With present resources, Mr. Brown continues, the school is wholly unable to give the training that the country journalist and the editor of the small town newspaper ought to have in the business management of the newspaper, advertising problems, typographical questions, etc. For this purpose, at least $25,000 above the school's present resources is necessary and to serve the profession to the greatest advantage in this field, $40,000 in addition to the income from the Pulitzer Foundation would be essential.

In the other field, the plan in Prof. Brown's mind is the development of a laboratory for the study of journalistic problems which no individual newspaper is in position to study, but which are of interest to the profession generally.

Registration for the year 1925-1926, according to the report included 120 candidates for degrees and seven candidates for certificates. Sixty-seven men and 53 women are matriculated for degrees, and five men and two women seek certificates. One male student is non-matriculated. Students are classified in two professional years and as graduate students and were drawn from all parts of the country, only 14 coming from New York City and vicinity. Forty-four students were graduated with the degree of Bachelor of Literature and seven as Master of Science in Journalism.

"Under a grant made in 1925 by the Advisory Board of the School, an inquiry has been made into the employment and earnings of graduates of the Columbia School of Journalism," the report continues. "While general knowledge of the success of many graduates and of the steadily increasing hospitality of newspapers and magazines to them gave the officers encouragement and satisfaction, it was believed that a study of specific results would help to measure the value of the school, throw light on the employment problems presented by present journalistic conditions, and perhaps indicate lines along which the training of the school might wisely be developed. The work of gathering and tabulating the facts and preparing them for publication was undertaken in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the degree of Master of Science in Journalism by Clarence W. Steffler of Pittsburgh, a graduate of the School of Journalism with the degree of Bachelor of Literature in 1925. This work is now in press and soon will be published by Columbia University. Records of employment and earnings at different periods since graduation were obtained from more than two-thirds of the graduates of the school. An extended review in advance of publication of the significant material thus assembled does not belong in this report. But a few outstanding facts should be noted.

"The records shows as large a proportion of the graduates entering journalism and maintaining themselves therein as would be expected in any profession of the recipients of professional training. A little more than 72 per cent are in pure journalism, or in allied lines of work for which the school course is directly or indirectly a preparation. A considerable number of those not thus occupied are recent graduates carrying on advanced studies, or women who, after some professional experience, have married and retired from regular professional employment. More than 52 per cent of the graduates reporting are in editorial or news periodical work, while nearly 21 per cent have been drawn from editorial activity into advertising, publicity or publishing, or into the teaching of journalism.

"The tendency in this direction appears to increase with the length of time after graduation, and the average earnings in advertising and publicity are larger than in straight newspaper work, a fact suggesting that this drift results from the failure of newspapers, though they offer rather large initial earnings compared with those of business, medicine, or law, to give progressively increasing rewards adequate to hold many enterprising men and women who find that their training for journalism fits them to take advantage of the more remunerative business activities allied or auxiliary to journalism.

"The graduates of the school are earning in journalism somewhat more than the average salaries of journalists of their years, as reported by a committee of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism.

"Nevertheless, the tendency of graduates after newspaper experience to turn to the business side of publishing should have the attention of all who are concerned for the intellectual and moral leadership of the American press. No literary occupation can hope to compete with business for financial returns. The journalist, like the teacher, goes into his work looking for other rewards. He has them, and in general would not exchange them for money.

"Yet no profession is in a sound position that does not make its attractions continuous, or leaves its able and enterprising workers under increasing temptation as the years go on to capitalize their professional capacity outside the profession.

"The tables show a gratifying increa in initial earnings of graduates, both m and women, in journalistic and sem journalistic occupations since the begi ning of the school. Among men the r porting graduates of the class of 19 earned a beginning salary of $1,07 which rose until the graduates of 192 made in their first year an average $2,002, those of the next three class earned over $1,900, while the earnin of the class of 1925 averaged $1,47 The initial salary of the first wome graduates in 1916 was $910, while 1919 it was slightly over $2,000, an in 1925, $1,410. While these figures ar based on too small a number of cas to warrant any sweeping conclusions, is apparent that journalistic salaries hav shared in the general advance in wag since the beginning of the war.

"The reports show that the prese average earnings in pure journalism men who have been graduated ten yea or more are $6,016; while in sem journalistic work, that is advertisin publicity, etc., they are $10,330; and non-journalistic work, $16,019.

"The significance of the last figure qualified by the fact that it is swolle by the earnings of a few unusually su cessful business men. How accuratel these reports, either of men or wome reflect the position of the entire bod of graduates is open to question, but fro what is known of the graduates wh have not sent detailed information it believed that they afford a fair cross sectional view of the whole. No wome have been graduated ten years.

"The average earnings reported fo women who have been out five years o more are: in pure journalism, $2,869 in semi-journalistic work, $3,476, and i non-journalistic work, $4,244.

"The earnings reported for men whe out five years are: in pure journalisti work, $4,071; in semi-journalistic worl $4,865; in non-journalistic work, $4,52 As the figures for women include nc only their salaries when out five year but also the present salaries of thos more experienced, the comparison doe not fully reveal the difficulties of wome with respect to opportunities, especiall in the East, except in the magazine fiel

"Women graduates of the Columbi School of Journalism appear to be mak ing a better showing financially than th average newspaper worker of the countr as a whole, man or woman, as estimate by the American Association of Teacher of Journalism; but the door of reportin on the great metropolitan newspaper which is a favorite way for men to ente journalism, opens grudgingly for wome and their opportunity is best to be foun in specialized lines of work, in the mag azine, trade-paper and house-organ fiel and in the small country journals, whic offer useful and profitable careers to in dependent and competent men and wo men.

"One or more graduates of the schoo are employed on 32 magazines in th United States and on 68 newspapers i 16 states, including every one of th great New York dailies. Several ow papers in whole or in part. They ar also doing newspaper work for eleve press associations or syndicates in Ne York City, are on the staffs of the As sociated Press and the United Press i various cities of the country, and ar also employed as editors and correspond ents in Porto Rico, the Philippines, Cuba Canada, London, Paris, Berlin an Vienna.

"The detailed report of the places the hold as proprietors, managing editors publishers, editorial writers, correspond ents, desk executives, and reporter shows that the School of Journalism ha through the men and women of its thir

(Continued on page 45)

SALINA MERGER A SUCCESS—JOURNAL OCCUPIES REMODELLED PLANT

WITH its new 32 page Hoe press in operation, and a battery of seven linotypes devoted exclusively to the newspaper, the Salina Journal at last is permanently located in the building which has been remodeled for it next door to the postoffice. New furniture has been installed throughout, all old equipment replaced, and today the plant ranks well up with those in cities anywhere of 16,000 to 17,000 population.

The building is 50 by 100 and the newspaper occupies all the basement and first floor and a part of the second floor, in addition to a one story press room specially constructed and attached to the main building. Factory construction has been used as much as possible, and hard wood floors installed in the offices as well as the mechanical room.

The Journal is a consolidation of the Salina Evening Journal and the Salina Daily Union. The two papers were united about the first of the year by R. J. Laubengayer, a Salina business man who formerly was associated with the Booth newspapers, first at Ann Arbor, Mich., and later at Detroit. As a result the Journal is now the only daily paper published in Salina, or in any of the 20 counties of the Northwest quarter of Kansas.

That consolidation has been satisfactory to subscribers and advertisers, Mr. Laubengayer declared. Subscriptions have increased 50 per cent, he said, while local advertising has increased about 25 per cent, and national advertising nearly 40 per cent.

The Journal was established in 1888, and for the greater part of the 25 years prior to its sale, was edited by Joseph L. Bristow, former United States Senator from Kansas. For the past 15 years it has been managed by Roy F. Bailey, who continues as general manager, with Mr. Laubengayer as publisher, Fred J. Ludes as managing editor, Earl C. Woodward as advertising manager, C. H. Harper in charge of national advertising and Miss Dorothea Smith as city editor. It has been a Republican newspaper since its establishment, and will continue to support that party, its publisher stated, although a column will be donated to the Democrats in which they will be permitted to present their policies and arguments as they see fit.

Detroit News Again Leads All American Newspapers

In Total Advertising Value

17,427,326 Lines

Published First 6 Months 1926

Indicative of the marked prosperity of the Detroit market and the ability of The Detroit News to cover it adequately is this new record of 17,427,326 lines of advertising for the first half of 1926. In 1925 The Detroit News achieved a hitherto unprecedented mark with 16,414,678 lines for the same period. The present volume, however, overtops this mark by 1,012,648 lines and gives The News the advertising leadership of America once more—an honor won by The News more times than any other newspaper.

The Rank of The Leaders

	Lines
Detroit News	17,427,326
Chicago Tribune	16,829,661
New York Times	15,251,876
Washington Star	14,381,584
Los Angeles Times	13,608,084
St. Louis Post-Dispatch	12,689,880

The signal achievement of The News merits the attention of all buyers of advertising space. The concentration of advertising volume in The News, greater than that of both other Detroit newspapers combined, points to the wonderful economy of selling the Detroit market through the use of its big home newspaper. The Detroit News circulation is the greatest in Michigan and covers Detroit more thoroughly than any other newspaper in a city of Detroit's size or larger.

The Detroit News

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

335,000 Sunday Circulation 320,000 Weekday Circulation

FINDS EUROPEAN PAPERS LAG BEHIND THOSE OF NEW WORLD

Intimate Picture of Continental Journalism Presented by Australian Writer—Declares Bad Papers Better Than None at All

By NEVILLE SMITH

(Editor's Note—Mr. Smith is a member of the editorial staff of the Melbourne (Australia) Herald and recently arrived in New York en route to Australia, following an extended study of journalism in Europe, where he accepted temporary employment on newspapers in many cities in the principal countries. His unique experience gave him an intimate understanding of working conditions in England and on the Continent. The following is a summary of his conclusions, written for EDITOR & PUBLISHER*).*

THE recent general strike in Britain proved that a newspaper was a necessity in modern life. Even though an excellent radio service kept the country informed during the strike the public quickly realized that a newspaperless community was not a pleasant place to be in. During a printers' strike in my own country—Australia—some years ago, the State of West Australia was without newspapers for three weeks, and during that time there was an extraordinary crop of rumors, which nearly threw the whole communal life of the place into confusion. The Prime Minister was assassinated. Dame Nellie Melba (an Australian) died suddenly. The Melbourne Cup favorite (more important "down under" than Babe Ruth is here) went lame, and smallpox broke out in Kalgoorlie.

Consequently it is not surprising to find newspapers even in the least educated communities. During two years of exploring Europe I have come to the conclusion that even the worst paper is better than none. Some papers are very, very bad, but the fact that they exist is a virtue in itself. A whole national press may be inexpressibly poor, but you will find that one cannot afford to neglect it. In Yugo-Slavia, for instance, no fewer than eight different languages are spoken, and the population is largely illiterate. Yet the Yugo-Slavian press is watched carefully by political manipulators. The French, who are angling for prestige in the Balkans, subsidize it. They even publish an afternoon daily in French in Sofia, the capital of its neighbor, Bulgaria. Spain is 64 per cent illiterate, but Primo de Riviera keeps a more than fatherly eye on the vernacular press. The censorship is so strong there that the most reliable information regarding anything but Government-endorsed news comes from the town of Perpignan, north of the Pyrenees, where it is brought by word of mouth across the frontier. Suppose, for instance, there is a rumor of a plot against the military directory, which frequently occurs in fact but not in theory. Paris journalists immediately get busy, and usually the real facts are known to French readers before Spanish.

On the whole, however, European newspapers, Britain excepted, are on a lower level than those of the New World, probably because the latter is so much more progressive in thought. This is particularly noticeable when comparisons are easy, as, for instance, between the Spanish press of Spain and that of South America. There is no paper in Spain that can even approach the standard of La Prensa of Buenos Aires. Technically most of the British papers have a good deal to learn from America, and as a native of the Dominions I have frequently been pained by some of the really deplorable errors made by many Fleet-street papers about the Empire. The art editor of a big London daily once said to me: "I suppose you have difficulty with your English pictures in Australia; they must be at least a fortnight old before you get them." Even the quickest mail takes more than four weeks to cover the distance. It is usually five, or even six.

Continental papers are interesting to the Anglo-Saxon newspaper man. At first sight the average French or Italian paper looks hopelessly bad. It is small (seldom more than 16 pages, usually eight), inaccurate, badly printed, deficient in news and wrapped up in politics. It takes a long time to realize its virtues and the disabilities under which it is produced. Virtues exist, however. The French press reaches a high standard of culture. Classical facts and quotations are constantly used and practically never misused. Literary style is paid a great deal of attention. The French journalist aims at a dramatic story to entertain his readers, and subjugates all other considerations to this requirement. He is witty, irreverent and extremely shrewd. With the exception of the "big five"—Le Matin, Le Journal, Le Petit Parisien, Echo de Paris and Le Petit Journal—the 28 or so Paris dailies are more or less faction sheets, run to ventilate the views of some particular group or individual journalist. Personal journalism is more powerful in France than in any other country I have encountered. Readers seldom believe what their papers say, but if a man's name appears over an article it is considered that he is personally responsible for the matter contained therein and that he is prepared to stake his reputation on what he writes. Even the "information papers," that is, the papers whose primary aim is to give news, not views, adhere to this principle. Consequently well-known journalists have a good deal of political power in France. Many of the country's best-known politicians started life as newspaper men, notably Clemenceau. Furthermore, some newspapers play an active part in the affairs of the country. Several of the nineteenth century revolutions were engineered by journalists, and Le Figaro was the keystone of the Dreyfus case.

Since the advent of Mussolini and Fascism in Italy, with the consequent suppression of the freedom of the press, Italian newspaperdom has become very interesting. Public affairs being practically barred (it is a penal offense to refer to Mussolini except to praise him and to offend Fascism means automatic sequestration) many papers have specialized on a daily magazine section, known as "Articoli di terza pagina." This is very well written, though verbose, and the choice of subjects has spread a little army of Italian journalists all over the world. The foreign correspondent, as a matter of fact, is usually the best man on the paper. His local colleague is a long way behind. Nevertheless, the Italian has just as great an interest in dramatic stories as the Frenchman, and lurid accounts from police stations are thoroughly enjoyed. Domestic slaughterings, kickings to death, meaty suicides and other picturesque amenities of Italian social life are reported with gusto. Curiously, Mussolini's own paper, Il Popolo d'Italia, founded by him in 1915 and at present edited by his brother, does not stand high in popularity. It has a circulation of only 80,000. Several papers in Milan, where it is published, have a much bigger circulation in the city itself. I understand that such continuous and overwhelming praise of Fascism bores even the Italian enthusiast.

Apart from a surprising turn for invective, the German press is quite efficient, though, in my opinion, the German genius is best shown in its periodicals, some of which specialize on curious and very naughty subjects with disconcerting frankness.

Hungary, which is a land of fierce patriotism, is nevertheless pleasantly humane in its newspaper methods. There is a most salutary law relating to notice of severing the engagement of a salaried journalist. This is fixed with the responsible editor for one year for sub-editors, six months for important members of the staff who have been employed more than five years, and three months for all other editorial men. Religious toleration is also recognized, even in the case of the Jews, who are by no means popular after the horrors of Bela Khun's Bolshevik régime in 1918.

One respect in which European newspaper work varies a little from that of America is in the vogue of long-distance telephony. This is far more popular than telegraphy. Many London papers, particularly the Times, get practically all their Continental news by "trunk telephony," and enormous volumes of matter are handled nightly. The Times works it in this manner. There is a staff of expert stenographers in the head office in Printing House Square in London. They are in communication about half-a-dozen times nightly with specially employed telephone experts in Paris and Brussels. Paris and Brussels in turn communicate respectively with Milan, Madrid, Geneva and Vienna, and Berlin, several times a night. Milan in its turn "drains" Rome and the rest of Italy, Madrid "drains" Spain, Geneva Switzerland and particularly the League of Nations, and Vienna the South-Eastern part of Europe. Outside these—Scandinavia, Soviet Russia, the Near East and Portugal—the telegraph is used direct to London, but the French North African colonies avoid international complicat by telegraphing to Paris, whence the r is relayed by telephone to London. T telephony is good in Europe and espec good between London and Paris, w there are 14 lines. The language culty is overcome by employing En telephonists who are thoroughly at h in the languages of the countries in w they work. The actual news, how is telephoned in English.

HOLDING COMMUNITY "SING

The Milwaukee Journal is sponsc community singing under the directio Frederick Carberry, song leader. "sings" are held four nights a wee the city's parks during a nine-week pe A contest has been arranged with gr from five parks entered. At the en the season a flag or a plaque wil presented the winning chorus by Journal. To date 65,000 have atte the "sings," the Journal reports.

DAILY IN NEW PLANT

The Eugene (Ore.) Morning Reg recently opened its new building w public reception. A new press and new equipment has been installed.

PRESS AGENT DECORATED

Edward L. Bernays, public rela counsel, New York, received this the title and decoration of Office Public Instruction from Maxime gendre, French Consul-General for York.

F. E. C. Railway
Faith in Florida
Is Expressed With $21,000,000
For Improvements

The officials of this railway, after completing the annual spring inspection trip over the line, announce this huge expenditure for new improvements and new facilities for handling the steadily increasing Florida traffic.

Jacksonville is the terminus of the F.E.C. Railway and the home of the Florida Times-Union. A city leading all other Florida cities in population and a newspaper foremost in state circulation.

The Florida Times-Union
JACKSONVILLE

DAILY 53,000 SUNDAY 70,000

THE STATE GAZETTE

the only morning newspaper in Trenton, N. J.

Now under ownership of

The Trenton Times

56,000 Circulation

(Morning and Evening)

Absolute coverage of the 250,000 people in Trenton and the shopping area.

It's done with a single advertising appropriation.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

NO MORE LAWS NEEDED TO PROTECT NEWSPAPERS, SAYS S. N. P. A. PRESIDENT

Raleigh Publisher Deplores Activities of Legislative Committees—Urges Consolidations to Elimnate Mendicant and Mediocre Papers

By JOHN A. PARK
Publisher Raleigh (N. C.) Times and President, S. N. P. A.

IN the recollection of the present generation's crop of newspaper workers, no activity stands out more conspicuously than the favorite indoor sport of hoping that the next biennial session of the General Assembly will be indulgent toward newspapers.

JOHN A. PARK

Newspapers, like spoiled children eating candy must be humored and petted and they must have consideration the next time candy is passed around. And so, when the State Legislature convenes there must be a committee on legislation, a large committee including "influential" members from every section who are to buttonhole every official member and earnestly urge an increase in rates for legal advertising and to help induce the federal post office to reduce carrying charges on second class matter and to do varied and sundry things that may aid or please the newspapers.

Surely, those legislators who have answered more than one opening roll call, must be wearied of the incessant cry to "do something for the newspapers." Isn't it about time for the newspapers to do things for themselves?

Do we need more laws to aid and protect newspapers? Indeed we do not. We have too many laws now—of every kind.

The kind of laws that we should have next, with respect to newspapers, would protect newspapers from one another and protect society from the newspapers.

There are too many newspapers in America today, just as in some towns there are too many groceries, drug stores and filling stations. The man who made two blades of grass grow where one grew before may be emulated now by the genius or philanthropist who transforms two makeshifts into one good newspaper. North Carolina fortunately is not as sorely afflicted at the present moment with a superfluity of daily papers as she has suffered from in the past, but there are still some "weaklies" and perhaps a daily or two which have no real claims to existence.

There are several towns and cities in this state that have experienced the annoyances of too many mediocre publications that should have been consolidated, checked or choked. Large cities in other states have all experienced the evils of too many sheets carrying the names of newspapers. Every city and most of the towns throughout the length and breadth of the land have their newspaper graveyards and their skeleton closets that should forever remain sealed and closed.

The tendency to consider newspapers as public utilities continues to grow. There are those who would classify this great industry of public service along with railroads, highways, telephones, power companies and the like. Newspapers are usually willing to admit that in some communities they are treated as red-headed step-children.

What would be regulated about newspapers if they were placed under state supervision?

First, there would be a shifting around and moving of plants from points of congestion to those very few places that need newspapers.

Next, there would be established standards of practice under rigid supervision demanding satisfactory performance or closing of the doors.

Then, suitable rates for advertising and circulation would be prescribed and stabilized; low enough to attract business and high enough for a legitimate profit.

The results naturally would be the growth and extended service of the deserving publications and the withdrawal of the incompetent ones.

Talk about the "supporting" of a newspaper would be reversed into a respectful request for the newspapers' approval and support of a community and its enterprises.

Moaning over increased postage rates does not reduce the cost, neither does an occasional complaint filed with one's favorite congressman. Action of regional groups and associations collectively seems the best way to arouse interest of post office officials. Possibly the best method of all is the use of competing services, such as express, baggage, bus lines and private delivery. Withdrawal of mail and passenger trains through decreased patronage and increased popularity of bus service has brought a multitude of complaints from patrons in many towns large and small here in North Carolina, where better highways are bringing many changes in manners of living.

Rates for legal advertising as well as rates for any other kinds of advertising should not require defense. If they are right they should be enforced. If they are too high, patronage will decrease; if too low the business cannot survive.

Why not ask our legislative bodies to so safeguard humanity that the ever increasing number of preventable fatalities may be checked?

Why not ask for protection from the speed demon and the incompetent driver who profane our highways and fill our hospitals and morgues?

Why not forever discard the dingy one-room schoolhouse in favor of the modern consolidated school?

Why not make it prohibitive to erect hospitals, schools and even office buildings and hotels that are combustible?

Why not direct the energies and brains of the great publishing industry of thriving North Carolina into channels of constructive endeavor and militant usefulness?

Yes, why not?

These Utopian conditions may be for future generations; they may be close at hand. The mendicant publication will remain mendicant unless perchance through change of attitude or circumstances it may join the growing group of aggressives.

Some day the great God of the Universe is going to look down on one of his dearly beloved publisher-children and say, "Cease thy slothfulness; rise up and produce a better newspaper or get thee back to the tall timbers."

(The above is as an address delivered by Mr. Park at the annual meeting of the North Carolina Press Association at Hickory, N. C., last week.)

KNECHT GIVES FAREWELL PARTY

Gives Decoration to Publisher on Eve of Return to France

Dr. Marcel Knecht, head of the French delegation to the International Advertising Convention, on the eve of his return to France on the "Paris," July 24, gave a farewell dinner to his friends on the roof of the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. The guest of honor was John A. Penton, iron trade publisher, who for some years has been a simple member of the Legion of Honor in France and who, on this occasion, was raised to the rank Chevalier of the Legion. The medal was pinned on his breast by Knecht.

Among Dr. Knecht's guests were: J Grover Whalen, Louis and Paul M of the Theatre Magazine, E. E. Pid of the New York Journal of Comm James W. Brown, president, EDITO PUBLISHER, H. S. Swartz, Jesse H. N Leon Renier, Robert Remy, F. C. Si I. D. McAlpin, C. K. Woodbridge, A. Penton, H. H. Charles, and oth

Dr. Knecht thanked his friends of press and the advertising forces America for his welcome to the Un States and took occasion to declare no matter what the state of politics in his native country, so long as the p and the advertising forces of France the United States were in accord, would constitute a solid barrier friendship which no misunderstandin misinterpretation could possibly b down.

247,116

was the average net paid dail circulation of The Baltimore Su (morning and evening issues for the month of

June, 1926

The average net paid circulatio of THE SUNDAY SUN p Sunday for the month of Jun 1926, was 188,756.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunda

"The Love Game"

A story of LOVE and TENNIS by

Suzanne Lenglen

In 27 daily illustrated installments

"Comparable with many of the best sellers. It has interest and a style which carries one on from the first page to the last without any sense of boredom."—San Francisco Herald.

"Holds the reader's interest throughout its rapid action."—New York Telegram.

"A story of tennis and romance cleverly constructed and charmingly related"—St. Louis Star.

LEDGER SYNDICATE

The INDIANAPOLIS

Indianapolis is one city where one newspaper alone can carry any advertising load with maximum results. The News alone has greater circulation in Indianapolis than both other daily newspapers combined. It has reader interest and effectiveness, and an advertising endorsement that have never been even remotely approached in Indianapolis.

Dan A. Carroll
110 E. 42nd
NEW YORK

J. E. Lutz
Tower Bldg.
CHICAGO

NEWS

Frank T. Carroll,
Advertising Director

DU PONT

E. I. DU PONT DE NEMOURS & COMPANY
INCORPORATED
WILMINGTON, DELAWARE

ADVERTISING DEPARTMENT

Results Count!!

The Pittsburgh Press
used Exclusively with wonderful Results for Advertising Campaign on DUCO

July 5, 1926.

The Pittsburgh Press,

Pittsburgh, Pa.

Gentlemen:

When we decided to go into Pittsburgh with our campaign on Duco for Handy Home Uses and du Pont Paint and Varnish products, we chose to use the PRESS exclusively for our advertising.

We are very well pleased with the results obtained in your territory, a large part of which we feel is due to your splendid cooperation. This was very definite in character - far beyond mere promises.

We are glad to express our appreciation of your support because, while we know that the public was waiting to get Duco to be applied with a brush, nevertheless we are convinced that the Pittsburgh dealers' confidence in advertising in the PRESS, greatly helped the speed with which distribution and repeat sales were brought about.

Very truly yours,

Wm. A. Hart
DIRECTOR OF ADVERTISING

Wm. A. Hart
KED

The Pittsburgh Press

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

ONE of the leading advertising articles of the month is "The Present Trend in Advertising"—contributed by W. R. Hotchkin to The Journal of Retailing. Mr. Hotchkin, who is now director of the Standard Advertising Company of Chicago, was formerly advertising manager of John Wanamaker, New York.

At the very beginning of his article Mr. Hotchkin thus stresses the importance of news in copy:

> It should never be forgotten that the real soul of advertising—the live interest-compelling quality or element—will forever be the NEWS factors that it possesses.

The importance of institutional advertising is then taken up and attention is called to the fact that one of the most encouraging phases in the present trend is the increasing number of retail advertisers who "sell the store." To secure this editorials are frequently printed in the store's advertising space. Ways are thus described:

> This store-selling advertising policy is operated in varying manner, by various stores. Sometimes the so-called editorial is set in a small rule box, in the corner of the advertisement; again it takes the form of a broad display heading for the page; then we see the editorial take a more prententious form and require a separate and totally independent position of its own in the newspaper—perhaps being written by outside specialists in advertising. Still another feature of store-selling advertising is provided by store-service organizations who syndicate this type of store editorial writing, thus providing this valuable factor of modern advertising for stores everywhere—large and small—and written by specialists in this work.

One of the best things in the article is the comparison made by Mr. Hotchkin of realistic and modernistic advertisements. Examples of both types are given in the article.

* * *

AN editorial in The Nation for July 28 opens as follows:

> In an era of commercialized newspapers, when editorial policies are syndicated, it takes more than moderate courage to stand for the old and honorable tradition of independence which once animated the profession of journalism.

Fitting tribute is then paid to the two fighting editors, Donald R. Mellet, editor of the Canton (O.) Daily News, who lost his life because he stood by his editorial guns, and George R. Dale, editor of the Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, who faces a prison sentence.

* * *

EVIDENTLY the World War has had its effect upon cartoonists. A cartoon—"An Unsafe Fourth," by Harding for the Brooklyn Daily Eagle—shows flying projectiles without their cartridge cases firmly attached to their sterns. Believing this cartoon to be unique, The Outlook reproduced it in its issue for July 28. It explained past practices on the grounds that most cartoonists used 22-caliber amunition as models of all projectiles up to at least sixteen in diameter.

* * *

AN editorial, "Newspaper Values," in The Outlook for July 28 in speaking of the sale of the Kansas City Star and that of the Chicago Daily News remarks that both "brought prices in the market that can be conservatively called colossal." It adds that both Mr. Lawson and Mr. Nelson "were old-fashioned in their notions and sold news instead of monkey-shines." It then goes on to say that while Mr. Lawson's fortune went in the main to the Congregational Church Mr. Nelson's will "cultivate the arts and graces of Kansas City."

* * *

JOHN CARTER, who is on the staff of the New York Times, contributes to The Nation for July 28 "Putting America in a Hole—the Lesson of the Debts" and John Billings, Jr., who is connected with the Washington Bureau of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, is represented in the same issue with "Oil and the Wheels of Justice."

* * *

MARY MARGARET McBRIDE is joint author with Paul Whiteman of "Jazz" (J. H. Sears & Company). Miss McBride, who is a graduate of the University of Missouri School of Journalism, started her newspaper career on the Cleveland Press and was for several years on the staff of the New York Evening Mail to which she contributed daily a signed feature story.

While "Jazz" is Whiteman's autobiography he would doubtless be the first to acknowledge the help he has received from Miss McBride in the collection of material and in the preparation of the manuscript for the printer.

The chapter in "Jazz" which will probably most appeal to newspaper people is "Tin Pan Alley." Even to them it may be news that Händel's Messiah furnished the theme of the well-known "Yes, We Have No Bananas" and that most of the "banana" song "which was not taken from the Messiah" came from Balfe's famous "I Dreamt That I Dwelt in Marble Halls." This chapter also gives the inside story of other jazz songs. In fact, the interesting anecdotes scattered through the chapters jazz up the volume.

* * *

MANY of the illustrations used in "Business Ethics" (Ronald Press Company) are the advertisements which the Golden Rule Department Store of St. Paul inserted in the Pioneer Press of that city in a running series headed "Ethics of Business."

The author of "Business Ethics" inserts this incident which may possibly interest the readers of EDITOR & PUBLISHER:

> William Seaver Woods, editor of the Literary Digest, once gave me an incident which happened during the days when he worked on the Republican at Springfield, Mass. That paper in order to get the news of a somewhat serious wreck had chartered an engine to carry its reporters to the scene of the disaster. When the paper asked a bill from the railroad company it was informed that the company considered it a pleasure to be able to serve such an excellent paper as the Republican and that there was no charge.
>
> The editor of the Republican replied that the paper was perfectly able to pay any bill for services rendered, and, in this instance, insisted upon payment. The exchange of letters between the paper and the railroad company continued for some time. But no bill was presented. Determined not to be under any obligation to a public service corporation, the Republican finally drew a check for the amount which it thought would cover the expenses for the use of the engine and sent it to the railroad company. This check passed back and forth several times between the paper on the one hand and the railroad company on the other.
>
> Finally the Republican sent a notice that the money was in the bank awaiting the pleasure of the railroad company for its disposal. The check itself was framed and prominently displayed in one of the offices of the Republican. In commenting about this incident Mr. Woods remarked that this framed check taught a most valuable lesson to reporters about the danger of accepting any courtesies that might possibly suggest bribery.

* * *

TOP-OFF-THE-BARREL of the recent crop of books on the art of agricultural journalism is "Agricultural Journalism" (Knopf) by Nelson Antrim Crawford. This book is as satisfying to the reader as a prime steak of Kansas "cake-fed" beef.

Here is a guide book written by one who "knows his potatoes." The author, born in a small town in South Dakota where they raise big crops, is thoroughly acquainted with the sun-browned countryside. A present he is the Director of the Department of Informaton of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The roads to success in farm press practice mapped out by Crawford in this text are no cow paths. They go straight to their destination and the author follows his own highways.

"In fixing the general policies of a farm paper, the actual reader of that paper is always considered," he writes. "If it is a new paper which is to be started, the publishers determine in advance to what type of reader they wish to appeal . . . Formulating the editorial policy of a paper involves decid not only what matters shall be trea but also in what way they shall be trea . . . The farm paper is not an dowed institution. It can exist o when it can obtain enough advertisi It can get this advertising only wl it has enough readers who c sufficiently for the paper to pay out th money for it . . . At the same ti any farm paper that deserves to e is anxious to do its best for farming the farmer. It wants to make farm more profitable financially, intellectua and spiritually. It wants to improve condition of the farmer and his fan in every possible way."

How this may be done is shown in tail in "Agricultural Journalism" in s an engaging and crisp manner that book is a sort of dictionary of ways means to writer, editor, and student the farm press. Mr. Crawford has served the farmer's mind as carefully the farmer himself looks into the he ens for signs of approaching rain relieve a stubborn drouth.

(Continued on page 40)

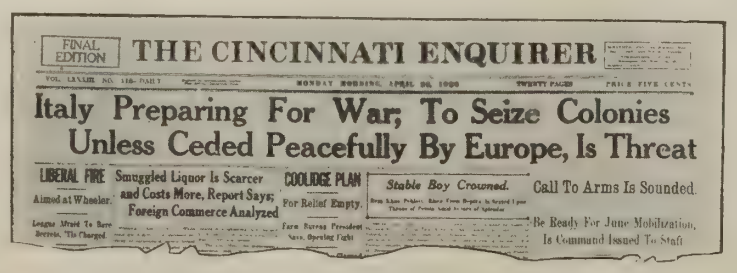
Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago



170,000 Daily

390,000 Sunday

LOS ANGELES Examiner

23 INTERTYPES

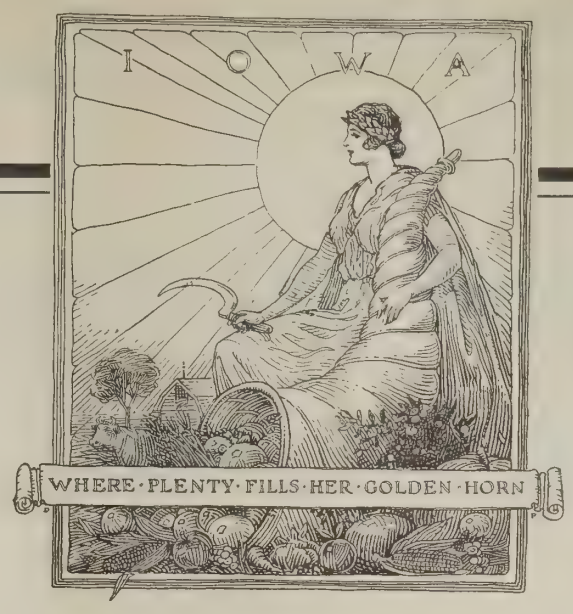
are being used by

FINAL EDITION
THE CINCINNATI ENQUIRER
Italy Preparing For War; To Seize Colonies Unless Ceded Peacefully By Europe, Is Threat
LIBERAL FIRE Aimed at Wheeler.
Smuggled Liquor Is Scarcer and Costs More, Report Says; Foreign Commerce Analyzed
COOLIDGE PLAN For Relief Empty.
Stable Boy Crowned.
Call To Arms Is Sounded.
Be Ready For June Mobilization, Is Command Issued To Staff

No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES

thoroughly and alone cover the Oklahoma City Market



Oklahoma's farm income for twelve months beginning July 1, 1926, is placed by the Brookmire Economic Service at $345,000,000. This is 117% of the normal five-year average and 108% of the figures for last year.

This farm prosperity is permeating every nook and corner of Oklahoma, affecting all lines of business and creating an expectancy for the greatest fall selling season in Oklahoma history.

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY

New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

These 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers offer a valuable marketing service—uniform co-operation for you over the entire state. Write for the "Iowa plan."

Higher percentage who will buy—in Iowa

With per capita, taxable wealth 51% above the Nation's average, with tastes, habits and living conditions correspondingly high, it is only natural for a sales campaign in Iowa to bring unusual returns.

Iowa is lowest of all the states in percentage of illiteracy. Highest of all in proportion of telephones to population.

Another indication of Iowa's high living standard is this fact: The percentage of Iowans 18 years old who have finished high school is double that of the nation at large.

Iowa, of course, is famed as the foremost agricultural state. She ranks first agriculturally in many ways, such as production of corn, oats, horses, hogs, and poultry.

Yet, did you know that 59% of her people live in towns and cities?

Iowa's Agricultural standing often makes us lose sight of her industrial wealth. The output of her 3,420 factories in 1925 was estimated at $775,000,000—more than the value of her total field production.

Iowa has the country's largest factories in the production of: Cereals, Washing Machines, Baskets, Stump Pullers, Wall Plaster, Crackers and Macaroni. Other important Iowa industries are Cement, Brick and Tile and Meat Packing.

Iowa people, wherever they live, whatever they do, have at least one trait in common. They all have the habit of reading their daily papers every day.

These 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers offer the ideal way to tell your story to Iowa people. Total circulation—571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000.

If you wish, you may deal with this group as with one publication.

Rates and full information upon request.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

CHILE FIRST COUNTRY TO PROVIDE PENSIONS FOR NEWSPAPERMEN

Law Passed at Request of Carlos Davila of La Nacion, Santiago, Sets Aside 2% of Race Track Profits—Newspaper Workers Also Contribute

By RAFAEL FUSONI

United Press Correspondent, Santiago, Chile

CHILE is the first country in the world which through the energy of its newspaper directors has obtained for the newspaper workers, including editors, reporters and printers, the benefit of pensions given by the state after a certain number of years of work.

The law which is the same as that for the employes of the public administration, defines newspapermen as those who belong to an enterprise having a printing shop which regularly issues some paper or magazine. To come within the scope of this definition the enterprise must employ no less than ten men.

The money for the retirement, pension and life insurance is derived from the following payments made to the Bank of Pensions for Public Employes and newspapermen: 5 per cent deducted from the monthly salary of the employes, plus an equivalent sum paid by the enterprises; 10 per cent of the net profits of such newspaper enterprises; 50 per cent of the first month's salary of each new newspaperman; the first month's increase of any salary; the fines which the companies impose upon their personnel; and 2 per cent of the total amount of the profits made by race-track betting throughout the country.

Among other things, the law providing this benefit stipulates that newspapermen after 30 years of work are entitled to retire receiving a monthly pension equal to the average of their mensual salaries during the last two years of service. But in no case must this pension exceed 36,000 Chilean pesos per year.

The bank is authorized to buy property, build or repair houses for the employes coming under this law; it is also empowered to loan money on mortgages for the same purposes. A provision of the law makes possible the creation of a fire insurance department.

The part corresponding to the share of the newspapers in the Bank of Pensions, which is for the most part derived from the 2 per cent of the betting profits, amounts to 1,000,000 Chilean pesos or $120,000 dollars.

There is also a provision authorizing the Bank to make loans to the employes who have more than five years of service the maximum amount of the loan not exceeding 50 per cent of the year's salary. These loans must be vouched for by two other veteran employes. Provision is made for gratuitous medical service and a subsidy for the sick.

This law, creating these benefits, was passed principally as a result of the efforts of Sr. Carlos Davila, the director of La Nación, San and Sr. Manuel Novoa. It was the constant work of Sr. Dávila, who is the author of the law, that the strongest opposition to it was finally overcome, namely: the objection of the wealthy men interested in the race tracks.

Sr. Dávila had the law formulated and all ready to be signed when Sr. Alessandri came back from Italy some time ago and took charge again of the presidential duties; but he refused to sign any more decrees. Dávila endeavored to have it passed during the time of the revolutionary government, but Sr. Bello Codecido, who is the Chilean delegate to the League of Nations and who at that time was a member of the revolutionary junta, refused to sign it.

Later Dávila took up the matter with Alessandri who finally gave his signature.

The Bank of Pensions for Public Employes and Newspapermen is presently in full-swing and many of the employes have availed themselves of the advantages, building homes and effecting loans.

The loans thus far made have amounted to several million pesos.

The creation of this Bank, with the inclusion of the newspapermen, has met with the general approval of the public.

COAST PROMOTER INDICTED

E. G. Lewis and Associates Charged With Using Mails to Defraud

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

Los Angeles, Cal., July 29.—Edward G. Lewis, of Atascadero, promoter of several projects in Southern California during the last four years, notably the California Illustrated Review, together with three associates, was indicted yesterday by the federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to use the mails in a scheme to defraud.

The asserted officers and directors of his concern indicted with Lewis are Attorney Lewis Cohen, H. L. Kramer and William Ahrens. Bail was set at $5,000 each.

In the indictment nine counts refer to letters in which the defendants are alleged to have made false representations to prospective purchasers, while the tenth count charges conspiracy.

The indictment is based on the allegation that the defendants received about $850,000 from investors in the California Illustrated Review, one of Lewis' alleged promotions. Government officers allege that the operations of the quartet involve the sending of circulars through the mails soliciting "life memberships." These "life memberships," according to the government men, cost the buyer $10, and they assert that Lewis and his associates promised every subscriber interest in oil wells and almond groves that were never realized.

On January 5, 1925, creditors of Lewis filed an involuntary bankruptcy petition against him. He was adjudged bankrupt and filed a list of debts, declaring his liabilities were $23,000,000 with assets of about $5,000,000, consisting chiefly of 20,000 acres of Atascadero land and some oil wells. Evidence presented to the federal grand jury showed that the Illustrated Review was suspended in August, 1924.

Bankruptcy proceedings revealed that he had also been interested in the promotion of the Atascadero News, and eight other projects besides the California Illustrated Review.

NEW TIMES TYPE BOOK

Advertisers' Guide to Series Available in Composing Room

The third edition of the New York Times Type Book, just printed sets new standards for type books and is an important contribution to the Times's efforts for improvement of newspaper advertising typography.

The book is a guide to the 23 type faces in the Times composing room. The name of the type face, its size measured in points and the number by which the type is known are given. The book has been designed to aid in the selection of effective types for advertising and in estimating the amount of text which can be set in a given space.

In the specimen arrangements the smaller sizes of body type are shown in single column width, the larger sizes in two-column width. One decorative very useful feature is the reproduct of a number of small advertisements attractive typography on many of pages. The borders available in the co posing room are illustrated by a sam line two inches in length. Ornaments shown and indexed by number.

Special attention to the preparation the book was given by W. A. Penr superintendent of the Times compos room; Charles I. Willey, day foreman the composing room, and William Carswell, who set the type.

USES ARMY COMMUNICATION

Boston American Reporter Uses N Consolidated System

For the first time under the new c solidated communications now in eff in the United States Army, a Bos American reporter used the field co munication system to send a message his paper, July 23, from Camp Dev Ayer, Mass.

The message was sent by James Smith of the American staff, and made possible through the co-operat of Capt. Lawrence L. Layton, in cha of First Corps Area communications, army radio station at South Boston, Lt. William F. Johnson, in charge the message center at the camp.

Telephoned by Smith from a field t phone to the message center, the mess was relayed from there to the field ra station, camp radio station, to the Ar Base, South Boston, and telephoned fr the latter place to the editorial roo of the American.

ONE more prominent publisher accepts our complete checking Proof Service—

PORTLAND MAINE PUBLISHING COMPANY

Evening Express Sunday Telegram

Press Herald

PORTLAND, MAINE

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

"Circulation" may be newspapers sold to individual readers or sold to families.

In Brooklyn the 80,000 circulation of the "Standard Union" means 80,000 homes.

This has been the "family paper" for generations.

R. J. R. Thursman
President

LARGEST DAILY CIRCULATION IN BROOKLYN OF ANY BROOKLYN NEWSPAPER

A gain of 55,926 lines of local advertising

IN June, 1926, The Baltimore News carried 55,926 more lines of local advertising than in June 1925. This gain is doubly gratifying because it signifies a definite trend in local advertising favorable to the News. That favorable trend is the result of steady, consistent gain in circulation as indicated in the following figures:

In the six months' period ending with April the News showed a GAIN of 13,322 daily net paid over the preceding six months.

The average daily net paid for the three months of April, May and June, 1926, show a GAIN of 17,945 over the same period in 1925.

The June average daily net paid for 1926 was 118,618,—a GAIN of 17,869 over June, 1925.

At the same time The Sunday American for June showed a GAIN of 23,000 in circulation and 42,936 lines of local advertising.

The Daily Baltimore American in June showed a GAIN of 117,457 lines of local advertising.

These important gains,—steady, consistent, continuous, bear out the point we have been emphasizing:

YOU CAN'T COVER HALF OF BALTIMORE UNLESS YOU ADVERTISE IN THE BALTIMORE NEWS!

You can buy The Baltimore News alone, or you can buy it in combination with the Sunday or daily American or both.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS

THE BALTIMORE AMERICAN
THE SUNDAY AMERICAN

National Representatives

In the East
W. G. HOBSON
2 Columbus Circle, New York

In the West
F. E. CRAWFORD
913 Hearst Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

Both under direction of J. C. Dayton, Publisher, New York Evening Journal

ADVERTISING TODAY

Advertising Must Assume New and Heavier Responsibilities in the Re-organization of Production and Distribution

By EDWARD A. FILENE

(Written for Advertising World of London and EDITOR & PUBLISHER*)*

SPEAKING recently by request before an organization of business men, I made the statement that the big successes in business in the next ten or twenty years will be made by the big advertisers who put brain and the will to serve the public into advertising.

I have been asked to elaborate that thought and I am glad to do so.

Advertising at its best is a social service and must assume new and heavier responsibilities in the reorganization of production and distribution, which is necessary if we are to maintain our national prosperity and effectively solve the basic social and economic problems that confront us.

The coming conflict for foreign markets, attendant upon the economic recovery of Europe, will place our domestic business under great pressure. American business prosperity depends to a large extent on the ability of the country to export its surplus. We shall face a serious crisis in the inevitable world competition for markets, and must reorganize our production and distribution methods to meet this situation.

The most efficient system of production and distribution is that of mass production and mass distribution. Probably the best known instance of mass production is the Ford automobile. Mr. Ford has produced an article of general need at a lower price than it has ever before been produced—so low, in fact, that when exported it competes against home production in countries where workmen are employed on a far lower wage scale. He has thereby increased the efficiency with which the work on farms and in cities is performed. He has widened the orbit of average people by giving them "new legs." And he has, at the same time—and solely through his service to the public—made, as a producer, one of the largest fortunes in the history of the world.

Not only from Mr. Ford's experience, but from the unmistakable impetus of the times, it is apparent that mass production is the second stage of the great capitalistic era in which we live.

What we need to note is that mass production is inevitably dependent upon MASS SELLING, which in turn necessitates great masses of consumers who can buy—that is, who can earn wages and salaries that will enable them to consume the output of mass production methods. Mass production is impossible without high wages, which increase purchasing power.

The introduction of mass methods will greatly increase the buying power of the people because of two factors which have not actively dominated production until now. The first is that it is profitable to pay higher wages because of the difference, under mass production, between a high wage and a low wage is hardly measurable in the average sale price. The second is that even the stationary wage is actually increased if its buying power is increased.

If the necessities of life in this country and in Europe are produced as the Ford automobile is produced, the buying power of the masses will be immensely increased and will make possible the successful combating of all those so-called panaceas of radical and revolutionary changes which are being offered as the only solution for the very desperate conditions in Europe—and will be offered in this country if conditions are allowed to get to the point where our people find increasing difficulty in keeping up not only to the standard of the past, but to the new standard that has been created since the war, which includes many of the things we thought were a luxury for the masses.

It is apparent, I think, from what precedes, that mass production and mass distribution will be better prepared to meet the super-competition than production and distribution not on mass lines.

National advertising has performed a real service in the development of mass methods in production and distribution. It is plain that mass production is dependent on mass selling, and it will be an important service of national advertising to educate the public to this vital principle.

Big advertising depends on mass distribution. The units of distribution must be large enough to afford advertising. This means not only large units, but also chains of smaller units. As businesses are aggregated, they can and must advertise on a large scale. The big advertising of chain bakeries and groceries could not be afforded by a single unit.

But national advertising now needs to take the necessary step forward and apply the basic principles more completely. Nationally advertised products produced under mass production can obtain markets incomparably greater than at present, provided they apply the further principle of mass production, namely, the production of articles that are not only desirable, but that will sell at the lowest price. Mass production will sell standardized articles in enormous quantities if quality and prices are right, but in order to sell in enormous quantities, quality and price MUST both be right, so that the article can compete on equal grounds with other similar articles on the market.

If nationally advertised articles adopt these principles—and use creative thinking, that is, of the Ford kind—they will meet and beat competition by offering a better article at a lower price than ordinary competition can supply. They will also establish a basis where price maintenance is unnecessary. Cutting prices will be a self-defeating measure for any retailer that tries it, because the public will know that the regular price gives only the smallest legitimate profit, and a lower price must be made up by an illegitimate profit on other goods.

I am one of those who believe that big advertising is a social gain. I think it is one of the forces that is bringing about changes in production and distribution which are most advantageous to the progress of our country. I believe that the man who can see this, and who advertises largely, will be the man who will be most successful, not only in the direct results of advertising, but by forcing the pace to keep up the standards which they are obliged to set in advertising.

We have, of course, all heard the claim that advertising is an economic waste; but claims of this kind result from superficial thinking or a study of isolated advertising failures. With the growing consciousness of the close relation of our commerce to our political and social life, advertising will be given the opportunity of explaining many things, and there is no doubt that a continually increasing volume of advertising will be necessary for many years to come.

In my opinion, the signs indicate that advertising will be made to appeal more to reason and less to the emotions. As the new order develops, I think that our large industries will not be satisfied with chance or luck in their advertising campaigns and that more scientific methods will be demanded to eliminate, as far as possible, any advertising waste and loss. In other words, advertising will be used with the idea of furthering the cause of business AS A SERVICE.

At its best it will tell the weaknesses as well as the strength of business systems, it will be one of the principal mediums for the broadcasting of facts, and it will not only describe goods for the purpose of selling them, but will also describe advanced methods and processes for the purpose of proving to the public that they are the best because of the better qualities and lower prices they brin about.

This kind of advertising is an aid t the consumer in buying advantageousl In my opinion, supported by all my r search and study, the big rewards of th future will go to the big advertisers wh back up their up-to-date scientific mas production with that kind of advertisin

This may sound theoretical, but m experience shows it to be entirely prac tical. If advertising will profitably se a bad article, or a good article, at to high a price, then it defeats its ow legitimate purpose and leads to failure.

If good, truthful advertising will n sell an article, then there is somethin the matter with the article, and th remedy lies not in changing the adve tising by exaggeration to make it se the goods, but in improving the mer chandise so that good advertising wi sell it in such large volume that th manufacturer will be able to pass alon to the consumer the many benefits o mass production.

Read EDITOR & PUBLISHER.—$4 a yea

NEWSPAPER

ENGINEERING AND CONSTRUCTION

PROBLEMS

Solved by specialist eight years with Boston Post

EDWIN S. PARKER
Structural Engineer

15 Exchange Street
Boston

Am. Soc. C. E. Boston Soc. C. E.

THE MEMPHIS COMMERCIAL APPEAL

has the largest circulation of any Southern newspaper. It prints more general advertising than any other Southern newspaper. It has the circulation because it gives special attention to its territory and the needs of the people in its territory. It has the largest general advertising because the purchasing power of the people in its territory is greater than that of the people in any other Southern territory. Its territory products are long-staple cotton, hardwood lumber, cotton oil products, rice, tobacco, corn, wheat, strawberries, tomatoes, poultry, coal, iron ore, bauxite. Not predated, and no "bull dog" editions. Cheapest rates per thousand circulation of any paper in the South.

Ludlow--
the Profit Maker

NO matter how otherwise completely equipped your composing-room may be, you'll find the Ludlow System indispensable for producing run-of-the-hook display composition for quality advertisements that print up clear and sharp.

Without let-up the Ludlow clicks out bright, new type in countless strong sluglines that withstand the dry mat process.

With equal ease and speed the Ludlow produces unbreakable free-flowing italics, or bold, heavy display lines. It supplies standard-width faces as readily as it does condensed or extended—in a wide variety of distinctive faces ranging from six to sixty point.

Investigate the Ludlow. Learn how it will prove a profitable investment in your plant, by doing faster, better and cleaner work, with less effort and at less cost.

Ludlow Typograph Company

2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

San Francisco: Hearst Bldg., 5 Third St.
Atlanta: Palmer Bldg., 41 Marietta St.
Boston: Cummings Bldg., 261 Franklin St.
New York: World Bldg., 63 Park Row

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

Rotogravure
in THE KANSAS CITY STAR

BEGINNING in its Sunday issue of September 5, The Kansas City Star will publish a rotogravure section.

This announcement opens to advertisers for the first time the opportunity of covering Kansas City with roto. In addition, it provides an outside circulation of more than 135,000 copies in a district which is basking in the prosperity of the second largest wheat crop in its history.

The total circulation of The Sunday Kansas City Star is 282,631—A. B. C. six-month average for the period ending March 31.

The Quality of The Kansas City Star's rotogravure section in both printing and subject matter will be in keeping with The Star's reputation of producing the best. An immediate and considerable increase in circulation is expected.

Advertisers are urged to make reservations now for the fall and winter season.

Mechanical Requirements and Rates

The roto page will be 7 columns wide by 280 lines deep—1,960 lines to the page. Type page will be 15 inches wide by 20 inches deep. Width of column 2⅛ inches.

Advertising Rate:

Per line, flat.....85c

Closing date 14 days in advance.

Chicago Office
1418 Century Bldg.

New York Office
15 E. 40th St.

THE KANSAS CITY STAR

EVENING	MORNING	SUNDAY	WEEKLY STAR
250,597	247,404	282,631	397,201

One of These Days—

YOU hope to abandon your flat-bed press; equip your plant for speedier and more economical production; install a modern rotary press.

Perhaps that day has seemed a long way off for a long time. But is it? Have you very much longer to wait?

The Wood BEE-LINE Press enables the smaller-city daily publisher to modernize his plant much sooner than he ever expected.

That day may be today!

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORPO

501 Fifth Avenue, New York

The BEE-LINE Press

is the simplest and swiftest small-city newspaper printing press in the world—printing at the same speed and as handsomely as the larger metropolitan daily presses.

It is easy to operate, easy to adjust and easy to install. From a single location, the pressman may view every operation of printing, folding and delivery.

It meets every requirement of the smaller-city daily publisher—being made in three standard units providing any multiple from 4 to 32 pages with two additional units (16-page and 20-page) to economically care for future requirements.

The BEE-LINE Press relieves the publisher of the many limitations of flat-bed printing earlier than any other existing press.

EDITORIAL

PRESS CLUB BUILDING

WHEN the National Press Club at Washington entered into the promotion of a huge office, theater and club building in the center of the National Capital it invested, as everyone understood, not coin of the realm but credit. The high character of the club, upon which financiers have been trading, is based upon the newspapers which maintain these responsible legislative correspondents.

It has seemed to EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the Washington correspondents were serving a very natural desire when they moved to establish their club in fine quarters under economical conditions, and we have had faith that they would carefully weigh all ethical considerations and attain a legitimate purpose without giving cause for criticism. That there were opportunities for very bad mistakes by the club in this large venture has been obvious from the first, and there are members of the corps who have regretted the building enterprise, preferring to have the club stand on its own bottom, however humble it might be. That is a legitimate view, but no one has cared to press it, and it would be poor sport to indulge it now when enterprising and fully confident members have carried the project through to a tangible realization.

As a member and devoted friend of this club for years we must confess to some palpitation of the heart when the news was published that the building restrictions of the District of Columbia were abrogated by a special act of Congress enabling the club and the building promoters to raise the structure from 11 to 14 stories. Our old newspaper suspicion was instantly aroused—"we-boy" wire-pulling on the hill and at the White House! Could it be? Would the "fellows" be so unwise in their zeal? Had anything been "put over"? We confess to these reactions.

Detroit News, in an editorial published July 23, under the caption "Impudence Extraordinary," denounced the passage of special legislation to increase the height of the building as "special privilege" and charged "wire-pulling" and asserted that American journalism would repudiate the suggestion that the press was honored by Congress when it permitted the National Press Club to "impair a lovely and symbolic city." The News took the proposition down the line in unmistakable language.

During the week we have made some inquiries which relieve our minds and perhaps will make the News breathe more easily. It appears that various and sundry civic associations in the District of Columbia approve of the higher building for the very reasons that the News is objecting. These associations, we are informed, include such competent bodies as the Fine Arts Commission, the Zoning Commission, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia and the Senate and House district committees.

The consensus among them was that to permit the Club building to approximate the present height of the adjacent Munsey and Willard buildings would conserve, not destroy, the symmetry and beauty of the skyline and therefore would more nearly confirm the intent of the height law.

That seems reasonable, and if so, and there was "wire-pulling," it must now be conceded to have been in a good cause.

Then there is the man who knows about everything, but knows nothing.

GREAT GENIUS HONORED

EVERYONE who has studied a landscape through a fly-screen has "invented" the half-tone, but the man who first applied the principle to printing is Frederick E. Ives, of Philadelphia. The Clubs of Printing House Craftsmen this week honored him by presenting a medal, the 21st that he has received for a long list of inventions. Mr. Ives is now 70 years of age. In 1879, while doing some photographic work at Cornell University, he developed his first ideas concerning the half-tone plate. He perfected the process, which is now in universal use, in 1886. He has the further great distinction of having made the first color process plates, by means of which objects are reproduced in natural colors. He also patented the intaglio printing process. This great genius has mirrored the world to itself.

He that is first in his own cause seemeth just; but his neighbor cometh and searcheth him.—Proverbs, XVIII; 16, 17.

CONTROVERSY A RIGHT

IN his remarkable birthday speech Bernard Shaw defined free speech as "the right of speaking controversially." He pointed out that controversy is the basis of all parliamentary government. The English government's refusal to permit radio broadcasting of the playwright's address unless he should agree not to speak controversially he regarded as an insult and a piece of stupidity. Shaw told his audience that governments could not shut off the supply of ideas, and next day the newspaper press gave his speech a hundred times as much circulation as the radio would have permitted. His radical remarks took a leading position on first pages in America and we dare say the speech was the most thoroughly read news item of the day in Europe and perhaps in places as distant as Japan.

Probably only a fractional minority of those who read Shaw's remarks agreed with his views. But every normal person was glad to give a hearing to a witty, intelligent and crystal-clear speaker. It was a contact fit to sharpen any mind. Free speech is an inherent right. All speech is valueless unless people say what they think.

An old-fashioned advertising man is one who bases his talk on the fact that the rival paper has no merit.

A TRANSPARENT FALSEHOOD

SHIFTING his cigar to the other side of his mouth the typical Pullman car orator confidently tells you that the Volstead Act put hard liquor on the hips of the college boys of the nation, that prohibition has debauched our youth and that the old corner saloon was to be preferred to present bootleg conditions.

The man who thus parades his sophistication may be sincere and absolutely convinced, but if you were suddenly to ask him where he got his information he would not be able to tell you, beyond citing some story that somebody told somebody or recalling some incident he had read.

Of course, the charge is not true and never has been true. It is a fake that should have been nailed long ago. The story has always been suspect since it runs counter to the experience of the average man. This writer, for instance, has dozens of young friends of college age, and not one is a flask drinker; indeed, the idea of trying to mix booze and study is much more repugnant to these lads than it was to our own school mates at a time when a boy could get a drink of whiskey over the bar from a conscienceless dive-keeper for ten cents or a schooner of heavy beer for five.

Two hundred college and university heads have recently been questioned by Literary Digest and their almost unanimous testimony is that drinking in the colleges and among the younger generation has vastly decreased under prohibition. They prove that the student body of today is of a much higher moral and intellectual standard than any generation in the days of booze and beer. Their statements are based on statistics and indisputable facts.

Young American men and women have been cruelly libelled. For years the abuse has continued. Some newspapers have given color to it by the publication of isolated cases of college drinking coupled with the implication that the evil is general. But this false charge against youth has been mainly spread by irresponsible lips. We are delighted to see that the lie is at last being authoritatively refuted.

FALSE PUBLIC OPINION

FALSE public opinion is a high explosive. Witness the conduct of French street crowds toward American tourists. It is a spark which might easily cause a conflagration. The average Frenchman believes that the shrunken franc is due to the nation's foreign war obligation and therefore Uncle Sam is a Shylock. This flame is fanned by irresponsible politicians, partisan newspapers and ignorant gossip on both sides of the ocean.

France's real financial trouble is not external, but from within. Dr. Benjamin M. Anderson, Jr., economist of the Chase National Bank, of New York, points out that France's unbearable internal debt is 350,000,000,000 francs, whereas only 23,000,000,000 represents external debt. If all external debts were to be wiped clean France's internal debts would swamp her as they outbalance revenues from taxation and other sources. The American debt settlement, which is made the target for sore French sentiment, is a trifling matter compared with the general situation.

It is high time that the French people and the world at large learned the truth. France deserves sympathy and help in her difficult readjustment period and that requires popular understanding of the facts.

Philadelphia office department has borrowed from the press one of its most efficient tools, the camera; efficiency experts spy on lazy cops and photograph them as they lean against lamp-posts.

A DISMAL BUSINESS

A BUSINESS man in New York is called to his telephone by a strange inquiry. A voice says: "This is the office of the Mumbely Soandso the city editor speaking. One of our reporters has just turned in a story concerning you and your company and we want to know if the facts are correctly stated. May I read the item to you?"

Curiosity answers "yes" and the strange voice proceeds to unfold some flattering, puffing references to the man and his concern, probably based on some bare fact found in the news columns of the New York dailies.

If the business man has a sweet tooth for flattery and shows a disposition to bite the strange voice tells him that "our syndicate (or newspaper) will be glad to print this article and of course there is absolutely no cost to you."

Well, well, this is very nice indeed, the vain gentleman concedes, and inquires where he may procure a copy of the article in print. This inquiry is the trigger that sets off the real business of the occasion. Mr. Butterandeggs is told it is impossible to get a copy of "our publication" on the newstands, but the retail price is only 15 cents per copy. "How would you like to have us send you 500 copies which you may pass around to your friends or use in your business?" The bargain is made and in a few days a publication printed on news-print in the image of a legitimate tabloid newspaper is delivered to old Vainglory, with a bill. If the gentleman should balk at 15 cents a copy he is told he may buy "reprints" for a smaller sum, which of course represents merely a little printing job.

This puffing business is almost as old as the "Old Army Game," but in varied form it still makes a living for at least half a dozen old-timers in New York. The representations the sharp-witted telephone solicitors make are often extremely doubtful. Their mumbling about their "magazines" or "syndicates" means much or nothing, according to the perceptions of the vanity "sucker."

But think of this scheme as a business! Could anything be so drab, futile, hateful, soul-corroding? Pity the poor old puffer as he fishes on the telephone for the sale of a write-up sheet, using newspaper patter and mumbling as bait, and delivering a sugary pill which must nauseate any normal person.

Great work! Witness how, during the past two weeks, good newspaper men have been doing the work that poor Don Mellett left unfinished at Canton. It is rough medicine for that city, but needed, and it will cure the ailment.

PERSONAL

NUS H. K. CURTIS, Philadelphia nd New York publisher, was host to ficers of the Boston Yacht Club last at Camden, Me., aboard his yacht ronia which is now making its annual of the Atlantic coast.

Ahur H. Sulzberger, vice-president e New York Times, sailed Saturday vacation abroad.

den Reid, editor of the New York ld Tribune, and Mrs. Ogden Reid, tising manager, have gone to their ier camp "Wild Air" at Upper St. , N. Y., for the month of August.

orge M. Blair, publisher of the na (Cal.) Independent, is ill in the klin Hospital, San Francisco.

P. Hasbrook, publisher of the Rich Times-Dispatch, spent several days ew York this week.

W. Milby, publisher of the Mason (Ill.) Banner Times, left last week his first vacation in 30 years, and to spend a year at Tampa, Fla.

L. Spencer, former dean of the ol of Journalism at the University ashington, was one of the principal cers at the recent opening of work e Kittitas high line irrigation canal niel W. Hoegg, Jr., managing editor e Portland (Me.) Evening Express, week received a radio message from mander Donald A. MacMillan, noted ic explorer in charge of the Mac-ian-Field Museum expedition off the t of Greenland. The message, which "All well and happy," was relayed Mr. Hoegg through M. L. MacAdam, Wollaston, Mass., who has an amateur station.

illiam Weeks, editor of the Norfork b.) Press, was struck by an automo- while visiting San Francisco with the ional Editorial Association delega- . His injuries were not serious.

mius P. Fishburne, editor of the noke (Va.) World-News, has been pointed a member of the State Conser-on and Development Commission, h held its first session at Richmond ntly.

. J. Ingals, editor of the Corvallis e.) Gazette-Times, who is also post-ter of Corvallis, has been in Wash-on endeavoring to obtain a new post-e for his home city.

Major Frank Knox, publisher of the Manchester (N. H.) Union and Leader, filed papers as candidate for dele- to the Republican state convention.

Charles A. Thornbrugh, owner and lor of the Alexandria (Neb.) Argus returned to his desk after a month hospital.

John Redmond, editor and publisher of Burlington (Kan.) Daily Republican, touring the northwest with Mrs. Red-nd and family.

John Golobie, editor of the Guthrie kla.) State Register, who was op-ted on recently, is recovering slowly.

IN THE BUSINESS OFFICE

NORMAN R. HOOVER, circulation director of the New York World is finding a two week's vacation on a tor tour.

Eugene Pugh business manager of the Newport News (Va.) Times-Herald, was in New York the past week on a business .

S. N. Harrison, business manager of the Longview (Wash.) Daily News, un-went an operation for appendicitis ently.

Maurice Bartlesbaugh, journalism stu-nt at Fairmount College, Wichita, is new member of the Wichita Beacon ertising staff.

John H. Goetz, classified advertising nager of the Schenectady (N. Y.) zette, has resigned to join the advertis-staff of the Watertown (N. Y.) Standard. Mr. Goetz also served on the Gazette as assistant advertising manager, manager of the promotion department and display advertising manager.

Donald F. Grey, business manager of the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger, is spending a two weeks' vacation at his home in Portland, Me.

George S. Smith, business manager of the Fresno (Cal.) Bee, is visiting in Long Beach with Mrs. Smith.

R. Frank Nason has joined the classified advertising staff of the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger.

L. H. Shields, business manager of the West Chester (Pa.) Local News, was in New York the past week on his way home from a motor trip in the north.

Ellis Van Camp, a graduate of the journalism department, University of Kansas, has joined the advertising staff of the Wichita Beacon.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

MURRAY POWERS has been made managing editor of the Marion (O.) Star succeeding Harry B. Kerr, who has returned to his old position with the Akron Beacon-Journal.

Harold Goff, managing editor of the Salt Lake City Deseret News, accompanied the Mormon Tabernacle choir of 200 members on a ten-day tour of California cities, which began July 22.

Capt. Frank H. Challis, veteran Manchester, N. H., newspaperman, has filed papers as a candidate for re-election as representative to the state legislature.

Joseph Shaplen is covering the Institute of Politics convention at Williamstown, Mass., for the New York Herald Tribune.

Paul G. Wapato, a full blooded Indian, was added to the staff of the Spokane (Wash.) Chronicle for a week. His assignment was to cover the news of the second national Indian congress held recently. Wapato is regularly on the Wenatchee Daily World editorial staff.

Geoffrey Parsons, chief editorial writer, New York Herald Tribune, who has been cruising along the coast of Maine with his family, will return to New York Aug. 1.

Ray A. Hoyt, city editor of the Columbus (O.) Dispatch, has just taken a trip from southwestern to northeastern Ohio following the trail of the Morgan raiders during the Civil War. He wrote an interesting series for the Dispatch.

William B. Timlin, art editor of the Milwaukee Journal, is represented in the present Journal art exhibit by four portrait studies.

Edward F. Darrell, of the New York Herald Tribune staff, has returned from a vacation in Canada.

Leigh R. Hawley, former managing editor of the Middletown (N. Y.) Herald, and now on the New York Evening Post staff, underwent an operation this week at a New York hospital.

Allan Eckman, a Chester, Pa., welfare worker, formerly of the staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, was seriously injured in an automobile accident July 23. He is in the Media Hospital with internal injuries.

Warre B. Wells of the New York Herald Tribune's London bureau, who is on vacation in this country, visited Carter Field at his home in Washington last week. Mr. Field, who is in charge of the Herald Tribune's Washington bureau is convalescing from a serious operation.

James P. Bickett, associate managing editor of the Chicago American, visited Zion National Park during his vacation in July. Mr. Bickett called on newspaper men in Salt Lake City and Ogden, on his return trip.

(Continued on page 28)

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

E. F. TUCKER, new managing director of the Iowa Press Association, recently chosen to succeed G. L. Caswell resigned, is a printer born.

E. F. Tucker

Beginning in the printing business in his early teens, he has stuck to the trade through many years of lean picking. For nearly 40 years he has lived at Denison, Ia., spending most of that time working for one paper, the Denison Review. For the Review, he has been roller boy, cub reporter, compositor, job man, advertising solicitor, foreman, farm news editor, assistant editor and finally general manager.

Mr. Tucker, in work among the farmers, developed tact and judgment, and made many friends. Never a farmer or stockman himself, he studied livestock and became a good judge of pure-bred animals. He was "sent for" and welcomed in his entire community.

He became county chairman for his political party, as well as councilman in his town. For the Chamber of Commerce he did excellent work, and became its president. He was also leader in the local Kiwanis club.

As managing director of the Iowa Press association he makes his headquarters at Ames, Ia.

" . . . . now that we have started with you again we hope to stay with Central Press permanently."

Thanks to E. W. Freeman, The Pine Bluff Commercial.

The significant words are again and permanently

Seventeenth year — Now over 400 clients with

Norman E. Brown, Jess Cargill, Mrs. Mary Morton, Charles Hanson Towne, Jack Sords, Mme. Lisbeth, Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent—"an all-star cast."

And the World's Greatest Picture Page.

Have you seen recent proofs?

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNitt, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNitt, Editor and Manager

Call For Miss Ella Cinders!

Call For Miss Ella Cinders!

THE ELLA CINDERS SUNDAY PAGE

September 19 And Thereafter

Each page complete in itself, but each carrying the story on to the next week. The page is adroitly hooked up with the strip, but they may profitably be run independently. If your territory is open, however, taking both page and strip is advisable.

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr., General Manager — Earl J. Hadley, Associate

150 Nassau St. New York City

(Continued from page 27)

Marc Wilkinson, formerly of the Toronto (O.) Tribune and recently of the North Baltimore (O.) Beacon Journal has returned to the Tribune.

Walter King of the Salt Lake Telegram city staff has resigned to go to Pasadena, Cal.

Daniel M. McDade recently joined the staff of the Portland Oregon Journal and will have charge of the Journal Juniors, an organization of 18,000 boys and girls between the ages of eight and 14.

MARRIED

EDWIN C. BURNARD of the Portland (Me.) Press-Herald news staff, to Miss Mary Avery, also of the news staff, July 24.

Walter Hoots, formerly of the circulation staff, Quincy, Ill., Whig-Journal, now promotion manager for the Baltimore News, to Miss Lucile Pottle, Quincy, Ill., at St. Mark's Methodist church, Baltimore, July 24. They will reside in Catonsville, a Baltimore suburb.

H. Lee Watson, sports editor, Decatur (Ill.) Herald to Miss Helen Aleta Duncan, of Decatur, July 19 in Joliet.

C. D. Graves of the advertising department, Springfield Illinois State Register, to Miss Clara Bell Sauerwein, owner of the Progressive Advertising Agency, Springfield, recently.

Joseph E. Berger, editor of the Overbrook (Kan.) Citizen, to Miss Iola Black, of Topeka, recently.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

RICHARD C. WILSON, manager of the Lincoln, Neb., bureau of the United Press, and Mrs. Wilson are parents of a daughter, Madelaine. Mrs. Wilson was formerly society editor of the Oklahoma City News.

Stanley Day, formerly with the Winnipeg Tribune and the Montreal Star, has joined the Detroit staff of the Kent Press Service as assistant correspondent. Day will be in charge of the Canadian service from the Detroit bureau.

Joseph L. Jones, foreign editor of the United Press who has been abroad in the interests of the service since last November returned to New York headquarters this week.

Albert Zalamea and H. R. Eakins of the foreign department of the United Press, New York, are on vacation.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

OCEAN CITY (N. J.) Sentinel-Ledger recently completed installation of a Goss Comet Flat Bed press.

Los Angeles Shopping Guide Publishing Company, publishers of the Los Angeles Shopping News has purchased a Hoe Linear Quadruple press.

Uniontown (Pa.) Daily News-Standard has installed a Model 14 linotype.

Carpenteria (Cal.) Herald, of which Arthur M. Clark is publisher, is erecting a new building.

Cincinnati Times-Star has just completed installation of three additional Straightline Sextuple Goss Presses.

Spokane (Wash.) Press has installed a 40-page Hoe quintuple press and increased its floor space in the press room by 2,000 square feet.

The fifth Goss high speed straightline octuple press is being installed in the Denver Post's pressroom and will be ready for service Aug. 1. This gives the Post pressroom a maximum capacity of 360,000 papers an hour.

CHANGES OF OWNERSHIP

J. COSS, formerly of Denver, has purchased the Anaheim (Cal.) Press.

George B. Morgridge and Joseph R. Eastwood have taken over the Sierra Madre (Cal.) News. The new owners expect to erect a new modern building.

Ephrata (Pa.) Reporter, weekly, owned and published by W. K. Fishburn for the past 29 years, has been sold to M. A. Beam of Johnstown, Pa., who will take possession Aug. 2. The paper was founded in 1896 by Mr. Fishburn and John W. Von Neida. Later Mr. Fishburn assumed sole ownership.

John Harris recently bought control of the Loogootee (Ind.) Weekly Tribune.

La Jolla (Cal.) Journal has been sold by the Coronado Publishing Company to Will J. Shaw, who has managed the paper for some time.

D. W. Banzett has purchased the Britton (Okla.) Post from W. Hale, editor and publisher.

W. F. Turrentine, Jr., former newspaper man, has purchased the Delphos (Kan.) Republican from Harry Fleener.

J. K. and M. J. Little recently took charge of the Francis (Okla.) Herald.

C. F. Christian of Defiance, O.; has purchased an interest in the Geauga County Republican, Chardon, O., and will become editor and advertising manager.

WITH THE SPECIALS

DEVINE MACQUOID COMPANY, INC., New York, Pittsburgh, Chicago, has been appointed national advertising representative of the following publications: Southern Poultry Journal, Montgomery, Ala.; West Virginia Review, Charleston, W. Va.; Daily Tribune, Chillicothe, Mo., and the Morning News, Coffeyville, Kan.

Hamilton-Delisser, Inc., special representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the Sunbury (Pa.) Item effective Aug. 1.

D. J. Randell & Co., newspaper representatives, New York, have been appointed to represent the Yakima (Wash.) Morning Herald, Daily Republic and Sunday Herald effective Aug. 12, for the New York and Eastern territory.

ON THE MECHANICAL SIDE

DON. PRIESTLEY, foreman of the Salt Lake City Deseret News composing room, and associated with that newspaper for 20 years has resigned. He has been succeeded by J. H. Harrow, machinist foreman.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

CARTHAGE (N. Y.) Republican-Tribune, 28-page Exposition week edition, July 22.

Regina (Sask.) Morning Leader, 60-page Saskatchewan Coming of Age number, July 15.

Boston Transcript, 64-page New Brunswick number, July 24.

Texarkana (Ark.) Gazette, 112-page Selling Texarkana Edition, in seven sections, July 15.

Astoria (Ore.) Morning Astorian, Astoria Founders Edition, with eight-page rotogravure section, July 22.

ASSOCIATIONS

FRED W. KENNEDY, field secretary of the WASHINGTON STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION returned July 21, from his annual tour of the state.

Thirteenth annual convention of the UNITED AMATEUR PRESS ASSOCIATION of America was held in Seattle July 23, 24 and 25.

Rotary and Kiwanis clubs of Pulaski will co-operate in the special entertainment feature for the VIRGINIA PRESS ASSOCIATION, when it meets at Pulaski, Va., Aug. 12 to 14. These diversions will be aside from the regular program arranged by the officials of the association.

Central Coast Counties unit of the SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION has been formed with Fred Weybret of the Salinas Daily Index, as chairman and member of the executive committee of the association. Steps have been taken to establish a uniform legal rate for the three counties represented in this group. These organizations, together with the recently formed unit in the lower San Joaquin Valley completes the membership covered by the constitution of the association, with a total of 145 leading newspapers.

STOCKHOLDERS TO BUY LAST VANDERBILT TAB

Declare They Will Buy Los Angeles News at Receiver's Sale in Few Days—Brodix Named Federal Receiver

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 29.—Late last week Corporation Commissioner Daugherty granted permission to the Daily News Corporation of Nevada to sell $250,000 of its capital stock of $500,000, marking the first step towards refinancing the Los Angeles Illustrated Daily News, only remaining Vanderbilt tabloid.

Officials of the new corporation have announced that they will purchase the newspaper at a receiver's sale within a few days. Commissioner Daugherty issued the permit to sell stock conditional on the payment of local debts aggregating about $90,000. The use of the stock issue for the purchase of the Illustrated Daily News; the compliance of the charter and by-laws of the corporation with the California civil code; that the books of the new corporation be kept open at all times to stockholders and that stock be issued only to stockholders of Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc.

Yesterday Federal Judge McCormick appointed John H. Brodix as the receiver for the Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc. Meredith P. Snyder, who was appointed receiver for the Illustrated Daily News Corporation some months ago by a superior court judge, has announced that Brodix's appointment would not alter Snyder's control of the local Vanderbilt paper.

The federal receivership was the culmination of a petition filed by O. M. Souden, who asserted that the total assets of the Vanderbilt papers would not exceed $250,000. He further stated that the liabilities of the corporation exceeded $1,000,000.

In answering the petition the defendant corporation admitted all of the allegations in the complaint and joined in the prayer for a receiver.

Promissory notes to the sum of $90,000 past due, with interest amounting to $63,000, in favor of I. J. Kresel, of New York City, was asserted to be one of the liabilities of the corporation. Brodix, who has been appointed receiver by the Florida courts, was appointed in California for the purpose of giving him jurisdiction to adjust indebtedness between the Illustrated Daily News and the Vanderbilt Corporation.

FLASHES

A wealthy American is to attempt to swim the Channel this year. We understand that if he fails he will buy the thing and take it back home to practice on.—Punch.

In every election some man has the solid backing of all the righteous people who don't vote.—Duluth Herald.

According to a Princeton professor, one peanut contains enough energy to type 1,000 words. A handful would probably enable a peanut politician to make a three hour speech.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

People aren't impressed by hell now. Nothing is impressive after you get used to it.—New York Telegram.

Obituary report says one man established his fortune by dressing chickens. That's one of the best ways to lose in these days.—New York American.

A traveler is authority for the statement that Americans play cards better than the English. London bridge must be falling down.—Detroit News.

Man wants but little here below, but he usually gets along on less.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

LAREDO, TEXAS

"The Gateway to Mexico"

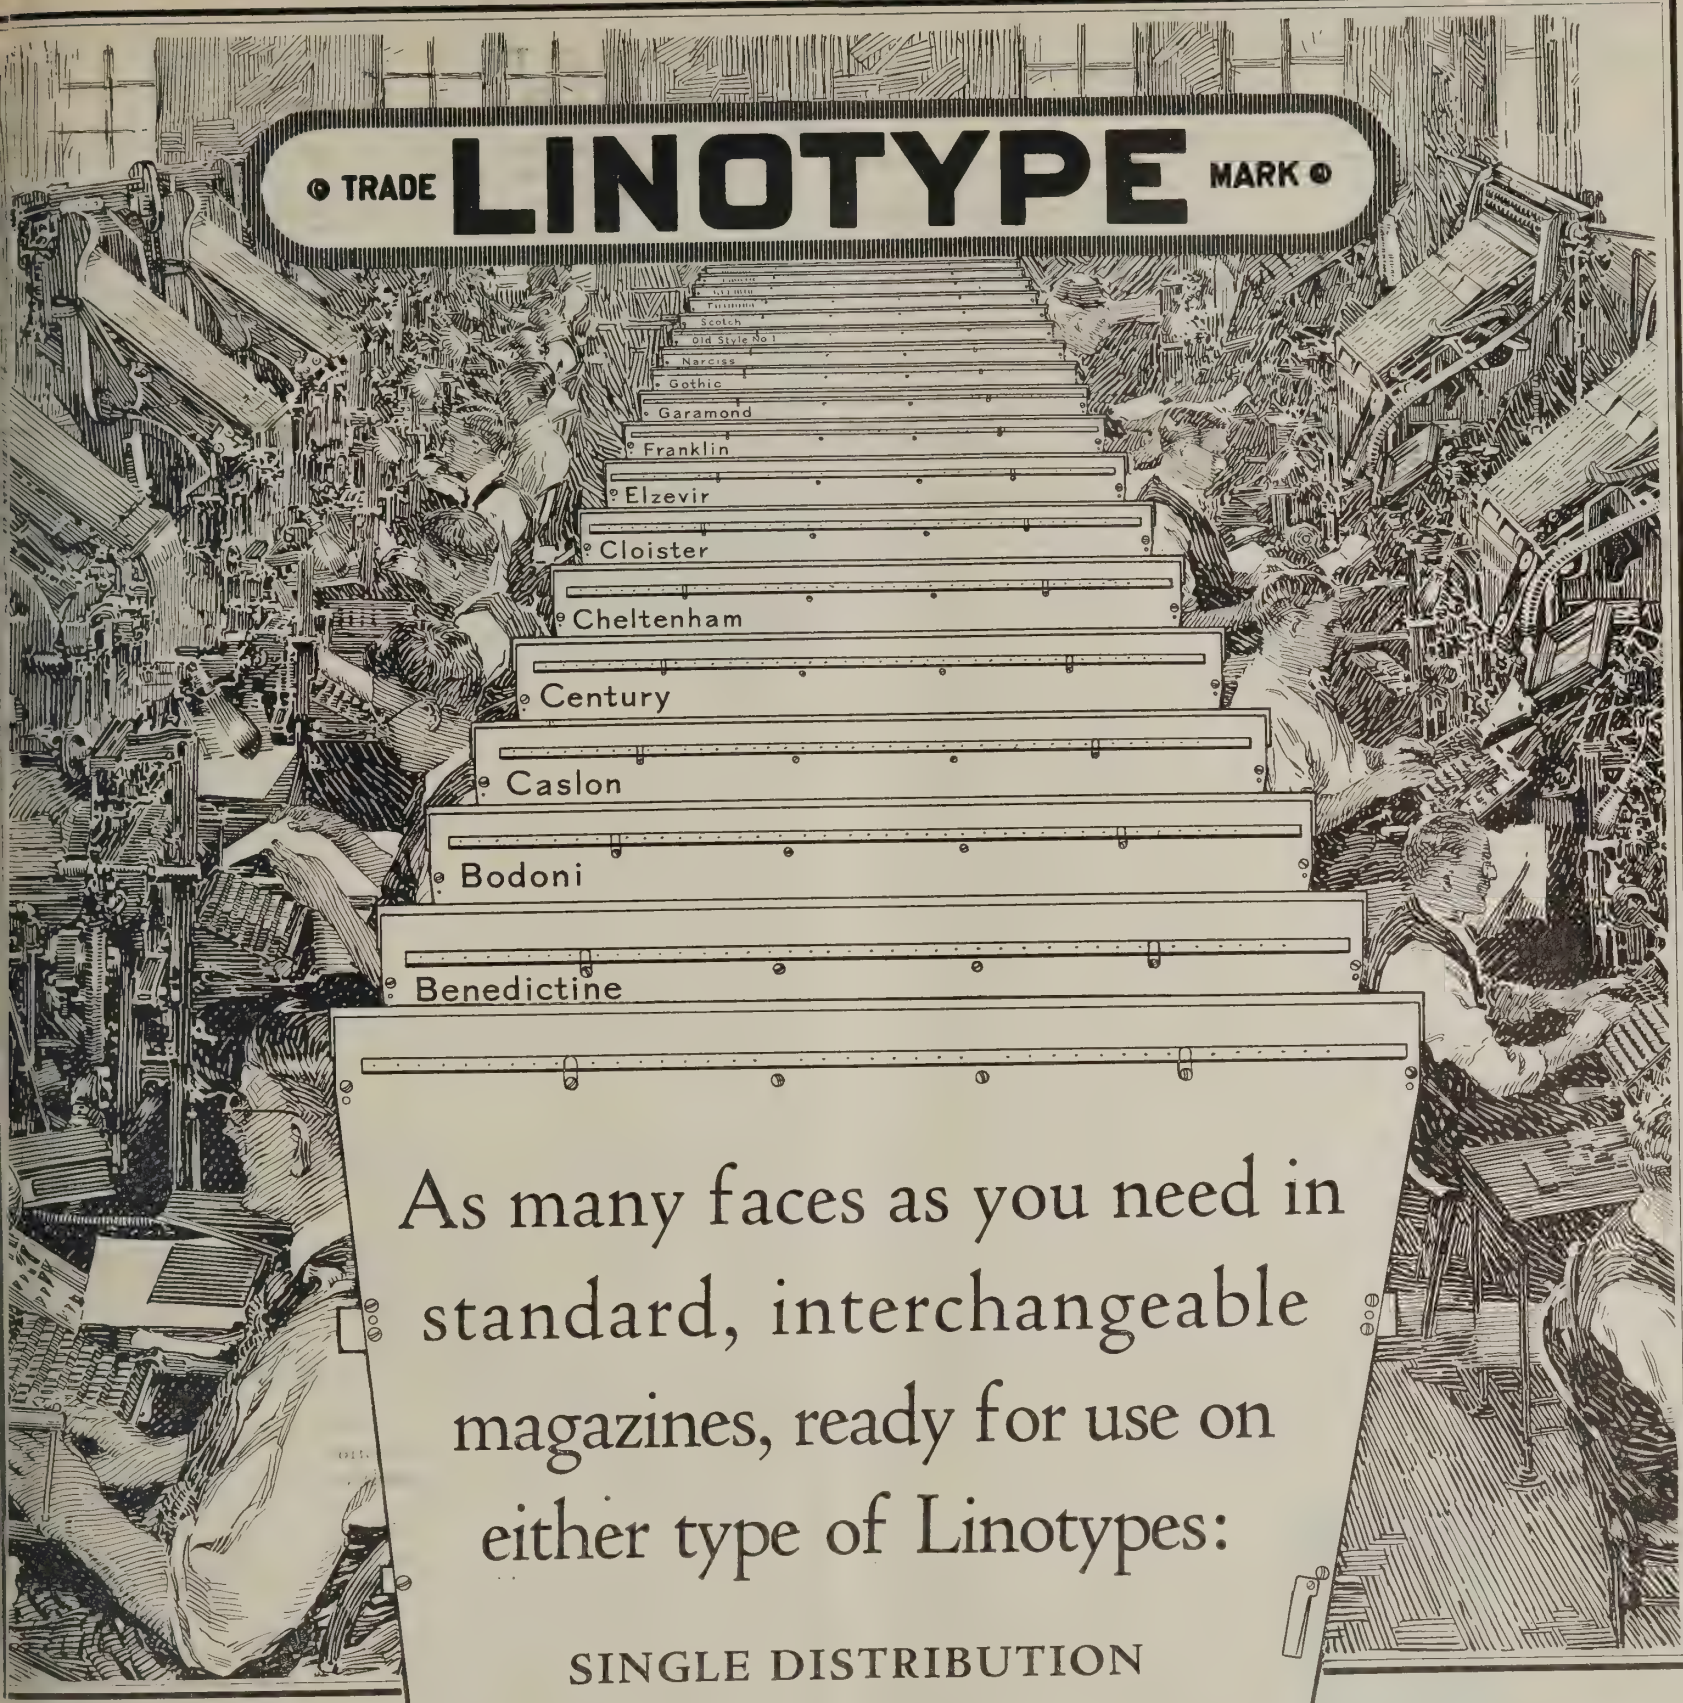
For 300 years Laredo slept, until she was awakened by the roar of the mighty oil gusher, which transformed the city from a sleepy Spanish village to a modern city almost over night. And now—

THE LAREDO DAILY TIMES, one of the oldest newspapers in Texas, has been acquired by the Hanway interests, publishers of the Casper Daily Tribune and the Casper Herald, the two leading newspapers of Wyoming, and—

A NEW AND MODERN PLANT is turning out one of the best small dailies in the entire State of Texas, with full A. P. Leased Wire, complete State News Service, colored comic section on Saturday, standard features, woman's page, complete sport section, daily auto department, etc.

THE TIMES IS SUPREME in the Rio Grande Valley, one of the richest spots in all Texas. LAREDO was shown on the industrial map of the United States Chamber of Commerce as one of the three white spots on the business map for June.

BUSINESS IS GOOD IN LAREDO, where two eight-story hotels have been recently completed, another in contemplation, miles of paved streets, two oil refineries, and the trade with Mexico combine to make business good the year around.



LAREDO DAILY TIMES

National Representatives

PRUDDEN, KING & PRUDDEN, Inc.

270 Madison Avenue, New York — Globe Building, Boston — Steger Building, Chicago

507 Montgomery St., San Francisco, California — Leary Building, Seattle, Washington — Chamber of Commerce Bldg., Los Angeles, California

As many faces as you need in standard, interchangeable magazines, ready for use on either type of Linotypes:

SINGLE DISTRIBUTION OR MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

Mergenthaler Linotype Company

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

Linotyped in the Cloister Family

INGLE ISTRIBUTION

ne, two or three terchangeable
ain magazines

MODEL 8
ithout auxiliary
agazine

MODEL 14
ith auxiliary magazine

lso built as Display Linotypes
ODEL 21—without auxiliary
ODEL 22—with auxiliary

MULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

Two interchangeable main magazines

MODEL 25
without auxiliary magazines

MODEL 26
with two auxiliary magazines

Faces from all magazines mixed in the same line

520.26.8-F

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Cecil Dorrian, Newark News, Returns from Europe—Mrs. Kuhn Joins New York Mirror—Philadelphia Ad Women Give Banquet to Mrs. Carothers

CECIL DORRIAN, European correspondent and editorial writer on foreign affairs for the Newark Evening News, returned from abroad last week, and is now on vacation.

CECIL DORRIAN

It was in 1914 that Miss Dorrian began contributing to the News. Prior to that she had been dramatic critic for the New York Tribune. She was abroad when war started, and the articles she wrote for the Newark paper gave her impressions of the different European countries engaged in the conflict.

About a year and a half later she became a regular member of the staff. During the war she did remarkable work as war correspondent. She spent a week and a half at the front in the sector occupied by the 78th Regiment, telling the people back home about the achievements of the New Jersey boys.

"That was a job well done," was a compliment paid this week by John W. Maynard, her editor on the News.

Then, too, she made visits to the Italian and Belgian fronts, going up within the fighting zones. She was also among correspondents covering the Versailles Peace treaty. She was decorated by the French government.

After the war she made a long trip to Warsaw and down across Europe to the Balkans and on to Constantinople, where she spent nine months. She established close relations with the foreign offices of Great Britain and France and with the Turks and made many friends among Continental celebrities, which made her a most valuable member of the News' staff. In 1922, she made a trip to Moscow and wrote on post-revolutionary conditions.

Miss Dorrian is author of a play called "The Age of Reason," produced at the Bandbox Theatre in New York in 1918.

Newspaper ink sticks to Clara Sharpe Hough whose romance of the Viking discovery of North America will be published in August by the Century Company. Since being graduated from the Columbia University School of Journalism Mrs. Hough has been in newspaper work. Stories from her typewriter were included in each of the two annuals of newspaper best stories selected by Joseph Anthony.

CLARA SHARPE HOUGH

Mrs. Hough married a fellow alumnus of the Columbia school, George A. Hough, Jr., formerly of the New York World staff and now news editor of the New Bedford (Mass.) Standard. Mr. Hough's brother and his brother's wife are also graduates of the Columbia School of Journalism.

The author of "Leif the Lucky" was born in Monterey, Mexico, and spoke Spanish before she knew English. Her father was a mining engineer whose wanderings took the family to Texas, Arizona, Indiana, and California. Mrs. Hough began to write when she was an undergraduate at Mills College, California.

Her interest in the Vikings was first aroused in her days on the Pacific coast and she brought her first notes on her novel with her when she came to New York in 1916.

Mrs. Irene Corbally Kuhn, widow of Bert L. Kuhn, who was United Press correspondent in Shanghai, has joined the staff of the New York Daily Mirror.

Mrs. Minna Carothers, president of the Federation of Women's Advertising Clubs of the World, was the guest of honor at a banquet of the Philadelphia Club of Advertising Women held recently at the Poor Richard Club, Philadelphia, Pa.

The following local officers were installed: Mrs. Ellen S. Patten, president; Florence M. Dart, vice president; Mary J. Denton, recording secretary; Clare V. Fey, corresponding secretary; Mrs. B. Ewing Kempff, treasurer.

Application for the two advertising scholarships at New York University offered as a memorial for two of their members, Miss Helen Louise Johnson, and Mrs. May S. Thayer, by the New York League of Advertising Women should be in the form of a letter on the subject "Why I Have Selected Advertising as My Chosen Work."

All letters are to be mailed to the Scholarship Committee, League of Advertising Women, 23 Park Avenue, New York City, before Aug. 15. Applicants should indicate in what capacity they are now engaged.

Young women now engaged in any capacity in advertising in Metropolitan New York are eligible for these two scholarships.

Oral examinations for candidates chosen by the committee will be held between Aug. 15 and Sept. 10. The two successful candidates will then be required to pass necessary entrance examinations at New York University.

Miss Grace Kosten, of Juneau, Alaska, a contributor to Alaskan newspapers, after visiting in California and Texas, and spending two weeks in New York City, sailed this week for France. Miss Kosten plans to be in Geneva and Lausanne, Sept. 14-18, during the sessions of the Press Congress of the World.

Miss Katharine Stull, society editor of the Wichita Eagle has resigned to go to Florida.

Frances Campbell, a reporter on the Okemah (Okla.) Daily Leader was adjudged the most beautiful bathing girl in five Oklahoma cities at a recent American Legion carnival.

Miss Mildred Fisher, formerly of the Emporia (Kan.) Gazette, has joined the staff of the Lyons (Kan.) Daily News.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg. LOS ANGELES

STREET NEWSSTAND OWNER INSTALLS TELEPHONE

Harrison F. Waterman

DE LUXE service for patrons was inaugurated this week by Harrison F. Waterman, proprietor of a street news stand at the entrance of the New York World building, when he installed a telephone at his stand to permit customers to order papers by phone.

Waterman has a corps of hustling newsies on hand to deliver any paper called for to occupants of nearby office buildings.

Waterman runs his stand in a strictly businesslike manner. He pays his assistants by check. Their bundles of papers are checked in and out carefully.

"That's progress," a New York World reporter told him.

"Yeah!" he responded, grinning scornfully. "If I was progressive I'd be bootlegger and make real money."

"But folks want papers, and sometim in a hurry too, so this is the way I se them.

"I keep all New York newspapers a all magazines" was his parting boast.

PHOTO ENGRAVERS ELECT

Charles A. Stinson, of Philadelph was elected president of the Americ Photo Engravers Association at the clo ing session of the annual meeting of th organization in Detroit last week. H succeeds Edward W. Houser, of Ch cago. Other officers elected were: V. W Hurst, of Rochester, N. Y., first vic president; M. C. Cosinger, Cincinna second vice-president; Oscar F. Kwe Canton, secretary-treasurer. The fo lowing were named on the executive cor mittee: Edward W. Houser, Chicag Adolph Schuetz, New York City; H. Campbell, Seattle; Otto Rumpel, D troit; and Elmer Held, St. Louis.

Make Your Title A Mark of Pride with

Hardened Steel Newspaper Heads

—they last forever

::

A. J. SOSSNER
361 West Broadway
New York

Good Reporters make Good Newspapers

THE backbone of the newspaper is its news gathering staff. Lacking intelligently-collected and well-written news, no paper can be successful. Every successful newspaper has based its accomplishments primarily on the efforts of its reporters.

THE COPY DESK MAKES GOOD REPORTERS

THE COPY DESK, the keystone of the City Room, is the preceptor of the editorial staff. The Copy Desk cannot create good stories, but by its work of editing and by its surveillance of the work of the staff, can instil into the reporters its best conceptions of news gathering and writing. Thus the Copy Desk is likewise an all-important factor in the making of a paper.

NEW YORK COPY DESK TRAINING

NEWSPAPER MEN everywhere who wish to avail themselves of Copy Desk Training by the methods in use on the best New York newspapers will be interested in the new Home Study Course of the Newspaper Institute. This training in practical newspaper writing and editing in the New York manner was written by a newspaper man of 20 years' experience in the metropolitan field. A dozen New York staff writers contribute lectures on various phases of newspaper work.

It is the most complete and most practical training in newspaper work available by any method of instruction outside a New York editorial office, and contains many inside stories of how big news stories of recent years were handled. The Course is sold on reasonable terms. For catalog and special arrangements for members of the press, use the coupon.

Newspaper Institute of America
25 West 45th Street
New York

Newspaper Institute of America, Dept. 90
25 West 45th Street, New York
Send me, without obligation, complete information on your course in Newspaper Writing, also information on Special Press Enrollments.
Mr. / Mrs. / Miss. .....
Address .....
Occupation .....

Why

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S

MARKET GUIDE

is regarded as the

INDISPENSABLE KEY

TO THE SPACE BUYERS' PROBLEMS

And the problems of all that have to do with the marketing of products and the placing of national newspaper advertising.

It Is AUTHENTIC

All its thousands upon thousands of facts and figures portraying the actual trading conditions in the 1300 cities and towns where daily newspapers are published are gathered from original sources—by more than 5,000 picked individuals who are on the ground and have access to the local records.

It Is UP TO DATE

Each year the compilations are made afresh, with all the changes that have taken place in local marketing conditions since the last edition was published. To avoid any hasty slapping together of figures at the last moment or any rehearsing of old data, questionnaire blanks are distributed three and a half months in advance of the publication date.

It Is UNBIASSED

These data are absolutely unbiassed. EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S trained investigators have no axes to grind. They are cautioned to report only accurate figures, at no sparing of trouble and expense, that will stand up under the rigid verification to which all reports are submitted.

It Is COMPLETE

The Market Guide contains all the data needed to determine where national newspaper advertising can be placed to advantage. The 1927 Edition will include, among many new features suggested by users of the Guide, deposits, resources, clearings and other banking information; number of automobile registrations, average monthly total retail sales, all lines, names and populations of most important towns in each trading area, etc.

IN VIEW of the above facts, it is no wonder that the firm members, account executives, research men and space buyers of practically all the leading Advertising Agencies, and the sales or advertising managers of close to a thousand of the largest and most consistent users of newspaper space among national advertisers use EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S Market Guide, day in and day out, throughout the year, and frankly say they don't see how they could get along without it.

AND IN VIEW of this universal use of EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S Market Guide by the very men most influential in the choice of media, it is no wonder that so many newspaper publishers gladly avail themselves of the opportunity to get across to these men in close juxtaposition to the story of their CITY the story of their PAPER in covering their city's market. Publishers who wish to know more about this unrivalled aid in selling space may ask all the questions they please, without placing themselves under the slightest obligations to us.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1925

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Electrical Refrigeration Group Urging Local Tie-up Copy—Plan to Advertise Sesqui Abroad—Bernet Named Advertising Manager of Wabash

THE SOCIETY FOR ELECTRICAL DEVELOPMENT, INC., has prepared newspaper mats on electric refrigeration in four-column and five-column sizes to be used by local dealers in tying-in with a national campaign now being run. Six manufacturers of electric refrigerators have subscribed equal amounts to a co-operative fund of $100,000. At present copy is running in the Saturday Evening Post. A charge of $1 is being made for the newspaper mats.

Firms joining in the campaign are: Servel Corporations; Delco Light Company (Frigidaire); Kelvinator Corporation; Copeland Products, Inc.; Nizer Corporation and General Electric Company.

An advertising campaign in the newspapers of London, Paris and other European cities is planned by the United Business Men's Association to promote the port of Philadelphia and the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

The plan was advocated by Samuel T. Banham, president of the Association, who recently returned to this country from a trip abroad.

An outline of the proposed foreign campaign calls for use of foreign newspapers, establishment of information booths in the principal hotels of the cities and distribution of Philadelphia newspapers at the booths.

Jay W. Dunivan, manager of distribution, Cadillac Company, has been promoted to assistant general sales manager in charge of distribution.

Vincent Webb has succeeded Robert L. Gracemill as advertising manager for Holzwasser's, Inc., a large department store in San Diego, Cal. Mr. Gracemill goes with the Emporium, in San Francisco, in the same capacity.

The board of directors of Dictaphone Corporation, meeting July 21, declared the regular quarterly dividend of $2 per share on the preferred stock of Dictaphone Corporation and also a dividend of 25 cents per share on the common stock. Both these dividends were made payable September 1.

Simultaneously with the declaration of these dividends, C. K. Woodbridge, president of the corporation, reported a substantial increase in sales, both for the domestic branches of the United States and Canada and also for export.

Milton E. Bernet, formerly general publicity manager for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, has been named general advertising agent for the Wabash Railroad. He has served five years in the telephone company's publicity department.

Mr. Bernet is a graduate of Missouri University and Washington University. He has been a member of the Advertising Club of St. Louis for six years, and has served on many committees. He was secretary of the club under Carl F. G. Meyer.

---

ing manager. Mr. Erwin will continue sales and advertising manager of the Kearney & Trecker Corporation, Milwaukee, has announced the appointment of A. J. Gerlach as advertising manager, with Joseph Trecker as assistant advertising manager. Mr. Edwin will continue supervision of the department in an advisory capacity.

RECEPTIONS PLANNED FOR PRESS CONGRESS

New York Publishers Will Entertain Party Before Sailing—Genevan Committee Represents Many Nations

With the sailing of the Cunarder "Carmania" carrying the official delegation to the Press Congress of the World sessions at Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, just five weeks off, the registration list is being added to daily. Delegates from Canada, Mexico, Cuba and other South and Central American countries, Hawaii and New Zealand will assemble in New York City, August 31, for three days of sightseeing and entertainment, the New York City Publishers and Allied Trades being the hosts.

Sailing from New York, September 4, the official delegation will arrive at Geneva in time for the opening sessions of the Third Congress on September 14. Sessions of the first two days will be held at Geneva, and those of the last three days at Lausanne. This will give the delegates several delightful rides on Lake Geneva, and give time also for sight-seeing in historic and beautiful towns.

The following committee, composed of the leading citizens of Geneva, is arranging the reception for the delegates from all countries:

Camille Odier, president of the Association des Interets de Geneve.

Edouard Chapuisat, director of the Journal de Geneve.

Jean Martin, editor-in-chief Journal de Geneve.

Paul Trachsel, director of the Association des Interets de Geneve.

Eugene Fabre, editor-in-chief La Suisse.

Edouard Junod, director of the Tribune de Geneve.

Henry Georg, director of Publicitas.

William Rappard, rector of the University of Geneva.

Mme. G. D'Arcis, president of the World Union of Women for Universal Concord.

Joseph E. Sharkey, Associated Press.

Georges Werner, vice-rector of the University of Geneva.

George Brunel, secretary commercial of the United States Consulate.

Louis Favre, professor, member of the permanent committee of the International Peace Bureau.

M. Heartly, League of Nations Non-Partisan Association of America.

Arthur Bullard, League of Nations.

Albin Johnson, correspondent New York Herald.

Robert Neville, correspondent New York Times.

M. Schweitzer, League of Nations.

H. P. Devitte, journalist, Ireland.

Camille Morel, Vice-Consul of Ecuador.

Angelo Monti, journalist, Italy.

Alfred Nicole, journalist.

M. Cheneviere, author.

M. Chaponniere, author.

M. de Jong van Beck en Donk, Dutch journalist.

Chifeng Ilsia, Chinese journalist.

Dr. J. Becker, German journalist.

Henri De Ziegler, journalist.

Ferdinand Fournier, editor, Journal Francais; E. Smith, Maurice Och, Henri Pittard and Frederick Bates.

Questionnaires have been sent to all who have made registration, asking for definite information on the extension tour desired; the date the delegate desires to sail from England, and the class of accommodation desired abroad. Information has been given each registrant regarding the securing of passports and visas and other requirements of foreign countries.

The official Press Congress party will tour Switzerland, Belgium, France and England, and the trip being timed for the end of the tourist season, will afford greater opportunity for comfortable travel and sight-seeing.

Editors or any one connected with newspaper business desiring information should write at once to the Tour Department, Press Congress of the World, 1700 Times Building, for reservation on the "Carmania."

EDITORS ATTEND POWWOW

Two hundred visitors attended the annual banquet of the Northeast Nebraska Editorial Association at Homer, Neb., July 23 and were guests at the Indian powwow July 24. O. J. Moore, president of the grocery company bearing his name with headquarters in Sioux City, was principal speaker. H. N. Wagner, publisher of the Homer Star was host at dinner given the editors following the Indian ceremonies.

Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be u… ing. A happy medium has been effected. It is easier to read than seven point re… nt to st… or the … appr… every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that h… the day when artificial a… though not … of the typ… a trial of s… last few… nt of th… ter t… and… ab… t…

© TRADE LINOTYPE MARK ●

…ders gives good legibility even wh… solid. Cast on seven point bod… Point Ionic gives the effect … leaded—and with a de… word-count over the … The first paper … ce …es the Evening … N. J. … the man… …re enthusi… …, and readers … …ds of commen… …e of the most appre… …oseph H. Salov, a lead… …st, and past president of … Optometric Association. … addressing the editor of …ning News: "It would be … or any one else who …unt of good that will … recent change in the … use in the makeup of …s was not recognized, … so acknowledged by …ted in the conservation … is the accumulated un… … on the eyes, due to the …l and poor type used in …bers, that hastens the day …al aid must be sought. Al… …versed in the nomenclature … you have been using for the …days, it is of a style and charac… …t immediately makes itself felt, … is far more readable and comfort… …le than the former style. I am sure … that there are many thousands of readers who, possibly unknowingly, feel the added comfort." After several years of investigation and experimentation,

…ne line… …g. The eve… …particularly ac… …of newspaper s… …advantage of t… …ation of visio… …out is restf… …notor…

Study the design of this NEW face

Linotype 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

See how perfectly it meets the difficult requirements of modern newspaper printing conditions. Notice the full round contours of the letters, no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink, no fine lines to break down in stereotyping.

Ask the nearest Linotype Agency for copies of newspaper set in this face and compare it with the body type you are now using both for legibility and word count. You will find it easier to read than 7 point faces and that it gives the same word count as a 6 point.

The 6½ Point Ionic is made with italic and small caps and also in combination with Bold Face No. 2.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON	RICHMOND	DETROIT	MINNEAPOLIS	SAN FRANCISCO
NEW YORK	ATLANTA	CHICAGO	KANSAS CITY	PORTLAND
PHILADELPHIA	BUFFALO	CINCINNATI	DES MOINES	SPOKANE
BALTIMORE	PITTSBURGH	ST. LOUIS	DENVER	WINNIPEG
	CLEVELAND	MILWAUKEE	LOS ANGELES

The International Advertising Association

(Formerly the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World)

Is Serving You—and Your Business

Your advertising and your sales efforts are bringing larger returns because for 22 years this Association has been working year in and year out for the improvement of advertising practice and better selling methods.

It is carrying on a nation-wide program of education among men dealing with the problems of advertising and sales that has meant for increased profits to business. Through organized advertising and the constructive activities that have sprung from it, practices in advertising and selling have been revolutionized in the past quarter of a century, and put on a sound, profit-making basis.

This Association conducts 12,000 fact-finding meetings a year that are bringing to light new information, new ideas and workable plans that are every day increasing the profits made through better and more effective uses of advertising.

Through 40 national and one great international convention held within its membership of many highly organized groups each year, it is focusing attention of the public upon the part advertising plays in the economic distribution of the world's commodities: it is showing how advertising is serving the great buying public and making that service of constantly increased value.

Through 44 local and our National Better Business Bureau, it is eliminating advertising that is misleading, deceptive or fraudulent and thereby making advertising of greater service value. It is giving the public increased confidence in advertising and thereby making it more resultful.

It inaugurated the slogan, "Truth-in-Advertising," and now it is emphasizing that the public may well have "Belief in Advertising." Its slogan, "Before you Invest—Investigate," has saved millions of honest earned dollars to the investing public.

Through the Advertising Club of New York and the Better Business Bureau of New York City, business firms throughout the metropolitan districts are asked to put a few dollars of invested capital into this highly constructive, forward-going movement. It has twenty-two years of accomplishment back of it, the endorsement of leaders in every line, here and abroad, and its possibilities of future service are limited only by its financial support.

International Advertising Association

C. K. WOODBRIDGE, President

For your convenience, use the coupon below and mail today

FRANCIS H. SISSON, Treasurer,
International Advertising Association,
388 Madison Avenue, New York, N. Y.

MY DEAR SIR:

My company and my associates are much interested in the good results being accomplished by your Association.

Please consider this as our Company's request to be accepted as a contributing member at the rate of $100.00 a year.

We are glad of this opportunity to become identified with the progressive and constructive work of the International Advertising Association.

Signed by .....
Title of Office

For the .....
Name of Company

.....
Mailing Address

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

N. A. N. A. Preparing Series on Elizabeth Austin, Super-Child—Collier, McNaught Artist, Goes Abroad—NEA Surveys Wheat Belt—Theodora Bean Suffers Relapse

THE North American Newspaper Alliance has obtained "The Story of Elizabeth" by Anne Austin as a new feature for its members.

In the 15 articles comprising the series Anne Austin tells the story of her daughter Elizabeth Benson Austin, who at the age of 12 has been accepted as a freshman at Barnard College, connected with Columbia University. Elizabeth has always shown remarkable precocity, and in psychological tests has recorded the highest intelligence quotient on record, 214.

Anne Austin, who is only 30, worked on many newspapers in Texas before entering the magazine field as editor of People's Popular Monthly, and Screenland. She has been free-lancing in New York for the past few years.

Nate Collier, staff artist for the McNaught Syndicate, New York, is in Europe on his vacation. Besides his syndicate work Mr. Collier contributes drawings to Life, Judge, and humorous weeklies of London.

The New York World Syndicate is handling a series of 30 articles under the title "A Broadwayite Abroad" written by Karl Kitchen, who conducts a daily Broadway column in the Evening World.

George Britt, New York bureau manager of NEA Service, Inc., left last Friday for a vacation with relatives at Odell, Ill.

NEA has just sent out a series of four articles under the title "The New Eldorado" dealing with farming conditions in the Western wheat belt. They are written by a staff writer who recently toured the section.

Helen Keller, blind and deaf marvel who writes a daily feature "Into the Light" for Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., New York, has returned to her home at Forest Hills, Long Island, after a vacation in her home state, Alabama.

Theodora Bean, head of the T-Bean Syndicate, New York, who has been seriously ill in a New York hospital suffered a relapse this week. Physicians report her condition grave.

Guy Jones of the North American Newspaper Alliance sailed for Paris last Saturday for a month's vacation and business trip. While abroad he will visit N. A. N. A. member newspapers and confer with the foreign staff.

Jack Callahan, creator of "Freddie the Sheik" and Al Zere who draws "So This Is Married Life" are in Europe en route to Algiers where they will spend their vacations. Mrs. Callahan, the former Helen Carr who became blind as a result of her high diving act at the Hippodrome, is accompanying her husband. Foreign specialists will be consulted in an effort to restore her sight.

Mrs. Mildred Seydell, special representative of the Atlanta Georgian and Sunday American, after visiting friends in New York City sailed July 29 for Spain, where she will make a study of crime and prisons in that country, following which she will visit Germany, France, England and other European countries. Mrs. Seydell plans her itinerary so as to attend the Press Congress of the World sessions in Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland, September 14-18. The feature articles by Mrs. Seydell will be handled through the King Feature Service.

W. L. Wardell, vice-president in charge of sales for Famous Features Syndicate, Inc., has just returned from a business trip in the New England territory.

Fanny Fitzwater, fashion artist for the New York Herald Tribune, who has been in this country for a short vacation, returns to Paris on July 24th on the S. S. Paris.

STATE MUST ADVERTISE

Missouri to Spend Large Sum for Printing Constitutional Amendment

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., July 29.—Between $172,000 and $230,000 will be spent for advertising of state election matter by the state of Missouri at the coming election. This amount is to be distributed among the papers of the state for advertising one proposed constitutional amendment and three referendums.

Under the state law each county is to have the referendums and the amendment advertised in papers of general circulation. One contract per county is to be made, and for the city of St. Louis, a total of 115 contracts.

The law fixes the maximum of $1 a square of 250 ems, (about one column inch) for the first insertion and 50 cents for subsequent insertions. The publications are to be five times, making about $3 per column inch.

The contracts are expected to average between $1,500 and $2,000 for each county. There is nothing in the law to prevent advertising in more than one paper, although the law provides for one contract only.

Charles U. Becker, secretary of state, and privately editor and publisher of the Excelsior Springs Missouri State Journal, has the distribution of the advertising.

The awards are not to be made until after the primary Aug. 3.

NEW U. P. CLIENTS

The Pueblo (Col.) Star-Journal, Frank S. Hoag, publisher, is now receiving full leased wire service of the United Press on a new circuit recently established from Denver to El Paso, Tex., via Albuquerque. The Elkhart (Ind.) Truth and Ft. Smith (Ark.) Journal are other leased wire clients. Seaside (Ore.) Signal and Buffalo (N. Y.) Volksfreund are now taking the pony service. Huntington (W. Va.) Advertiser is taking the Saturday night wire service.

LAWSON IN TOKIO

D. H. Lawson, formerly with the Manila Bulletin and China Press of Shanghai, but for the last year manager of the Long Beach (Cal.) Sun, recently arrived in Japan to join the staff of the Japan Advertiser, Tokio. He is in charge of the advertising department.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

JOHNSTOWN, PENNA., DEMOCRAT
Says—

"We have never lost a minute's time since we started our DUPLEX TUBULAR press in 1920 on account of press trouble."

DUPLEX PRESSES
FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

GIRLS FINED 80 CENTS

American Writer and Friends Violated Italian Law on Train Conduct

Miss Virginia Lee Cox, feature writer for the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch and several other Virginia girls now on a European tour, violated one of Mussolini's new laws in Italy last week, and two of the girls were forced to pay 20 lire, or about 80 cents in American money, for placing their dainty feet upon the cushions of the compartment in which they were riding.

Miss Cox writes:

"It was when we were nearing Milan, the birthplace of Mussolini, that a train guard, big and dark and voluble, appeared at the door with an official tablet of some sort in his hand and began talking much Italian. The seats of the compartment in which we were riding were dusty and dirty at the edges where the people who had occupied it before us had put their feet, but, unfortunately, at the time the guard appeared, two of our party had the tips of their shoes touching the dirty places of the seats."

BELL ADDRESSES WORKERS

Edward Price Bell of the Chicago Daily News foreign service was given a rousing reception by 2,000 workingmen at Portsmouth, England's chief naval station, July 25, where in the Wesley church, under the chairmanship of Sir Hugh J. Elles, commander of the military forces at the port, Mr. Bell spoke for an hour on "America's Economic Revolution."

WILSON IN EUROPE

Australian Writer to Attend World Press Congress at Geneva

Charles Wilson, secretary of the Parliamentary Library of New Zealand, a feature writer for the Dominion, Wellington, the New Zealand Herald, Auckland, the Lyttleton Times, Christchurch, and the Otago Daily Times, Dunedin, N. Z., accompanied by Mrs. Wilson, has arrived in London en route to Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, to attend the Press Congress sessions, September 14-18.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will return with the official party to the United States, going home via Vancouver.

P. Selig, New Zealand newspaperman, and daughter, Mrs. Oscar Josephson, of Christchurch, N. Z., will arrive in New York, Aug. 31, to accompany the Press Congress party to Geneva, and will return to New Zealand via the Suez Canal.

The Men Who Make up

Editor & Publisher's

Great Family of Readers

Paid Subscribers Alone Number

3041 Newspaper Executives

787 Advertising or Sales Managers of National Advertisers

454 Firm Members, Account Executives, Space Buyers and Research Men of Recognized Advertising Agencies

247 Special Newspaper Representatives

1605 Miscellaneous employees of daily papers, executives of publications other than newspapers, teachers and students in Journalistic Courses, Public Libraries, etc.

831 Purchasers of copies on Newsstands

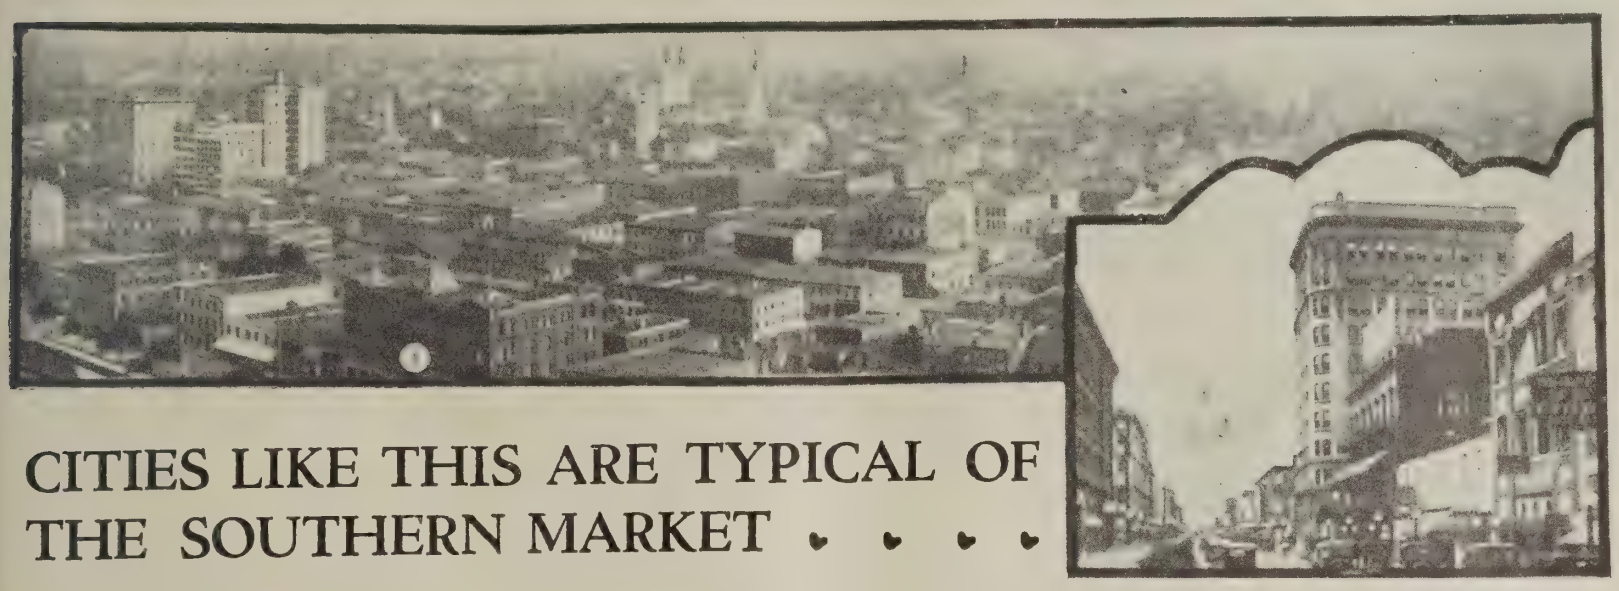
These are the audited figures of the Publisher's A B C Statement for the June 26th issue.

But Paid Subscribers Represent but a Fraction of its Actual Readers

A recent questionnaire revealed that mighty few of its paid subscription copies are read by less than three individuals—some of them by as high as eight and ten. An average would make it probably about five readers to a subscription—and that is stating it conservatively.

Are YOU among the 8,000 or the 32,000?

If the latter, it will be immeasurably to your advantage to have your own personal copy from this time forward. Don't you think? The use of the coupon below will place you at once among the subscribers of record, and get to you the weekly news and data which you prize so highly without its passing through any other hands first.



EDITOR & PUBLISHER,
Times Bldg., New York, N. Y.

Send me EDITOR & PUBLISHER every week for a year, including with my subscription at no extra cost all the Special Numbers and the International Year Book and Space Buyers' Guide, as they are issued during the term of my subscription. Enclosed is my check for $.....
(Or, if you prefer, send me your bill.)

Name .....
Address .....
Paper (or Company) .....
Title or Position .....

Subscription Price, $4 per year
(In Canada, 50c extra; Foreign, $1 extra)

Why Advertisers choose the South for intensive coverage

CITIES LIKE THIS ARE TYPICAL OF THE SOUTHERN MARKET . . . .

The slogan of the South, today, is PROGRESS. Every city and town is showing the results of the prosperity which has placed the South in the foremost rank as a commercial and industrial area.

The photograph of Savannah, Georgia, shows a typical Southern City of today. Large office buildings are springing up overnight, as it were; industry is growing everywhere and everywhere in the South the people are enjoying unprecedented prosperity.

The South is the market that you should cultivate today. That is where you can expect the greatest growth in business.

Let the papers listed here give you facts and figures about the South's commercial growth.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Birmingham Age-Herald ....(M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald ....(S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item ....(E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register ....(M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register ....(S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News....(ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903 ....(S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger ....(E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald ....(M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald ....(S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star ....(E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel ....(M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal....(E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Augustine Record ....(E&S)	3,382	.04	.04
†St. Petersburg Independent....(E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times ....(E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841....(S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
*West Palm Beach Post....(M)	12,243	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald ....(E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald ....(S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph ....(M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph ....(S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015.(S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*The Lexington Leader....(E)	19,640	.06	.06
*The Lexington Leader....(S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun ....(E)	9,255	.04	.04

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News....(M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News....(S)	31,505	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post ....(E)	7,188	.06	.06
†Winston-Salem Journal ....(M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal ....(S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel ....(E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State ....(M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State ....(S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News ....(M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal ....(E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860....(S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times ....(M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times ....(S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal....(M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal....(S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner ....(E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner ....(S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee....(M&E)	14,313	.05	.05
*Danville Register (Sunday).......	9,065
*Newport News Times-Herald....(E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press....(S&M)	5,413
*Roanoke Times & World News...(M&E)	25,772	.08	.08
*Roanoke Times ....(S)	16,076	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader..(E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

R. THOMAS, GOSS PRESS EXPERT, DIES

Was for 16 Years Eastern Representative—Learned Printing Trade on Baltimore Sun—Offered Post of Public Printer

Richard P. Thomas, for the past 16 years eastern representative of the Goss Printing Press Company, died suddenly at his home in Brooklyn, Friday, July 23.

RICHARD P. THOMAS

Mr. Thomas was born in Baltimore, the son of Rear Admiral Charles Thomas and nephew of Philip Frances Thomas, former Governor of Maryland. His first position was with the Baltimore Sun where he learned his trade as a printer. Offered the position of Public Printer by Grover Cleveland, Mr. Thomas declined and came to New York as mechanical superintendent of the New York Journal. This was 39 years ago and he has resided in New York City ever since.

After ten years with the Hearst organization, Mr. Thomas joined the old New York News then owned by Frank A. Munsey. However, the paper failed and he then became associated with the International Paper Company and was with them for about 12 years.

In 1910, Mr. Thomas became eastern representative of the Goss Printing Press Company in charge of their New York office and has been with them until the time of his death.

Mr. Thomas is survived by his wife, Mrs. Christine Keely Thomas and four children: Edwin J. Thomas of Catskill, N. Y., Richard C. Thomas of Hackensack, N. J., Mrs. George Clark of Tuckahoe, N. Y., and Mrs. Otto Applegate of Eatontown, N. J.

ALEX C. FINLEY

Atlantic City Circulator Dies Suddenly of Heart Attack

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 29.—Alex. C. Finley, for 30 years connected with the circulation end of the newspaper business, died suddenly at his home here yesterday afternoon, following a heart attack. Mr. Finley, assistant circulation manager of the Press-Union publications, worked until noon yesterday and it was after having lunch at home that he was stricken. His death was a great shock to fellow workers

Mr. Finley was elected president of the Interstate Circulation Managers in 1924. For a number of years he was circulation manager of the Atlantic City Gazette-Review, coming to the Daily Press and Evening Union when the Gazette-Review was merged with the Press Union a little over a year ago. He was at one time circulation manager of the Chester (Pa.) Times and Morning Republican. Mr. Finley was born in Philadelphia 51 years ago. His wife, Bessie, three children, Harry, George and Dorothy Finley, survive.

CHARLES P. RANDELL

Charles P. Randell of West Roxbury, Mass., and for more than 30 years a member of the Franklin P. Shumway Advertising Agency of Boston died at his home, July 25, after a brief illness. Mr. Randell joined the agency as an office boy and worked up to head of the accounting department and at the time of his death was a director and assistant treasurer.

FORMER BOSTON EDITOR DIES

Funeral services for Huntington Smith, former editor, were held in Dedham, Mass., July 24. Mr. Smith was a native of Hudson, N. Y., and was graduated from Dartmouth in 1878. He had been literary editor of the Boston Traveler, associate editor of The Literary World, and editor and owner of the Boston Beacon. His wife, who was Miss Anna Harris, of Dorchester, survives him.

ROBERT W. NELSON

President of American Type Founders Company Dies Suddenly

Robert W. Nelson, president of the American Type Founders Company, died suddenly Wednesday night at his home in Westfield, N. J.

Mr. Nelson was born in Granville, N. Y., and after receiving a common school education became a printer's helper in an office in Joliet, Ill. He later became owner of the Joliet Daily News.

He helped organize the American Press Association, of which he was vice-president, and became interested in the Thorne typesetting machine. A dozen or more years ago he became head of the American Type Founders Company, and also was president of the National Paper and Type Company.

Obituary

FRANK E. COVELL, 59, publisher of the Weekly Mirror in Minneapolis, died suddenly at his home July 20.

ALLEN D. BROOMALL, 58, for the past thirty years in charge of the linotype department of the West Chester (Pa.) Daily Local News, died at his home there recently.

HARRY STEWART, 59, former well-known newspaper man of the San Joaquin Valley, died July 19 at Santa Barbara, Cal. From 1902 to 1913 he was business manager of the Bakersfield (Cal.) Morning Echo. After that he published the Portersville (Cal.) Recorder for several years.

MRS. MARIE SUESEN, 88, mother of Charles F. Suesen, advertising manager of the Springfield (Ill.) State Register, died July 23 in the family home at Decatur, Ill.

CHARLES H. BERGNER, 72, a prominent lawyer of Harrisburg, Pa., and a former newspaperman, died there on July 23. His father, the late George Bergner, founded a German language newspaper in Harrisburg and later became the editor and publisher of the Harrisburg Telegraph. The son succeeded his father in the management of the paper in 1874, continuing in that capacity until 1881.

BUELL ANDERSON, 39, former editor of the San Jose (Cal.) Mercury, died suddenly July 15.

SHERMAN W. SEARLE, 63, assistant director of public welfare in Illinois, publisher of the Rock Island (Ill.) Daily Union 1908-1917 and for many years previous to that associated with the Davenport, (Ia.) Gazette and later the Democrat, died July 20 in Davenport.

FRANK BROWN, 65, secretary of the Grand Forks (N. D.) Herald, died at his home Tuesday, July 20.

R. B. WHITE, 29, Associated Press telegraph operator connected with the Charlotte (N. C.) bureau, died last week. Blood was offered for transfusions by H. C. Reneger, correspondent for the A. P. bureau, and C. J. Abernethy, a fellow operator.

ADDISON A. CHRISTIAN, 67, general manager of Gimbel Brothers' department store, Philadelphia, widely known advertising man and one of the organizers of the Philadelphia Poor Richard Club died July 24, at his country home in Greensboro, Md. He was buried in that city on Monday.

STANTON W. LORE, 55, former editor of the Oakland (Cal.) Daily Morning Record, an official labor paper, died July 7.

JOHN H. MCDONALD, 50, night editor and stockholder of the Walla Walla (Wash.) Morning Union, died July 13. He was born in Fond du Lac, Wis.

HARRY STUART, 59, pioneer newspaperman of the San Joaquin valley, California, died at Santa Barbara, July 19.

FERDINAND K. HILL, 76, founder of the Sunbury (Pa.) Daily Item, and for many years postmaster of the town, died at his home there after a brief illness. For many years he was prominent in musical circles and an opera he composed was performed many times in Central Pennsylvania.

W. OSCAR MILLER, 68, a prominent attorney of Reading, Pa., died at his home there July 20. He served two terms in the State Senate and was district attorney. For a time he was editor of the Reading Democrat.

JAMES C. EWING, lawyer of Washington, Pa., and a former newspaperman died there July 16.

MRS. FANNIE C. BEALS, 78, mother of F. E. Cottrell, vice-president and treasurer of the Toledo Blade, died at her home there July 19.

MRS ANNA WELSH JAEGLE, 51, wife of Charles J. Jaegle, publisher of the Catholic Observer, died at her home in Pittsburgh, July 21.

EDGAR L. CLEMENTS, 61, formerly assistant circulation manager of the Leavenworth (Kan.) Daily Times, died following a long illness. He resigned in May, owing to his ill health.

WALTER B. ANDRIST, 46, an employee of the Kansas City Star for 35 years died at his home in Kansas City. Forced to quit work in the winter, Mr. Andrist recently underwent a blood transfusion a fellow worker on the Star offering his blood. Mr. Andrist was formerly a printer and for 25 years was a proof reader.

JAMES BROMILOW, 51, secretary-treasurer of the Missouri Central Type and Foundry Company, Wichita, died at his home after an illness lasting more than a week.

T. Z. RUSSELL, advertising solicitor for the Fort Scott (Kan.) Tribune-Monitor died last week following an operation

FRANK WELTER, 46, former editor of the Oxford (Kan.) Register, died at a Wichita hospital after several weeks illness. Mr. Welter was postmaster of Oxford for a number of years.

CLINE SYSTEM

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO

QUALITY NAME SERVICE PARTS

CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Cline-Westinghouse Double Motor-Drive with full automatic push button control

is used by

AKRON TIMES

Akron, Ohio

Ask them about it.

CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Chicago: 111 West Washington Street
New York: 47 West 34th Street
San Francisco: First National Bank Building

Greater Merchandising Service offered, than any other Milwaukee paper.

THE MILWAUKEE LEADER

"Unawed by influence and Unbribed by Gain"

Advertising Representatives

FRALICK & BATES

Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"

"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

MICHIGAN

is growing faster than any State in the Union.

Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.

BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

cover Michigan outside of Detroit—Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?

The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

ARMED GUARDS PATROL CHICAGO HEARINGS

Correspondents Covering Senate Investigation of Illinois Primary Get Startling Change from Capital's Summer Drowse

By J. Bart Campbell
Washington Correspondent Editor & Publisher

Washington, D. C., July 29.—Newspaper correspondents who ventured from the comparative peace and quiet of the National Capital in pursuit of the investigation of campaign "slush funds" being conducted by a special Senate Committee of which Senator "Jim" Reed, of Missouri, is chairman, were provided with some thrills this week at Chicago when the committee began its probe of the Illinois primary.

Plainclothes men armed to the teeth patrolled the Federal Building in which the committee reconvened, but whether on the lookout for gunmen or hijackers, or to furnish the traditional bit of Chicago atmosphere which is creeping repeatedly into the newspapers, was not revealed.

Verbal shots were the only kind fired, however, and the hearings appeared tame after the more dramatic testimony given by the Mellons and the Vares regarding the million-dollar Pennsylvania primary during the committee sessions.

In the jury room outside the court room in which the committee reconvened in Chicago, the Associated Press, the United Press and the International News Service all had special wires set up, while the Western Union and the Postal had their own special wires strung there too. James L. West, for the A. P., Paul Mallon, for the U. P., and William K. Hutchinson, for the I. N. S., followed the committee from Washington to Chicago, and did these other members of the Senate Press Gallery: Elliott Thurston, New York World; John Snure, New York Herald Tribune; Lewis Wood, New York Times, Theodore Huntley, Pittsburgh Post, and Charles O. Gridley, East St. Louis Journal and other Illinois newspapers.

Other staff men present were Alexander Gaddess, Jr., and Walter Capelli, Philadelphia Bulletin; Louis Seibold, New York Evening Post; Mark Shields, Pittsburgh Press, and the following Chicago men: William H. Stuart and Edward L. Gorey, American; Charles N. Wheeler and A. J. Lorenz, Herald-Examiner; Joel Wolfsohn and J. W. Strauss, Post; Preston Gass and Ed Howard, Journal; Paul R. Leach, Daily News, and Oscar Hewitt, of Tribune.

William J. Collins, assistant custodian of the Senate Press Gallery, was "on the job," as usual, looking after the wants of the newspaper men, and co-operating with Hicklin Yates, Senator Reed's secretary, and the committee clerk, in providing facilities.

STELZLE SUCCEEDS REISNER

Retired Pastor New President of Church Advertising Department, I. A. A.

Dr. Charles Stelzle, retired pastor, now in advertising work in New York City, has succeeded Christian F. Reisner, pastor of Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church, New York, as president of the Church Advertising Department of the International Advertising Association.

Rev. Reisner resigned recently after long service as head of the department. James Wright Brown, president of Editor & Publisher, has been named to represent the Church Advertising Department on the National Advertising Commission.

AGENCY PHONE LIST OUT

E. J. Anderson Special Agency, New York, has just issued its 1926 Telephone Directory of General Advertising Agencies and Publishers' Representatives.

WOULD FREE CHAPIN

Friends of Former New York Editor Move to Get His Release from Sing Sing

Friends of Charles E. Chapin, former city editor of the New York Evening World, have started a movement to obtain his release from Sing Sing prison, where he is serving a life sentence for the murder of his wife.

Chapin, has been seriously ill recently, and according to Warden Lewis E. Lawes of the prison, "is fast slipping."

In a New York Times dispatch from Sing Sing the warden said that Chapin was "one of the best workers around the place. He is worth more than any other ten inmates together. He looks after all the flowers and lawns, inside and outside the walls."

Chapin is 68 years old, but Warden Lawes says he looks much older. His story about the murder was that he killed his wife in a fit of discouragement and intended to die with her but lost his nerve. He went to prison seven and a half years ago, his actual sentence being from twenty years to life. He would be eligible for parole in seven and a half years more. He used to edit the Sing Sing Bulletin, the prison newspaper, until the warden discontinued it.

REMODELLING PLANT

The plant of the Riverside (Cal.) Press is being remodelled at an estimated cost of $15,000. The new building will be thoroughly modern two-story structure with Spanish architecture.

BARRY ELECTS FLORIDA TO PAUL SMITH'S

Survey of After-Boom Conditions a "Paradise Assignment" After Guessing at "Cal's" Piscatorial Skill

By Bart Campbell

Washington, July 27.—"People are tired of reading stories about Cal and the few fish he is alleged to have caught. They want to know what is going on in Florida, particularly Miami. Leave Paul Smith's and go to Florida. Make a careful survey of conditions there and send us a series of at least six stories."

Robert Barry

Jack Tennant, managing editor of the New York Evening World flashed this message to Robert Barry, Washington correspondent for that newspaper, as "Bob" sat wearily dodging mosquitoes and boredom at Paul Smith's mountain hostelry where headquarters are maintained for the newspapermen assigned to trail President Coolidge to the "summer White House" in the Adirondacks.

Barry read the message and grinned. He could not have appeared happier if he had received a wire that he had won a million on a Derby winner in his native Kentucky.

At the National Capital, he paused long enough to repack his bags and tell the boys at the National Press Club what a "lovely assignment Paul Smith's is," before hopping a train for the Florida real estate fields.

The last heard from Barry was that he had voted Coral Gables and other Florida boom resorts a veritable paradise compared with the guessing contest conducted daily at Paul Smith's as to whether the President's rod held pike or trout, or whether the portrait of Napoleon suspended upon a wall of the President's bedroom is really not a likeness of the French Conqueror at all, but the handiwork of a cubist representing in twisted lines the dictionary acceptance of the term, Vacuum!

"LAILA"

(By John Newport)

A TALE OF THE DAYS OF CHRIST WRITTEN ESPECIALLY FOR NEWSPAPERS

Pictures For Every Chapter

NOW READY

Telegraph to

Eugene MacLean

827 Folsom Street, San Francisco

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

C. C. Green Gets Ferry Company Account—Chicago Agencies Merge—Arms Joins Edwards, Ewing & Jones—Brenon Joins McManus Agency

THE Christiana Ferry Company of Wilmington, Del., has picked the Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, Inc., to place its advertising in newspapers of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, and the District of Columbia. The account will be handled through the Philadelphia office of the agency.

The consolidation of the Bruce Morgan Company, Chicago, advertising agency, with Floyd Short and Partners, Inc., Chicago, was announced this week. Bruce Morgan has been elected vice-president of the merged firms.

J. E. Darlow, space buyer with the Osten Advertising Corporation, Chicago, has joined the Hawes Advertising Agency, Chicago.

E. T. Howard Company, Inc., New York agency, has been appointed to handle the account of the Standard Rice Company, New York.

John H. R. Arms, formerly with the T. D. Richardson Company, Philadelphia, and recently in charge of dealer service for the Miller Rubber Company, Akron, has been appointed manager of the New York office of Edwards, Ewing & Jones, Inc., advertising agency.

Samuel M. Kootz has joined the New York staff of the George L. Dyer Company as account executive. He was formerly with the Biow Company, New York.

M. St. John Brenon has been added to the Detroit organization of McManus, Inc., to plan and write automotive and specialized industrial advertising.

He has been affiliated with advertising departments and agencies since 1911, when he became associated with the New York Central Railroad in New York. Later he became advertising manager of the Duplex Engine Governor Company, of New York. In 1924 he joined the Caples Co., Chicago, first as a production expert and then as a writing and directing executive.

Schafer Advertising Agency, Rockford, Ill., has filed an involuntary petition in bankruptcy in the Federal Court, Freeport, July 13, 1926, claims of three petitioning creditors amounting to $9,400.

The Advertising Corporation, Waterloo, Iowa, has opened an office in Chicago. A. C. Barnett is manager. He was formerly with Kling-Gibson Advertising Company.

OHIO EDITORS PROMOTED

Heller Now Assistant to Scripps-Howard Ohio Chief—Place in Toledo

E. E. Cook, editor-in-chief of the Central Group of Scripps-Howard Newspapers, this week appointed Frank Heller to be assistant to the editor-in-chief in the direction of the Columbus bureau of Scripps-Howard Newspapers.

FRANK HELLER

Simultaneously, Harold C. Place was named Heller's successor as editor of the Toledo News-Bee.

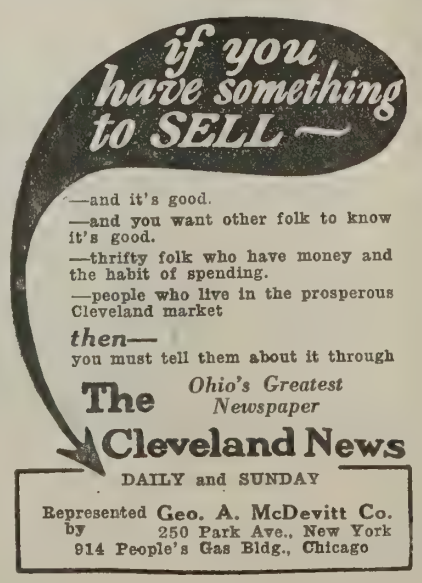
Heller's work will have to do with all of the Scripps-Howard Ohio newspapers —Cleveland Press, Akron Times-Press, Cincinnati Post and Toledo News-Bee, Columbus Citizen, Youngstown Telegram.

Heller has been connected with the News-Bee for more than a score of years. He was associated with the Toledo Bee before its consolidation with the News in 1903 and, following that merger, served successively as city editor, managing editor and editor of the News-Bee. He has been editor since 1921.

HAROLD C. PLACE

Place has for a year and a half served in the Cleveland office of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers Central Group.

Previously he was, successively, reporter, sports editor, managing editor and editor of the Des Moines News when that paper belonged to the Scripps-Howard organization.



Mr. Place is 30 years old and is a native of Iowa. He was born into the newspaper business, his father having been a publisher for the past 35 years.

His early training in the daily newspaper field was on the Waterloo Courier and Waterloo Tribune. In 1917 he joined the editorial staff of the Des Moines Capital. A year later he entered the Chicago bureau of the Associated Press. After a brief period with that organization he returned to Des Moines as a reporter on the News.

Heller will take his new office immediately upon his return from a vacation trip in the West. Place assumed the editorship of the paper upon Heller's departure on his vacation.

PUEBLO RESTRICTS STREET SIGNS

More than 100 signs in the business district here have been removed within the last two weeks by local police, because, it was charged, they did not comply with building restrictions. Many signs, it was said, projected over sidewalks in unsafe condition and others were too low. In many instances, according to reports, displays were erected without a city permit. The ordinance requiring permits for these displays will be enforced to the letter hereafter, police said.

The direct line to Illinois' buying power

The most direct medium to Illinois' homes is the daily papers, read and absorbed by the entire family.

The daily papers will give you complete coverage of the home cities and towns and help you in getting your products on the dealers' shelves.

Advertise to Illinois through the list below.

They are ready with data and real service to give you coverage in the quickest and most economical way.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News .....(E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal.....(E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index.....(E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard .....(E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News.....(E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette.....(E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch .....(E)	11,680	.045	.045
Monmouth Daily Review Atlas...(E)	5,416	.035	.035
Peoria Star.....(S) 22,497..(E)	29,874	.085	.07
Rock Island Argus.....(E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun.....(E)	5,213	.03	.03

A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

OUTH'S OLDEST DAILY SOLD FOR $300,000

harleston News and Courier Passes rom Siegling Estate to J. E. Rockwell, Late of Duluth, and Robert Lathan, Editor

CHARLESTON, S. C., July 26—The outh's oldest daily newspaper was sold ire today when the Charleston News & Courier passed into the hands of James E. Rockwell of Duluth, Minn., and Robert Lathan of Charleston. The newspaper was formerly the property of the estate of Rudolph C. Siegling of Charleston and of other Charleston citizens.

ROBERT LATHAN

The sale, it is understood, involved both the majority and rnority interests, and the new owners ill control some 90 per cent of the stock, t rest being held by former minority ckholders.

The News and Courier was established 1803 and during its 123 years of conuous publication, it has had but four etors.

The new owners are both experienced wspaper men and will be active in the nagement of the property. Mr. Rockll will be president and publisher, and . Lathan, vice-president and editor.

Mr. Rockwell, a Canadian by birth and former student at the University of ronto, began s newspaper eer as reporter the Duluth rald in 1902. ter 14 years erience in all artments of t newspaper, purchased a rity interest the Fargo um and beame its editor. er he and his sociates in go acquired Minot (N. News. In 2 he disposed of his interests in these erspapers to his associates and returned Duluth to become editor and part ner of the News Tribune. The follown year he bought out his associates e and became editor and publisher, ng his interest a few weeks ago.

J. E. ROCKWELL

Ir. Lathan is a native of South Carolina r for 16 years has been editor of the ws and Courier. In 1924 he won the litzer prize for his editorial on "The ght of the South."

he price paid for the property was not e public, but it is reported that it was he neighborhood of $300,000 which udes real estate valued at $50,000. transaction was handled through the fle of Palmer, Dewitt & Palmer, New k, who represented the Siegling estate ppraisers and brokers.

AD TIPS

orge Batten Company, Inc., 383 Madison ue, New York. Now handling account of son & Johnson, New Brunswick, N. J.

lkins & Holden, Inc., 247 Park avenue, York. Placing account of the New Jer- Zinc Company, New York, 40-40-20 paint ula, zinc roofing accessories, etc.

lote & Morgan, 247 Park avenue, New . Has secured account of the Amplion oration of America, New York City, plion" loud speakers and units.

arles C. Green Advertising Agency, Inc., y Building, Philadelphia. Has secured unt of the Christiana Ferry Company, mington, Del.

rtz-Hadly Company, 646 North Michigan ue, Chicago. Has secured account of Green- Water Waver, Chicago.

Livermore & Knight Company, 42 Pine street, New York. Now handling account of the Silver Lake Company, Newtonville, Mass., "Silver Lake" braided sash cords and clothes-lines.

Loomis Potts Company, 1012 Baltimore avenue, Kansas City, Mo. Orders are being issued generally to newspapers by this agency, on Dr. Paddock.

Morse International Agency, 449 4th avenue, New York. Placing account for Longman & Martinez, New York, "L. & M. Semi Paste Paint."

Ridge Advertising Agency, 1006 City Trust Building, Indianapolis. Issuing orders to newspapers in the middle west on Dr. Schuiling's Kupture Institute.

Stalker-Elwell Company, 2107 Jefferson avenue, Toledo. An advertising campaign has been started by the Perfection Biscuit Company, Fort Wayne, Indiana, on "Sweetie," a new cracker confection.

St. Paul Advertising Company, 100 Wabash street, St. Paul. Now handling account of Chester-Kent, Inc., St. Paul.

FORD'S NAME ON CIGARS

Patent Office Denies His Attempt to Have Name Eliminated

Henry Ford lost a fight to have the name of his automobile eliminated from a brand of cigars and stogies when the U. S. Patent Office denied his request, July 24.

In denying the application of the Ford Motor Company to cancel the registration of the brand by John A. McAdoo of Charlotte, N. C., the Patent Office held that a corporate name may be registered as a trade-mark when used on goods differing from those manufactured by another corporation of the same name.

"It must be remembered that the word 'Ford' is not necessarily confined to the corporate name of the petitioner," the decision said. "It is a common word of our language, used not only as a name for many persons but also as a common noun and as a verb."

The decision also held that even though the Lincoln Products Company, manufacturing automobile parts, might be confused with the Lincoln Motors Company, owned by the Ford interests, it should be permitted to keep its name inasmuch as its products do not compete directly with the products of the Lincoln Motors Company.

SPOKANE PRESS BUYS MACHINERY

Because of increased circulation and business, the Spokane Press has discarded its old equipment and installed a 40 page Hoe quintuple press. Over 2,000 square feet more were required to accommodate the new equipment.

GATINEAU FINANCING

$12,500,000 Bond Issue for International Paper Subsidiary

A second phase of the financing of the power development of the Gatineau River in Quebec was introduced with the offering this week of a new issue of $12,500,000 Gatineau Power Company 6 per cent sinking fund gold debentures by a syndicate headed by the Chase Securities Corporation, Bankers Trust Company and Harris, Forbes & Co., and including several other financial firms. The debentures are priced at 99½ and accrued interest, to yield 6.05 per cent.

The company's first financing consisted of a $25,000,000 issue of 5 per cent bonds, which were oversubscribed on the day of offering last week. The Gatineau project includes four plants now being constructed, which will develop a total of 397,500 horsepower. Net earnings available for interest are estimated in excess of $5,400,000 annually, or more than three times the requirements on the entire $37,500,000 of the two issues. The Gatineau company is a subsidiary of the International Paper Company and is developing one of the largest power projects in Canada.

NEW RADIO NEWS AGENCY

Mukden, Manchuria, Station Will Communicate with France and Germany

The North-Eastern Wireless Station at Mukden, equipped with a German Telefunken Company's bulb-sending apparatus of 10 kilowatts, having a wave-length ranging from 2,000 to 7,000 metres, has extended its activities and become a News Exchange, according to an article in the Tokio Trans-Pacific of July 10. Hitherto it had been used exclusively for military purposes.

The station has now commenced the exchange of news with the Tientsin and Tsinan wireless stations, and also receives the news broadcast by the Bordeaux station in France, the Nauen station in Germany and the Iwak station in Japan, the latter broadcasting news prepared by the Toho News Agency, the Teihoku News Agency and others.

The North-Eastern Station also plans further expansion of its activities, with the aid of the Siemens Company of Germany, and for this purpose five Chinese engineers, including Mr. Kang Te-pu, started for Germany on July 4.

have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

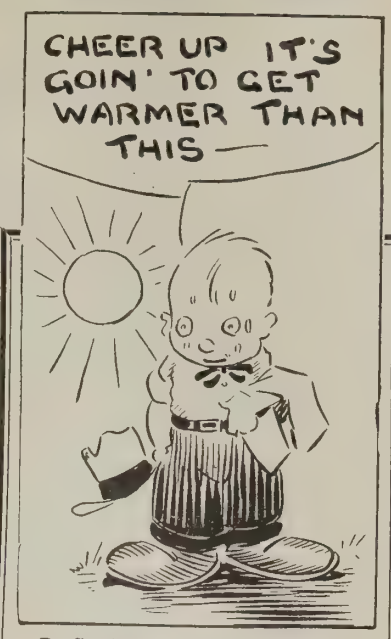
FIRST—
By Preference!

Herald dominance and the prodigious expansion of the Miami market are clearly indicated by the following crescendo of Herald national advertising lineage, first six months each year, 1923-1926, inclusive:

1923, 827,596—1924, 1,011,199—1925, 1,400,735—1926, 1,898,722.

Comparative national lineage, first six months, 1926, shows:

THE HERALD 1,898,722
Second Paper 925,085



—or a Herald lead of 105%.

The Miami Herald

"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"

Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

Noozie Says:

By Courtesy of Int. Syndicate, Balt.

120° or 86°?

The Clarksburg (W. Va.) Telegram recently installed the Certified cold process of stereotyping. In writing us how well pleased they are, Col. Viskniskki, General Manager, had this to say:

"Because of the heat generated by the steam tables and the hot forms coming therefrom, under the wet mat process, the temperature in the mechanical departments frequently rose in the summer time to one hundred and fifteen and one hundred and twenty degrees. The first day we went to dry mats, the temperature in these departments did not exceed eighty-six degrees, and the day was a hot summer one, with a temperature of about ninety outside.

"At no time since the installation of the dry mats has the temperature in the mechanical departments exceeded ninety degrees, and I do not need to point out to you what a great relief this lowering of temperature, which is directly due to the dry mat, has been to our mechanical force, and neither do I need to point out to you how this has increased the working efficiency of every man concerned."

Certified cold stereotyping not only betters working conditions in the foundry, but it improves the reproduction of half tones, is every bit as good for type, and saves real time and money besides.

Of course, it's going to be warmer, but why worry about that when it is so easy and economical to "keep cool with Certifieds."

Now is a good time to get the facts.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION

340 Madison Avenue, New York

For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds

Made in the U. S. A.

AMERICANS PLAN NEW SHANGHAI PAPER

Preliminary Organization Complete Report States —To Capitalize at Mex, $500,000—Plan to Start Publishing Jan. 1, 1927

Shanghai is to have a new "all American" newspaper which will appear about January 1, 1927, according to information given the United Press Bureau in city.

Preliminary organization work has been completed, according to backers of the project. Machinery will be purchased in the United States, where bids for equipment already have been asked for, the report states.

The prospectus of the company calls for organization of the American. Publishing company, Federal Inc., U. S. A., with Mex, $400,000 in common stock and Mex. $100,000 in preferred stock to pay 8 per cent dividends. It is planned to make the new publication an afternoon newspaper, with two editions, one at 2 and one at 4 o'clock. The promoters expect to make the newspaper a general organ for the American Community in Shanghai, which numbers more than 3,000 and the general organ of American interests in Central China. Complete cable reports of American news will be featured.

It is understood that J. B. Powell, former editor of the China Press and editor and proprietor of the China Weekly Review, will be editor, while nearly all important American business interests in Shanghai will be represented on the Board of Directors.

It is proposed to form the publishing corporation under the China Trade Act and for the first period attention will be centered purely on publication of the daily newspaper.

Persons prominent in the movement for the organization of the newspaper include Carl Crow, president of Carl Crow, Inc., advertising agency; W. I. Eisler, representative of the United States Shipping Board; C. W. Atkinson, of the Standard Oil Company; C. M. Wentworth, W. S. Fleming, J. B. Powell, O. G. Steen, of the Dollar steamship interests; F. F. Faiman, George Fitch, E. C. Stocker, Leon Friedman, H. H. French, W. H. Bolton and R. Lang.

NEW IOWA WEEKLY

The Sloan (Ia.) Leader appeared this week for the first time with Louis N. Duchaine, editor and publisher. Mr. Duchaine has been associated with the Sloan Star and other local papers for the last quarter of a century.

REPORTERS SAVE YOUTH

Two Boston reporters, Edwin B. Inglis, Boston Post, and William H. Taylor, Boston Herald, saved an Italian youth from drowning at Hampton Beach, N. H., while visiting there a week ago with the press delegation from 44 states.

OUR OWN WORLD OF LETTERS

(Continued from page 18)

BACK in the days when Walter Williams was editing the Boonville (Mo.) Advertiser, he had a voluntary and unpaid helper in the mailing department by the name of Emile R. Paillou. The latter is now a physician in St. Louis but his heart has evidently remained back in Boonville where he and Williams worked together on the Advertiser.

Lately he has been contributing to the Advertiser "Home Town Sketches"—often pen portraits of such village characters as Riley Holman, Major Hanna, Capt. Beard, Col. True Hickox, Dr. Charles Swap, Copernicus, Jr., "Heavy" Lee, Poor Old O'Connell, Rabbi Sonnenschein, Judge McFarland, and, to bring the list somewhat arbitrarily to a close, Walter Williams. These sketches under the same title have just have issued in book form by the Stratford Company of Boston.

In his pen sketch of his lifelong friend Dean Williams of the Missouri School of Journalism, Dr. Paillou prints the following:

> This is apropos of an incident that took place at the Advertiser office when Walter Williams was editor. The paper had published an item saying that a young man, whom we will call Henry James, Jr., had been in Boonville, "hobnobbing with his many friends," Henry being the son of a farmer of substance, living about five miles from Boonville.
>
> Now Henry James, Sr., had a fixed definition in his mind for "hobnobbing" and his idea was that it meant bacchanalian carousal—in other words, drunk and disorderly. So Mr. James hied himself to Boonville and called on the editor with blood in his eye. For had not his steady, sober son been "written up" in an outrageous manner?
>
> In vain did Mr. Williams by soft answer endeavor to turn away his wrath, as he explained that hobnobbing was a perfectly innocent procedure. No, sir! Mr. James came for an apology and he would have that or blood. So the editor, having no blood to spare, had to agree to straighten things out in the next issue.
>
> Do you know Walter Williams? Ever read or hear one of his apologies? Well, this time he just had to square himself and this is how he did it. The next edition of the Advertiser carried in a prominent position this item: "Henry James, Sr., was in Boonville this week hobnobbing with his many friends."

A good time will be had by all—to use the pet phrase of the country weekly—who read these delightful sketches by Dr. Paillou. Those of us who were born and brought up in the country will, as the pages are read, live the past over again in a sort of Indian summer of the heart.

* * *

THIS department was one of the first to call attention to the Indiana author, McCready Huston, who sits in an editorial chair on the South Bend Tribune. Frequent mention has been made of his short stories in the leading magazines and of his novel "Huling's Quest." His second long story, "The Big Show," will appear as a serial in the Pictorial Review before being put out in book form by Charles Scribner's Sons.

* * *

ERIE C. HOPWOOD, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, chats about the morals of college journalism in Scribner's Magazine for August. In speaking of the passing of the so-called literary monthly the undergraduate with the itch—or to be more academic, the urge—to write has no medium for his burning thoughts or his martial songs but must "either write news, editorials, 'funny stuff,' or quit."

Of the undergraduate type Mr. Hopwood speaks as follows:

> In his college newspaper the student is a highly moral, law-abiding, God-fearing young man. As interpreted by his humorous publication he would have made a sensation at the profligate court of Charles II.

Going a little farther into his analysis of undergraduate newspapers Mr. Hopwood continues:

> To one studying the college newspaper press without any preconceived notions about it and without any theories to prove or disprove, it leaves several things to be desired. It has been said that as far as form in the handling of news is concerned, the college newspaper is often as well or better done than the general newspaper. But no matter how well done as to form, college newspapers give the impression of lack of inspiration. Here are publications which are issued by staffs of young men at the most emotional, enthusiastic, and impressionable time of their lives, and still the divine fire is not in them. The work of the editors and reporters reminds one of the tricks of trained animals in a circus who go through a number of complicated evolutions with surprising fidelity and accuracy, but apparently without having the vaguest conception of what it is all about. The greatest things in the world go on in the college campus—most wonderful and beautiful things—but they go on unseen, like Conan Doyle's fairies, for all the editors tell the readers about them in the college newspapers.

The observation just quoted reflects on the college press. Unfortunately such a condition too frequently obtains in college towns.

An explanation and also a suggestion may be found in these words by Mr. Hopwood:

> It may further be said that the college newspapers show too many evidences of the dead hand of the faculty. It has tended to make the newspaper editors a class of Round Heads, while the editors of the so-called humorous publications have been permitted to become the gay Cavaliers of college journalism. If the college newspapers have suffered from too much restraint, the humorous publications have, as it will appear, suffered from too little. An equalization of faculty effort might wisely be effected.

Mr. Hopwood finds data for comment and consideration in the following table of the contents of several of the leading college humorous magazines:

Girl items	123
Off-color girl items	21
College and faculty	63
General items	174

Safe and sane—to use a trite phrase—is Mr. Hopwood's concluding comment:

> To judge college life at all intelligently by its journalism is a problem. Estimated by its newspapers, college morale is quite too good to be true. Estimated by its humorous publications, it is so extreme as to be disturbing. The truth is somewhere between the two.

LARGEST WEEKDAY CIRCULATION in the City
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN

NEW YORK EVENING GRAPHIC

H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA

Producers of . . .

SPARTAN TYPE METAL

Since 1866

LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE
COMBINATION

Stocks in Principal Cities

The DES MOINES CAPITAL

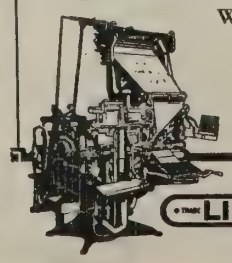
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.

It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest

O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

From the Linotype Mailbag



Delivered next day, 400 miles away

"On June 21 we telegraphed here at 11:20 A. M. for a part for our No. 8 machine:

"'Rush parcel post BB No. 165, No. 8 machine.' At 9:15 A. M., June 22, we received this part.

"We wish to acknowledge with thanks your promptness in sending us this part. Despite the fact that we are some 400 miles from Chicago, service like this is almost like having a stock room of parts of our own."

The Collier Printing Company
Wooster, Ohio.

LINOTYPE

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?

We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.

It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.

Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.

When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.

Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

THE TELEGRAM

now has the largest paid circulation in

CLARKSBURG, W. VA

13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday

guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by

The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

RALPH TURNQUIST DIES ON CANADA TRIP

Advertising Manager of Milwaukee Journal Stricken While Fishing with Fellow Executives—Well Known in Milwaukee

Ralph O. Turnquist, for the past six years advertising manager of the Milwaukee Journal, died in a hospital at Espanola, Ont., Monday.

About ten days previously Mr. Turnquist had accompanied a party of Journal executives who motored to the north woods for a fishing trip. He was taken ill on the following Thursday.

Ralph Turnquist

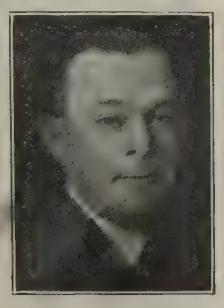
Mr. Turnquist, who had been a member of the Journal staff for about ten years, had been connected with the old Milwaukee Free Press, Minneapolis Journal and St. Paul Pioneer Press.

He was born in Minneapolis 42 years ago and was graduated from the school of law of the University of Minnesota. He was a member of the Delta Theta Phi legal fraternity and was one of a party of Delta Theta Phi members which went to Washington to initiate President Calvin Coolidge in 1924.

Mr. Turnquist was a member of the Milwaukee, Press, Athletic, Tripoli Country, Blue Mound Country and Rotary clubs. The funeral was held in Minneapolis.



Mr. Turnquist is survived by Mrs. Ella W. Turnquist, his mother, and Miss Myrtle Turnquist, his sister, of Minneapolis, and two brothers, Vern W. Turnquist of the St. Paul Pioneer Press and E. W. Turnquist of Vancouver, B. C.

McDONALD WITH ST. LOUIS STAR

Joiner St. Louis Times General Manager Named Business Manager

F. D. McDonald, until last week general manager of the St. Louis Times, has joined the St. Louis Star staff as business manager. The position is newly created, and there are no personal changes on the star.

For fourteen years before joining the Times, Mr. McDonald was general manager of the Dayton (O.) Journal-Herald and for many years was connected with the Scripps-Howard newspapers.

F. D. McDonald

Mr. McDonald is a native of Ohio, and has been in the newspaper business since 1892, when he began as an advertising solicitor with the Cleveland Press. While with the Scripps-Howard, he established the Akron Press, which was first published in Cleveland and then in Akron. He was with the Press for ten years.

In 1896, Mr. McDonald's duties with the Scripps-Howard organization brought him to St. Louis, where they operated the Chronicle, which passed out of existence about 1905. He also was connected at one time with the Clover Leaf group of papers as general manager of the Omaha News and later of the Duluth Star.

EDITORS TOUR COLORADO

State Editorial Association Holds Three Day Summer Meeting

One hundred and fifteen members of the Colorado Editorial Association began their midsummer meeting, Friday, July 23, at Alamosa, Colo. They chartered a special train from Denver, returning to their homes Sunday evening. Friday and Saturday, the party visited Monte Vista, Colo., and made an automobile tour of Wagon Wheel gap, Center and Creede, Colo., under direction of John F. Reardon, chairman of the transportation committee.

GAVIN TAKES CITY POST

N. Y. World Sports Editor Named Director of Accounts for Jersey City

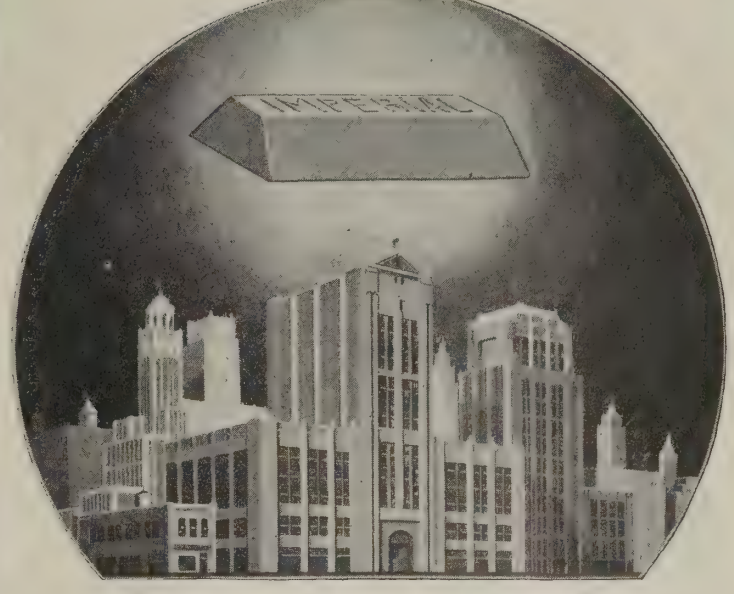
John H. Gavin, sports editor of the New York World has been appointed Deputy Commissioner of Revenue and Finance and Director of Accounts of Jersey City, N. J., by Mayor Frank Hague. The post pays $7,000 a year. Gavin succeeds J. F. Fitzpatrick who has been appointed secretary of state by Gov. A. H. Moore.

Mr. Gavin will take up his new duties Sept. 1. His successor on the World will not be named until that time.

UNION CONFERENCE CONTINUES

No Settlement Reached on New Contract for New York Compositors

Negotiations between the Publishers Association of New York and President James M. Lynch of the International Typographical Union and other I. T. U. officers regarding a new contract with the New York Union continued this week.



No settlement had been reached at the time EDITOR & PUBLISHER went to press.

PARK REAPPOINTS COMMITTEE

President John A. Park of the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association has reappointed the following Postal Committee: Col. Robert Ewing, chairman, New Orleans (La.) States; Maj. E. B. Stahlman, Nashville (Tenn.) Banner; Col. Urey Woodson, Owensboro (Ky.) Messenger; H. Galt Braxton, Kinston (N. C.) Free Press; E. K. Gaylord, Oklahoma City (Okla.) Oklahoman.

The New York Times combines in the metropolitan market the advantages of the largest circulation of any standard sized morning newspaper—average daily and Sunday in excess of 392,000—the largest circulation daily and average daily and Sunday in city and suburbs of any standard sized morning newspaper anywhere—the prestige of the unquestioned advertising leader—the strongest confidence of its readers—an advertising rate low by any comparison, and lowest of all when judged by actual results.

Imperial METAL

Thousands
Now Use The Plus Plan

IT'S a matter of pride with us that the Plus Plan is now in operation in thousands of newspaper plants. If you will recall the number of newspapers in this country and then consider that we are serving thousands of them, you will realize that the Plus Plan is rapidly becoming the standard practice for taking care of type metal.

This widespread use of the Plus Plan is based on its adaptability and reliability. It is used by the metropolitan newspaper and village weekly alike. It renders a definite, reliable and economical service to publishers. That's why it's so popular.

The Plus Plan was devised by type metal specialists after years of study and experimental work in an endeavor to find a definite system that would keep type metal in working condition at all times, thereby adding years of working life to the metal.

That this study was well worth while has been proved by the thousands of publishers who use the Plus Plan and stick to Imperial.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.
Manufacturing the following metals:
LINOTYPE MONOTYPE INTERTYPE STEREOTYPE
ELROD LUDLOW LINOGRAPH THOMPSON
Philadelphia Cleveland New York Chicago

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

El Paso Herald and Times Telling Public About Their Carriers—37,000 Attend Daily's Picnics—How New York Sun Promoted Vacation Subscriptions

THE El Paso (Tex.) Herald and Times take great pride in their carrier boys and want the public to know about them. To accomplish this a series of advertise-

No exaggeration or puffery in this series, but straightforward talk about carriers—their jobs and their ambitions.

ments has been run in liberal space under the general title "Meet Your Carrier."

The general excellence of the series is a result of the strict news treatment accorded the copy. The carriers are featured exclusively in pictures and text, while general circulation claims of the papers, advertising figures, and editorial "beats" are completely barred.

In the ads, which are run three columns by 10 inches, a picture of a carrier is prominently displayed. His name, age and home address are given, and the length of time he has served as a Herald and Times carrier. The accompanying illustration shows the style of the copy.

The "sympathy" note is entirely absent from the series, while the business training received by the boys is stressed in simple, straightforward style, of which the following excerpt is a good example:

"WORKING FOR A COLLEGE EDUCATION

"Willie Schreffler of 1318 North Brown Street, has been carrying Herald route number 94, for over a period of two years. Willie was 14 years old when he began delivering papers for THE HERALD. In this short period of business training he has saved over $600.00, made in profit off his route.

"His ambition is a college education and his paper business is going to put him through, and that, by the way, is the ambition of practically all our live, awake carriers.

"Handling money and meeting the public, gives a sense of responsibility, which everyone should have in his youth, that he may become accustomed to the daily routine, as he will find it necessary in the business world.

"OPPORTUNITY

"When asked what he would like to say about his route, Willie responded, 'I know of nothing that gives a boy such an opportunity for a business training as a Herald route. I have learned to save money, it has taught me to be thrifty—it keeps a boy occupied, which, by the way, keeps him off the streets and out of things he has no business being into.

"'A paper route helps you to make friends and none ever has too many friends. I have learned to be polite, and your success, as a carrier, depends largely upon your manners and treatment of your subscribers.'"

Then follows the paper's comment under the caption "YOUR BOYS:"

"There is really only one thing on which a boy can build his reputation. He may have a reputation for good service, for good manners, and all his other habits, but they must be backed by character. Character is the greatest asset in the world—the El Paso Times and Herald is assisting in the moulding of over 250 characters in its boy organization daily. Have you a boy—bring him down to the office and let us start him in on a business of which he can really call his own. Circulation Department, A. J. Biggar."

Commenting on the results achieved by this campaign, A. Cohen, circulation director of the papers, said:

"We have received much of favorable comment in connection with these articles. One of the outstanding results obtained already is the receipt of numerous applications for routes and boys coming from the best of families. Invariably we find that the boy who makes the greatest success is the boy whose parents primarily look to the best training he will receive and not the actual money profit on a route."

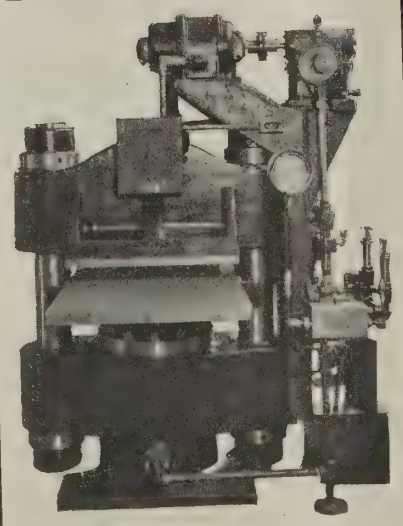
How the New York Sun used promotion copy to build summer vacation subscriptions was told this week by George Benneyan, manager of the promotion and research department of that newspaper.

Typical copy used by New York Sun in vigorous campaign for vacation subscriptions.

"The customary way for newspapers to go after summer vacation subscriptions is to frame a small ad, incorporating a coupon and to run it as a filler when ever space allows through the summer months," he said.

"Very seldom is there a definite campaign. Usually the same ad is used over and over again through the entire season. Oftentimes it gets into one or two of the less important editions of the day only. Frequently the insertions begin too late in the season—weeks after people have made their summer vacation plans. In many cases, the advertisements are unattractive in their appearance and unimpressive in their copy.

"Newspapers, as a rule, have been ignoring the summer vacation. They have been going after him in a half-hearted mechanical way—hardly considering him worth bothering with.



"The Sun has been using in rotation a series of 15 different advertisements calling the attention of its readers to the

HALF A STATE COMPLETELY COVERED
at one Combination Rate
EVENING COURIER MORNING POST
Two Great Newspapers—Published at Camden, N. J.
National Representatives
STORK, BROOKS & FINLEY

creating Impression!
nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.
The Plain Dealer
ONE Medium—ONE Cost ALONE Will sell it
J. B. Woodward 110 E. 42d St. New York
Woodward & Kelly 360 N. Mich. Ave. Chicago

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS
Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.
AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America
Buffalo—A Profitable Market for Advertisers
Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the
BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes
Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y.
Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia
Waterman Bldg. Boston

The Morning Telegraph
Is the giant influence on the Turf, in Society, Music, Theatre, Motion Picture and Finance, having the largest circulation of any Daily in the United States at a ten-cent Price.
Circulated in every State in the Union and the principal capitals of Europe. An exclusive market for its advertisers.
The Morning Telegraph
50th St. & 8th Ave., N. Y. City

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.
Member A. B. C.
URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

avantages of vacation-time subscriptions.
"The first advertisement appeared on lay 27—early enough to attract the rliest vacationer. From that date on ere has been an advertisement in the n nearly every day. The ads are small, e of them being three columns by 115 lies deep and the rest being two columns dth and varying in length from 95 to 15 lines.
"Each ad is given a good position, ually on page two or three or on the mmer Resort page. The advertise-nts are not treated as fillers. They pear usually in all editions of the day.
"A unique feature of the campaign is at each ad is addressed to those who ve a particular vacation land in mind. e titles are 'Are you going to Maine r your Vacation?' 'Are you going to nada for your Vacation?' 'Are you ing to the Jersey Coast for your Vaca-n?', etc. This specific appeal has the vantage of attracting the attention of t only those who have decided where go but also those who are still to make their minds and are therefore con-lering many different resorts.
"Each ad carries a large illustration owing a scene from the territory to hich the title is devoted. The copy in ch ad is simple and short.
"We cannot fairly judge the success of e campaign as yet. It is too early in e season in the first place. In the cond place, the weather has been so nseasonal this year that many people ve postponed their vacations—making difficult to compare vacation subscrip-ns this year with the same period of st year.
"The present campaign is the most ex-nsive which the Sun has conducted. e feel confident that the results will be tisfactory.
"We have devoted considerable time d space to these advertisements be-use we feel that summer vacation sub-riptions constitute a neglected field and ne which offers worthwhile returns.
"I don't believe that the average merican wants to stop reading news-apers during his vacation. Newspaper ading is too firmly established a habit ith him. I think that with a little effort e can be persuaded to have the paper he ads every day during the rest of the ar sent to him on his vacation.
"Vacation subscriptions offer news-pers an opportunity to cut down to some xtent the summer slump in circulation. addition, they build prestige, because e man who gets a paper from home is ually obliged to let several other people id it. And so hundreds of people from Chicago or Cleveland or Boston may read a New York newspaper for the first time i a summer resort."

The Burlington (Ia.) Hawk-Eye is eting summer circulation apathy with a "Thoro Readers" contest which has used unusual hot weather interest. ch week theater tickets are distributed t readers submitting the best answers to group of 10 questions based on news ories, advertisements, feature articles d local topics appearing in the Hawk-e during the week. The contest is a nday morning feature.

Four Virginia school teachers, winners prizes in the Richmond (Va.) News-eader's free summer tours campaign ring the spring and early summer, are Canada on a two weeks' tour at the pense of the paper.

Thirty-seven thousand persons attended the St. Louis Star's three picnics this year at Forest Park Highlands, local amusement garden, previous attendance records being broken at the third and last event held July 22 when 15,000 passed through the gates. The Star's annual series of picnics is for local youngsters, and the crowds accordingly included but a sprinkling of elders. A total of 14,000 attended the first picnic and 8,000 were on hand for the second. The attendance at the second picnic was reduced by rain.

Carrier boys of the Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch recently were given an exhibition by Hadji-Ali, "Egyptian Miracle Man," who appeared at the Lyric theater, in front of the Broad street office of the newspaper, through the courtesy of the theater.

Much interest has been aroused in Minnesota over the "Gopher Trail" series of articles run in the St. Paul Dispatch and Pioneer Press. A month ago the papers sent a reporter among Minnesota towns and villages to write a story of each. On arriving in a town, he usually visits the newspaper there, and from the editor gets a tip on what sort of an article would interest the townfolks most. Fully 90 per cent of these stories, including pictures, have been reproduced in the towns mentioned and so well did they take with the communities that the papers decided to give them a novel turn. Recently they invited the inhabitants to write their own "Gopher Trail" story for the Dispatch, offering $50 as a first prize.

W. M. Armour has been promoted from assistant to circulation manager of the San Antonio Express and Evening News, succeeding W. P. Allen, who resigned to become a stockholder in and general manager of the Laredo Daily Times, recently sold by the Penn Publishing Company to J. E. Hanway of Casper, Wy., and associates.

3. Omit nothing that is necessary, but do not waste words.
4. Telephone Main 0600 and ask for an Ad Taker. She will gladly assist you.

The Dallas News is running page one boxes to promote its want ads. A recent box was headed: "A Sound Investment For Your Savings" and stated that real estate, purchased through the classified columns was a safe, substantial investment. The promotion followed through with an eight column streamer head over the real estate offerings saying "Many Attractive Dallas Homes Are Advertised Here."

The first classified page carries as a promotion feature a one column cut showing the location of the uptown offices of the News and Journal at 112 Stone street.

The Halifax (Nova Scotia) Herald runs George Matthew Adams' daily editorial centered at the top of its first classified page to attract readers.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

H. J. Harrison, Coast Classified President, Started On New York Herald—New York Times Starts New Classification—Halifax Herald Using Adams' Editorial on Classified Page

H. J. HARRISON, classified advertising manager of the San Francisco Daily News, who was recently elected president of the Pacific Coast Classified Advertising Managers' Association, began newspaper work in 1908 as a counter boy for the old New York Herald. After learning the A. B. C.s of classified there, he joined the New York World, leaving this paper after a time to take a better position on the old Philadelphia North American.

H. J. HARRISON

"I was ambitious to see more of the country and so I worked successively on the New Orleans Times, St. Louis Post-Dispatch and the Spokane Spokesman-Review," he told EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

He remained with the latter paper five years, being advanced eventually to classified manager. On this paper he made what is believed to be a record by obtaining 110 new classified accounts in 110 consecutive working days.

Later he joined the Oakland (Cal.) Enquirer as classified manager, remaining there four years before joining the San Francisco Daily News four years ago.

Mr. Harrison is a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania.

"Horses and Equipment" is a new classified division in the New York Times. The department is run on Sundays only in the sports section, and carries advertisements from riding schools, of horses and ponies for sale, saddles and harness.

Four short paragraphs on "How to Write Better Classified Ads" were featured in the Seattle Star recently. The display ad instructed:
1. Never write hurriedly. The well-written classified ad gets results because it is complete.
2. Put yourself in the reader's place. Tell the facts YOU would wish to know if you were buying instead of selling.

Argentina's per capita wealth of $1,633 is the world's highest of Buenos Aires is bought daily by approximately one of every 40 persons in the entire republic. Your advertisement in La Prensa reaches the world's wealthiest (per capita) audience.

LA PRENSA

For Information and rates apply to

JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising Representative,
250 Park Avenue New York
"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

The Great Empire of The Southwest
is literally spending millions of dollars.
The thoughts, actions and habits of Southwesterners are influenced by their Weekly Newspapers
Our organization represents 325 weekly newspapers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, and we can furnish complete market information on this territory.
A letter to our Dallas office will bring you some very interesting figures.
The H. L. Grable Co.
"National Advertising Representatives of Weekly Newspapers"
TEXAS—OKLAHOMA—NEW MEXICO
NEW YORK, 25 East 26th St., Phone Ashland 9127
PHILADELPHIA, Widener Bldg., Phone Rittenhouse 9698
CHICAGO, 123 West Madison, Phone Central 3021
DALLAS, TEXAS, 606 Mercantile Bank Building

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION
An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.
S. P. WESTON
Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation
0 West 42nd Street New York

Regional Advertising
at Regional Rates
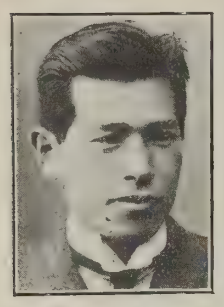
in
The Christian Science Monitor
An International Daily Newspaper
Publishing SELECTED ADVERTISING
ATLANTIC, CENTRAL and PACIFIC Editions
Rates and Circulation Data Supplied on Request
ADVERTISING OFFICES
Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, New York, London, Paris, Florence, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland
"Buy What You Can Use"



DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

first! in OHIO
11,492,383 Lines
Dispatch advertising record for the first six months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,665,911 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.
NET PAID CIRCULATION
CITY 55,812
SUBURBAN 26,973
COUNTRY 23,666
Total Daily Circulation.....166,451
Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

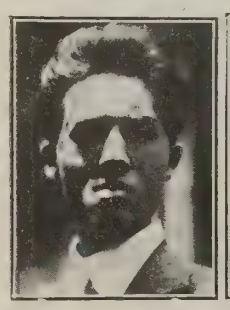
JAPANESE NEWS AGENCY SENDING TEN JOURNALISTS ON WORLD TOUR

Nippon Dempo Tsushin Sha Sponsoring Project in Honor of 25th Anniversary—Men Picked from Largest Dailies —All Under Thirty

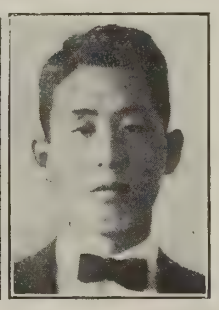
FOR the purpose of studying newspaper problems as they are met and solved in the United States and Europe, five Japanese newspaper men are soon to depart on journeys around the world. They are the first of ten working journalists who are to be sent on such journeys during the present year by Nippon Dempo Tsushin Sha, one of Japan's leading news and advertising agencies, which is sponsoring the project in commemoration of its twenty-fifth anniversary.

Toshihide Hara

The first five to leave Japan were selected by a committee representing most of the leading newspapers of the Empire.



Seife Katayama



Poshio Niho

They are Yoshihide Hara, Fukuoka Nichi-Nichi Shimbun; Seiji Katayama, Kobe Shimbun; Shu Sano, Tokio Hochi Shimbun; Toshio Niho, Tokio Kokumin Shimbun; Tomin Suzuki, formerly of the

Pomin Suzuki

Shu Saro

Osaka Asahi Shimbun but now with Nippon Dempo.

All five are men less than 30 years old, who were selected because the committee believed them to be specially qualified to observe methods of newspaper production abroad and bring back for the use of Japanese publishers reports which will be of value in efforts to eliminate waste and increase efficiency here. Each of the five speaks the language of at least one of the foreign countries to be visited and all of them possess a reading knowledge of English, which is studied by compulsion in all Japanese schools.

Hara and Katayama, two members of the first group to be selected, are to sail from Yokohama on the Taiyu Maru Aug. 4 and are to arrive at San Francisco, Aug. 23. They intend to go from San Francisco directly to Chicago and, after a few days in the Illinois metropolis, will proceed to New York, which is to be their headquarters during a visit of several months in America.

Suzuki and Niho are to go first to Europe, travelling through Siberia and Russia. Their first stop will be Berlin, where they are to spend several weeks. Later they will visit other European capitals before sailing for America.

Sano, the fifth member of the group, is from the mechanical department of the Tokio Hochi Shimbun and is the only one among the five who is not a representative of the editorial rooms. It is expected that the advertising and business offices will be represented among the second group of five to be selected later this year. Sano is to travel alone, sailing from Kobe for Marseilles, visiting France, Germany and England and later going to the United States.

It is practically certain that Suzuki and Niho will attend the Geneva sessions of the Press Congress of the World.

The fine spirit of public service displayed by Nippon Dempo in choosing this means of celebrating their 25 years of existence has aroused the great admiration of the press of Japan. H. Mitsunaga, president of Nippon Dempo, was the host early in July at a reception for the five travelers. On this occasion many of the Empire's leading public men praised the project and the vision which had inspired its sponsors.

BENNETT'S STORIES IN BOOKLET

The booklet containing the Chicago Tribune stories of James O'Donnell Bennett on the Eucharistic Congress, held here June 20-24, has already gone into the second edition. Five thousand copies comprised the first edition, and 10,000 more have been placed on sale at the Tribune's Public Service Bureau. The booklet is priced at 15 cents, is profusely illustrated and is fittingly bound in a cardinal red jacket.

Editor & Publisher's classified ads do business quickly.

TO ENTER DAILY FIELD

Edward S. Tike, owner of the Warren (O.) Western Reserve Democrat, has sold a half interest to W. W. Major of Chicago, former city editor of the Chicago Evening American and L. C. Martin of Oshkosh, Wis., advertising man. At the same time application was made for an Ohio charter for the Warren News Company, with a capital of $62,000. The publication, now a weekly, is to be made into a daily.

SCRANTON SUN PLANT NEARS COMPLETION

Afternoon Daily Will Start Latter Part of August—Backed by Local Business Men—Pattison Is General Manager

Scranton, Pa., July 28.—The Hoe sextuple press which is to be a part of the equipment of the Scranton Sun, new afternoon daily, arrived here this week. Other machinery purchased is also in the city and within two weeks or so it is expected that most of it will be installed, permitting the Sun to appear the latter part of August. The plant is to be located in a 3-story building at 314-316 Adams avenue, which is being remodeled. The Sun, an independent Republican paper, has the following directors: W. F. Hallstead, President; T. J. Duffy, secretary; W. J. Pattison, Mark Edgar and Bernard L. Connell.

The company is to start with $200,000 in preferred stock and 2,000 shares of common stock with no par value. Mr. Pattison will be general manager, Mr. Edgar, editor, and Mr. Duffy, advertising manager. W. H. Ward, formerly of Buffalo, has been named circulation manager. Mr. Hallstead, a young capitalist interested in banking and public service corporations, in addition to serving as president of the publishing company, will head the business department of the paper and edit a special column, it is announced.

Among other stockholders are Mortimer B. Fuller, president of the International Salt Company; Ralph A. Amerman of the Lincoln Trust Company and some eight or ten other prominent local men.

John E. Schanz, formerly city editor of the Reading Tribune, is one of a number of out of town news men engaged for the Sun's local staff. The paper will start with a battery of 8 or 10 linotypes, a Ludlow and a monotype.

A letter to every home in the community, full page ads in the local papers and 200 solicitors on a straight commission basis are being used in the preliminary subscription campaign.

Messrs. Pattison and Duffy were formerly connected with the Scranton Republican and the former was also a one time publisher of the New York Evening Post.

You can't run a shoe store without shoes—or succeed with a classified medium that isn't really classified.

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building Philadelphia

IN some cities, the "leading" newspaper may have merely a few hundred more circulation than its competitor. The Press has 40,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two evening newspapers combined—and 35,000 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than the other two Sunday newspapers combined.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS
A Scripps-Howard Newspaper
Member of the A. B. C.

FLORIDA
continues to be the fastest growing state in the Union.

TAMPA
is the recognized industrial center and the most substantial city in Florida.

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE
is the only morning and the only Sunday newspaper in Tampa, covering the entire rich, productive and populous territory of Southwest Florida, reaching a population of 713,943.

200,000 Daily Readers.
300,000 Sunday Readers.

Represented nationally by
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency.

SERVICE
THE CHARLES PARTLOWE COMPANY
America's Largest Circulation Building Organization
-RESULTS COUNT-
6th Floor Occidental Bld.
INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration
The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.
The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.
N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

NEW FIELDS FOR COLUMBIA SCHOOL

(Continued from page 12)

ien classes, who have been out at work, stablished an influential and vital re-ltionship with the American press.

"The increase already noted in the umber of graduate students encourages rther development of the courses of-red for the degree of Master of Science. In the coming year the school ill give an additional course in the udy of editorial problems and policies. he work in literary and dramatic criti-m given by Prof. Will is to be divided.

"Prof. Will will give a graduate course literary criticism and book review-g running throughout the year, and rof. Joseph Wood Krutch, Ph.D., will ve a course in dramatic criticism in e winter and spring sessions.

"A course in industrial and trade urnalism will be given in the winter ssion by Chaplin Tyler, M.S., assistant itor of Chemical and Metallurgical En-neering. This course has been arranged co-operation with the McGraw-Hill ompany, which, after experience with school for junior employees of trade d technical publications successfully nducted by publishers themselves, has ached the conclusion that in the long n such instruction can be more satis-ctorily afforded by a university. The mpany is offering encouragement to e junior members of the staffs of its veral periodicals to attend courses at e school, and it is expected that the ief editors of these publications will pplement the general work given by r. Tyler, with lectures and instruction rected to specific requirements in the fferent fields of industrial journalism. course in scientific and technical urnalism is also in process of arrange-ent for next year.

"This expansion of advanced teaching mes to meet a clearly observed demand the part of students, and is called r by the rapid spread of the more ementary teaching of journalism in the lleges and even secondary schools.

"That question is no longer debatable. "Schools in all parts of the country e more or less efficiently giving initial struction in the technique of news thering and news-writing. A smaller mber are insisting on a broad cultural eparation for newspaper work. The ore prevalent the notion that a smatter-g of technical dexterity may be made serve as an entrance to journalism, e more imperative it is that the Co-mbia School of Journalism should con-rn itself, not merely with making re-rters, but with offering a broad cul-re, and opportunities for research and ecial study directed to enable students meet with knowledge and power the ofessional and community problems of increasingly complicated society. They ust be equipped for the practical work their calling, but also with that some-ing beyond that marks cultured leader-ip in a profession.

"From the beginning the Columbia hool of Journalism has firmly adhered the ideal of laying deep foundations professional leadership. Joseph Pul-er when making plans for the school s looking, not to turning out skil-newspaper journeymen, but to developing a body of intelligent, conscientious statesmen. His purpose was a social one. In furtherance of that purpose the school has devoted itself to training for the editorial staff. That must remain permanently its chief aim; for chronicle and comment, not circulation or advertising, are the vital elements of journalism. Nevertheless, with the increasing number of newspaper workers who have received some technical training in a school of journalism, there has come a demand for more advanced study, not only along editorial lines, but also into questions of newspaper management.

"Students seek light on advertising and circulation methods. They wish to acquire a correct taste in the art of typography, and to know something of mechanical operations and costs, which it may become their duty to supervise. This is especially the case with those men and women whose ambition is directed to the ownership of small papers. Mr. Pulitzer's endowment naturally made no provision for such teaching. In his day the opportunity for it could hardly have been foreseen; and if he had foreseen it, he would still rightly have concentrated his efforts on editorial education for the support of high standards and professional spirit in journalism.

"The aim of the proposed teaching is as far as possible removed from that of the business course in salesmanship, or the trade school course in printing; and for that reason it belongs in the professional school of journalism itself. Its purpose is not to make advertising men, or printers, but to help the editors to be the masters rather than the servants in journalism. Instead of being a departure from Mr. Pulitzer's ideal, it is a development of that ideal to meet the new conditions that appear with the firm establishment of journalism as a department of university instruction.

"One of the great needs of this country today is the strengthening and improvement of its rural and small town newspapers. We are swayed too much by the great standardized journals dealing with things from the point of view of mass circulation. Prosperous, intelligent, independent, forward-looking, enterprising small papers are wanted to give voice to autonomous communities and foster—if not indeed in some measure restore—that intellectual self-dependence that lies at the foundation of safe popular government. The editors of such papers must be more than writers. They must, like the old journeymen printers, like Franklin, Greeley and Weed, who were leaders of American journalism, be masters of the whole enterprise of newspaper making. The school has already turned out some men and women who are doing this work, and in the broadening of such teaching an opportunity of significance for American journalism and American life is before it. It should also offer facilities for special research into questions both of editorial and business policy to students and persons already experienced in journalism who want preparation for high executive positions, or for the supervision of their own newspapers. Journalism to be independent must be successful, and the editor who thoroughly understands all phases of his paper's problem is the independent editor.

"In a recent letter to the writer, commenting on some remarks about such teaching, Dr. Louis Wiley, business manager of the New York Times, said:

" 'Publishers of metropolitan as well as small city newspapers should welcome any attempt by you to train students in managerial problems. It is from the training school of the smaller city papers that the metropolitan journals will probably always continue to draw a large proportion of their executive staffs. The breadth of experience obtained in such offices is a valuable foundation. As for the nation's need of strong, independent local newspapers, there can be no argument. You will be making a real contribution to our national life in serving the smaller cities' newspapers. I am aware that you cannot, under the terms of Mr. Pulitzer's bequest, pay the expenses of any business office training. But it is important that the journalism students should have some insight into the problems of the managerial side of the newspaper, business and mechanical.'

"However desirable such training may be, it cannot be undertaken on any satisfactory basis by the school with its present resources. Occasional free lectures by public-spirited experts, though interesting and instructive, cannot take the place of regular, systematic study. Neither can advantage be taken by the school with its present endowment of the chance to make here, at the newspaper center of the continent, a research department and clearing house to deal with new problems of newspaper method, such as changing technique, or economic or social developments that may alter the habits of the reading public and force newspaper transformations. These are of interest to every newspaper, but they are difficult to appraise from inside a newspaper office and are generally beyond the scope of any single newspaper's study. At present the school has before it the suggestion of a public organization that it, because of its combination of impartiality with knowledge of newspapers, should undertake a study of crime news and the possible effect of different ways of publishing it in stimulating crime. For these purposes of advanced teaching and research an additional income of not less than $25,000 a year could profitably be used. If Mr. Pulitzer's great bequest could be supplemented to that extent, an important work might be done, not only in opening new opportunities to students, and in supplying larger needs of newspapers, but in strengthening the influence of independent, highly trained editorship over the press of the country, urban as well as rural. Such an adventure may make an appeal as at once a professional and a patriotic service."

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service

Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.

Six Pages Daily
Illustrations in Mat Form

Write or wire for samples, price and territory.

Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

RADIO PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service

Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original

Most Artistic and Finest

blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

The Significance of Department Store Advertising

There is no greater test of the selling power of a newspaper than the volume of Department Store advertising it publishes. Advertisers in all lines who want to develop the New York market should remember that the Department Stores of New York use more space in The Sun than in any other newspaper—seven day morning or six day evening.

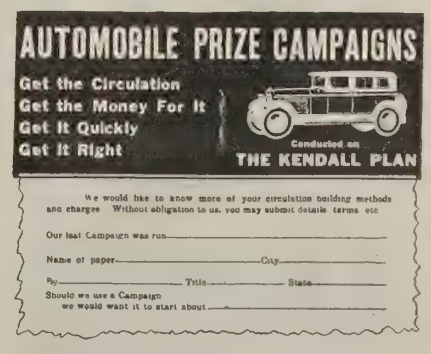
Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series

Chicago Journal
Detroit News
Toledo Blade
Omaha Bee
Peoria Star Journal
Philadelphia Sun
Buffalo Times
Louisville Courier J'l
Oakland Post Enquirer
Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript

Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory

COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY

Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager



COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS

International News Service

"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"

63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?

Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,

W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

MASONIC GROUP CELEBRATES

Fourth Estate Square Club of Philadelphia Is Two Years Old

The Fourth Estate Square Club, of Philadelphia, said to be the first newspapermen's Masonic club to be organized in this country, will celebrate its second anniversary all next week. An eleborate program has been arranged by William Young, president of Typographical Union No. 2, and president of the club, which includes the setting aside of a special day at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition.

The club was founded by George J. Zacharias, police reporter of the Evening Public Ledger, and Charles B. Reed, mechanical superintendent of Curtis-Martin publications. It now has a membership of 200 which includes Masonic newspapermen, publishers, circulation men and composing room men as well as men who formerly were in the newspaper business.

Mayor Samuel Turner, former owner of the Chester (Pa.) Times is a vice-president.

Jacob Ginsburg, editor and publisher of the Jewish World, daily, and C. C. A. Baldi, publisher of the L'Opinione, an Italian daily, also are vice-presidents.

Frank Hickey, managing editor of the Chester Times is one of the board of trustees.

William Rocap, sporting editor of the Atlantic City (N. J.) Times; Ted Von Ziekursch, sporting editor, Philadelphia Daily News; Charles Duke, Sunday editor, Public Ledger; George Seltzer, assistant city editor, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, and Lee Solomon, political reporter, Philadelphia Inquirer are directors.

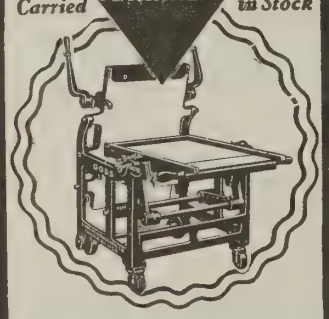
Mr. Ramsey recently visited Chicago and began the organization of a similar club of Masonic newspapermen in that city. Another club has been organized among employees of the New York World.

ISSUES ENGLISH SUPPLEMENT

Asahi Publishing Company, publishers of the Tokio and Osaka Asahi, has just issued a special English supplement of 140 pages on industrial and commercial conditions in present-day Japan. The edition has a handsome lithographed cover and is profusely illustrated throughout.

The number containing highly informative articles by well-known Japanese authorities.



Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE
PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

FOR BETTER PRINTING use
Herrick Inks
Cost more. Worth it.
No substitutes. Made from the best materials.
Specializing to requirements of each pressroom.
Ask the Publishers who use them.
WM. C. HERRICK INK CO., INC.
401 West 33rd Street
New York City
Factory: Rutherford, N. J.

THE MARGACH
FEEDER
for Linotype, Intertype, Monotype, Ludlow, and Elrod machines
$75.00 each
Further inquiries may be directed to the N. Y. Times — Phila. Bulletin
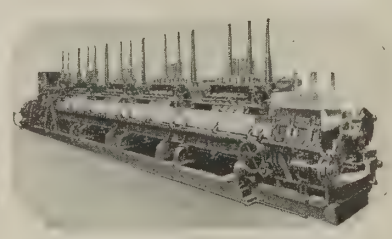
Chicago Tribune — Boston Herald or several hundred other publishers upon request.
Margach Mfg. Co., Inc.
211-215 Centre St., New York



PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World"
For large and small plants
Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.
Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.
CUTLER-HAMMER

GOSS
STEREOTYPING MACHINERY
Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money
Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.
MONOMELT
SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Modern
Composing Room Furniture
as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.
Do it now!
HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES
Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses
GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.
HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.
DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.
Available For Early Delivery
WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Blo

Halvorsen Newspaper Stuffing Machines are now being used by many of the leading newspapers from coast to coast and border border. In one plant the machine has saved one-fifth of its cost in six months. Papers can be delivered in better condition to distributors and to the readers.
After a thorough investigation you will want to invest
Write for full particulars
NONPAREL MACHINE COMPANY
36 S Throop Street, Chicago

The Quickest and Best Casting Unit
Hoe Stereotype Furnace with Hoe Equipoise Curved Casting Moulds and Pumps.

If it's a Hoe, It's the Best
R. HOE & CO., INC.
504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.
also at DUNELLEN, N. J
7 Water Street, BOSTON, MASS.

RESULTS
Are responsible for the high quality of Equipment Advertising appearing in every issue of
EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Employment—Equipment—Services

...ITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
2 Times — .35 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

...e space charge at same rate per line per ...ion as earned by frequency of insertion. ...eal rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. ...e Editor & Publisher reserves the right to ...ify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

...rtising Promotion—If you want more ...ess, communicate with the International ...cations Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, ...Broadway, New York City.

...thing Entirely New. Individual comic ... ad strip for your classified ad pages. ...ly, semi-weekly, daily. Write for samples ...ost, etc. Guido D. Janes Service, Quincy, ...

...SINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

... Opportunity in California—Daily in ex...ve field, average annual business last six ... over $44,000. Very satisfactory net re...t. Plant invoices $21,000. Offered at $35,000; ...s $15,000 down. Prop. 1476x. The H. F. ...ichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

...y Seat, Exclusive Field, Virginia weekly ...dob plant well established; good circulation; ...ng good dividends; plant will inventory ...0; price to quick buyer $12,000, half cash. ... Shale, Times Bldg., New York.

Newspapers Wanted

... Wanted in small city, with future, by ...r and a business manager. P. O. Box 382, ...n Bay, Wis.

...Hunt for the One Owner or Publisher is ...on. See Editor & Publisher of July 17, ... under "Newspapers Wanted." My ad ... alone. A-659, Editor & Publisher.

Printing

... Available for use of any kind of news...r, complete modern newspaper plant. Will ...outright or make arrangements long time ...act for printing of publication. Address ... Box 28, El Paso, Texas.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

...rculation—When quick, additional circulation ...vage becomes necessary, remember that our ...ty years in this one line of endeavor is ... proof against experimenting. Write or ...r Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell ...o., Cincinnati, Ohio.

...r lation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cen...e ve., Reading, Penn. Originators of Sales...a hip Club Campaigns.

... Circulation—Try our "Opportunity Club" ...a Sherman & Eckert, 353 Northampton ...rt, Easton, Penna.

...h Canton Ohio Daily News is producing ...rculation of quality and at an extremely low ...s through our plan. Certain fields covered ...ut cost. Write us today. The Albright ...n Co., Palmyra, N. J.

Equipment

...e paper Display Racks—The Steel Co., Box ...3 Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

...on, New York, Daily Star and Lorain, ...h Times Herald are the new customers this ...ek. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date ...rice, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City ...a Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Brainy, Energetic, Young Advertising Man with selling ideas, wanted to develop department on daily newspaper in growing western city of 20,000. Would also have direction printing sales fine plant. If applicant acceptable and desires, may acquire interest, though not necessary. If ambitious and equipped, this presents fine opportunity. A-686, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager wanted for weekly; Northern Ohio. State experience and salary wanted. Save stamps if your record as a producer is not A No. 1. Excellent prospects. Address Publisher, 5700 Train Ave., Cleveland, O.

Experienced Magazine Man Wanted to take complete charge poultry publication, 40,000 circulation, and invest $5,000, for substantial interest. Position will pay good salary. A man of editorial experience preferred. Give full particulars in first letter. G. M. DeMent, Montgomery, Alabama.

If Capable of Making Survey of newspaper mechanical departments you may acquire interest. A-687, Editor & Publisher.

Live Wire, Capable, experienced newspaper man wanted to invest some capital and his services in A-1 newspaper proposition in El Paso, Texas. Full details first letter. P. O. Box 28, El Paso, Texas.

Re-Write Man and Copy Reader wanted. Must have reference. State salary desired. Courier-News, Plainfield, New Jersey.

Salesman who can sell a business service to represent an old established daily paper in Philadelphia and New York, on a commission basis. Must be able to meet and sell business executives. In answering, state age and past experience. References required. A-680, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager, with fifteen years' successful record as organizer and producer, wants to connect with live organization where intensive effort and results will justify permanent connection and assure future. Experienced large and small cities. Prefer second or third paper where initiative and thorough knowledge of all classes of newspaper advertising are essential to success. Young, married. Write for complete record and interview. A-691, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Classified Manager, now employed. National and local accounts, soliciting, out of town, etc. Over 12 years with metropolitan newspapers. Experienced magazine man, soliciting, promotion, publicity, merchandising. Seasoned go-getter. An individual a busy publisher and executive could rely upon. Excellent credentials. A-696, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Salesman, age 35, experienced local, national and special page newspaper advertising, desires permanent connection. Prefer special page selling on salary and commission basis. References. A-688, Editor & Publisher.

Assistant to Copy Man or in advertising department of newspaper or advertiser; or with advertising agency. Young man with four years' experience desires position with opportunity for advancement. B-662, Editor & Publisher.

Boxing Writer—Have you an "Honest" boxing writer, not on any "list," who writes truthfully what he sees, learns, and believes, on your staff? One such awaits your call. Confidentially. A-697, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager—Complete, well-rounded newspaper experience; 4½ years present position, gain over 50% advertising income; nearly 20% increase circulation. Prefer city 20,000 to 75,000. Age, 35 years, college graduate, married, two children. A-674, Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher, now employed, seeks change. Experienced in accounting, classified and display advertising, circulation and all branches of newspaper work. Familiar with large and small cities. A-680, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation, Promotion, Business Manager, with excellent record on New York City daily newspapers; at present employed, desires to make connections in New York City with any size paper in field of promotion or improvement in any departments. A-675, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Man, young, experienced, seeks position. Roadman, crew manager, promotion. A-644, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager on newspaper of 40,000 desires a better connection as circulation manager or assistant; 25 years' newspaper circulation experience. Can furnish recommendation from past and present employers. A-689, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Man, young, ideas. Wants position in city over 25,000. Well worth inquiry. A-681, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Circulation Manager wants change. Practical experience in all branches of the work. Served in every position from carrier boy to circulation manager. City circulation manager of Northwest's greatest paper for four years. Circulation manager of large Central States Evening paper for four years. Best of references. Now employed. Address A-685, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager Wishes Change. Experience in all lines of circulation. Have a very good record; first class reference. Good reason for leaving. Married. Willing to come for interview at my expense. Prefer Middle or Eastern States. A-683, Editor & Publisher.

City, Telegraph or News Editor, now employed as News Editor with important eastern paper. Fast, accurate copy reader, head writer and makeup man. Desire connection with Southern daily. References, present and former employers. A-692, Editor & Publisher.

Copy Reader seeks position. Experience, reporting, re-write and copy desk. Available at once. A-693, Editor & Publisher.

Editor or Managing Editor for a country weekly. Young, married, wide awake, has new ideas, knows what the people want. Will locate anywhere; can build up paper. Hard worker and has had experience. Excellent references. Albert R. Beatty. P. O. Box 72, Washington, New Jersey.

Editor or Managing Editor—Want permanent connection with daily afternoon paper in South. Now employed in responsible position with morning paper in Northern city of 70,000. Recently given promotion by present employer, and only reason for change is desire to return to native section. If you contemplate change this year, communicate with me. Best of references. Am willing to sign contract. A-682, Editor & Publisher.

Editor desires position country weekly; preferably New England or New York State. Experienced. Sam J. Banks, General Delivery, Cambridge, Mass.

Editor - Engineer—Will edit house organ, assist in the getting up of descriptive matter, write reports, booklets, or proofread. Three and a-half years' experience in editing department of magazine, and electrical engineer by profession. A-648, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, City Desk and Feature Experience; capable in make-up, magazine direction; age thirty-four, married; on this job six years; trained in business management; credentials of the best; write A-695, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer; also syndicated features; considerable sold fiction—traveled, mature, married, dependable. Seeks change. A-642, Editor & Publisher.

Expert Promotion Man, 43, with record of achievement, knowledge of human nature, indomitable will to succeed, seeks position. Circulation Manager or Promotion Manager anywhere. Not a cheap man, but a good one. A-657, Editor & Publisher.

Financial Editor—Ten years' experience; college education; 3 years' professional training in banking and finance; able economist; wide knowledge of business; age 36; able writer. Will make page vital, interesting, authoritative and profitable. Prefer small city. Address Apmt. 401, 5601 Blackstone Ave., Chicago.

Foreman of Composing Room will be open for position about September first. Best of references as to character, ability and loyalty furnished. Address A-694, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor, 15 years' successful experience. Age 35, college graduate. Open for offer August 1. Metropolitan and small town experience. Capable executive, forceful writer, news and make up expert. Prefer daily in town of 20,000 to 200,000 where there is opportunity to build future for myself and paper. A-654, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—28, employed for last five years Sunday, telegraph and makeup editor on metropolitan dailies, desires similar position with wider scope of responsibility and opportunity. Would consider executive place on smaller daily. Salary must be adequate, but is secondary consideration. Am prepared to remain in present position until suitable opportunity is offered. B-666, Editor & Publisher.

Pressroom Superintendent with several years experience in charge of metropolitan papers with large circulation, would like to make permanent connection with publisher who desires a well printed newspaper. Will furnish good references as to character and ability. A-676, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Young woman, university graduate with 3 years' newspaper experience desires reporting position in city of 500,000 or over. Excellent references. A-650, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Duplex Tubular Printing Press, 16-page, for sale. Due to purchase of Journal by Sun, this fine machine will be released about July 10. Prints modern column paper any size up to 16 pages including 14 pages in perfect condition. Specimens of work sent. Also other newspaper machinery, including Hoe Saw & Trimmer, Hoe Mat Rolling Machine now used on dry mats, Proof presses, etc. For prices and terms, address Lewiston Daily Sun, Lewiston, Me.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Duplex 8-page flatbed angle-bar press, complete, with 16 chases, for sale; in good condition; also Model C Intertype and Model 5 Linotype. Times, Okmulgee, Okla.

Goss Straightline Press, two four-page, with complete stereotype equipment, all in fine condition. Current issues sent. Cheap for immediate sale. The Lima Morning Star, Lima, Ohio.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT
Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Go-Getters—

We have a number of them on a preferred list.

Mr. Publisher, let us put you in touch with a live wire who will "pep" up the department that you realize is slipping a trifle. Write to the Classified department of

Editor & Publisher

DOLLAR $$ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

MOST small town banks only advertise savings accounts and safety deposit boxes. A Huntington, Ind., bank, however, has organized an insurance department with one of the town's agents as its head. Then they advertise automobile, life, accident, etc., insurance over the agent's name as head of the bank's insurance department. It builds up quite a good insurance business and wins the bank many new customers. And it means another steady advertiser for you!—Ralph Gibler, Huntington, Ind.

Get after the local merchants to get their share of the business available about the last of August in outfitting children for school. Many families run into the larger cities for this buying, but usually because the local goods aren't widely enough advertised. Advise the stores to get in early on this business.—R. M. C., Lowell, Mass.

Some persons can express the same thought in a telegram in much fewer words than others. Realizing this, The Morning Journal requires all telegrams to be checked by a "dispatcher" in each department before they are sent to the telegraph office. The "dispatchers" are selected with a view to their qualifications for properly "boiling" telegrams. Since the plan was first placed in effect, it has saved several hundred dollars and speeded service, the management believes.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

A page headed "Who Buys Used Cars?" divided into equal sized advertisements, the owner of the automobile firm having his picture in the space and each space being the answer to this question. One firm says, "The Best People Buy Used Cars"; another, "Mother—she drives the children to school, etc."; another, "The Average Man," and, still another, "Wise People Buy Used Cars." The Evening Mail, Halifax, made a very attractive looking page with this form of advertising recently.—V. G. Dawson, Halifax.

You probably have a cleaner, coal dealer, dairy or some other advertiser who is always looking for a new idea. These men probably receive most of their business over the telephone and naturally want to impress their telephone number on the minds of their customers. Lay out an advertisement and have the telephone number in various sizes of types from 8 point to 72 or 120 point. The more times it appears, the better. At the bottom use this wording: "What is it?—That's our telephone number. Remember it. Blank—the Cleaner."—Donald O. Ross, Washington, Iowa.

Is there a grocer in your city who makes his own mayonnaise salad dressing, 1000 island dressing, peanut butter? A grocer in Huntington, Ind., uses small space—two-inch double column—several times a week to advertise his salad dressings. It not only brings him more salad dressing sales, but increases the number of his steady customers. And it's a good way for you to start a non-advertiser into a regular advertiser. Look around for such a grocer, and get him to try this.—Ralph Gibler, Huntington, Ind.

A paper in Pasco, Wash., is running co-operative "Buy Across the Counter" ads, emphasizing the reasons why people should trade in their home town stores.—A. N.

If there is a music store in your city which offers free lessons on various musical instruments to purchasers of such instruments, get the store to make a special drive for the purpose of obtaining more pupils and get the store to put on this drive by means of using big advertising space in your paper.—F. H. Williams.

The Seattle Times recently had a very attractive, timely page called "Outings—Where to Go and How to Get There." The boxed, feature head, with outings standing alone on the first line, was large enough and black enough to stand out distinctly. A large cut, at the top and center, was flanked on one side by a story of the place where the picture was taken. And on the other by appropriate reading matter, calculated to entice the vacationer. It was a very profitable looking page with its variety of advertising. For the Times had obtained ads from many camping grounds, bus lines, summer resorts, parks, ferry services, railroad companies and steampship companies.—M. L. F., Seattle.

Try this, you newspapers that have been established 50, 75 or 100 years: Issue an anniversary special edition, including with each copy of the regular paper a 4-page insert showing a replica of the first page that number of years ago, and filling the other three pages of the insert with advertisements of long-established firms, listed in the chronological order of their entry into business. Let these "ads" be, in the main historical, and lead off with two or three that have been doing business ever since, or even before the newspaper was started. Where this has been tried with sufficiently tactful and intelligent handling, it has "gone over big." The insert folder makes a souvenir well worth keeping.—S. A. W.

"If you had (?) $ where would yo go for a vacation?" Use this for a su ject and start a prize competition offe ing say $5 for the best daily letter a $10 for the best weekly letter. You a sure to start up quite a bit of intere and get some real material as well.—C. Pellissier, Boston, Mass.

For some time, each Sunday the Dall Morning News ran a page devoted to t origin of names of villages and towns the newspaper's territory, together wi a short history of the places. Seve towns were covered in each Sunday e tion and the plan served to create fav able interest in the places mentioned. Ruel McDaniel.

The Provo (Utah) Evening Hera has started a tiny feature called "Ho Hoo In Utah County." There is photo of some prominent man in the t ritory covered by the paper and his sto is told in clever rhymes written as pro —Fred L. W. Bennett.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

FOREIGN consuls, generally overlooked in beat assignments, offer dozens of good feature stories if the right kind of reporter goes after them. In many cities this offers a chance fo stuff that is sure to be exclusive.—C. M. M. Paterson (N. J.) Morning Call.

Perhaps this is an old one, anyway it has been worked by the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times for many months and has stimulated widespread interest among readers, especially women. Daily, a small amount of space on the women's page is devoted to "Twenty Years Ago in Denver Society."—M.S.M.

A half-column box of "Where to Go" and "What to Do" is specially arranged and published by the Vancouver (B. C.) Sun, to be clipped from paper and recommended to be kept in office for casual visitors or friends. It lists trips by water, motor, rail, hiking trips to near-by places, bathing beaches, theatres, amusements and club luncheons.—C. M. L.

Vacationists are glad to tell of their trips on their return and many have interesting experiences to relate. These may be obtained by interviews or by conducting contests.—Yandell C. Cline, Columbus (Ind.) Republican.

How To Play GOLF

By JOHNNY FARRELL

Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS

Illustrated

For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.

New York City

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.

Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Says Frank Sullivan in The New York World—

"Ring Lardner is the author of the funniest piece that has appeared in any newspaper in Lord knows when . . ."

He is referring to one of the chapters in Lardner's autobiography—why don't you buy this splendid weekly service?

The Bell Syndicate, Inc

JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.

154 Nassau St. New York City

Traveling with Gillilan

A series of letters by this well-known humorist, covering a six weeks' trip to Europe—illustrated with sketches by the author.

The International Syndicate

Baltimore, Md.

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS

World Building New York

Let Us Tell You

—about our plan of securing advertising from manufacturers, industrial plants, jobbers, wholesalers and other concerns in your city who are now spending their appropriations for other forms of advertising.

Let us explain how we can place this business in your paper regularly without selling expense to you. WRITE—

THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.

COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER

MEMPHIS . . . TENN.

"Soch a Life"

By J. L. LEIBSON

A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in

One Thousand Word Stories

Illustrated by the well known artist

ALBERT LEVERING

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate

373 Fourth Avenue, New York

The Nation's Major Market—

No list is complete without New York. In fact many national advertisers start their campaigns with New York at the top.

New York is the Major Market of the country. It has the greatest population. It is first in industry. It is first in commerce, both domestic and export. In the number of large retail and wholesale jobbing centers, it is unsurpassed.

New York is the one market that you cannot afford to ignore if your product is meritorious.

The papers listed below are ready to pave the way for the sale of your product. They give service in merchandising and distribution which will help to place your goods in the hands of the jobbers and retailers.

Write for complete details

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News (E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat (E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen (E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	84,997	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express (M)	116,000	.22	.22
 Buffalo Courier-Express (S)	165,000	.30	.30
Buffalo Evening News (E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	100,393	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	104,076	.21	.21
††Corning Evening Leader (E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser (E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review (E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times (E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican (E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News (E)	7,751	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post (M)	11,722	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press (E)	7,127	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	10,437	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News (E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star (E)	8,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York (E)	257,067	.60	.56
New York Times (M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times (S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune (S)	345,484	.693	.672
††New York World (M)	287,682	.595	.58
††New York World (S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World (E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	20,629	.07	.07
Port Chester Item (E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise (E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union (E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal (E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record (M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Standard (E)	17,617	.07	.07
Watertown Times (E)	17,334	.08	.08

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
 Merged as Buffalo Courier-Express, June 14, 1926.

Jack Loses His Job

YOU all knew Jack.

He could mend a trace with a piece of hay-wire, write the speech of welcome to the visiting firemen, stop a case of hiccoughs and give first aid to the frozen water pipe till the plumber came.

But good, old Jack, Jack-of-all-Trades, has lost his job. There is no place for him in a modern business, less on a modern newspaper. Along with old General Utility, he's been retired.

One job, well done, is the maxim of the age of specialization and specialization is the keynote of The Consolidated Press Association.

Stuart P. West: a specialist in finance, with twenty-five years of watching Wall Street, no fires to cover, no soubrettes to interview.

Lawrence Perry: a specialist in sports, rubbing elbows in the training quarters, close to the muddy moleskins and dripping jerseys.

J. C. Royle: a specialist in business, schooled where the human engines hum and among the men who give the orders, working with business men, talking to business men, writing for business men.

David Lawrence: a specialist in National Affairs, student of political economy, government and international law, confidant of official and diplomatic Washington, accepted as an authority throughout America.

John B. Foster: a specialist in baseball, historian of the game, author of the official guide, one time executive and constant counselor to the managers, the owners, the players and the fans.

Robert T. Small: a specialist in the picture story, star-reporter in half a dozen of the greatest enterprises of American journalism, now covering only the big assignments where his wide experience makes him master.

George T. Hughes: a specialist on investments, who has never gone wrong in analysis of values, who devotes his whole time and his efforts to study of bonds and the properties behind them.

These are some of the C. P. A. specialists who have taken the place of the Jack-of-all-Trades of newspaperdom.

The Consolidated Press Association

Executive Offices, Evening Star Building, Washington, D. C.

New York	Chicago	San Francisco	Paris
Eighth Floor	Third Floor	Third Floor	Fourth Floor
World Building	Daily News Building	Bulletin Building	19 Rue d'Antin

SPECIAL EDITOR & PUBLISHER REVIEW OF NORTH CAROLINA DEVELOPMENT

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

159. No. 10 TWO SECTIONS SECTION TWO NEW YORK, JULY 31, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

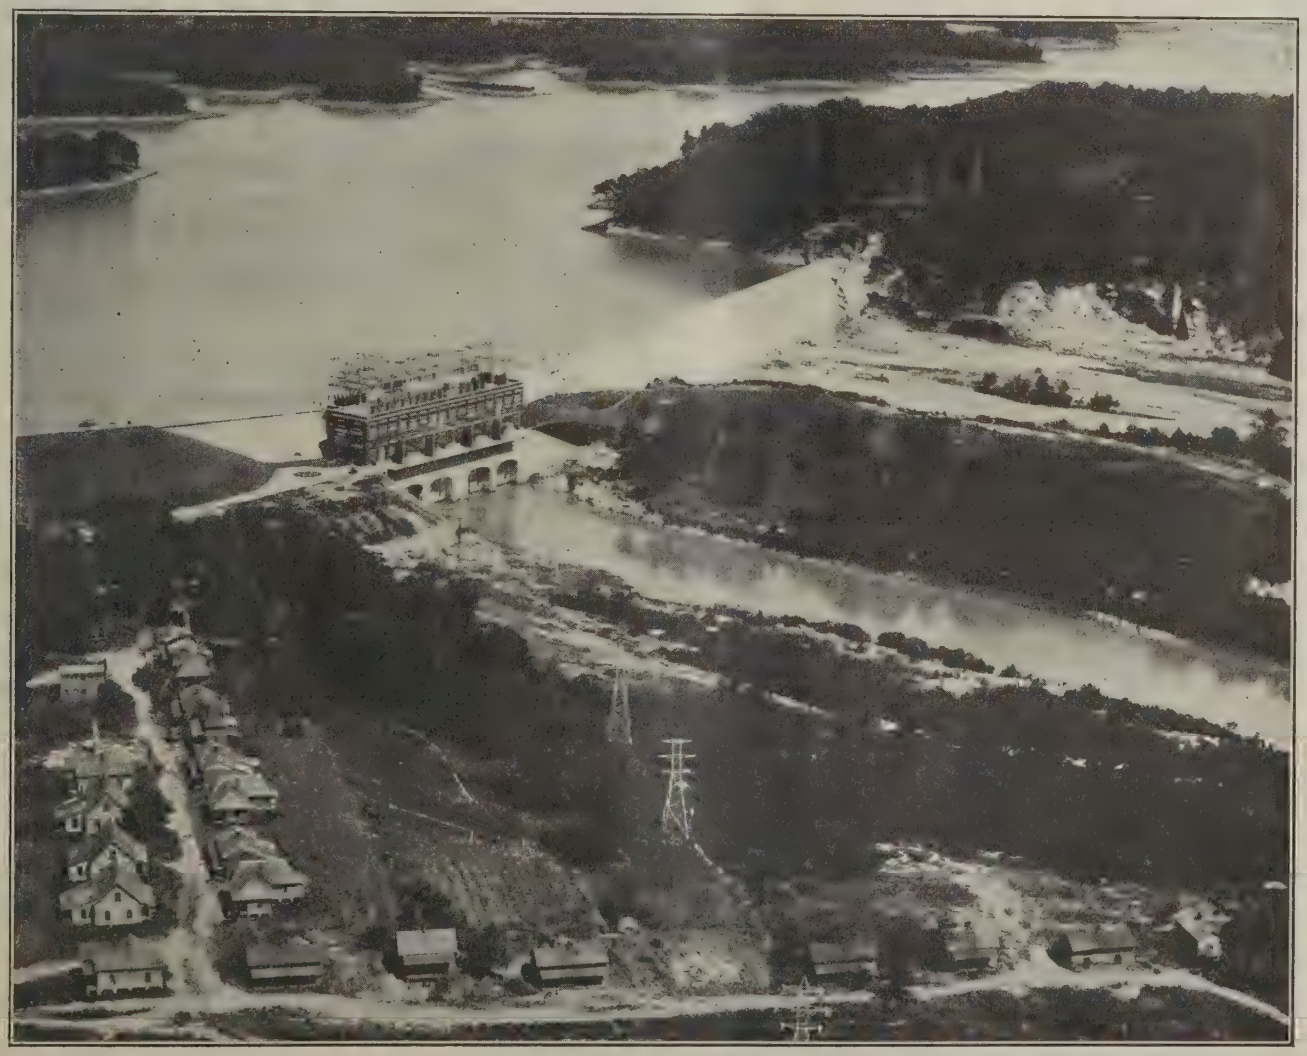
Unparalleled Program of Building Highways and Improving Schools Is Physical Expression of State's New-Found Spirit, at the Same Time Reaping Tremendous Social and Economic Results

By ARTHUR ROBB

E five years ago the people of the ate of North Carolina suddenly l that its newspaper editors and esmen had been telling the truth past two decades when they de- and hinted that the State was far the leaders of the Union in some ls of modern civilization. The ion came in 1921, though there en premonitory stirrings in several ears, and despite the general de- that marked business in that North Carolina proceeded with akening in dynamic fashion.

of all, the legislature pledged the credit to the extend of $50,000,- e proceeds of the bond issue to for state-wide roadbuilding. Two previously the same body had y put forward another program, provided for construction of roads artnership of the counties, state, deral governments, the funds to be ed under county supervision. Only les of road uilt and it parent that d program etting no- quickly.

l was chang- h the new . The ini- nd issue of 0,000 has e $85,000,- ow, and ng the Fed- d, the total t on hard e roads e 1921 is han $100,- t.



state ever e better in- t. Not ave the 4,- les of new ass road- ld a want as urgent; ave given rth Caro- n something e to talk and point s vidence of w enter- irit which s the en- te.

prise is ly word h describes sent men- dition of "Tarheel." hout the om Man- its Atlan- dbar to in the the Appa- hians, one n air of business and activity that was not associated with things Southern ten years ago. Everybody is going somewhere, even if the destination is not always certain. Everybody in the state, farmer, manufacturer, and merchant, is better off than he was before the road program stirred the dormant depths.

Yet, there is no boom. Some efforts have been made in the Western mountains to develop that matchless region of rest and play along the lines of high-pressure salesmanship, but the North Carolinian likes to make up his own mind on such matters and the boom has not been permitted to disturb any of the sound elements which give the mountains a normally high value as real estate. Considerable real estate activity is now noted also in the southeastern part, where the coast bathed by the Gulf Stream is being advertised as a vacation place.

The big factor of the advance of North Carolina is psychological rather than physical. It can be measured to some extent by the statistics of road-building and the amount spent for roads. A partial measurement is also afforded by the great increases in money spent for schools during the years 1921-1925 and the results that that expenditure have brougnt. Similar development in a similar period is unparalleled in American history. Another index to be noted is the growth of the remarkable small cities, some of them emerging rapidly from the small class. Hydro-electric power has played no unimportant part.

Politics has also had its share, for the Tarheel maintains a Southern interest in all phases of the governmental art. His newspapers, too, keep a vigilant eye on the conduct of public officers and on public policies of the present and future. Editorials have lost none of their force—many newspapers of circulations that the North would call small maintaining a force of three editorial writers—and every phase of North Carolina's present development was aired in the news and editorial columns long before its inception. Not all of the projects favored by the editor are yet part of the program. None that a majority of the press opposed have a chance of enactment, you will learn at Raleigh. Some of the "progressive" ideas that have issued from political minds in the present era have been laughed into abandonment by the newspapers—for instance, the project to put the state into the coastal trading business. On the whole, however, the proposals of North Carolina's governors and legislators have been highly intelligent and their execution has been remarkably efficient and free from corruption or graft. The road program, the visitor hears from every side, has been carried out without any waste or dishonorable expenditure.

Development of the state's great latent water powers has been an important factor in the growth of the textile industry in recent years. Above is one of the newest hydro-electric plants of the Southern Power Company on the Catawba River. This installation can generate 80,000 horse-power.

This borrowing of more than $85,000,000 for roads by a state which had hesitated to spend a twentieth of that amount in a year since the war has some other unique aspects. The new taxation system of North Carolina exempts real and personal property from levies for state purposes, leaving the revenues from this source for county and city expenses. The state's funds come from income, privilege, and excise taxes. That meant new taxes to pay for the roads and the existing structure of automobile registration fees was used as the foundation. Funds from this source were augmented by a gasoline tax, first of one cent a gallon, now three cents, and the money available for debt service and the road bonds, maintenance of the highways, and provision of a sinking fund, totalled more than $12,000,000 for the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1926. There was a small surplus.

Airplane view of Winston-Salem, the largest city of North Carolina in population and value of manufactured products. In the foreground is the old Sa section, founded by the Moravians in 1766.

Actually, according to business men in half a dozen cities, the roads have cost the state nothing. The per capita consumption of gasoline has dropped (20 per cent, some said) since the hard-surface roads ramified; wear and tear on automobile chassis and tires has been considerably reduced. The farmer now finds it convenient, rather than a hardship, to take his wares to market town and to drive his family in for a day's buying and recreation.

Not a town in any part of the state has so little traffic that it doesn't need at least one officer and a supplementary elaborate system of flashing lights and block signals of the best metropolitan type. Every little town has its streets paved with concrete or asphaltic concrete from curb to curb, often 40 feet, with parking spaces that looked liberal when they were laid out but are now sprinkled with signs that limit the privilege to as little as 10 minutes in some sections! On some large farms, there are as many cars as there are families. One finds it difficult to believe that the estimate of 300,000 cars in use on July 1 is not a bit too low.

Mechanically, the road program has produced some marvelous achievements which have had direct commercial reflexes. Take the fertile region about Albemarle Sound in the northeast section. Geographically it has been almost an island and its people until a few years ago led their work-a-day lives, not demanding much, not receiving much more than they demanded, and enjoying the historic memories with which the region abounds.

When the roads came, they sought their portion. One old road leading north from Elizabeth City to Norfolk, Va., led through an arm of the Dismal Swamp. It was scarcely a path and the bogs on either side quaked to footsteps and menaced with sure death the man or beast who strayed from the beaten line. Soundings were taken without finding bottom. Piles were driven 100 feet with the same vain result. Finally the engineers decided to float a 16-foot concrete road, several miles long, on top of the morass, to rise and fall with the tide. They did it, at several hundred thousand dollars' expense, and most of the road did their bidding. A few stretches still defy their efforts and are covered with several inches of water at high tide, but the road is always easily passable.

In the same region, a little to the west, are the thriving towns of Williamston and Windsor, 17 miles apart, but for birds only until 1922. Human beings from either town who had business in the other had to travel 140 miles until a bridge and a causeway through a swamp reduced the distance to the air-line space.

Just between the two examples cited is Edenton, overlooking Albemarle Sound, with the opposite shores either 30 minutes or an hour distant by motor ferry. Work has started on a bridge across the Chowan River a short distance above the town—a bridge which will have few equals in length the world over. It will traverse the river and the low ground that fringes its banks for 2½ miles and will connect at both ends with wide concrete highways.

Further west, between Greensboro and High Point, whose textile mills, general commerce and furniture manufacture make Guilford County the richest in the state, the citizens decided that they wanted a new and modern highway. Their present road was the first stretch of hard-surface highway laid in the state and as roads go the country over, it is still excellent. Its 18 feet are being widened to 30 and the program calls for further broadening to 100 feet within the next ten years. From city line to city line the work is the state's, but the necessary property has been turned over voluntarily by every owner along the route. Already magnificent manors, dwellings, country clubs and golf courses are springing up along this 20 miles of city street through the country.

In Winston-Salem, with Durham the tobacco capital of the world, they tell you of developments that bring Roaring Gap, far up in the mountains, within two hours' drive of the city for the business man who wants to spend a week-end or a vacation at a luxurious hotel remote from city activity.

Near Asheville, which is on the far side of the Blue Ridge Mountains, the road lifts the motor by grades never exceed 6 per cent through playground development which i the creation of a 1,500-acre lake deep, its banks lined with home anchorages for seaplanes and moto and all the other trimmings that Americanus wants when he plays. similar projects are predicted f mountain region.

All these are evidences of the material development which ob have marked and warmly comn but they are not to be taken as ind that North Carolina has neglect mental and spiritual values. If the 000,000 that has been spent on r stupendous, what can be said of 000,000 spent during the same fi period on public education? Wh be said of figures which show th value of school property for each white child was $81.34 in 1924-192 pared with $4.79 in 1904-1905? all school property was valu $3,182,918. For 1924-1925, the l riod for which figures are availa school property was valued at $70, an average increase of more than 000 each year.

Expense of operating the scho cluding salaries of teachers and visors, administration, and operati maintenance, totalled $21,030,810 i 1925, against $4,215,178 ten yea Two-thirds of the present amount in rural schools, the cost of wh cludes the transportation by bus he old and the new in North Carolina schools. At the left is the log cabin vich served as a rural negro school for many years and now abandoned in for of the modern roomy and well-ventilated and lighted stone building at the right.

from distant farmhouses. In Gran- county alone, 84 trucks are operated his purpose.

e-room buildings, the rule until the nt program became effective, have displaced by $50,000 schools, usually ng under one roof the children who been quartered in two or three scat-, dilapidated structures. Over above the $21,000,000 mentioned as uses, the state put out in 1924-1925 al- $13,000,000 for new buildings, equip- trucks, libraries and repairs—and amount exceeded the entire school et for the 1919-1920 period, when total cost of education was 14,258.

lored children have fared quite as as the white in the renaissance. buildings are of the same type as hite schools, their teachers are paid, e the white teachers, whatever the ty can afford to pay, and they are rtably housed in many places in neries" provided by the citizens.

e per capita expenditure for public tion, which was $2.87 in 1900-1901, $11.44 in 1919-1920, was $41.96 in 1925.

at covers merely the elementary and schools, taking no account of the r institutions. High Point a little ago decided to get itself a college, the $100,000 needed without diffi- and donated a site. Three large dary schools and more advanced in- ons have come into existence and more are planned for the near fu-

Duke Foundation at Durham for tion is in a class of its own and eceive extensive mention elsewhere s issue. The State University near gh and a number of other colleges niversities have national reputations cope of curriculum and liberality truction. It might be remarked in g that while North Carolina is de- voutly fundamentalist in religion, it is not fanatically so, and it has not fallen into the custom of censoring textbooks by statute. The lynching of ideas no longer has any more standing with the people at large than has the lynching of Negroes.

It was noted a few hundred words to the rear that two-thirds of the educational budget went into rural schools, an apportionment which accurately reflects the distribution of the state's population and activities. Industry has made an empire in the Piedmont with an annual product approaching $1,000,000, and, though agriculture's total contribution is about one-third of that sum, the farmer remains supreme. Disaster to him means trouble for all.

Bright-leaf tobacco is one of North Carolina's oldest staple crops, last year's harvest being valued at $83,000,000. The plants, whose nurture requires ideal weather conditions and great care, thrive in the sandy loam of the Piedmont.

Cotton farms dot almost every section of the state, except a comparatively small area in the central north. But though cotton is the principal crop, its failure does not carry with it the import of destruction that it did a few years ago. Last year's product totalled 1,132,877 bales, valued at $102,887,888. Closely pressing it in value was the tobacco crop, totalling 360,431,808 pounds, with a value or $82,899,316.

Corn, which thrives everywhere, was produced to the total of 46,454,536 bushels, with a value of $51,099,991. Smaller crops, whose value ran from $2,000,000 to $10,000,000 each, included wheat, grown in the foothills and the western counties; rye, field peas, soy beans, peanuts—they grew 226,172,951 pounds of the goobers last year; Irish potatoes, sweet potatoes, and hay, the latter crop being worth $14,194,611.

These crops, with those of the truck farms and the peaches of the eastern sand hills, some curious Chinese vegetable farms near Wilmington, and the growing apple and grape culture, brought the total crop value to $318,000,000 in 1925. What the future holds may be estimated from the fact that the 7,289,000 acres under crops in 1924 were barely more than 20 per cent of the state's land area and about 25 per cent of the farm land. The value of the production per acre for that year was $56, compared with $37 for Iowa, leading farm state of the union, in the same year. These factors, combined with the major element that North Carolina imports practically all important foodstuffs and even a large amount of fodder for animals point to a great unconquered opportunity for the Tarheel farmer.

Children of rural homes are carried to their new school-houses by county-operated buses, of which the above is an excellent type.

Another opening through which prosperity will soon pour for the agriculturist was pointed out recently by W. A. Graham, the veteran commissioner of agriculture, in discussing the future of western North Carolina as a great pleasure resort:

"The farmer bears the same relation to the multitude of pleasure-seekers as the supply train bears to the army. Every available acre is rapidly turning itself into a vegetable garden to produce food for the tourist population. Here is already our leading dairy section, and more poultry is produced here than in any other part of the state. The apple orchards in various parts of these mountains are already famous and grapes and other small fruits are occupying more and more of the farmer's attention.

"Just as is the case in New England today, the public highways in this park section will be supplied with conveniently located food-stands offering tourists fresh fruits and vegetables taken direct from the farms, and the number of tourists calling for these products will be legion. I predict that in ten years western North Carolina will have a floating population of 10 times what it is today, requiring for its subsistence, all the poultry, eggs, milk, fruit and vegetables that can be produced in all the valleys among the mountains.

"I know of no brighter future for the small farmer than now exists in western North Carolina. He will have to produce a high quality product and present it in an attractive manner. Because very critical and exacting customers will call upon him; but as these customers are well able and willing to pay the price, he will be all the better off financially for any extra efforts put forth."

The good roads are having a beneficent effect upon the effort of the state to feed itself from its own garden, keeping the immense wealth of Charlotte and Greensboro, Winston-Salem, Durham, and other industrial cities circulating in their own communities rather than among the farmers of the Mid-Western corn and wheat belts. Fortunate was the farmer a few years ago if the roads permitted him to market his produce more than 10 miles away from his land. Today many cities have a farm-produce radius of 1,200 square miles or more, and the farmer with the wider outlook has turned from a one-crop establishment to raising what his new market will consume. In the Piedmont it is not unusual to see growing on one farm cotton, corn, tobacco, potatoes, wheat, oats and vegetables, with possibly a few fruit trees in addition.

A lesson has also been learned from the West in the raising of hogs, thousands of which are now fattened and shipped every year, converting low-price field crops of corn, peanuts and soy beans into high-priced pork. During 1925 North Carolina truck-farmers shipped out of the state 15,555 carloads and 490,000 express packages of truck, which brought to them nearly $12,000,000.

Systematic assistance by the Department of Agriculture has been given the small farmer in marketing his crop, saving the boll weevil! The old laborious hand to hand fight of the cotton farmer with this pest, often to the latter's ntage, has given way during the past two years to wholesale exterminative methods. Airplanes whose fuselages carry e quantities of the arsenic compounds which destroy the bugs, skim over the cotton fields five to ten feet from the ground, with excellent results.

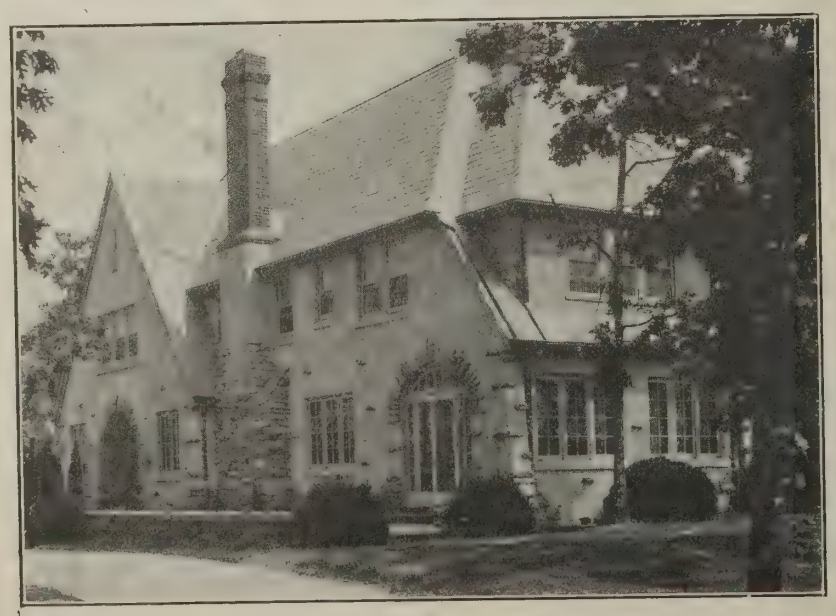
Three years ago Roaring Gap was a wilderness in the hills near the Virginia border. Today its commodious hotel and adjacent golf links lure many a North Carolinian from the cities. New roads bring the development within two hours' ride of Winston-Salem.



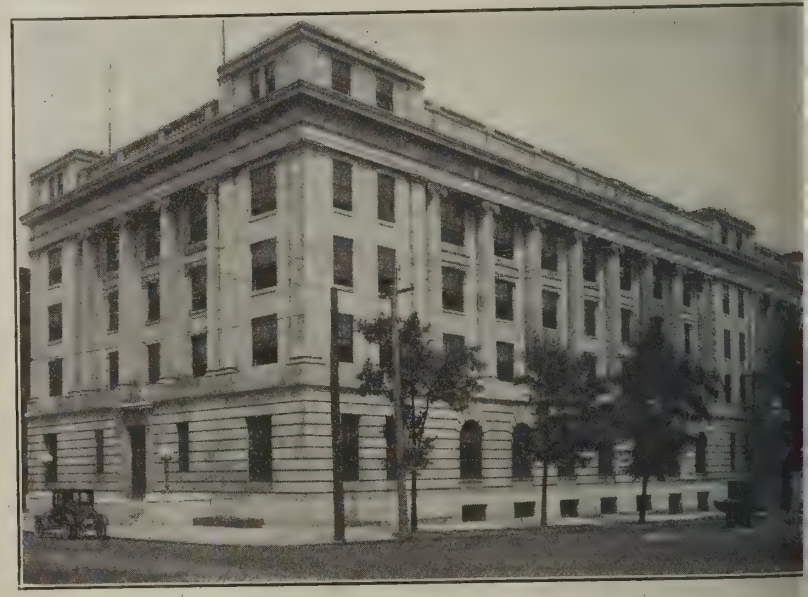
ing the loss due to glutted markets and lack of adequate and timely transportation. For instance, the state last year marketed for 15,000 poultry producers more than 1,000,000 pounds of live chickens, at a direct saving to the producers of more than $50,000—some place the amount at nearly $100,000, which would otherwise have gone to middlemen. Eggs, hogs, livestock and other farm products were likewise marketed, in carload lots, on a co-operative plan.

Successful efforts are being made to establish the culture of grapes on a commercial basis in the Southern tier of counties, which now have a considerable local market for express shipments. Development of factories for grape juice, jam, and jellies would naturally follow the growth of an industry with production larger than local needs. Peaches are already established as an important crop in both of the Carolinas, which are rivalling the famous Georgia brand of this fruit. Pecans are grown successfully in the region east from Salisbury to the coast, with a good foothold in the eastern counties. Apples are a staple crop in the Western section.

Dairying is receiving much encouragement from the state and the industry has reached a small development. It is attracting farmers from other states, and livestock, promises to take high rank in a few years.

Climatic conditions are of course almost ideal for agriculture, with winter starting late and breaking up early, and mean temperatures the year round from coast to mountain-sides hovering about 60 degrees. The mid-day sun of summer is hot, the century mark being by no means unfamiliar to the mercury in July and August, but hot sun and the ordinary rainfall are essential for most of the state's produce. The late arrival of summer and dearth of rain this Spring caused the furrows in many a farmer's brow to match those in his fields for depth, but the rain came in the nick of time to save the cotton and tobacco and the July sun arrived on time and in perfect form. The farmers are not worrying now about the crops of 1926. The slight damage done by a backward season to the potato crop in the neighborhood of Elizabeth City was more than compensated by the prices received for the "spuds" that survived the weather.

In view of what the state offers the farmer, it is not surprising that North Carolina, with the exception of Texas (a vastly larger area) has more farms than any other state in the Union and that the number shows a steady increase. There were 13,000 more farms in the state in 1925 than there were in 1920, the present number being 257,940, with 7,000,000 acres under cultivation. Farm land is worth an average of $66 per acre.



Beautiful estates, country homes and cottages are flanking the new roads in the suburbs of the larger cities and on the slopes of the Western mountains. Above is a new Asheville residence.

ernment for tobacco stamps and in revenue and income taxes more than $100,000,000 a year and its prosperity is shared extensively throughout the city. For this firm, the R. J. Reynolds Company, is no only the largest employer of labor; it stocks paying comfortable dividends are held by many thousands of local people its taxes, as the largest landholder, are an appreciable part of the local revenues.

This participation by the greater of the population in local industries traces back to the settlement of Salem in 1766 by the Moravians who brought a system of communism which worked excellently in their small group. All property was commonly owned. All produce was sold to the group and bought from the group on a system of payments which made provision for the doctor, the lawyer, the clergy and any others whose work did not make commodities for the central warehouse. Under their rules, free and cutthroat competition within industries was not permitted. Artisans were required to diversify their occupations so that the wheelwright had his steady income protected from unforeseen raids by newcomers; similar protection was accorded to the butcher, the baker, the tinsmith, and the weaver. The communistic system is long since gone, but the tradition persists as an industrial blessing in the widely varied nature of the city's products. Besides the almost interminable lines of tobacco factory buildings, there are great establishments for the fabrication of furniture, underwear, woolen and knit goods.

Salem is as picturesque as might be expected from the above hint as to its origin. Many old buildings remain from the early Moravian settlement and on the main street of Salem stands a giant me

Typical of the new buildings at Raleigh in which North Carolina is housing its government departments in a group around the old Capitol is this two-year-old plant of the Agricultural Department.

Closely interwoven with the agricultural structure are the dominant manufactures of the state—tobacco and textile. Tobacco, grown in the "old bright belt" of the Piedmont and the "new bright belt" of the eastern counties, is marketed largely at Wilson, a centrally located city whose claim to be the world's largest tobacco market is substantiated by the statement that the total sales for the present season were 76,764,130 pounds of tobacco valued at $20,592,841.

Tobacco manufacture centers in Durham, site of the great Duke and Liggett & Myers works, and Winston-Salem, redolent of Prince Albert and Camels. Both are on the edge of the growing fields.

Winston-Salem is the largest city in the state, the twin communities having a population of about 75,000. It excels also in the total value of manufactured products, its hundred factories producing goods worth $250,000,000 a year. Tobacco is of course the principal product. The first factory was establised in 1874 and for 30 years it has maintained its supremacy as the world's largest producers of smoking staples. It pays annually to the gov-coffee-pot reminding the newcomer of days before the mass-production repl the little artisan's shop with gigantic r The Moravian church headquarters cludes Salem College, founded in and rated as a Class A institution, episcopal residence, and a cemetery, w the democracy of death is empha by the long rows of grave-markers uniform and all laid flat on the gr In the older portion of the cemetery arate plots are maintained for ma men, married women, single men, single women, but in the newer sectio present preference for family group l is recognized.

Winston, the newer section of the was founded in 1870 and by 1913 o single street separated it from the ol and the two were consolidated. Th sits at an elevation of 1,000 feet, 50 miles from the Blue Ridge mou and has the equable climate and invig ing atmosphere of the foothills. T people like all the fresh air and sur that their situation affords is evidenc the spacious parks which surroun remarkably fine schools. The Rich Reynolds High School is located 3-acre lot and the Richard J. Reynolds emorial Auditorium, a part of the high hool establishment, faces 47 acres of rk.

School buildings have not alone had the nefit of expert architecture. More than ,000,000 of homes are being constructed is year on the fringes of the municipal- y and the office and commercial building ogram reaches several times that value. n 18-story office building was nearing mpletion this summer. The new Robert . Lee Hotel, one of the best in the en- re region, was erected at a cost of ,000,000, raised by popular subscription. A new city hall which departs radically om the order of public buildings and ses none of its dignity by the step is nder construction in Salem and another cent addition to the city's activities is municipal market, bringing the farmer nto direct touch with the consumer.

Durham, the second largest industrial ity in the State, was a hamlet when ne last meeting of foes in the Civil War ook place on its streets. In 1858 Robert Morris began the manufacture of smoking obacco in the village, which then num- ered 200 people. John Ruffin Green ought out the business in 1862 and gave ne names of "Durham Tobacco" and Spanish Smoking Tobacco" to his prod- ct. During the last days of the war ne factory and warehouse were plundered y soldiers of both armies and soon after ne troops had scattered to their homes, nquiries began to come to the post- naster and the station agent at Durham or more of the "bright" tobacco. Some ears later the tobacco was placed on ne market in a small sack with the Dur- am bull as a trade-mark—like a brand f mustard made in Durham, England, imilarly cased and marked. Its popu- irity grew in the United States and in ngland and eventually led to the manu- acture of cigarettes—first by hand and nen by machinery—and the sale of ciga- ettes is no small contributor to the pres- nt prosperity of the Old North State.

Textile mills also play a large part in Durham's annual output. More than 25,- 00 dozen pairs of stockings are made aily by the 14 plants of the Durham

The highway program of North Carolina did not stop short of Mount Mitchell, the highest peak east of the Rocky Mountains. A concrete road leads direct from Asheville, 18 miles away, and a hard-surface highway, wide enough for two automobiles winds its way up the steep side for another 18 miles to the summit.

Hosiery Mills centering in Durham and extending into nearby cities. Negro labor has been used successfully in some of the mills of this chain—a practice which has not worked out satisfactorily in the spinning and finishing mills in other sections of the state. The Durham Cotton Manufacturing Company, which like the Hosiery Mills, was founded by the late Julian S. Carr, now has five plants, called Erwin Group, with 200,000 spindles and 5,150 looms, producing covert cloths, ticking, sheets and sheetings, pillow-slips canton flannels, and denims. A large fertilizer works is operated at the edge of the city by the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company.

Greensboro, the third large city of the northern chain on the Piedmont, is the most up-to-date city (from a "Yankee" viewpoint) in the state. It has grown immensely since the 1920 census, its 16,000 of that date having been swelled to 45,000 by the inclusion of several suburbs. It is the centre of the insurance business in the state and is also the nucleus of a large and growing textile industry.

Its bank clearings for the three months ending March 31, 1926, topped $80,600,- 000, indicating a volume of business considerably ahead of last year, when total clearings were $270,000,000.

Five hundred seventy-five building permits had been issued up to June 30, with an aggregate value of more than $4,- 500,000. This figure does not include $700,000 to be expended this year in new buildings at the North Carolina College for Women, nor does it take into account a projected new theater and Y. M. C. A.

There are in Guilford County 137 miles of state and county hard surface highways and 502 miles of improved soil roads. In Greensboro there are 98 miles of paved streets, 14½ miles of electric railways, 125 miles of sewer, 115 miles of water mains. The 9,684 electric motors and 3,853 gas meters in use in the city limits and more than 7,335 telephones indicate the extent of public utility service. The city owned water system includes three reservoirs with a capacity of 1,023,- 000,000 gallons to deliver 6,500,000 gallons every twenty-four hours, serving 7,200 connections.

Greensboro has a commission city manager form of government. The commission is composed of successful business men—the president of the largest manufacturing plant, the largest life insurance company, the largest wholesale house, the largest wholesale nursery; a publisher, a lumberman and a mill operator. E. B. Jeffress, publisher of the Greensboro News, is mayor.

One hundred and forty industries, producing about seventy-five different commodities, employ about 15,000 people, and have an annual payroll of about $12,- 000,000. The principal manufacturers are cotton textiles (spinning, weaving, finishing, printing and dyeing), clay products, overalls, machinery, furniture, tobacco products, auto bodies, proprietary medicines, structural steel, fertilizers, flour, stone products, stoves, lumber, etc. One textile plant produces 200,000 yards of finished fabric daily.

Seventy-nine per cent of all the industrial establishments of North Carolina are located on the bench-land which extends from the foot of the Appalachian Mountains to the eastern coastal plain, known as the Piedmont Plateau. About the same relative percentage obtains with regard to commercial, civic and financial establishments which the demands of industry have made necessary. About $679,301,522 worth of manufactured goods are produced annually in this area, according to the 1920 census report on manufacturers, and approximately $198,- 000,000 worth of domestic merchandise was distributed and consumed in 1924

(Continued on page VIII)

Cotton is King in North Carolina, even though his monarchy is not absolute. The above field is near Charlotte, centre of the textile-working industry.

CAROLINA MOUNTAINS SLOPE 500 MILES TO ATLANTIC SHORE

NORTH CAROLINA presents three topographic divisions—the Coastal Plain, the Piedmont Plateau, and the Mountain Region. All three are distinct but, though the altitude of the land rises steadily from the coast to the hills that stand before the Blue Ridge Range, the gradations are barely perceptible to the traveler until the mountains are sighted.

All three regions are of great fertility—attested by the high value per acre of the combined 1925 crops. The value of $56 per acre is compared proudly by North Carolinians with Iowa's $34 per acre product.

Potatoes (Irish and sweet), peas, soybeans, peanuts, strawberries, and all kinds of garden truck, are the staple crops of the Coastal Plain, which also grows corn in large amounts and cotton and tobacco in lesser quantities. Oysters and food fish, notably shad, abound along the Atlantic Coast. Lumber and wood-manufactures support many thousands in the coastal villages and towns.

The "elbow bend" of the Gulf Stream near Beaufort gives the Southeastern region a balmy climate which has long benefited agriculture and is now being turned to account by resort promotions.

The Piedmont, though predominantly agricultural, holds all of the great manufacturing cities of the state. Proximity to the cotton and tobacco fields, plus the abundant waterpower of the region, have greatly augmented its industrial expansion in recent years to a 1925 value of products approximating $1,000,000,000.

This section includes some of the richest farm lands in America. Climatic conditions favor the growth of delicate crops, including most that can be grown outside of the tropics. Its soil is cecil clay, sandy loam and silt loam, and temperatures permit an abnormally long and advantageous growing season. The average date of the first killing frost varies from October 15 on the Western edge of this territory to November 15 on the Southeast, while the average date of the last killing frost in Spring ranges from March 21 to April 23. Cotton, corn and tobacco are the staple crops, but all kinds of vegetables, fruit and garden truck, as well as pecan nuts are grown in considerable quantities.

The mountain region is practically all included in the lower section of the above map. Peaks of more than 6,000 feet altitude are seen on every hand from Asheville, in the heart of the mountains, and Mount Mitchell, high peak east of the Rockies, thru it 6,711 feet into the clouds miles from that city. Tremend resort developments has tak place recently among the mo tains, resulting from the discov of their scenic grandeur that f lowed the highway expansion i hitherto unknown regions.

This part of North Carolina h been called the Switzerland America and the citizens by means resent the comparison. includes about 6,000 square mi of territory, broken up by tr clothed hills and valleys, gorg lakes and cascades. The s tropical vegetation of the coast replaced by the apple and pea tree, the rambler rose and rho dendron. Artificial lakes, p jected and under constructi will increase the likeness to Swi erland.

The map shows the highw development as it had progress up to June 1, 1926. The heavy bla lines indicate roads of concrete asphalt concrete surfaces, whi now run almost without bre to every part of the state. U improved roads, indicated double dotted lines, it will noted, are infrequent—appeari only in the sections where pop lation is sparse.

The Charlotte Observer

"THE FOREMOST NEWSPAPER IN THE TWO CAROLINAS"

More than 39,000
copies of The Charlotte Observer are sold every Sunday.

Features

The Observer carries daily and Sunday full and complete market and financial pages with views and comments by national authorities. Its financial pages stand out conspicuously in the two Carolinas,

The Observer publishes every Sunday for the children a "Red Magic" section edited by the world's greatest magician, Houdini.

The "Junior Observer," published every Sunday, completely covers the school news of the city for boys and girls of school age.

Social Activities in the city and the two Carolinas, of interest to both men and women readers, are completely covered in The Charlotte Observer.

The Observer carries daily and Sunday comic strips and features by the world's most famous cartoonists, featuring "The Gumps," "Bringing Up Father," "Joe's Car," "Little Mary Mix-Up," "Barney Google" and "Can You Beat It."

The Observer presents to its readers regularly, high-class fiction and short stories by famous authors.

The editorial columns of The Observer present intelligent comment and constructive criticism on current events. These editorials are eagerly read by men and women throughout the two Carolinas. They are authoritative. Davidson college recently conferred the degree of LL.D. on Col. Wade H. Harris, the editor of The Observer for constructive service through the columns of this Newspaper to the State of North Carolina.

Once more let it be said that: "The Observer is a clean constructive Newspaper" — and — "When you see it in The Observer, it's so."

Did You Know That Charlotte Has One of the South's Leading Newspapers?

By E. C. Lyndon, of the Lyndon Advertising Agency

THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER led all North and South Carolina NEWSPAPERS in volume of circulation and advertising for year 1925. Of its circulation distribution 92% is in Charlotte's trading territory—a radius of 57 miles, defined by the Audit Bureau of Circulation. Within this territory live 650,000 people—the richest trading territory in the South, the center of the most rapidly expanding industrial area in the U. S. A. Observer circulation covers Charlotte and the bordering territory like a blanket.

The Standing of The Charlotte Observer Has Been Earned by 57 years of Constructive Newspaper Building.

For 57 years, the substantial citizens of Charlotte and the Piedmont Carolinas have looked to The Charlotte Observer for complete and authentic information on all matters of the day—local, state, national, and international—political, financial, news. The slogan "The Best Is None Too Good for Readers of The Observer" long ago became a tradition to be lived up to in the editorial rooms and business offices of the leading newspaper of the two Carolinas.

Men read The Charlotte Observer. Men of affairs, leaders in industrial and economic advancement, leaders in community thought. Men who control large corporations. Men who control the sale and purchase of commodities.

Women read The Charlotte Observer. They place complete confidence in its advertising, and women do 90% of all the buying. Merchants, manufacturers, distributors, wholesalers, industrial establishments, men who have service to sell get results when they advertise in The Charlotte Observer. The Observer is the only morning newspaper in the Charlotte trading territory. It gets there with the news and the advertiser's message. The Observer carries a tremendous amount of advertising. In 1925 The Observer led all Carolina newspapers—both morning and afternoon—in total volume of advertising. And it is advertising that pays the advertiser.

The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER is the main link between the advertiser and the Carolina customer. The population of the Charlotte market is the class that represents greater buying power. The CHARLOTTE OBSERVER is the dominating media in the Carolinas. You can cover wide territory at low cost by concentrating your advertising in THE CHARLOTTE OBSERVER, "The Foremost Newspaper in The Two Carolinas."

More than 35,000
copies of The Charlotte Observer are sold every day in the week.

Features

The Observer is the only newspaper in Charlotte having the right to publish the world famous Associated Press reports seven days in the week.

The Observer completely covers State news by the State Associated Press Service with more than 300 correspondents.

The Observer is the only Carolina newspaper that is a member of the North American Newspaper alliance, one of the highest honors that can come to a Newspaper—an honor conferred only by invitation.

The Observer is a member of the Consolidated Press Association, an outstanding and exclusive news gathering organization.

Arthur Brisbane, world's highest priced editorial writer, writes daily for readers of The Observer.

O. O. McIntyre, humorist and philosopher, writes daily for The Observer.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, U. S. Senator from New York and former health commissioner for that State, writes daily for The Observer.

Dr. Frank Crane, Elsie Robinson, Wickes Wambolt, Edgar Guest and other famous writers, poets and lecturers, write regularly for readers of The Observer.

Maximilian Harden, Gerville Reache, A. G. Gardiner, Harden Colfax, Robt. T. Small. William Byrd and other famous European and American journalists, write authoritatively on national and international affairs for readers of The Observer.

The Observer presents daily and Sunday a most complete coverage of local, state, national and international sports.

CHARLOTTE "Queen City of the South" Center of the South's Richest Trading Territory—Center of the most rapidly developing Industrial Area in the U. S. A.

STORY-BROOKS & FINLEY—Special Representatives
NEW YORK CHICAGO PHILADELPHIA

North Carolina roads avoid railway grade crossings wherever traffic warrants and are safely banked and fenced on curves. Above is shown a section of the Richmond-Raleigh road, known as the Capital to Capital Highway.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page V.)

within fifty miles of Greensboro.

Greensboro is the county seat of Guilford County and is situated in the heart of the Piedmont industrial area. Its growth in population by United States census figures, is illuminating.

1890	3,317
1900	10,035
1910	15,895
1920	19,861
1923 (Special Census)	43,525
1925 (U. S. Census Estimate)	47,320
1926 (U. S. Census Estimate)	48,500

Greensboro is the insurance center of the South—it is the home of twelve general insurance companies. It is also an important distribution point and is agency headquarters for many firms of national prominence. Wholesale and jobbing houses handle a large variety of merchandise and equipment. Recent decisions of the Interstate Commerce Commission give Greensboro freight rate advantages which put it on a parity with Virginia cities.

Greensboro's natural trade territory is an irregular area extending from ten to eighty miles. It is a shopping center for about a quarter of a million people. This is largely influenced by the network of improved highways and the fact that Guilford County ranks first in the State in the number of automobiles, making possible an easy access to market. There are seventy buses operating on regular schedules between Greensboro and points within 100 miles.

Greensboro's "community spirit," while an intangible factor, is commonly pointed to by neighboring cities as one of its most remarkable assets. This spirit is reflected in the character and number of beautiful homes, which are mostly owned by those who live in them. There is an indefinable something about Greensboro that stamps it as "A city with a fine personality."

One of the newest and finest hotels in the South is located in Greensboro. It is the O. Henry, named for the famous writer of short stories—Sidney Porter—who was born in the city. This author is also honored in Raleigh where a relief tablet embellishes the main hall of the State Historical Building.

One hundred miles to the South lies Charlotte, the North Carolina capital of the textile industry and the hub of a vast hydro-electric development. Industrial leaders and economists agree that the cheap convenient power, made available through the developments of the Southern Power Company on the Catawba River, have been the determining factor in the tremendous growth which has taken place in the Piedmont during the past 15 years.

From one small plant, developing less than 10,000 horsepower, and 40 miles of transmission lines, the Southern Power system has grown until, according to recent figures, it has 11 hydro-electric plants and three steam plants with a total generating capacity of 765,000 horse-power and distributing more than a billion kilowatts of electricity each year over 2,600 miles of transmission lines in the Carolina industrial area.

Twenty years ago, 13 cotton mills with less than 150,000 spindles were drawing power from the company's lines. At present, more than 300 cotton mills with more than 5,500,000 spindles, are being driven on this power. This is about half of the total number of spindles in the Carolina textile industry, one-third of the spindles in the South, and one-eighth of those in the entire country. In addition to the power supplied for the textile mills, electricity for other industries and for lighting and domestic uses is supplied to approximately 80 cities and towns within the mesh of transmission wires.

It is not difficult to see how electric power has fostered and developed industry and commerce in the Piedmont and to appreciate its importance to the section's economic fabric. The daring and faith that were required to project such a development a score of years ago are of a piece with the newer road and school program.

Twenty years ago the use of electricity for power was in its infancy and the transmission of electricity for any great distance had hardly passed the experimental stage. The market for any great amount of power apparently did not exist.

This was the situation when the late James B. Duke and W. S. Lee, an engineering genius, became aware of it. Mr. Duke's interest was aroused by Dr. Gill Wylie, a South Carolinian who had developed a successful surgical practice in New York and later returned to the South and became president of the Catawba Power Company, then constructing a hydro-electric plant at Indian Hook Shoals. Dr. Wylie became acquainted with Mr. Duke in a professional capacity and in the course of their intimacy the surgeon mentioned his power plant project, which was under Mr. Lee's direction. The capitalist sensed the possibilities of the plan, sent for the engineer and satisfied himself as to the practicability of the development and the ability of its director. Mr. Duke supplied ample financial aid and from the first declared that the great textile development in the Fall River section of New England could be duplicated in the Carolinas if low-priced power were provided.

The Southern Power Company was organized in 1905, absorbing Dr. Wylie's pioneer company with its 10,000 horsepower plant at Indian Head Shoals. The new company, headed by Mr. Duke, immediately began the construction of a large hydro-electric plant at Great Falls, S. C., and before that was finished, undertook the construction of a similar plant at Rocky Creek. The Great Falls plant was finished in 1907 and the Rocky Creek plant in 1909, and meanwhile a smaller installation at Ninety-Nine Islands on the Broad River was started, being completed in 1910. The Lookout Shoals plant in North Carolina, Fishing Creek station in South Carolina and the Bridgewater development were put into commission in 1915, 1916, and 1919 respectively. The Wateree plant near Camden, S. C., was also finished in 1919. The Dearborn plant at Great Falls, S. C., and the Mountain Island plant, 12 miles south of Charlotte, were turned on in 1923 and the Rhodiss machinery has been placed in operation since then. A plant at Cedar Creek, S. C., is now under construction.

All of the plants except that at Ninety-Nine Islands are on the Catawba River, which is said to be the only stream in the country developed to approximately its rated capacity.

In order to provide power to supplement that generated in the hydro-electric plants during low stages of the river, five steam-electric generating stations have been constructed between Durham, N. C., and Greenville, S. C. The supplementary power generated at these stations enables the company to give its customers uniform service regardless of droughts or other conditions that might affect the river systems.

As has already been indicated, on the greatest problems of the compar its early days was the marketing power that was produced. Real salesi ship, backed by demonstrations, necessary to convince such pote users of electricity as existed in early days, of the advantages and econ of the new motive force. When marked advantages of electric power its cheapness became manifest, its widened. Industries using it thr and expanded in the war days when e wheel and every kilowatt was in ernment service.

New industries were attracted gradually the demand equalled the su then surpassed it. During the past years the power company has been pelled to prosecute a constantly exp ing building program in order to the rising demands for additional po Three hydro-electric plants have completed during the past two years two new plants are ready for ac one of these being a new developme 80,000 horse-power capacity on the of the first Catawba Power Comp plant. Capacity of the steam-ele

(Continued on page X)

Raleigh

The Key City of the New North Carolina

THE TIMES

Established in 1875

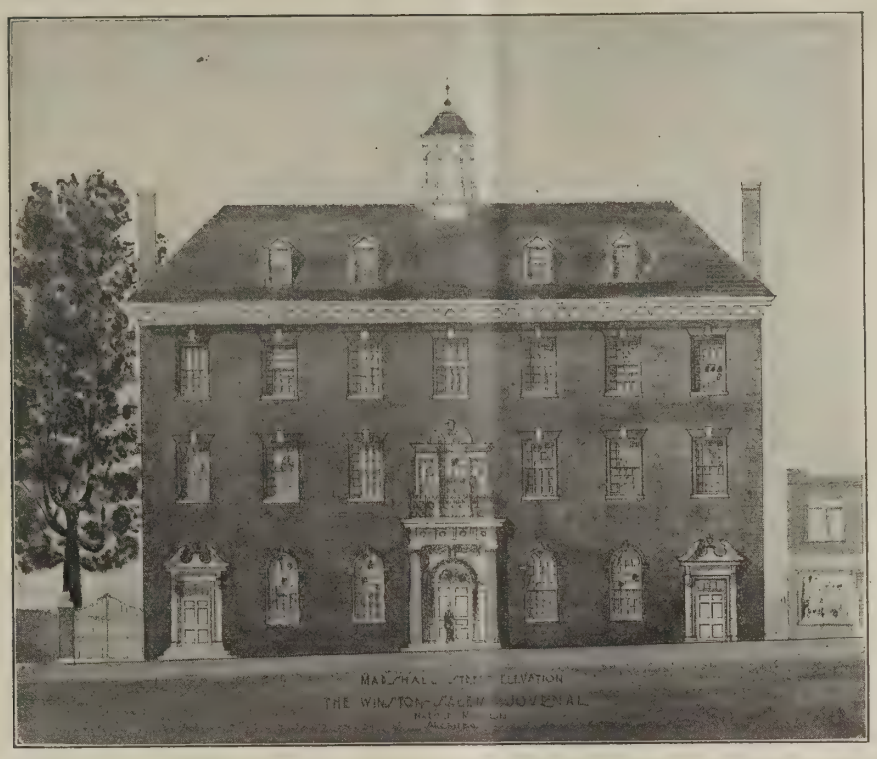
RALEIGH'S HOME PAPER

Leads in Home Delivered Circulation and Local Influence. Leads in Local Advertising.

The Largest Evening Circulation in an Area of Culture, Wealth and Progress

THE way to market in North Carolina leads through Raleigh, center of culture, education and government. Until one knows the true force of Raleigh's far-reaching leadership and the reasons therefor, it is impossible to plan an effective merchandising campaign for this growing market.

We have invaluable data to be had for the asking



Modern Display Windows Available for National Advertisers

Represented by

BRYANT GRIFFITH & BRUNSON

New York Chicago Boston Atlanta

Building the "New" Journal

While clinging fast to the best traditions and history of Winston-Salem and the Old North State, the "new" Journal has adopted a forward-looking policy in keeping with the enterprise, industry, and progressive spirit of the community. The "new" typographical arrangement of The Journal has been approved by experts as being the "best in Carolina." The added features, the greatly increased news coverage, the vigorous, independent editorial expression of the "new" Journal has caused comment and commendation throughout the State. In keeping with this new spirit of progress, The Journal has acquired a new site, on which it is about to erect a new building with a new press and other modern equipment.

NEW SITE—

The plot of ground purchased for the "new" Journal embraces the property at the corner of Fourth and Marshall streets with an ell extension through to Spruce street. The new Journal building will be erected on Marshall street, between Fourth and Fifth streets—the two most important east and west thoroughfares in the city. This is perhaps the fastest growing retail section, in close proximity to the new 18-story Nissen building, now under construction, and across Marshall street from the modern Robert E. Lee Hotel.

NEW BUILDING—

The building will be of brick, four stories in height, of Colonial design, in harmony with the Colonial architecture of old Salem and the buildings of the early Moravian settlement. In the front elevation will be reproduced some of the features of the historic Independence Hall and Congress Hall of Philadelphia.

With a frontage on Marshall street of 90 feet, the building will be 75 feet in depth and provision has been made for future expansion to a depth of 200 feet to Spruce street as conditions require. The construction will be modern fireproof and will be sprinkled.

NEW PRESS—

Contract has recently been made with Walter Scott & Company of Plainfield, N. J., for the erection of a four-unit press of the latest construction with double folders. This is the largest single order for a printing press ever given in the Carolinas. When installed, The Journal's press will be without a peer between Richmond and Atlanta.

The capacity of the new press will be 600 thirty-two-page papers a minute (or 300 papers up to 64 pages in size). These papers will be delivered through one folder and carried direct to the mailing room by means of a continuous conveyor.

Complete new equipment will be added to the stereotype room by the Scott Company and new equipment will be added to the composing room and other departments to make the production of The Journal as efficient and as rapid as possible.

NEW WIRE SERVICE—

The recent addition of the complete Associated Press service—not surpassed in the Carolinas—gives Journal readers not only comprehensive financial news, carried by no other local paper, but also complete news of the world and Nation, together with a full North Carolina wire service.

NEW FEATURES—

The regular page of pictures—the only one in the State—the daily editorials of Glenn Frank and Dr. Frank Crane, the poems of Edgar Guest, the answers to questions by Dr. Cadman and the question and answer department of The Journal Washington Bureau, the many daily features of particular interest to women, the Boys' Club and the department of Dr. Arthur Dean—these are only a few of The Journal's features which have been added within the past few months.

Upon the firm foundation of a past which has been dedicated to public service and community interest, the "new" Journal is now striving to build up a great modern newspaper, representative of the largest city in this progressive State. To that end the constant effort of The Journal staff in every department will be to make it a better and better newspaper.

WINSTON-SALEM JOURNAL "First in Merit"

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building	Waterman Building	Atlantic Building	Tribune Tower
New York City	Boston, Mass.	Philadelphia, Pa.	Chicago, Ill.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page VIII)

plants has been more than doubled during the recent expansion era.

The several hydro-electric and steam-electric plants, with the generating capacity of each, are as follows:

HYDRO-ELECTRIC

Location	Horse-Power Generating Capacity
Bridgewater, N. C.	26,000 H. P.
Rhodiss, N. C.	45,000 H. P.
Lookout Shoals, N. C. ..	30,000 H. P.
Mountain Island, N. C. ..	80,000 H. P.
Catawba, S. C.	80,000 H. P.
Fishing Creek, S. C.	50,000 H. P.
Dearborn, S. C.	60,000 H. P.
Great Falls, S. C.	40,000 H. P.
Rocky Creek, S. C.	40,000 H. P.
Cedar Creek, S. C. (under construction)	60,000 H. P.
Wateree, S. C.	84,000 H. P.
Ninety-Nine Islands, S. C.	30,000 H. P.
	625,000 H. P.

STEAM-ELECTRIC

Mt. Holly, N. C.	50,000 H. P.
Eno, N. C.	30,000 H. P.
Greensboro, N. C.	10,000 H. P.
Greenville, S. C.	10,000 H. P.
Duncan, S. C.	40,000 H. P.
	140,000 H. P.

Engineers estimate that the water-power resources of North Carolina are approximately 2,000,000 horse power. If this power were all developed, North Carolina would not need to import for power purposes a single ton of coal. The output of electricity would be equivalent to 10,000,000 tons of coal per year and electricity for power and light would be available for practically every community of any considerable size in the state. The uncountable millions of dollars which are now going out of the state in a steady stream for coal for those sections which do not have hydro-electric power would be kept at home, according to the people who have the development of the state by its own funds close to their hearts.

Demand for power for new and waiting industries for North Carolina is such that engineers and business men who have carefully considered the matter estimate that from $5,000,000 to $7,000,000 per year would be required in water-power development to supply the annual growth. This estimate, of course, covers the entire state and the demand is estimated from applications for power to the various power companies, municipalities and chambers of commerce. Assuming an investment in new industries of $6 for each $1 of water-power development, this would mean a total investment of $35,000,000 or more per year in the state's industries, provided that conditions warranted the development of existing power sites and if the field were sufficiently attractive for investment to command the capital that would be necessary for the execution of such a construction program by existing and new power companies.

In addition to its eminence as the center of the Piedmont textile industry and as the hydro-electric capital, Charlotte has also in recent years become an important jobbing point for the entire Piedmont region. There is located the only point outside of New England where a prospective textile manufacturer can arrange for the construction of his mills, complete to the last bolt, their power, their raw material, and market outlets for his product. Transportation conditions are ideal, with four trunk-line railroads radiating in eight directions, and needless to say, a net-work of the best roads leading to all parts of the state. Terminal facilities are available for handling 3,400 carloads of freight daily and it is said that considerable merchandise of lesser bulk is handled by truck with Charlotte as a base.

There are sixteen banks and trust companies in Charlotte, with total resources of $63,336,851.12. Bank clearings in 1925 were $636,000,000. There are three building and loan associations. Twenty years ago there were 100 cotton mills within a radius of fifty miles; to-day there are more than six times that number.

The importance of the city as a distributing point is indicated by the fact that 200 corporations of importance have branch plants, offices or representatives in Charlotte. It is the leading center in the South for the distribution of textile machinery, and the large British and American firms have offices and representatives here to handle the business of the textile mills in the territory.

In Charlotte itself are 250 industrial and manufacturing plants, with an annual payroll of $18,000,000. Among these plants are eleven cottonseed oil mills with an annual output of over $10,000,000.

Although there has never been any boom in the sense of mushroom development in Charlotte, its growth during the last two or three years has been at a greatly accelerated pace. Building operations for 1925 reached the figure of $7,735,000; for 1924 they were $6,800,000. Operations in both years were at a rate unrivaled in any other year.

There are seven hotels in the city, including the new million dollar Hotel Charlotte. Pinehurst, Blowing Rock and Chimney Rock all are within easy reach of Charlotte. There are two excellent country clubs, the Myers Park Club and the Charlotte Country Club, each with eighteen hole golf courses. The Myers Park residential section is one of the finest in the United States.

Charlotte is notable even in North Carolina for the attention given to the public school system. There are 12,500 enrolled in the schools and the city has spent $2,000,000 for new school buildings within recent years. For white school children there are one senior high school, two junior high schools, one vocational high school, twelve elementary schools and one open air school. For colored children there are one high school and five elementary schools.

This city is also an automobile and motion picture distribution point. Twelve film exchanges operate and the extent of their business may be gauged by the fact that the local post office gets $118,000 revenue from them in a year.

Three bonded warehouses make strong claim for Charlotte's supremacy cotton storage center, while Am manufacturers of dyestuffs are sented by the du Pont works, th tional Aniline & Chemical Company of which are housed in their own ings.

In neighboring Gaston county, than a million spindles are operate largest number in any county in the nation. Mills surround Gastonia and the hubs around which the life

(Continued on page XII)

Wilmington is the seventh port in the United States in volume of cust receipts. Above is a view of the custom house with one of the coast gu fleet at the government pier.

One of the largest granite quarries in the world is located near Mount Airy in the north central section of the state.

Hendersonville

in the Heart of Western North Carolina Development

A section that is adding population and increasing in wealth more rapidly than any other part of the United States.

A fertile field for cultivation by general advertisers.

Get the rates of

The Hendersonville Times
Week Day Afternoons

The Hendersonville News
Every Morning Except Monday

NOTE:—The two Hendersonville newspapers are under separate ownership and management and business must be done direct with each paper.

ASHEVILLE

The Distributing Center of Western North Carolina

Population
45,000 Estimate 1926
28,504 Census 1920
148,579 City, Suburban, 25 Mile Radius

No other city is situated to cover western North Carolina as effectively as Asheville,—high in the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Charlotte is too far (140 miles) to the southeast. Greensboro and Winston-Salem are too far (200 miles) to the northeast. Knoxville, Tennessee, across the mountains, is too far (130 miles) to the west.

Type of City

There is no other city of similar size the country over with more palatial homes and hotels. This is reflected in the high grade and varied merchandise displayed in Asheville's stores.

Asheville is a wealthy community. The very beauty of the mountainous country and mild climate, aside from business opportunities, attract many rich men.

Developments around Asheville (some not in the corporate limits but actually part of the city) have been multiplying for several years. Suburbs like Biltmore Forest, Lakeview, Grove Park defy description and strain belief. They typify wealth and culture.

The schools and colleges are many, modern and wonderful.

Business Conditions

Asheville is in the midst of a period of pronounced prosperity evident through many building operations, new roads, excellent business generally and the record breaking advertising volume in the Asheville Citizen.

Industries

Aside from local manufacturing, wholesaling, retailing, farming, fruit growing, and stock raising, the "crop" most indicative of the territory is the "tourist crop," yielding $40,000,000 in 1925 from 600,000 tourists.

Asheville is the hub of celebrated resort territory, high in North Carolina's Blue Ridge Mountains—next door to Paradise.

The Asheville Citizen

Morning and Sunday
15,000 Circulation

A. B. C. Member
Line Rate 6½c.

Asheville is Naturally a Morning Paper City

Papers from other cities cannot get into its circulation territory until the news is stale. And no evening paper in Asheville can get far out into the territory until the next morning.

The Asheville Morning Citizen has this natural advantage in addition to its news and feature services and sound management which combine to make it one of the South's most representative newspapers.

The Citizen gained nearly 2,000,000 lines of total advertising the first six months of 1926 over 1925. No other newspaper in America made such a large increase.

The National advertising gain was nearly one-quarter of a million.

These remarkable gains are significant not so much to emphasize the supremacy of the Citizen as to reflect the splendid business conditions prevailing throughout the Asheville territory.

National Representatives

E. Katz Special Advertising Agency

DETROIT NEW YORK KANSAS CITY ATLANTA CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO

Wide streets and comfortable bungalows house the textile mill workers in many of the modern mill towns of North Carolina. In most cases the homes are owned by the mills and rented for nominal sums to the employes.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page X)

neighboring small towns and villages revolves. Spinning was the principal activity until recent years, which have seen the development throughout the region of an extensive finishing business. The hard cotton yarns for which the Mecklenburg and Gaston county mills have become well known during the past decade are now being woven into cloth, and mixed with rayon, to make dress goods and shirtings of high quality.

Between Charlotte and Winston-Salem lies High Point, where furniture reigns king. Hardwood timber is still abundant on the hillsides, though not so lavishly present as it was in 1888 when the first furniture factory was established. As has been the case in innumerable industrial and civic developments of which the Tarheel is justly proud, the High Point furniture industry was financed by local capital and for years little that went into the articles manufactured came from without the immediate vicinity.

Its growth has been phenomenal in recent years, however, and the manufacturer has reached out with both hands beyond his own bailiwick, one hand seeking materials, the other markets. Four years ago the Southern Furniture Exposition Building was completed at a cost of $1,000,000 and its seasonal sales rival those of the furniture marts in Chicago and Grand Rapids—the last sale drawing 1,000 buyers from nearly every state in the union. The 40 furniture and woodworking factories employ 6,000 workers and their annual product is valued at $22,000,000.

Textiles also are important in High Point commerce, as in the neighboring cities of Greensboro and Winston-Salem. More than 100,000,000 pairs of hosiery are manufactured there every year, and these, with the output of yarn, cloth and silk mills, bring the textile product value to $18,000,000.

High Point has developed rapidly to its present population of 25,000 people and has escaped the municipal tribulations of many cities of slower growth. It now has the city manager and commission form of government, a new half-million dollar high school, 55 miles of paved streets, three modern hotels, 36 churches, comfortable suburban residences and police and fire protection that will equal the best that the state has, which is very good indeed.

Raleigh, the capital, is ideally located in the center of the state easily accessible from all sections, but like most capitals, it is distinguished for other qualities than industry and commerce. Raleigh, it is true, has a bustling local retail trade and is also a distributing center for the populous region surrounding it, but it possesses practically no factory atmosphere.

Education is its chief product, aside from the laws and their execution. Eight colleges and schools attract 4,000 students a year, exclusive of the large enrollment at the State College summer session.

The most important of these educational institutions is the North Carolina State College of Agriculture and Engineering, with a faculty of more than 100 members and 1,300 students.

It offers practical and technical training in agriculture, horticulture, animal industry, civil engineering, mechanical, electrical and textile engineering, business administration, chemistry and practical training for various trades. Connected with the college are the agricultural experiment station and the extension service, which makes the college of practical value to every farmer in the state.

St. Mary's School, the largest Episcopal boarding school for girls in the United States, was established at Raleigh in 1842. It prepares students for admission to the leading colleges for girls.

Peace Institute, a Presbyterian junior college, was established in 1857. Meredith College, a Baptist institution, was established in 1899 and has more than 400 students at the present time. King's Business College was established in 1901. St. Nicholas School, a boarding school for boys, was established in 1921. Shaw University, the oldest institution in the South, for the education of colored men and women, was established by the Baptists in 1865; it has an enrollment of more than 400 students. St. Augustine's School, established in 1867, prepares colored men and women to become teachers.

Raleigh has been headquarters in the development of co-operative marketing by North Carolina farmers. The three most important of these co-operative associations are those which market cotton, tobacco and peanuts. Other co-operative organizations market truck produce, strawberries, peaches, sweet potatoes, cheese and creamery products. The North Carolina Cotton Growers' Co-operative Association, with 32,000 members, which has handled as many as 135,000 bales of cotton during a season, has its offices in Raleigh.

Raleigh remains of greatest significance, of course, as the State capital. The old Capitol, built between 1837 and 1840, is the goal of thousands of visitors to the State. All of the State departments are housed in adequate modern buildings.

The growth of Raleigh within recent years has been rapid. The present population of the town is 32,000. It is estimated that the population increased about 6,000 within the last two years.

A leading manufacturing city south of Raleigh is Goldsboro in Wayne county. It has a population of about 15,000, which is almost treble that of 1910 and in addition to thirty manufacturing plants, it is located in the heart of a rich agricultural district. Three railroads have thirty-two passenger trains entering daily.

Textile, lumber and oil mills and furniture factories are the principal industries and there are tobacco and cotton warehouses. Goldsboro is up to the North Carolina standard in the matter of unusually wide paved streets and good roads and its nine schools have 5,000 pupils. A high school is being built supplementing a group of primary and secondary schools which stand on the site of the last battle fought in the Civil War.

West of Charlotte starts the mountain playground area, with its center at Asheville. The 25 counties that form the western tier of the state have come into their own with the highway development and they are quite conscious of their advantageous position. Indeed, there has been quite a bit of conversation regarding the formation of a separate state in this region, but conversation appears to be the limit of such a development.

(Continued on page XIV)

MORGANTON

At the gateway of the beautiful mountain region of North Carolina. An industrial center in a rich farming section.

The News-Herald

A good newspaper in a good town. A leader in the weekly field. Rates on application.

Miss Beatrice Cobb,
Editor and Publisher.

Where Diversified Agriculture is Practiced

A. Lee Rawlings, of the firm of A. Lee Rawlings and Company, certified public accountants of Norfolk, Va., and Raleigh, N. C., is authority for the statement that business conditions in Elizabeth City are more stable than in any other North Carolina city he knows of.

There's a reason.

All over the south diversified farming is preached. In the Albemarle section, of which Elizabeth City is the commercial center, it is practiced.

The Albemarle farmer is marketing some crop in practically every month of the year.

In May and June of this year Albemarle farmers shipped out of Elizabeth City 303 cars of May peas, which put into their pockets $225,000.

During June and July of this year 1,300 cars of Irish potatoes were shipped out of Elizabeth City, putting more than a million dollars into the pockets of the growers, $350,000 of which was velvet.

During July and August it is estimated that 500 cars of sweet potatoes will be shipped out of Elizabeth City, which should put into the pockets of the growers not less than a quarter of a million dollars. If these potatoes should strike a high market the amount would be around $350,000.

In the autumn months fall crops of beans, peas and potatoes will be marketed. When these late fall crops hit the market right, they are a veritable gold mine for the growers.

By the time fall truck crops have been moved the cotton picking season is in full swing.

Then in December, hog and hominy, the section's main crop, begins to go on the market. Following corn and pork comes the soy bean. Elizabeth City is the soy bean center of America.

With the foregoing facts in mind it can readily be seen why Elizabeth City should be free from the periods of depression and stagnation that mark certain months in cotton and tobacco cities.

In Elizabeth City and its trading territory the home paper is

THE DAILY ADVANCE

Elizabeth City North Carolina

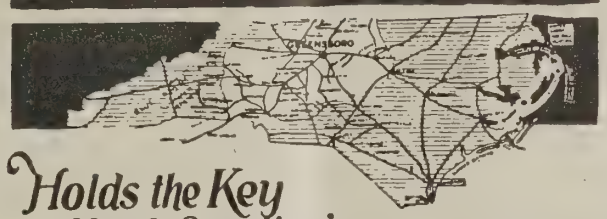
WEATHER

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS

64 PAGES TODA
SEVEN SECTION

VOL. XXXVI. NO. 63. GREENSBORO, N. C., SUNDAY MORNING, MARCH 21. 1926. PRICE:

Interpretation SINK DENIES HE TOLD Coolidges



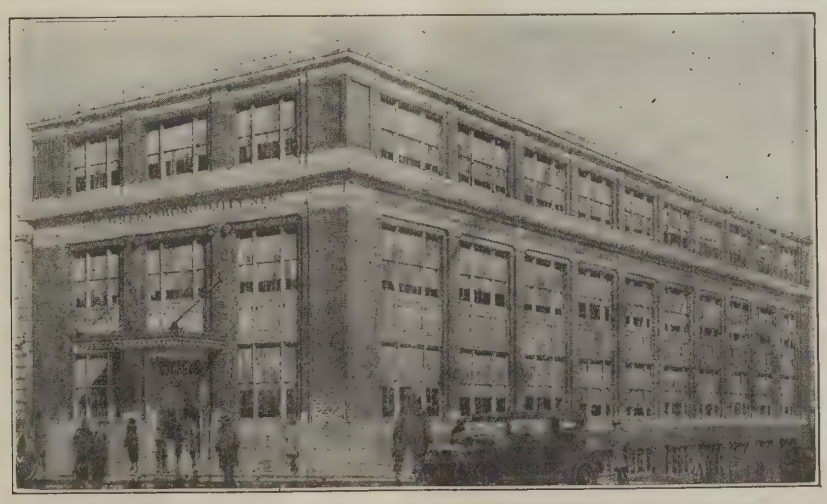
DEMOCRATIC MEETING

POPULATION
47,132 (U. S. Census estimate July, 1925.)

TRADING AREA
(35 mile radius)—
300,000

A Key City

GREENSBORO



Holds the Key to North Carolina's Wonder Industrial Zone

BUILDING APPROPRIATIONS FOR 1925

$6,192,192 — Registered an increase of 46.6 percent over previous year.

POSTOFFICE RECEIPTS FOR 1925
$405,044.30

A MORNING newspaper, with a Daily circulation of over 27,000; 32,000 Sunday, serves Greensboro and its rich and prosperous trading area. Greensboro is one of the three major markets of North Carolina. It is ideally situated for use as a distributing point for the entire South, since it has access to transportation systems throughout the United States. The Greensboro Daily News is the only A. B. C. paper in Greensboro. Advertisers desiring to get maximum returns from their advertising in and around Greensboro should avail themselves of the co-operation of the Advertising Department. Write for a complete analysis of this field.

GREENSBORO DAILY NEWS, GREENSBORO, N. C.

E. B. JEFFRESS, Manager W. S. DICKSON, Advertising Manager EARL GODBEY, Editor

CONE ROTHENBURG & NOEE, Inc. National Advertising Representatives

9 East 41st Street, New York Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. 360 North Michigan Avenue, Chicago
Donovan Bldg., Detroit, Mich. Coca Cola Bldg., Kansas City, Mo. Victoria Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page XII)

This resort area, lying in the Southern Appalachians, with the peaks of the Great Smoky and Blue Ridge mountains towering above timbered spurs and foothills, has an elevation varying from 800 feet above sea level to over 6,500 feet. The annual mean temperature for the region as a whole is about fifty-five degrees Fahrenheit.

The influx of visitors, summer, winter, spring, and fall, has led to a number of developments. Many of these are grouped at Asheville or Hendersonville. Outside Hendersonville, P. L. Wright has developed Druid Hills, an extensive suburban community. He is also active in the development of the Lake Lanier project, near Tryon, where an artificial lake is being created to supply the one recreational element sometimes lacking in the North Carolina resort.

Another extensive Hendersonville development is Laurel Park, on Jump Off Mountain. A two million dollar hotel is being built on top of the mountain.

Near Chimney Rock, one of the natural wonders of the mountain country, in Rutherford county, a company which holds 8,000 acres of land is creating the 1,500 acre Lake Lure.

Sulphur Springs Park is to be a suburb of Asheville built close to the city in the French Broad River Valley.

Near Tryon a development known as Blue Ridge Forest is being brought into existence. Two golf courses are under construction and three artificial lakes are being made. At Linville a property of 16,000 acres is being developed, adjoining a Government reserve of 39,000 acres. Nearby is Grandfather Mountain, the source of more different streams than any other mountain in the East. Scores of scenic trips can be made out of Linville, to Donald's Crag, near the Eseeola Inn, or Linville Falls, where a descent of 1,700 feet occurs in four or five miles.

Tryon, in Polk county, near the border between the two Carolinas, is situated in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, about midway between Asheville and Spartanburg, S. C., at an altitude of 1,500 feet above sea level. On every side of the city peaks rise to a height of 3,000 and 4,000 feet. It lies within the famous thermal belt of the North Carolina, notable for the absence of frost and dew and for the narrow range of temperature.

The hills surrounding Tryon have been spared the devastation that usually follows lumbering operations, and the mountains are still clothed with the forests that covered them a century ago, when they belonged to the Cherokee Indians. Numerous picturesque local industries have sprung up in Tryon, based on the mountain crafts.

Not Florida or the Mississippi Valley, but a bit of North Carolina shoreline near Wilmington, where Spanish moss drapes the trees in truly tropical fashion.

Near Grove Park Inn, a famous resort hotel on Sunset Mountain near Asheville, the Biltmore industries have revived the home-spun weaving and dyeing of cloth, and wood-working. Hand-made toys are also an important industry in Tryon.

Asheville is the wholesale and retail center for western North Carolina, and important as an industrial city, as well as the resort capital of the mountain country.

The city is situated on a wide plateau set in the midst of the southern Appalachian Mountains; within a radius of fifty miles are a score of the highest mountain peaks in eastern America. Mount Mitchell, 6,711 feet high, three hours from Asheville, is the highest peak in the East. Asheville and the resort district surrounding it are equidistant from Chicago, Philadelphia, New Orleans and Tampa, Fla.

Climate, altitude and scenery combine to allure the tourist and the all year round resident as is demonstrated by the growth of population, the building activity, and the prosperous condition of business in the district. Since 1920 the population of the city proper has increased from 28,000 to more than 37,000, the population within the township limits from 38,000 to 50,000, reflecting the growth of suburban developments, and population of the county from 64,000 to 78,000.

The assessed valuation of property in Asheville has increased during the same period from $44,000,000 to $82,000,000. Bank debits and check transactions through the Asheville Clearing House have increased nearly 100 per cent. Building permits have grown from $1,400,000 in 1920 to $6,000,000 in 1925. Bank deposits have doubled. Building and loan company assets have tripled.

These figures are all indicative of the increasing lure of the mountains. The mountains have been there for ages; geologists call this region the oldest in the United States. But it is only within comparatively recent years that a large number of tourists have found the southern Appalachian Mountains.

Advantages that can be taken of vaca-

(Continued on page XVI)

Charlotte's rapidly expanding business is being housed in structures of modern architectural beauty and utility. At the left is the new John Building, one of the highest in the city.

Durham, N. C.

An Industrial and Educational Center

Home of Duke University, "Chesterfields" and "Bull Durham." Fourth in size in State. Population 42,258, doubled since 1920. Manufactured products last year, $122,000,000, second in State. Two out of every seven people are engaged in manufacturing. Seat of tobacco and cotton weaving and knitting industry and in heart of great bright leaf tobacco growing Piedmont section. Annual bank clearings $100,000,000; debits to individual accounts $300,000,000; surplus $3,500,000. Forty-eight churches, foremost school system in State, two large hospitals, six railroads and numerous bus lines.

The Durham Sun is Durham's evening newspaper. January first to June first, 1926, shows an increase of 757,694 agate lines over the same period last year.

THE DURHAM SUN

"THE PAPER THAT GOES HOME"

ESTABLISHED 1887

NEW YORK SUN — APRIL 24, 1926

WINSTON-SALEM

NORTH CAROLINA'S LARGEST CITY

From The Evening Sentinel, April 15, 1926

Remarkable growth in every department of Winston-Salem that can be used as a barometer of a city's progress and advancement is shown in the statistics compiled by the Chamber of Commerce. The figures are contained in a compact pamphlet entitled "Brief Facts" pertaining to the "growth, progress and development of Winston-Salem since 1915."

Each phase has expanded somewhat in proportion, although several have made unusually rapid strides. During the past 15 years the estimated increase in population is nearly 52,000. There are more than 35,000 more people in the city today than there were in 1920, according to the United States Census estimate.

School building values and paved streets have shown the most decisive expansion. The value of the buildings since 1920 jumped nearly 800 per cent, while the miles of streets have increased from 37.80 to 103.45, which marks this city as having more miles of paved streets in its corporate limits than any other town in the State. School enrollment has kept pace with the progress with nearly 5,000 more students now than there were five years ago.

THE STATISTICS FOLLOW

NOTE — Figures, unless otherwise indicated, are for the year ending December 31.

POPULATION

1910 (U. S. Census)	22,356
1915 (Est. U. S. Census)	34,247
1920 (U. S. Census)	48,395
1925 (Est. U. S. Census)	74,000

VALUE OF MANUFACTURED PRODUCTS

1915 (U. S. Census)	$38,288,000
1919 (U. S. Census)	200,485,000
1923 (U. S. Census)	228,000,000

BANKING RESOURCES

	Deposits	Resources
1915	$8,988,698.55	$11,786,500.22
1920	21,133,721.09	30,964,662.62
1925	42,507,566.19	48,240,581.13

PROPERTY VALUATION

1915	$25,174,339
1920	108,801,839
1925	130,000,000

BUILDING PERMITS

1915	$501,379.00
1920	3,259,495.00
1925	5,004,381.50

SCHOOL BUILDINGS AND VALUE

	Buildings	Value
1915	13	$325,000.00
1920	14	550,000.00
1925	20	4,000,000.00

SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

	Teachers	Pupils
1915	144	5,103
1920	169	7,992
1925	387	12,476

MILES OF PAVED STREETS

1915	12.22
1920	37.80
1925	103.45

MILES OF SEWER MAINS

1915	48.23
1920	101.62
1925	154.85

MILES OF WATER MAINS

1915	56.50
1920	89.92
1925	148.61

TELEPHONES

1915	2,800
1920	3,550
1925	6,301

ELECTRIC METERS

1915	4,000
1920	6,075
1925	11,069

WATER CONSUMPTION

	Meters	Gallons
1915	4,200
1920	6,370	1,552,000,000
1925	8,700	1,941,000,000

AUTOMOBILE REGISTRATION (CITY)

1915	1,054
1920	2,701
1925	7,500
1926 (To March 15)	7,788

NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

1915	11,528
1920	19,532
1925	30,412

GAS METERS

1915	1,550
1920	1,688
1925	2,644

CITY TAX RATE (For $100 valuation)

1915	$1.20
1920	.60
1925	1.00

THE EVENING SENTINEL

WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

FIRST in the Carolinas in AUDITED HOME Circulation

253 National Advertisers Are Now Using the Sentinel

Sentinel's Lead for First Three Months of 1926 Over Second Paper Was Over a Half Million Lines

Let us tell you of this rich territory and thorough co-operation for the National Advertiser

FROST, LANDIS & KOHN

NEW YORK CHICAGO ATLANTA

New York likes shad in the springtime and the hardy fishermen of the Eastern sounds bring back in their small boats thousands of the succulent fish to be shipped to the great city markets.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page XIV)

tion around Asheville satisfy many tastes. There are at present two golf courses which have been played over by most of the prominent professional and amateur players in the country, and four more courses are under construction. The Asheville Country Club has an eighteen-hole course on the lower slopes of Sunset Mountain. To the south is the Biltmore Forest Country Club, formerly part of the George W. Vanderbilt estate. It was the scene of the Southern Amateur Golf Tournament last year. A muncipal course, to the east of the city was completed this summer. Courses are also being built at Beaver Lake, Kenilworth, and Malvern Hills.

Western North Carolina is a hunting and fishing district. The National Forests in this region have given protection to game, and deer, quail, and grouse are plentiful enough to furnish good sport. Bears are shot also.

Automobile trips over scenic highways, ranging from a few miles to several hundred, which will take the tourist into some of the most beautiful mountain scenery in America, can be planned with Asheville as the focus. The National Forests, near at hand, abound in camp sites and camps for the traveler who wishes to stay.

In Asheville itself is a group of modern all year hotels.

Development of residential suburbs has proceeded briskly within the last few years. Grovemont, a model community, developed by E. W. Grove, twelve miles from Asheville, is typical of these suburban developments. A mountain stream has been dammed to form Lake Eden and at Lake Eden park a fine clubhouse has been built. In Asheville, Mr. Grove, a pioneer in the development of North Carolina, has to his credit the removal of a mountain from the city and its replacement with Battery Park, one of the most attractive business sections of the city.

Outside Asheville, a portion of the Biltmore estate of the late George W. Vanderbilt has been obtained and is being put on the market as a highly restricted subdivision. The property has been divided into lots ranging from one to three acres in size. Other developments include Lakeview Park, Lucerne Park, Malvern Hills, Morningside and Oaklyn.

Hendersonville, separated from Asheville by rolling hills and united with it by 16 miles of smooth concrete road, is the second largest city of the section and a large summer resort, its 10,000 winter population growing to 30,000 and more when the sun sweeps hot over the rest of the state and the nation. Extensive realty operations have been in progress for several months and innumerable fine homes and cottages have risen on the hillsides and along the spacious streets. A 15-story hotel is being constructed on the top of Jump-Off Mountain, 3 miles from Hendersonville and 3,000 feet above sea level. It is reported that the real estate turnover in 1925 was 20 times that of 1924.

Five hundred miles to the East a new playground of another kind is coming to lusty life along the coast. It centers around Morehead City and Beaufort (pronounced Buford by North Carolinians).

Morehead City, with a permanent population of 3,500, is on a peninsula in Carteret county between Newport River and Bogue Sound. It is separated from the ocean by the sound, which in its turn is separated from the Atlantic by one of the long sand bars that make North Carolina's coast. A large development this summer has attracted many tourists and vacationists and liberal advertising has been done in newspapers throughout the state.

Across the river is Beaufort, which is to be connected with Morehead City by one of the new state bridges. Morehead City has other bridge plans which contemplate connecting the beaches of the Atlantic with the mainland by viaducts across the sound.

In addition to vacation affairs, which are aided by the proximity of the Gulf Stream and the balmy climate that it nurtures, Morehead City and Beaufort are supported by a large fish business, ice plants, lumber mills and box factories. The shad fishers of this region keep the cities of the entire coast supplied with their bony delicacy every Spring. Oyster-fishing is also a noteworthy activity of this and the other sound regions along the coast, their product being the large varieties of which the Lynnhaven is perhaps the best known.

The lumber industry is large and the biggest mill in the county is located on the outskirts of Beaufort. In addition to the saw-mills, a local factory supplies barrels to the potato growers and boxes for the fish exporters.

Besides the commercial fisheries there is plenty of opportunity for disciples of Izaak Walton, and, for those who fer the chase on land, the deer and f provide plenty of sport and opportu for bulging bags.

Not far distant from these sea res is Wilmington, on the Cape Fear Ri the seventh customs port in the Un States. It is midway between New Y and Florida, 30 miles from the mout the river, which has a channel feet deep. The port has a well prote anchorage basin 3,000 by 700 feet. V of merchandise passing through the toms during the past fiscal year was proximately $80,000,000. Warehouses sheds afford approximately 1,00 square feet of waterfront storage.

Several projects now under consid tion will, if carried out, make mington a port of even greater portance than at present. First the deepening of the Cape Fear R as far as Fayetteville. Another the construction of a twelve- ship channel between Wilmington Beaufort. This would allow w borne commerce to come by inland age from the West through the Canal to New York and by inland w way to Wilmington.

The Federal Government has sol the city at a nominal figure thousan acres of waterfront property on dition that it is used for warehouses docking facilities. A proposition tha

(Continued on page XVIII)

Wilmington Morning Star

WILMINGTON, N. C.

A Successful Newspaper Since 1867

The Oldest Daily in the State

Every Year Surpasses the Previous Year

Predominating In Every Field In Eastern North Carolina —Circulation, Local, National and Classified Advertising

Wilmington and Adjacent Territory

Cannot be covered completely without The STAR

Wilmington is a city of 41,000 people who are determined to make progress, and predict the greatest era of prosperity in the history of the state.

During the past year there has been more activity in and around Wilmington than any other portion of North Carolina.

PRINCIPAL INDUSTRIES

FERTILIZER—CHEMICAL—COTTON—SHIRT—CANNING
PAINT—CEMENT—LUMBER FACTORIES—COTTON
EXPORTS—TRUCKING AND IN FACT MORE DIVERSIFIED INDUSTRIES THAN ANY CITY OF ITS SIZE

FIVE BEACHES

Accessible by trolley or automobile with a floating population of 25,000 during summer months.

The Wilmington Morning Star

Maintains a department to serve advertisers in any possible way without cost

Information Gladly Furnished Upon Request

ONCE UPON A TIME—AND 1926

There once was a time when Charlotte was a one-paper town.

Not so today.

You can't get along today with one Charlotte paper—and cover this rich and prosperous territory.

Neither Charlotte newspaper has a monopoly on those virtues sought by advertisers. Those in the National field, who cannot possibly be expected to see behind the circulation screens, prefer the morning paper.

But those on the ground—those tutored in the school of experience—give The Charlotte News a majority vote. And that goes for both buyer and seller.

Charlotte buyers favor The News by 1,657 daily and 651 Sunday. More of them pay each day to read The News than pay to drink water. And this Charlotte buyer—70,000 of him—has average bank resources of $590.30—the greatest in the Carolinas.

The A B C Procession

Quarter	Evening	Sunday
2nd, 1925	16,643	16,598
4th, 1925	17,545	18,316
1st, 1926	18,060	19,071
2nd, 1926	18,909	19,901
June City	11,514	10,805

Charlotte sellers favor The News by an average of 1,403 agate lines every afternoon and Sunday too. At least, that's the average for the first six months of 1926. By Charlotte sellers, we really mean those of North Carolina. The margin would be much greater if confined to Charlotte advertisers.

Rates? You've heard the tale of low rates—"20 cents; give it away." Well, the fact of the matter is The News has the highest milline rate of any Charlotte newspaper! And why shouldn't it, in view of these facts and the further fact that 90% of its circulation is delivered by carrier or agent within a few hours following publication? That means HOME circulation in CITIES and TOWNS. And there's where income is highest and most stable. 13.8% of all the folks in this territory file personal income tax returns—a greater proportion than in New York or Boston or Philadelphia or Chicago. And 95% of these returns are filed by URBANITES, to whom The News distributes 95% of its daily circulation of 19,000 and its Sunday circulation of 20,000.

Your campaign in this territory cannot be thorough or complete without The Charlotte News.

The Verdict of Those Who Know

January 1, 1926, thru June 30, 1926

	7-day measurement	Daily Only
Charlotte NEWS	4,051,377	3,141,511
Morning Paper	3,797,539	2,599,965

Month of June, 1926

	7-day measurement	Daily Only
Charlotte NEWS	748,051	600,427
Morning Paper	666,412	449,792

For further information write

NEWS PUBLISHING COMPANY

CHARLOTTE, N. C.

—OR—

JOHN M. BRANHAM COMPANY

NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES

Chicago · New York · Atlanta · Detroit · St. Louis · Kansas City · San Francisco · Seattle · Los Angeles

Magnificent interior of a new Baptist church, the prototype of many church buildings of various denominations in the new North Carolina. Many church buildings even in small cities have been erected at a cost exceeding $200,000.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page XVI)

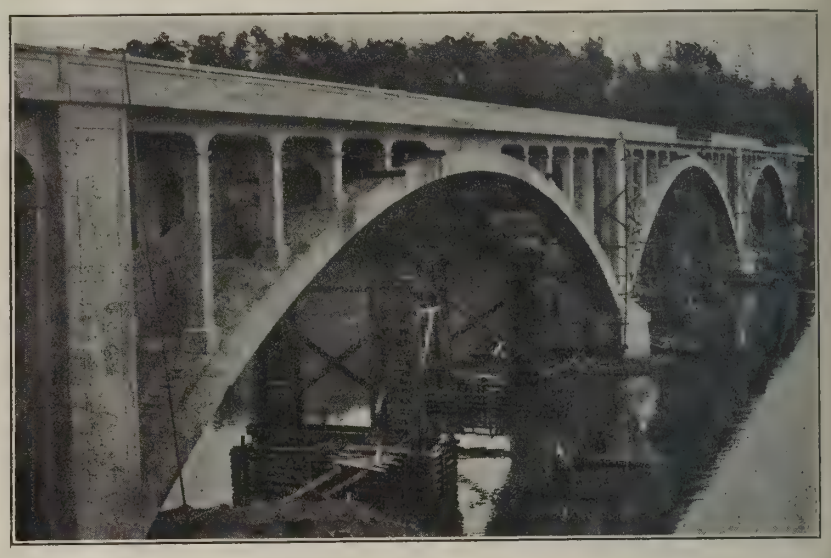
State undertake these improvements was defeated in an election, and Wilmington is now seeking permission to float a bond issue.

Although cotton and tobacco loom large in the figures, the port is not entirely dependent on these staples. Nearly 150 different articles are manufactured in Wilmington and vicinity. A number of fertilizer factories import raw material in large volume. The gross volume of business in fertilizers and fertilizer materials in 1925 was about $20,000,000.

Agricultural products form a considerable portion of the exports. Strawberries grown in the Wilmington area and moved by rail and water annually have a value of more than $1,500,000. Potatoes and other truck crops run into high values. About one-fifth of the 2,500,000 bales of cotton produced annually in North and South Carolina are usually moved through Wilmington.



The city has a diversified list of industries, with an annual payroll approaching $17,000,000. The menhaden fish factories along the Cape Fear River are among the largest in the South. Other industries include two iron works, two cotton mills, one hosiery mill, a cigar factory, cottonseed oil mills, a paint factory, two packing plants, numerous sawmills, a bag factory and a cold storage plant.

Wilmington is a distributing point and jobbing center for a territory containing nearly 400,000 people. It does a jobbing business of more than $80,000,000 annually, and its banks have combined resources of $28,000,000, with capital and surplus of about $4,000,000.

It is also a resort city, with four beaches—Wrightsville, Carolina, Wilmington and Fort Fisher—within easy reach of the city.

One of the first things the visitor to Wilmington observes is the width of the streets. Though the city is old and historic, those who first laid it out did so in such a generous fashion that they anticipated even the inordinate demand for space that would be made by the automobile.

History lies under every grain of sand along the bars that hem the several sounds of the coast from the Atlantic. It was on that coast that the famous lost colony made its home and its unexplained disappearance, leaving behind only the memory of Virginia Dare, the first white child to be born on the Continent. Dare County, largely water and sand bars, takes its name from this circumstance.

One of the many bridges which the Highway Commission has thrown across North Carolina streams since 1921 is the Morrison Bridge on the Yadkin River. It was named in honor of Cameron Morrison, who was Governor when the new road program was inaugurated.

Not far distant is Shell Point, a mammouth peninsula of bivalve shells, which tradition relates, made the site of annual prehistoric feasts of Indians from all over the continent, who learned by

(Continued on page XX)

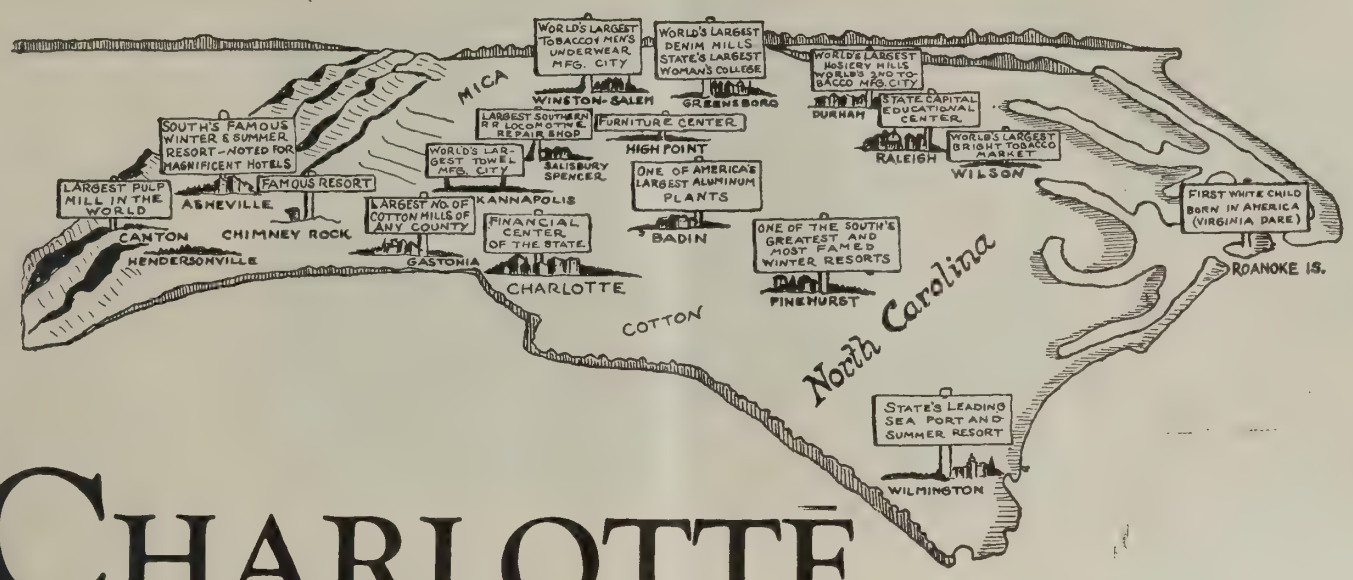
GREATER HICKORY

Population 14,000 —— Trading Population 75,000

A Profitable Market For Advertisers



60 Manufacturing and Industrial plants employing 3,000 men and women with an annual payroll of $3,000,000.00.

Advertisers should not overlook the fact that The Hickory Daily Record is read by 80% of the people in the prosperous foothills section of western North Carolina.

HICKORY DAILY RECORD

Frost, Landis & Kohn, National Representatives

CHICAGO NEW YORK ATLANTA ST. LOUIS KANSAS CITY

CHARLOTTE

A Center of the South's New Industrial Empire

Charlotte's population (1926) is estimated at 75,000.

Charlotte is the home of the Southern Power Company — said to be one of the largest hydro-electric Companies in the entire world—with an investment of over $100,000,000.00. Abundant and cheap hydro-electric power has been the greatest factor in the remarkable growth of this section.

Charlotte has a branch plant of the Ford Motor Company built at a cost of $2,000,000.00 and having a daily capacity of 400 cars.

Charlotte has a healthful and moderate all-year climate with an average temperature of 60 degrees.

Charlotte has a trading population within a hundred and fifty mile radius of more than 4,000,000 people.

Charlotte has two fine country clubs with splendid golf courses.

Charlotte has seven excellent hotels, including the new million dollar Hotel Charlotte.

Charlotte is the gate-way to the famous vacation resorts and cities in the "Land of the Sky."

Charlotte is one of the most important centers of the state highway systems—seven hard surfaced roads leading out in as many directions.

Charlotte's annual industrial payroll exceeds $19,000,000.00.

Charlotte is served by four great railway systems with more than one hundred trains per day and is headquarters for "Line East" of the Southern Railway System.

Charlotte has bank resources of over $60,000,000.

Charlotte the Center invites you to come.

For information address

Charlotte Chamber of Commerce

CHARLOTTE • • N. C.

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page XVIII)

some unknown means of communication of the wondrous oysters to be found on the North Carolina coast and journeyed hundreds of leagues to tear them from their beds, and toss the shells back into the ocean. As the centuries passed, the shell heap of the red men became a new landmark for mariners and in the early days of the past century it was a fruitful source of the raw material for the predecessor of bone fertilizers.

On these bars, near Kitty Hawk, the Wright Brothers, made the first successful airplane flghts.

Here also is a community of 300 souls, where the family names have not changed for centuries. They are fishermen and prosperous, too, with more Ford cars on their little island far from the mainland, and more grand pianos and radios than there are families. Not a trace of the well-known clam-digger type appears in their faces or their habits. They have kept abreast of the developments of modern civilization and they have kept their stock physically fresh by seeking their wives in other communities.

Discriminating people from all parts of the country have long been aware of the advantages offered by these quiet bays and beaches for real vacation pleasures and the present efforts of the developers is to make a far greater number acquainted.

At New Bern, Morehead City, Beaufort and further down to Wilmington develooment of beaches and vacation places offer a double appeal—"For the Northerner in the cold months and for the Southerner in the hot months."

Morehead Bluffs, New Bern resort, Pinecliff, Carolina Beach and Wrightsville Beach represents the new idea. The New Bern property is 1,500 acres being developed by a corporation of prominent men of the State. They have taken over estates and hunting lodges on both sides of the Trent River and will put in golf courses, tennis courts, bridle paths, etc., while natural beauties will be preserved. A stock issue is being used to develop the resort.

Charlotte's new city hall has been erected on Tryon Street, the main thoroughfare in a section of the city which is fast becoming of first importance as an office centre.

Morehead Bluffs is a 1,250 acre resort and colony rising on the heights overlooking Bogue Sound. Two golf courses, a community clubhouse and a yacht basin are to be part of the development. Streets and sidewalks are being built and water and lighting systems installed. A four-story hotel of the Spanish stucco type was opened about July 4. A casino and a waterfront park go with the hotel. In dredging Coral Bay for a yacht basin the company is making use of the 250,000 cubic yards of dirt for the building of a two mile hard surface highway along the shore.

The Pinecliff Camp and Country Club is on the Neuse River, twenty miles below New Bern. This is a membership club, with references required from applicants and a home site going with the initation fee.

Carolina Beach, 15 miles from Wilmington, is on the mainland and connected with the seaport city by a hard surface road. A group of real estate men and business men from the Piedmont section have taken over a large parcel of land fronting the ocean and have a new hotel almost ready. One of the interesting things about Carolina Beach is the existence of a fresh water lake, large and deep, withi fifty yards of the ocean. The new hote faces this lake.

Pender county, 24 miles above Wilming ton and bounded on one side by the A lantic Ocean, has 548,280 acres of land c which only 36,000 are under cultivatio leaving a vast area of timber and cutove lands that could be put under crops. Th soil runs from a sandy loam, with cla subsoil to a fine silty loam, interspers with dark loamy soils.

Cotton, tobacco, Irish potatoes, swe potatoes, peanuts, forage crops, corn, oat rye and a variety of other cash crops a successfully grown and truck crops inclu ing strawberries, string beans, cucumber lettuce, radish, beets, green corn a melons are shipped to Eastern markets.

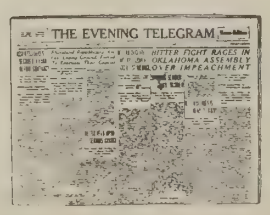
At present, Pender county has abo 1,500 acres in permanent pastures a 1,000 acres seeded for pasture this sprin Most of these pastures are a mixture carpet grass and lespedeza which w feed two cows an acre for seven mont in the year. A Milk and Cattle Growe Association maintains a milk route, d tributing cans and picking up the farme milk, selling more than three hundr gallons of milk a day in this mann Burgaw, the county seat has a populati of 1,400.

New Bern, geographical center of agricultural and resort section of junction coastal plain, is situated at ju tion of the Neuse and the Trent rive The Government census of 1920 gave city a population of 12,198, and it da back to 1710, when it was settled by Sw and Germans. The name comes fr New Berne after the Swiss city. T was the second town founded in State, and it is rich in historical asso tions of Colonial and Revolutionary da

The crops of Craven and the surrou ing counties include cotton, corn, p toes, tobacco, onions and practically ev variety of truck. The leading industr the present time is lumber with the lar mill in the southeast being located th

Fayetteville, once the largest city in State, is today a center of traffic

(Continued on page XXII)



ROCKY MOUNT

North Carolina

Rocky Mount is one of the most prominent railroad, industrial and agricultural centers of the State. This territory is one of the largest producers of tobacco, peanuts, cotton, oats, rye, corn, truck, fruits and vegetables in the Carolinas. This progressive and prosperous city and immediate vicinity can be covered by the use of

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

with its circulation of 4,000 daily concentrated in this large and rich territory which no other daily newspaper reaches. This exclusive market has a population of over 75,000. In Eastern North Carolina it's Rocky Mount, and in Rocky Mount it's

THE EVENING TELEGRAM

Represented by

FROST, LANDIS & KOHN

Chicago, New York, Atlanta, St. Louis, Kansas City

Lenoir News-Topic

VOL. LI. Established 1875 LENOIR, N. C., SATURDAY, JULY 31, 1926 THE ONLY NEWSPAPER IN CALDWELL COUNTY No. 43

NOIR CEASES TO BE ATEWAY TO RESORTS AND IS ONE HERSELF

ot being content with being the largest strial center of Northwestern North olina, the little mountain city of Len- is going after the tourist trade in est this summer.

ituated as it is within twenty miles Blowing Rock, the oldest mountain rt in the south, nestling amid the ntains; served by the Carolina and th Western Railway, and fed by five he great state highways, Lenoir awoke the possibilities that lay within its p to capitalize these assets and become ourist town. Today its streets are id with cars from many states, its ls crowded with visitors, every board- house filled to capacity, and empty ses as scarce as hen's teeth.

inding that hundreds of people could live at the higher altitudes and many re who preferred conveniences of the to the crudeness of the mountains wanting to enjoy the beautiful scen- and cool evenings they offered, Lenoir lt a modern tourist and commercial el which opened this week to capacity iness. Plans are already being made have an even greater season next r.

Hospital Will Open Soon

The contractor in charge of building erations of the new hospital states the ilding will be complete about the end the month, equipment installed, and the titution ready for business the early rt of August. Dr. Crowell, one of best known surgeons in the south ll be in charge.

Five New Plants This Year

Among the activities reported at the nual meeting held this month by the al Chamber of Commerce, was the curing of five new industries for the y, the largest being the Jennings Fur- ture Company, one of the largest and ost modern furniture factories in the ate.

x Million Invested in the Industries of City

Over six million dollars are invested stock in the industrial plants of Lenoir, hich in turn produce over nine million llars' worth of products yearly, stated . C. Robbins, prominent manufacturer the city, speaking recently before a roup of business men here.

Continuing Mr. Robbins stated that the vestment in the county represented near n million in manufacturing, with an utput of near fifteen millions of dollars. ver three thousand people are employed these plants.

Lenoir Enjoying Building Boom

The past six months have seen such uilding activity in Lenoir and in the mmediate section that two new building upply material manufacturing plants have ocated here within the past few months. This building activity has not been con- ined to the town itself but to the entire urrounding country. The activity has lso covered both business buildings and esidences.

In addition to the construction of busi- ness houses and residences contract has recently been let by Davenport College for a new science hall and another is to be let by the city school board for a new public school building.

HAPPY VALLEY LAKE ESTATES A PLACE OF SCENIC BEAUTY

One of the outstanding real estate developments in Western North Carolina is located on the Lenoir-Blowing Rock highway, six miles of this city and within twenty miles of the famous mountain resort, Blowing Rock. Happy Valley Lakes Estates is a creation by God and man; nature giving it beauty and man making it modern.

This great development is a result of a series of editorials appearing in the News-Topic and the personal work by the editor of the paper, who in connection with the officials of the Chamber of Commerce interested P. L. Wright of Hendersonville, one of the South's leading developers, to take over the development of the project.

The property comprises some six thousand acres and is located in Happy Valley, a place so called by its Indian inhabitants some two hundred years ago. Elaborate plans have been prepared and construction work is advanced to the stage where the development shows its magnitude and permanency. The building of a two hundred acre lake, which will be fed by the sparkling waters of the Yadkin river, the construction of an 18 hole golf course and a spacious rock club house, which combined with the towering mountains, gives the development advantages offered by no other resort in the state. The completed development will include a large tourist hotel, canoe and yacht club, polo and athletic field, aeroplane landing field, camps for boys and girls, botanical garden, zoo and many other attractions necessary to make out an ideal community and summer resort.

Located as it is, on a much traveled state highway, hundreds of people inspect the property daily. Its natural beauty, together with roads and other improvements of the development, makes this property one of the easiest selling developments in Western North Carolina, and Eisele Bros., who have the exclusive sales contracts, are keeping busy the largest selling force ever assembled in the state on one development.

The publicity and advertising of Happy Valley Lake Estates are under the direction of L. J. Penny, who was formerly connected with some of the south's leading newspapers.

Largest Cordage Mill in the World

The Granite Cordage Company, located at Granite Falls, this county, is the largest plant of this kind in the world. Recently this plant built a subsidiary plant to utilize the waste from the cordage plant. This new plant takes this waste and makes mops and other products.

Cow, Hog and Hen County

For years Caldwell county has enjoyed the reputation of being one of the leading dairying counties of the state. Natural conditions favor the section and have made it easy for many farmers to build up a successful industry along this line.

Dairymen have not worked along a single purpose idea. They have joined hands in an effort to make Caldwell county the "Cow, Hog, and Hen" county of North Carolina. Some of the finest flocks of poultry in the south are located here and poultry has stood in line with the dairying and creamery products in bringing first prizes from state, district and county fairs.

LENOIR HAS:
6,125 people.
30 miles paved sidewalks.
12 miles paved streets.
$1.25 tax rate on 60% valuation.
3 Banks and 2 B. & L. Asso.
12 Furniture Plants.
7 Textile Plants.
40 Industries in all.
$3,000,000.00 payroll.
5 State highways.
Opportunities.
LENOIR NEEDS:
Men with vision.
Capital.

Active Chamber of Commerce Here

Under the leadership of Charles M. Sturkey, executive secretary, Lenoir has one of the most active Chambers of Commerce in the state. Mr. Sturkey was formerly editor and publisher of the Chairtown News at Thomasville, N. C. The local organization has taken the lead and has been actively connected with many different campaigns on community work.

Amusement for the Golfer

To those who have the golf bug, the Lenoir-Blowing Rock section offer several courses which will give everything the heart could desire for a day's sport.

Two sporty courses are to be found at Blowing Rock, one completed and one under construction at Linville, and one under construction at Happy Valley with one proposed in Lenoir.

A Church and School Town

With thirteen churches to care for the spiritual life of the city, one girls' college, one boys' industrial school, and three public schools, Lenoir offers splendid inducement to those seeking a real home where one may live under wholesome conditions.

President Jenkins of Davenport College states the prospects point for the greatest year in the history of this well known girls' college, and as usual the Patterson School for Boys will be filled to capacity.

Post Office Sales Are Doubled in Ten Years

Speaking before the Kiwanis Club recently, Postmaster J. C. Smith gave some startling information as to growth of the government business in Lenoir. "Stamps sales jumped from $10,020.54 in 1910 to $22,033.17 in 1925," stated the postmaster; which is more than double over a period of ten years. Total business done in the post office during the past year amounted to well over one hundred thousand dollars.

Big Playground

During the past two years forest roads have been opened thru the 60,000-acre Government National Forest in this county. Each season now thousands of people are motoring thru this forest on camping trips. Several camps for boy' and girls' organizations have been established and one camp by the adults of the City of Salisbury. J. F. Hurley, owner and editor of the Salisbury Post, has been active in establishing these camps and is one of the many who has spent enjoyable outings in this section.

THROBBING INDUSTRIES TURN WHEEL OF PROSPERITY FOR LENOIR

"Business is good in Lenoir" is the information given by the traveling men to their friends and customers in their territory; and the traveling salesman is one of the best barometers of business known to science today.

For business to be good there must first be people, the people must have money, and there must be either a desire on the part of the people voluntarily, or a demand created by advertising, for the necessities or luxuries of life. All these conditions exist in Lenoir. Its population of over six thousand people, backed by a trade territory containing one hundred thousand more, its forty varied industries pouring three millions of dollars annually into the pockets of its people, and these people having a desire for the better things of life, naturally and created by reading advertising, make business good.

Twelve furniture factories place the city second in production of furniture in the state. Seven textile plants gives it recognition as a spinning center and its various other industries help in making true its slogan, "An Industrial City With A Resort Location."

By its diversified industry, Lenoir never suffers long depressions of business as do many cities. The world is a market for its furniture products, and sectional slumps do not affect the output; in fact more Lenoir furniture is sold in the northwest than in the south.

So there is a reason for business being good in the little mountain city of Lenoir, for the big industrial dollar of the community acts as a big power plant to keep things moving merrily on.

Plenty of Power for Plants

Lenoir is situated in the district that has seen so much development by the Southern Power Company. One of its plants is located at Rhodhiss, in this county. This plant develops 40,000 horsepower. There are several other large plants located in this immediate section that combine in furnishing unlimited power for the industries of Lenoir and Caldwell county.

Large Trading Territory Makes Lenoir a Trading Center

Lenoir is the largest town in that tier of half a dozen counties that make up the north western part of North Carolina. It is also the commercial and trading center for several other counties. In this trading area there are possibly one hundred thousands persons who buy their supplies and necessities of life thru Lenoir merchants and business houses.

This trading center is widely diversified in interest. Fruit growing, cattle raising and dairying make up the greatest of agricultural interests, and these are closely followed by growing corn, wheat and other small grains. One large co-operative creamery is operated here. This is owned by the farmers of the county. The local creamery with two others nearby and a half a dozen cheese factories serve the community and furnish a ready market for the cream, butter fat and milk produced on the farms. Several large commercial orchards ship apples to many parts of the country.

Only Plant in the South

Lenoir has the only plant in the south manufacturing hunting coats. This plant was established in 1919 and has operated successfully since its first year. Lenoir made hunting coats are shipped to practically every section of the south.

—ADVERTISEMENT

ENTERPRISE NOW RULES NORTH CAROLINA

(Continued from page XX)

seven State highways radiating from it. It is 115 miles northwest of Wilmington, at the head of navigation of Cape Fear River.

A revival in interest in waterway transportation in the State has led to an appeal to the Federal Government to complete a third system of locks and dams, which would provide a channel eight feet deep from Wilmington to Fayetteville and which it is expected would make the latter city a large inland port.

Fayetteville is the county seat of Cumberland county, which last year produced 30,000 bales of cotton, 1,000,000 pounds of tobacco and about 900,000 bushels of corn.

There are five cotton mills in the city, employing about 1,000 persons and a score of smaller manufacturing plants.

Elizabeth City, combining the quaintness and elm-lined streets of the old South with the go-getter ideas of 1926, edges up to the banks of Albemarle Sound. It is the focus of the rich potato and soybean region and is happy over the prosperity of last Spring. Local projects include a new hotel, to be built with $450,000 subscribed by the town's business men and a handsome theatre.

Edenton, on the Chowan River, includes homes that were built in England almost 200 years ago, and was the scene of the first Revolutionary tea party. It was also the site of the Colonial government. From the Civil War, it recalls the fight of the ironclad Albemarle against Union warships, which occurred under the gaze of the stay-at-homes. These things are remembered by this beautiful little town, which is now turning its thoughts also to a bridge across the Chowan, replacing the present long ferries. It is also an important centre for the peanut growers of Chowan and neighboring counties.

New courthouses, like the above at Wilson, are gracing the county seats of many North Carolina localities

Hickory, on the western edge of the Piedmont, 85 miles east of Asheville, has a population of about 6,500. The value of the property in the city is about $13,000,000 and it has up to date buildings, schools and churches as well as good railroad and highway connections.

In and near the city are sixty industrial plants. The Catawba River, center of the great hydro-electric development company, is an aid to the industries in getting cheap power. The three principal industries of Hickory are cotton, hosiery and furniture turning out annually products valued at more than $8,000,000 and having a payroll of some $1,500,000. The cotton and lumber used in the manufacturing plants come from the fields and the forests of Catawba and nearby counties.

While Catawba county is predominantly industrial, it is also important agriculturally. The Department of Agriculture in 1924 showed a total of 242,411 acres in farms of which 85,025 acres were actually under cultivation. The idle acres amounted to 35,246 acres and the remainder were in woodland, waste or cut-over timber land.

Rocky Mount, known as the "Gateway City of Eastern Carolina," is located in the heart of a fertile agricultural section on the main line of the Atlantic Coast Railway, for which it is division headquarters, and at the intersection of the capital to coast and in South Atlantic Coastal Highways.

The city, with a population in excess of 20,000, represents a combination of agricultural and industrial development. With cotton and tobacco the principa crops of the section.

Rocky Mount is naturally a large mar keting center. Last year 12,000 bales c cotton and 27,000,000 pounds of brigh leaf tobacco, the tobacco alone bringin over $7,000,000, were sold on the loc market.

Industries in which these two produc figure have developed, more than a doze tobacco factories and the first cotton mi established in North Carolina are l cated here. Topping the industrial lif however, are the Emerson Shops of th Atlantic Coast Line Railway, the large of the Coast Line system, employir more than 2,000 workers. Industri plants of Rocky Mount have an estimate valuation of $10,000,000, with an annu payroll of approximately $8,000,000.

Building construction last year repr sented an aggregate expenditure of $1 200,000. Bank deposits total $7,000,0 with combined bank resources of $8 000,000. Bank clearings annually w run between $20,000,000 and $25,000,0

SEEK COMPENSATION

Mellett's Family May Get $6,500 fro Ohio Industrial Commission

An award under the workmen's co pensation law will be sought by the wi ow of Don R. Mellett, Canton edit victim of gunmen, it was indicated th week when inquiry was made at the i dustrial commission for the necessa blanks for such an application.

Herman R. Witter, director of indu trial relations, said such a claim would difficult to decide, as a person must killed or injured in the course of regular work to be entitled to compen tion.

In the past members of the industr commission have ruled that "a newspa man is always on duty." Should t ruling still hold good, the widow a children of the Canton editor will be titled to an award of $6,500 as well the payment of all funeral expenses.

CONCORD, NORTH CAROLINA

One of the best small cities in the far famed Piedmont Section of the leading state in the New South.

The Piedmont Carolina section is rapidly forging to the front as the textile center of the United States. Cabarrus County has the second largest number of spindles in the entire state. It also boasts the largest towel mill in the world.

With already large pay rolls, and new industries springing up, this section offers wonderful opportunities for distribution of worth while products. Complete coverage for this city and county is afforded by

The Concord Daily Tribune — Every Afternoon Except Sunday

The Concord Times — Every Monday and Thursday

The only daily and semi weekly papers published in this county.

J. B. Sherrill, Editor & Publisher

COME UP TO ASHEVILLE
IN
"THE LAND OF THE SKY"

GOLF over famous courses—riding or hiking through the lovely mountains of "The Land of the Sky"—swimming in placid lakes, fishing in mountain streams. Motor trips over perfect roads to rugged scenery, to towering peaks, to glens and gorges. Trips to Chimney Rock, to the Great Smokies, to Mt. Mitchell, the highest peak in the East.

There is so much to do in Asheville—so much to see—so many places to visit—so many ways of employing one's time that any stay seems all too short.

That's the reason Asheville's hotels never close. It's a year-round resort. Its prosperity knows no season. That's why business is always brisk—why values and investments know no slumps.

Come and see Asheville for yourself. Come and enjoy a week or a lifetime.

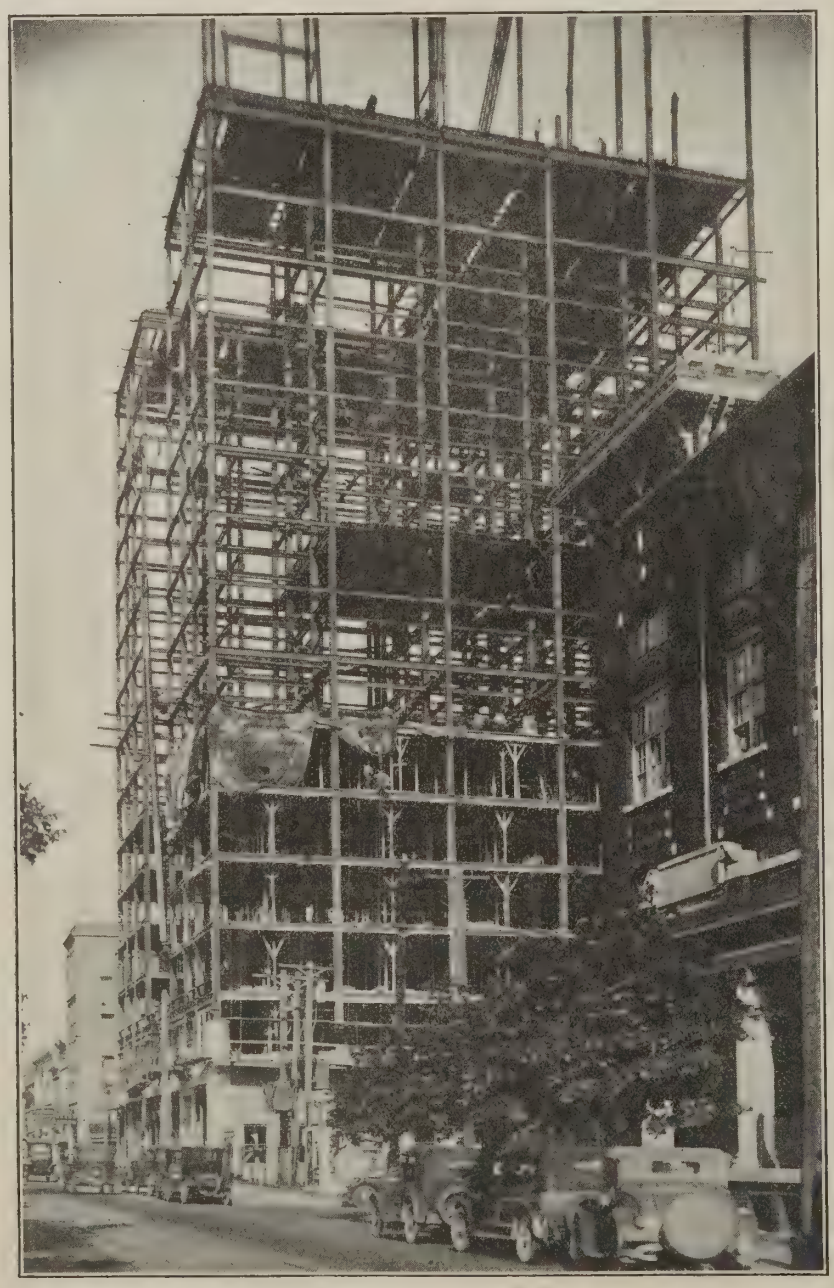
Asheville is easily reached by splendid train service—twenty-seven through Pullman lines. Or if you prefer to motor, you'll find good roads leading from every part of the country.

Write for illustrated literature and detailed information.

Asheville Chamber of Commerce
Asheville, N. C.

ILLITERACY RECORD CUT TWO-THIRDS IN 25 YEARS BY NORTH CAROLINA

School System Completely Reformed—Annual Expenditure Now $33,000,000 Against $1,000,000 in 1901—Fine Buildings Throughout State



THE present flourishing condition of North Carolina's public education system gives no hint as to the vastly contrary situation which prevailed at the dawn of the 20th century. Schools were few and far apart, hardly proof against even the mild vicissitudes of Carolina weather, undermanned by poorly paid teachers, and offering few reasons and no inducements for the improvement of the state's appalling illiteracy record. Approximately 400,000 children attended school then and few of them went as far in education as to attend the 30 high schools which served the state. Fewer still of the poorer people attained to an education at the State University, the oldest in the country and distinguished since the first days of the United States for its scholarship and service to state and nation.

The state's plight in this matter was receiving the earnest attention of Walter Hines Page, later war-time Ambassador from the United States to the Court of St. James's, and some newspaper editors and other distinguished North Carolinians, during the 'nineties, but the impetus which started the reform came from Governor Charles B. Aycock, who was elected in 1901 on a platform of good roads and good schools. Progress was slow for many years afterward, but the $1,000,000 spent for education in 1901 had grown to more than $12,000,000 by 1920, and in 1925 the total for current expenses and for new buildings exceeded $33,000,000.

Only 53 of the 1,200 log cabins which served as schools in 1901 remain today.

The 30 per cent illiteracy which aroused Page and his fellows to activity had been cut to 12 per cent by 1920, the latest figures available, and there is no doubt that the tremendous burst of school development in the past five years has considerably reduced the 1920 percentage.

Twenty-one thousand teachers of the present day contrast with the 8,320 employed in 1899, and their average monthly salary of $100, is more than four times the average teacher's pay at the beginning of the century. The total enrollment in the schools is about 800,000. North Carolinians today modestly claim that 'their school system and their school buildings are the best in the country, or at least equal to the best.

All of the larger cities of North Carolina have extensive building programs, with office skyscrapers not forgotten. The above photograph shows the twin 18-story Nissen Building now under construction in Winston-Salem.

North Carolina now has at Chapel Hill a state university that is generally regarded as making more progress than any other in the South. It is the oldest state university in the country, started 137 years ago, and gaining first class status 131 years ago. Of its 456 students in 1859, 159 were from other states. The contributions of the University during this early period to the public service of the state, the south and the nation were altogether extraordinary. It numbered among its alumni a President and a Vice-President of the United States, seven cabinet officers, five foreign ministers, nine senators, 41 members of the national house of representatives, 13 out of 20 governors of North Carolina from 1814 on, seven governors of other states, and a long list of other eminent and distinguished men.

Thus known and honored, the University stood in 1860 in the forefront of the educational institutions of the south. In most details it differed very greatly from the university of today. That which links up the old University with the new, in spite of all differences in method, in outlook, is spirit of service to its state and to the south that animates, now as then, its efforts.

Measured by modern standards, "there were limitations about what the old University did. Its students were chiefly from the well-to-do classes; its standards of scholarship were not high. But the point is that these limitations grew out of the life of its day and time. It was the character of this life that shaped its efforts. It met, and met well, the task of its generation."

The University managed to pull through the Civil War, although there was only one man to graduate in 1865, and three other seniors; but it was the only southern institution to celebrate its commencement that year. However, it could not survive the Reconstruction period and was forced to close its doors for five years. Out of the ruins of reconstruction days was born the greater University that last October so fittingly celebrated the semi-centennial of its reopening.

The significant thing about the growth of the University during the last half century is that it has closely paralleled the growth of the state. Their development has been complementary.

During this last half century there have come many changes. In place of a campus of eight buildings, and a few acres of land 50 years ago, one finds a campus of 42 buildings and of 68 acres, not to mention 500 acres contiguous to the campus and partly laid off in walks and drives. In 1875 it had a student body of 69 and a faculty of eight members. Today one finds a student body of approximately 2,500 and a faculty of 175. More than 40 per cent of this faculty hold degrees from the University of North Carolina.

During this last 50-year period the University has given instruction to more than 72,000 students. Enrolled for the regular nine-month term have been 45,000, for the summer terms 20,000 and for extension class and correspondence courses, 7,000.

With a frequency that must be gratifying to the people of the State there comes from day to day to the University manifold evidence that its work is attracting wide-spread and favorable attention. Its recent admissions to the Association of American Universities and its recent election to the presidency of that body (made up of less than 30 universities usually regarded as the foremost in America); its recent gift from the Laura Spelman Rockefeller Memorial Foundation for investigation in social and economic problems because it seems clear that the University has the men and the spirit to profit by such an opportunity; a recent editorial statement in the Manufacturers' Record that the University was serving the needs of the people better than any other southern institution it knew—these are but the samples of impressions it has made on others.

The university is not only the oldest

A Message in FIGURES that COUNT

'Tis said that figures are uninteresting and dry—but the figures below tell a tale that every wide awake space buyer and national advertiser can quickly read and see the real story contained therein! READ!

TOTAL LINAGE
From January 1st, through—

June 22, 1926	2,634,716
June 22, 1925	2,047,164
Increase	587,552

NATIONAL LINAGE
From January 1st, through—

June 22, 1926	356,342
June 22, 1925	169,190
Increase	187,152

110⅔% Increase!

According to Chesterfield—
Such Popularity
Must Be Deserved!

"THERE'S A REASON . . ."

RESULTS COUNT!

Don't forget High Point when planning your next campaign.

Use

THE HIGH POINT NORTH CAROLINA ENTERPRISE

The only daily newspaper in High Point
Published every afternoon and Sunday Morning

J. P. RAWLEY R. B. TERRY
Publishers

DAN. R. SCHRODER, Adv. Mgr.

FROST, LANDIS & KOHN
National Representatives
New York Atlanta
Chicago St. Louis

tate university in the country. It also has the distinction of having the oldest summer school in the country. The latter was established in 1877, just two years after the reopening, by President Battle. N. W. Walker has been director since 1908.

During the last half century the university has made a notable record in various fields. It has accumulated the largest college library in the South between Johns Hopkins and the University of Texas, including 151,000 volumes and 1,700 periodicals and pamphlets.

University income from state appropriations has shown a steady increase. Despite repeated efforts the University received no appropriation from the legislature until 1881. That first one was $5,000 for maintenance. In 1905 there was $45,000 for maintenance and $50,000 for a chemical laboratory. In 1915 there was $115,000 for maintenance and $15,000 for permanent improvements.

Last year the total income was slightly less than $2,000,000 including appropriations of $750,000 for buildings and permanent improvements. During the last 10 years the legislature has appropriated a total of $4,440,000 for buildings and permanent improvements.

Duke University traces its origin to 1838 with the establishment of Union Institute by the Methodists and Quakers. In 1858 it became the Normal College, the first institution for the training of teachers in the South. In 1858 it became Trinity College and came under the direction of the Methodist Episcopal Church South. In 1892 Trinity College was removed to Durham, largely through the efforts of Washington Duke, who gave $85,000 to make certain the removal of the college.

In 1924 James B. Duke, son of Washington Duke, announced the formation of a trust fund to transform Trinity College into a university, on the condition that it change its name to Duke University.

Mr. Duke set aside $40,000,000 for this trust fund, of which $6,000,000 was to be used for the material expansion of the university; the principal of the trust fund was then to be allowed to accumulate until it again amounted to $40,000,000.

Duke University was then to receive approximately a third of the interest of this trust fund.

Mr. Duke had previously shown his interest in Trinity College by presenting a new building for its library and $10,000 for the purchase of books, by donating $50,000 for the creation of a dormitory, and by adding, with his brother, Benjamin N. Duke, $800,000 to its permanent endowment in 1913.

Between 1904 and 1913 he contributed $50,000 to the current expenses of the college, in 1922 gave $100,000 for that purpose, and in 1923 gave $1,000,000 to the endowment fund.

In October, 1925, he died, less than a year after he had created his trust fund, and by his will it was found that he had expressed his generosity to the university further by the outright bequest of $10,000,000 and by the bequest to it of his residuary estate.

These gifts have made it the most richly endowed educational institution in the United States.

The residuary estate included Mr. Duke's holdings of great manufacturing and hydro-electric developments in the Carolinas and these companies are administered by their officers for the benefit of the university and other benevolent and religious bodies selected by Mr. Duke for endowment.

Perhaps no single event in the history of the state has done so much to inspire the spirit of progress and self-improvement as the Duke enterprise. The name of the famous tobacco pioneer, who founded his fortune on skill in advertising, "Bull Durham" being finally painted on the pyramids of Egypt, is a revered house-hold word in the state. Knowledge and industry, Mr. Duke held, are the unbeatable factors of life and his great gift to a beloved state put this ideal into motion in behalf of his fellow citizens.

"ADS" THAT ADD

PLACED IN

A Rich Territory
Covered Completely

The Cleveland Star

DOMINATES—

Shelby, North Carolina's Fastest Growing Town by U. S. Census, 1920-25.

Cleveland County, Carolina's Banner Agricultural County according to The Country Gentleman.

REACH the most progressive section of N. C. through the State's leading newspaper out of the daily field. The home paper of the South's leading farmers.

Going three times each week into, and over, four counties

Covering a county that in N. C. ranks FIRST in Farming, THIRD in Textile Manufacturing, THIRD in Cotton Production, SECOND in Dairy Products.

The Cleveland Star

SHELBY, NORTH CAROLINA

(The Star's advertising lineage increase is not excelled by any other Carolina paper. 20,000 Readers—all Buyers)

GASTONIA

North Carolina

"The South's City of Spindles"

Has a population of 20,594 within city limits.

A daily pay roll from textile plants of $17,555.00.

Eight thousand employees in its cotton mills.

Banking resources of over $12,000,000.

Thirty-five cotton mills inside city; 8 in suburbs.

A textile machinery plant making largest dyeing machinery manufactured in the world.

Foundries, wood working plants, roller cover shops and many other small industries.

Five banks with deposits of nearly $8,000,000.

Three railroads, Southern, C. & N.-W. and Piedmont & Northern. Also bus lines to all important points.

County seat of Gaston County.

GASTON COUNTY

NORTH CAROLINA

"The Combed Yarn Center of the South"

Has 100 cotton mills with 16,684 employees and a daily mill pay roll of $33,865.00. Pay rolls in industries other than cotton mills, $250,000 annually. Has eleven incorporated towns, more than any other county in North Carolina. Two-thirds of acreage of county under cultivation. A population of 60,000, ranking second in State in percentage of increase.

THE GASTONIA DAILY GAZETTE—

Is the only newspaper published in Gastonia and the only daily published in Gaston county. Established in 1880 and has been published without interruption or change of name for 46 years. Under present ownership and management for 20 years. The open door to the majority of the homes in one of the South's greatest industrial counties. Circulation of nearly 6,000. National advertisers can reach Gaston people more effectively and at less cost through The Gazette than in any other way whatever.

First Industrial Edition issued in nineteen years now in course of preparation for issuance last of August or first of September. For space in this edition write to Gazette Publishing Co., Gastonia, N. C. Ten thousand copies of this edition will be distributed.

FROST, LANDIS & KOHN

National Representatives

NEW YORK CHICAGO ST. LOUIS ATLANTA

STATISTICS SHOW MANIFOLD INCREASES IN NORTH CAROLINA'S BUSINESS

Farms, Mines and Factories Share in and Contribute to Unparalled Growth of Past Quarter-Century

STATISTICS have been kept to a minimum in this review of North Carolina's progress, but they cannot be wholly barred from the picture. Those compiled by the Manufacturers' Record in its 1926 Blue Book of Southern Progress tell an amazing story of 25 years' growth. For instance:

North Carolina's population increased from 1,893,810 in 1900 to 2,812,000 in 1925.

Its true property valuation increased from $681,982,000 in 1900 to $4,543,110,000 according to an appraisal made in 1922.

In passing, it might be remarked that this disclosure of their true wealth amazed North Carolinians and gave tremendous impetus to the expansion program. The Tarheel found that he had completely recovered from the poverty that had downed him for decades after the Civil War.

Assessed value of property in 1925 was $2,803,000,000 against $306,579,715 in 1900. The state levies no taxes on real or personal property, leaving this immense reservoir available for local benefits.

Capital invested in industries increased almost ten-fold in the quarter-century—from $68,283,005 to $669,144,000.

Value of manufactured products increased at an even greater ratio—from $85,274,083 to approximately $1,000,000,000.

Of these industries, cotton manufacture presents a striking story. From an investment of $33,012,000 in 1900, the textile industry has grown to a capital value of $268,323,000. Its products, valued 25 years ago at $28,373,000 in 1923 reached a valuation of $326,572,000. Number of active spindles increased from 1,134,909 to 5,909,666. There are approximately as many spindles today in the single county of Gaston as in the entire state in 1900. Active looms, then numbering 25,469, now total 83,564. Consumption of raw cotton has increased from 404,535 bales to 1,350,000 bales.

Furniture manufacture presents an even more astounding picture of growth—from $1,023,000 in 1900 to $40,000,000 in 1923 and more than $45,000,000 in 1925, according to unofficial figures.

The lumber cut is decreasing in North Carolina, as in the entire East, due to the steady inroads of the past upon virgin forests without provision for replacement. The cut of 1,278,399,000 board feet in 1900 had dropped to 1,071,912,000 in 1924, the latest statistical data. There is plenty of timber left in the state, but its furniture industry has had to seek imports to meet its tremendous expansion.

The state has 31,193,600 acres of land, of which 18,597,795 are in farms and 7,714,000 acres are cultivated. The number of farms has increased from 224,637 in 1900 to 283,492 in 1925. Value of all farm property was set in 1900 at $233,834,693 and in 1925 at $1,039,000,000. Cultivated farm land rose from a 1900 valuation of $141,955,840 to a 1925 figure of $689,719,172. Value of crops in the same period increased from $68,625,000 to $318,661,000.

Acreage devoted to cotton more than doubled in the quarter century, the respective figures being 1,007,000 and 2,039,000. The crop shows the effect of improved cultivation methods, having increased despite the boll weevil, from 433,000 bales to 1,090,000. Translated into money, the crop's value in 1900 was $15,697,000, compared with a 1925 value of $103,550,000.

The tobacco crop rose from 127,503,400 pounds in 1900 to 361,020,000 pounds in 1925, the comparative values being $8,038,691 and $83,035,000. Acreage devoted to it increased from 203,023 to 547,000, much new land in the eastern "new bright" belt being opened during the period.

Corn was a profitable crop in 1925, the state's harvest of 42,014,000 bushels bringing on the market $46,215,000. The 1900 crop of 29,790,000 bushels was worth $16,980,000. The 45 per cent increase in the size of the crop was achieved despite a drop in acreage from 2,483,000, to 2,271,000.

Wheat has diminished somewhat in volume since 1900. The 1925 crop totalled 4,466,000 bushels, grown on 406,000 acres and valued at $7,637,000. The 1900 crop of 5,961,000 bushels grew on 621,000 acres and had a value of $4,888,000. Oats followed a similar course to wheat.

Bank figures reflect only partially the marvelous commercial growth. No figures are published for 1900, but the following comparisons between 1910 and 1925 tell the story:

	1910	1925
Aggregate resources.	$112,213,762	$475,189,000
Paid in capital.....	16,376,506	36,946,000
Individual deposits.	67,285,654	318,353,000

NORTH CAROLINA FACTS

Leads the South in the manufacture of furniture.

Ranks fourth in the value of agricultural products.

In 1900 the expenditures for schools amounted to less than $1,000,000. This year the total expenditures will reach $30,000,000.

In 1900 the expenditures for new school buildings were $41,000. In 1923 they were more than $9,000,000.

In 1900 the average salary of teachers was less than $25 per month. In 1922 it was $102.

In 1900 the average length of school term was 73 days. In 1923 it was 141 days.

High School enrollment increased in 22 years from 2,000 to 48,000.

In 1900 there were no rural public libraries in the State. In 1923 there were more than 4,800.

In 1919 North Carolina paid $101,000,000 in federal taxes to the Government. In 1924 it paid $157,000,000.

Still has hydro-electric resources capable of developing more than 1,000,000 horse power.

Mines 75% of all the mica manufactured in the United States.

Ranks first in the quantity of feldspar produced in the United States.

In 1900 capital invested in manufacturing enterprises was $68,283,000. In 1923 this had increased to $725,000,000.

In 1900 the value of manufactured products was $95,274,000 and in 1923 it was $951,911,000.

Where Opportunity Awaits

HIGH POINT

NORTH CAROLINA

ONE thousand feet above sea level, on the Piedmont Plateau. A gloriously healthy climate. Famous winter and summer playgrounds all about. A city of over 25,000 Americans. One hundred and sixteen thriving industries, with annual payrolls of over $9,000,000.00, and manufactured products valued at $45,000,000.00.

A CLEAN city of every modern convenience. Fifty miles of paved streets, beautiful homes, schools, and churches. The home of High Point College and the Southern Furniture Market.

Industrial Opportunity

THE Piedmont Plateau is in the greatest industrial district in the South today. Its development has been steady, sure and sound. Industrial wealth has doubled in ten years' time. Population has increased from 4,163 in 1900 to 25,261 in 1925. Here is opportunity like the development of the far west fifty years ago. High Point is the geographical center of the Piedmont section and in the center of population also.

Real Estate Development

THE activity of High Point real estate is a barometer of its steady, sure development, of its rapidly increasing population and growing industrial activity. Real estate in and around High Point has a steadily increasing value. Beautiful home sites are available at most reasonable prices in one of the finest residential developments in the state.

Resources

AMPLE banking facilities, an abundance of hydro-electric power, native white labor and excellent transportation by competitive railroads with short hauls to the great markets of the country contribute largely to industrial development and opportunities. Forests of hard woods, and excellent soil for raising diversified crops are most important resources; and of great importance to economical industrial development. Factory sites are available at low figures with every necessity, in and near by High Point.

Citizens of Success

THE HIGH POINT OF OPPORTUNITY

NORTH CAROLINA

HIGH POINT CHAMBER OF COMMERCE, Member Chamber of Commerce of U. S.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE,
HIGH POINT, N. C.:

Please send me a copy of the booklet, "All About High Point."

Name .....

Address .....

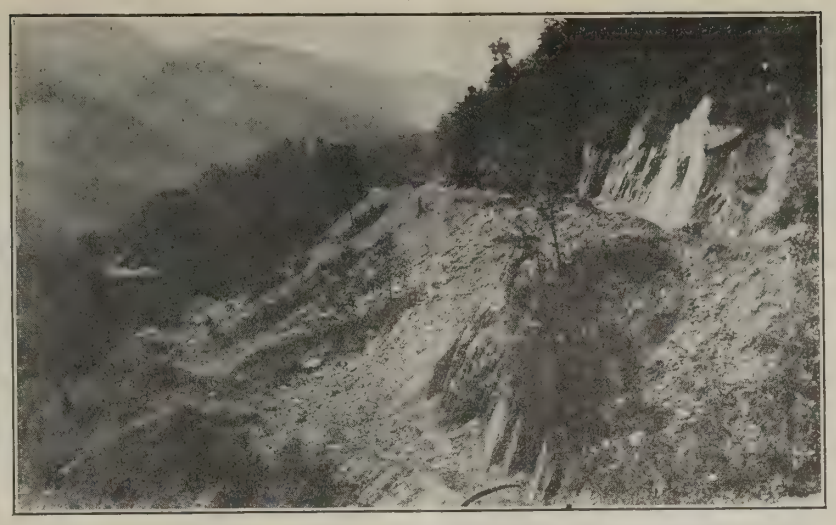
City .....

ORTH CAROLINA LIGHT NOT HIDDEN

"therwise Ignorant" World Has Been Lucidly Told of State's Progress, New York Times Editorial Declares

'North Carolina not only has prossed amazingly during the last decade more, but has seen to it that her vance has been made known to an erwise ignorant world." The New rk Times said editorially July 26, 'hat she has done has, indeed, deserved cognition. One of the results of her emasis on the buildinig of roads, for exam, has recently been pointed out by her te Superintendent of Instruction. He narked that the quickening of the al school system of the state had n made possible by the road program rted in 1921.

'Good roads facilitated the consolidan of school districts. They also inased the attendance at school by mak possible the establishment of bus lines carry the children to and from the sools. As a result, many small schools :: efficiently operated could be abolished, il more attention was concentrated on veloping the combined schools. The mber of schools for whites having two more teachers increased threefold, and te number of schools for negroes hav two or more teachers increased eightfd.



"The dependence of the educational stem on the status of the roads has rt always been obvious to advocates good roads throughout the country. be sure, the foresight and energy ich North Carolina has shown in rrying out an improved educational ogram are as important as the wisdom planning and executing the road proam. But it is becoming apparent that e are turning again to roads as great ctors in the economic and social delopment of the country.

"George Washington, who was one of e few Americans to think in terms of npire, understood this a hundred and ty or more years ago, and throughout s life of public service tried to make s countrymen realize that roads were e skeleton of the state and that on od roads depended the economic proess and the welfare of the people. hortly after his death canals were ailed as the great means of communicaon, and no sooner had these been arted than the railroads promised to utstrip the canals. With the developent of the automobile the emphasis has ifted again to roads.

"North Carolina has now dramatized he value of a constructive road program enriching and developing an entire mmunity. Ten years ago the greater ortion of that state, barring a few main ighways, had so-called roads of clay r sand, which were occasionally travers-ble by motor, but too often were either o bumpy and buried in dust, or so sticky nd covered with mud, that travel was low and unprofitable. They differed little from the roads in that same state a hundred years before.

"The highway improvements during the last few years are only beginning to have their reaction on the general development of the state. Already they have justified the heavy expenditure on them, and are giving an example to others of the far-reaching effects of good communications are planned."

The total area of North Carolina is 52,426 square miles, of which 48,740 square miles is land, and 3,686 square miles is water.

Roads were carried through the Great Smoky Mountains, west of the Blue Ridge, without a tunnel and with no grades in excess of 6 per cent.

FARMER NOT DIRT-BOUND

Enjoys Modern Luxuries and Keeps Abreast of Current Learning

The average North Carolina farmer, besides being a business man, is not dirt-bound. With the advent of the rural school on a larger scale than ever before, he sees that his children are educated. He enjoys travel, by means of motor, over the hard-surfaced and other dependable highways that pass his door, and with his neighbors and the outside world he keeps in communication by means of the telephone. He enjoys the radio and he reads.

This last assertion is forcibly emphasized by the fact that the North Carolina Library Commission, a State agency, with headquarters at Raleigh, last year reached more than 200,000 rural people, through school libraries, traveling libraries, and individual loans. Any farmer is privileged to draw books from the commission, upon application.

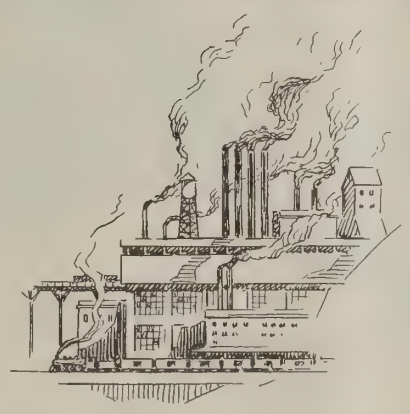
COAST DAILY HONORS CITIZEN

Nathan Eckstein, prominent Seattle businessman and civic leader, was awarded the silver cup offered by the Seattle Post Intelligencer to Seattle's most useful citizen. The trophy was presented at the American Legion 4th of July celebration in the Stadium.

Lincoln County News

Established 1873

Lincolnton, N. C.



J. T. PERKINS

Publisher

Published each Monday and Thursday

Circulation 1,800, among prosperous cotton, corn, wheat, etc., farmers and poultrymen, textile and furniture manufacturers, and contented industrial workers and business men. Population of Lincolnton 4,371. Modern town, every convenience, 40 miles of paved streets and highways, two railroads, numerous bus lines. Lincolnton is situated in Piedmont Western North Carolina. Altitude 869. Climate healthful, without extremes. Connected with the world by paved N. C. highways Nos. 16, 27 and 206. Latch string outside at all seasons.

Salisbury— One of North Carolina's principal markets with 150,000 consumers

The city of Salisbury with the adjoining cities of Spencer and East Spencer, all one city, have a population of 22,696. The approximate population of the territory within a 25 mile radius of Salisbury according to the official 1920 census is 144,000, now estimated 150,000.

North Carolina's Richest Section

Salisbury is in the rich Piedmont section of North Carolina where great industries thrive and vast agricultural resources bring continuous prosperity to Salisbury and surrounding territory. Located south of Greensboro and north of Charlotte, it is in the very center of this rich area. The Salisbury district, besides having large textile mills, granite quarries and other diversified manufacturing interests, has several thousand skilled and highly paid mechanics engaged in the railroad shops of the Southern Railway. Including the agricultural wealth being brought into this market, Salisbury is one of the principal markets in North Carolina with a high percentage of per capita purchasing power.

SALISBURY POST

Afternoon and Sunday Morning

Member A. B. C.

National Advertising Representative

Bryant, Griffith & Brunson, Inc.

New York Chicago Atlanta Boston

PRESS FORWARDED PROGRESS PROGRAM AND IS SHARING BENEFITS

State Press Association, Now Undertaking Active Organization Work in Editorial and Advertising Fields, Is 53 Years Old

A MAJOR, though seldom mentioned, force in the phenomenal advance of North Carolina into the forefront of progressive states has been the daily and weekly press, which has been ahead of the political leaders in advocating most of the desirable changes and behind them in execution of the program. There are no dailies of great circulation in the state, for there are no great metropolitan cities. Half a dozen of the larger cities and some of the smaller towns have morning newspapers which for many years have been distinguished editorially, and every town of any size or importance as a trading or social center has a well edited evening newspaper. Prosperity is a comparatively recent blessing for most of the state's dailies, even the morning papers of wide circulation, but poor or comfortable, the Tarheel editor, as a rule, raises a free voice for whatever he wishes to advocate, and vice versa. What has been said of the dailies applies with equal force to the weekly press, which is a mighty power in a state predominantly rural and agricultural.

Organized efforts by the newspaper publishers and editors has also been of recent origin, although the state press association is one of the oldest in the country. Its development has kept pace with the new sentiment of enterprise in the state, as the news report of its recent annual meeting on another page of this issue indicates. The evening newspapers of the state now maintain a joint news service from the state capital at Raleigh the year round and many have increased their volume of world and national news from the wire services during the past two years. They are competing seriously in this respect with the morning newspapers, which for years had been regarded, by their own editors and most of the political leaders, as the proper vehicles for carriage of news of state government activities. Plans for joint representation of the evening papers and of the weekly press, also, in the field of advertising within the state are now under consideration and will probably develop during the next year or two, with the state press association or a subdivision thereof as a nucleus.

The North Carolina Press Association was organized at Goldsboro, May 14, 1873. The first president of the association was Maj. Joseph A. Engelhard, editor of the Wilmington Journal, and the first secretary was Julius A. Bonitz, editor of the Goldsboro Messenger. No member of the Association is now living who was present when it was organized. James A. Robinson, then of the Oxford Torchlight, joined in 1874, and is the only one now living who was a member at that time.

Since its organization the association has missed only one annual meeting, in 1876. New Bern was selected as the meeting place that year, but for some reason unknown only three were present. These were met at the railroad station by a brass band, and as royally entertained as if their number had been a hundred or more.

In 1879 the annual meeting was to have been held in Beaufort, but just prior to the date appointed a storm swept the hotel there away, and the meeting was held in Goldsboro. Since that time, for the most part the association has met in the mountains and on the seashore alternately. The meeting of 1883 was held at Waynesville on the 4th of July. From Waynesville the association went to Asheville, meeting there the South Carolina Press Association, and together they visited Hot Springs. On October of that year 28 members of the association enjoyed a trip to Boston, where they were hospitably entertained.

When the association was organized there were only 74 newspapers published in this state, six of which were dailies. "Patent outsides" were not much in use then, there being only three published in the state, and at the first meeting of the association the hostility to them was so pronounced that a resolution was introduced excluding their editors from membership. "Plate matter" had not then been introduced.

The first mid-winter meeting was held in Washington, D. C., in 1904. Since that time winter sessions have been held in Salisbury, Greensboro, Charlotte, Winston-Salem (twice), High Point, Pinehurst and Chapel Hill (twice). At Chapel Hill in January 1926, a newspaper Institute was held, which was attended by a large number of editors and publishers throughout the state. This was so successful as to make it almost certain that the Institute idea will be permanently adopted.

Papers of great value were read by the following: "Practical Problems of Newspaper Making," by Hamilton Owens, editor of the Baltimore Sun; "Advertising Problems," by James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies; "Some Problems of the Country Weekly; Their Solution," by Ole Buck, field manager of the Nebraska Press Association; "Look Into the Future," by Robert Lahan, editor of the Charleston News and Courier; "The University and the Press" by Frank P. Graham, of the University History Department; "The County New

(Continued on page XXIX)

Where traffic does not warrant the heavy expense of a concrete or asphaltic road, the community is served by hard-surface and sand-clay roads, which are frequently scraped, rolled, and resurfaced by the state maintenance corps.

At The Half-Turn Of The Year—By 471,114 Lines!

THE preference of National advertisers for The Durham Morning Herald is expressed in The Herald's lead of 471,114 lines over the volume of National lineage published by the second Durham paper during the first six months of 1926. A majority of National advertisers used The Herald exclusively. Twenty out of twenty-one Food advertisers used The Herald exclusively.

During the same period four-fifths of the money invested in newspaper advertising by LOCAL merchants was placed with The Herald. Many of Durham's largest local advertisers used The Herald exclusively.

The Durham Herald has the largest percentage of home-delivered CITY CARRIER circulation of any morning paper in the South. There is an overlap of one subscriber to every seventh home in the city.

A SERVICE THAT IS GENUINE—

"I can't tell you how pleased I am to learn that you have been able to secure 5,712 lines of local tie-up advertising for use in connection with the current Perfection Oil Stove campaign.

". . . Present information would indicate that this is by far the best record of any paper through which the campaign was released."

THE H. K. McCANN COMPANY,
(Signed) D. C. Hight.

DURHAM, with a population of 42,258 (Government Census), ranks fourth among the cities of North Carolina. It is a Center of Industry and Education. Its large tobacco, textile, hosiery and flour mills rank Durham second among North Carolina cities in industrial pay-rolls.

The millions of dollars being spent in the erection of Duke University in Durham is causing business to be better than in any previous year.

The resources of Durham's ten banks have shown over 11% increase during the first six months of 1926.

There are 7,042 automobile owners in the city of Durham—or one motor car to every sixth inhabitant.

Durham ranks first among the cities of North Carolina in per capita wealth.

Durham is one of the foremost markets in the Carolinas for nationally advertised merchandise.

The Herald is the only Associated Press paper, and the only A. B. C. paper in Durham.

You can reach greater buying power with greater pulling power through

The DURHAM MORNING HERALD, Durham, N. C.

National Representatives: E. Katz Special Advertising Agency.
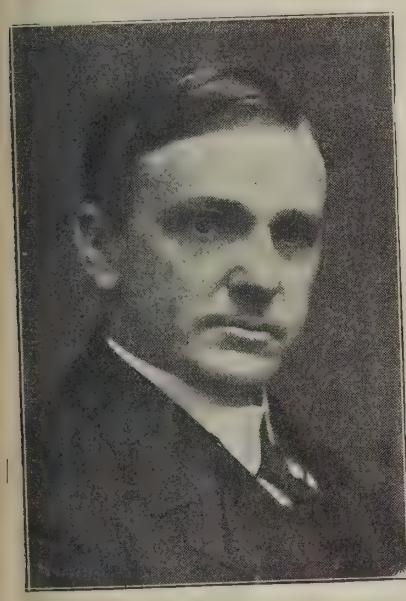
New York, Chicago, Atlanta, Kansas City, Detroit, San Francisco

N. C. PRESS FORWARDED PROGRESS



(Continued from page XXVIII)

ber and the Community," by M. V. Avood, business manager of the Utica, Y., Observer-Dispatch; "The Press d the Public," by Nelson Antrim Crawford; "The Common Ideal of Newspers and Universities," by Dr. H. W. Case, President of the University of rth Carolina; "Restrictions on a Free ess," by Robert H. Wettack, associate fessor of law at the University of rth Carolina.

Since the association was organized, ht persons have served as Secretary—A. Bonitz in 1873-74; R. T. Fulghum m 1874 to 1877; W. A. Davis 1878-; Jordan Stone from 1879 to 1884; J. Robinson 1884-86; J. H. Lindsay from 85 to 1888; J. B. Sherrill from 1888 to 20; E. B. Jeffress 1920-21; Miss Beaice Cobb from 1921 to the present.

In 1922, Walter H. Savory, of Brookn, established the annual gift of a handme loving cup to the best weekly or mi-weekly paper in the State. This p was won the first year by the Smithfield Herald, the second year by the Vass ilot, and the third and fourth years by e Hertford Herald.

It is interesting to note that at the eeting of the association at Greensboro 1931, President Thomas N. Ivey in is annual address called attention to the onstantly increasing surplus of the Association's funds, making the following suggestion:

J. B. Sherrill

"To break the alabaster box on the head of some worthy object is one of the first duties a body of this kind owes itself. This association has in its treasury a constantly increasing amount which might be made effective in doing a work which would ennoble the association in its estimate of itself, build some monument to virtue, and add to the glory of the state we love. This is a question which, in my opinion, asks the consideration of the association."

In accordance with this suggestion, a committee was appointed to consider this suggestion, but a search of the minutes of subsequent meetings fails to reveal that this suggestion was carried out. However, for the year following, the amount of the dues was reduced to $1.00 a year. The surplus at the time amounted to $472.81.

From 1873 to 1926 the meeting places were as follows:

1873, Goldsboro; 1874, Raleigh; 1875, Wilmington; 1877, Charlotte; 1878, Catawba Springs; 1880, Asheville; 1881, Winston; 1882, Elizabeth City; 1883, Waynesville; 1884, Raleigh; 1885, Smithfield; 1886, Morehead City; 1887, Hendersonville; 1888, Morehead City; 1889, Lenoir; 1890, Durham; 1891, Winston; 1892, Charlotte; 1893, New Bern; 1894, Morganton; 1895, Greensboro; 1896, Wilmington; 1897, Morehead City; 1898, Waynesville; 1899, Carolina Beach; 1900, Asheville; 1901, Greensboro; 1902, Hendersonville; 1903, Wrightsville; 1904, Morehead City; 1905, Asheville; 1906, Chase City, Virginia; 1907, Morehead City; 1908, Charlotte; 1909, Hendersonville; 1910, Wrightsville; 1911, Lenoir; 1912, Morehead City; 1913, Asheville; 1914, Wrightsville; 1915, Montreat; 1916, Durham; 1917, Morehead City; 1918, Asheville; 1919, Wrightsville; 1920, Waynesville; 1921, Morehead City; 1922, Shelby; 1923, Blowing Rock; 1924, Morehead City; 1925, Asheville; 1926, Hickory.

Since the Association was organized, the following have been President in the order named: Maj. Joseph A. Engelhard, Col. J. D. Cameron, Col. W. L. Saunders, Dossey Battle, Capt. S. A. Ashe, G. S. Bradshaw, H. A. London, Josephus Daniels, J. A. Robinson, J. I. McRee, T. B. Eldridge, Thad R. Manning, W. W. McDiarmid, J. P. Caldwell, J. A. Thomas, E. E. Hilliard, Jerome Dowd, W. C. Ervin, C. L. Stevens, R. R. Clark, J. B. Whitaker, Jr., W. C. Dowd, D. J. Wichard, Rev. T. N. Ivey, D.D., J. G. Boylin, W. F. Marshall, H. B. Varner, R. M. Phillips, T. J. Lassiter, Archibald Johnson, J. A. Thomas, Rev. J. O. Atkinson, D.D., M. L. Shipman, J. J. Farriss, J. H. Caine, Clarence Poe, W. C. Hammer, J. H. Cowan, E. E. Britton, Santford Martin, Z. W. Whitehead, J. A. Sharp, J. F. Hurley, J. B. Sherrill, C. A. Webb, H. Galt Braxton and J. W. Atkins.

Mr. Varner was elected president in 1903 and was elected in 1904 to succeed himself. Mr. Sherrill was chosen president in 1921, and re-elected in 1922 and 1923. However, he declined to serve a third term.

The association celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of its organization at Cleveland Springs, Shelby, July 27, 28 and 29, 1923. The attendance was the largest in its history, about 100 members being present.

All the ex-Presidents were especially invited to attend the meeting, and the following were present: G. S. Bradshaw, J. A. Robinson, Jerome Dowd, Chas. L. Stevens, M. L. Shipman, J. J. Farriss, E. E. Britton, Santford Martin and J. A. Sharpe. By unanimous vote of the association, all living ex-presidents were made honorary members.

In May 1926, J. H. Separk, a prominent cotton manufacturer of Gastonia, offered through President Atkins to North Carolina newspapers a prize of $500 for excellence in the editorial or reportorial departments, or both. It is hoped that through the interest of other North Carolinians this prize may be offered every year.

Mr. Sherrill, who served for 32 years as secretary and twice as president of the association, is 62 years old and began his newspaper career in 1880 as editor of an amateur paper at Olin, Iredell County. Later he was on the staff of the Leader Topic for two years. In 1885 he bought a fifth interest in the Concord Times and the following year purchased the remaining stock. In 1887 he bought out the Concord Register, consolidating the papers and in 1902 he purchased the Daily Standard, merging it with the Times. Eight years later he acquired the Daily and Semi-Weekly Tribune, continuing the Tribune daily and consolidating the semi-weekly with the Times. The latter is conducted in connection with a large job office.

Mr. Sherrill was married in 1887 to Miss Anna Montgomery and has four children and eight grandchildren. He is a trustee of Duke University and for eight years a member of the graded school board of Concord. He served as postmaster of Concord for four years during Cleveland's second administration, was elected to the North Carolina General Assembly in 1922, and was unanimously renominated in 1924, but declined to serve because of illness in his family.

North Carolina has more than 7,000 factories, employing 158,000 workers, earning $127,000,000 annually.

"America's Premier Small City Daily"

KINSTON DAILY FREE PRESS

Enjoys the confidence and esteem of a constantly increasing circulation among the good people of one of the world's most fertile and productive sections, EASTERN CAROLINA.

Following is the record of its steady growth:

September 30, 1924—Paid 2,378
March 31, 1925—Paid 2,779
September 30, 1925—Paid 3,090
March 31, 1926—Paid 3,278

(A. B. C. Figures.)

Double Bona Fide Circulation Any Other Local Medium.

Advertising Linage Keeps Step:

March, 1925 203,490
March, 1926 271,516
April, 1925 175,504
April, 1926 209,062
May, 1925 152,460
May, 1926 193,340
June, 1925 144,088
June, 1926 168,364

Leads Morning Competitor More Than 50% In Advertising Linage.

THERE'S A REASON:
RESULTS!

Schedule your next copy in The Free Press
The people hereabouts "Read It First In The Free Press"

MEMBER AUDIT BUREAU CIRCULATIONS
'NUFF SAID

WONDERS OF CAROLINA FRONTIER REVEALED BY NEWS AND ADVERTISING

Developments of Region Opened by Highways Brought Million Dollars Worth of Advertising to Newspapers This Year

By HARVEY HOLLEMAN

THE part played by the daily press in connection with the development of the more or less wild and original growth timber regions of Western North Carolina into desirable sites for residences, and the settlement by those who came to look, is a story too long for the limited space here allotted.

It, however, is a well known fact, that some parts of the western portion of the State have, until recently, remained inaccessible and undeveloped, traversed only by hunters, fishermen, hikers and timber cruisers, all occupied with their own particular lines of endeavor and not caring whether the outside world ever heard of it or not. The few outsiders who were privileged to inspect this country, even on casual pilgrimages, were loud in their praise of its ruggedness and beauty.

When one considers a vast area, thousands of square miles, with a hundred mountain peaks half a mile high, many of them unnamed to this day, and with only one railroad through the only known passage possible without tunnelling under the mountains, it is understood why no development was possible. The state built the railroad from East to West. It started at the ocean and went over the Blue Ridge into Tennessee at Morristown, near Knoxville and it now connects the Eastern and Western divisions of the Southern Railway system, which leases it from the state.

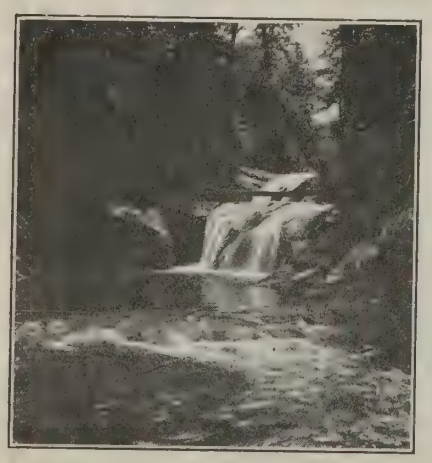
Five years ago, as readers of this issue know, North Carolina began a program of highway building. A native son, Frank Page, at the head of the Highway Commission, decided that every county seat in the 100 counties of the state should ultimately be connected by paved roads, in addition to trunk lines across the state from North to South and from East to West. As these threads of concrete began to expand, motorists were able to visit many places heretofore inaccessible. Then came the newspapers. They sent reporters to describe the things they had heard existed. Editors began to spend more time in the interior. Then the Southern newspaper publishers, who for years had met at Asheville for their summer deliberations, began to learn of the new frontier in Western Carolina.

Hundreds of columns have been written about this region and newspapers have carried these stories persistently as new material came to light during the past five years. Newspaper publishers, not only those of the South, have played an important part in informing the whole country of the opening of this region and centering attention on its possibilities. A great deal of the matter published was classed as propaganda, but it also had clever news value, and the newspapers carried it without stint.

Then came the period of development and lot selling. More than a hundred companies began operations, and advertising went out to the papers in generous quantity. It is estimated that more than $1,000,000 of new and outside money was spent in the newspapers of North and South Carolina alone during April, May and June of this year.

With the recent opening of the Appalachian Scenic Highway, a route on the crest of the mountains all the way down from Montreal to New Orleans through Asheville and the scenic roads constructed through this region at enormous cost, hundreds of Canadian automobile license plates are noted. In a recent census taken at Chimney Rock on State Highway 20 from Charlotte to Asheville, 900 cars from West of the Mississippi river were counted in one day. All of these were inspecting the vast improvements going forward at this point.

The great Lake Lure dam, anchored between two mountains, is 75 per cent complete. It is expected that water will be turned in within sixty days and the 1500 acre valley filled before Christmas, creating Lake Lure with a shore line over 27 miles in length. Recently the administration building was dedicated. The corner stone laying attracted 3000 automobiles. Now the roof is being laid on the first of five new hotels to be built. Boat houses and bathing beaches; golf and tennis grounds; polo and aviation; all these are being established for the multitude. The founder, Dr. Lucius B. Morse, and his associates, mostly cotton mill magnates, have a $10,000,000 program to create a mountain lake resort the like of which has never been seen. Miles of streets and bridle paths have already been provided. The property is an estate of 12 square miles, and embraces over 8000 acres of land, all under development.



In the Chimney Rock-Lake Lure region, 19 miles from a railroad, are located several of the major scenic attractions of Western North Carolina mountains. Among these are Chimney Rock, a giant monolith, and standing as a sentinel over the valley which will soon be Lake Lure, the Devil's Head, a curious rock formation, Hickory Nut Falls, higher distance fall than Niagara, Bottomless Pools, Exclamation Point so named by B. C. Forbes, and Moonshiner's Cave. One three-mile toll road last season took in $43,000 from tourists who wished to drive to view Chimney Rock.

Building a road of iron ore. Native rock is often used as a subsurface in highway construction and much of the rock in the Western part of the state is not far removed from the pig-iron stage

The Daniel Boone trail follows the path of the pioneer toward the West, connecting Winston-Salem and Boone

Bottomless pools, one of the curious natural wonders of the Blue Ridge mountains

ONCE THE GOLD SOURCE

North Carolina Still Has Important Mineral Resources

Minerals have contributed extensively from the beginning of its history to the wealth produced by North Carolina and today form a small but not inconsiderable part of its resources.

Gold was once produced in the South Central section; in fact, it was the country's sole supply of the precious metal until 1849, when the discoveries in California relegated the Carolina fields to unimportance.

Total mineral products of the state in 1924, the latest year for which figures are available, were valued at $9,260,000.

The iron ore produced in 1924 totalled 12,525 tons and the 1925 production, by unofficial estimates, topped 24,000 tons. The state is in the red and brown ore bands of the Appalachians.

In volume of talc and soapstone produced in 1924, North Carolina ranked second in the South, its 6,093 tons having a value of $81,523.

Its bituminous coal reserves are estimated at 200,000,000 short tons, under 800 square miles of land. No figures of 1925 production have been published, but the 1924 "take" from the mines totalled 57,094 tons.

Much of the South's white kaolin, extensively used in the manufacture of white china, is mined in North Carolina, whose production in 1924 totalled 16,966 tons, valued at $277,526.

Almost half of the country's feldspar, used in the manufacture of pottery and vitrified ware, comes from North Carolina, its 97,075 tons having a value of $640,403 in 1924.

HILL PEOPLE WORK MILLS

Foreign Employes Rare—Negroes Man a Few Textile Plants

Workers in textile mills of North Carolina are as a rule people from the mountains. Employes of foreign birth are seldom found in any of the cotton mill centres and Negros have been employed in only a few mills on a large scale. Labor troubles have been comparatively rare in the Piedmont factories.

WIDER CIRCULATION AREAS

Good Roads Have Made Longer and Faster Deliveries for N. C. Dailies

Following closely upon the completion of the main North Carolina roads came an era of extension of circulation area for the daily papers, especially those of the western section. Where they formerly reached out only a few miles by special delivery, it is now possible to make fifty or more, for the afternoon papers and more than a hundred for the morning dailies.

Nearby mountain towns and rural settlements that have for years been accustomed to wait many hours for the daily paper now find it at their doors within an hour or so after publication. In many instances the open roads give the papers faster delivery over a wider area than is possible in congested areas surrounding cities and communities of heavy population.

OZARK WEEKLY RESUMES

The Ozark (Mo.) Democrat, suspended several months ago by Charles R. Reid, owner, has resumed publication with Emmett T. Reid, son of the former owner-editor, as editor. Mr. Reid, who suspended the paper because of ill health, is improving.

Chimney Rock, a tower of ancient stone, overhangs the main road from the coast to the mountains.

NORTH CAROLINA PRESS TO HAVE FULL-TIME FIELD SECRETARY

Assessment of One Cent Per Subscriber Voted at Annual Meeting to Maintain New Office—Huneycutt Elected President

THE North Carolina Press Association closed its 54th annual session Friday, July 23, with a short business session held in the ballroom of the Mayview Manor at Blowing Rock. The members were conveyed to this mountain resort in automobiles furnished by the citizens of Hickory and enjoyed an old-time barbecue in the woods near the hotel. It was the general consensus that the session just ended was one of the best ever held by the association in its history of more than 50 years. The attendance was considerably larger than last year. The number of new members received was larger than usual.

Outstanding among the accomplishments of the convention was the decision to employ a full-time paid field secretary. This action followed the presentation of data gathered during the past six months by a special committee appointed at the mid-winter institute at Chapel Hill in January. Charles A. Webb, of the Asheville Citizen, was chairman of this committee and the report was submitted by the vice-chairman, W. W. Casteel, of Clinton. All of the Thursday afternoon session was devoted to consideration of this matter. There was no opposition to having a field secretary but the question of finances was the one stumbling block. This was solved satisfactorily, however, when the committee's recommendation that the dues be changed from the present method to a basis of one cent for each subscriber represented in the association. This will give the association about $6,000 the first year. The matter of obtaining a man and working out the details was left to the executive committee. At a meeting of the committee, Friday afternoon, the position was tendered to B. Arp Lowrance, of Charlotte, and it is believed he will accept. Mr. Lowrance is editor of the Mecklenburg Times, was for several years field representative in this territory of the Western Newspaper Union.

In view of the splendid results obtained from the mid-winter institute at Chapel Hill last January it was decided to hold another this year.

A banquet was given the association at the Hotel Hickory, Thursday night, by the publishers of the Hickory Daily Record. There were two addresses, one by Judge Francis D. Winston, of Windsor, who attended the session of the association held at Hickory in 1878, and the other by Thomas Dixon, author, playwright and lecturer and one of the State's most distinguished sons. Judge Winston's address was largely of a reminiscential character and included much history of the early days of the association which he had gathered together from various sources. Mr. Dixon warned the newspaper people of the state that, unless they stood firmly for the freedom of the press, another ten years would see free speech in America so throttled that no writer or publisher could give expression to any creative thought. A free press is the main bulwark of a democracy, said Mr. Dixon, who cited the assassination of editor Mellet at Canton, Ohio, the persecution of Geo. R. Dale and the slaying by a Texas minister of a business man in his study as indications of the fact that the tendency in America is to throttle free speech with guns.

Former Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, owner and editor of the Raleigh News and Observer, was the only other newspaper man present besides Judge Winston who attended the convention of 1878.

Officers for the ensuing year were chosen as follows: President, A. C. Huneycutt, editor of the Stanley News-Herald, Albemarle; vice-president, A. L. Stockton, managing editor, Greensboro News; secretary-treasurer, Miss Beatrice Cobb, editor, Morganton News-Herald; executive committee, the above named officers together with J. W. Atkins, J. W. Noell, W. C. Dowd, Jr., Fred H. May and Lee Weathers.

Pecans are a crop of advancing importance in the Eastern half of the state and groves can now be seen as far west as Salisbury.

INSTITUTE FOR THE SOUTH

Newspaper Men Will Help Establish It in Western North Carolina

Notable Southern editors will be among the ten distinguished men of letters who will be delegated to establish and found the Southern Temple of Literature, Art and Science, recently proposed by Harry Stillwell Edwards, formerly of the editorial staff of the Macon Telegraph and the Atlanta Journal, and also author of several books. The Southern Institute at Lake Lure, near Chimney Rock, N. C., will follow closely the plans of the National with the addition of women in its membership and a recognition of notable editors and educators.

Southern colleges have been asked to select from the whole section ten persons of notable achievement to effect the organization. The institute buildings will cost approximately $500,000 and will contain departments of literature, art, sculpture, science, religion, history, antiquities, records, a hall of fame, and corridor of busts of famous men from every Southern state.

There will also be a great auditorium and a $30,000 organ for recitals, musical gatherings, chautauquas, and literary symposiums.

It's The Circulation In The Home That Sells Goods

No Advertiser Can Afford to Overlook the Evening Newspaper In An Evening Paper Town—In Greensboro, the Record Has Been the "Home Paper" For 35 Years.

Greensboro Daily & Sunday Record

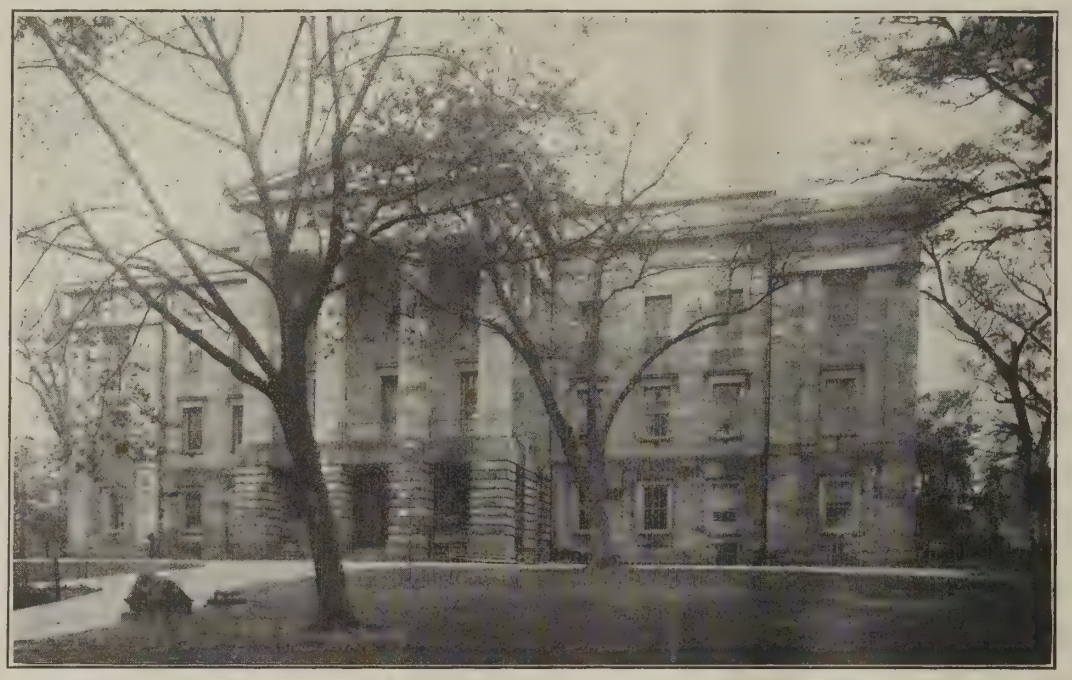
PUBLISHED AFTERNOONS AND SUNDAY MORNINGS
EDNEY RIDGE, PUBLISHER

G. LOGAN PAYNE COMPANY, NATIONAL REPRESENTATIVES

New York Chicago Saint Louis Atlanta Boston Detroit Los Angeles

Results Prove That The Record Sells The Goods In Greensboro

The News and Observer



THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN THE WORLD HAVING MORE SUBSCRIBERS THAN POPULATION OF CITY IN WHICH PUBLISHED

VOL. CXXIII. NO. 178 RALEIGH, N. C., SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 31, 1926

Yesterday's Paid Circulation.....36,860
Same Day Last Year..... 31,451

Has the Largest Circulation Among English Language Dailies in the United States

PUBLISHED IN CITIES WITH POPULATION OF 35,000 AND UNDER

View of North Carolina State Capitol. Cornerstone laid July 4, 1833, Raleigh, N. C.

"READ IT BECAUSE THEY HAVE TO"

"The NEWS AND OBSERVER is an institution read by something like 75 000 people, two-fifths of whom hate it like the Devil"

Some years ago when Collier's offered a prize for the best letter written by a reader concerning the best newspaper in each State, a prominent North Carolina doctor received the prize for his article on The News and Observer. In part the prize-winner wrote:

I read the daily "News and Observer" of Raleigh, N. C. That paper is an institution. It is read by something like seventy-five thousand people, two-fifths of whom hate it like the Devil, but read it just the same. Why? Because they have to. Its policies make and unmake Governors, Senators, Judges and lights of lesser magnitude. Politically it is mightier than all the politicians and bosses in the State, for the simple reason that it is backed by public opinion.

Ask any of the enemies why they read The News and Observer and the answer is always the same: "It publishes the news." That is literally the truth; nothing of real interest is suppressed. By "news" I do not mean the sickening stories of crime and domestic infelicity that fill the columns of most daily papers. I mean news of political importance or of significance to society in general. In other words, its news matter is clean and healthy. In its editorials it reflects the best thought of the soundest thinkers in the country and especially the South.

Another good reason for the influence wielded by this paper is its direct personal appeal. No one knows or cares who owns its stock, but every line it publishes is universally regarded as the honest, sincere convictions of the editor. To illustrate this point: It is Democratic in politics, and whenever a Republican speaker or paper alludes to an editorial in The News and Observer they always refer to "Josephus" (its editor is Josephus Daniels). That is "personal journalism" which might make even a Nelson or a Watterson take notice. No mortal man can measure the influence which this one paper exerts. It has fought and won many battles for better conditions in North Carolina. Its voice has been remarkably clear for the people against special privilege in national affairs.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS, EDITOR
JOSEPHUS DANIELS, JR., BUSINESS MANAGER
JOHN M. BRANHAM COMPANY, National Representatives

The Daily Circulation Has Increased Over 17,890 During the Past Ten Years and the Sunday Circulation Has Increased 19,854 During the Same Period and All Under the Same Management.

Week Day Circulation Under Present Ownership

1894	2,500
1900	5,000
1905	9,111
1910	12,000
1920	23,009
1924	29,926
1925	31,460
January 1, 1926 Paid Average Past Quarter	33,366
July 30, 1926	36,860
SUNDAY, July 25, 1926	39,815

THIS ISSUE:—FIXING NEWSPAPER GOODWILL VALUES.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 11 NEW YORK, AUGUST 7, 1926 By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign 10c Per Copy

JOURNALISM LIBRARY
Not to be taken from this room

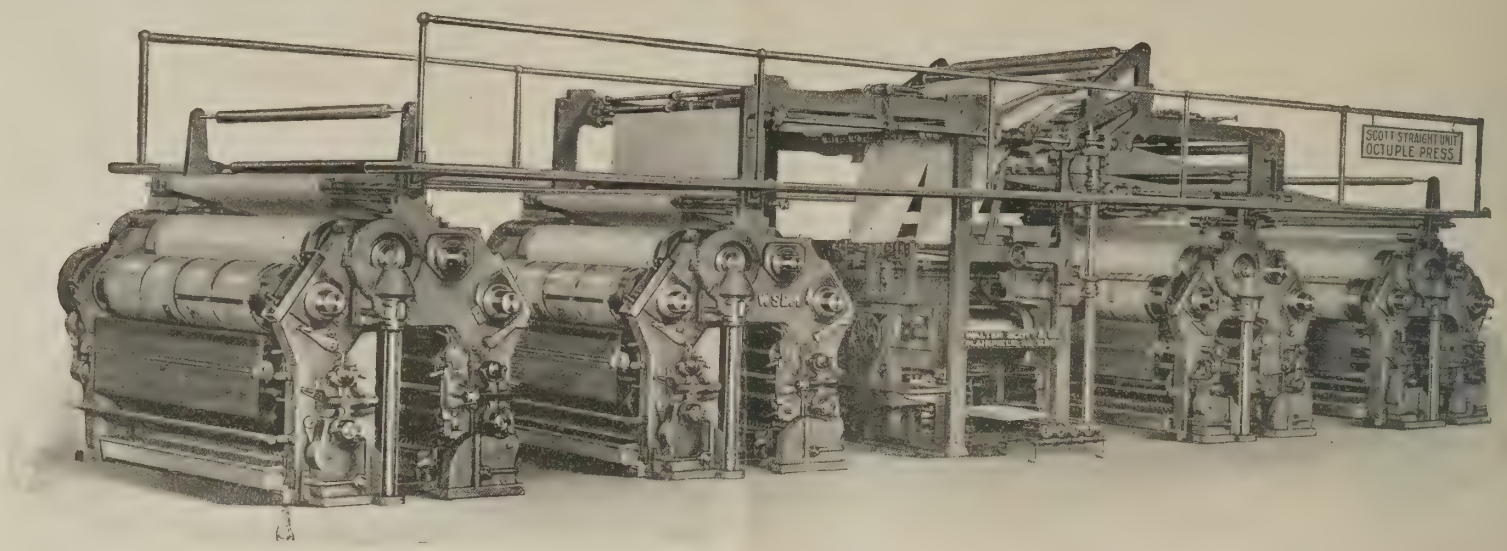
FIRST in Chicago

With the Day's Complete, Final Reports of the Markets

The Chicago Daily News has installed special equipment enabling it to publish the complete, final quotations of the markets, including New York and Chicago stock, bond and curb markets, in its "Final Markets" edition, on the street at 3:10 p. m.

No other Chicago newspaper approaches this degree of financial news service to its readers.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS



Advertising Representatives:

NEW YORK
J. B. Woodward
110 E. 42d St.

DETROIT
Woodward & Kelly
Fine Arts Building

CHICAGO
Woodward & Kelly
360 N. Michigan Ave.

SAN FRANCISCO
C. Geo. Krogness
353 First National Bank Bldg.

SCOTT "STRAIGHT-UNIT" OCTUPLE UNDER FED PRESS CONSISTING OF 4 UNITS AND 2 CENTRAL FOLDERS

The New York Evening Post—building just completed—is Scott Equipped. The installation is a Scott "Straight-Unit" Press consisting of 12 Units and 4 pairs of folders

Do You Satisfy Your Reading Public?

While most people choose newspapers for news and editorial value, they enjoy reading them only if the printing is clear and uniform.

Scott Presses insure printing of a better grade because all Scott Presses whether of the "Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" type are equipped with solid forged steel cylinders in large diameter high-grade roller bearings, driven by steel and fabroil gears. They always make solid, uniform impressions.

To Please Your Reading Public Install—

Scott

"Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" Presses

Cylinder Speed—400 r. p. m.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office and Factory - - - Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A.
New York Office - - - - 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - 1330 Monadnock Block

Cable Address: WALTSCOTT NEW YORK

The Sunpapers Go Vacationing - -

¶ While the Sunpapers never rest on their job of carrying the advertiser's message to the buyers of Baltimore, a very large number of copies go on vacation just the same.

¶ For whenever a Baltimorean goes on a vacation the Sunpapers are almost sure to follow.

¶ During the Summer months we turn the job of delivering a very considerable number of Sunpapers over to Uncle Sam's carriers. Faithful as they are to their duties, they are no more faithful than our regular staff of Sun Carriers who take up the full burden of delivery again once vacation time is over.

¶ Summer, winter, spring or fall—a Sunpaper reader must have his Sunpapers—and he gets them!

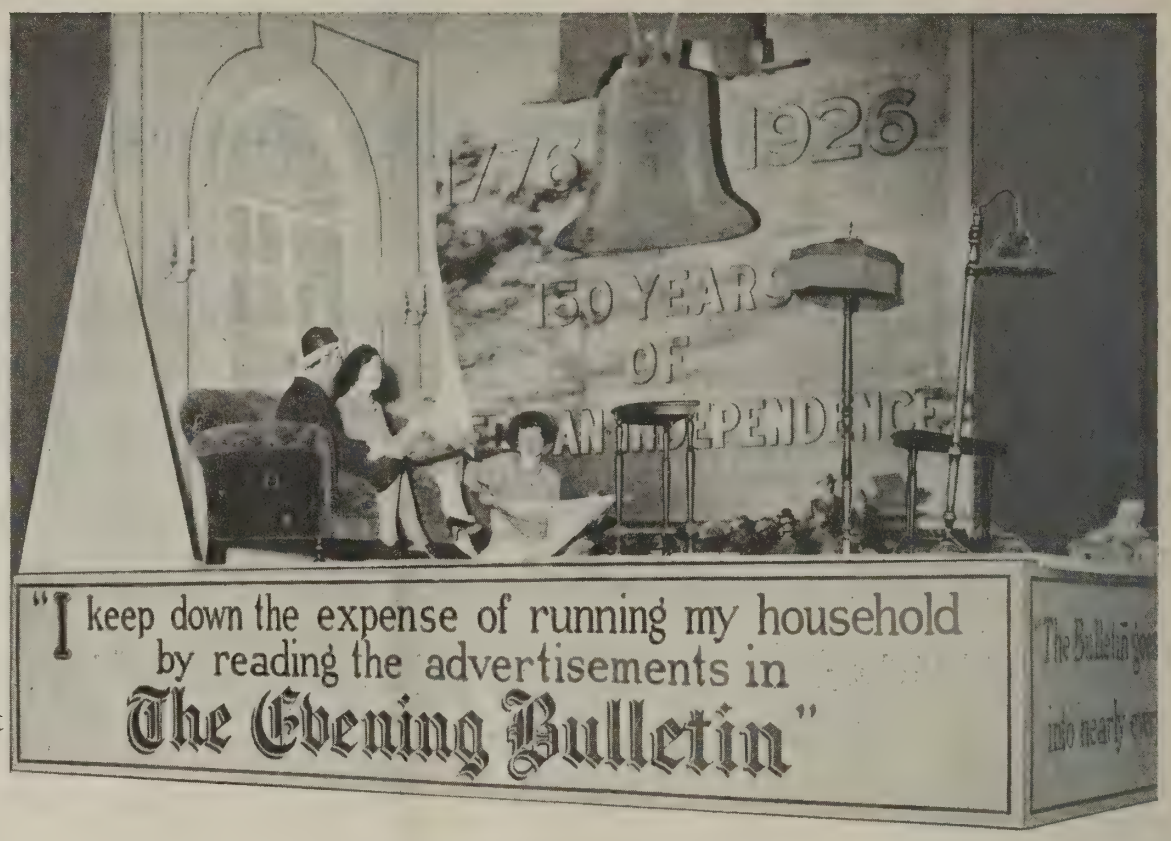
Average Net Paid Circulation for Month of July, 1926

Daily (M. & E.) . . 243,311
Sunday 187,733

A Gain of 7,665 Daily and 4,279 Sunday Over July, 1925

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.,
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago



C. GEORGE KROGNESS
First National Bank Bldg.
San Francisco

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

One of the Bulletin floats in the Associated Advertising Clubs' Convention parade at Philadelphia, June 21, 1926.

The Bulletin has become a part of the daily life of the Philadelphia household. Women depend on it for the information which enters into their daily purchases.

Of course—"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"—and that is one reason why it brings such prompt and satisfactory results to advertisers of food products and household utilities.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper, and the third largest in the United States.

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926: 533,169 copies a day

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

New York . . . . . 247 Park Avenue (Park-Lexington Building)
Chicago . . . . . Verree & Conklin, Inc., 28 East Jackson Boulevard
Detroit . . . C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 321 Lafayette Boulevard
San Francisco . . Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 681 Market Street

(Copyright 1926, Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 NEW YORK, AUGUST 7, 1926 No. 11

Recent Newspaper Sales Show Goodwill Values Attracting Investing Public

Economists Interested in Unusual Factors Entering Newspaper Appraisals—No Yardstick for Universal Measure—Each Sale Requires Expert Independent Consideration

By ARTHUR ROBB

INCREASED interest in newspaper properties as a new field for finance is being manifested by bond and banking houses of Wall Street—a striking change from the stony-eyed attitude of the banker of a few years ago, when even small short-term loans were reluctantly granted and extended, often without due profit to either party. No more telling evidence could be desired of the vast change which has come to the business of newspaper publishing in the past decade.

Latest in the small, but growing chain of newspaper finance stories, is that of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., formed by Paul Block and associates in his various business enterprises to take over the stock ownership of the Toledo Blade, Newark Star-Eagle, Duluth Herald and Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, as well as the business of Paul Block, Inc., publishers representatives. The recent purchase by Mr. Block and his group of the Toledo Blade, is to be financed, it is understood, by the sale of the new corporation's 10 year 6¾ per cent notes to the value of $4,300,000. The syndicate of bankers, headed by Lehman Brothers, New York, report that the issue met with immediate success, being heavily oversubscribed.

Similarly happy was the offering last winter by the Chicago Daily News senior securities by Walter A. Strong and his colleagues in the management of that paper under the ownership of the late Victor F Lawson. These bonds are widely distributed in small lots, many newspaper publishers holding them as a gilt-edge personal or corporate investment.

Likewise the several issues of notes and bonds on highly profitable units of the Hearst publications have been absorbed freely by the financial district and passed to the investing public at excellent prices.

A number of other publishers, EDITOR & PUBLISHER is informed, have been offered financial aid by important New York security houses for expansion of their operations or acquisition of other newspapers. The reported total of these offers runs high into the millions and it is understood also that the connections were sought not by the publishers, but by the bankers.

The keen minds which direct the flow of liquid capital have realized that newspaper goodwill, while highly intangible, difficult to build, and comparatively delicate of structure, is nevertheless a solid foundation for finance.

So far these recent efforts have not been directed toward floating the sale of common stock in newspaper properties. Bankers have tried their hand at direct operative control of many businesses, often with disaster to the business and their holdings therein, and not a few newspapers have suffered from such control. The new idea is to leave the common stock, with its voting control of the paper's destiny in the hands of the publisher and his immediate associates, while sharing in its profits by flotation of preferred and stock issues, giving the publisher quick money for necessary expansion or improvements, and paying the investor a safely high interest rate.

According to Roland Palmedo, of the house which floated the Consolidated Publishers, Inc., notes, the reason that the public has been reluctant in the past to buy, and American bankers have been reluctant to finance, newspaper securities is probably that the intangible values of a newspaper property are so large in proportion to physical assets. The intangible values, represented chiefly by goodwill, are based on earning power, past, present and prospective. And earning power, in the case of a newspaper, is so large in proportion to the physical assets necessary that the goodwill item, in the case of a successful newspaper, is by far the largest and most important asset.

"On the other hand," Mr. Palmedo stated to EDITOR & PUBLISHER, "the investing public has been taught to look for net tangible assets greatly in excess of the amount of senior securities. It has come to regard this as one of the primary tests of an investment's safety. In a security offering it looks for 'net tangible assets equivalent to $2,500 per $1,000 bond,' or 'to $160 per share of preferred stock,' or some similar statement. They are just beginning to realize that the goodwill value of a newspaper is easily appraised, readily marketable, and therefore a legitimate basis for the issuance of securities, either bonds or stocks."

Newspaper men know that it is only in the smallest communities supporting a daily that the tangible assets approximate in value the annual gross earnings which form one of the main bases for the appraisal of goodwill. Even there the approximation is not always close. It is a small community indeed which will not afford its daily newspaper a gross revenue of $25,000 a year from advertising and circulation, and a newspaper earning that sum can easily be produced in a plant costing no more than $15,000.

In the larger field, take the recent appraisal of the Consolidated Publishers, Inc., properties. The four newspapers had a net realizable value, according to Palmer, DeWitt & Palmer, of $11,000,000, including net tangible assets, which had an approximate book valuation of $1,300,000. In other words, plant, equipment, real estate, and balance of accounts receivable over accounts payable were only slightly more than 10 per cent of the papers' total valuation.

Many rules have been advanced for the calculation of a newspaper's intangible values, but none of them, nor all of them combined, can be made to fit every situation.

Intangible itself, it rests upon factors highly elusive to any of the five senses. It is based on the circulation of the publication, of course, and the power and willingness of that circulation to buy goods and services advertised in the newspaper, so that advertisers will continue to use its columns to promote the sale of their commodities. An editor and publisher may have labored for years to make his newspaper a force in its community. On Monday he may have the universal respect of all citizens, readers and advertisers. On Tuesday he may have lost all of it that is worth while by an ill-considered political alliance, or a deserved attack upon abuses perpetrated by a local power who is in position to punish the newspaper, or by an arbitrary stand against advertisers on the subject of a new rate card. Any of these or a thousand others may maim his earning power and goodwill in a fraction of the time it took to construct it. Often it is recovered. Sometimes the loss is permanent, even in the face of new and sagacious management.

Factors even more elusive than the management of a newspaper enter into its intangible values. Assume a hypothetical newspaper more than 100 years old in a city steeped in historical traditions. The newspaper has its traditions, too, of fearless editorial championing of the public's rights on all political questions, of earnest and complete detailed reporting of the city's life, of enthusiastic and well-considered advocacy of social and economic advance in the city's development. Such a newspaper, even though its present conduct may fall somewhat below the standard of tradition, even though the earnings of a competitor are higher, will command a high goodwill valuation on the present-day market. Its buyer must be a man whose earlier training and habits of mind will be in harmony with the things that the city holds sacred and he will have to maintain the integrity of the established editorial and business policies. In such a community the idol-breaker, even if he could obtain the paper, would find its operation impossible within a short time. Established competition would run away with his field or new competition, locally financed, would arise to fill the gap that the intruder had created. That is not a dream, but a blind statement of events within the memory of present-day newspaper men.

No rule of thumb which would take

(Continued on page 14)

FOUR ROUGH RULES OF THUMB APPLIED TO VALUATION OF DAILY NEWSPAPERS

WHILE newspaper economists are agreed that there is no universal rule for computing the value of a newspaper goodwill, each property transfer requiring independent investigation of all local factors, the following have for 15 or 20 years been accepted formulae:

1.—Value circulation and goodwill at $10,000 per thousand of circulation. Many instances exist where this rule gives no index to the true earning power and goodwill value of newspapers with small circulations but of long and high standing as advertising media.

2.—Value circulation and goodwill at the total amount of gross receipts from advertising and circulation for the past 12 months. Add the excess of current assets over liabilities, plus the replacement value of plant, machinery and equipment.

3.—Value circulation and goodwill at the amount which the net earnings capitalized at 10 per cent for the year in question will bring. Add the excess of current assets over liabilities, plus replacement value of plant, machinery and equipment.

4.—Take the average of the above three methods.

With regard to the second method, many experts advise that the gross earnings be averaged over a period of five or more years to preclude the possibility of basing the value on an abnormal twelve-month.

Another cardinal point in valuation is insurance that the circulation lists and circulation income are well established and not the fruit of a recent campaign whih swelled cash reeipts for the present but may not be paralleled in subsequent years.

CHARLESTON (W. VA.) PAPERS ON OPEN SHOP AS COMPOSING ROOMS STRIKE

Publishers Reject Demand for Wage Increases and 44-Hour Week—Union Refuses Arbitration and Suggests Higher Advertising Rates

BOTH newspapers of Charleston, W. Va., the Daily Mail and the Gazette, this week put their composing rooms on the open-shop basis, members of the Typographical Union having struck at midnight, July 30, following several weeks of negotiation for a new contract. The Daily Mail's edition of July 30 was omitted, as were the Sunday and Monday editions of both papers, publication being resumed on Tuesday with a non-union force recruited from Eastern and Mid-Western cities. The press and stereotype rooms of both newspapers were unaffected.

Members of the local Typographical Union had been employed by the papers under a three-year contract which expired June 30, but continued in effect under a 30-day clause until July 30. It provided wages of $47 and $50 for day and night work respectively for a 48-hour week. A few superior men in each shop were paid more than the scale. The union proposed an increase of $3.60 in the day scale and $5 for night men and a decrease in working hours to 44 per week, the contract to run for 18 months.

The publishers' first counter-proposal was for a three-year contract, continuance of the 48-hour week, and a decrease of $3 in wages, declaring that the decrease was justified by slight recession of living costs since the war period and also by comparison with typographical wages in other cities. This proposal of the publishers was later amended to renewal of the old contract, which, according to the newspapers, provides wages more than $4 a week higher on the average than are paid to typographical men in more than 60 cities, many larger than Charleston, where contracts have been renewed during the past year without increases.

The union subsequently offered to amend its proposal by making the contract for three years, but still insisting on the wage increase and proposing to work 48 hours per week during the first year and 45 hours per week during the second and third years. The publishers rejected this proposition, but offered to submit all questions at issue to arbitration.

Thereafter on two occasions the publishers repeated their offer to arbitrate all questions under international procedure, but the union rejected all three offers. After the third refusal the publishers withdrew their arbitration proposal, leaving it to the union to suggest such a course if it saw fit. The union, however, stood fast on its amended proposition.

At one point in the negotiations the union representatives suggested to the newspaper owners that if they could not afford to pay the advanced wages out of their present earnings, they ought to increase their advertising rates to cover the increased wage expense. They declared that in their opinion Charleston merchants were paying too little for advertising and that an advance in rates was a simple method of defraying the additional cost of typographical labor.

The publishers refused this suggestion, explaining that business conditions in Charleston did not justify an increase either in advertising or subscription rates; that such an additional cost to the merchants of doing business would mean that their customers, including every wage-earner in Charleston, would pay more for his goods.

The union's principal argument for the increase was that in all the job printing shops members of the union were working 44 hours and receiving $50.60 for day work and $55 for night work.

To this the publishers replied that all job shops in Charleston except the Tribune Printing Company, which does the state printing, and one other small establishment, are co-operatively owned and operated by members of the union, and that these men were working for themselves and paying themselves; that the newspaper proprietors could not be expected to pay whatever high scale the co-operative job shop owners might arrange with themselves and for themselves to pay; also that all job shops in the city complained that they were losing money and that a high percentage of job printing for Charleston business houses is being done in other cities where lower scales prevail.

The publishers also set forth that under the proposed scale for newspapers, the 48 hours of labor necessary for publication (four hours at the overtime rate) would cost $57.50 for day work and $62.50 for night work, amounting to an increase of 22 per cent days and 25 per cent nights over the old scale.

In a statement to the public following resumption of publication, the publishers explained all issues and added this comment:

"The present scale is one of the highest in the whole country. In only a very few cities and metropolitan districts of the United States are slightly higher wages paid. The publishers submitted official records showing that typographical wages in Charleston are already much higher than in scores of cities which are much larger than Charleston. They showed by U. S. government figures that typographical earnings by the year in Charleston are larger by several hundred dollars per worker than the average for any of the skilled mechanical trades, outside the printing business, not only in Charleston, but in the United States as a whole.

"Records kept by local contractors show that workers in the building trades in Charleston each earn hundreds of dollars less by the year than do the printers employed on the Daily Mail and the Gazette. Printers have constant employment at high wages, and lose no time on account of bad weather or other adverse conditions. They often work extra hours voluntarily at overtime rates. It some cases the printer receives large extra sums in the course of a year for overtime work, at the rate of time and a half for the overtime.

"Comparing the present typographical wages in newspaper shops in Charleston and other cities, the publishers also submitted the following statement:

"Typographical union labor contracts recently have been renewed in 64 American cities without wage increase.

"The average population of these cities is 86,000, or about twice as large as Charleston's population. The average of printers' wages in these cities is, for day work, $42.89 and for night work $45.72, or about $5 per week less than in Charleston.

"Twelve cities of the 64 have an average population of 207,000, four to five times larger than Charleston. Most of them are metropolitan places or suburbs of a metropolis. The average of weekly typographical wages in these is, for day work, $50.68, and for night work, $54.02.

"In 25 other cities of the 64 the average population is 22,000. The average typographical wage in these places, smaller than Charleston, is, for day work, $40.07, and for night work, $42.78.

"The remaining 27 cities of the 64 are all larger than Charleston, according to the 1920 census, their population ranging from 42,000 to 259,000, with an average of 92,000. The average of union printers' wages in these, is, for day work, $41.47, and for night work, $44.54. These wages are about $6 per week lower than Charleston newspapers are now paying and from $9.13 to $10.46 lower per week than the Charleston union is now demanding.

"The Charleston union is demanding higher wages than are paid in Atlanta, Baltimore, Boston, Buffalo, Cincinnati, Denver, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Louisville, Memphis, Mobile, Philadelphia, Portland, Ore., Providence, Richmond, Seattle and St. Paul, or any one of 213 other cities.

"It will thus be seen that the Charleston publishers finally offered to renew and continue for three years a scale of wages which is among the highest in the country, notwithstanding that this scale was fixed in 1923 when living costs were higher than now; and that the union not only refused the offer, but on repeated occasions, declined in writing to accept the publishers' proposal to settle the whole dispute by arbitration."

PETER BLOSSOM RETIRES

Evarts Blossom, who has been publisher of the Brockport (N. Y.) Republican for the past 28 years, has leased the publication from his father and will be its editor and publisher hereafter, the father, Peter Blossom, giving up active connection with the newspaper.

FREE CRITICISM OF COURTS BENEFICIAL

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

(Written especially for EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

I WOULD advocate laws depriving judges everywhere of the right to punish for contempt of court, unless the contempt of court is committed in the court room and in a way definitely to show disrespect for the judge or obviously to create disregard for the processes of the law.

There is no more reason for a judge to be an autocrat than for the President of the United States, or a senator or any other public official to be an autocrat. We have driven autocratic methods out of every department of our government except the judiciary and we cannot have a genuine republic until we have reduced the judges from the position of autocrats which they now hold and put them on the democratic basis which other public servants occupy.

Every public servant should be subject to criticism for his acts, in the interest of good government. Such criticism is not merely beneficial, it is essential in preserving our republican institutions. A judge should be subject to legitimate criticism, his decisions should be subject to criticism, his acts should be subject to criticism and the processes of any trial should be subject to legitimate criticism.

If the courts were properly responsive to public opinion and subject to popular criticism they would not be as much distrusted as they are; in other words, if the courts could not commit for contempt they would not be so largely held in contempt.

SEPARATE FINANCES FOR VIGILANCE

New Plan Adopted by I. A. A. Executive Committee—Woodbridge Says There Must Be Better Support of Organized Movement

The International Advertising Association and the National Better Business Bureau have established separate financing in accordance with plans adopted recently by the Association's Executive Committee. This has been brought about through the election of a separate treasurer for the advertising organization, Francis H. Sisson, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust Company, New York, who was elected at the recent convention in Philadelphia. Heretofore the two organizations have had the same treasurer handling all funds.

The new plan provides that the Association will be supported, as before, by dues from affiliated Advertising Clubs and departments of the Advertising Commission, as well as sustaining membership dues from those concerns that are interested in the work the Association is doing through its clubs and Commission departments in promoting a wider understanding of the uses of advertising, and improved methods in advertising and selling practice.

The National Better Business Bureau will be supported through sustaining memberships from special industries for specific programs of work, as well as subscriptions from concerns whose interest may be primarily in the protective work which the Bureau is doing in the national advertising field.

In a statement issued, C. K. Woodbridge, president of the International Advertising Association, said: "If the work of the International Advertising Association is given opportunity for the development that the people who are interested in its work are hopeful to see, it will be necessary for us to receive a substantial increase in our support from business concerns that are interested in the more effective uses of advertising. I refer primarily to such concerns as are represented in the publishing groups, poster and outdoor advertising interests, advertising agencies, advertising specialty manufacturers, screen advertising concerns, producers of direct mail advertising, printers, lithographers, engravers and others who make their profits through the sale of advertising services or advertising space.

"Heretofore, we have divided the funds received from sustaining membership support, except for special programs of work, on the basis of seventy-five per cent going to the work of the National Better Business Bureau, and Twenty-five per cent to the general work of the Associated Advertising Clubs.

"It is believed that our appeal for financial support will be greatly simplified by this new arrangement, the National Better Business Bureau appealing directly to those who have special interest in their activities, and the Association making its solicitations for support from those who want to see advertising further developed.

"Our present sustaining members will be given an opportunity to indicate whether their money is to go to the support of the Association or the Bureau."

ROCHESTER HERALD BANKRUPTCY

Claims aggregating nearly $450,000 were filed by 270 creditors when the bankruptcy case of the Rochester (N. Y.) Herald Company came up for disposition in connection with the winding up of the receivership. Hearings on the claims are expected to continue for 60 days or more. One of the claims is that of M. Bruce Potter, former president of the company, who seeks $72,000 in return for money said to have been advanced to the firm while he was its head. A large number of disputed claims are to be settled it is announced.

DICKEY ATTACKS KANSAS CITY STAR SALE

Owner of Kansas City Journal-Post Asks That Transfer to Kirkwood and Associates Be Declared Null and Void—Says He Was Successful Bidder—Star Company and University File Demurrers and Ask Dismissal

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 6.—Court action attacking the recent sale of the Kansas City (Mo.) Star was taken last Saturday in the circuit court here in a petition filed by the law firm of Miller Winger & Reeder for Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City (Mo.) Journal-Post.

WALTER S. DICKEY

The petition, filling 24 pages of closely typewritten matter, asks that the sale of the Star properties to the Kansas City Star Company by the university trustees of the William Rockhill Nelson trust be declared null and void and that the deed executed by the trustees be set aside and cancelled.

Mr. Dickey, although specifically the plaintiff, sets out in his petition that the suit is brought in behalf of Kansas City, so that it may benefit under the terms of Colonel Nelson's will.

The petition asks that Mr. Dickey be declared the successful bidder for the newspapers or that the court order that a new sale be held under the direction of the court to the end that the property may be sold at the best price and on the best terms obtainable.

The defendants named in the petition include William Volker, J. C. Nichols and Herbert V. Jones, university trustees; The Kansas City Star Company; Irwin R. Kirkwood, August F. Seested, Ralph E. Stout, George B. Longan, Henry J. Haskell, Earl McCollum and John T. Barrons, Star executives, and North T. Gentry, attorney general of Missouri.

The attorney general was named a defendant after he had declined to start court proceedings for annulment of the sale on behalf of the public.

The petition recites among others, these specific reasons for asking the court to set aside the sale:

1. That the trustees and their fiduciary agents, Mr. Kirkwood and associates, refused to give to prospective bidders sufficient data and information on which to make intelligent bids on the Star properties.

2. That Mr. Kirkwood and his associates as agents of the trustees in managerial control of the newspapers, had information concerning assets, earnings and valuation of equipment of the properties that was asked for but denied to other bidders.

3. That the fiduciary relationship of Mr. Kirkwood and his associates to the university trustees as their agents, disqualified them as bidders.

4. That Mr. Kirkwood and his associates, through the columns of the Star and through other agencies, launched a propaganda campaign to discourage prospective bidders in an effort to obtain the property at a price less than its real value.

5. That facts concerning the earnings of the newspapers between the dates of February 27 and July 9, 1926, the date of the sale, were denied all bidders except Mr. Kirkwood and his associates, who as agents and employes of the trustees, had this information.

6. That accounts receivable amounting to $1,000,000 of which other bidders had no knowledge, were included in the property purchased by Mr. Kirkwood and his associates, thus decreasing to that amount their net bid.

7. That the university trustees have suppressed and withheld from the public exact and detailed information on the terms of the sale and have never made public the complete offer of Mr. Kirkwood and associates.

8. That the plaintiff believes his bid of $8,001,000 cash and $100,000 rental a year for the real estate for a period of twenty years with a $2,000,000 purchase option was the highest and best bid offered for the property.

The complete text of Colonel Nelson's will, which provided that the newspaper properties should be sold "at the best price and on the best terms obtainable" forms one of the exhibits.

Other exhibits include the form of bid which was not submitted to prospective purchasers until the afternoon of the last day of the sale, the communication of Mr. Dickey to the trustees in which he asks for detailed data concerning the Star properties, and a copy of the complete offer made by Mr. Dickey at the time of the sale.

The petition states further that the plaintiff, despite the lack of full information and data, made the best bid for the the paper.

"By the terms of said bid," says the petition, "plaintiff offered and proposed to pay for said newspaper plant, exclusive of the real estate, the sum of $8,001,000, all of which sum was to be paid in cash within sixty days after said offer was accepted, and that in addition thereto he offered to lease the said real estate property used in connection with the operation of said newspaper plant and appurtenances thereto, for a period of twenty years at the price and sum of $100,000 per year with an option to purchase said real estate for a total consideration of $2,000,000.

"And plaintiff states that the bid so made by him was for a better price and on terms more favorable to the trustees than the bid made by Kirkwood and associates or any other bidder, the entire consideration for said newspaper plant being payable to said university trustees in cash and the said bills and accounts receivable hereinafter mentioned of which plaintiff is now informed and believes and so states it to be a fact, are of the face and reasonable value of over $1,000,000, were to be and remain the property of the university trustees and were not included in plaintiff's bid."

The petition goes on to say that the plaintiff was advised that the university trustees would not consider any bid that contemplated the payment of any part of the purchase price out of the future earnings of the newspaper properties, but despite the fact "extended to said bidders (Kirkwood and associates) a loan of $8,500,000, payable in deferred payments and extending over a period of approximately twenty years, and that the only security to be given for said payment is the property purchased at said sale."

The petition further alleges that the accounts receivable included in the property for which Mr. Kirkwood and his associates bid was of the value of $1,000,000 greater than the property included in the bid of the plaintiff "and had this plaintiff been advised by said university trustees that all of the accounts receivable of said trust estate were to be included in said sale this plaintiff could have and would have increased his bid to the extent of the value thereof."

Concerning efforts of the Star executives to discourage other bidders the petition says:

"Kirkwood and associates * * * as representatives of said university trustees commenced a system of spreading propaganda which was designed and used for the purpose of discouraging others from bidding on said newspaper properties.

"Plaintiff further states that after said Kirkwood, Stout, Seested, Longan, Haskell and Barrons accepted said appointment by the university trustees and as above set forth * * * and while acting in said fiduciary capacity and charged with a duty under the will of William R. Nelson of using their efforts in obtaining for said newspaper and appurtenances a sale for the best price and on the best terms obtainable, they continuously used the columns of the Star and Times for the purpose of spreading propaganda that they were the logical and proper parties to whom the Star properties should be sold and all of said propaganda and publications were made by said Kirkwood and associates for the express purpose of discouraging and preventing other bidders from bidding on said properties and for the purpose of leading others to believe that they would be favored by the university trustees in the sale of said properties.

"Plaintiff further states that under date of June 30, 1926, he handed to William Volker, one of the trustees, a request in writing for certain detailed information . . . and at the same time furnished to said trustees a blank form on which to furnish the details with respect to the items above mentioned. That all of the information severally requested by this plaintiff of the trustees was necessary in order to give any person proposing to purchase said newspapers sufficient data on which to base an accurate and intelligent bid.

"Plaintiff further states that publicly and privately he requested of the university trustees both orally and in writing full information and a detailed analysis and audit of the accounts of said newspapers made by certified public accountants and a written report of some well known, qualified, disinterested appraisal company with respect to the value of the properties to be sold and urged that such information be furnished to all bidders so that all bidders might be on an equal basis.

"Notwithstanding said written demands and other repeated attempts of this plaintiff to secure such necessary information and data as to the financial condition and value of said properties aforementioned, the said university trustees and their agents * * * failed and neglected and refused to furnish said information and data to this plaintiff and failed, neglected and refused to permit the plaintiff to make a personal examination of the books, papers, records and written data and other documents that had been used in connection with said business and property."

Attorneys for the Kansas City Star Company and for Irwin R. Kirkwood, filed demurrers and motions to dismiss the suit.

The demurrers were identical and were based on the following reasons: The court has no jurisdiction of the subject of this action, because the plaintiff has no legal capacity to sue; because there is a defect of parties plaintiff; Walter S. Dickey is not a proper party to maintain this action; because there is a misjoinder of parties defendant.

Motions to dismiss, identical, set forth these reasons: Because Walter S. Dickey, the plaintiff herein, has no standing whatsoever to institute or maintain this action and is not a proper party plaintiff; because, if any action could be instituted or maintained at all, the attorney general of Missouri is the only proper party plaintiff and is the only person entitled to institute or maintain this suit; because it appears from the plaintiff's petition that the attorney general of Missouri has refused to institute or maintain any action whatsoever; because the plaintiff's petition herein does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

A motion was filed on Monday for the appointment of a special commissioner to preside at the taking of depositions in the case, by attorneys for the plaintiff.

The trustees of the Nelson estate, William Volker, J. C. Nichols and Herbert V. Jones, on Wednesday entered the Circuit Court to defend the sale of the Star to the Kansas City Star Company. The attorneys for the trustees served notice on the Dickey lawyers that they would file on Thursday a motion to dismiss and a demurrer to the suit recently brought by Dickey to set aside the sale. The points for dismissal made by the trustees are similar to the ones made by the Star Company's attorneys.

The following statement was issued by Watson, Gage & Ess and Lathrop, Morrow, Fox & Moore, attorneys for the Star:

"It is our opinion the suit brought by Walter S. Dickey utterly is without merit. A suit of this kind can only be maintained by the attorney general, and in view of his refusal to act, because he had no grounds for doing so, Mr. Dickey's action is groundless and cannot be maintained.

"In view of this, it must be obvious that the bringing of the suit can only be for the purpose of embarrassing and harassing the present owners of the Star and of crippling the trust created by Col. W. R. Nelson. It would seem to be the last fling of a desperate competitor."

WHITE ON CONTEMPT OF COURT ISSUE

By WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE

Editor, Emporia (Kan.) Gazette

(Written especially for EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

WE editors are just beginning to feel what labor has felt for years. We have applauded judges as conservators of the constitution when they were restricting the rights of labor by injunctions, denying them trials by jury under proceedings which now are grinding the liberties out of the press. Unless we are willing to take labor with us in our flight across the ice for liberty like Eliza and her child, we might as well stay at home.

So long as judges can enjoin men from striking and prevent peaceful, direct picketing; so long as the courts and the strong arm of government are against labor in its peaceful struggle for economic liberty, our editorial wail for special privileges in the courts will excite no very great sympathy.

The thing that effects us is more deep-seated than our own little wrong. It is a repression of American liberties which comes from class-conscious government.

WASHINGTON'S BEAUTY ENHANCED BY ADDING THREE STORIES TO PRESS CLUB

President Bell Cites Record to Show Unanimous Approval of Civic and Artistic Bodies and Full Hearings Before Congressional Committees

By ULRIC BELL,
President National Press Club

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—Columns of steel, rising higher daily at the corner of 14th and F Streets, Washington, attest to the progress which is being made on the National Press Building.

ULRIC BELL

That this steel will carry the building to a height of 140 feet, or fourteen stories, instead of eleven stories, as originally planned, is due to an Act of Congress permitting the building to be built higher than the zoning height limit of 110 feet.

Congress passed this bill after learning that it was the consensus of official bodies and citizens' representatives that the additional height would enhance, rather than mar, the symmetry of the skyline of the National Capital.

It was brought out that the additional height would bring the Press Building nearer to the level of the adjacent Munsey and New Willard Hotel building and thus provide a more harmonious grouping.

This was the emphatic view of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, who, on March 4, in a letter to the House Committee on the District of Columbia, then considering the bill, pointed out that in 1924 Congress had passed a measure authorizing the Harrington Hotel to carry a new building to a height of 130 feet, although the zoning regulations permitted only 110.

In this letter it was stated, "the commissioners were of the opinion that height should be permitted in that case because the building proposed would then be the same height as the adjacent building."

The commissioners, through President Cuneo H. Rudolph, added:

"The commissioners are of the opinion that their recommendations in the present instance (that of the National Press building) should be consistent with their recommendation with respect to the Harrington Hotel case."

However the height proposed for the Press building by the commissioners, which height as they then believed, would bring the structure to a level with the adjacent buildings, was 130 feet, and the letter added that they would have "no objection to having the 130 feet height limit apply to a greater area than that prescribed in the bill."

At a later hearing, it was developed that the Munsey and Willard buildings towered to heights greater than those apparently included in the original information of the commissioners. This was before the Senate Committee on the District of Columbia, when it was stated that the Munsey building was 160 feet high and the New Willard 158 feet. Engineer Commissioner Bell, in direct charge of the building regulations, said that if this were true, he would not object to the bill. No objections were made, the project received the approval of the zoning commission and the bill, after some debate in the senate, was passed.

As matters stand the National Press Building, when completed will still be slightly below the level of the adjacent buildings mentioned.

As to the attitude of the commission of fine arts, an advisory body created by Congress to help preserve the beauty of Washington, the following letter speaks for itself:

APRIL 12, 1926.

NATIONAL PRESS CLUB, Washington, D. C.:

Gentlemen—In response to your request the undersigned, together with James William Bryan, on Saturday, April 3, called on Charles Moore, chairman of the Fine Arts Commission of the District of Columbia.

We stated to Mr. Moore the object of our call, and that was that Senator King, of Utah, had made the statement to some of your members that the Fine Arts Commision was opposed to the National Press building reaching the maximum height, on F street, of 140 feet, this despite the fact that the buildings adjacent to the National Press building, now under construction, reach considerably greater heights than 140 feet.

Mr. Moore stated to us that Senator King was in error and had been misinformed. If he had stated that the Fine Arts Commission was opposed to the Press building reaching the 140 feet level, and that this commission had had the matter before them and had decided that this height, in this locality, was not objectionable; in fact, that they had taken the view that the entire block should be authorized to reach this proper height limit.

Mr. Moore, we understood, would address a letter to you or to anyone else that you may suggest as interested in this matter, which letter we are confident will coincide with the statement made above, and that is that this classic building of the National Press Club's would be more symmetrical and would more greatly enhance the architectural beauty of the city, if allowed to reach the height desired and thus approximate but not reach the height of the Munsey building and the Willard hotel, which are adjacent to the Press building.

Very sincerely yours,
JOHN JOY EDSON,
Treasurer, National Press Building Corporation.

The Citizens Advisory Council of the District, an organization of representatives of all the citizens groups, set up by the commissioners to aid them in their work, and a body which has interest in the beautification of Washington, gave its vigorous approval to the project.

Summarizing the situation in regard to the permission granted by congress for the national press building to reach a height of 140 ft., it can be stated:

1—That no exception was made in favor of the national press club, because similar permission had been granted to others since the passage of the present zoning law.

2—That the proposed increase in height was carefully considered and studied by all the competent civic and official bodies charged with looking after the physical welfare and the architectural beautification of the nation's capital, these bodies including the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, the zoning commission, the citizen's advisory committee, the commission of fine arts, and the district committees of both the Senate and the House of Representatives.

3—Sub-committees were appointed by both the Senate and House committees and hearings were held by them to give opportunity for public discussions.

4—The consensus of opinion of all these bodies was that the true spirit and intent of the zoning law would be more nearly fulfilled and the architectural symmetry of the city better conserved by the proposed press building treatment rather than to have it 30 or 40 feet below the level of the neighboring building.

That there is a business side of the enterprise of the National Press Club is only incidental. But it is an inevitable development. No venture toward providing a worthy home for the club and its members—in Washington and scattered throughout the United States—could be conducted without assiduous attention to business principles, whether the project were small or large. It is a matter of gratification to all connected with the present undertaking that there has been no appeal to sentiment, and that it rests wholly upon its merits in a business way. That there should be a broad forward look at what the success of the enterprise may mean to the profession, through the fact that ownership of the new building will accrue to the National Press Club, is likewise natural. And the members of the club who yield to no one the custody of their ideals, feel that this institution is thoroughly capable, with the co-operation already vouchsafed by the fraternity at large, to employ such means as may be derived to the advantage of the profession as a whole.

In all of the intricate dealings which accompany a project of such magnitude there has never been a moment when those charged by the club with the task have been unmindful of their responsibility to their associates, to the whole profession, to the city of Washington and the public in genaral. No favors have been asked. No obligations have been incurred, and the National Press building sweeps skyward with each stem of added steel giving new assurance of success.

TO LAUNCH DAILY AUG. 15

Backers of Scranton (Pa.) Sun Expect to Enter Field on That Date

The Scranton (Pa.) Sun, a new afternoon publication, will begin publication about Aug. 15, according to present plans of the publishing company, of which W. F. Halstead, is president.

W. J. Pattison is treasurer and general manager, and T. J. Duffy is secretary. Mark K. Edgar has been named editor.

W. H. Ward, formerly circulation manager of the Toronto Globe, was this week named circulation manager of the new paper.

EDITION FOR NEW PORT

A new Texas port—Corpus Christi—is about to be opened, and the Corpus Christi Caller is planning a mammoth special edition to help commemorate the event. A. P. Herndon, managing editor, said the edition, to be issued early in September, will run from 160 to 200 pages.

RACE DESIGNATION STARTS SUIT

Suit for $50,000 in damages has been filed in the Pierce county court at Tacoma, Wash., by J. H. Ryan, publisher of Ryan's Weekly, against the Tacoma News Tribune. Mr. Ryan objects to the reference to him in news articles as "the negro publisher."

MICHIGAN DAILIES MEETING

The Michigan League of Home Dailies is holding its regular summer social meeting at Niles and Dowagiac, Aug. 4-6.

SYSTEM FUNDAMENTALLY WRONG

By LAFAYETTE YOUNG

Publisher Des Moines (Iowa) Capital

Written especially for EDITOR & PUBLISHER

I believe you are pursuing the proper course in suggesting that the change of venue principle ought to be applied to contempt of court cases. Surely any impartial authority on rights under the constitution and the law must agree that it is fundamentally wrong for a judge to pass judgment on his own grievance.

N. Y. WORLD FORWARDS $1,063 TO G. R. DALE

Fund Raised Among Readers and Other Newspapers to Assist Muncie, Ind., Editor in Appeal on Contempt Charge

The New York World this week forwarded $1,063 to George R. Dale, editor Muncie (Ind.) Post-Democrat, as a contribution toward expenses of his appeal to the United States Supreme Court from his conviction of contempt of court in Delaware County, Ind.

Of the sum all but $254, the World's own contribution, came from readers of the newspaper and from other newspapers who sent checks to swell the New York fund.

Newspapers gave $410 of the amount, $250 coming from the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, $100 from the Kansas City Star, through Irwin R. Kirkwood, its president, $50 from Marvin H. Creager, managing editor of the Milwaukee Journal, and $10 from the Aberdeen (S. D.) American-News.

Dale has received, exclusively of the World's fund, about $800 of which approximately $550 has been raised by Emmet Cavanaugh, a Chicago wholesale meat dealer in sympathy with the editor's anti-Klan fight; $150 contributed by other newspaper publishers and about $100 donated in small sums from other sources.

FREEMAN REJOINS GIMBEL

Former New York Ad Chief Now Executive in Philadelphia Store

Arthur Freeman, former advertising director of the Gimbel Brothers' department store in New York, has rejoined the Gimbel organization in an executive capacity with headquarters in Philadelphia.

Mr. Freeman's appointment follows the death of A. A. Christian, general manager of the Philadelphia Gimbel store, last week. Mr. Christian who also has been advertising manager for the local establishment before becoming general manager, was associated with the Gimbel organization for about thirty years.

PENN LAW CLARIFIED

The Pennsylvania State Industrial Board has announced an interpretation of the woman's law, classifying women proofreaders on newspapers as clerical employes. The interpretation, based on Section 4 of the act of 1913 follows: "That the employment of women as proofreaders in newspaper establishments shall, for the purpose of the application of the woman's law, be interpreted as a clerical occupation."

STORE USES 18-PAGE AD

The Tampa (Fla.) Sunday Tribune last week issued as 18-page section based upon the opening of a new furniture store. Editorial and advertising matter were all related to the store, practically every contractor who furnished material for the building taking space. Of the 144 columns, 37 were given to text matter and the remaining 107 to advertising.

NEW MONTEREY PUBLISHERS

Allen Griffin and J. A. Easton are now listed in the masthead of the Monterey (Cal.) Peninsula Herald as publishers. Griffin has been publisher of this newspaper for several years while Easton is the former owner of the Canandaigua (N. Y.) Messenger and former publisher of the San Luis Obispo (Cal.) Herald-Telegram.

RETURNS TO SEMI-WEEKLY

The Augusta (Kan.) Daily Gazette of which Burns Hegler is editor and publisher, is now on a semi-weekly basis until greater advertising business is secured. The paper appears Mondays and Thursdays.

CASH DISCOUNT TRENDS DON'T WORRY AGENCIES

Less Than Half of 1 Per Cent of Dailies Refuse It, Says O'Shaughnessy—Publishers Blame Agency Failure to Remit on Due Dates—Collections Not Retarded

"A BLACK speck stands on the newspaper advertising horizon. It is not dangerous; it is self-curing. It will cure itself before it reaches the dangerous stage."

James O'Shaughnessy, executive secretary of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, thus this week explained the bulletin of the association's finance committee, published by EDITOR & PUBLISHER last week, which remarked on "a growing tendency among newspapers to eliminate the cash discount to agencies" and described this tendency as "a serious menace to the credit soundness of our members." The finance committee's bulletin was signed by C. R. Erwin and John Benson.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy, asked to explain the meaning of both "the tendency" and "the serious menace," first requested the privilege of changing these words used by the finance committee.

"So few newspapers have abolished cash discounts," he declared, "that it cannot be spoken of as a tendency.

"And nothing can seriously menace the credit soundness of our members, because the advertising agency today is an economic factor. If it were not in would not last 24 minutes.

"The fact is that the newspapers are hurting themselves by doing away with cash discounts. Cash discounts make for prompt collection of advertising bills. American business has prospered under this system. The enormous business of the United States has been built up on the basis of cash discounts for prompt payment.

"Advertising agencies are using the system of cash discounts as a credit barometer. Why shouldn't newspaper publishers also have the benefit of that credit indication?

"If a great many more publishers than at present abolish cash discounts, there will be a lessening of advertising volume in the newspapers. But newspaper publishers in the main will not follow this course. They have too much wisdom.

"They know as we do that the present volume of advertising business is built on the present machinery. Pull a cog out of that machine, and it will not be the same, nor perform the same amount of work.

"Newspaper publishers are confusing agency service with promptness of collection. The total agency service is covered by the 15 per cent commission and the promptness of collection is covered by two per cent allowed for cash payment."

It is estimated by the American Association of Advertising Agencies that at present about one half of one per cent of the total number of newspapers in the United States have abolished cash discounts.

The move in that direction was started about a half a dozen years ago by the Chicago Tribune, which formulated the policy of granting no cash discounts, and allowing the 15 per cent agency commission only if the account were paid by a certain date of each month. The entire Hearst press now has a similar practice.

Today, of the big New York general newspapers, the New York Times is the only paper allowing a cash discount. The Des Moines Register & Tribune was the latest large paper to remove it from the rate card.

The New York Times allows a five per cent cash discount if the account is paid on or before the 15th of each month following the month during which service was rendered, and 10 per cent agency commission. This policy has been in effect for more than a score of years.

After the 15th of the month no agent gets a cash discount from the Times. Payment must be in the mails on or before the 15th to earn the five per cent.

The Times gives no cash discounts to department stores. All direct advertisers are also dealt with on a net basis. No commission is allowed on general advertising to agents not recognized by the New York City Publishers Association or the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

Representative of the other school in New York, the New York Herald Tribune pays the agency commission of 15 per cent only if the account is paid by the 15th of each month. No discount is granted for cash payment.

The Herald Tribune, however, according to Howard Davis, business manager, recently discussed the possibility of changing this ruling so as to pay 13 per cent agency commission and 2 per cent for cash payment. No action on this suggestion has yet been taken, Mr. Davis said.

All Scripps-Howard newspapers allow cash discounts. They pay the 15 per cent agency commission and 2 per cent cash discount if the account is paid by the 15th or 20th of the month, depending upon the location of the newspaper.

"This policy brings about prompt collections," Stuart Schuyler, president of Allied Newspapers, said. "And another thing, some agencies consider the cash discounts paid them their net profit.

"A liberal policy with all agencies, I believe, is for the good of advertising as a whole, in that it will aid in development of new advertising accounts."

"The Northern Illinois Group grants cash discounts but enforces terms," declared J. K. Groom, director of National Advertising. "I have no idea what would be the effect of elimination, but if we thought it best, protests would not affect us any. If many agencies passed discount date, we probably would discontinue the practice of allowing discounts.

"Some agents are inclined to '15 and 2' per cent, but we make them understand 2 is cash discount and must be earned.

"Most agents take the cash discount. Perhaps the elimination by big papers is a mild way of raising rates and advertisers are in luck that it is not more. It sounds like tempest in teapot."

"Cash discounts are right in principle and good newspaper policy, provided both parties adhere strictly to rate card regulations," is the opinion of A. G. Newmyer, associate publisher of the New Orleans Item-Tribune. "Trouble starts when agents disregard discount dates and newspapers allow them to get away with it. Such practice is at once unfair to agents who really earn the discount and publishers who stick to their cards. From another angle it is a rate cut, just as is the waiving of position charges, over-enthusiasm in merchandising effort, or publication of press agent bunk."

"The Columbus Dispatch recognizes that many agencies have been responsible for creating considerable new business and rather a constructive factor toward more and better advertising," declares Harvey R. Young, advertising director. "We believe they should be encouraged in their work by all publishers. The discount question has not yet received any consideration in this office."

"We understand that the usual experience is that elimination of cash discounts has not slowed up collections," said the business manager of a newspaper which does not allow the discount. "The general trend in many large industries is toward the elimination of cash discounts. Paper mills and many other manufacturers and jobbers supplying newspaper no longer give them."

Another advertising executive voiced his views in the following manner:

"We have taken no stand in this matter, but my personal opinion is that this step has been caused by abuse of the discount privilege by so many agencies. This does not apply so much to members of four A's as it does to other agencies. My opinion is that the movement will spread very rapidly and will result either in entire elimination of the cash discount or the merging of cash discount with agency commission, allowing neither to agencies who do not remit within discount period."

BRINGING HOME THE BACON—AND EGGS

Henry Grattan, St. Louis Post-Dispatch reporter, takes literally the leg-man's shibboleth "Don't come back without a picture," B. H. Reese, city editor, wanted only the central figure in this framed layout, but Grattan, sensing the deadline, hired a taxi and a negro porter and made the edition with the whole works.

BANKERS FETE MEIGS

Traylor, A. B. A. President, Host to New Chicago Publisher

M. C. Meigs, new publisher of the Chicago Herald and Examiner, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given last week at the Chicago club by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the American Bankers' Association, the First National Bank and the First Trust & Savings Bank.

In addition to Mr. Meigs and Mr. Traylor, the following were present to congratulate him: Frank O. Wetmore, First National Bank; Howard Marfield, Greenebaum Sons Bank & Trust Company; Howard Fenton, Harris Trust & Savings Bank; Herman Waldeck, Continental & Commercial Bank of Chicago and Harry Wheeler, Union Trust Company; H. E. Otte, National Bank of the Republic; Eugene Stevens, Illinois Merchants Trust Company; O. G. Foreman, Foreman Trust & Savings Bank; Lawrence Whiting, Boulevard Bridge Bank; B. C. Hardenbrook, First Trust & Savings Bank, and Hector H. Elwell and Hays McFarland of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

SELLING LAWSON ESTATE

Realty Development Using 1080 Acres at Green Lake, Wis.

One of the treasured spots of the late Victor F. Lawson, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, his great private estate of 1,080 acres on Green Lake, Wis., is being divided up for restricted country homes. The estate has been named Lawsonia and is being offered for sale by H. O. Stone & Co., Chicago. Guides are on the estate showing visitors over the numerous roads, old trails, gardens and farms.

The estate was built by Mr. Lawson originally for the sole enjoyment of his family. It has fourteen miles of macadam roads winding through the woods, a spring-fed lake with several beaches, a yacht harbor, a boat house, golf course, tennis courts and bridle paths.

HONOR FOR PARIS HERALD

Salvation Army There to Dedicate Room in Memory of War Services

The Paris Herald, Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune, is to be honored by the Salvation Army in Paris when one of the rooms in the new Palais des Femmes, which the Salvation Army is soon to open, is named for it.

Lieut. Col. A. G. Hamilton, in charge of the Salvation Army headquarters in France, announced recently that a metal plate inscribed with the newspaper's name would be attached to the door of room 206 to commemorate the part played by the Paris Herald in helping to finance the home for women in Paris.

The Spokane Spokesman-Review recently ran an interesting series entitled "Golfellows," a one column picture of a prominent man on the links with a verse in light vein underneath.

MONTREAL BARS ALL NEWSSTANDS AND SALE OF MAGAZINES BY NEWSBOYS

Police Regulation Follows Aesthetic Effort to Rid Streets of Ugly Counters—Newspapers Control Allotment of Corners to Young Salesmen

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 3.—Newsstands have been abolished from the streets of Montreal, and the sales of newsboys are now restricted exclusively to regular newspapers. Magazines, periodicals and other printed matter may not be sold by newsboys on the streets.

This final regulation is the outcome of a lengthy agitation from two different sources; one from the owners of stores selling magazines and periodicals, who complained that they had to pay heavy taxes, rent and other business expenses, and had to meet the competition of street news vendors who erected stands at street corners and had no other charge to meet than a trifling fee for a peddler's license. The other source of agitation was from parties interested in the artistic appearance of the city's streets, who objected to the disfigurement of newsstands made of old soap boxes and the like.

Models of artistic kiosks were brought over from Paris and other European cities, and a by-law was drawn up, which would have required news vendors to hire their stands from the city at a nominal rate, and confine their operations to the sale of newspapers.

This proposal was nearly put through, but was finally thrown out in the city council, on the report of certain legal authorities that the city had no charter right to create a vested interest in any part of city property.

The proposed by-law was then dropped, and the question regulated by an order of the police that all newsstands must be removed from city property, that news vendors must sell only newspapers, and that they must carry their wares in their arms like other itinerant merchants.

It was prophesied that this would lead to a free-for-all as regards the best selling corners, but the newspapers themselves have taken in hand the task of regulating this matter, by insisting that vendors keep to their own corners, if they want to go on being furnished with papers.

The artistic appearance of the city streets, however, has gained nothing, as the news vendors dump their papers on the sidewalk, only lifting them up and carrying them a little distance when required to do so by a passing policeman. They not infrequently tie a few spare copies to light and telephone poles along the street near their corner, by way of advertising their wares, which does not improve the appearance of the street corner.

But the law, as it stands, is being complied with and every one seems satisfied for the moment.

NEW YORKERS HOSTS TO PRESS CONGRESS

Four Days of Receptions, Luncheons, Theatre Parties and Tours Planned Before Sailing Date

North American delegates to the Third Congress of the Press of the World, to be held in Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, September 14-18, will assemble at the New York headquarters, Hotel Roosevelt, on Tuesday, August 31.

Secretary-Treasurer J. W. Brown announced this week that a reception and entertainment committee of leading New York newspaper men had been named to act as hosts to this group of 100 who are sailing for overseas on the Cunarder Carmania on September 4. The tentative program calls for a tribute to the first publisher in America, William Bradford.

Tuesday will be given over to registration. On Wednesday, Sept. 1 the delegates will be taken downtown on a motor tour to points of historic interest and will be received at the city hall by the Mayor, James J. Walker.

Following the downtown tour the motor caravan will proceed to Wanamaker's Store, where Rodman Wanamaker will be the host at a luncheon.

Charles Capehart, president of the Capehart & Carey Company, will tender a theatre party Wednesday evening in cooperation with Lee and Sam Shubert, following which an after-theatre dinner will be given at the offices of the New York Herald Tribune. Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Reid, being the hosts. An inspection of the plant will follow.

On Thursday, Sept. 2, at 1 p. m. the delegates will be the guests of H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co., at a luncheon at the Advertising Club of New York.

This will be followed by a sight-seeing tour of upper Manhattan. In the evening there will be a theatre party.

At 11:15 o'clock Thursday night the delegates will be the guests of Adolph S. Ochs and the general management of the New York Times, at an after-theatre supper to be given at The Times Annex.

Friday will be given over for individual shopping and private bon-voyage parties. The party will sail on the S. S. Carmania Friday midnight.

Letters received at the Press Congress of the World headquarters tell of the intent of newspaper men and newspaper associations in foreign countries to participate in the Third Congress which opens at Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, Sept. 14 and continues through to September 18. Following the business sessions there will be a tour of Switzerland, Belgium, France and England, and official receptions and entertainments will be tendered in Paris, Brussels and London, as well as Geneva and Lausanne.

Sailing from New Zealand on the S.S. "Aorangi" Aug. 3, were P. Selig and daughter, Mrs. Oscar Josephson. They will be joined at Honolulu, Aug. 13, by Frank J. Cody, publisher of the Hilo Tribune-Herald and Mrs. Cody and Mrs. Emma L. Aungst. They will arrive at Vancouver, Aug. 21, and will come direct to New York. Mr. Cody will be the official photographer for the Press Congress of the World at the business sessions and on the official tour.

ICELANDERS TO GENEVA

Orcutt Reports Interest at Reykjavik in Press Congress Sessions

Reginald W. Orcutt, of the foreign department of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, who has just returned from a vacation in Iceland, states that the leading newspaper men of Reykjavik are planning to attend the Press Congress sessions in Switzerland in September. While in Iceland, Mr. Orcutt had an audience with the Prime Minister, who informed him that the Kingdom of Iceland is preparing for a world-wide jubilee to be celebrated in 1930, commemorating the thousandth anniversary of its parliament the first on earth.

STRONG ON PRESS COUNCIL

Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News, spending his vacation in Europe, intends to be present at the Press Congress sessions at Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, Sept. 14-18, and has accepted a place on the World Press Council.

HERBERT PULITZER WEDS

Herbert Pulitzer, youngest son of Joseph Pulitzer, was married Thursday in Paris to Mrs. Munn Amory, of Washington, D. C.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

Aug. 11-13—South Dakota Press Assn., annual meeting, Brookings, S. D.
Aug. 12-14—East Tennessee Press Assn., annual meeting, Elizabethton, Tenn.
Aug. 12-14—Virginia Press Assn., annual meeting, Pulaski, Va.
Aug. 12—Wisconsin Press Assn., meeting, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.
Aug. 13-14—Iowa Press Assn., annual convention, Cedar Lake, Iowa.
Aug. 13-14—North Dakota Press Assn., summer outing, Devils Lake, N. D.
Aug. 20-21—Washington Press Assn., annual meeting, Hotel Davenport, Spokane, Wash.

FIELD SECRETARIES TO MEET FOR A WEEK

No Speeches, Little Entertainment, But Much Discussion of Press Association Topics Is Bemis' Plan

A tentative program for the annual convention of the newspaper field men of the United States which will be held in St. Paul, Aug. 25-30, has been given out by Edwin A. Bemis, president of the National Association of State Press Field Managers. Contrary to previous years' practice, the men will not be assigned definite subjects, but will take all of the topics and come prepared to give as much information as possible on each subject. Among the main subjects for discussion will be found the following:

"Newspaper Leadership," "The N. E. A.," "Subscription Trade Acceptances," "Use of the Trade Press," "The Texas Press Weekly's Plan," "Extension of the Field Manager Plan," "Discussion by an American Press Official," "Free Circulation Newspaper Memberships," "Franklin Printing Catalog," "State Association Rate Books," "Advertising Agencies," "Why 2% Cash Discount?," "Ford Advertising," by George Cushing of McKinney, Marsh & Cushing, "Printing as a Preferred Claim," "Financing Field Work," "Agencies and a Lower Local Rate," "Editorial Association Monthly Publications," "Schools of Journalism."

President Herman Roe and secretary H. C. Hotaling of the National Editorial Association will take an active part in the meeting. The entire time, with the exception of Sunday, will be given over to strictly business sessions. However, some entertainment will be provided.

CLARKSBURG BUSINESS SHOW IN NEW YORK

Telegram Arranges Display of City's Resources at Waldorf While Manufacturers' Association Meets There

Market promotion of a most unusual kind is announced by the Clarksburg (W. Va.) Telegram, which has arranged for a "Greater Clarksburg" exposition at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, the week of Oct. 4, when the National Association of Manufacturers is meeting there.

The newspaper's exposition will be staged in the Empire Room, which adjoins one of the principal entrances and has several windows fronting on 5th avenue at sidewalk level, giving inside and outside views of the booths in which the city's story as an actual and potential manufacturing centre will be told. Cooperation of the Clarksburg chamber of commerce and city officials has been freely given, the Telegram stated. Details of the exposition are in charge of M. Hachman, advertising manager.

W. E. GONZALES HEADS COLUMBIA STATE

Brother of Late A. E. Gonzales Succeeds Him as President and Editor—F. C. Withers Named Secretary-Treasurer

Reorganization of the State Company publisher of the Columbia (S. C.) State has been effected, following the recent death of Ambrose E. Gonzales, president.

WM. E. GONZALES

William E. Gonzales, editor of the State, becomes president, Mrs. Lucie B. Gonzales, vice-president, and F. C. Withers, secretary and treasurer. Mr. Withers has for many years been business manager of the State.

The paper is owned entirely by the Gonzales family the late president leaving his majority stock in trust for other members of the family, so that the policies he established will be perpetuated. William E. Gonzales, formerly ambassador to Cuba and Peru, is the only surviving brother and will not only continue as editor-in-chief of the paper, but as president will direct its policies.

TO TOUR SUPERIOR REGION

Wisconsin Press Party Will Visit Last Territory Unexplored by Editors

"See Wisconsin First!" The Wisconsin Press Association adopted this motto six years ago and it has lived up to it every year by making a motor tour of some section of the state. The editors have visited all sections of Wisconsin except the picturesque Lake Superior country, which is the objective this year.

They will rendezvous at Wisconsin Rapids on Aug. 12. William F. Huffman, president and manager of the Daily Tribune of that city, is preparing a special edition in honor of the city's guests. He also has arranged for an exhibit of the state's newspapers and the art of their printers.

The next morning the motorcade will start on a tour including Medford, Phillips, Park Falls, Mellen, Copper Falls Tyler Forks Falls, Ashland, Bayfield the Apostle Islands and Superior. On the return trip Duluth, St. Paul and Minneapolis will be visited.

ALLISON STEPS UP

New Managing Editor of San Antonio Light, Succeeding Hoskins

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 5.—L. A. Hoskins has resigned as managing editor of San Antonio (Tex.) Light and has been succeeded by P. M. Barrett former news editor and assistant to Hoskins. Dwight Allison has been promoted to news editor and Frank Ragsdale succeeds Allison as head of the copy desk Hoskins has been managing editor of the Light since W. R. Hearst bought the paper two years ago. He returns to direct-by-mail advertising, rejoining the Herbert C. May Company, at Houston, with which he was formerly connected. Barrett, who came to the Light from the Houston Dispatch and who formerly worked on the Chicago Herald Examiner, returned a few days ago from a honeymoon trip to find promotion awaiting him. Allison formerly was Sunday editor of the Fort Worth Record.

MEREDITH A CANDIDATE

E. T. Meredith, publisher of Successful Farming, Des Moines, Ia., and long active in advertising affairs, will probably again be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President in 1928.

WHEN A LIBEL SUIT IS WORTH RISKING

Dare Death and Prison to Tell Truth of Public Official Corruption Declares Hugh A. O'Donnell, Who Lived Melodrama in Successful Fight to Reform New Orleans—Praises Don R. Mellet

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

What is fighting editorship? What does it profit a man?

These questions are answered this week by Hugh A. O'Donnell, now assistant business manager of the New York Times, in this the 21st article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

Mr. O'Donnell, as publisher of the old New Orleans American, lived melodrama seldom rivaled in fiction and fact to accomplish political and moral reform in New Orleans. This week the story of his fight is told. Next week, the series will be continued with discussion of the famous libel suit of which Mr. O'Donnell was defendant, ten years ago at this time.

TELLING the truth of public official corruption and rottenness is a case here it is an editor's duty to jump into a possible libel mesh and risk court battles, financial loss, prison, or even violent death to bring about reform.

HUGH A. O'DONNELL

Sounds holy. But what profit that?

Don R. Mellett, once fearless publisher of the Canton Daily News, cannot reply. A bullet ended his truth elling. But he died, his wife said, with smile on his lips.

Hugh A. O'Donnell, now assistant busiess manager of the New York Times, an answer the question. He lived hrough a melodrama every whit as exiting as Mellett's, but not without sad agedy. O'Donnell's wife was slain—ot by an assassin's bullet, but through ear and worry for her husband's sake.

O'Donnell's life was menaced many mes, when ten years ago he led a reorm movement in New Orleans and ouisiana. O'Donnell in editorials and hrough the news columns of the old New Orleans American was telling the truth bout conditions in New Orleans. Escapig death by a miracle, he finally won one f the hardest fought libel cases.

Standing on the wreck of his paper, put ut of business by the politicians in ower, O'Donnell, cleared of libel charges, ooked upon the downfall of corruption in ffice and the clean-up of a degraded city.

Well, what profit that?

"I'd willingly get back into just such nother scrap," O'Donnell said this week. What's the use of living without a fight.

"Editors are failing in their duty, when, or fear of libel or their lives, they hesiate to speak the truth of public official orruption.

"Men of the type of Don Mellett, the onsciences of their communities, are nuch needed today in journalism. Their ives, although perhaps cut short, will be appy and decidedly well worth living."

"What happened in New Orleans?" Mr. O'Donnell was asked. "Did peace nd graft return once more to the city?"

"Well," he replied, "there was a clean olitical sweep throughout the state for he first time in 16 years. Grafters in ffice learned that they could be curbed y a watchful press, and never again have hey been as rotten in either the city or tate as once they were."

It was in late 1916 and early 1917 O'Donnell started fighting political and noral corruption in New Orleans. He was a northerner in the South. That nade his task the harder. Through editorials in his paper, he began a battle oyal to impeach the mayor and commision council.

For 16 years the clique in office had ominated practically the entire city. New Orleans then had a population of 00,000. Divide that figure by two and he white vote could be tallied. Divide he resultant 200,000 by five and the figure pproximates the real vote. There were 8,000 voters on the city pay rolls.

So the men in power were brazen in heir graft. And it took a northerner in hose days to be surprised.

The mayor and his council were interested with New Orleans business men in a local race track. On the statute books of the state was an old law against racing. Gambling was likewise frowned upon. Because the politicians prospered, the aws were broken with impunity.

"Enforce the laws or get rid of them" was the slogan with which O'Donnell launched his campaign of reform. After this academic start he immediately began to hit between the eyes.

To make certain they would have no competition in their gambling venture, the political group started a move to buy another race track. Directors of the local racing association met in the mayor's office.

"Where is the money coming from to buy this race track?" O'Donnell asked editorially. "Is the city treasury safe? The temple is full of possible thieves."

O'Donnell merely asked questions, but truth stood behind them—dangerous truth. That editorial formed the basis of one of several suits for libel brought against him, the only one that eventually came to trial.

Trial, indeed, was delayed.

Continuing his campaign to "enforce the laws or get rid of them," the editor of the American began to challenge his enemies with the question, "Why don't you bring me to trial?", and to tell the other truths to answer his own question as to the reason for delay.

"We've got to get this fool out of the way," became the demand in the camp of corruption.

O'Donnell charged an absolute disrespect of all law in the city. The police denied this charge. O'Donnell threw the lie back at the police. Daily he indicted them.

Two or three blocks away from the city's principal department store were two or three acres of "cribs," women stood lightly clad before the cribs soliciting the youth of the city.

Prostitution, outside of a legally licensed district, was against New Orleans law. The law was being broken. The police were receiving more than $1,000,000 a year in graft, O'Donnell charged.

Reporters from the American were assigned to frequent vice dives accompanied by witnesses and to report all that they saw. They found not only prostitution but also abnormal, immoral, disgusting shows. Laws broken without police interference were recorded daily in the New Orleans paper.

O'Donnell didn't keep his campaign on vice and law violation confined to the lower half. His men discovered and reported law-breaking on the part of the socially prominent.

It was against the law, for instance, for barrooms to be open after midnight Saturdays. Men on the New Orleans American mingled with the social elect in the saloon of an exclusive hotel and the names of those violating the law and unarrested were published.

The police had to do something. One day they arrested some 200 prostitutes. Brought before a local judge, the women were dismissed, with the warning that a second offense would receive punishment.

The judge has done the right thing, O'Donnell declared editorially. These women have been allowed to continue their business for 16 years without interference. Why should they be punished now? Others worse than those women were at fault.

It was this type of reasoning that amazed and angered O'Donnell's enemies.

One chance to expose police graft came to O'Donnell by luck.

He was sitting in his office, guarded as he had to be, by a detective. A young man knocked and entered.

"I want to see you privately," he said.

In these days, O'Donnell was averse to private interviews. He appraised the youth quickly, decided he was honest and safe, and motioned the detective to leave. "All right, come in," he invited.

"I have just been released from the House of Detention," the boy began. "I am risking my life coming here to see you."

"Well, why is that?" smiled O'Donnell.

"I arrived in New Orleans on vacation," continued the boy. "I committed no crime. One night I was arrested and shanghaied to the House of Detention. There were many others like me there. We were being kept there to furnish the police and politicians with 30 days of free labor. Before leaving my life was threatened if I squealed. What is worse, the man in charge is a degenerate who takes a wild pleasure in seeing people tortured."

"You don't expect me to believe all that?" interrupted O'Donnell.

"We were tortured when we refused to work," continued the boy. "Our work was to shingle houses owned by the police, to sweep out police stations, jails and public buildings, to keep the race track in condition."

"All this is incredible," said O'Donnell. "We couldn't use it. I don't suppose you would swear to your charges in an affidavit."

"I certainly would," the boy replied. A notary was summoned. The boy's story was sworn to.

"But how can we corroborate this?", asked O'Donnell. "As it stands, this affidavit is not worth the paper it's written on."

The boy solved this objection. Men and boys who were with him in the House of Detention were looked up on their release. All together, he gathered some 11 witnesses to the truth of his story.

Then came a sensational expose in the American.

Every minute of the day and night, O'Donnell's life was in jeopardy. Members of the political gang thought their editorial enemy must be a physical as well as a mental giant. In this they were mistaken. O'Donnell was worn thin and frail by the fight.

Telephone calls came to his wife at all hours.

"We are going to bump off your husband, if he doesn't quit," a voice would tell her.

Mrs. O'Donnell died under the terrific strain.

O'Donnell himself escaped several plots against his life by sheer ignorance, which his enemies mistook for astounding courage or some unseen sure protection. Once when leaving the Athletic Club to return to his office, three thugs stood in his path.

"Here comes the ———— now," muttered one of them. He continued walking towards them, never dreaming they intended damage.

"How do, Mr. O'Donnell" greeted one of the three

"Why, hello, fellows," returned O'Donnell, raising his hand in salute as he continued walking towards and then passed them.

Such nerve was not understandable to the underworld. According to their rules, the editor seeing three against one should have turned and fled. Then a shot would have rung out, O'Donnell's life ended.

Afterwards O'Donnell learned the three thugs thought he was wearing a shirt of mail and was protected by detectives with guns in a nearby building.

A closer call came in his own office. He was holding an advertising conference. Cigars had been passed. The room was blue with smoke. Sitting at his desk in the center of the group, O'Donnell thought he saw a shadow on the glass of the door directly opposite.

"Someone's outside," O'Donnell whispered to his guard. "Better see who it is."

Before the guard reached the door it was flung open. A man flourishing a revolver leapt across the smoke filled room. O'Donnell felt the cold steel of the weapon against his temple. He heard a click. Though every chamber was loaded the cartridge failed to explode.

Floored by others in the room, the man was arrested, and charged with assault with intent to kill. He had been hired, O'Donnell learned, to kill the editor and publisher of the New Orleans American, promised $7,000 pay if he was successful.

Found guilty of the charge against him, the man was later paroled. Officials said he was drunk with absinthe and didn't know what he was doing.

Such is the melodrama of a fighting editor, which continued throughout the famous trial of O'Donnell on the libel charge.

(To be continued next week.)

NO JUSTIFICATION FOR TYRANNY

By VICTOR H. HANSON

Publisher, Birmingham (Ala.) News

(Written especially for EDITOR & PUBLISHER*)*

I AM not prepared definitely to endorse any specific plan for curbing the power of judges in constructive or indirect contempt cases. It is really remarkable, considering the enormous power invested in members of the judiciary, that so few abuses have occurred. It is a high tribute to the personnel of the American judiciary that this is true. Under the present system unquestionably grave abuses are possible and the fact that a tyrant is generally benevolent does not justify the existence of tyranny. Probably jury trials for those charged with constructive or indirect contempt would more nearly approach a solution than any other method. Certainly the American press should be protected in its rights to provide for the public interpretive information about judges, while the courts are entitled to full protection against abuse of this liberty.

SMALL HOMES PAGE AND PROGRAM COUPLED WITH AD CAMPAIGN

Home Owners' Service Institute Now Supervising Building Under Newspaper's Sponsorship in 28 Cities— Results of Herald Tribune Feature

IN the spring of 1921, when rents were high and apartments scarce in New York City, the New York Tribune, casting about for a new feature to keep its readers happy, began publishing a series of weekly articles on ways and means of acquiring individual homes, with architectural plans and specifications of small suburban homes.

New York was laboring under high rents, people knew little concerning the subject of home buying or building, a condition common among renters, and, in an exodus to the suburbs lay the only relief.

At the end of 1921, the articles on building and the publication of carefully selected home plans had aroused so much interest that an entire page was devoted every Sunday to this subject and an expert on the small home problem added to the Tribune staff as editor. This man was L. Porter Moore, veteran reporter of metropolitan dailies, now president of Home Owners Service Institute of New York City, an organization composed of important factors in the building field, pledged to encouraging better residence construction in this country. Mr. Moore is still editing this feature.

The weekly page was and is known as the "Small House" page, the first full page editorial feature of its kind ever used by a newspaper, and is apart from, and in addition to, the regular weekly Sunday real estate pages. Indeed in looking about for a likely feature for reader interest, officials of the Herald Tribune recognized the fact that the rank and file of readers were not at all interested in the weekly real estate page, that gave no information on the elementary processes of acquiring a home and was written in more or less technical language for realtors and brokers, difficult for the layman to comprehend.

It was recognized that most renters have not the faintest idea how to proceed in home buying or building, that thousands of people put off the undertaking, even though they have the necessary funds, because of this ignorance.

When the Herald Tribune first set about securing their first articles on building, it soon found that there was no material readily available. Experts in each phase of this subject had to be persuaded to set down on paper, often for the first time, the principles of how to go about financing, planning, building, furnishing, decorating, equipping and landscaping the modern home. It is true that there were available many expert small house plans, but these plans had never been put before the general public in published form. The Home Owners Service Institute owned the prize winning designs of the National Small House Competition held in 1921 by the Annual New York and Chicago "Own Your Home" Expositions, gathered together under the auspices of the American Institute of Architects. These, some thirty odd expert plans, were used for a time in this page, but it was soon necessary to assemble other expert plans and have still others specially drawn by prominent architects whom the Herald Tribune succeeded in interesting in the undertaking. Provision was made for readers to obtain all these plans and the specifications at a nominal cost.

Readers were also invited to write to the editor of the page on any problem of home building, from the actual construction to the hanging of the curtains in the bedroom, and hundreds of letters were piled on the editor's desk the first week. The business of reading and answering these letters alone has grown to large proportions and a staff of experts is now required to take care of this phase alone.

During 1922, the venture had become so successful that the Herald Tribune decided to go farther into the matter than the printed word, and began to sponsor the building, furnishing, and opening to the public, in and near New York City, of the homes pictured on the "Small House" Page. The first such demonstration house was opened at Larchmont Gardens, New York, on October 9, 1922, in connection with the first annual observance of Better Homes Week, in an effort to show Herald Tribune readers what a modern home should be. More than 20,000 people inspected this house in the four weeks in which it was open and thousands of readers followed the progress of its construction, from digging the cellar to placing the furniture, as recorded in the weekly "Small House" page.

At that time, as an additional stimulus to home building, the Herald Tribune inaugurated a model home section in gravure, which is published with the Sunday edition on the opening date of each model house, and contains plans and specifications of the model house, various photographic views of the house, construction photographs, the cost of building and much other useful information.

By the end of 1926, more than 50 Herald Tribune model homes will have been opened in and adjacent to New York City under the supervision of the Home Owners Service Institute, and during the four years of this campaign, hundreds of thousands of people have visited these homes. The history of the construction of each home is recorded, step by step, in the "Small House" page from the time ground is broken until the opening, as was done with the first house.

Reader interest led thousands of prospective home owners to inspect one of the 50 new dwellings constructed under the Herald Tribune's auspices.

Advertisers of real estate, building materials, home furnishings and equipment, began to see "reader appeal" in the "reader interest" feature of this publication, and an unexpected increase in real estate display and other allied linage followed. In May, 1922, the Herald Tribune carried 3,420 lines of building materials display advertising and held fifth place among New York morning newspapers in building materials linage. In May, 1926, the Herald Tribune carried 30,682 lines of building materials display advertising.

In 1922, the Herald Tribune carried 569,916 lines of real estate display advertising and in 1925 this linage had jumped to 1,746,084 lines.

About two years ago, when interest in this undertaking became widespread, the "Small House" page was syndicate by the Herald Tribune to other new papers throughout the United States, an the Home Owners Service Institute th supervised the building of the Heral Tribune homes, was urged by other lea ing newspapers in other cities to exter the program.

After months of conference in mar "key" cities, the Home Owners Servi Institute, whose headquarters are 4 Lexington avenue, New York, is unde taking a national demonstration mod homes campaign, stretching from coa to coast, and covering a program of mo than 360 houses to be built in 28 citi The campaign this fall—from Septemb through December—will be under t supervision of a leading newspaper each city and will be conducted in mu the same way as the effort of the Hera Tribune, and will be backed with mo than $3,000,000 to be spent in education advertising, chiefly in newspapers, setti forth the principles of good constructi and equipment in the modern home.

A solid page of information for the man who wants to build or own a small home in the suburbs is a regular feature of the Sunday Herald Tribune.

OIL MEN TACKLE FRAUDS

Tulsa Group Co-operate Against Sha Schemes of All Kinds

Oil companies in Tulsa and the Okl homa section of the mid-continent fie have begun the Tulsa Fraud Bureau as part of their work. The object of t bureau is to rid the field of fraudule and fake oil concerns. Louis Lefk former manager of the Tulsa Better Bu ness Bureau, dissolved last December, manager of the new bureau.

Work already has begun, six investig tions being started the first week. T organization will investigate and repo on all advertising and stock sellin schemes in all lines, as well as in t oil game. All one issue programs, ra road guide propositions, labor reviev soldier or ex-service booklets, or oth stock selling plans will be thoroughly i vestigated.

Confidential reports on each will mailed to members and also to chambe of commerce in northern and northea ern Oklahoma.

MONESSEN PAPERS MERGE

Announcement has been made of t amalgamation of the Monessen (P News and the Friday Evening Call. T two papers will be published under t name of the Monessen News-Call. Ca L. Schuck, former publisher of the Ne will be president and general manag of the new paper, and Harold J. Ru former publisher of the Friday Eveni Call, will be editor-in-chief.

CUERO PAPER BUYS PRESS

The Cuero (Tex.) Record is install a new Model A. Duplex press.

INTELLECTUALS STUDY POWER OF U. S. PRESS

World News, Public Opinion, Subsidies and Advertiser Control Discussed Before Institute of Politics, Williamstown, Mass.—Arthur S. Draper, New York Herald Tribune, in Chair

EXAMINATION of newspapers and their power in molding public opinion began the last two days of last week before a distinguished gathering of college presidents, professors, doctors, lawyers and clergymen attending the annual Institute of Politics at Williams College, Williamstown, Mass.

With Arthur S. Draper, assistant editor of the New York Herald Tribune, in the chair, the press section of the Institute, will continue discussion of the subject "Public Opinion and World Affairs," on each Friday and Saturday of this month.

The subject was introduced by Mr. Draper, July 30 and 31, and subsequent discussion concerned comparison of British and American newspapers in presentation of world news, definitions of public opinion, press subsidies, and advertiser control.

Mr. Draper, in an exclusive interview with EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week outlined the agenda for the weekly public opinion conference, explaining the queries of the intellectually curious concerning the press he hoped would be answered by speakers and by debate.

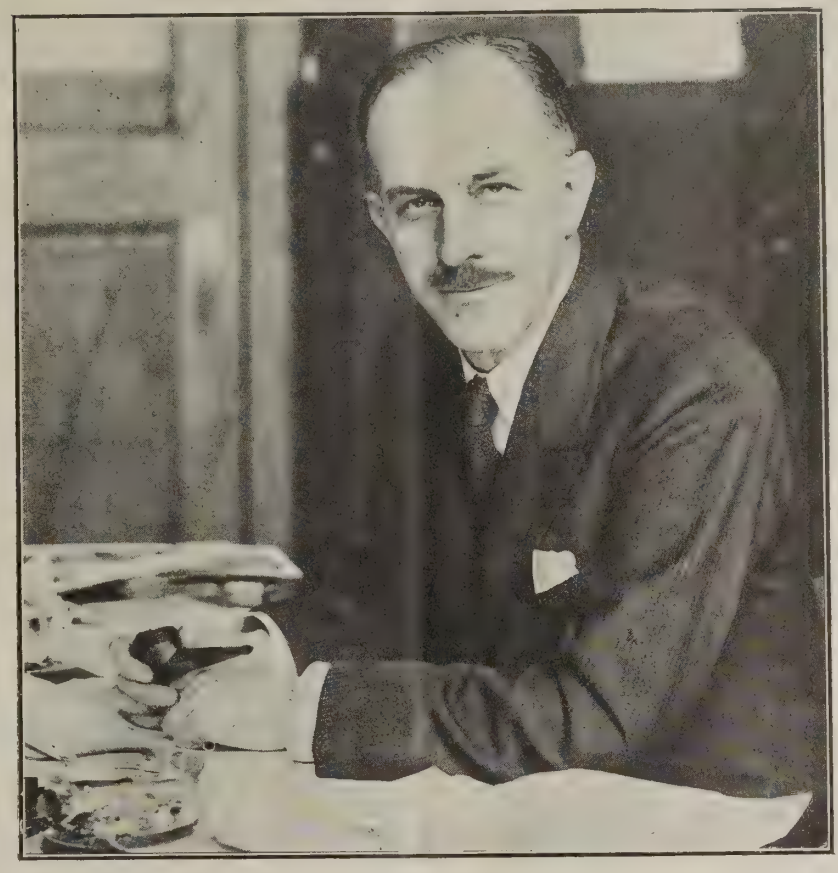
Mr. Draper opened the conference last Friday with the assertion that the press was the greatest power for influencing public opinion today.

"You may deplore or accept this statement," he declared. "Whether you deplore it or not, it is true."

From this introduction, Mr. Draper at the conference to be held during the three week-ends of this month, told EDITOR & PUBLISHER he hopes to develop the following points in the order named:

1—That journalism today is highly technical. There is nothing "hit or miss" about it. More money and more brains are going into the production of American newspapers today than ever before in the history of U. S. journalism.

2—That most criticisms of the press concerning the frailities of newspapers and their accessibility to outside influences are ridiculous.



3—That there are two kinds of propaganda, namely: flagrant free advertising and the spreading of legitimate information.

This week, Aug. 6 and 7, the chief newspaper speakers before the Institute, will be Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and Hal O'Flaherty, foreign editor of the Chicago Daily News.

"No serious-minded American newspaper man is satisfied with our newspapers today," Mr. Draper declared in his opening speech at Williamstown last Friday. "Proud he may be of the standard to which they have attained, but he believes that they can go much further, be a greater influence for good in the world, help more in the establishment of better international relations."

Norman Hapgood started discussion by taking issue with a statement made by Mr. Draper, that the American press is superior to the British. British papers he said, seem to function more freely and to be more independent than those in America. He said he got more information out of the English journals on the subjects he wanted to know about than he was able to do in the United States periodicals.

Declaring that British papers have recently criticized the United States for being "Woefully ignorant of European affairs," Mr. Draper asked: "What does Europe learn about us from its press?" It has heard about Ellis Island, about rum row, about Hollywood, about Senator Borah's views on the League and debts, about lynchings, about prominent divorcees and gunmen, about railroad wrecks.

Arthur S. Draper

"Only a few foreign correspondents stationed in this country confine their dispatches to reports of the serious problems; but the rest of them are under instructions to send so-called 'human interest' items on the ground that Europeans are not interested in highly involved American politics.

"These correspondents do not send one-tenth as much American news as we receive from Europe. Britons have been so interested in their own affairs and the problems of Europe that they have paid little attention to us until quite recently. All I desire to bring out is that the American public has a better opportunity to learn what is going on in Europe than our friends on the other side have to know what we are doing and thinking."

Sir Frederick Whyte, British legislator, answering Mr. Draper, referred to an item in a New York morning paper under the heading, "British Isles are rocked by violent earth shocks." On reading this headline, Sir Frederick said, he had found that the cable which introduced it, announced merely that a slight earth tremor had been felt in a single town on the Hampshire and Dorsetshire boundary.

The American headline writer had translated this minor fact into an "earthquake." Sir Frederick urged the formation of a "school of headline writing" as a corrective to such incidents in the American press.

The working of public opinion, in England defeated the general strike, said Sir Frederick. However, the power of massed finance upon journalism in England, he said, has served to diminish the diversification of British journalism and changed "organs of public opinion" into mere "purveyors of news." The control of many newspapers by one man is a major factor in reducing the number of independent papers.

Applause greeted the statement of Arthus K. Kuhn, New York lawyer, that the American press lays an over-emphasis on crime. The newspapers' emphasis on this feature, he said, is a factor in the crime wave and in the high amount of criminality in the country. Regarding international news, Mr. Kuhn said a similar over-emphasis appears in playing up sensational features of foreign affairs.

There is, as a rule, little harmony between the editorial policy of decrying sensationalism with action on the news pages, in which editors reach out for as much sensationalism as their competitors.

Freedom of the press, he added, is a fine thing; but he felt that the American law is "fragmentary" in safeguarding the public against control of the press by subsidization from selfish private interests. Mr. Kuhn roused opposition by urging a law to make it a crime for a newspaper to publish news or propaganda for which it is privately paid. Some American newspapers are unduly influenced by their advertisements, he declared.

Henry K. Norton, writer on Asiatic affairs and James King, editorial writer on the Boston Transcript, took sharp issue with Mr. Kuhn's proposal for restricting propaganda in the press by laws. Later Mr. Norton added that if American papers show greater enterprise than British papers, the latter are far the superior in thoroughness.

"May I ask Mr. Kuhn if he can recall any instance of direct subsidy of any reputable paper, such as the Times, World, Tribune or any reputable Boston morning paper," Mr. King asked.

"Certainly not," said Mr. Kuhn, "but we know that particularly abroad foreign papers are engaged in propaganda. Is not that your understanding, Mr. King?"

Mr. King: "Absolutely, but I thought you were casting that suspicion on our press."

Mr. Kuhn: "We had instances during the war where certain papers were accused of representing foreign countries and there were convictions in the State of New York for statements made that were not true, that certain papers were free from foreign influence. But I say that ought to reach the statute books of many countries. I am of the opinion that the American press is an unsubsidized press. I make it as strongly as I possibly can.

"I think it should be said that a great many papers are influenced also by their advertisers, which is an indirect form of subsidy."

"Insistence of editors on harping on some pet subject, such as war with Japan," was decried by Mr. Norton. He cited a recent example of an attack on Japan by a press syndicate to prove his case. Such prejudicial views as these, he said, are essentially more dangerous than either direct or indirect subsidies.

"Baseball English," as used by many journals of the United States, was attacked by Albert C. Perin, New York engineer, who said that slang and poor grammar was a commentary on the poor education of the readers.

Mr. Draper declared "the press is the most powerful agent in molding public opinion in the world today." As the press grows in influence, political power passes from the hands of a few into those of an ever-widening group. A reason why the American press is the most powerful in the world, he said, is that it "enjoys the greatest freedom and is the least susceptible to political and other influences." To prove the point, Mr. Draper quoted from a book recently published by the British Foreign Office on "press laws of foreign countries."

"With all respect to the British," he said, "the facts show that the American press enjoys the greatest freedom."

It does not follow, he added, that individuality and personal liberty go hand in hand with press freedom. In England Socialist-Labor periodicals and Communist papers are sold which have no counterpart in America. Nevertheless, he said, the American press works under fewer handicaps, is more democratic and more enterprising in gathering news.

The three types of newspaper articles calculated to influence public opinion, Mr. Draper said, are news dispatches furnished by a news agency; special signed articles by staff correspondents or special writers, and editorials. The greatest responsibility rests on the foreign correspondent on whom the editorial writer is largely dependent, he said.

"In the last 10 years the number of editorial writers on foreign subjects has increased greatly and today all the important American newspapers employ one or more writers who specialize on foreign affairs."

Foreign correspondents, are being selected with more and more care. "In no spirit of boasting," he said, "I venture to say that American publishers are showing more enterprise than those of any other country in gathering news from every part of the world. What is equally important is that they are insisting on a higher and higher standard of correspondence."

He quoted Herbert F. Gunnison, president of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle, to the effect that considerable number of newspapers have sprung up which "cater to that great mass of human beings who are just beginning to read. These sometimes make us underestimate the average newspaper reader's intelligence."

"Despite the growth of this type of newspaper," he concluded, "the journals of this country, which aim at high standards, have no reason to feel discouraged. On the contrary they are gaining in influence and power."

Dr. Moriaz J. Bon, German publicist and financial authority, said he is frequently asked to write special articles for the Berlin press, but he doubted whether his articles have much influence in molding opinion. People read such economic articles rather out of curiosity and for their own amusement, than to make up their judgments.

WORLD'S JOURNALISTS ENROLLED TO ATTEND PRESS CONGRESS IN SWITZERLAND

THE roster of those who have made reservations for accommodations to sail with the official Press Congress of the World party on the Cunarder Carmania, Sept. 4, and delegates who are now in Europe, together with the list of representatives of delegates from foreign countries to the Third Congress to be held at Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, September 14-18, follows:

ALABAMA

J. A. Rountree, Birmingham, publisher Dixie Magazine and United States Good Roads Magazine, and director general of the United States Good Roads Association, Inc.

CALIFORNIA

Charles K. McClatchy, publisher Sacramento Bee.
Hugh A. Studdert Kennedy, Director in America, Russell-Kennedys, Inc., Interpretative News Services, San Francisco.
Crombie Allen, publisher Ontario Report; President Southern California Associated Dailies.

COLORADO

James G. McCormick, publisher Ft. Collins Express-Courier, and Mrs. McCormick.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

Charles Edward Russell, Washington correspondent.
George H. Carter, Public Printer for the United States.
Dr. Edward O. Reed, Chief of Tests of the Government Printing Office.

FLORIDA

Col. Charles D. Haines and Mrs. Haines, International Press Foundation, Altamonte Springs, Fla.

GEORGIA

Mrs. Mildred Seydell, Georgian, Atlanta.
E. K. Lumpkin, Athens, and Mrs. Lumpkin.

HAWAII

Frank J. Cody, publisher Hilo Tribune-Herald; Mrs. Cody and Mrs. Emma L. Aungst.

ILLINOIS

J. C. Langtry, Buildings and Building Management, Chicago.
Walter A. Strong, publisher Chicago News.
H. U. Bailey, publisher Princeton Republican, and Mrs. Bailey.
Mrs. M. S. Shaw and Mrs. W. H. Bradwell, Dixon Evening Republican.
G. D. Givens, associate editor, Mt. Sterling Democrat-Message, and Mrs. Givens.
W. J. Smith, publisher Waukegan Sun, president Illinois Press Association, and Mrs. Smith.

INDIANA

Judge Henry Douglas Pierce, Indianapolis.
Mrs. Charlotte K. Woodring, Peru Journal.

IOWA

S. G. Goldthwaite, publisher News-Republican, Boone, and Mrs. Goldthwaite.

MASSACHUSETTS

George T. Richardson, editor Worcester Evening Post, and Mrs. Richardson.
Miss Florence E. Whittier and Wm. L. Tindel, Boston.
Joe Mitchell Chapple, National Magazine, Boston, and Mrs. Chapple.

MICHIGAN

Charles N. Halstead, Lansing State Journal.
Mrs. E. Cora DePuy, writer, Detroit.
Mitchel V. Charnley, assistant managing editor American Boy, Detroit.

MINNESOTA

C. K. Blandin, publisher St. Paul Pioneer-Press.
John W. Norton, St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

MISSOURI

Dr. Walter Williams, president of the Press Congress of the World and Dean of the School of Journalism, University of Missouri, Columbia, and son, Edwin.
Omar D. Gray, publisher Sturgeon Missouri Leader, and Mrs. Gray.
Frank P. Glass and Mrs. Glass.
William Southern, Jr., publisher Independence Examiner; president of the Inland Daily Press Association, and Mrs. Southern.
John C. Stapel, publisher Atchison County Mail, Rockport, and Mrs. Stapel.
Charles L. Woods, publisher Rollo Herald, and Mrs. Woods.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

F. W. Hartford, publisher Portsmouth Herald.
George W. Kriegesman, editor Webster News-Times and Mrs. Kriegesman.
Dr. A. R. McComas, official physician, Sturgeon.

NEW JERSEY

Sydney Lazarus, publisher Bayonne Times; Mrs. Hyman Lazarus and Hyman Lazarus, Jr.

NEW YORK

Wallace Odell, publisher Tarrytown News, and Mrs. Odell.
John K. Walbridge, publisher Saratoga Springs Saratogian, and Mrs. Walbridge.
Thomas J. Blain, publisher Port Chester Item, and Mrs. Blain.
Gardiner Kline, publisher Amsterdam Recorder.
James W. Brown, Secretary-Treasurer Press Congress of the World; Owner of EDITOR & PUBLISHER, and Mrs. Brown.
R. W. Orcutt, Mergenthaler Linotype Company, Brooklyn, and Mrs. Orcutt.
William Allen Underhill, Corning Leader.
Henri M. Hall, publisher Jamestown Journal, and Mrs. Hall.
William O. Dapping, publisher Auburn Citizen, and Mrs. Dapping.
Elmer E. Conrath, publisher Cuba Patriot and Free-Press, president New York Press Association, and Mrs. Conrath.
J. E. Klock, publisher, Kingston Freeman.
Dr. J. H. Cunliffe, School of Journalism, Columbia University, New York City.
Guy P. Jones, editorial staff, North American Newspaper Alliance.
Lawrence H. Odell, White Plains.

NORTH CAROLINA

Charles K. Robinson, Asheville Times.
W. C. Dowd, publisher Charlotte News.

OKLAHOMA

Johnson D. Hill, Tulsa Tribune, and Mrs. Hill.
N. A. Nichols, publisher El Reno American, secretary Oklahoma Press Association.

OHIO

R. C. Snyder, publisher Norwalk Reflector-Herald, president Associated Dailies of Ohio, and Mrs. Snyder.
Mrs. Delia A. Holbrook, Sydney News.
Charles A. Rowley, publisher, Ashtabula Star-Beacon.
John Leahy, editor, Painesville Telegraph.

PENNSYLVANIA

Dietrick Lamade, publisher Pennsylvania Grit, Williamsport, and Mrs. Lamade.
The Misses Elizabeth and Mildred Zerbey, Pottsville Evening Republican.
A. Nevin Pomeroy, proprietor Chambersburg Franklin Repository, and Mrs. Pomeroy.

TEXAS

W. T. Kemper, Jr., special representative San Angelo Daily Standard.

VIRGINIA

Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president University of Virginia, Charlottesville.

AUSTRALIA

F. W. Tonkin, editor-manager, Australian Newspaper Cable Service.
Guy Innes, London Bureau, Australian Newspaper Cable Service.

ARGENTINA

Editorial representative of La Prensa, Buenos Aires.

BRAZIL

Joao Castaldi, proprietor A Capital, S. Paulo.

CANADA

Oswald Mayrand, publisher Montreal La Presse.
F. B. Ellis, proprietor St. John Globe, St. John, N. B., and Mrs. Ellis.

CENTRAL AMERICA

Dr. Virgilo Rodriguez Beteta, Guatemala City, Guatemala.

CHINA

Lian-ling Chang, former editor Peking Daily News, now Chinese Consulate General, New York City.

COLOMBIA

Don Abel Carbonell, director Diario de Comercio, Barranquilla, Colombia.
La Nacion, of Barranquilla.

CUBA

Ramon Ros, La Defensa, Manzarillo.
Pedro M. de l'Concepcion, director La Informacion, Havana.

ECUADOR

Cesar Borja Cordero, correspondent El Guante, Guayaquil.

EGYPT

G. B. Takla, proprietor Al Ahram, Cairo; president Egyptian Press Association.
Hussian Haikal Bey, Cairo, Egypt.

EL SALVADOR

J. Plecid, De Correo, San Salvador.

ENGLAND

Lt.-Col. Edward Frederick Lawson, D.S.O., London Daily Telegraph.
Sir Robert Bryce, president Institute of Journalists, London.
Herbert Jeans, chief editor of Reuters, of London.
H. J. J. Sargint, London manager, the North American Newspaper Alliance.
T. Terry Champion, London representative Canadian Press.
Valentine Knapp, chairman journalism courses of the University of London.

FRANCE

Stephane Lausanne, Le Matin; chairman committee on Ethics of Journalists and Standards of Practice.
Senator Paul DuPuy, Le Petit Parisien.
Marcel Knecht, Le Matin.
The Agence Havas.
Paul Scott Mowrer, director in Europe of the Chicago Daily News.
William Bird, European director Consolidated Press Association, Paris.

GERMANY

Dr. R. W. Drechsler, Berlin.
Dr. Wilhelm Schwedler, Chefredakteur der Trans-ocean, Berlin.
S. Dunbar Weyer, manager for Central Europe for International News Service, Berlin.
D. Emil Faktor, chefredakteur Berliner Borsen-Courier, Berlin.
Theodor Wolff, chefredakteur des Berliner Tageblattes, Berlin.
Georg Bernhard, chefredakteur Vossischen Zeitung, Berlin.
Gustav Richter, geschaftsfuhrender Voritzender des Reichsverbandes der deutschen Presse, Berlin.
Paul Baecker, M.d.R., Leiter Parlamentsdienstes der Deutschen Tageszeitung, Berlin.
Heinrich Rippler, chefredakteur Taglichen Rundschau, Berlin.
Cajetan Freund, redakteur Munchener Zeitung, Munchen.
W. Ackermann, chefredakteur der Deutschen Tageszeitung, Wunsdorf-Zossen.
Dr. Stanpfer, chefredakteur Vorwarts, Berlin-Tempelhof.
Herman Orth, chefredakteur Germania, Berlin-Wilnersdorf.
Dr. S. Brealauer, chefredakteur Berliner Lokalanzeigers, Berlin.
Dr. Ach. Teipel, redakteur Germania, Berlin-Steglitz.
Dr. Emil Dovifat. Deutsche Institut for Zeitunrskunde, Grunau-b-Berlin.
Dr. Ehlers, chefredakteur, literary department, Norddeutsche Lloyd, Bremen.
Alexander Giesen, redakteur Frankfurter Zeitung, Frankfort-Main.
Dr. Hoeber, chefredakteur Kolnischen Volkszeitung, Koln Rhein.
Ach. Gesell, chefredakteur Telegraphen Union, Berlin, Steglitz.
Dr. Edgar Stern-Rubarth, chefredakteur in W.T.B., Berlin-Zehlendorf.
Prof. H. K. Frenxel, editor Gabraushsgraphik, Berlin.

GREECE

Thales Coutoupis, New Era, Athens.

HOLLAND

J. C. Peereboom, vice-president De Nederlandsche Dagbladpers, manager Haarlem Dagblad.

INDIA

Rustom N. Vatchaghandy, publisher Sanj Vartaman, Bombay.

ITALY

Hans Gorlich, Bolzano, and Mrs. Gorlich.

JAPAN

J. Russell Kennedy, managing director, Russell-Kennedys, Inc., Interpretative News Services, Tokyo.
Tomin Suzuki, Nippon Dempo Tshushin Sha, Tokyo.
Toshio Niho, Tokyo Kokumin Shimbun, Tokyo.
Shu Sano, Tokyo Hochi Shimbun, Tokyo.
M. Zumoto, Nippon Dempo Tshushin Sha, Tokyo.
R. Shigetoku, Paris representative, Tokyo Asahi Shimbun.

KOREA

D. S. Kim, editor and publisher Korea Daily News, Seoul.
Shin Suk Woo, director Korea Daily News, Seoul.

MEXICO

Felix F. Palavicini, El Universal, vice-president for Mexico.
Jose Gomez Ugarte, El Universal, vice-president for Mexico.
V. Villasana, El Mundo, Tampico, Mexico.
Dr. Lara Pardo, Excelsior, Mexico City.
Mrs. Rafael Alducin, Excelsior, Mexico City.

NEW ZEALAND

Robert Bell, Lyttleton Times, Christchurch.
Charles Wilson, Wellington Dominion, and Mrs. Wilson.
Fred Earle, Truth, Wellington.
P. Selig and daughter, Mrs. Oscar Josephson, Christchurch.

PERU

Dr. Luis Miro Quezada, editor and publisher, El Comercio, Lima.
Luis Varela Obregoso, President of the Press Circle of Peru.
Pedro Ruiz Bravo, director, El Tiempo, Lima.

PORTO RICO

Arthur J. Pellerano Alfau, Newspaper Association of Porto Rico.
J. Aybar, Workingman's Union, San Juan.

SOUTH AFRICA

F. Horace Rose, vice-president, formerly editor Natal Witness.

SWITZERLAND

Dr. Edouard Chapuisat, Journal de Geneve, Geneva.
Dr. Jean Martin, Journal de Geneve, Geneva.
Joseph E. Sharkey, Geneva correspondent, Associated Press.
W. H. G. Werndel, chief correspondent for Reuters, of London, at Geneva.

URUGUAY

Julian Nogueira, editor, and Alberto Lasplacez, El Dia, Montevideo.

$160,000,000 in New State
Construction

Jacksonville and other Florida cities have practically reached their total building permits of a year ago in the first six months of 1926.

It is convincing evidence that Florida is building at a more rapid pace than ever before. This fertile country, a ready market for everything from paper napkins to palatial yachts, is served by the Florida Times-Union. Exceeding all other state publications in circulation, the pages of the Florida Times-Union are the logical place to tell your advertising story.

The Florida Times-Union
JACKSONVILLE

PITTSBURGH LINAGE

Several weeks ago Editor & Publisher published comparative advertising linage figures of the newspapers of the larger cities. As Pittsburgh is the third largest market in the United States the linage figures of Pittsburgh newspapers should have been included. The following is a compilation made by the De Lisser Bros., Incorporated, Accountants and Auditors, for the period from January 1, 1926, to June 30, 1926.

	Local Display	Foreign Display	Classified	Total
DAILY
PITTSBURGH PRESS	6,074,015	1,478,988	1,368,933	8,921,936
Chronicle Telegraph	4,595,848	1,188,862	421,810	6,206,520
Sun	3,768,747	545,998	290,728	4,605,473
Gazette Times	1,739,400	789,892	480,666	3,009,958
Post	1,842,455	797,078	437,212	3,076,745
SUNDAY
PITTSBURGH PRESS	1,836,031	835,422	1,108,041	3,779,494
Gazette Times	1,322,945	594,674	451,367	2,368,986
Post	1,305,552	585,647	394,151	2,285,350
DAILY & SUNDAY
PITTSBURGH PRESS	7,910,046	2,314,410	2,476,974	12,701,430
Gazette Times	3,062,345	1,384,566	932,033	5,378,944
Post	3,148,007	1,382,725	831,363	5,362,095

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily and Sunday, seven issues, had a net gain of 1,036,596 agate lines over the same period a year ago, compared with a gain of 765,758 for the Gazette Times, Morning and Sunday, and the Chronicle Telegraph, Evening, thirteen issues. In the same period, THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily and Sunday, seven issues, had a net gain of 174,832 agate lines in National Advertising as compared with 121,744 for the other papers, thirteen issues.

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily, has 33,254 more net paid circulation in the city of Pittsburgh than both other evening newspapers combined, and the Sunday Press has 22,673 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than both other Sunday newspapers combined!

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily and Sunday, carries more advertising than any morning, evening and Sunday combination in Pittsburgh. THE PITTSBURGH PRESS has one of the lowest milline rates in the United States.

The Pittsburgh Press

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

PUBLIC LEARNING VALUE OF NEWSPAPER GOODWILL

(Continued from page 3)

the average net earnings of the past five years and multiply by five to give a goodwill valuation would give a fair picture of the possibilities held by a paper with such traditions in an old, yet progressive city. Neither would another rule which takes the average gross earning of five years as a bottom on which to set up goodwill. Neither would the old rule of $10 per subscriber, nor the average of these and all the other yardsticks will give the true value of any individual newspaper.

Many appraisals have been made in recent years with a view to consolidating two competing newspapers or placing a morning and an evening paper under one management and one roof. Many questions as to tangible values arise in these questions which are not involved when a newspaper has the field to itself.

Take the case of a medium-sized city which for years has been reading a six-day evening paper and a seven-day morning paper. It has paid 5 cents a copy for its evening paper and 3 cents daily, 5 cents Sunday for the morning. Circulation figures are about a standoff, but the goodwill values are not. The 5-cent daily paper, assuming that its circulation rests on sound methods and has not been inflated by recent strong-arm promotion schemes, has a larger goodwill item for its six days' circulation than has its competitor. The very fact that people pay more to read it six days than they do for its seven-day competition gives it a higher value to the advertiser and therefore both to the buyer and the seller. This condition is reflected in a number of fields where conditions similar to those outlined prevail. In some of these fields the amount of business carried by the six-day paper exceeds the volume of the seven-day paper and pays a higher average advertising rate. In a case like this, where the casual observer would give the seven day paper a higher goodwill valuation than its six-day rival, the latter wins the higher rating from the shrewd and careful appraiser.

In transactions of this character, which have been frequent during the past few years, the question of Associated Press memberships has usually been discussed at length. Where both morning and evening parties to a merger of operations are members of the Associated Press, the appraiser for obvious reasons, commonly gives a shade in the valuation to the morning paper, though it is seldom that any actual money value is stated in such a formal valuation.

Earnings, it goes without saying, are the basic factors in any estimate of a newspaper's goodwill, but as pointed out above, this value can be considerably enhanced by characteristics of the city of publication—great real estate development, a comprehensive paving program which will make it the hub of a rural community hitherto difficult of access, a re-planning of the principal streets and civic centres on artistic and economically convenient lines, growing export and import commerce through a good harbor. These elements increase the volume of trade, induce newcomers to settle in the region, make it a pleasant place for the prospective buyer to live and rear his family, and are usually reflected in the seller's appraisal of his property. And it must be remembered that the present day is a seller's market and that a newspaper owner has no economic pressure today to sell his property for less than he believes it worth.

The character of a city and surrounding area also may operate to decrease a goodwill appraisal that would seem to be warranted by the advertising and circulation earnings of a previous comprehensive period. A shrewd buyer would not accept the seller's top figure for a newspaper in an industrial or mining region which has passed through a long period of prosperity due to full operation of mills factories or mines. Such a period is now and then a precursor of an era of industrial unrest or sluggish demand for the factory products. The fat earnings of the prosperous period can easily fall below the cost of producing the paper in the face of a protracted strike or a layoff due to bad conditions in the city's principal industries, and these unseen factors are not overlooked by the careful newspaper man. No rule can be laid down for the percentage to be written off the apparent goodwill for this cause, but in one case known to EDITOR & PUBLISHER the buyer cut the seller's top figure by 10 per cent.

Appraisal of the goodwill value of a newspaper which has been operated at a loss over a considerable period presents curious problems and its selling price often reflects no scientific determination of its earning powers, but rather the price at which the owner is willing to get out with the least possible loss to himself. Take a newspaper in a city of 20,000 which has been earning a gross revenue of $100,000 a year and showing a net loss of $5,000. Competition is strong in the opposite field, but the city has a good history of growth and promises well for the future. It has a small but vigorous group of local industries and is the centre of a fertile staple farm district. The buyer might well be justified in assuming that the paper's trouble rested not in its field but in its past management. He could safely assume that the small deficit could be overcome and turned to an equal profit within a year by a strict budget, curtailment of expenses wherever possible and intensive work by himself and a small staff. Under these conditions, he might pay for the goodwill item a sum approximating the paper's gross annual earnings, averaged over several years, plus the value of whatever tangible assets it possessed. Probably, astute bargaining with the owner would obtain the property for considerably less and on terms which would permit liquidation of the purchase price out of earnings in a comparatively few years.

The latter factor has assumed increasing importance in the field of newspaper values as it has in practically every other line of buying and selling. In the sale of the Chicago Daily News the price paid by the purchasers was probably lower than it would have been had the Lawson trustees been permitted to make the purchase price payable over a period of years. The Daily News sale was a cash transaction, the necessary funds over the binder payment being raised by the immediate sale of bonds. In the majority of newspaper transactions, however, the buyer with a history of successful newspaper operation and financial integrity has no difficulty in obtaining a number of years in which to pay off two-thirds, more or less, of the purchase price. In several recent sales, the idea has been that the purchase money should be paid in full out of earnings in ten years or less and there has been considerable conversation among newspaper executives in the past year or so to the effect that a newspaper should pay for itself in seven years.

The latter theory is apparently based on the fact that newspaper earnings during 1924 and 1925 have been uniformly higher than in previous years, some holding that 20 per cent on the gross turnover is not an excessive net revenue in a good year for a newspaper. Not a great many newspapers do that well, even in these prosperous times, but the number earning a net of 15 per cent or more on their gross income is much larger than it was five years ago. The oft-mentioned hazardous nature of the business has been reduced by the elimination of newspapers weakened by political ties or by slovenly management practices, and the majority of the newspapers which survive are capable of earning a profit even in the face of general business depression, though prolonged local stagnation could not be faced with equanimity. Shut-down of factories and mines stop the turnover of money in those industries, but they affect more slowly and less deeply the advertising of local and national firms which must continue to get their income from the public, from savings if not from earnings. The newspaper publisher is likely to feel severely the slow collections for the business he carries during such a period, as his expenses are of a kind that must be met weekly or whenever due, with little possibility of extending any of the major items.

From all of the hundreds of newspaper sales that have been made in recent years, there is only one rule that can be drawn covering valuations, which is that no rule or yardstick will fit all situations. Each transaction requires independent, expert appraisal, with full consideration of all factors.

DISMISS BALL PLAYER SUIT

Complaint brought in the U. S. District Court, of New Jersey, by the Star Ball Player Company against the Playograph Company, charging infringement of two patents identified as Nos. 1,071,080 and 1,127,498, relating to improvements in methods of reproducing base ball games on newspaper bulletin boards, was dismissed last week by Federal Judge Bodine.

Advertising in New Orleans

National Advertisers

Must you pay a tax to sell just New Orleans? Yes—if you use a medium with a great part of its circulation widely scattered over outside territory. NO—if you choose the concentrated city circulation of the New Orleans STATES.

Concentrated circulation, least waste, greatest value and highest efficiency makes the STATES the most effective advertising medium in New Orleans. John M. Branham Company, representatives.

New Orleans States

When One Paper
in a period of 6 months
GAINS
39% more national advertising than any other paper in its field—
IT MEANS SOMETHING!

From January 1 to June 30, 1926

Los Angeles Times printed national advertising to the amount of 2,276,596 agate lines, gaining 578,130 agate lines over the corresponding months a year ago, a 39% greater gain than the nearest Los Angeles newspaper.

Los Angeles Times

Eastern Representatives: Williams, Lawrence & Cresmer Co.
360 N. Michigan Blvd., Chicago—285 Madison Ave., New York

Performance Is What Counts

The Cleveland News
Daily and Sunday
Ohio's Greatest Newspapers

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

July
14th, 1926.

Mr. H. V. Ball, Vice-President
R. Hoe & Co.,
504 Grand St.,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Mr. Ball:

Hoe & Co. is to be congratulated on the results we have obtained from the Superspeed Presses in The News' plant.

Last week we moved into our new building, starting sixteen new units the first day and the additional four units the second day. Notwithstanding the fact that our press crews were inexperienced on the unit type of construction and that the presses never had a real trial run, every edition went out on time without any fussing or special effort on the part of the crews.

We are well pleased for such a performance, combined with the prompt delivery and speedy erection of the entire equipment, as well as the splendid construction throughout, instills a confidence in our press equipment that is gratifying.

I would enjoy going down and serving my pressman's apprenticeship over again.

With best wishes, I remain

Sincerely yours,
Dan R. Hanna Jr.
President.

DRHJr:L

Hoe machines excel in ease and accuracy of operation, dependability, and quality and quantity of output.

R. HOE & CO., INC.

504 GRAND STREET, NEW YORK CITY

Chicago, Ill. London, England Dunnellen, N. J. Boston, Mass.

REWARDS OF JOURNALISM GO TO THOSE WHO LEAVE IT, SAYS JOHNSON

Under the title "The Asses' Profession," Gerald W. Johnson discussed the recently reported salaries of Columbia journalism graduates in the Baltimore Evening Sun of Aug. 3. Mr. Johnson is associate editor of the Evening Sun, is a former professor of journalism at the University of North Carolina and had been a newspaper man in that state for many years. His expressions on the rewards of journalism follow:

THE Columbia School of Journalism recently made a report that is bound to result in some more or less rueful cogitation on the part of newspaper men. The report gave the average income earned by graduates of the school. It appears that the average salary of a Columbia graduate of ten years ago is $6,016 if he has remained in newspaper work, $10,330 if he has gone into publicity and $16,019 if he has abandoned everything that smacks of newspaper work and gone in for something else.

It is generally conceded that by the end of ten years a graduating class has had time to shake down into the strata of which it will be composed for the remainder of its members' lives. By the end of the tenth year the exceptionally able men have come to the top, the hopelessly incapable have sunk to the bottom and the moderately gifted have shown unmistakable evidence of their mediocrity. Ten years is long enough for the graduate to get on his feet in the world outside the college walls and not long enough for him to have done the best of which he is capable. Therefore, it is a good time to make a forecast of what will eventually come of the class as a whole.

In ten years the exceptional men of a graduating class of the Columbia School of Journalism have risen high enough to command an average salary of $16,019 a year. That isn't bad. But it is a bit startling to find that these are the men who have abandoned journalism altogether. On this showing the best proof that a newspaper man has brains is his getting out of newspaper work. It is a theory that many newspaper men have maintained privately for a long time, and it is doubly vindicated by the demonstration that the man who gets even half out of newspaper work commands an average salary of $10,330 a year. This is the price of the publicity expert, whose business is to prey upon the newspapers.

Doubtless a certain number of the men listed as in publicity work are mere advertising agents. Their work is legitimate enough, but they are not the real publicity experts and the real experts are the lads who draw down salaries so big that they run the average for the group to $10,330. The business of the publicity expert is to get newspaper space without paying for it. In other words, he is frankly engaged in robbery. If he knows his business, he is worth his salary.

A really first-class, highly efficient burglar would be worth much more than $10,330 and could draw a larger salary than that if it were not illegal to employ him. It is not illegal to employ a publicity expert, and a skillful one can obtain for his employer a great deal more than $10,330 worth of newspaper space in the course of a year. So his big salary is anything but a waste of money on the part of his employer.

But to be successful in deceiving newspaper men into thinking that his advertising copy is real news he must know the newspaper business thoroughly. He must, in fact, know it a little better than the man he is bamboozling or he will be caught and his stuff thrown out of the newspapers.

This sort of knowledge is not taught in schools, not even in the Columbia School of Journalism. It is the fruit of experience in actual newspaper shops. It is not surprising, therefore, that the figures for men who have been out of school for five years only stand in a notably different ratio. Men with five years' experience draw in journalism $4,071, while in publicity and allied trades they draw only $4,865 and in non-journalistic work $4,528. In other words, the average man does not acquire within five years the skill requisite to putting over free publicity in such quantity that he is able to command a five-figure salary.

In work not related at all to journalism the showing is even worse. Instead of $16,019 the average at the end of the five-year period is only $4,528—not much better than newspaper work itself, except in the advantage of the future it offers the worker.

It seems, then, that training in journalism is excellent preparation for a young man who intends to do something else. The paths that lead to salaries of $16,000 at the end of ten years are not many; yet this is one of them, provided the man who enters it does not dally along the path.

But the question arises, why do any of the graduates remain in newspaper work? The answer, no doubt, lies in the frailty of poor humanity. The boy who goes into journalism is beset by temptations from the beginning. A good many are kept out of publicity through sheer weakness. After all, it is only the exceptionally strong souls that are gifted with the hardihood to embrace stealing as a life work. Multitudes of the slaves of the city room cannot stomach it and are held to the treadmill by their feebleness.

There is no such bar against going into work not connected with newspaperdom in any way, but against that course rise the temptation inherent in journalistic work itself. It is by long odds the most amusing profession open to a man who has no strong bent in a particular direction—toward medicine, say, or law. A delicate operation may enthrall the born surgeon, a complicated suit may enthrall the lawyer as nothing else in the world could enthrall him. But the man of intelligence with no particular leaning toward any other profession finds in journalism the best available viewpoint from which to observe the fantastic and absorbing comedy of humanity. It is difficult to tear oneself away from that spectacle in face of the fact that there is little money in being a spectator.

Modern American philosophy holds him to be an ass who prefers living an amusing and interesting life to making a large salary. Perhaps that is the correct view, but what of it? Philosophy never appeals to asses. There is no indication that there will ever be any lack of hired hands to get out the paper.

SEDALIA PLANT SOLD

The plant of the Sedalia Printing Company and the suspended Sedalia (Mo.) Daily Republican, were sold at auction Saturday afternoon by Walter Bohling, trustee, to W. E. Hurlburt, former owner of the printing company that was consolidated with the newspaper, presses, linotypes and other material, for $1,550, subject to about $14,000 mortgage. Hurlburt was the only bidder.

MILWAUKEE HEROLD MOVES

The Milwaukee Herold, German language daily, held "open house" in its new three-story plant on 7th street between Grand avenue and Wells street, Aug. 4. Its old quarters had served it for 30 of its 65 years of publication.

HAMILTON SPECTATOR IS 80

The Hamilton (Ont.) Spectator recently celebrated its 80th anniversary, issuing a 96-page special edition which told in detail the history of the paper and the era in which it has lived since July 15, 1846.

SELZ BUYS KENT SERVICE

Calkins Leaves Press Wire Organization to Become Publicity Man

Lawrence H. Selz, managing editor of the Kent Press Service, Chicago, has purchased the interest in that company owned by Charles E. Calkins, formerly business manager, becoming sole owner. The company operates telegraph news bureaus in Chicago, Detroit, St. Louis, Indianapolis and Springfield, Ill. Mr. Calkins is retiring from the company to become public relations counsel for Chicago interests.

DANISH NEWSPAPER SOLD

Nordlyset, Danish-American weekly newspaper published in New York, was this week sold to a syndicate by the Opffer Brothers, who inherited the property from their father, Emil Opffer, a few years ago. Albert Van Sand, editor, will remain in charge.

Finger Tips Tell!

John A. Shaw, finger print expert, will teach your readers to read character from finger prints

"FINGER TIPS"

a three-stick feature, mat of print furnished

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

D · A · L · A · S

An Ascending City

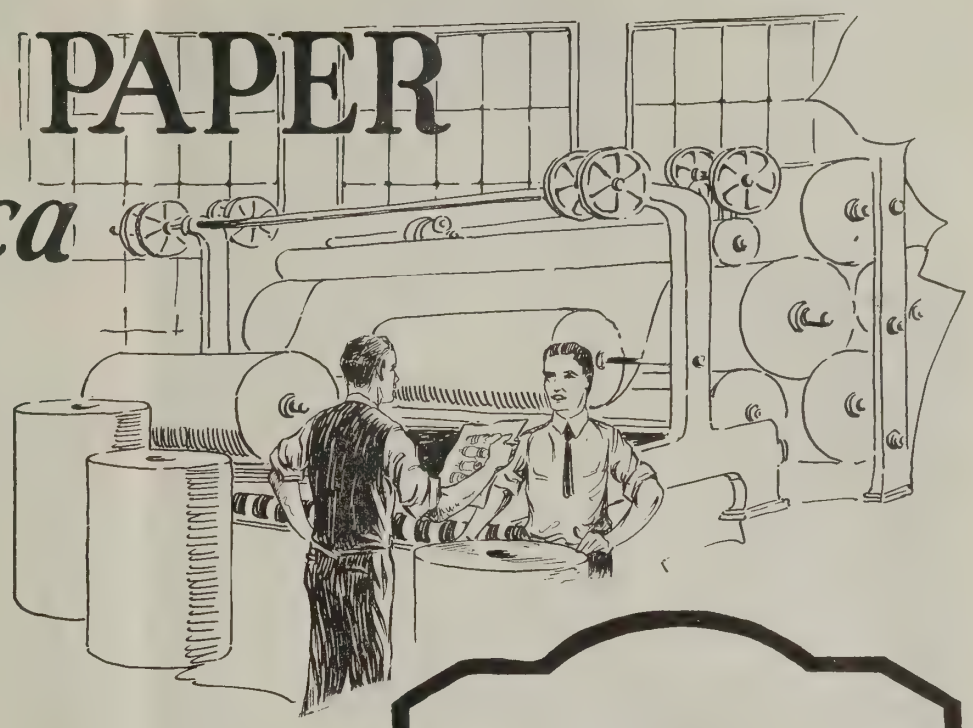
Dallas, 42nd among American cities in 1920. 37th in 1925. Moving forward.

Nineteenth in volume of business among American cities.* Seventh in volume of business per capita.

Twenty-five million dollars more bank clearings so far this year than last. $150,000 more postal receipts.

More than ten percent increase in family population, as shown by city utilities connections, this last year.

Dallas lies at the heart of an agricultural area of great wealth, where crops of feed and foodstuffs are now being harvested than which the memory of man recalleth none better.



Marketeers will find in all America no more promising theatre of effort than this.

*Bank clearings for 1925.

Dallas is the door to Texas
The News is the key to Dallas

The Dallas Morning News

One Half the BLOTTING PAPER used in America is made in RICHMOND VIRGINIA.

The paper and paper products industry in Richmond is one of this City's outstanding and progressive phases.

More than half the blotting paper made and sold in America is manufactured in Richmond. In addition there are huge quantities of wrapping paper, paper boxes and other paper products which bear the Richmond trade mark.

The fact that these products are sold in all parts of the United States means that there is a continuous demand for Richmond-made paper products, and that the hundreds of Richmond men and women employed in this industry are continuously and permanently employed.

Richmond has so many and such diversified industries that rarely, if ever, is there experienced a period of inactivity and deflation. This means that the people of Richmond are always employed—always earning money—and always able to buy.

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Bldg., New York City. Waterman Bldg., Boston, Mass. Atlantic Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa. Tribune Tower, Chicago, Ill.

J. B. KEOUGH, Atlanta, Ga.

In Richmond

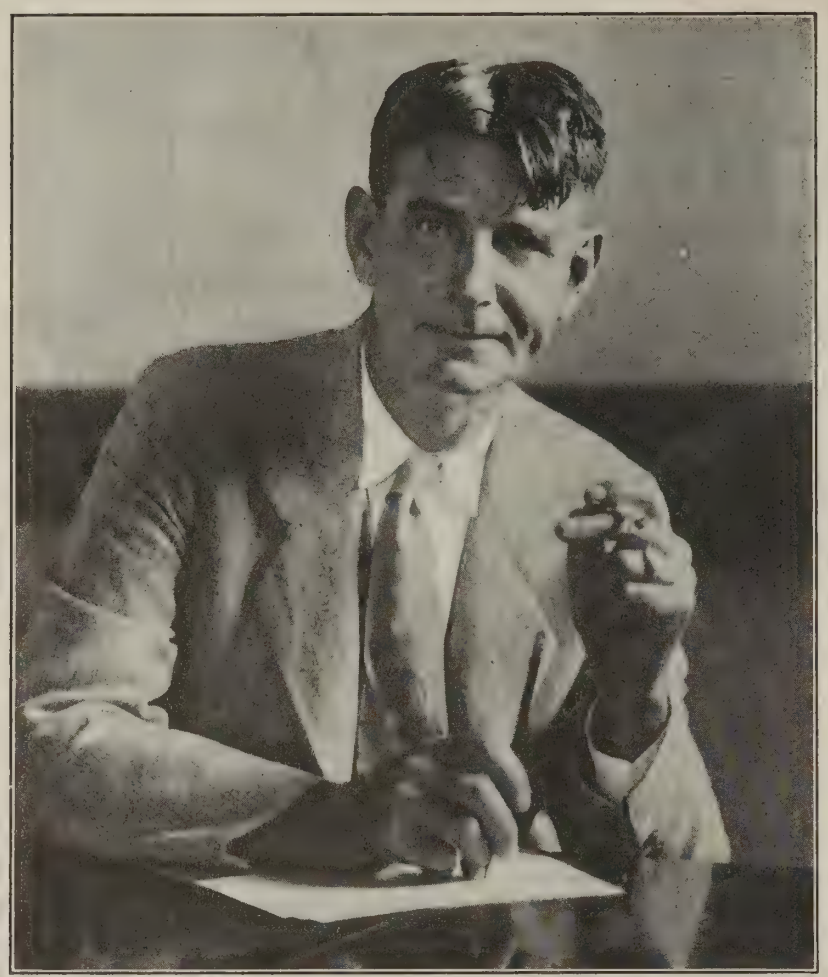
there are 26 firms engaged in the manufacture and distribution of paper and paper products.

there are the largest blotting paper mills in the world.

there are millions of dollars invested as capital in the paper industry.

there are thousands of permanently employed citizens in the paper and other diversified industries.

Richmond Is A Steady Permanent Non-Fluctuating MARKET



If you have anything to sell—Tell Richmond about it in

The Richmond NEWS LEADER

"ON NEWS LEADER SQUARE"

Covers Richmond Like a Roof

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

Still strong for Florida.—D. H. Conkling.

KNOCKERS notwithstanding, there are those who still believe firmly in the present and future of Florida.

One of these optimists is D. H. Conkling, owner and publisher of the Palm Beach Post. Mr. Conkling has lived 38 years in Florida, almost long enough to be known as a "native son." And he says the old residents of the state are sticking by it, confident current deflation conditions will be successfully weathered.

"Most knockers can be placed in a class with one I know. He is a man with a family of three. He bundled them into a Ford and trundled off to the Sunshine State. In his pocket he had $300. After spending three months he left the state with $50, knocking it for a fare-thee-well. He had expected to make $50,000.

"I'd like to see anyone live in New York for three months on $250!

"The fundamentals that should call people to Florida are still there, the climate, the agricultural and the mineral resources. Florida has the greatest phosphate beds in the world. Palm Beach, however, is mostly an agricultural and a winter resort center."

Mr. Conkling declared his city was looking forward to a very prosperous winter. Facilities have been greatly increased since last year, he said. A number of new hotels have been built, and there are also more apartment houses.

"One trouble with Palm Beach in the past has been that we have been forced to turn away tens of thousands each year on account of lack of accommodations," Mr. Conkling said.

Mr. Conkling was asked about the Florida bank failures, given considerable publicity outside the state.

"The bank failures were brought about by the chain system of banking, which has now been abandoned," he said. "The Bankers Trust Company in Atlanta was the parent bank, operating a chain of about 140 banks in other cities. There was a tremendous increase in deposits during the boom period, and banks deposited their surplus funds with the Bankers Trust Company subject to call. Seasonal withdrawals induced many of the little banks to call on the parent bank for money and the money was not there.

"Now the chain system has been wiped out. In a number of communities the local people are reorganizing their banks. In other places consolidations have been engineered. Local control is satisfactorily straightening out the trouble caused by the chain bank arrangement."

Mr. Conkling was born in Texas. In 1889 his father flipped a silver dollar to find out whether he would take his family to Florida or California. Florida won.

As a boy Mr. Conkling began work as a printer's devil in a job plant in Melbourne, Fla. He worked at job printing and weekly newspaper work for several years and then tried farming. He tired of the farm after a short while and returned to printing.

In 1910 he opened a job plant at Palm Beach. Local business men urged him to start a newspaper, and he founded the Palm Beach Post, first as a weekly known as the County.

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago

170,000 Daily

390,000 Sunday

LOS ANGELES Examiner

The Times-Herald

of Dallas, Texas

has just joined the service list of the Advertising Checking Bureau on a demonstration test, in an effort to render their agencies and advertisers a satisfactory checking proof service and at the same time solve their own checking proof problem.

Over 300 other prominent publishers have been using this successful service for years. . .

Complete details on request

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

6½ pt. Ionic No. 5

COMBINES

The word count of 6 point and the legibility of 8 point

The British delegation of trade-union representatives, who came here on Tuesday at the invitation of "The London Daily Mail" to study reasons for the disparity between the high wages and prosperous living conditions of the American worker and their own lower wage standards, gained considerable light in a tour of several industrial establishments in Brooklyn yesterday.

They had been curious to know how it was that the average wage of the American toiler virtually doubled that of his British brother, and how it was possible for industries here to offer such fat envelopes to their employees and at the same time compete successfully in world markets.

American More Productive

After a study of the Brooklyn Edison plant and the factory methods of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company in Brooklyn, the delegates remarked that one of the vital reasons for the disparity was that the American worker was capable of producing and actually did produce more than the British toiler in a given time.

This he was enabled to do, they learned, because of the high standards of efficiency obtaining here, mass-production methods, the utter perfection of organization for which the American industrialist seems always to be striving, and labor-saving devices evident on every hand.

The comments of the delegates were voiced by Sir Percival Phillips, special correspondent of "The Daily Mail"; Fenton MacPherson, of the same newspaper, and William Mosses, J. P., who had a prominent part in the British Labor Ministry during the war.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

Brooklyn, New York

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

A Page from The Christian Science Monitor

THE CHRISTIAN SCIENCE MONITOR, BOSTON, THURSDAY, JULY 15, 1926

RADIO

CALIBRATION OF RADIO SETS IS DIFFICULT

Many Varying Elements May Throw Off Settings of Tuning Dials

By DON C. WALLACE

People ask just why a receiver is not calibrated in wavelengths. It is true that a receiver can be calibrated in wavelengths, but because of various reasons it has been deemed poor practice by many manufacturers.

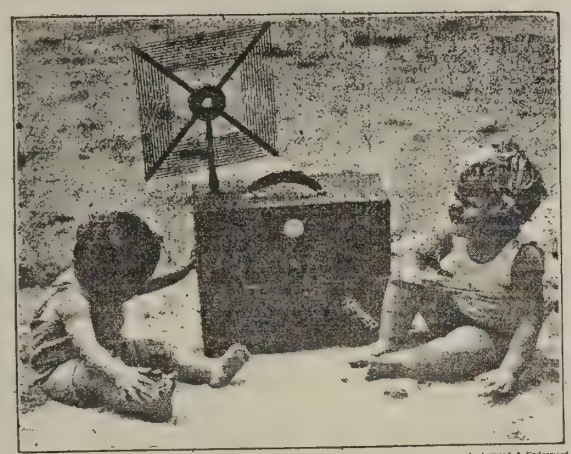
The wavelength situation has been in a constant state of flux during the last few years, and even now it is impossible, so it seems to get even the larger broadcasting stations on a certain definite wavelength and to keep them there when once they are adjusted. The radio supervisors have quite good wavemeters, but they are not nearly good enough. The appropriation given to the inspection service is pitifully small for this purpose, consequently their meters may easily be off, and in some instances the overlapping wavelengths of the different rolls in the same wavemeter do not agree with each other.

The Bureau of Standards, the Naval Research Bureau and others have been doing [illegible] work in this regard and [illegible] ginning to [illegible] status. It [illegible] years ago th[illegible] actually diffe[illegible] day by as [illegible] meters withi[illegible] wavemeters [illegible] struments as [illegible] doit is very [illegible] destroying [illegible] strument. U[illegible] thoroughly s[illegible] may change.

If the radio[illegible] the same diff[illegible] as were des[illegible] the wavemeters [illegible] calibrated re[illegible] the receiving [illegible] near steel [illegible] furniture or [illegible] door walls [illegible] base for the [illegible] the outside [illegible] things have [illegible] cause slight [illegible] tings. Wher[illegible] pickup devic[illegible] and where th[illegible] connected to [illegible] near these [illegible] tuning effect[illegible]

Those wh[illegible] lengths of a[illegible] preciate the [illegible] antenna tun[illegible] with each c[illegible] This is true[illegible] set now on [illegible] is that the [illegible] especially vali[illegible] of antenna[illegible] period of th[illegible] slight readju[illegible] tuning device[illegible] connected di[illegible] stants of th[illegible] changed by t[illegible] pressure, pr[illegible] rain or snow[illegible] or snow-cov[illegible] trees or the [illegible] fall, and ma[illegible] finely-drawn [illegible] together thes[illegible] ference to t[illegible] The writer [illegible] antennas whi[illegible] cent higher [illegible] hours after n[illegible] the same af[illegible] when the sur[illegible]

So far we [illegible] driving set. [illegible] many more a[illegible] the transmitti[illegible] distance fros[illegible] ded to the r[illegible] that entirely [illegible] vail at each location, the combined errors from each place may add to each other, thereby doubling the error, whereas not fading of signals due to the different positions of either the transmitting or receiving antenna, changes the wavelength of the station and likewise the position on the dial of the receiving set receiving that particular broadcasting station.



Those who have listened to the old type spark transmitter from a distance (fortunately there are almost no low wavelength spark stations left in the United States) will remember how the wavelength on certain nights would be in a continual state of change in the vicinity of 200 meters, or a particularly bad night, this change would be from 20 to 40 meters up and down the scale. Sometimes the change would be gradual, and sometimes the jump would be instantaneous. The trained operator could nearly always follow this swing, although he had to be an adept at tuning quickly and surely and had to practically feel the changes as they occurred.

In all of the above we have practically left out of consideration the fact that almost all sets will change calibration slightly with different relationship between the various dial settings, with the gradual run-down of the B batteries, with the slight changes in filament voltages due to different battery settings at different times; and in some cases, where the design of the set is such as to make logging practically impossible, unless a whole series of dial readings are taken. Present practice with regards to wavelength marking on the dials is limited to a few manufacturers, and even then there are no hair line markings, or close checking. A good deal of leeway for the user of the set is always indicated, for otherwise he might believe the set inaccurate, when in reality the reasons as outlined above cause the apparent discrepancies.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE

William D. Kilpatrick, C. S. B., will lecture at Eighth Church of Christ, Scientist, New York, July 15, 7 p. m., eastern standard time, under the auspices of eight Churches of Christ, Scientist, in Greater New York. WMCA, New York City, will rebroadcast this lecture on 341 meters wavelength.

When Radio Becomes the "Nursie"

Underwood & Underwood

A daily Radio Department is one of the features of The Christian Science Monitor most appreciated by its readers.

"The Diary of Snubs, Our Dog" is enjoyed by thousands of children. Because certain kinds of "news" are excluded from its columns, the Monitor is unhesitatingly passed along to the younger members of the family.

Advertising, too, is carefully selected. Your advertisement is in good company when it appears in the Monitor.

Japanese Official Studies Rail-Radio

Special Correspondence

Toronto, Ont.

WITH the object of investigating radio in Canada, Kikujiro Suzuki of Tokyo, Japan, is now traveling through Canada. He is traveling on radio-equipped trains of the Canadian National System.

According to Mr. Suzuki, the Japanese Government railways are experimenting in the establishment of radio on their trains. The success achieved along this line by the Canadian National Railways caused him to be sent to Canada to study the conditions under which radio-equipped trains are operated.

WGR, Buffalo, N. Y. (319 Meters)

8 p. m.—With Station WEAF, New York City, special orchestra. 9:30—Recital presented by Mrs. Dorcurry Rose and friends. 9—"Anglo-Persians." 10—Weather forecast; supper music, Vincent Lopez' Statler Orchestra, John P. Guilderman at the organ.

WTAM, Cleveland, O. (390 Meters)

6:30 p. m.—Jack Horwits Collegian Serenaders. 7:30—Talk by Arthur Haas. 8—Frank R. Wilson's Euclid Orchestra. 9—"Anglo-Persians" from WEAF. 9:30—Studio program. 11—Emerson Gill and his orchestra.

WWJ, Detroit, Mich (353 Meters)

4 p. m.—Baseball game. 6—Dinner concert. 8—Detroit Orchestra and soloist. 9—From WEAF.

WCX, Detroit, Mich. (517 Meters)

6 p. m.—Dinner concert by Goldkette Ensemble. 8—Detroit Symphony Orchestra from Belle Isle. 10—Dance music.

WJR, Pontiac, Mich. (517 Meters)

7 p. m.—Jean Goldkette's Penobscot Orchestra, soloists. 7:30—Ackerman "Projectors." 8—Detroit Symphony Orchestra.

CENTRAL STANDARD TIME

WCCO, St. Paul-Minneapolis, Minn.

6:15 p. m.—Dinner concert—Organ recital by Hugo Philler Goodwin. 8—New York program—"Anglo-Persians." 9:30—Musical program: Sampmann Trio, Mabel Pelletier, contralto; Wagner Hugghoorn, piano; Paul Oberg, accompanist. 10—Weather report, closing grain markets and baseball scores. 10:05—Dance program.

WMBH, Chicago, Ill. (360 Meters)

6 p. m.—Tylanon Duo. WMBB Male Trio. 8 to 10—Tylanon Orchestra; Woodlawn Orchestra; WMBB Male Trio; Cecil and Esther Ward, Hawaiian guitar duo; Bob Bennett, piano and celeste novelties, in popular program.

WON, Chicago, Ill. (217 Meters)

5 p. m.—String ensemble concert. 9 to 12:30—Dance, theater, and studio programs.

KYW, Chicago, Ill. (536 Meters)

7 p. m.—Program given by master artists. 9:30—Congress Carnival. 11—Time signals and weather reports.

WLS, Chicago, Ill. (345 Meters)

5:30 p. m.—Organ concert, Elsie Mae Lock. 8:15—Maude Sherman's Orchestra. 8—Pixie and Ralph in Lullaby Time. 8:15—Rose Sherman, violinist and Maria Ludwig, harpist. 8:30—Organ concert Al Bleigard. 8:50—Voice of the Listener. News summary and Surprise Time. 7:30—Grace Wilson, contralto. 8—Popular music program. 10—Organ concert, Ralph Emerson.

WJJD, Mooseheart, Ill. (306 Meters)

6:45 p. m.—Dinner concert, Howard L. Peterson, playing organ; Palmer Symphony Players; Compton's 7 See by the Newspaper" Man, Palmer Victorians. 7—Music by children. 9—Senator Harold C. Kessinger. Palmer Victorians. Jean St. Anne. 11:30—Settin' Up Hour.

WHAS, Louisville, Ky. (400 Meters)

7:30 p. m.—Concert, Civil Service talk 11:00 A. Beckman.

WSM, Nashville, Tenn. (282 Meters)

7 p. m.—Dinner concert by Andrew Jackson Trio. 7:45—282 bedtime story. 8—Peabody Ensemble Singers. 10—Mrs. Caldwell Bennett, soprano, and Miss Virginia Martin, accompanist. 10:30—Pipe organ concert by F. Arthur Henkel.

KNOX, St. Louis, Mo. (256 Meters)

6:30 p. m.—Dinner music. 9—Popular music. 7:30—Accordion soloist. 8—Light opera selections. 9—Orchestra. 9:30—Special program.

WDAF, Kansas City, Mo. (366 Meters)

6 p. m.—Markets, grain and weather forecast, the Tell-Me-a-Story Lady; music, Harry Pratt organist. 8—Program by "Anglo-Persians." 8:30—Varied musical program. 11:45 — Charlie Straight's orchestra; Billy Adair's orchestra; organ numbers by Ted Meyn. Earl Coleman's orchestra, Johnnie Campbell's orchestra.

WOS, Jefferson City, Mo. (441 Meters)

7 p. m.—Evening market hour. 8—"Condition of Missouri Roads" by O. I. Steele. 8:05—Address by Samuel M. Jordan, Farmers' Institute lecturer of the Missouri State Board of Agriculture, on "Alfalfa." 8:20—Musical program by the Calloway Spring Band, Jack Selby, Hill Brothers and Roy Willis.

WHO, Des Moines, Ia. (526 Meters)

7:30 p. m.—Philbrick and his orchestra. 8—Band, under direction Wilbur Hiatt. 11—Philbrick and orchestra.

WOAW, Omaha, Neb. (526 Meters)

6:40 p. m.—Baseball scores. 6:45—Market resume. 8:50—Orchestra. 9—The Puritan hour.

WFAA, Dallas, Tex. (476 Meters)

6:30 p. m.—"Artie" Collins and his Orchestra. 8:30—Henri LaBonte's Artist Musicians.

KFDM, Beaumont, Tex. (316 Meters)

7 p. m.—Children's program. 8 to 10—Band concert.

MOUNTAIN STANDARD TIME

CNRE, Edmonton, Alta. (517 Meters)

7:30 p. m.—Children's Half-Hour with the Farmer. 8:30—Studio concert from the Edmonton Exhibition Grounds.

PACIFIC STANDARD TIME

CNRV, Vancouver, B. C. (291 Meters)

7:30 p. m.—Bedtime Story, Aunt Ruby. 8—Talk arranged by the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. 8—Studio program presented by the McIntyre String Quartet. 10:30—Belmont Orchestra.

KJR, Seattle, Wash. (384 Meters)

8:30 p. m.—Puget Sound Orchestra directed by Henri Damski. 10—Pacific standard time signals. 10—Studio program.

KGW, Portland, Ore. (492 Meters)

6 p. m.—Dinner concert, baseball scores. 7:30—Weather and market reports. 8—Concert of vocal and instrumental music. 10:30—Weekly frolic of the Keep Growing Wiser Order of Hoot Owls. Pantages stars and other features.

KPO, San Francisco, Calif. (429 Meters)

6:30 p. m.—Slaters orchestra, under the direction of Waldemar Lind. 7—"Sports on the Air" by Harry B. Smith. 7:15—Business and investment talk. 7:20—Chamber of Commerce talk on "Industrial San Francisco." 8—Studio program. 9—Palace Dance Orchestra, Gene James director. 9:10—Book reviews by Harry A. Small. 10—States Orchestra.

KFI, Berkeley, Calif. (256 Meters)

9 to 12 p. m.—Dance program by Bob Beal and his Claremont Orchestra. 10—Studio program—Intermission solos will be rendered by various members of the orchestra continuously during the evening.

KNX, Hollywood, Calif. (337 Meters)

7 p. m.—Feature program. 8 to 12—Courtesy programs.

KHTR, Hollywood, Calif. (368 Meters)

6 p. m.—"Radio Press Agent" Hour with the Hawaiian Silver Strings Quintet and business announcements. 7—Gaylord Wilshire Lectures. 7:30—Prof. Alfred Cookman, president of the Los Angeles Nature Club. 8—Concert period, presenting the KMTR Concert Orchestra under the directorship of Loren Powell; vocal soloist.

KHJ, Los Angeles, Calif. (405 Meters)

8:30 p. m.—Children's hour. 7:30—Scripture reading. 8—Program presenting Grace Carney, harpist, William MacDougall, "Scotch Comedian," and others

The Diary of Snubs, Our Dog

What They are Saying.

© Edmonston

REPRESENTATIVE UPSHAW: "If the Democratic donkey ever expects to graze again on the White House lawn he must not stop too long in the big wet pastures."

J. L. GARVIN: "America spends as much on education as all the rest of the world put together."

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE: "Of all forms of government, those administered by bureaus are about the least satisfactory to an enlightened and progressive people."

WILLIAM L. NELSON: "The suggestion has been made that there is needed in national legislative halls great sending stations so that speeches might be radiocast. My belief is that there is greater need for receiving stations so that those who have failed to keep faith with the public might hear from home."

DR. CHARLES H. FLINT: "Leaders have, unconsciously perhaps, become more interested in holding office than in administering it."

KENT COOPER: "Accurate journalism will never be vicious journalism."

PAUL WHITEMAN: "It is estimated that there are at the present time more than 1,000,000 saxophone players in the world."

JOHN GRIER HIBBEN: "Beware of the scholar who becomes an oracle. He is an uncertain guide and an impossible companion."

ROSCOE POUND: "Government of laws and not of men means that no man shall bend and warp or twist the law for private purpose."

The MINUTE MAN

Leaves NORTH STATION 3 P.M. Daily

BOSTON CHICAGO

in association with the Lake Shore Limited

GOING WEST—? THE "Minute Man," new crack train, offers fast, convenient transportation de luxe at no extra fare. Over the scenic "Mohawk Trail by Rail" — through historic countrysides. For Chicago, take The Minute Man from the North Station.

Club Car — Drawing Room Compartment and Berth Service Dining Car serving a dollar dinner

Condensed Schedule Westbound (Standard Time)

Lv. North Station	3:00 P.M.
Ar. Fitchburg	4:15 P.M.
Ar. Greenfield	4:44 P.M.
Ar. North Adams	6:40 P.M.
Ar. Troy	8:00 P.M.
Ar. Albany	8:35 P.M.
Ar. Cleveland	8:26 A.M.
Ar. Chicago (La Salle St.)	4:00 P.M.
Lv. Chicago (La Salle St.)	4:30 P.M.
Ar. North Station	7:15 P.M.

For further information apply to local ticket office TRAVEL BUREAU, North Station, Boston. Tickets at North Station and Consolidated Ticket Office.

BOSTON and MAINE RAILROAD

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

"The Sunshine Belt to the Orient"

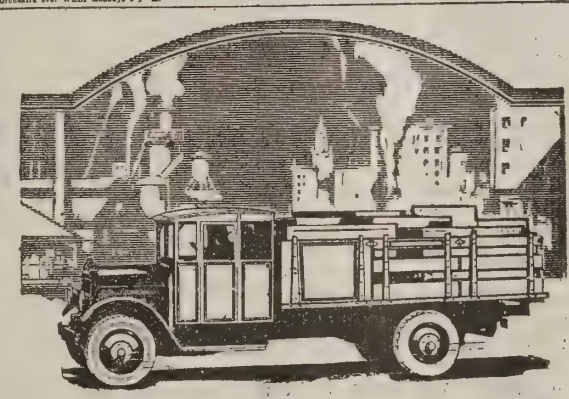
A Millionaire's Trip at $11.37 per day

Including first cabin accommodations, meals and transportation Round the World . . . 22 ports in 14 countries.

VISIT Havana, the Panama Canal, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Honolulu, Japan, China, Manila, Malaya, Ceylon, India, Egypt, Italy, France. Then return across the Atlantic.

Take the trip you have always hoped some day to enjoy. For now its cost has been reduced to a figure that is little if any more than you spend at home.

See 22 ports during the ship's stay at each. Or stopover where you choose for two weeks or longer, continuing on another ship exactly like the one on which you started.



Magnificent liners; broad of beam, steady and comfortable. Large outside rooms. Spacious decks, one enclosed in glass. A world-famous cuisine. A personal service.

Sailings fortnightly from Boston and New York (every Saturday from San Francisco).

It is the supreme trip of a lifetime at an amazingly low cost. Ask for full information, assistance in planning shore trips, reservations, etc. Communicate with any ticket or tourist agent or with

177 STATE STREET, BOSTON

Dollar Steamship Line

HEAVY DUTY SPEED WAGON

The Heavy Duty Speed Wagon is equipped with a spiral bevel gear drive —the most efficient type for transmitting the greatest volume of engine power to the driving wheels smoothly and quietly.

More than 125,000 Reo-manufactured commercial cars have been similarly equipped.

Capacity 2-TONS — SIX cylinders — $1985 CHASSIS At Lansing

REO MOTOR CAR COMPANY, Lansing, Michigan

The Greatest Summer You've Ever Had

THAT'S what you'll say when you look back on your first "Elto summer"—when you daydream of the hundreds of hours on the sunny, sparkling waters—the powerful motor purring contentedly behind you—hours of lazy trolling, of thrilling racing, of moonlight cruising. Days bountifully a-brim with joy and outdoor happiness. Ole Evinrude brought such water pleasure when he designed the

Super Elto

"Starts with a quarter turn"

Send for catalog—beautifully illustrated—intensely interesting. Tells how to compare rowboat motor values.

ELTO OUTBOARD MOTOR CO.
Ole Evinrude, Pres.
68—48 Mason Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

OLD HICKORY

The Call of Nature

Built of strong, selected, young hickory saplings, the distinction of Old Hickory is part of Nature itself. Craftsmen fashion it into comfortable designs, ready for added years of service. No other outdoor furniture can surpass its combination of wear, comfort and value. Ask for our new folder "C" and the name of a dealer who can show you a design to meet your most exacting requirements.

OLD HICKORY FURNITURE CO.
MARTINSVILLE, INDIANA

The Christian Science Monitor An International Daily Newspaper

Advertising Offices in Boston, New York, London, Paris, Florence, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Kansas City, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland (Oregon)

FOWLE RESIGNS AS MANAGING EDITOR OF BOSTON GLOBE AFTER 42 YEARS

Began Writing for That Paper in 1874, When It Was Two Years Old—Not a Martinet—He Built Large and Loyal Army of Correspondents

ARTHUR A. FOWLE, for 52 years identified with the Boston Globe, and for 42 years its managing editor—believed to be a record for such a position on a metropolitan paper—announced his retirement from active newspaper work this week. It was done in the same simple way that characterized his daily life, just a card of thanks to all his co-workers for their loyalty, and a request that they give to William D. Sullivan, promoted from city editor to managing editor, the same loyal support and kindly help that they had given him.

Mr. Fowle will be 79 years old Dec. 3 next. But no one would imagine it to look at him. He has the clear eyes, the firm step, erect posture that he has had through many years.

Back in the days when the Boston Globe was a mere strip of a sheet not more than two years old, it began to get items from Woburn, Mass., on bits of paper bearing the name A. A. Fowle. And not long after this same youngster became the duly accredited correspondent for the paper. He had been writing locals for the weekly Woburn Journal, and the advent of the Globe seemed to open the door of opportunity to the newspaper field.

His work attracted enough attention to have him brought into Boston and be given a rating as reporter. Then he started climbing. The late Gen. Charles H. Taylor was directing the paper. It was being published in a small building, and there were times when making up the payroll was an easy matter because the force was so small it did not call for much anyway, but to get the real cash to give the men was a problem.

Through those early years Mr. Fowle got his valuable training. There was no Associated Press report. There was a bit of opposition to Globe men on the part of other news gatherers—not all of them—but this only seemed to make the few Globe men fight harder to get news.

From reporter to desk editor, day editor, night editor, telegraph editor, sporting editor, city editor were successive steps as the next few years went by. It was a time when there were real scoops being put over by different papers and the Globe had its share of them. The tide was beginning to turn and the circulation was gaining gradually. Advertising began to come in. And Gen. Taylor met his problems with less worry.

On Sept. 1, 1884, Mr. Fowle became managing editor, just 10 years after he had joined the paper. The force was larger, the paper was over its early growing pains, and its expansion made it evident that its old building could not much longer be adequate for its job. Those were the days when there was no elevators. The composing room was up next to the roof after a climb of four flights. When the paper went to press and the editorial and composing room forces quit, the city hoboes and bums would climb up the front and back stairs and snuggle down peacefully into slumber until the office boy put in an appearance about 7 with his broom to sweep out the building, janitors being unknown.

Arthur A. Fowle

Mr. Fowle in those days occupied a little room about 8 x 8 in the center of a tier along the editorial corridor. On one side was the news desk with a small dumb-waiter slide to the composing room. On the other side was the financial editor and then the sporting editor—a room that generally had a crowd because John L. Sullivan, Ike Wier, Johnny Havlin, Pete McCoy, George La Blanche, Paddy Duffy and other celebrities of those days in the prize ring were in and out for a chat. Out front was the city editor, reporters, exchange editor and editorial writers. The whole editorial floor could be crowded into what is today an ordinary six or seven room flat.

There were some real hustlers on the Globe, and they had a faculty in making friends where they would do the most good. There were policemen and officials, who seemed to like to slip a tip to Globe men. There were others in public life that did not hesitate to telephone in word about something worth while. Down in the mail room was another prototype—grown up—of Richard Harding Davis' "Gallagher," except that he was not a star for one story alone. George Kelly, long since dead, had more friends than one could imagine, and he had a way of digging news out of them for Mr. Fowle. Also as a mailer he was able to get hold of first editions of other papers before they were on the street. Murders, robberies, train wrecks, etc., were big news, but they did not get the play given them today. But the job was to get the stories. No taxicabs, of course. "Sea-going" hacks filled the bill.

Mr. Fowle guided the men like a father. No one ever heard him "bawling out" anyone. This spirit was engendered in the whole force because it began with Gen Taylor, who was able to spread it around, and it became contagious with W. D. Sullivan, city editor; James Morgan, Sunday editor; George Dimond, assistant city editor; Harry Poor, night editor; W. A. Alcott, librarian; W. H. Hills, editorial writer, etc.

Regularity was the keynote of Mr. Fowle's life. He was at his desk day and night for certain hours year in and year out. He could see news a long way off. He built up an army of correspondents in New England so that no matter what happened in any little out-of-the-way place some Globe man would get the story.

One might go on explaining the ideals which blended in to make the Globe a success, but it is not necessary. It is the story of building up from the ranks and allowing the men who came through after the struggles and proved themselves to get their reward in positions when they were vacant. At the head of a number of the responsible departments are men who have been with the Globe 30 or 40 years and longer. Mr. Fowle was the dean in the editorial department, and the dean of managing editors in Boston, if not elsewhere.

Two years ago he was the guest of honor at a dinner given by his associates when he celebrated his 50th anniversary with the Globe. He did not want any celebration, but his "boys" insisted that one be held. Then he heard some pleasant things said about himself. Among them were words by Channing Cox, the Governor of Massachusetts, who insisted on being present in his old capacity as Globe reporter among Globe men.

NEW TEXAS DAILY

Launching of the Harlingen (Tex.) Valley Daily Globe, by James Mario Bird, publisher of the McAllen (Tex.) Valley Morning Telegram, has been announced. Bird said he would have Associated Press service.

DENISON HERALD BURNS

The plant of the Denison (Tex.) Daily Herald was heavily damaged Aug. 2 by fire and an explosion, supposedly of accumulated gas. Origin of the fire is reported undetermined.

Florida's FASTEST GROWING NEWSPAPER
The Miami Tribune
FRANK R. FILDES
PUBLISHER

DAILY PAPERS FROM OTHER CITIES
HOTALING'S NEWS STAND
BROADWAY AND 43RD ST.
NORTH END THE TIMES BUILDING

"Perhaps the most cosmopolitan spot in New York City is Forty-third Street and Broadway . . . Here is a mammoth news stand which sells newspapers from every city in the world. . . Every town has similar stands, but none as huge as this, and none as varied and as picturesque in its patronage."
—Boston Transcript, Oct. 29, 1921
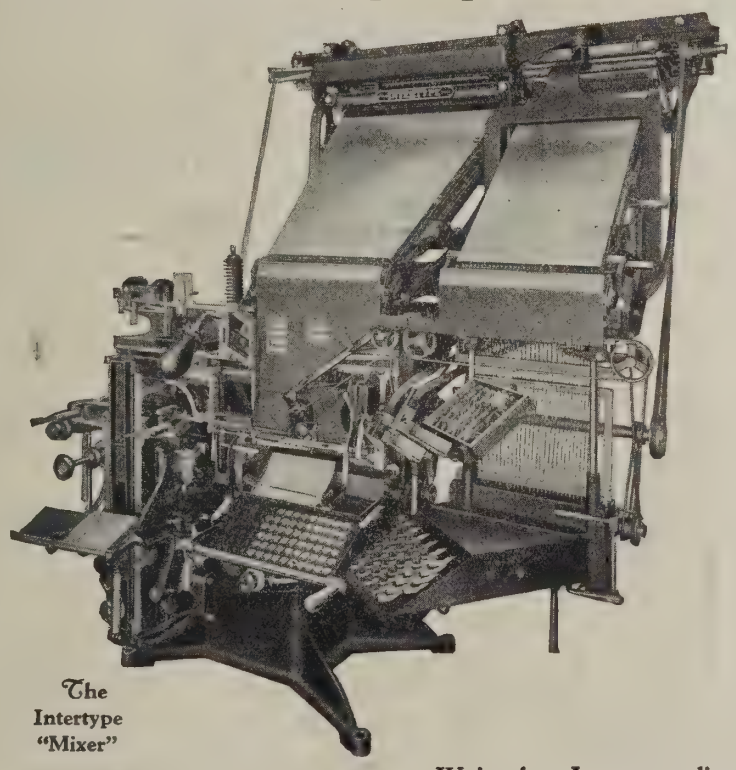
HOTALING'S NEWS AGENCY, 308 WEST 40th STREET, NEW YORK

Keep These Facts in Mind When Considering Buffalo

There is now in Buffalo one big, strong morning newspaper—alone in its field—giving a complete coverage.

This newspaper is The Buffalo Courier-Express, formed by the merger of two papers backed by nearly a century of honorable achievement.

The Buffalo Courier-Express is the only daily newspaper which can offer you a circulation free from duplication in the Buffalo territory. No advertiser now needs to use two papers to tell his story to the same people.



Also there is a metropolitan Sunday paper, The Buffalo Sunday Courier-Express, which will carry your message to the largest audience reached by any newspaper in New York State outside of New York City.

Courier BUFFALO Express
Buffalo's Best Newspaper
Lorenzen & Thompson, Incorporated
Publishers' Direct Representatives
CHICAGO NEW YORK SAN FRANCISCO SEATTLE

NO STANDARDIZED INTERTYPE HAS EVER BECOME OBSOLETE

These EXCLUSIVE Intertype Features Are Real MONEY SAVERS

Standardization. All Intertypes are built up from the same standardized Basic Unit, with interchangeable equipment units (cradles for 1, 2, or 3 main magazines, side magazine units, etc.), interchangeable magazines, mold caps, etc., and interchangeable repair parts.

The Intertype "Mixer"

Protection against Obsolescence. No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete. Even detail improvements have always been made applicable to machines already in use.

Minimum Initial Investment. Buy only what you need right now. Add more equipment units later.

"Profit-making Intertype Features" (booklet on request). Exclusive improvements and simplifications which speed up production, save time, and prevent delays. There are 910 fewer moving parts in the escapement mechanism alone, on a three-magazine Intertype. As one Intertype user puts it, "Parts which do not exist cannot make trouble and cannot wear out."

Write for Intertype literature. If you wish to see our local representative, please so state.

Standardized
INTERTYPE
TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION, 1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK

CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES TORONTO LONDON

MEXICO BARS DAILIES OPPOSING CHURCH BAN

Spanish Papers Published in Texas Cities Forbidden to Circulate After Criticism of Calles' Religious Reforms

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 4.—Ignacio E. Lozano, publisher of La Prensa, Spanish-language daily here, said last night that his paper is still being barred from Mexico under orders issued some time ago by the Mexican government.

Other Mexican papers printed in this country similarly have been barred from Mexico because of their alleged opposition to policies of the Calles government. Mr. Lozano said he understood two papers at El Paso and two in Los Angeles, in addition to his own, were affected.

The San Antonio publisher has protested in vain to President Calles, he said.

Action of the Mexican government in barring the newspapers is said to have followed their outspoken criticism of the Calles administration for its enforcement of laws on religion, which has resulted in the exodus of Catholic nuns and priests from the republic, with charges of persecutions. Mr. Lozano said his paper was not exactly hostile to Calles, but favored religious freedom as well as freedom of the press, and opposed the Mexican government in what he considered denial of the former.

POE GRAVE A SHRINE

Baltimore Press Club, in Charge, Reports Thousands of Visitors

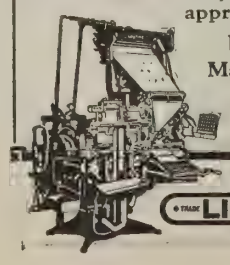
Since the grave of Edgar Allan Poe in Westminster Churchyard, Baltimore, has been under the care of the Baltimore Press Club, it is rapidly becoming an international shrine. During the past three months visitors came from Germany, Egypt, Holland, South Africa, Asiatic Turkey, Russia, England, China, France, Ireland, Porto Rico, Philippine Islands, British Columbia, South America, Alaska, Canada, and the Hawaiian Islands. According to the monthly report of Edward H. Pfund, executive secretary of the club, 3294 persons visited the grave during July. Since June, 1925, records of the club show that 16,683 persons visited the grave, against 500 during 1924.

BLOCK ASSOCIATES SHARE

Officers and Directors of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., Elected

Organization of Consolidated Publishers, Inc., has been effected with Paul Block as president. M. F. Hansen is vice-president and the directors include Herman G. Halsted, Charles J. Boyle, Arthur Thurnau, Florence Cottrell, John Hertel, Stillman H. Bingham, William F. Henry, Harry Auth, Daniel Nicoll, Oliver J. Keller, Nigel Cholmeley-Jones, C. A. Regan, Gilbert Falk, and Max Block. All are associated with Mr. Block in one or more of his enterprises.

All stock in the corporation is held by Mr. Block and his associates. The newspapers owned by the company are the Toledo Blade, Newark Star-Eagle, Duluth Herald and Lancaster (Pa.) New Era, besides the special representative business of Paul Block, Inc.



No change in the latter organization nor in the management of any of the newspapers is contemplated, Mr. Block stated, except in the case of the Toledo Blade, with which he has been associated for 19 years and which he has now acquired. On this newspaper a few changes will be made.

From the Linotype Mailbag

Found out for himself

"I want to thank you for the splendid service you rendered in getting the two liners to me on April 1. I had heard of your service in this regard, but had never had the opportunity until this time to find out for myself. I certainly appreciate it."

Wm. H. Schuldt
Mankato, Minn.

LINOTYPE

Daily Aids Channel Swimmer

The New Rochelle Standard-Star this week started a fund to aid Clarabelle Barrett, woman swimmer of its city who this week made an unsuccessful attempt to swim the English Channel. A considerable fund it is expected will be raised to help defray expenses of a second try.

William Wrigley says the sun never sets on Chicago chewing gum, but most everybody else does.—Kansas City Star.

SMALL STORES ADVERTISE

Texas Merchants Will Use $75,000 Campaign, Mostly in Newspapers

Plans for a proposed $75,000 advertising campaign for the purpose of popularizing small town merchants in their communities were detailed by President J. L. Whitmire and Secretary C. C. Wolfe of the United Merchants of Texas at that organization's recent annual convention in San Antonio. Costs of the campaign will be borne by merchants in the towns in which the advertising is to be placed.

H. O. Loken of Chicago, advertising expert, was among the trade authorities who addressed the convention. Urging the merchants to "advertise their advertising," he suggested direct-by-mail advertising to supplement and call attention to their newspaper ads.

PROSPERITY COPY IN DENVER

The "Create Your Own Prosperity" series of advertisements being published in the Denver Rocky Mountain News, to stimulate Colorado home trade, is described by A. H. Dougall, of the Denver Chamber of Commerce, as one of the finest business stimulating campaigns of its kind in the West. The advertisements in the series which appear regularly every week, call the attention of merchants and consumers to the manufacturers of Colorado-made goods. They are educational to the extent that many details of methods of manufacture are described.

HONOR AMERICAN'S BRIDES

About 100 women employees of the Chicago American attended a luncheon last week in honor of the announcement of the engagements and approaching marriages of two members of the group Miss Edna Murphy, secretary to L. T Kohler, who has charge of the national advertising department, and J. T. Cahill will be married soon. The second betrothal was that of Miss Sarah Brown a reporter, and G. T. Blake. Miss Mary Dougherty, "Chaperon" of the American presided as toast mistress.

AUSTIN JOINS HERALD-EXAMINER

C. E. Austin is the newly appointed promotion manager of the Chicago Herald & Examiner. He has had a wide experience in advertising and merchandising, having been associated with Dunlap Ward, H. Walton Heegstra, Inc., Hoop Advertising Company, and Lord & Thomas Advertising Agency. Mr Austin's handling of Studebaker advertising was part of his training.

Advertising

Carried by Des Moines Newspapers

First Six Months 1926

Figures in Lines

DES MOINES REGISTER AND TRIBUNE

(Evening and Sunday editions)

Local Display	3,620,464	Gain over 1925 813,570 lines
National Display	1,872,120
Classified	1,078,128
Total	6,570,712

DES MOINES EVENING TRIBUNE

(Six issues a week)

Local Display	2,867,854	Gain over 1925 673,345 lines
National Display	1,264,396
Classified	717,838
Total	4,850,088

DES MOINES DAILY CAPITAL

(Six issues a week)

Local Display	1,964,117	Loss from 1925 448,994 lines
National Display	666,565
Classified	266,063
*Total	2,896,745

*The above figures do not include 58,232 lines of advertising carried by The Sunday Capital which ceased publication early in 1926.

DES MOINES SUNDAY REGISTER

Local Display	752,610	Gain over 1925 140,225 lines
National Display	607,724
Classified	360,290
Total	1,720,624

DES MOINES MORNING REGISTER

Local Display	533,301	Gain over 1925 375,332 lines
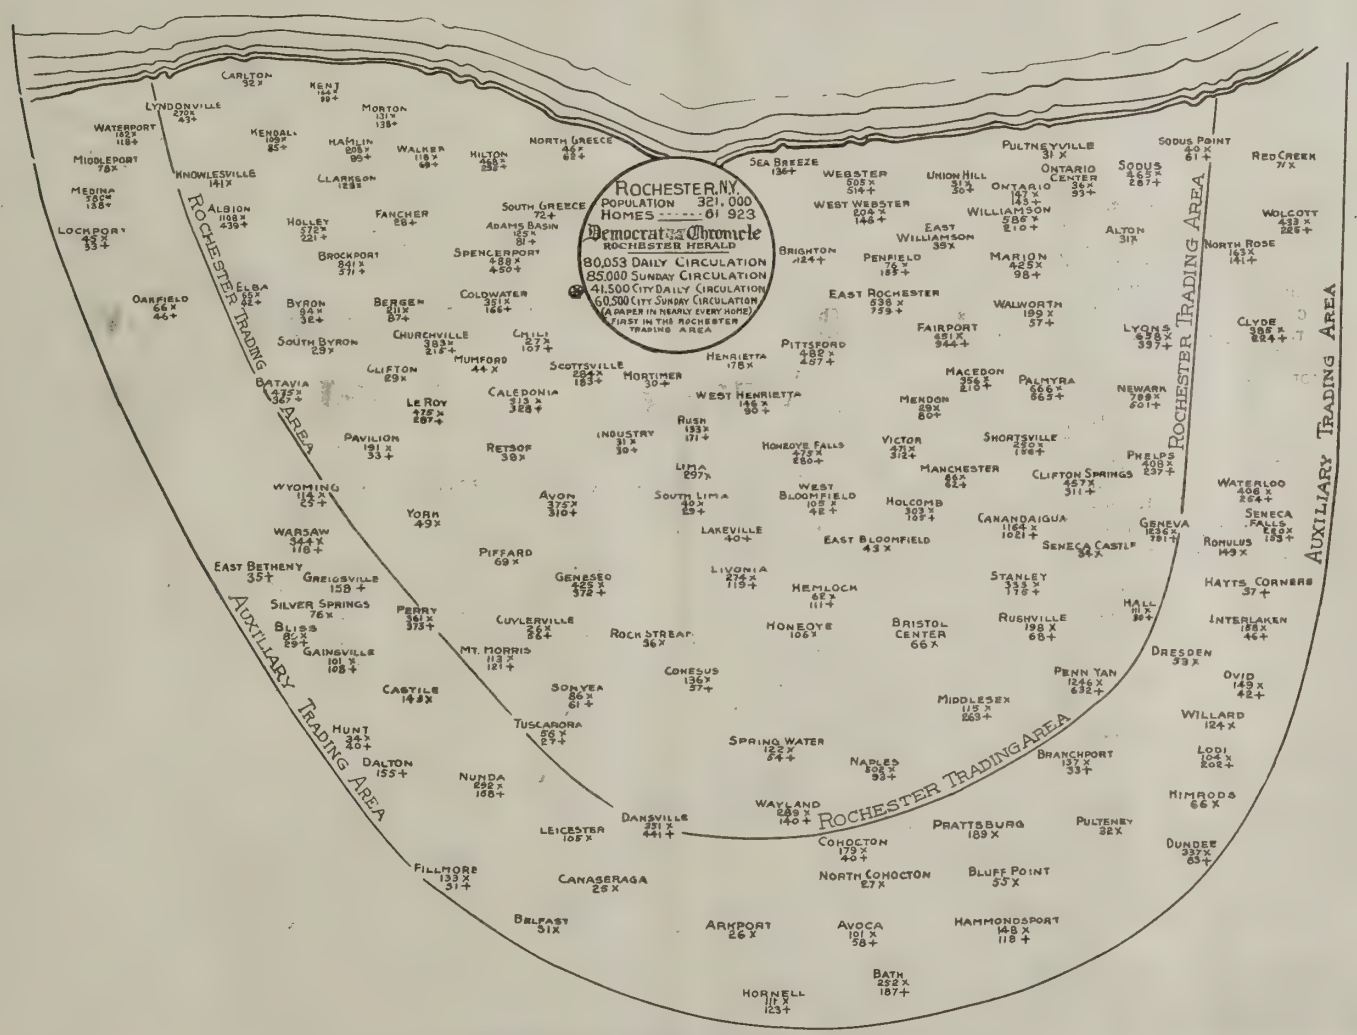
National Display	1,119,364
Classified	708,763
Total	2,361,428

HERE IS LEADERSHIP

Net Paid Circulation, Week July 24th, Exceeded

80,041 DAILY — 85,000 SUNDAY



LEADING THE NEXT DAILY PAPER BY OVER - 10,000
LEADING THE NEXT SUNDAY PAPER BY OVER - 22,000

*41,500 CITY DAILY CIRCULATION
60,500 CITY SUNDAY CIRCULATION

(A PAPER IN NEARLY EVERY HOME)

913,040 Advertising Lines Gained First Six Months 1926

The map below shows the circulation in towns and villages in the Rochester market which receive 25 or more copies of this newspaper

FIGURES REVISED TO MARCH 31ST 1926
X = DAILY CIRCULATION — + = SUNDAY CIRCULATION

*Our special rural delivery service places this newspaper into the homes of our suburban subscribers before breakfast, enabling them to read our advertisers' sales messages and to do their day's shopping in Rochester.

Democrat and Chronicle
ROCHESTER HERALD

PAUL BLOCK, INC. - National Representative - New York, N. Y.

One, two or three standard main magazines

Interchangeable

© TRADE LINO

SINGLE DISTRIBUTION

For straight matter without frequent changes of size and face

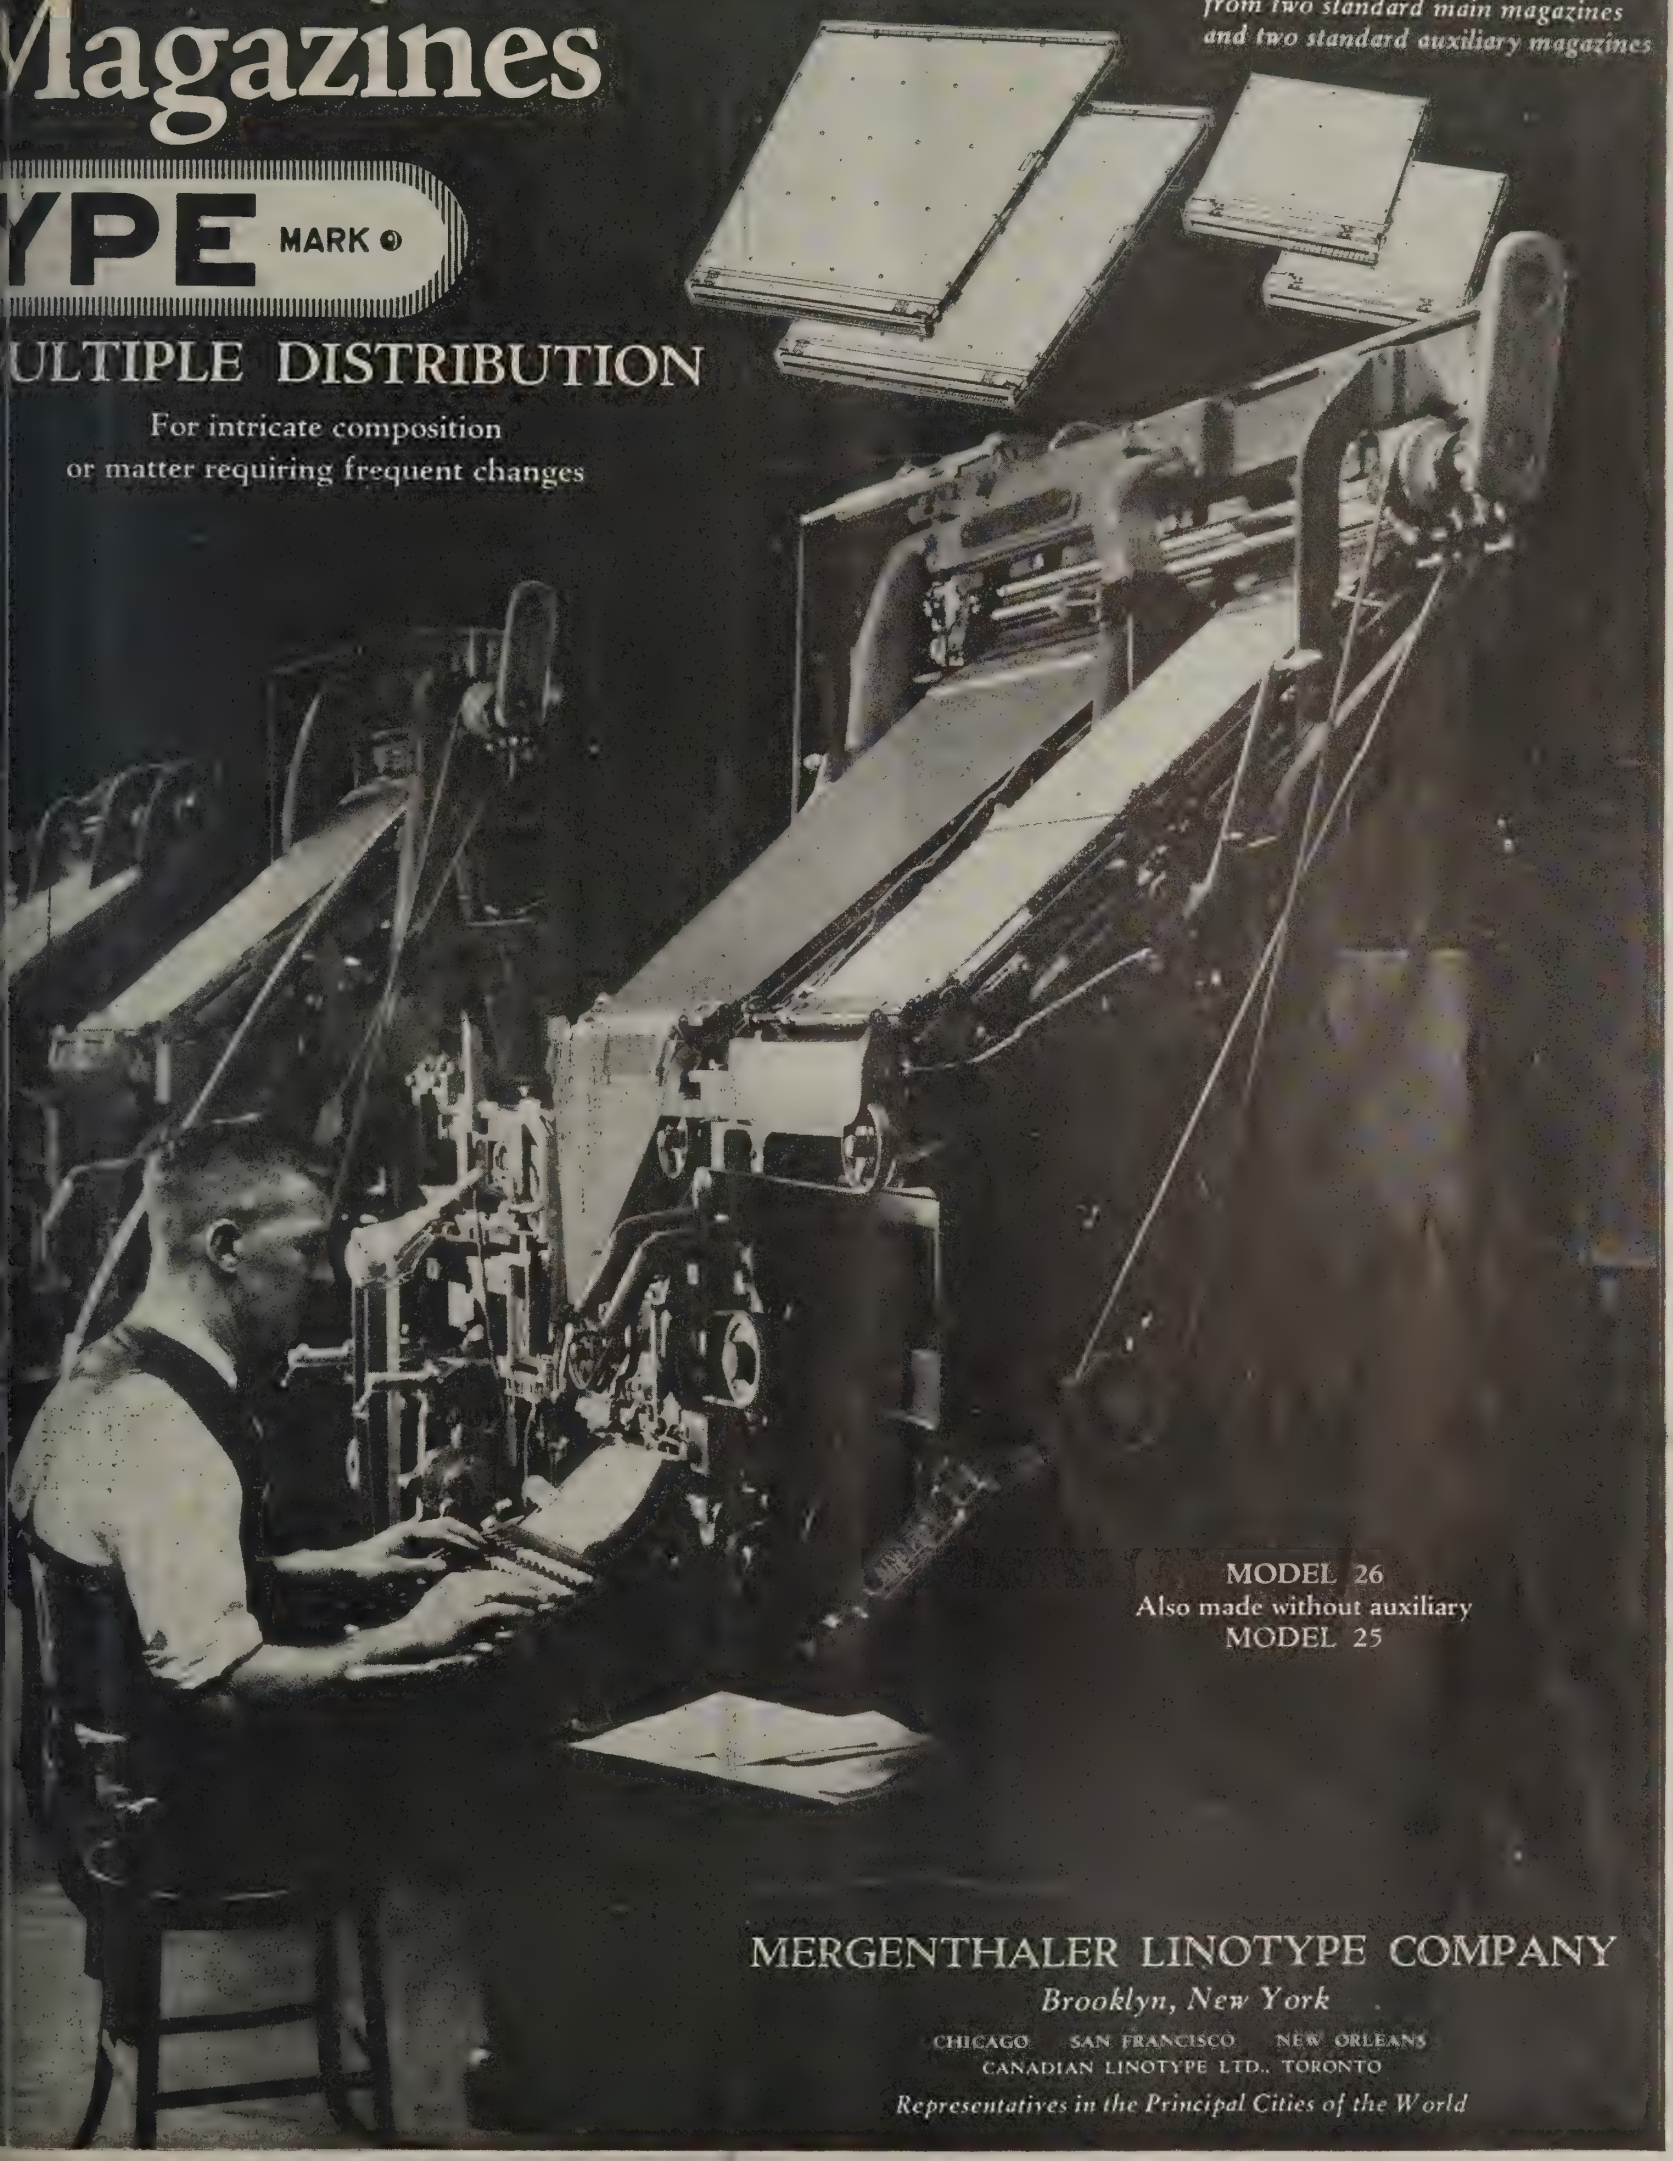
MODEL 8
Also made with auxiliary
MODEL 14



Magazines

YPE MARK ⓪

ULTIPLE DISTRIBUTION

For intricate composition or matter requiring frequent changes

Continuous composition from two standard main magazines and two standard auxiliary magazines

MODEL 26
Also made without auxiliary
MODEL 25

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY
Brooklyn, New York
CHICAGO SAN FRANCISCO NEW ORLEANS
CANADIAN LINOTYPE LTD., TORONTO
Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

EDITORIAL

CONTEMPT OF COURT

FROM opinions expressed in these columns we believe it is the sentiment of the newspaper men of the country that the following conditions should govern judicial procedure in contempt cases:

(1) That the power of any judge to punish for contempt on his own accusation is despotic in principle, undignified and mistaken and should be curbed by legislative action.

(2) That contempt of court cases should be (a) transferred to another distant court of parallel jurisdiction (b) should be tried before a jury (c) should be decided by a commission of lawyers in a jurisdiction other than that occupied by the offended judge or by a lay referee. (Several editors believe that exception should be made in cases where contempt was actually committed in the presence of the court and was of a nature indicating definite disrespect or malicious intention to disturb the orderly process of justice.)

(3) That the Indiana Supreme Court contention that truth is no justification should be fought to a finish in the United States Supreme Court.

(4) That "constructive" and "indirect" contempt, meaning acts removed from the court, such as heretofore supposedly legitimate newspaper criticism of judicial conduct, gives to the bench powers unnatural under our form of government and that there should at least be clear definition of what might be termed contempt boundaries.

(5) That recent events have indicated that the newspaper press can do no greater public service than to use its influence to secure the election and appointment of men of high character and tested efficiency for judicial positions.

By and large, with various qualifications, EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S suggestion that contempt powers be transferred to judges of parallel rank in other jurisdictions, on the principle of change of venue, seems to be endorsed by leaders of the profession, with but few exceptions.

Unquestionably the issue will be thoroughly threshed out at the next meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors. At this point EDITOR & PUBLISHER desires to offer a suggestion: Test your local sentiment now! What does the most respected judge of your community say? What is the sentiment of the leaders in your legislature? If you favor this idea and can get backing for it, waste no time in pressing for legislative action.

Send a couple of dollars or more to the "New York World" or to EDITOR & PUBLISHER to help pay the expense of appealing to the U. S. Supreme Court the case of Editor Dale, to whom the Supreme Court of Indiana has denied the right to plead truth as justification in a contempt case! Whatever you may think of Dale, his paper or his fight, you certainly do not want this court precedent to stand.

VISITING A SUMMER SCHOOL

WHAT are the young folks in journalism thinking of?

Some day accept an invitation to visit a school of journalism and give ear to their eager questions.

You will find them discussing the most vital problems of the newspaper business, its technique, public service, sacrifices and rewards, both spiritual and material. You will find an astonishing predominance of girls in the Summer classes. Bright, pretty girls and serious women, note books in hand, seeking mastery of the art and science of the craft.

"Do you believe," they will ask you, "that women have their place in journalism—that the future prospect really warrants the effort?"

You recall all of the good women you have known during a quarter of a century of newspaper service. You vividly remember stories they have written that touched the heart, even your own calloused conscience. You estimate the light the now abominated "Sob Sister" has shed in dark places—tenements, desolate farms, hot kitchens, steamy laundries and drab factories where the blood and tissue of women and children are woven into fabrics by a thousand clattering looms. Does journalism offer a place for the writings of women? A thousand times yes. The

It is he that sitteth upon the circle of the earth, and the inhabitants there are as grasshoppers; that stretcheth out the heavens as a curtain, and spreadeth them out as a tent to dwell in:

He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength.—Isaiah; XL, 22, 29.

right kind of women—women of sympathy, understanding and talent to inspire the millions whose lives are dull with drudgery and whose principal contact with the glowing outside world is through the medium of print on paper.

Is there any place for women in advertising? Inasmuch as the bulk of commercial writing is addressed to women the answer again is a thousand times yes.

"What constitutes genius in a writer?" the Summer School pupils will ask you and you do not tell them, with Edison, that the answer is "sweat." It is hard work, of course, but it is a very special and natural talent—power to express thoughts that penetrate the mind of the reading public, encouraging thinking, provoking discussion, precipitating action.

What are the rewards? This is an insistent question. You glibly reply that the rewards are in proportion to the effort, but you wonder if this is true. It is at least broadly true in journalism as in other professions, arts and sciences. At any rate, the balance of material rewards has greatly improved during the past ten years in this country and the spiritual rewards are high above those of the past.

Step out into the world, boys and girls, and try your fortune at the old wheel! If you have something to say there is an eager world of listeners awaiting. If you have talent you may write your way out of obscurity in about a tenth of the time that a very talented young physician can gain even a neighborhood reputation, or an exceptional young lawyer can gain recognition in the lower courts. Penetrate all of the passageways of modern civilization; study people, things, ideas and ideals; minister to those who read; possess courage to tell the truth as you find it, and take the consequences whatever they may be; don't play fool martyr for any cause, but don't hesitate to give your blood for causes that are more valuable than life; declare yourself "in" on the big game of human progress and accept your just deserts.

These lofty ambitions pour forth from the old editor as he visits the Summer Journalism School and the boys and girls busily take notes. But he knows, and they will learn, that each will go his separate way, profiting little from the experiences of others and much from his own.

"What we are not up in, we are usually down on," says Outlook.

INSURANCE ADVERTISING

"IF it pays me to advertise independently, how much more it would pay the parent companies with large resources at their command to spread the doctrine of insurance throughout the universe?"

That statement was made recently by H. R. Schaffer, a New York insurance agent who launched an advertising campaign five years ago, finding the investment highly profitable. He has reaped a harvest of commissions on standard insurance policies.

Insurance is the great, aching void in the newspaper advertising field. Some day some bright young insurance executive will prevail at his green table and then the insurance interests of this country will learn that the rim of sales possibilities has never been touched by the present hit and miss plan of finding insurance prospects.

DRIFTING TOWARD CENSORSHIP

THAT the federal government will establish censorship of the press within ten years, i modern trends away from free expression ar not curbed, was the prediction recently made b Thomas Dixon, author and playright, to the member of the North Carolina Press Association, and we be lieve with him.

Here is what he said: "There is a growing deman for censorship of the press, and unless the forces no in motion toward the accomplishment of this pur pose are met and destroyed they will win.

"Newspapers are the supreme expression of th orderly process of law against the voice of riot an personal violence and a censored press is the firs step in the establishment of tyranny.

"A free press is the supreme expression of a sel governing community. We are attempting today t substitute for intelligent self-government a labyrint of legal restrictions. Every legislature which meet enacts one of these legal dictums and calls them law They can never become laws until there is back o them an informed public opinion. A free press, no the legislature, is the real law making body of ou democracy."

If Mr. Dixon's statements are considered extrem we ask in all candor: Would anyone have believe six months ago that the right to plead truth as just fication would have become, in the year 1926, a que tion for the United States Supreme Court?

From a very different premise the editor of th Pittsburgh (Pa.) Legal Journal also foresees cer sorship of the press in America. In a ringing d nunciation of lewd, vulgar comics and exploitatio mainly in Sunday newspaper features, of crime an sensuality, in alluring terms, this critic says: "Cer sorship of the press certainly is on its way and no s or class of people are doing more to speed it than th publishers. A few individuals here and there ar only lacking a Wheeler to put it over. Most big pub lishers will ridicule the thought that such is possibl So did slave owners and booze dealers laugh off th suggestion that their rights would be outlawed."

The point of this argument is that censorship w ride into power because the public will follow a lead who can convincingly show that the newspaper pa ders to vice and crime.

You would not think much of a surgeon that operates before he diagnoses, but you know dozens of newspaper editors who work without definite objective, often with no thought as to what their circulation represents.

SESQUI-CENTENNIAL PROBLEM

IT is probably not too late, even at this late da to start a real advertising campaign to save th Sesqui-Centennial at Philadelphia. This interes ing enterprise has been badly mismanaged and, at th present time, if our information is correct, is runnin at a loss of $50,000 per day.

It is a pity—a shame that the success of this gre event should have been predicated on free publici and hand-out advertising to such a large degree. Th press agent conception of it has been a blight. As w see the situation, newspaper advertising alone can no save it. It has months in which to redeem its oppo tunity. What is needed is an advertising appropri tion, fixed by sensible advertising men, contributed b the people of Philadelphia and placed in the newspap press of the country.

If a newspaper has a concealed bias headlines are more apt to betray it than stories or editorials.

"NOT VERY SERIOUS"

CORRESPONDENT for New York Sun sa starvation stories from the Wales mines a exaggerated; he saw with his own eyes hundre of gay, rosy-cheeked children at play; there we ample soup-kitchens and the average miner's stri pay of $1 per week was supplemented by $2 per we local relief for each miner's wife and 80 cents f each child. "What the miners' wives are complainin most about is lack of clothing," the corresponde reports, adding: "But during this season of the ye the complaint is not very serious."

PERSONALS

ARTHUR BRISBANE, editor of the New York Evening Journal, was a speaker at a dinner given to Sen. James W. Wadsworth, Jr., by the Republican Business Men, Inc., in New York, Aug. 4.

Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, and his daughter, Miss Jane Cooper, were luncheon guests of President Coolidge at White Pine Camp in the Adirondacks, Tuesday, Aug. 3.

Bernarr Macfadden, publisher of the New York Graphic, motored to Buffalo to meet a party of tourists which had journeyed to the Pacific coast under the newspaper's auspices and attended a farewell dinner held in the Hotel Statler there.

J. David Stern, editor and publisher of the Camden (N. J.) Courier and Post, Mrs. Stern and David Stern 3rd, sailed for a six-weeks' trip to Europe, July 31.

Frank G. Huntress, publisher, and Mrs. Huntress recently were host and hostess to more than 200 employes of the San Antonio Express and Evening News and their families at the 8th annual picnic of the Express Publishing Company.

Clifford K. Berryman, president of the Gridiron Club and cartoonist for the Washington Star is joining John C. Walker, president of the Columbia Country Club at Chevy Chase, Md., for a golfing vacation. They are bound for the Bald Pate Country Club near Melvin Village, N. H., on Lake Winnepesaukee.

Col. W. H. Huntley, former editor of the Sheridan (Wyo.) Post, and until last spring editorial writer for the Casper (Wyo.) Tribune, was stricken with paralysis last week and lies at the point of death in a Casper hospital.

Samuel G. McClure, publisher of the Glendale (Cal.) News, has returned from a business trip throughout the middle west.

Frank B. Appleby, publisher of the LaGrande (Ore.) Observer, has returned from a business trip east.

George H. Boynton, long located at Hamilton, Tex., has purchased and taken charge of the Sherman (Tex.) Weekly Chronicle from F. W. Peveto.

James H. Moore, editor of the Knoxville Sentinel, who for several weeks was seriously ill, is able to be back at his desk.

Edward A. Schwab, former Post Office Inspector and fraud investigator, in charge of the Fraud Department of the National Better Business Bureau, has resigned. He is preparing a book based on his experience with gypsters and swindlers.

M. C. Maloney, publisher of the Marshfield (Ore.) Coos Bay Times, is in New York on a tour of the United States, Canada and Cuba.

John E. Hipple, editor of the Pierre (S. D.) Capital-Journal and mayor of the city, has announced his candidacy as an independent for governor.

John Alden, of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle editorial staff, and president of the New York Society of Alden Kindred, addressed the Alden Kindred of America, descendants of John and Priscilla Alden, at its 26th annual reunion held at Duxbury, Mass., July 28.

R. H. Laschinger of the Gilmer (Tex.) Mirror, and Mrs. Laschinger are spending several weeks in Detroit and at New Hamburg, Ont., Mr. Laschinger's old home.

Lieut. Col. Ames of the 33rd Division, National Guard, is spending these two weeks in Camp Grant, Rockford, Ill. In private life Lieut. Col. Ames, is K. L. Ames Jr. publisher of the Chicago Journal of Commerce.

Cecil P. Rich, publisher of the Pratt (Kan.) Daily Tribune, with Mrs. Rich and their two sons, drove to San Francisco to attend the national convention of Lions Clubs.

Hal M. Wise, editor of the Webb City (Mo.) Sentinel, with Mrs. Wise and family, have returned from a tour of the world.

Glenn Griswold, editor of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, has gone for a month's motor trip through Michigan and Canada, accompanied by his family.

THE BUSINESS OFFICE

O. E. KNISELY, for the past eight months business manager of the St. Louis Times, has resigned effective Aug. 6th, Mr. Knisely, previously to going to the Times, was advertising director of the Omaha World Herald.

J. Paul Moore, advertising manager of the Palo Alto (Calif.) Times, has just left New York after an Eastern business trip.

William B. MacPherson, assistant advertising manager of the Niagara Falls (N. Y.) Gazette, sailed Aug. 6 for an extended visit to his former home in Scotland. He was given a farewell dinner by employees of the Gazette.

G. W. Preston, for the past three months engaged in special work for the St. Louis Times, has resigned. Mr. Preston, at this time cannot announce his plans for the future.

Floyd E. Tilley and R. W. Stamper were recently added to the advertising staff of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News.

P. E. Ritcha has resigned as business manager of the Visalia (Cal.) Daily Times and has joined the force of the San Diego branch of the Auto Club of Southern California.

E. W. Parsons, advertising manager of the Chicago Tribune, has returned from from an extended visit at his summer home in Eagle River, Wis.

Frank F. Loomis has joined the staff of the Chicago Journal of Commerce, where he will have charge of the insurance section. He was formerly in charge of the insurance department of Albert Frank & Co.

R. A. Moorefield, formerly assistant business manager of the Danville (Va.) News, has become advertising manager of the Washington (N. C.) Daily News.

Harry N. Hollenbeak, for the past three years and a half a member of the Wichita Beacon advertising staff, has been made advertising manager of the Vail-Shipley Studios and the Vail Jewelry Company, of Wichita.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

STANLEY W. BOGERT, in charge of the business and financial news section of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has returned to duty after a serious illness and an operation for appendicitis three months ago.

Eugene G. Denham last week became managing editor of the Hendersonville (N. C.) Times, succeeding William C. Lake, who recently resigned. Mr. Denham has recently been with the Philadelphia Public Ledger and has been connected with newspapers in other large cities.

B. H. Brown recently resigned as assistant city editor of the San Antonio Express. C. J. Wesch succeeded him.

Gustave Favreau, for 33 years a reporter for the Montreal Star, has been visiting his son Lucian Favreau in Columbus, O.

A. Thomas Pollock, for seventeen years a member of the Rocky Mountain News and Denver Times sports department, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for the state senate of Colorado.

O. P. Wilson, formerly with the Fairmont (W. Va.) West Virginian as telegraph editor, recently took the same position with the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News.

M. E. Wyche, of the University of Georgia, is now state news editor of the Chattanooga News.

(Continued on page 28)

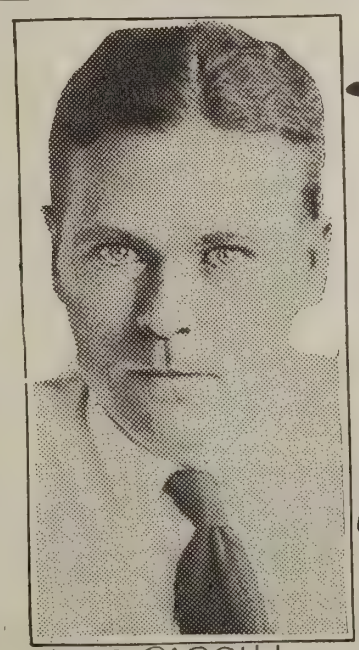
FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

EUGENE ZIMMERMAN (ZIM), first president of the new American Association of Cartoonists and Caricaturists, was born at Basel, Switzerland, May 25, 1862. He was on the staff of Puck from 1882 to 1885, doing colored front covers, center double-spreads in color and cartoons and comic drawings.



EUGENE ZIMMERMAN

In 1885 he went over to Judge, then a struggling four-year-old weekly of 14,000 circulation, in the same capacity, and did much to build up Judge. He left the then prosperous Puck on the advice of an old friend, a lithographer named Shaw, who made a remark which "Zim" never forgot:

"I missed my big opportunity, don't miss yours."

Some years ago "Zim" left the staff of Judge and opened a correspondence school of cartooning, caricature and comic art at his home in Horseheads, N. Y., to which he devotes most of his attention. He is on the staff of Cartoons Magazine, for which he draws caricatures and writes on humorous subjects and serious advice to amateurs. He also contributes to a number of other art magazines.

JESS CARGILL

CARGILL

624

More Big Cartoons For CENTRAL PRESS Clients

2 YEAR CONTRACT EFFECTIVE AUGUST-15-1926

THE ELLA CINDERS COLORED COMIC PAGE

(Furnished in from 1 to 4 Colors)

Which Starts SEPT. 19

The nation-wide demand for this Page is illustrated by orders from such papers as:

AURORA BEACON-NEWS
BUFFALO NEWS
CLEVELAND PRESS
DETROIT NEWS
FT. WAYNE JOURNAL-GAZETTE
HOUSTON POST-DISPATCH
LOUISVILLE HERALD-POST
MILWAUKEE JOURNAL
OMAHA NEWS
SAN DIEGO INDEPENDENT
ST. PAUL NEWS
PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN
WASHINGTON POST

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr. General Manager — Earl J. Hadley Associate

150 Nassau St. New York City

Samuel S. Schwab, city editor of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, has left for a trip through the New England and Middle Atlantic States. Bernard Haggarty is substituting.

Emil Hupka, who for the past eighteen years has been city editor of the City News Bureau of Chicago, has resigned to become day city editor of the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

C. J. Wesch, Jr., Federal building reporter and night rewrite man on the San Antonio (Tex.) Express, has been named night city editor of the Express to succeed Ben H. Brown, resigned.

Paul E. Flagg, of the Kansas City Journal-Post staff, has been named secretary and publicity director of the Kansas City Planning Commission.

Frank White has left the city staff of the Indianapolis Star to take a position on the publicity staff at the Indianapolis headquarters of the American Legion.

Roland Kilbon, American representative of the Paris Herald, returned on the "Carmania" last week from a six week's visit to the Paris office.

A. R. Holcombe, managing editor of the New York Herald Tribune, is spending his vacation at Siasconset, near Nantucket, Mass. George Goldsmith, of the Herald Tribune staff is also at Siasconset for several weeks.

Charles Roland, assistant to the city editor of the New York Herald Tribune, has returned from a visit to Wisconsin.

Mrs. George M. Grier, a member of the local staff of the Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening, sailed Thursday on the steamship "Majestic" for England, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Paul, who live in London. She will also visit the continent, returning in about two months.

A. O. H. Grier, city editor of the Wilmington (Del.) Every Evening, has succeeded Merris Taylor, editor emeritus of Every Evening, as day correspondent of the Associated Press at Wilmington. Mr. Taylor retires after a service of many years.

D. L. Reynolds, a graduate of Washington Collegiate Institute, has joined the reportorial staff of the Washington (N. C.) Daily News.

Edward G. Pendray, of the New York Herald Tribune staff, who left early in June for a vacation in Europe, returned last week on the George Washington.

Hartwell Hatton has been transferred from the staff of the New York Herald Tribune to the copy desk. Other additions to the desk are R. E. Baltzell and W. I. Mechlovics.

Erwin F. McEwan, a member of the staff of the Japan Advertiser, Tokyo, is sailing for his home in Missouri. He plans to return through Siberia and Russia to New York. Mr. McEwan has permission from the Soviet government to visit in Moscow for a week.

T. A. Langan, Jr., newspaper man and free lance writer, recently returned from a sea voyage to Spain and France. He has renewed his free lance work, and is now sending out his material under the name of Thomas Langan.

Jack Chores, of the Toledo Blade copy desk, resigned to spend six months in Europe.

Arthur M. Brunskill of the Toledo Times staff has been admitted to the Ohio bar.

Mrs. Norine Wintrowe Freeman, Toledo Blade feature writer, has resigned. She will make her home in Cleveland.

MARRIED

FREDERICK J. BALDWIN, owner of the Loraine (Ill.) Times, to Miss Verna Huber of Camp Point, Ill., July 25, in Macomb, Ill.

W. R. Carnal, floor man in the San Antonio Evening News composing room, recently married Miss Mildred Charpentier.

G. A. Tipton, Quincy, Ill., advertising manager of the Electric Wheel Company, will be married early in the fall to Miss Alma V. Howlett of Louisiana, Mo.

ASSOCIATIONS

THE VIRGINIA PRESS ASSOCIATION will hold its annual convention at Pulaski, Aug. 12-14. Gov. Harry Byrd, owner of the Harrisonburg News-Record and the Winchester Star, will lay aside cares of state for three days among the newspaper men, whose guests will also include Folger McKinsey, the "Benztown Bard" of the Baltimore Sun, President Harahan of the Cheaspeake & Ohio Railway, and others.

The MT. VERNON (O.) ADVERTISING CLUB recently put on a contest for a slogan. The $10 prize was won by James Blubaugh aged 13, of Mt. Vernon, who proposed "Mt. Vernon, the Kernel of the Buckeye."

A journal of advertising is planned by the PHILADELPHIA CLUB OF ADVERTISING WOMEN. According to tentative plans the new publication will be initiated in the fall and will contain "news and gossip" of interest to women in advertising.

In addition, plans also were discussed for the beginning of a contest for the award of two scholarships to two girls or women employed in concerns represented in the Poor Richard Club. Two scholarships for two years each will be given by the women's club covering in the Charles Morris Price School of Advertising and Journalism.

Two thousand five hundred delegates are expected to attend the ninth annual meeting of the DIRECT MAIL ADVERTISING ASSOCIATION in Detroit, Oct. 20, 21 and 22.

Committees of the newly organized TENNESSEE PRESS ASSOCIATION are: constitution and by-laws: Laps D. McCord, Pulaski; C. T. Crawford, Sr., Lawrenceburg; Allison Simonton, Covington; and S. M. Frame, Jefferson City. Membership: Hugh Doak, Manchester; Mrs. E. O. Susong, Greeneville; John Rison, Paris, Tenn. The two committees will meet at Nashville during the first week in September. C. W. Rooks, of Humboldt, is president of the new organization.

EAST TENNESSEE PRESS ASSOCIATION will meet at Elizabethton, August 12-14.

DUBUQUE (Ia.) AD CLUB programs for August are unusually interesting and diversified. This week J. W. Cross, western manager for the Woman's Home Companion, was speaker on "What National Advertising Means to Retailers;" Aug. 11, Wells Barnett, secretary of the Waterloo Advertising Corp. speaks on "Fitting Direct Mail Advertising to Your Business," Aug. 25, Jud Clark of the Kraft Clothing store will speak on "How Kuppenheimer Advertises, 'Good Appearance' to Sell Clothing" and Sept. 8, Mac Harlan, advertising manager of the Rollins Hosiery Mills, Des Moines, will discuss "Follow Through."

The MISSOURI PRESS ASSOCIATION will hold its annual meeting in Cape Girardeau, the members assembling at St. Louis on the morning of Thursday, Sept. 23, and leaving on the Steamer Cape Girardeau for a daylight trip down the Mississippi river, arriving at Cape Girardeau at 5 o'clock P. M.

The opening session will be held that night at 7:30. The following day will be devoted to regular meetings, ending with a banquet at night.

The final meeting will be held Saturday morning and at 2 o'clock a special train, the finest on the Frisco system, in charge of President J. M. Kurn, will carry the delegation back to St. Louis.

E. H. Winter, Warrenton Banner, is president; J. S. Hubbard, Columbia, secretary. The annual attendance averages 250 to 300 and an exceptionally large number is expected this year owing to the river outing.

W. P. Merry has been installed as the new president of the PORTLAND (Ore.) ADVERTISING CLUB. Other new officers are: vice-presidents, George Grayson and G. A. Rebentisch; secretary-treasurer, Harry Fischer; directors, Stanley Banbury, J. T. Crossley, E. W. Fenton, E. R. Hamm, Roy Heath, V. C. Hibbard, W. C. Kaley, H. P. Nunn, Guy Rogers, Charles Sanders and H. P. Robinson.

First to announce engagement of a special train to travel to Denver next June for the International Advertising Association convention, is the PEORIA ADVERTISING CLUB.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

W. C. JARNAGIN, editor and publisher of the Storm Lake (Iowa) Pilot-Tribune, weekly, has purchased a new Duplex press, Model A.

Recent installations by the Duplex Printing Press Company, Battle Creek, Mich., include: Paris (Tex.) Morning News, new tubular; Waterloo (Ia.) Courier, new sextuple; Frankford (Pa.) News-Gleaner, Model E; Hazard (Ky.) Herald, Model A; Flat River (Mo.) Lead Belt News, Model A, Los Angeles Staats-Zeitung, Model A; Tonkawa (Okla.) News, Model A.

The Des Moines Capital has installed six Goss high speed low construction press units and two pairs of folders.

The St. Paul Daily News has installed a Goss high-speed straight line sextuple press.

B. B. Ross, composing room foreman of the Washington (N. C.) Daily News is visiting in Washington, D. C., and Atlantic City.

H. H. Muir, special representative of the Ludlow Typograph Company, Chicago, has recently returned to Chicago from Cleveland, Ohio, where he was called on account of the illness and death of his mother.

SCHOOLS

BEN HIBBS, head of the department of journalism and director of publicity for the past two years at Kansas State Teachers College, Hays, has resigned and will go back into practical newspaper work on Sept. 1.

Hibbs has accepted a position as managing editor of the Goodland (Kans.) News-Republic. The Western Kansas News and the Goodland Republic were merged on April 1, by John Bird and Frank Motz, Hays publishers, and Roy Bailey and R. J. Laubengayer, of Salina.

The degree of Master of Science in business was awarded to Prof. John O. Simmons, acting head of the Department of Journalism at Syracuse University, at the recent commencement exercises at Syracuse. In his thesis in connection with the degree Prof. Simmons wrote on the subject: "Local Newspaper Features that Perform Public Service." Prof. Simmons received his bachelor's degree in journalism in 1914 at New York University. He was in newspaper work until 1920, when he joined the journalism faculty at Syracuse. At that time he was on the editorial staff of the Providence Journal and previously was with the New York Globe, Utica Observer, Standard News Association and the Springfield Republican.

The school of journalism of the University of Oklahoma, will have enlarged quarters the coming school year to take care of additional students.

Eugene Charles, who recently sold the Belleville Democrat to A. Q. Miller, owner of the Belleville Gazette, has been made assistant professor of journalism at the Kansas State Agricultural College, Manhattan. He will succeed Morse Salisbury, on a year's leave of absence to study for his master's degree at the University of Wisconsin.

THE MECHANICAL SIDE

FREDERICK HILLIER, a member of the Melbourne (Australia) Herald and Times business staff was a recent visitor to the plant of the Philadelhpia Public Ledger.

Preston L. Anderson, San Antonio Evening News linotype operator, led his two opponents in their race for member of the Legislature in the recent Bexar County Democratic primary, and will be in a run-off with the next high man.

WITH THE SPECIALS

THE Peru (Ill.) News-Herald has appointed Scheerer, Inc., to represent it in Chicago and New York.

Richard B. G. Gardner has been appointed New York manager of Scheerer, Inc., publishers' representatives.

Austin B. Fenger, general manager of the M. C. Mogensen Co., Inc., newspaper representatives, has just concluded a trip over the Pacific Northwest visiting the newspapers represented nationally by his company and attending the Oregon press convention at Pineville.

FLASHES

PRINCESS ILEANA of Rumania, mentioned as a prospective bride for the Prince of Wales, had a fall from a hammock. By all means get these young people together. Put him on a horse and her in a hammock and they'll surely fall for each other.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

When the mechanical engineers produce a perfect automobile perhaps somebody will turn his attention to the problem of making pedestrians faster and more durable.—Seattle Times.

"Italy's King Dedicates Shaft," says a headline, indicating that Premier Mussolini is making a regular Prince of Wales out of him.—Chicago Evening Post.

Possibly that row over Sunday closing at the Sesqui-Centennial was staged by the publicity department. — Florence (Ala.) Herald.

In Europe they're putting peace on a war basis.—Toledo Blade.

It's too much to expect, perhaps, but has Mr. Dawes ever considered the possibility of curbing Senatorial speeches during recess?—Buffalo Evening News.

Mr. Kipling reviews the literary pageant of 2,500 years and can find only a dozen immortals in the procession. Evidently Rudyard has not looked over the 1926 Summer fiction announcements. —New York Times.

France keeps looking for recipes when what she needs is a receipt.—American Lumberman.

It took a Constitutional Amendment to put the jack in applejack—New Haven Register.

The Government of Bermuda is offering a prize for the best poem descriptive of the advantages of that island. The great difficulty seems to be in finding a rhyme to "bootlegger."—Punch.

Public officials are sworn first in and then cussed out.—Wall Street Journal.

Chicago plans the highest twin towers in the world. As isles of safety?—New York Evening Post.

Too many solid, conservative citizens are solid from the ears up.—Rutland Herald.

Yes, oaks grow from acorns, but you may not be that kind of a nut.—Binghamton Press.

Never be too hasty about saying an executive has disappeared. He may be still out at lunch.—Duluth Herald.

People who do not amount to much themselves brag most about their bright children and prominent ancestors.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

You may deal with these leading Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. Thorough coverage of the state. Uniform marketing co-operation through the "Iowa plan."

No other market offers these four advantages

Where, besides in Iowa, can you find simultaneously: such high average wealth, such high standard of living, such facilities for easy distribution and such effective marketing co-operation?

Iowa's taxable wealth for every man, woman and child is $4,146, as compared with $2,731—the Nation's average. (Latest financial report of U. S. Bureau of Census).

Iowa has lowest percentage of illiteracy of any state. Has the most telephones in proportion to population.

The percentage of Iowans 18 years old who have finished a four year high school course is twice that of the Nation at large. (Latest Government survey of Education).

Referring again to distribution facilities, no point in Iowa is more than 12 miles from a railroad.

59% of Iowa's people live in towns and cities. The 41% on farms are to be considered as suburban buyers, for they have quick, easy access to their shopping centers.

Iowa has more automobiles on farms than any other state.

The effective way to reach Iowa people—on the farms, in the towns and cities—is through their own daily newspapers.

There is scarcely a family in the state that does not read one of the papers on this list every day. Combined circulation—571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000.

Write for full particulars regarding rates and our help in gaining proper distribution for you.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Keokuk Gate-City
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

"Let George Do It" Is More Than a By-Word on Cincinnati Times-Star —Mrs. Dan Moody, Former Newspaper Woman, Helped Husband in His Political Campaign—A. P. Reporter Gets Exclusive Sports Interview

"LET George do it" is more than a mere by-word on the Cincinnati Times-Star.

GEORGE ALLISTON

When Moses Strauss, managing editor, uses that expression, he is referring to Miss George Alliston, society editor, and also a good all-round reporter who has never failed on an assignment. George, and that is a baptismal and not a pen-name, is still called upon to dig up those stories that others fail to find.

And in addition to being star reporter and society editor rolled into one, Miss Alliston is also a poet. She writes "Every Day Poems," a daily verse feature issued by Associated Newspapers, New York.

"Miss Alliston would even rob a grave yard, if she were asked to do it," is what Herbert Corey, author of "Manhattan Days and Nights," a New York letter, and formerly city editor of the Times-Star once said of Miss Alliston.

That gets a laugh out of George. She hopes she won't be asked, though, because she has other interests. Writing the daily poem, for one thing, and editing the Gypsy, a quarterly magazine of poetry, which she owns, and which, she is glad to say, is self-supporting.

When Miss Alliston was 16 years old she won a gold medal for a poem published by St. Nicholas Magazine. That fired her ambitions. She started out from the Kentucky mountains and came to Cincinnati, where she picked out the Times-Star as her favorite paper.

"The way to get a newspaper job," Miss Alliston advised this week, "is to annoy the managing editor until in desparation he puts you to work."

Miss Alliston did that very thing, and she got the job. For a while they mopped up the editorial floor with her. Then she began to get good assignments.

Six years ago she began turning in verses to be used on the editorial page. They made a hit. The editor wanted more of them. Soon George Alliston's "Everyday Poems," became a regular Times-Star feature. Since then the poems have been collected into three volumes, published by Stewart & Kidd, of Cincinnati. They are "Everyday Poems," 1921; "Changing Moods," 1922 and "Through Many Windows," 1923. Nearly 100 of her poems have been set to music.

Mrs. Dan Moody, formerly Miss Mildred Paxton, society editor of the Abilene (Tex.) Reporter, helped her husband in his recent political campaign in Texas. On July 24, Mr. Moody was given virtually a complete nomination over five opponents for governor of the state, leading Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, the first woman governor, by more than 100,000 votes. Mrs. Ferguson withdrew from the second primary and conceded the nomination to Moody. She also promised to resign in October or November. Moody will be inaugurated next January. Mrs. Moody is a real newspaper woman who loves the work. Her judgment and experience on newspaper matters and publicity were often final criterion on statements and publicity in her husband's campaign. Mr. and Mrs. Moody were married last May 20.

Miss Ethel M. Halsey, the only newspaper woman ever attached to the headquarters staff of the Associated Press, this week obtained an exclusive interview with Glenna Collett, golf champion, which the A. P. copyrighted, and sent out with an editorial note giving Miss Halsey credit for the enterprise.

Etta M. and Annie L. Prescott, president and treasurer respectively of the George W. Prescott Publishing Company, publishers of the Quincy (Mass.) Patriot Ledger, left this week on a tour of the Canadian Rockies.

The first meeting of the fall of the Womens' Advertising Club, Chicago, will be held Tuesday, Sept. 7, at the Congress Hotel.

Jessie Ozias Donohue, society editor of the Chicago Daily News, has resumed work on the paper following an extended trip to Paris where she wrote some special stories for the paper.

Miss Muriel Keiser, daughter of A. A. Keiser, editor of the Quinter (Kan.) Advocate, and associated with her father in the newspaper business, has been made secretary of the Oakley Chamber of Commerce.

"NEWSPAPERS ARE FAIR"

Labor Editor Speaks on Press Ethics in Wilmington, Del.

"The press of our generation always endeavors to be eminently fair, considerate, just and fair-dealing," John C. Saylor, editor of the Wilmington (Del.) Labor Herald, said in an address in newspaper ethics made before the Wilmington Press Club at its bi-monthly meeting, July 22.

Mr. Saylor is a vice-president of the club. Other officers are Norman M. MacLeod, Evening Journal, president; A. N. Andrews, Morning News and William H. Connor, Sunday Star, vice-presidents and Harris Samonisky, Every Evening, secretary-treasurer. The club has 38 members.

The speaker stressed that in the observation of a code of ethics "we must be respectful of the viewpoint of others."

"Our Constitutional rights of free speech are yours and mine to use," he added. "You have the right to your opinion; I have the right to mine. Discussion in the public press about any public question is helpful in clarifying it in the eyes of the public.

"If we are ethical in following our profession we will be fair, we will be generous, we will be forgiving. We will not hound any individual because of a temporary misstep. We will be charitable in our treatment of the unfortunate. But we will do our duty, and doing our duty as we see it is our job."

At the meeting Morris Taylor, editor emeritus of the Every Evening was elected honorary president.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg. LOS ANGELES

CHANGES IN FALL RIVER

New Business and Editorial Executives on the Globe

General reorganization of the business and editorial staffs of the Fall River Globe (Mass.) has been effected. Those now in charge of the paper are:

William J. Sullivan, formerly of the Boston American, is business manager; Calvin S. Chalmers, formerly managing editor of the Concord, (N. H.) Telegram, Manchester Mirror, and Holyoke Telegram, succeeds Thomas A. McDonald as managing editor, and Owen Flanders, recently of the Springfield Republican, succeeds William D. Dwyer as editorial writer. Frank W. Healey becomes city editor. He previously covered city hall where he is succeeded by Joseph Marcotte. Patrick Hurley has assumed the sporting desk succeeding Carl Reynolds, resigned.

RAISE FOR SAN ANTONIO COMPS

Floor men in the unionized composing rooms of the San Antonio papers recently received 12 cents per hour increase in pay. Day floor men were raised from $1 to $1.12 per hour and night floor men, $1.06 to $1.18.

ASKS AID FOR FATHER

Mexican Girl Says Editor's Life Threatened in Military Prison

Silvestre Terrazas, editor of El Correo de Chihuahua, Mexico, was this week reported to be a military prisoner, his life being in danger.

The editor's daughter, Irene Terrazas, appealed to the Press Congress of the World to intercede in behalf of her imperilled father. An investigation was begun, facts in the case being requested of Romeo Ortega, General Procurator of Justice, at Chihuahua, Mexico.

PLAYOGRAPH

Patented June 21, 1910; Oct. 29, 1912; Nov. 5, 1912; July 22, 1913; Sept. 23, 1913; Sept. 1, 1914; Feb. 15, 1916; Aug. 8, 1916; other patents pending. Letters of Patents also issued in the Dominion of Canada. The name PLAYOGRAPH Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

To all PLAYOGRAPH users.

Gentlemen:

This is to advise you that in the recent suit for infringement brought against The Playograph Co. by the Star Ball Player Co., charging that The Playograph Co. infringed their Letters Patent No. 1,071,080 and No. 1,127,498, Judge Bodine has handed down an Opinion in the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey IN OUR FAVOR, and dismissing their Bill on the ground that WE ARE NOT INFRINGING said patents. Copy of Judge Bodine's Opinion is annexed hereto.

Very truly yours,
The Playograph Co.,
Orange, New Jersey.

Filed July 27, 1926.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
DISTRICT OF NEW JERSEY

STAR BALL PLAYER COMPANY, Plaintiff, vs.
THE PLAYOGRAPH COMPANY, Defendant.
In Equity
MEMORANDUM.

Messrs. Granville Meyers and Thomas J. Johnston, for plaintiff.
Messrs. Heine, Bradner & Laird and Milans & Milans for defendant.

BODINE, District Judge:

This is a suit for infringement of Letters Patent No. 1,071,080 and No. 1,127,498 issued to Paul C. Oscanyan. The patents relate to certain improvements in game boards. The claims in suit in the first patent are the second and fourth, as follows:

"2. The combination of a representation of a baseball field, and movable elements representing the runners which relay from base to base.

"4. The combination of a representation of a baseball field and movable elements representing the runners which relay from base to base, and a means for starting and stopping said movable elements."

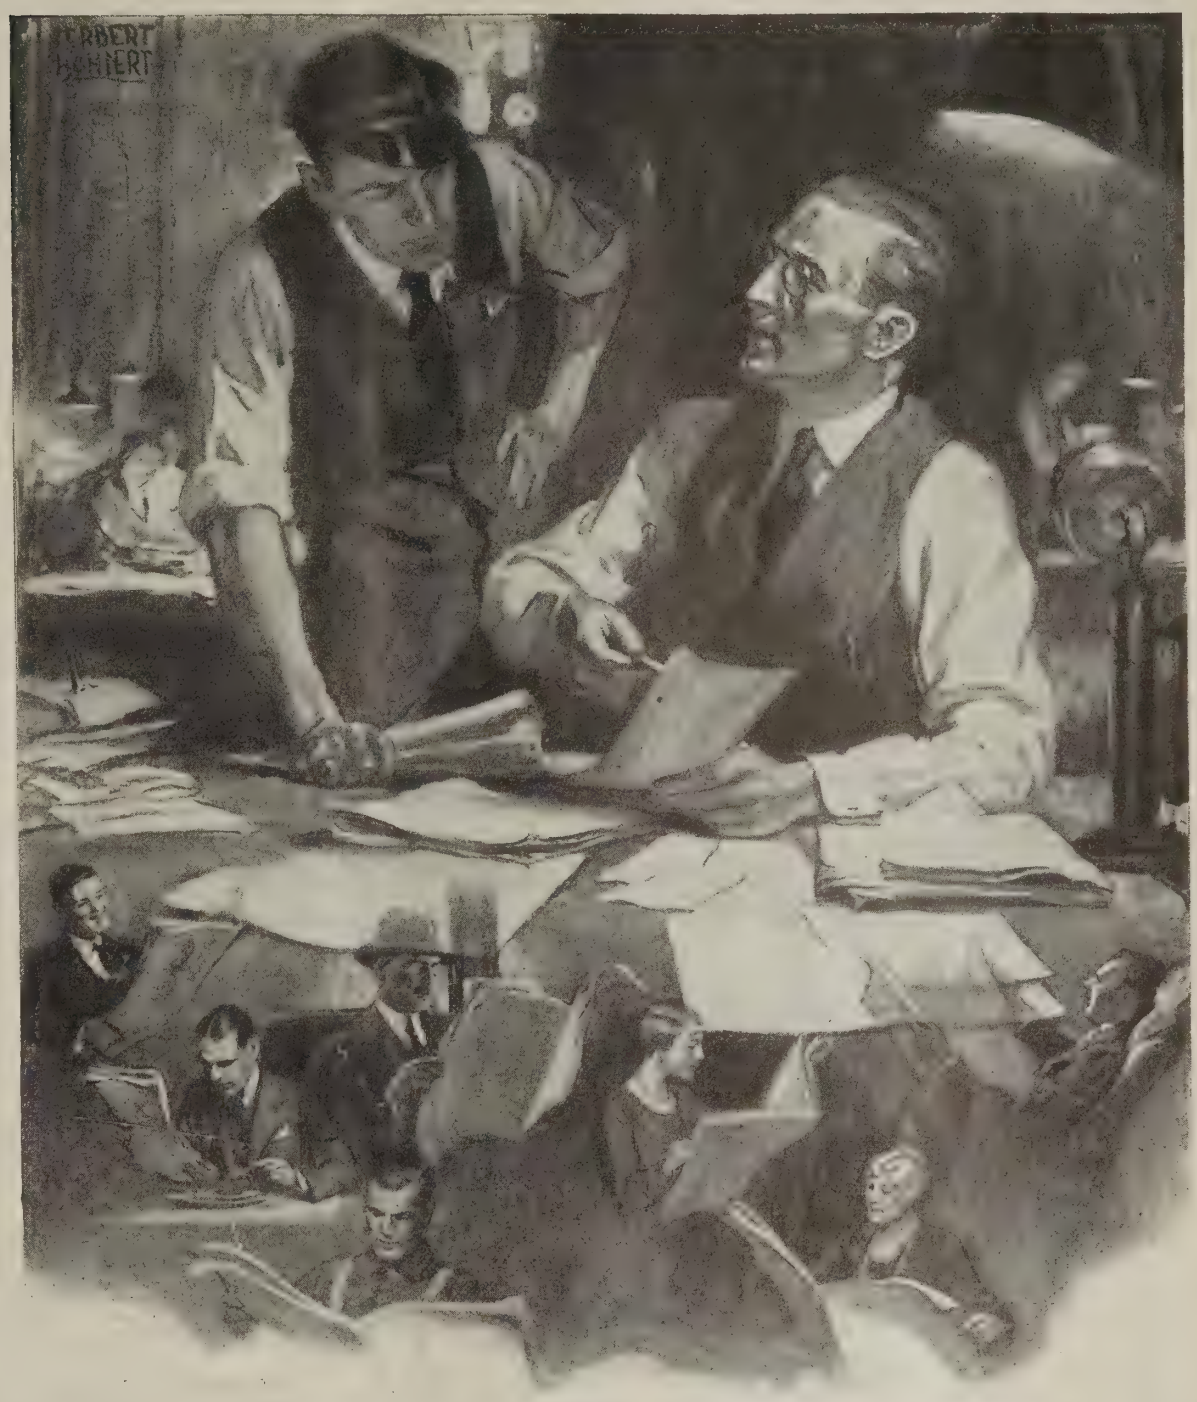
And the claims in suit in the second patent are the thirty-second and thirty-third as follows:

"32. The combination of a reproduction of a baseball field, runner members adapted to move between each two bases, and a bodily relayed member adapted to be picked up by the succeeding runner member.

"33. The combination of a reproduction of a baseball field, mechanically controlled movable runner elements which relay from base to base and a bodily relayed member adapted to be picked up and carried by the next succeeding runner member."

Broadly, the patents relate to improvements in methods of reproducing baseball games and are used by newspapers as part of the means of attracting crowds to watch the progress of baseball games.

The information is telegraphed or telephoned to operators, who manipulate the device as the game progresses. The principal defense is non-infringement, and it seems obvious that this has been well established. The patents are in a very crowded art.



The first patent mentioned has thirty-four claims and the second forty. Of this number but four are chosen as infringed. The gist of the invention in the first patent sued upon is that the movable elements representing the runner are relayed from base to base. In the second patent, the runner members are adapted to relay from base to base while the bodily relayed member is adapted to be picked up and carried by the next succeeding runner member. The defendant does not use this relay method, of the runner members which move between any two bases, but ingeniously and cleverly has simplified its mechanism so that the runner is carried through the circuit of the bases. Discs representative of the player are clipped on the moving device and a sufficient number are used to show the play.

If a runner is struck out the disc is merely unclipped from the moving device.

In the plaintiff's board, there are four separate moving devices, each between two bases and the indicator is relayed from base to base; while in the defendant's board there is only one carrier which continues in its movement around the circuit of the bases and the player indicators are manually applied.

The bill will be dismissed.

What are the SCRIPPS-HOWARD newspapers?

I SEE by the newspapers." . . . The authority for nine-tenths of ıe popular opinion on all current ›pics of interest!

But what newspapers? Are you ›ncerned with the character and the :anding of your newspaper—of that ıedium which furnishes the back-round for those personal opinions by hich you are judged?

Scripps-Howard is the hall-mark of IEWS ACCURACY, sane and con-tructive LIBERALISM, editorial 'OLERANCE and political INDE-'ENDENCE.

* * *

EDITORS of Scripps-Howard news-papers think straight and write traight. Their news columns are full f facts, but free from opinion; their ditorial columns are full of logic, but ree from demagoguery and vituper-a-ion.

* * *

NEITHER Pollyannas nor journal-istic grouches, these newspapers re the focal point of every movement ending to make life more livable for he people of their communities.

These newspapers are good citi-ens of their com-unities. They re always too busy o quarrel with in-ividuals, but never oo busy to engage n a good fight for good cause.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD

This is truly American journalism . . . Scripps-Howard journalism . . . a journal-ism which is well rewarded because its editors make their newspapers not only popular, but—respected!

AND confidence—the greatest reward which readers can bestow—is given in overflowing measure to the twenty-four Scripps-Howard newspapers by more than a million and a half families.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWSPAPERS

MEMBERS AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS

MEMBERS OF THE UNITED PRESS

leveland (Ohio) - - - PRESS	Denver (Colo.) - - - - EXPRESS	Youngstown (Ohio) - - TELEGRAM	Covington (Ky.) - - KENTUCKY POST*
altimore (Md.) - - - - POST	Toledo (Ohio) - - - - NEWS-BEE	Ft. Worth (Texas) - - - PRESS	Albuquerque (N. Mex.) STATE-TRIBUNE ittsburgh (Pa.) - - - - PRESS	Columbus (Ohio) - - - CITIZEN	Oklahoma City (Okla.) - - NEWS	 Kentucky edition of the Cincinnati Post.*
an Francisco (Calif.) - - NEWS	Akron (Ohio) - - - TIMES-PRESS	Evansville (Ind.) - - - PRESS	ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC.
Vashington (D. C.) - - - NEWS	Birmingham (Ala.) - - - POST	Knoxville (Tenn.) - - - NEWS	National Representatives
incinnati (Ohio) - - - - POST	Memphis (Tenn.) - - - - PRESS	El Paso (Texas) - - - - POST	250 Park Avenue, New York, N. Y.
ndianapolis (Ind.) - - - TIMES	Houston (Texas) - - - - PRESS	San Diego (Calif.) - - - SUN	Chicago Seattle Cleveland
		Terre Haute (Ind.) - - - POST	San Francisco Detroit Los Angeles

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

David R. Erwin Named Assistant Advertising Director of Cadillac Motor Car Company—Sales Promotion Department of Pacific Mills to Move to New York—A. N. A. Picks Convention City

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by William W. Lewis of the appointment of David R. Erwin as assistant director of advertising of Cadillac Motor Car Company. Mr. Lewis has recently been advanced from advertising manager to assistant general sales manager and director of advertising.

D. R. Erwin

Mr. Erwin joined the Cadillac advertising department in November of last year. For the past fourteen years, with the exception of a period in the United States Army, he has held various editorial and sales positions in newspaper, magazine and advertising work, including advertising manager of the Everett (Wash.) Tribune. For four years before coming to Detroit he was automobile editor of the Seattle Times and for the first two years in Detroit was in charge of the extension division of the Burroughs Adding Machine Company's advertising department.

Sales promotion and advertising departments of the Pacific Mills will be removed from Boston to New York, where they will be located at 24 Thomas street. Cowan, Dempsey & Dengler, Inc., advertising and merchandising counsel, have been retained in an advisory capacity and will handle the account after January 1, 1927. The Franklin P. Shumway Company will remain in charge until then. The latter agency will continue to handle the account of Lawrence & Co., selling agents for Pacific Mills and members of the Shumway organization who have been engaged exclusively in Pacific Mills sales promotion work in the field will be added to the company's sales promotion department January 1.

Robert K. Leavitt, secretary of the Association of National Advertisers, this week announced that Atlantic City had been picked as the city where its next annual convention will be held, Nov. 8-10. Delegates will make the Ambassador Hotel their headquarters.

Clarence E. Anderson, for several years promotion sales manager for the New England department of the Sherwin Williams Paint Company, Boston, has just been made director of advertising and sales for Hunting & Fishing and National Sportsmen, affiliated magazines published in Boston.

The Purecold Products of America, Inc., has been organized to manufacture iceless refrigeration devices, which it is expected will be built and marketed on a mass production basis under the name "Purecold." Thomas A. Scott, formerly president of the Merritt, Chapman & Scott Corporation, is president of the company; G. T. Rogers, vice-president; Matthews Brown, treasurer and secretary. Among the directors are A. W. Bowie and Charles B. Reed.

The corporation has a total authorized issue of 250,000 shares, out of which it expects to offer in the near future 75,000 shares. Of the total authorized issue 33,615 shares are to be held in reserve.

The net income for the first half of the year of the General Cigar Company, Inc., showed a slight falling off from the figures of the first half of 1925. Net income for the first six months was $912,034 after charges and Federal taxes, equivalent after preferred and debenture dividends to $1.81 a share earned on 362,556 shares of no par common. In the first half of last year it was $1,007,565, or $2.07 a share on the same basis. Total assets were $28,908,333, of which cash is $1,869,980. This shows a reaction from the $42,557,094 total assets a year ago, when balance was $2,704,440.

ICE MEN FIGHT BACK

Philadelphians Use Newspapers to Combat Machine Refrigeration

Ice manufacturers and dealers of Philadelphia and vicinity have organized the Ice Publicity Association of Philadelphia & Vic., Inc., to wage a campaign against electric and mechanical refrigeration. The campaign is carried on through the newspaper advertising columns, in a series of articles entitled, "Cold Facts."

The continued use of ice and the various advantages to be derived from the usage over the installation of mechanical refrigerators are stressed.

"A block of ice cannot get out of order" concludes every one of the series of advertisements.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

P. S. Tyler Now with Street & Finney as Vice-President—Creditors of Redfield, Fisher & Wallace to Meet in New York, Aug. 13—Doughton Founds New Agency in Chattanooga

P. S. TYLER is now associated with Street & Finney as vice-president and account executive. Mr. Tyler was for ten years president of the Botsford, Constantine & Tyler Company, advertising agents in Portland, Ore. Later he was territorial sales manager for the Borden Milk Company in the middle west.

Meeting of creditors of the bankrupt advertising agency of Redfield, Fisher & Wallace, Inc., New York, will be held Aug. 13 in the office of Harold P. Coffin, 217 Broadway, referee in bankruptcy.

Stephen Doughton, formerly with the George L. Dyer Company, New York, has established a new advertising agency in Chattanooga.

A Massachusetts charter was granted the Telegram Advertising Bureau of Boston, Inc., last week, to conduct an advertising business, with a capital of $75,000. The incorporators are Eleanor M. Enwright, of Lynn, daughter of Frederick W. Enwright, publisher of the Boston Telegram and Lynn Telegram-News; Helen C. Greene, of Lynn, and Effie A. Evans, of Boston.

The advertising agency of Logan & Stebbins, Los Angeles, Cal., has removed to suite 909 Western Pacific Building, that city.

Frederick Schafer, operating the Schafer Advertising Agency, Rockford, Ill., has filed petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities reported to exceed $40,000. Action of the Commercial Engraving Company, Sheboygan, Wis., to recover on a $6,000 account is said to have forced the crisis.

Herbert F. Price, head of the Price Advertising Agency of Quincy, Mass., and Mrs. Price, are on a 1,500-mile automobile trip to Richmond, Va., where they formerly resided.

Hugh M. Smith, formerly of Hewitt, Gannon & Co., and J. W. Gannon & Co., and more recently general manager of the Atia Corporation, New York City, has become associated with Frank Kiernan & Co., advertising agency, New York.

The Condon Company, Inc., an advertising agency, has been formed in Tacoma, Wash., by John Condon, who has withdrawn from the Condon-Milne-Gibson, Inc., organization. Howard Ryan has joined the latter firm which has been renamed Milne-Ryan-Gibson, Inc.

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—a Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

FLORIDA

continues to be the fastest growing state in the Union.

TAMPA

is the recognized industrial center and the most substantial city in Florida.

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE

is the only morning and the only Sunday newspaper in Tampa, covering the entire rich, productive and populous territory of Southwest Florida, reaching a population of 713,943.

200,000 Daily Readers.
300,000 Sunday Readers.

Represented nationally by
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency.

MICHIGAN

is growing faster than any State in the Union.

Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.

BOOTH NEWSPAPERS

cover Michigan outside of Detroit—Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News

National Advertising Representatives

I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

DR. S. PARKES CADMAN'S

Every Day Questions

appear daily in these newspapers

Akron, Ohio, Beacon Journal
Allentown, Pa., Chronicle News
Atlantic City, N. J., Times
Birmingham, Ala., Age Herald
Boston, Mass., Herald
Bridgeport, Conn., Post Telegram
Buenos Aires, S. A., La Nacion
Buffalo, N. Y., News
Burlington, Ia., Hawk-Eye
Canton, Ohio, News
Charleston, S. C., News & Courier
Chicago, Ill., Journal
Cincinnati, Ohio, Post
Dallas, Tex., News
Dayton, Ohio, Journal
Detroit, Mich., News
Duluth, Minn., News Tribune
Easton, Pa., Express
Elmira, N. Y., Star Gazette
Erie, Pa., Times
Evansville, Ind., Courier
Fort Wayne, Ind., News Sentinel
Geneva, N. Y., Daily Times
Halifax, N. S., Herald
Harrisburg, Pa., Telegraph
Hartford, Conn., Courant
Hopkinsville, Ky., New Era
Houston, Tex., Post Dispatch
Indianapolis, Ind., News
Jamestown, N. Y., Journal
Knoxville, Tenn., Journal
Lexington, Ky., Leader
Little Rock, Ark., Gazette
Louisville, Ky., Courier Journal
Middletown, N. Y., Times Press
Minneapolis, Minn., Star
Nashville, Tenn., Banner
New York Herald Tribune
Ogdensburg, N. Y., Republican Journal
Oklahoma City, Okla., Oklahoman
Olean, N. Y., Times
Omaha, Nebr., News
Paris, France, Herald
Pawtucket, R. I., Times
Pittsburgh, Pa., Press
Pittston, Pa., Daily Gazette
Pottsville, Pa., Journal
Raleigh, N. C., News & Observer
Reading, Pa., Times
Richmond, Va., Times Dispatch
Roanoke, Va., Times
Rochester, N. Y., Times Union
Rome, N. Y., Sentinel
South Bend, Ind., Tribune
Springfield, Ohio, News
Trenton, N. J., State Gazette
Utica, N. Y., Observer Dispatch
Washington, D. C., Star
Waterbury, Conn., Republican
Watertown, N. Y., Standard
Westerly, R. I., Sun
Williamsport, Pa., Sun
Winnipeg, Manitoba, Free Press
Winston Salem, N. C., Journal
York, Pa., Dispatch
Youngstown, Ohio, Vindicator

Without solicitation several editors have pronounced Dr. Cadman's daily column the strongest feature ever printed in their newspapers. Others have attested its powerful subscription-finding qualities.

NEW YORK
Herald Tribune Syndicate

A·B·C·Week
Chicago
Oct. 18 to 23

The 13th Convention
of the

A·B·C·

(AUDIT BUREAU OF CIRCULATIONS)

will be held at the Hotel La Salle

Chicago

October 21st & 22nd

NINETEEN · TWENTY · SIX

Divisional Meetings – Oct. 21st
Annual Meeting – Oct. 22nd

The Annual Dinner

will be held on the night of October 22nd at the

Hotel La Salle

Make Reservations Early

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Edith O'Dell Returns to Syndicate Field at Head of Own Service—
Mrs. Herbert Hoover to Write for Herald Tribune Syndicate—
D. P. to Offer Joseph Conrad Letters

EDITH O'DELL, formerly editor-in-chief and vice-president of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, has returned to the syndicate field, at the head of her own company, the O'Dell Newspaper Service, after a vacation of six months following her resignation from McClure the first of this year.

EDITH O'DELL

Her offices are at 55 Fifth avenue, New York, headquarters of the Review of Reviews. Miss O'Dell will have use of the magazine's mechanical facilities for preparing copy and putting features into the mail, but she is under no obligation to the concern, she informed EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

Miss O'Dell is now making a careful study of the type of service newspapers desire and will not announce her first features until next month. Later in the fall she plans to organize a sales staff to handle her offerings on the road. She intends to deal in daily and Sunday text features and comic strips.

The daughter of an English novelist, Stackpool E. O'Dell, Miss O'Dell came to this country about 20 years ago. Her first job in New York was typing manuscripts for Poultney Biglow. Later she became editor of Literary Life, a magazine issued by the now defunct Abbey Press of New York. Leaving this work, she entered the book business, remaining in it for two or three years. Then she joined the staff of Current Opinion, with which she was associated for about three years, before joining the staff of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate. She was connected with McClure for 12 years before her resignation.

Associated with Miss O'Dell in her new enterprise is Mary T. Bristor, formerly of the Conde Nast Newspaper Service, and before that for five years with McClure. Miss Bristor resigned from Conde Nast to join Miss O'Dell in her new enterprise.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover has agreed to write features for the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, under the heading of "Letters of a Cabinet Minister's Wife." The new feature is scheduled to begin the last of this month or the first of September. Mrs. Hoover was induced to write for syndication by Mrs. William Brown Meloney, recently placed in charge of the Herald Tribune's Sunday magazine section. Mrs. Meloney has advanced many syndicate ideas since her appointment and every feature inspired by her will be sent out for editorial consideration slugged "A Mrs. William Brown Meloney Idea."

The D. P. Syndicate has just received from London the text of Joseph Conrad's letters, which will be syndicated in September and October, prior to their publication in book form on Nov. 1.

C. H. Wellington, creator of "Pa's Son-in-Law," is in New York on his yearly visit from his home in Los Angeles, Cal.

Jesse S. Butcher of the D. P. Syndicate returned from a trip to London and Paris on the Steamship Olympic last week. John Van Bibber of the D. P. organization is on his way home aboard the Roosevelt, after visits to France and Holland.

Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney have been cornered by King Features Syndicate, New York, to write their own signed stories on training and the final big heavyweight championship bout. Stories will be issued from both camps twice-a-week under the fighters names until Aug. 30, after which daily wire dispatches will be sent to newspapers taking the service. The feature will end the day after the battle when winner and loser will issue signed statements through King Features.

A. A. Preciado, of the Thompson Feature Service, New York, has returned from a six weeks' trip to the Coast. He spent several days in Hollywood arranging for a number of movie features that will be released through the Thompson people. While in the Northwest he visited the plants of the Scripps papers in Portland, Tacoma, Seattle and Spokane in which cities he spent most of his active newspaper career.

John H. Millar, president of the Associated Editors Syndicate, Chicago, accompanied by his wife and two children, is spending two months at Gloucester, Massachusetts.

WANTS HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS

They Make Best Copy Writers, Mail Order House Finds

High school pupils make excellent advertising copy writers, it has been found by officials of the Chicago office of Montgomery Ward & Co.

Principals of the Chicago schools have been requested by the mail order house officers to select their ambitious and most promising boys and girls and, upon their graduation, send them to the big mail order house for practical training in the many branches of that concern's advertising department.

Newspaper, catalog and pamphlet copy is easy for the students to learn to write, it is said. An experiment has shown rare talent among high school pupils.

"We start the boys and girls at the bottom," explained E. L. McCarthy of Montgomery Ward & Co., "because their minds are unspoiled by preconceived opinions about advertising. Today we are developing some of the ablest members of our advertising department through this system.

"The daily newspapers doubtless have played a part in helping to interest high school students in advertising. By using space themselves to tell the story of what advertising can do to build a business and make it a success, they have impressed on the Chicago high school graduate the dignity of advertising as a profession and its value and profit as a career."

LORD BEAVERBROOK HERE

British Publisher Says Tabloids Fail to Cut Standard-Size Circulation

Standard-size newspapers are holding their own against tabloid picture paper competition in England, Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of the London Daily Express, told interviewers on his arrival in New York from England this week.

Lord Beaverbrook has chartered the yacht Miramichi, formerly the Ohio, the property of the late Edward W. Scripps, newspaper publisher, and has started a cruise in Canadian waters with his two sons, Max and Arthur Aitken.

There is no anti-American sentiment in England over the debt settlement, he said, although many opinions blame politicians for making a precipitate settlement without taking other countries into consideration.

REXDALE NAMED EDITOR

Robert Rexdale, former telegraph editor of the Davenport (Ia.) Times and for several years associated with tri-city newspapers, has been named editor of the Geneseo (Ill.) Republic. He succeeds the late J. Frank Lieberknecht.

BUSINESS EDITORS ELECT

Robert J. Patterson, of the American Hatter, has been elected chairman of the New York Conference of Business Paper Editors. Sidney Kirkpatrick, of Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering, was named secretary-treasurer.

OHIO DAILY JOINS A. B. C.

The Mansfield (O.) Journal has been accepted for membership in the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

WE'RE ALWAYS BUSY—WHY?

AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS

Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right

Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN

We would like to know more of your circulation building methods and charges Without obligation to us, you may submit details terms etc

Our last Campaign was run_____

Name of paper_____ City_____

By_____ Title_____ State_____

Should we use a Campaign we would want it to start about_____

Eighteen consecutive successful years of "Knowing How." Wire or write for details, references, etc.,

W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

The difference between good roast beef medium and a good classified medium is that one of them is rare.

THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc.
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building, Philadelphia

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

Distinguishing Designs

Sun Tattoos Back

SOUVENIR of her week-end a the seashore. This fancy tattoo like design on the dainty shoulder and back of Miss Eleanor Cody Philadelphia, is the result of su bath with lace scarf thrown ove her.

Courtesy of N. Y. Graphic Syndicate

This tattoo may be the result of accident or design—our friends of the Graphic do not disclose which.

Rather an unusual design, in either event, and an appropriate news picture.

Appropriateness, however, is not the only reason for the popularity of the New York Graphic syndicate service. They know that their service must include the best reproduction medium as well as the best features at their command.

No wonder, then, that they are using Certified Dry Mats—they have found that that is the only way they can assure their clientele of certified reproductions.

And apropos of distinguishing designs, each Certified Dry Mat bears this mark:

TRADE MADE IN CERTIFIED DRY MATS THE U.S.A. MARK

It is put there for your protection as well as ours—look for it; insist upon it, and you'll know what certified stereotyping results really mean.

Won't you let us tell you how Certifieds can serve you, too? There's no obligation for asking for the facts.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue, New York

For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds

Made in the U. S. A.

Markets Are People

To know markets you must visualize the men and women who comprise them

—how many people in the city where you are planning to merchandise your product?
—what is their extraction?
—how many banks, schools, theatres and churches do they support? and how liberally?
—how strong are their banks? deposits? resources? clearings? number of accounts?
—how many automobiles do they own?
—what kind of homes do they live in?
—where do they shop? what kind of stores do they patronize? how many of each? how much business do they all do in a year?
—any jobbers? how many? what do they job?
—how big is the trading area? from what nearby towns do they come to do their shopping?
—how many homes are wired? what kind of current do they use?
—is the water hard or soft? trolley cars? gas? how many meters?
—on what railroads are they located? how long does it take them to get to the nearest large city?
—from what industries do they earn their living? How many manufacturing establishments, and what do they make?
—how many doctors? what kind? dentists?
—what is the average temperature? the pleasantest months?
—how many of them read English? number of families? number of school children? what percentage are industrial workers?

WHEN YOU KNOW THESE FACTS AND FIGURES YOU CAN MAKE A PRETTY GOOD GUESS AS TO THE BUYING HABITS OF THESE PEOPLE AND ARE READY TO DETERMINE WHERE AND WHEN YOU CAN ADVERTISE TO THE BEST ADVANTAGE.

These are just the facts and figures—and many more, besides—concerning the trading conditions in the 1300 American Cities where daily newspapers are published which you find in

Editor & Publisher's

MARKET GUIDE

It is the steady standby of the great majority of the leading Agencies and National Advertisers in investigating their markets, planning their publicity and buying their space. "Worth its weight in gold," says one advertising manager. "A bible to the advertising fraternity," exclaims an Agency executive. "Absolutely priceless," voices another. "As complete as it can be made." "You can't improve it—let it alone."

EQUALLY VALUABLE is the Market Guide to the foresighted daily newspaper publisher who uses space in it to increase his advertising linage. For is it not the most logical thing in the world for an advertiser to want to know about media, at the same time and from the same book in which he is learning about the people who make up the readers of daily newspapers? Let us tell you about it—no obligations.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER, 1700 Times Building, New York

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Wedding Bells and Stork Visits Call Forth Form Letters from Vancouver Sun—Toledo Blade Conducting Observation Contest—Carrier Contests Under Way by Brooklyn Times

WEDDING bells and visits of the stork call forth form letters signed by the "service clerk" of the Vancouver Evening Sun.

To the Bride the daily writes:

"Dear Friend:

"We take pleasure in sending you a copy of the Evening Sun, which contains the announcement of your wedding.

"At the same time we wish to congratulate you and wish you happiness, health and prosperity in the years to come.

"The editor also wishes me to extend to you and your life partner a cordial invitation to make use of the various community services conducted by the Evening Sun, such as Dr. McCoy's questions and answers; Edith Adams' cookery page and the various other departments so well known to this community which we are serving, as the only evening newspaper owned, operated and controlled by Vancouver men.

"Yours very truly,
"The Evening Sun,
"SERVICE CLERK."

"P. S.—If our carrier boy has neglected to call upon you, or for any other reason you have not had an opportunity to become a subscriber to the Evening Sun, if you will call Seymour 40, the paper will start tomorrow. The budget will suffer but 50c. a month and Edith Adams' cookery page, on Friday, alone you will find well worth many times the cost of the whole subscription. Phone me personally and I will see that you are given the very best of service."

And this letter goes out to the mother: "Dear Madam:

"A new inspiration and a bundle of joy has come into your household to add countless hours of happiness and pleasure.

"Of course, as with everything worth while, there will be times when the baby will require constant and careful attention. Sometimes the problems may be even more than you can solve yourself, then you will appreciate the advice of a competent person.

"As another service to this community, the Evening Sun has arranged for the service of Myrtle Meyer Eldrid, a famous baby specialist, who conducts, daily, a column known as 'Your Baby and Mine,' which will take up questions and general care of babies. In addition to that, she will answer your personal questions and problems for you through the columns of the Sun and by personal letter.

"This service is for you, and we take this opportunity, while your baby is young, to offer you this free reader service that thousands of other Sun readers are enjoying.

"If there is any question you would like answered, do not hesitate to send it along. Myrtle Eldrid will be very glad to answer it for you.

"Again wishing you and yours many years of happiness, we are,

"Yours truly,
"The Evening Sun,
"SERVICE CLERK."

"P. S.—If you are not already a subscriber to the Sun, you may become one by simply having someone phone Seymour 40, when a bright boy will begin delivery. The cost is trifling, but 50c. a month—less than 2c. a day. This 'Baby' service is well worth many times the subscription price."

"Let Your Eyes Bring Dollars to You Soon," is the way the Toledo Blade heads promotion copy for an "Observation Contest" now being conducted and scheduled to close Aug. 18.

"How observant do you really think you are?" the daily asked its readers introducing the stunt. "Do you know the familiar sites around town? Or do you in your hurry from one place to another, transacting business, fail to note those charactertistics which distinguish one thing from another?"

The contest, designed to test the "keenness of eye" and the "alertness of mind" of Blade readers, offers prizes of $15, $10, $5, and five of $1. Buildings are described in a few words for readers to guess the names.

Rules require that answers be sent in when the contest is ended. A 50-word footnote, telling the importance of the building, must accompany every answer.

The newspaper described the first building of 12 in the contest as follows:

"It has 11 large white lions' heads on one side of it; five on another side; and one on the third side; totalling seventeen. The building is located in the downtown section."

What is claimed to be the largest outdoor sign in Chicago will advertise the new "Kno-Who" contest of the Chicago Evening American to 100,000 daily passers-by. Fifty thousand dollars in prizes will be awarded in the contest.

The letters on the sign are seven, ten and twelve feet high and the bottom of the sign is twenty feet from the ground. The sign is painted on the south wall of a five-story building at Washington and Canal streets, and is seen by those entering or leaving the Chicago and Northwestern railroad station.

The sign extends nearly the entire length of the building.

The Brooklyn Times, of which E. S. Dobson is circulation manager, is now running a carrier's contest through which 36 carriers and three branch managers will be taken on a three-day trip to the Susquicentennial Exposition during the first week of September. Other prizes, such as bicycles, tool chests, wrist watches, coaster wagons and cameras as well as cash commissions to the total of $5,000 or more will be distributed among boys who are unsuccessful in winning the trips.

"We recently ran a similar contest through which 60 boys and six branch managers were taken on a three-day trip to Washington," Mr. Dobson said. "At that time, other prizes and commissions to the value of $7,500 were paid directly to the boys.

"Each of these contests were run for a five weeks' period. The Washington Tours Contest was very successful, and from the way the orders are coming in, we expect the Sesquicentennial Contest will give as good results."

The Chicago Herald and Examiner is offering an album of pictures of the recent International Eucharistic Congress held in Chicago as a subscription inducement. The album contains photographs of the Congress made by staff photographers and already reproduced in the paper. One is given free with a three months' subscription to the paper.

All Dallas circulation records were smashed by the Dallas News on July 25, Sunday, following the Texas primary election on Saturday, the News claiming that 120,108 copies, upon bona fide orders, left the presses—an increase of nearly 20 per cent over the paper's average Sunday circulation.

W. S. Moffett recently resigned as city circulator of the San Antonio Light, returning to a farm which he owns near Fort Worth.

L. H. Rose, circulation manager of the Chicago Tribune, will return home in about a week from a trip abroad.

The Provo (Utah) Herald recently celebrated a record circulation gain at a chicken dinner given members of the staff by the management. The Herald reached a paid circulation of 4,000 on July 7, a gain of nearly 100 per cent in less than two years. New carrier routes have been established in three nearby communities. The paper telegraphed news of its circulation gain to the leading advertising agencies.

The Cincinnati (O.) Times-Star's handicap-run will be held at a local race track on Aug. 7.

Final games in an open "jack tournament" for girls for medals offered by the New York World will begin Aug. 9.

L. T. Ward, for the past year with The Butterick Publishing Company in charge of the Columbus (Ohio) group of offices in the reading club divis is now in charge of the circulation partment of the Lima (Ohio) Mor Star and Republican Gazette. Prev to this he had been with the Des Mo Capital and Canton (Ohio) News.

The Indianapolis Star is runnin daily series of articles by Lionel D. E director of the bureau of business search of the Indiana university sc of commerce and finance, dealing the financial and business resources Indiana cities. One city is made subject of each day's article.

The Raleigh (N. C.) News and servor has begun the dispatch of pa for Williamston, Windsor, Pantego, haven and Roper via special truck s ice direct to Washington, N. C., w connection is made with private bus li enabling rural subscribers to receive t papers on the day of publication.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER covers the

Our Customers Write Our Ads

The New York City, N. Y., New World Says—

"We get six times as much printing done on our Duplex Flat Bed for only 20% increase in cost of press work. The Duplex will pay for itself in less than a year out of savings."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

THE TELEGRAM

now has the largest paid circulation in

CLARKSBURG, W. VA.

13,000 daily
14,000 Sunday

guaranteed.

Member Audit Bureau of Circulations

Represented Nationally by
The Devine-MacQuoid Co., Inc.
New York Philadelphia Pittsburg Chicago

1st For Over 73 Years in ALBANY. N.Y.

IN ADVERTISING
(Local and National)
AND CIRCULATION

CIRCULATION WELL OVER 40,000

The Times-Union

ALBANY'S LEADING NEWSPAPER
By Every Possible Logical Comparison
VERREE & CONKLIN
Representatives
New York Chicago Detroit San Francisco

FIRST IN PRESTIGE
SINCE 1869

LA PRENSA
OF BUENOS AIRES

has enjoyed the confidence of the people of Argentina, because of its absolute independence, freedom from partisanship and unquestioned integrity.

For Information and rates apply to

JOSHUA B. POWERS
Exclusive Advertising Representative,
250 Park Avenue New Yor
"South America's Greatest Newspaper"

creating
Impression

nearly half the 2013 national advertisers using the Cleveland Plain Dealer in 1925 used it exclusively.

The Plain Deale
ONE Medium—ONE Cost (ALONE) Will s

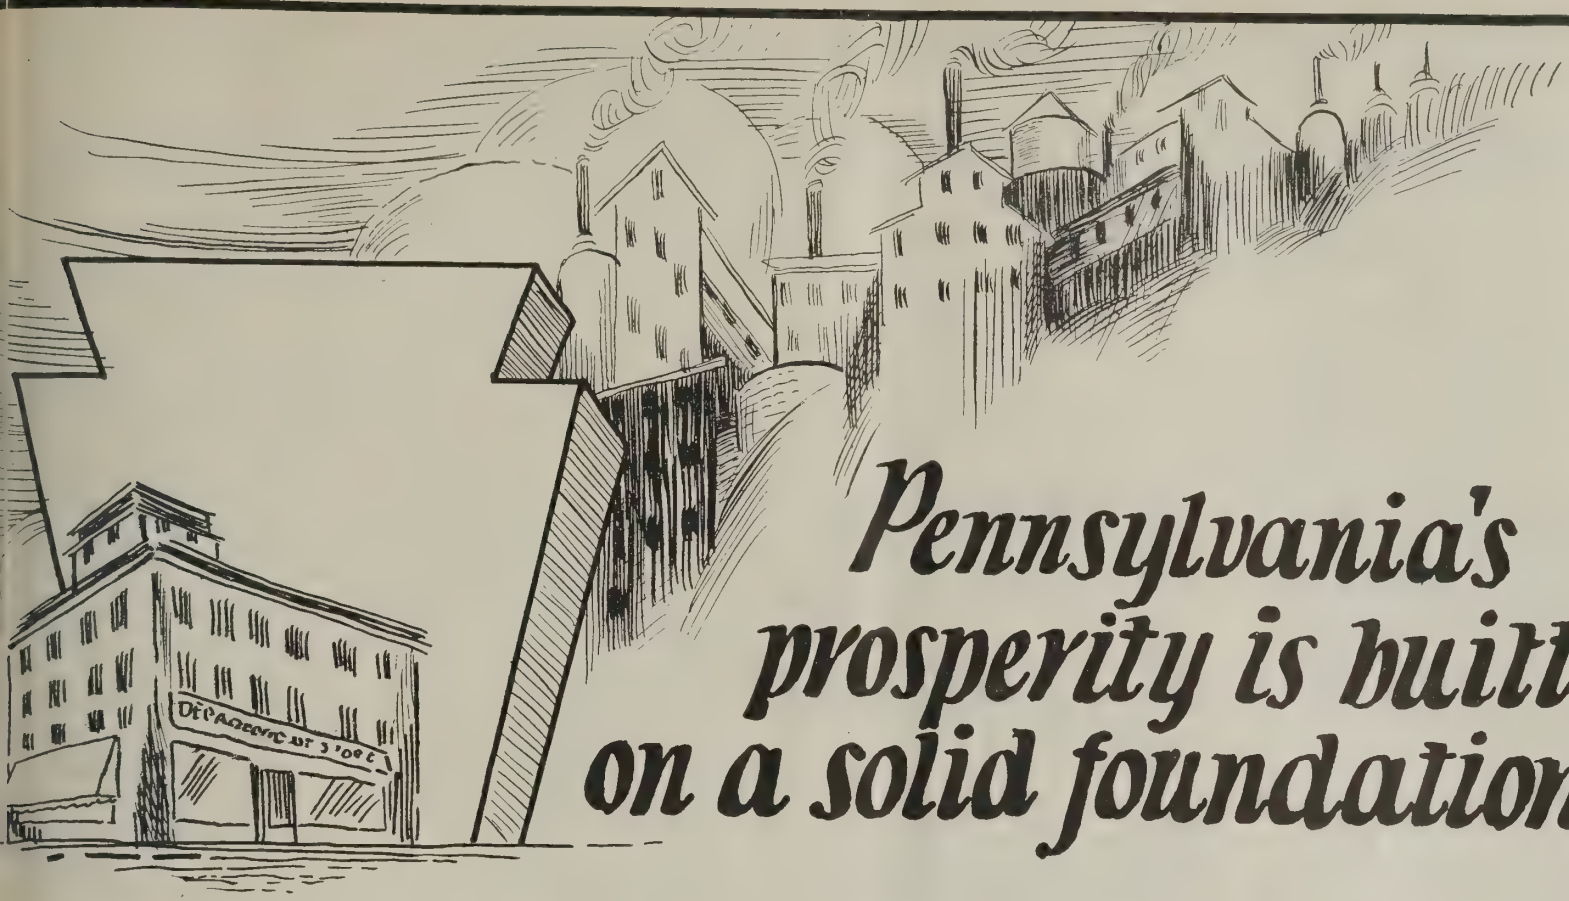
J. B. Woodward
110 E. 42d St.
New York



Woodward & K
360 N. Mich. A
Chicago

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN

The Personnel Bureau Sigma Delta Chi, an organiz tion of college trained newspape magazine and advertising me wants to help you find hi The Bureau puts you in touc with experienced, energetic me —it saves you time by recon mending only those who me your requirements.

If you expect a vacancy, plea write Robert B. Tarr, Directo Personnel Bureau of Sigma Del Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontia Michigan.

NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

Pennsylvania's prosperity is buitt on a solid foundation

As solid as the rock of Gibraltar is the prosperity of the great commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Business, stable and sound, resulting from diversified industry, which gives thousands of workers all year employment should be attractive to every national advertiser.

The wage earners of Pennsylvania live in pretty villages and towns, in modern up-to-date homes. Automobile registration is exceptionally large. And above all they have the money to spend.

You can reach them through the papers below, who are ready to give you assistance in distribution and merchandising.

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Allentown Call .....(M)	31,400	.10	.10
Allentown Call .....(S)	22,349	.10	.10
††Beaver Falls Tribune.....(E)	6,553	.03	.03
††Bethlehem Globe Times.....(E)	13,272	.06	.06
††Bloomsburg Press .....(M)	7,673	.04	.04
Chester Times .....(E)	18,295	.06	.06
††Coatesville Record .....(E)	6,783	.035	.03
Connellsville Courier .....(E)	5,928	.02	.02
Easton Express .....(E)	25,473	.08	.08
Erie Times .....(E)	28,596	.08	.08
††Greensburg Tribune Review...(EM)	14,883	.05	.05
††Hazleton Plain Speaker.....(E) ††Hazleton Standard-Sentinel..(M)	19,852	.07	.06
Mount Carmel Item .....(E)	4,307	.0285	.0285
Oil City Derrick .....(M)	8,588	.04	.04
Pottsville Republican and Morning Paper .....(EM)	15,346	.08	.07
Scranton Times .....(E)	43,230	.13	.12
Sharon Herald .....(E)	7,236	.0357	.0357
Sunbury Daily Item .....(E)	5,224	.03	.03
Washington Observer and Reporter .....(M&E)	17,589	.06	.06
††West Chester Local News .....(E)	11,860	.04	.04
Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader ....(E)	26,204	.06	.06
††Williamsport Sun and Gazette & Bulletin.....(ME)	28,000	.09	.09
††York Dispatch .....(E)	19,632	.05	.05

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

FOUR YEARS' NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING MADE L. I. DUCKLING MARKET

Annual Sales, Negligible in 1921, Now Top $5,200,000, with Advertising Investment of Less Than 2 Percent —How Advertising Stabilized Industry

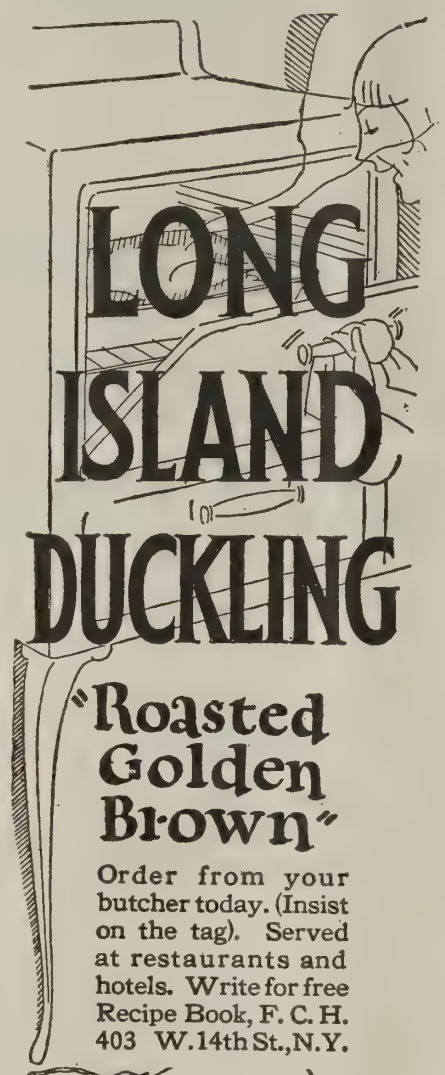
By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

A BUSINESS man dining in a fashionable New York hotel ordered roast duck. When it was brought to him, he demanded to see the round tag which would prove it was Long Island duckling as advertised in the New York newspapers. When the waiter brought in the tag, he ate his meal with gusto.

Insistence on the part of the public for a definite brand of duck in hotels and at dealers has been developed within five years through a remarkably successful campaign of non-stop newspaper advertising which has lessons for any co-operative group or, in fact, anybody with a product to market.

On Dec. 8, 1921, 27 Long Island duck growers at a meeting passed resolutions, to the effect that a campaign of joint advertising might do much to increase the metropolitan home market for their product. B. A. Ahrens, then a professor in the Farmingdale (L. I.) State Institute of Applied Agriculture and now an officer of the Peck Advertising Agency, New York, helped organize this group of producers of which he has been secretary and director of advertising from the start. Under his direction, the advertising expenditure has grown from $15,000 to $90,000 a year and the consumption of the branded ducks is now 3,500,000 a year.

These ducks by breed are "Pekin" or "White Pekin," the first pair of which was brought to America by a Boston skipper in 1872. In 1880, a Long Island farmer bought a number, bred them and lay the foundation for the present large industry there.



The south and north shores of Long Island, with many inlets and sandy shores (which provide natural drainage), have furnished an excellent location for duck raising. The adjacence to New York City as a market has been a factor also.

From 500 to 3,000 laying or breeding ducks are kept by each grower. Hatching during spring and summer is done in huge, coal-burning hot water incubators, many of which incubate 15,000 to 60,000 eggs at one time. At the end of 28 days the ducks break their shells.

The ration given the duckling destined to go to market is changed from time to time until it weighs five to 6½ pounds, when it is shipped to the Farmers' Commission House, packed in barrels, or sent to the Live Duck Bureau at West Washington Market, New York (for the Kosher trade which demands live ducks). Both the House and the Bureau are owned by the growers.

The Farmers' Commission House was organized in 1915. It functions much as any commission house. It studies market conditions, supply and demand, prices of other poultry, time of year, etc., with the result it usually establishes a fair wholesale price. If there is a glut, the Commission House has facilities to hold ducks in the "freezer." The letters, "F. C. H.," appearing in the advertising, mean Farmers' Commission House. Each week the management deducts an inconsequential amount per duckling from the check to the farmer and the pennies added to many others week by week are turned into the advertising fund which depends entirely on actual sales for its continuance and growth.

All the members, comprising about 90 per cent of the Long Island duck raisers, sign legal contracts, under which they are to ship all ducklings to their own house and permit the advertising assessment. One or two who thought contracts mere scraps of paper learned differently when they faced court action for violation of their agreements. The association cooperates in buying as well as selling and in interchange of methods and experiences.

Every day some newspaper carries this or a similar piece of copy.

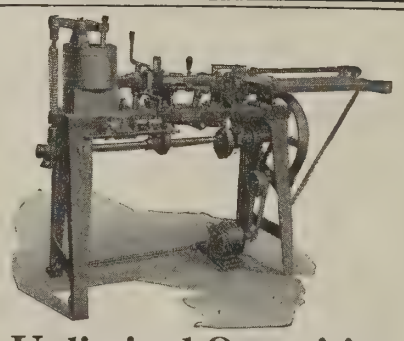
The advertising was begun in a modest way in 1922 in the New York newspapers, featuring the name, the tag which each duckling has, how to prepare, etc. It was felt that the newspapers reach everybody economically and directly. The policy was adopted of using small, steady copy which would keep everlastingly at telling the story. Gradually, thousands of families have been induced to want and ask for a brand of duckling instead of "just duck." They also have been taught to eat duck oftener, preferably at least once a week.

This year the campaign in New York appears in the Journal, Evening World, Telegram, Brooklyn Daily Eagle, Brooklyn Standard-Union, Jewish Daily News, Daily Mirror, Brooklyn Sunday Star, New York Daily News, Herald-Tribune, Times, Sun, American, New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, Jewish Morning Journal, Forward and the Day, which have a combined circulation of 4,000,000 a day. Advertising appears in some one paper every other day, or oftener.

Painted boards dominate all motor roads leading out of the city. Many stores have signs. A publicity man spends his days among dealers and hotel chefs, promoting interest.

Just now most of the copy is 100 lines single column with clean-printing thin-line drawings of an intriguing nature, the name prominent, tag featured, copy to the point. An incidental invitation, not by any means featured, is an offer to send a recipe book on request. These requests are turned over to the Peck Agency, which prepares the account's copy and handles all details. About 25,000 consumer requests have been received.

How advertising to a special market can influence demand is shown by the fact the sale of live Long Island ducklings in 1922 amounted to only 2,000 in January and February, whereas in the same months this year some 75,000 live ducks were disposed of to Jews who take them to the rabbi to kill.



This year the association is extending its activities beyond Gotham. The Philadelphia Bulletin, Inquirer and Public Ledger are telling the duckling story to their readers.

In Chicago, the Tribune, Daily News and American are telling the world at large all about this delicacy from the East, while I. H. Marks, the representative of the Farmers' Commission House, is selling the trade. "The Duck's Quack," a paper which is sent to the trade by mail, helps.

Newspaper advertising has helped develop and stabilize an industry. It has made possible benefits to the grower, the dealer and the public without unduly inflating prices. The members of the association enjoy annual sales of $5,200,000 at an advertising cost of only 1.6 per cent.

STAFF ATTENDS PICNIC

The annual family picnic of the Bloomington Pantagraph forces was held July 31, at Mackinaw Dells. Outdoor sports, fishing, swimming and dancing were features of the entertainment.

Unlimited Quantities of Leads - Slugs - Plain Rules

STACKS and stacks of leads, slugs and plain rules, in various sizes and lengths, pile up after a day's run with the Elrod.

Firm, strong material, with smooth surfaces and clean edges, comes out without let-up. Any man in your plant can easily learn to produce this work with an Elrod as this machine operates automatically and requires only occasional attention.

You know what this abundant supply of quality material means in results and time saved. All yours, with an Elrod.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—Atlanta—Boston—New York

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

ADS FILLED HIS PE RAIN OR SHINE

Remarkable Story of Successful N paper Campaign Told by Episco Rector of Kansas Town

ARKANSAS CITY, Kans., August 1. definite story of success in church ac tising is told by the Rev. Frederi Busch, rector of Trinity Episc Church, who last fall began a camp of publicity for a series of special dresses at Sunday evening serv When evening services were dropped the coming of warm weather, the ad tisements were continued, their phasis being shifted to the Sunday m ing services and to the general ide church-going. Copy for all adver ments was written by Mr. Busch.

"There is no question as to the v of church advertising," Mr. Busch "that is, regular and persistent adve ing. Last winter, as a result of the day advertisements in the Traveler, Sunday evening congregations uniformly good—not a really poorly tended evening service throughout winter, in spite of some very bad wea When the emphasis was shifted to morning service and the idea of ch going in general, the results were no apparent, though still noticeable. I t that was because the advertisement the evening services were more defi they called attention to addresses t given on subjects that a great n people wanted to know about.

"In deciding on the form and posi of these ads, I consulted with ex enced newspaper men on the Trav Without their friendly co-operation advice, the plan would not have bee successful. The advertisements have been hard to write, and the expense been well within the means of any ch organization. I think it has aver somewhere around $9 or $10 a mor

NEW PALESTINE A. M. PAPE

Further announcement of plans of C. Woodson, who moved the for Quanah (Tex.) Times plant to Pales to launch a new daily, indicated tha would be a morning publication and called the Palestine Press.

New!

—the way Ludlow Fac Make Your Pages Lo

HOW fresh and new yo pages look! How clean a sharp your ads and he stand out! How well the fa harmonize or contrast with c another—and how much more uable your newspaper is to yo advertisers, if you use the Ludl

In their clean-cut, distincti dress, your Ludlow-set ads a heads bring increased returns your advertisers. And what he them must, in the long run, h you.

Brighter, cleaner ads and hea spell success for both you a your advertisers. Then, does r the system that makes this gre er success possible, the Ludlo deserve careful study?

Ludlow Typograph C
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—Atlanta—Boston—New Y

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

PEARSON IS CHAIRMAN OF U. P. C.

Chiefs of Four Publishing Companies Become Executives of Holding Corporation Following Phillips' Resignation

The United Publishers Corporation, olding company which controls the Economist Group, the Iron Age, the Chilton Class Journal Company and ther business publishing enterprises, whose president, Charles G. Phillips, re-ently announced his retirement from ctive business, has effected a reorganiza-ion by which the presidents of the four principal subsidiary companies of the J. P. C. became the chief executive fficers of the corporation.

Andrew C. Pearson, president of the Economist Group, was elected chairman f the board of directors; F. J. Frank, resident of the Iron Age Publishing ompany, was elected president of the J. P. C.; C. A. Musselman, president of ne Chilton Class Journal Company, was lected vice-president; F. C. Stevens, resident of the Federal Printing Com-any, was elected treasurer, H. J. Red-eld was re-elected secretary.

Mr. Pearson, the son of a Kansas dry oods merchant, was graduated from Northwestern University with the degree f LL.D., and since 1901 has been con-ected with the textile branch of the Jnited Publishers Corporation. For even years he was general manager of ne Dry Goods Economist and later suc-essively secretary, treasurer and vice-resident of the U. P. C. He was the rst publisher to be elected a director of ne Chamber of Commerce of the United tates and he is now a director of the Merchants' Association of New York ity and of the Better Business Bureau f New York. He was also one of the rganizers and first national chairman of ne American Publishers Conference.

Mr. Frank has been connected with the J. P. C. for 16 years and has been resident of the Iron Age Publishing ompany for the past six years. He is resident of the Machinery Club of New ork, a director of the First National ank of Pleasantville and a former presi-ent of the Associated Business Papers.

Mr. Musselman has been connected ith the publishing of automobile papers r 25 years and was one of the execu-ves of the Chilton Publishing Company hen that organization was merged with ne U. P. C. three years ago. At that me he became President of the Chilton lass Journal Company.

Mr. Stevens is a former president of ne New York Employing Printers Asso-ation. He is also president of the Up-nd Citrus Fruit Company which is in-rested in the Isle of Pines and is presi-ent of the Swetland Realty Company.

Mr. Redfield has been secretary of the nited Publishers Corporation for some ars and is also secretary-treasurer of ne Bingham Engraving Company and cretary and director of Distribution and Warehousing.

GRISCOM BUYS FREEPORT PAPER

The Freeport (N. Y.) Recorder, a eekly newspaper, has been purchased r Col. Lloyd C. Griscom, publisher of e Lynbrook (N. Y.) New Era and her Nassau County newspapers. Charles . Burleigh, who has been editing the ecorder, will be associated with the new wner and will continue as editor. George oung and Karl V. Anton, former wners of the paper, will continue their b printing business as Young & Anton.

HELP COLORADO CELEBRATE

The Denver Rocky Mountain News nd Denver Post both issued special edi-ons, Aug. 1, in observance of Colorado's micentennial anniversary. The News ition was called the "Golden Jubilee umber," and the Post, "the de luxe olorado Semicentennial and Outdoor uto Show edition."

NEW Fiction for Newspapers

A newspaper no more can afford to run old novels, whose "run" in book form is done, than it can afford to run old news.

Eugene MacLean

OFFERS

THE NEW AND POWERFUL SERIAL STORIES

LAILA

LAILA

BY JOHN NEWPORT

(A Stirring Tale of the Days of Christ)

and

'Second Love'

BY MALCOLM DUART

A Modern Novel of Intense Heart Interest

MARCIE

Both written for the peculiar needs of newspaper circulation, with vivid characterizations, swift motion in their plots, superb photographic illustrations.

Every step in their preparation has been taken under Mr. MacLean's direct personal supervision—and he has edited and produced more countrywide sensations in the newspaper serial field than any other editor in America.

"Laila" is the story of a beautiful Arabian woman, outcast and desolate in Palestine. in the days when Jesus walked the earth.

"Second Love" is the story of a rich young woman of today, married to a poor young man—and the flapper who came between them.

"Second Love" is at the height of its sensational run.

"Laila" has just been released for publication, and advance orders indicate that it will head the list of American newspaper fiction.

PRICES, INCLUDING FULL ILLUSTRATIONS IN MAT FORM, AND A COMPLETE PROMOTION PROGRAM, WILL BE FORWARDED UPON REQUEST.

Eugene MacLean

OFFICE AND PRODUCTION PLANT

827 FOLSOM ST. SAN FRANCISCO

FRANK ANDERSON DEAD

Toledo Knew Him as "America's Best Police Reporter"

Frank H. Anderson, 61, known as "the most thoroughly trained police reporter in America," died July 29, in Toledo. Illness forced Mr. Anderson to retire two years ago. From 1905 until 1924 he was police reporter for the Toledo Blade.

Funeral services were held in the Elks club, Toledo. An escort of 16 patrolmen, a captain, two sergeants and a color bearer accompanied the body to the grave.

He got his newspaper training on the New York Sun when Charles Dana was in charge and later worked for Charles Chapin on the New York Evening World.

Among the papers on which he had worked are the Chicago Record, St. Louis Post-Dispatch, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, Cleveland Plain-Dealer, and papers in San Francisco, Columbus and Cincinnati.

Mr. Anderson was a graduate of Sheffield Scientific school, Yale, and had studied medicine two years in Columbia. Inheriting a fortune, he used it in travel, living in Vienna, Budapest, and other Old World cities.

R. A. BAKER DEAD

Toronto Advertising Agent, Formerly a Newspaper Man

Robert Alexander Baker, president of the Baker Advertising Agency, Toronto, died July 27, from pneumonia.

The late Mr. Baker was widely known from coast to coast and his advertising operations were so extended that in the United States he was looked upon as one of the foremost of Canadian representatives.

Born in Ireland on July 27, 1878, he went to Toronto and received his education there. His first position being with the Toronto Daily Star, as advertising solicitor.

His interest and ability in this work brought promotion, and for several years he was advertising manager.

In 1911, he left the Star and started the Baker Advertising Agency, Ltd., as a newspaper and magazine advertising agency.

The late Mr. Baker is survived by his wife, two daughters and three sons, W. R., H. F. and Robert. The sons are all actively engaged in the conduct of the agency.

HALF-TONE PIONEER DIES

Max Levy Also Distinguished for Medical Instrument Invention

Max Levy, former Philadelphian, developer of the half-tone process in photo-engraving, died July 31, at his summer home at Allenhurst, N. J.

Mr. Levy was former head of a Philadelphia photo-engraving concern, received the Longstreth medal of merit by the Franklin Institute, for his invention of the haemocytometer, or blood counting chamber, adopted in the army and leading medical institutions.

He achieved world-wide prominence through his inventions in the process of photo-engraving. Mr. Levy was head of Max Levy & Company, until two years ago when he retired. He is survived by his widow, a son, and two daughters.

WIRES PLAY GRIM JOKE

A. P. Operator Takes Story of Sister's Death—Finds Queer Coincidence

Telegraph wires brought tears, and then wiped them from the eyes of C. T. Wright, an operator on one of the Associated Press cross-country lines this week. The succession of date-lines and routine news clicking on his sounder was broken last Sunday night by a bulletin from Gastonia, N. C.

"Five girls were killed". . . the new story began, continuing with details of a week-end collision of an express train with a light motor truck. Then, "The dead are: Bertha Wright, 16, her sister, Laura, 20 . . ."

Wright copied the item and took it to the chief operator. "I'm afraid I'll have to ask relief," he said. "They are my sisters and I'll have to go down there."

Wright has no sister Laura. He has one named Lucy, but he was almost certain that the "Laura" of the dispatch was an error. Before leaving, however, he telegraphed his sisters' home. The answer revealed a coincidence of names and ages of the girls. Neither of his sisters were involved in the accident.

CHAPIN ILL IN SING SING

Charles E. Chapin, former city editor of the New York Evening World, is ill in the hospital of Sing Sing prison. Dr. C. C. Sweet, acting head prison physician, reported he was suffering from gastro-enteritis and internal auto-intoxication. Chapin is serving 20 years to life for wife murder.

TRIBUTE TO RANDALL'S MEMORY

Resolutions in memory of the late Charles C. Randall, of the Franklin P. Shumway Company, Boston, were adopted Aug. 2, by the New England Council of the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

JOINS MISSOURI SCHOOL

Thomas L. Yates, advertising manager of the Fulton (Mo.) Evening Gazette has resigned and will become an instructor in advertising in the University of Missouri School of Journalism Sept. 1. Mr. Yates is a graduate of Missouri and will do graduate work for his Master's Degree while teaching. He will be succeeded in Fulton by Donald Jones, who was graduated from Missouri in June.

Obituary

MYRON W. TARBOX, 76, a pioneer of Michigan newspaper publishing, died last week in Jackson following a stroke of apoplexy. He had been identified with various newspapers of the state since 1874.

AARON B. RICHMOND, 88, father of Henry J. Richmond, of the Detroit News staff, died suddenly near Pontiac, Mich., last week.

FRANK H. ANDERSON, who had been a police reporter on the Toledo Blade for nearly 20 years, died a few days ago, after a long illness. He previously had worked in Columbus, New York, Cleveland and St. Louis.

WILLARD EVERETT, 75, associated with the Julius Matthews Advertising Agency of Boston, died in Walpole, Mass, recently. Mr. Everett was formerly an employee of the Boston (Mass.) Herald.

THOMAS TONGE, well known newspaper corespondent, mining engineer and author of Denver, died last week following an infection. For more than thirty years, he was correspondent for the Mining Journal of London.

MRS. ANNIE M. KELLY, mother of John L. Kelly, formerly of the Buffalo Times editorial staff and of William Kelly, sports editor of the Buffalo Courier-Express, died in Buffalo last week.

WILLARD EVERETT, aged 74, Boston advertising man associated with the Julius Mathews Agency, died July 30. at his home in Walpole, Mass. He formerly was connected with the advertising department of the Boston Herald, and afterward conducted an agency in partnership with the late Carl G. Zerrahn. Later he became an individual director of national advertising campaigns.

GEORGE H. JEWELL, contributor of numerous pen and ink sketches to Boston newspapers, died at his home in Cambridge, Mass, July 30.

Indiana's varied sources of income means steady purchasing power

The national advertiser is in a fortunate position when advertising to the people of Indiana.

There are no fluctuating markets in Indiana. Its sources of wealth and income are derived from its mines, its quarries, its diversified and stable industry and from its rich productive farms.

Indiana is a typical substantial American State where inhabitants are of good stock, thrifty and well worth cultivating.

Once you obtain the good will of these Hoosiers you can expect real business.

You can reach them through the daily press. The papers listed on this page can show you how to cover the State of Indiana.

	Circulation	Rate for 5,000 lines
Columbus Republican .....(E)	4,912	.03
††Connersville News-Examiner .....(E)	4,681	.025
††Decatur Democrat .....(E)	3,215	.025
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette .....(M)	35,247	.08
Fort Wayne Journal-Gazette .....(S)	28,468	.08
Fort Wayne News-Sentinel .....(E)	43,365	.10
Gary Evening Post-Tribune .....(E)	15,514	.06
Huntington Press .....(M&S)	4,079	.025
††Indianapolis News .....(E)	128,341	.25
Lafayette Journal & Courier (M) 7,878 (E) 13,583	21,461	.06
††La Porte Herald-Argus .....(E)	6,726	.04
Marion Chronicle .....(E)	9,364	.04
†Shelbyville Democrat .....(E)	4,012	.025
South Bend News-Times.. (M) 9,751 (E) 16,603	26,354	.07
South Bend News-Times.....(S)	24,500	.07
South Bend Tribune..(S) 21,431....(E)	22,254	.06
††Terre Haute Tribune.....(E&S)	23,442	.06

A. B. C. Publishers' Statement, March 31, 1926.
†Government Statement, October 1, 1925.
††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

AD TIPS

Aitkin-Kynett Company, 1516 Chestnut street, hiladelphia. Placing orders for the University f Pennsylvania, Philadelphia.

Auspitz, Lee and Harvey, 360 North Michiin avenue, Chicago. Will use about a dozen ietropolitan cities on Sampson Electric Cominy, Chicago, copy to start early in September.

George Batten Company, Inc., 383 Madison :enue, New York. Handling advertising of ohnson & Johnson Company, Nupak, New runswick, N. J.

Buck-Glen Company, 39 South LaSalle street, hicago. Sending out new schedule for Shaef-r Pen Company, Fort Madison, Iowa.

Calkins & Holden, Inc., 247 Park avenue, ew York. Placing advertising of H. J. Heinz ompany, "Rice Flake," Pittsburgh, Pa.

Campbell-Ewald Company, General Motors uilding, Detroit. Will issue schedules on uick Motor Car Company, Flint, Mich., for ugust insertion.

Central Advertising Company, 30 North La alle street, Chicago. Will use twenty metroolitan papers for E. T. Konsberg and Cominy, Chicago, advertising stock of Celotex ompany.

Chappelow Advertising Company, 1701 Washgton avenue, St. Louis. Placing advertising the McLain Orthopedic Sanitarium, 915 ubert street, St. Louis.

Collins-Kirk, Inc., 752 North Michigan ave-e, Chicago. Has prepared a list of newsapers on O'Cedar Corporation, Chicago.

Collins-Kirk, Inc., 752 North Michigan ave-e, Chicago. Will continue to handle the en-e account of James S. Kirk Company, Chigo.

S. A. Conover Company, 99 Chauncey street, oston. Handling the account of Dr. J. F. ue & Co., Inc., Auburn, Maine, manufacrers of "Dr. True's Elixir."

Crowell, Williams & Co., 612 North Michigan enue, Chicago. Has prepared a list on Park-Pen Company, Janesville, Wis.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., 130 W. 42d street, ew York. Launching a trial campaign in iladelphia newspapers and later in newspapers New England for Bi-So-Dol Company, Bir Gum. Placing about $50,000 in advertisg in New England States and will gradually d new territory for Church & Dwight, 27 dar street, New York. Sending orders to ge newspapers having gravure sections for T. Piver, Inc., perfume, 116 E. 16th street, w York.

John Dunham Company, 431 North Michigan nue, Chicago. Will handle only the Delicia t Butter (margarine) advertising of the John Jelke Company, Chicago.

Ferry-Hanly Advertising Company, 6 North Michigan nue, Chicago. May handle some advertisg in the southwest for the Ward's Products mpany, Chicago, manufacturers of salad ssing.

Ferry-Hanly Advertising Company, 6 No. chigan avenue, Chicago. Reported having ured account of Ward's Products Company, ., Chicago, salad dressing.

Foote & Morgan, Inc., 247 Park avenue, New rk. Has secured account of the Amplion poration of America, loud speaker.

Allen Buck Company, 431 North Michigan nue, Chicago. Has issued schedules to wspapers, two pieces of copy for August and pieces for September, on Shaeffer Pen mpany, Fort Madison, Ia.

Charles C. Green Advertising Agency, Wal- & 17th streets, Philadelphia. Placing adtising in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Dela-re and District of Columbia for the Chrisa Ferry Company, Wilmington, Del.

Stanley E. Gunnison, Inc., 73 West 44th et, New York. Placing account of Life ers, Inc., Port Chester, N. Y.

Joseph E. Hanson Company, 85 Lincoln k, Newark, N. J. Using New Jersey newsers for W. & W. Soap Manufacturing Comy, "Ly-Loss" soap, Newark, N. J.

Hanser-Churchill Agency, 12 E. 44th street, w York. Placing orders generally for Dr. oll Company, Chicago.

Hazard Advertising Corporation, 7 East ty-second street, New York. Has the adtising account of Kuttroff, Pickhardt & mpany, Inc., New York City, solvents and ilizing materials, also placing account of Fritz & La Rue Company, New York, imers of oriental rugs.

J. T. Howard Company, 33 West 42d street, w York. Will use, in the late Fall, newsers in selected sections for the Standard Company, "White House Rice," New York.

John S. King Company, Carnegie Hall, veland, Ohio. Handling account of P. A. r Company, Cleveland, Ohio, "Super Royal" uum cleaner.

King-Gibson Company, 310 So. Michigan ue, Chicago. Placing some advertising in newspapers for the Reisch Food Products pany.

Lambert & Feasley, 17 E. 49th street, New c. Sending out orders to an additional list ities for the Lambert Pharmacal Company, terine," St. Louis.

Lomis-Potts Company, 1012 Baltimore ave-Kansas City, Mo. Has secured account e Lucky Tiger Remedy Company, Kansas .

Morse International Agency, 449 4th avenue, York City. Placing advertising of Enoch gan's Sons, 439 West street, New York, olio."

M. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency, Inc., 45 Bromfield street, Boston. Placing advertising for Heywood-Wakefield Company, 209 Washington street, Boston, baby carriages, reed and fibre furniture.

Irvin F. Paschall, Inc., McCormick building, Chicago. Has the account of the Gascline Register Company, Chicago, manufacturers of the "Meas-ur-check" gasoline recorder.

Frank Presbrey Company, 247 Park avenue, New York. Will place advertising of the Florida East Coast Railway & Hotels, St. Augustine, Fla.

Reincke-Ellis Company, 215 No. Michigan avenue, Chicago. Placing account of the Reading Steel Casting Company, 929 Connecticut avenue, Bridgeport, Conn., valves and fittings.

E. P. Remington Advertising Agency, 1280 Main street, Buffalo. Handling account of Wehle Baking Company, Rochester, N. Y.

R. H. Sayre, Inc., 237 5th avenue, Pittsburgh, Pa. Has secured transferred account of Saegertown Mineral Water Co., ginger ale.

Russel M. Seeds Company, Inc., Consolidated Building, Indianapolis. Handling advertising of the Milks Emulsion Company, Terre Haute, Ind.

John Watson Wilder Company, 435 North Michigan avenue, Chicago. Will handle the advertising of Greenbaum Sons Company, Chicago.

H. C. Winchell Company, 230 East Ohio street, Chicago. Will place the account of Thordardson Electric Company, Chicago.

LEWIS DENIES FRAUD IN REVIEW PROMOTION

Californian Says Shares in Almond Groves and Oil Wells Were Premiums, Whose Fulfillment Cost More Than Receipts

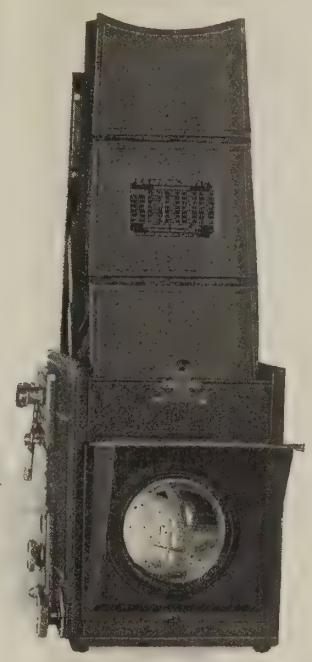
LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug 4.—Edward G. Lewis, promoter of the California Illustrated Review, and half a dozen other papers, has denied charges that resulted in his indictment recently by the Federal Government for alleged use of the mails to defraud. Bond of $5,000 each have been posted by Lewis. Harry L. Kramer, Louis Cohen and Williams Ahrens.

In the indictments returned again the four men, it is asserted that subscriptions were obtained for the California Illustrated Review that were not fulfilled.

Lewis' statement says:

"The California Illustrated Review had no stockholders other than myself, sold no subscriptions and there were no outside investors in it. Life subscriptions were accepted for $10 from a limited number. With such subscriptions an interest in Almond Grove or in the Review Wells were given. As a premium. Ten wells were drilled, at a cost several times greater than the total of these life subscriptions.

"To fulfill this subscription premium, various of the wells are still producing handsome incomes. The publication was suspended just prior to the involuntary bankruptcy proceedings while a reorganization was taking place and would have been continued but for the bankruptcy proceedings.



"The subscription price of any newspaper or magazine does not cover its bare cost of publication, in fact rarely covering the cost of the paper on which it is printed. Any newspaper or magazine publisher in America could be indicted by the same methods and for the same reasons by which the indictments were obtained against myself and associates on the board of directors of the Review.

"We were refused permission to appear before the Grand Jury and an agreement that 'before any action was taken by the inspectors we would be given an opportunity to know what their charges might be and give an answer to them' was not kept although we had voluntarily given the inspectors every possible aid in the investigation."

ANN ARBOR WEEKLY SOLD

The Washtenaw Post at Ann Arbor, Mich., was sold July 30, by James E. Helber to Charles H. Hemingway of Chicago, who is now associated with the Babyhood Publishing Company of Chicago, but will assume personal charge of the Post. Mr. Helber, the retiring owner, may re-engage in the newspaper business after a rest of several months. The sale was made through the H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

BRIGHTEN THE PAGE WITH GRAFLEX PICTURES

A new Graflex—

3¼ x 4¼ Revolving Back
Graflex, Series C
with Cooke Anastigmat
*f.*2.5

Three times as fast!

Press photography demands speed and speed has long meant Graflex. Yet the Cooke Anastigmat *f.*2.5 on the new Graflex admits over three times as much light as the fastest lens previously offered.

A Graflex exposure of 1/5 or 1/10 at *f.*2.5 can succeed where ordinary cameras require time. And 1/1000 at *f.*2.5 yields detailed action negatives without demanding bright sun.

Ask the Staff

Such superior equipment will permit a press photographer to get good views after rain or approaching darkness has sent his competitors home. Your camera staff will tell you that adoption of the *f.*2.5 Graflex will mean more productive assignments and a greater variety of appealing pictures.

3¼ x 4¼ Revolving Back Graflex, Series C, complete with Cooke Anastigmat *f.*2.5 is $260.

Consult a dealer or write to Rochester.

Graflex cameras are now made by
THE FOLMER GRAFLEX CORPORATION
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

For sale by
EASTMAN KODAK COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

EDITOR WRITES FROM CELL

County Jail.
EUREKA, CAL., July 16, 1926

TO EDITOR & PUBLISHER: Thanks for your splendid editorial of June 26, "A Queer Case." The editorial from the San Francisco Chronicle, to which you refer, as the writer very fairly stated, was written on the supposed facts taken wholly from the statement of Gov. Friend W. Richardson, in denying my application for a pardon. Richardson disregarded the statements by myself and my attorney, and deduced his facts wholly from the statements made to him by Judge Denver Sevier, who imposed this sentence, and from those of District Attorney A. W. Hill, two of my best known and bitterest enemies. Could you see certain testimony in the hands of the United States Immigration bureau, in the deportation hearings against a Greek and an Italian, taken here by a commission, you would know that there is a conspiracy ring here that no local investigation can, or will, ever bring to light, and that I am the goat.

To the best of my knowledge and belief I never wrote or published anything which was not true, about any of the officials involved in this matter, and never with any motive other than the highest public welfare at heart. Never for personal reasons.

The San Francisco Chronicle creates the impression that I was, and am an unpopular person in Eureka. Sure, among the followers of the ring. Why not! I made them fight for their lives, and they are still doing it with every indication that they will pass to the great political heaven of has beens, at the primary election, Aug. 31 next.

Does it seem that I should have been very unpopular, if I held the managing editorship of the Humboldt Times, the oldest and largest daily paper in the county for ten years, and drew the highest salary ever paid a newspaper man here, and still count the owners among my best friends, if I were so unpopular?

What I will tell you now, will account for that note in the Chronicle editorial, show you why I have been stripped of the earnings of ten years, my home, my business, and about everything in life, excepting the belief in myself and the certainty that public reform does not pay—the reformer.

For political and commercial reasons the Times could not take the attitude I felt it should against certain abuses, and I withdrew from the editorial management there to take that of the Humboldt News in order to get the facts of political abuses and corruption before the voters.

I was soon arrested on a charge of criminal libel ostensibly by Fred Wiley, a dry squad stool pigeon under Hill. I knew I could not get a square deal in the county court and the district attorney, and took my case to the people. For this I was cited for contempt of court, of which you have the important facts, and sentenced. The appellate court freed me under bond pending appeal, and decided against me.

Now then, two or three days before the time when I should have to return to jail, my attorney advised me to keep out of sight for a day or two, as he was in hopes that within that time the necessary money to pay the fine would be raised.

In compliance with his instructions I went to the home of a young married couple with whom lived a young woman in my employ, and whom I could trust. The second night I was there the young couple went out for the evening, leaving my employee and myself alone in the house. The lady retired about ten o'clock and an hour later I was just in the act of getting into bed at the other end of the hall, when she screamed for help.

I did what any other man would have done—ran to her room.

It was in darkness, but there seemed to be something going on at the window, the noise made by a heavy window shade, when pushed aside, and as I hesitated for an instant to get my bearings and some idea of what it was all about, I was collided with in the dark by a heavy body and knocked upon the bed. I yelled to know who was there and struggled to get up. A flash light was turned in my face and I was thrust down by half a dozen hands and heard: "County Officers."

Then I was told to stay where I was, and the covers dragged over me. Then the lights were turned on and we saw we were in the hands of the Dry Squad.

Under pretext of searching the house, we were placed under guard. A man named J. H. McGrath, U. S. Deputy Collector of the port, who, contrary to law draws pay from this county also as a dry squad man, armed with a big six shooter, hung over the foot of the bed and leered at that girl and myself for an hour. In the meantime McKay, chief of the squad, sent two men to my wife to tell her that they had found her husband in bed with another woman, and asked her to come and see. She declined, and we were allowed to get up and dress.

I entered a plea of not guilty to the charge they placed against me of illegal possession of liquor, they claiming to have found a pint flask of moonshine whiskey in my car in the garage. I openly accused them of "planting" it there, as I do not drink and never had a drop of liquor in my car or elsewhere.

The charge is now outlawed, although I did my best to force them to trial before a jury. They did not dare bring that bunch before a jury, and there was really no need to from their standpoint, because McKay, that night, had called up the night desk of the Times, and told him their story, which was printed and broadeast over the county, without verification, and far more than the Hill forces had anticipated had been accomplished. I was ruined. Redress? How?

If you knew conditions in the county of Humboldt you would know that it is hopeless to undertake to bring the whole truth to light in any such case here. The machinery is too well organized. Aside from this I have no money to do such things with, and have concluded that I have done something more than my duty to the public. I have sacrificed everything I had to try to uncover corruption in office, and have, at least put the officials on trial by the people. Now, if the people do not throw them out of office, it strikes me that it will be because they like that kind of officials, and want to keep them. As I have no interests here, and have lost all interest in public affairs, it will make no difference to me what they do. I may have to serve the whole two years and nine months in this jail. If I do I cannot help it, and when I am out of it I shall leave the country forever. Not because I feel any shame or disgrace, because I am as innocent as you are of the things I have been accused of, and therefore can hold my head as high as anyone, and there is no man living whom I cannot look in the eye with a clear con science, but I am disgusted and tired c the whole affair.

I have written you at length because saw the note of fair play demanded i your editorial and wanted you to knov my side of the story, or at least th salient part of it, that is all.

Thanking you for your fairness, an for your patience in having read this, remain,

ALFRED LINDSLEY.

MR. BARRON'S VIEWS

TO EDITOR & PUBLISHER: Thank yo for publishing my full letter. I coul ask no more.

Your point is that news space shoul not be bought with advertising. You ar correct.

My point is that advertising should no arrest news development.

You know perfectly well that the mo ment advertising appears in the fiel

Detroit

Fourth Largest City

Complete coverage with one paper.

The Detroit News

Offers advertisers unusual opportunities

The World

These two newspapers offer the most powerful all-day service in New York available as a unit under a single contact. The 600,000 DAILY WORLD — EVENING WORLD readers constitute a highly concentrated force to be reckoned with in any campaign designed to effect distribution in Greater New York.

The Evening World

Pulitzer Building, New York
Tribune Tower, Chicago

GROWING IN IMPORTANCE

The Inter-Mountain territory of Utah, Idaho, Western Wyoming and Eastern Nevada is rapidly developing and becoming more important to the advertiser whose merchandise has national distribution.

Don't overlook this rich section of the West.

The Salt Lake Tribune

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY
—Sole Eastern Agents—
New York—Chicago—Detroit
St. Louis—Kansas City
Atlanta
M. C. MOGENSEN & CO., INC.
Pacific Coast Representatives
San Francisco—Los Angeles—Seattle

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
R. J. BIDWELL CO.
742 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
Times Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

Still Gaining!

The net paid average daily circulation for THE BALTIMORE NEWS for April was 124,636—the highest under its present management.

The net paid average for the American was 57,503.

You need these papers to cover Baltimore, they reach more than half the City.

Sold separately or in combination.

THE BALTIMORE NEWS
and
Baltimore American

ANNOUNCEMENT

To National Advertisers and Advertising Agencies

The National Advertising Departments of
New York Evening Journal
Baltimore Evening News
Baltimore American
Washington Evening Times
Washington Herald
Atlanta Evening Georgian
Atlanta Sunday American
are combined with offices in New York—Chicago—Detroit

New York Office:
W. G. HOBSON, Eastern Manager
2 Columbus Circle
Telephone: Circle 5400

Chicago Office:
F. E. CRAWFORD
Western Manager
913 Hearst Bldg.

Detroit Office:
FRANKLIN PAYNE
Representative
1351 Book Bldg.

All under direction of:
JAMES C. DAYTON, Publisher
NEW YORK EVENING JOURNAL

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA

Producers of

SPARTAN TYPE METAL

Since 1866

LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE
COMBINATION

Stocks in Principal Cities

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION

Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.

Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

any publishers have a tendency to im-ediately suppress the editor and deand that advertising shall precede pubcation of news interest. Their slogan ten is "No advertising, no notice."
Therefore many clever people seeking iblicity are wise enough to keep away om the publisher and his advertising lumn, knowing full well that the mo-ent advertising appears the editor and iting, and news notices will be sup-essed, and both departments of the par thus put on a commercial basis.

I have been more than 50 years the reporting, news gathering, editing and blishing business, and I think I know as ll as anybody the demarcation between news
d advertising.

I know better than anybody else the progress human thought and woman's mental develop-nt denoted by the astounding fact that lli-Curci could read and master 32 volumes the Writings of Emanuel Swedenborg in a mmer season—something nobody else ever did the history of the world.

I wrote it and sold the article to the Dear-rn Independent—devoted to the neglected th—for $250 and put the money into a nd to advertise that same Rotch Edition of edenborg's Works which Galli-Curci had so ickly mastered. The problem was how to nd that fund. Had I been as wise as the tics you represent, I would have spent the ney in postage and stationery to invite the tors of the country to a republication of article without a thought of using the adver-
ing column.

But having, perhaps, made the mistake of vertising at the same time, my critics of a nior generation proceed to instruct me in the ics of news and advertising, and you ask if body could put over such a matter on me.

I will promptly respond that I publish every ir thousands of columns of matter that has vertising value to billions of capital and I ther ask advertising nor suppress news on basis of advertising in connection there-h.

And this is a statement that nobody else
the world can duplicate.

Therefore, I think I may be permitted from experience not only to answer you but lay down the law for both editors and pub-hers, as well as news gatherers.

It is the simple rule of the late Charles A. na, of the late New York Sun, that only reader is to be considered in the news umns, and no suppression of what is of ue or interest to the reader should take ce because of value to commercial interests such presentation.

If new thought, new invention, or a new lity came into being Dana sent a reporter give a paragraph or a column, or more umns according to public interest, although h presentation might be worth many thou-ds of dollars to some commercial interest.

Today thousands of publishers would hold up ir hands in horror at the idea of presenting ething of interest to their readers that at same time gave value to a commercial erprise and the publisher receive no com-sation therefor.

For 25 years after I started the Boston ws Bureau there was never an advertisement a paid line of any kind in the paper, ough every column teemed with news of ue not only to financial readers, but to orations and people well able to advertise.
later when the circulation warranted, we rdedly opened the columns to selected adcising; but we have always held to the nciple that any advertisement that was not the interest of the reader should be barred.

may surprise you to know that I am advertising the Rotch Edition translation
he Theological Works of Emanuel Sweden-g with any idea that I shall get a gross rn in book sales of as much as ten cents the dollar of the cost of the advertising.

have also said things in that advertisement
I want people to read, and I am willing ay for the advertising, pro bono publico, ough I see the danger of having some pub-rs thereafter class all Swedenborg matter dvertising. But in advertising these books n no more in a commercial business than were offering Bibles to the heathen at cost of postage.

Yet, by some criticisms, I am warranted in asserting that if the American Bible Society, or one of the Bible publishers who last year produced 30,000,000 Bibles or Books of the Bible, should start to offer some Bibles by advertising, some publishers would announce to their editors that anything with reference to the Bible should thereafter be referred to the Advertising Department, that news or editorial presentation or comment upon the Bible might be measured by the number of inches of advertising offered.

Let me recommend to you and other editors and publishers the reading of Swedenborg who is able to assist any man of true heart to a higher knowledge of his use or service, be he news gatherer, editor, or publisher, or critic; for he was the reporter, and in this world the publisher of the true laws of use in human service as revealed from Heaven.

CLARENCE W. BARRON.

Editor's note: Mr. Barron attributes to journalism commercial degradation that is not justified by the facts. It is not true that newspaper editors are suppressing real news in order to force advertising into their columns; the average publisher is not half so foxy as Mr. Barron thinks him to be; every day in nearly every newspaper advertised objects and services are discussed in news and editorial columns and it is positively not true that advertising embarrasses news.

Anyway, no one but Mr. Barron has raised the question of "news suppression" in this silly season controversy. Our sole objection was to an advertising contract contingent upon the publication of material supplied by Mr. Barron for news columns, the devil take the editor's opinion of its news value. If there is a slogan in the newspaper offices of this country, "No advertising, no notice," if the latter means "news," we have never heard of it and we have been at the work in daily newspaper offices for 31 years.

Mr. Barron is mistaken, badly advised concerning modern newspaper methods. His zeal for his cause is interesting and we are glad to give his views concerning it to our readers.

MEDICAL AD CENSORSHIP

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: I have been greatly interested in your editorial, entitled, "Fraudulent Advertising," in the current issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

I quite agree with you that it would be the height of folly to expect the publisher to be absolutely responsible with the advertiser for the statements made in all announcements. The Journal of the American Medical Association exercises as stringent a censorship as is possible, and has for its advisors several committees of authorities in various fields to pass on certain types of advertising for acceptance. Even under these circumstances, occasional errors creep in, due to the fact that one must trust the advertiser to some extent.

On the other hand, I am amused at the following sentence: "If Edison, Ford, Marconi or Dr. Banting had, in the early stages of their great contributions to society, been prevented from making advertising claims which taxed ordinary credence, an injustice would have been done to them." To include Dr. Banting in this category is an error, since he was in no sense of the word interested in the advertising of insulin. Indeed, this product was never placed on the market or advertised until its value had been established beyond a shadow of a doubt. Moreover, such advertising claims as have been made for the product since it was first made generally available have been censored by a committee of Canadian scientists and by the Council on Pharmacy and Chemistry of the American Medical Association, the latter consisting of seventeen American authorities in the fields of chemistry, pharmacology and general medicine.

In other words, the issue involved in the advertising of drug remedies is so intimately concerned with the health and life of the community, that in such instances, at least, the publisher should assume equal responsibility with the advertiser. In order to enable the publisher to assume such responsibility, the American Medical Association established the Council named, to act as an advisory body and to certify claims before they are issued in advertising.

MORRIS FISHBEIN.
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association.

INTERESTING ADVERTISEMENTS

To EDITOR & PUBLISHER: In looking through your issue of June 19 I was specially interested in the advertisement of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin which appears on page 66 and is headed "Five Times the Capacity of the World's Greatest Stadium." It is a curious coincidence that in connection with the convention which was held at the Wembley Exhibition, London Daily News drew a comparison between the size of Wembley and the acreage of a whole page advertisement in the "Daily News" multiplied by our net sales.

I should like to congratulate you upon the very interesting and effective issue which you have produced.

H. SIMONIS, London Daily News.

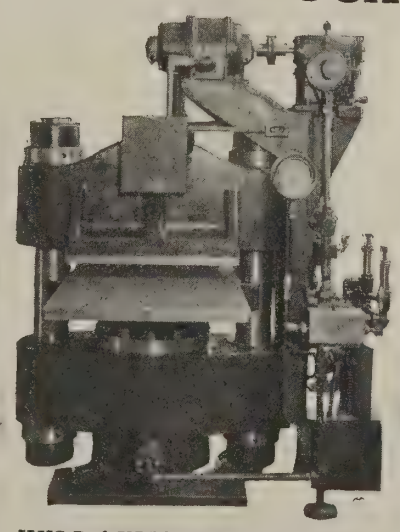
HAMILTON FYFFE RESIGNS

Sees Promising Future for London Herald After 4 Years in Charge

Hamilton Fyffe, editor of the Daily Herald, the only Labor daily in London resigned, July 31. He said: "Four years ago I was asked to take charge of the Daily Herald upon its becoming the property of the Labor movement. I agreed to do this for three or four years and put the paper on its feet. That task has been accomplished. The circulation has been raised from 130,000 to 450,000. The future of the Herald is assured. Now I want a good holiday. I haven't had one for four years."



Mr. Fyffe's resignation will take effect in one month. He was attached to the British War Mission which visited the United States in 1917, and he presented the labor viewpoint during the recent general strike in daily articles in the New York Herald Tribune.

HALF A STATE COMPLETELY COVERED
at one Combination Rate
EVENING COURIER MORNING POST
Two Great Newspapers—Published at Camden, N. J.
National Representatives
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

NEW YORK STATE
Westchester County's
Fastest Growing Cities
Mount Vernon and
New Rochelle and
The Vicinity Towns
Are Covered Completely by
THE DAILY ARGUS
of
Mount Vernon
THE STANDARD STAR
of
New Rochelle
Both Members of A. B. C.
Westchester Newspapers, Inc.
Franklin A. Merriam, Pres.
Mount Vernon—New Rochelle

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS
Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.
AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

first! in OHIO
11,492,383 Lines
Dispatch advertising record for the first six months of 1926, exceeding other Columbus newspapers combined by 1,665,911 lines. In 1925 the Dispatch published 21,544,376 lines, exceeding second largest Ohio newspaper by 2,648,383 lines.
NET PAID CIRCULATION
CITY 55,812
SUBURBAN 26,973
COUNTRY 23,666
Total Daily Circulation.....106,451
Columbus Dispatch
OHIO'S GREATEST HOME DAILY

FIRST!
The New York Times in seven months this year published 17,091,382 agate lines of advertising, 6,306,982 lines more than the second newspaper and a gain of 1,747,154 lines over the corresponding period of last year.
Advertisements submitted for publication in The New York Times are subject to censorship to exclude misleading or otherwise objectionable statements.

Do you know what percentage of errors are made in your Composing Room?
We suggest you go there and take fifty original proofs. Count up the number of lines and the number of errors. Get the percentage of errors to lines.
It takes twice as long to correct an error as it does to make it, so multiply this percentage by three.
Take this resultant percentage and apply it to your total Composing Room payroll for the year. See how much money errors are costing you.
When you find out what they cost you write and tell us the amount. We will show you a source of profit you have never heard of.
Matrix Contrast Corp.
33 W. 42d St., New York City

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.
It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest
O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives
The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

A WRITER, name not given by the editor, in the Outlook for August 4 asks the rhetorical question, "Do You Believe in Ads?" An editorial note, however, gives the author an O.K.

The article, dealing for the most part with advertising inserted in the newspapers, explains some of the so-called bargains featured in copy. For a "stock reducing" sale even new goods are purchased—provided bargains can be picked up.

The author thus lists what was picked up in one instance:

> Ten thousand house dresses to sell at 49 cents. They did not tell me, and so I did not advertise the fact, that they were made in a neighboring State prison.
>
> Five thousand tubes of a nationally known tooth paste, to sell at half marked price. We failed to mention in our advertisement that they had gone through fire and were gritty as sand.
>
> A thousand hats with ostrich plumes. Was it the buyer's fault that plumes were not being worn?
>
> And so on, through phonographs and shoes that squeaked, semi-soft collars that were mostly soft, and nine-by-twelve grass rugs that curled. Nothing was up to standard, but everything contributed to a low-priced, spectacular sale.

* * *

The ad man who writes the articles then goes on to say that the copy-writer insists on samples of all goods "if he is sure enough of his job" or "if he doesn't care if he loses it"—yet with all this inspection the buyers sometimes fool the copy-writer who in turn intentionally fools the public. The illustration given is that of a shipment of Swiss cheese. The sample tasted all right, but the price appeared too low to the copy-writer who made an inspection all his own. The result was that the advertising in the Sunday papers announced, "Swiss cheese imperfect, slightly soft." But the ad sold the cheese—such as it was.

The writer gives two or three suggestions to ultimate consumers. One of them is "pick the store whose advertising is not deceiving and do all your shopping there." Another suggestion offered is to "buy nationally advertised articles of proved merit at the price marked on the box." Still another is to "read the daily advertisements and compare them store against store" where simple common sense should tell the reader that he can "believe the simple word of an honest merchant before the boast in large print of a tricky firm."

* * *

THE rhetorical question seems to be popular as a magazine title. Bruce Barton asks one in the American Magazine for August, "How Did That Get in the Paper?" The answer is really an interview with Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press.

The article opens with an interesting newspaper incident. In 1900 William S. Taylor had shot William Gobel, Governor of Kentucky. Taylor had fled to Indiana where possibly because of the pressure of public opinion he finally consented to make a statement in Indianapolis. He closeted himself with an official court stenographer, dictated his statement, saw the stenographer destroy her notes, and then wrapped and mailed the document himself. Within an hour the newspapers of Indianapolis were on the streets with extras telling the story and printing the deposition in full.

How the trick was turned long remained a mystery. Taylor always insisted that his letter had been taken from the mail and at one time threatened legal proceedings for the letter did not reach Frankfort until the morning after the Kentucky newpapers had printed it in the afternoon. Barton thus lets the facts out:

> Two young reporters on the two afternoon papers, having made a final fruitless effort to make Taylor talk, drifted into the stenographer's office to commiserate with each other on their ill luck and to wait for her return, on the chance that something might come to light.
>
> As they sat there smoking, one of them dropped his hand on the desk and, lifting it again, noticed that his fingers were smudged from contact with a piece of fresh carbon paper. Casually he picked up the carbon paper, and noticed that it had apparently been used once then turned upside down and used again. Being new, it bore a clear record of what had been written.
>
> The reporter read the opening words: "I, William S. Taylor," and with a grin of triumph tucked it inside his pocket. Five minutes later he and his companion were transcribing the deposition for which the whole country had been waiting. An hour later the newspapers had it on the streets.

This incident has additional interest when the names of the two reporters are made public. One of them was Ray Long, now editor of Cosmopolitan Magazine; the other was Kent Cooper.

A rather detailed description of the headquarters of the Associated Press of New York is given by Mr. Barton. Possibly this information about its obit. files may interest members of the working press:

> "When a prominent man gets to be fifty," said Cooper, "we prepare his obituary and send it out to all of our papers. At sixty, if he is still in the public eye, we rewrite it in greater detail. And as for old men like the Pope, or John D. Rockefeller, or Chauncey Depew, their life stories are brought to date yearly. Within a few seconds after such a man closes his eyes for the last time every important newspaper in America can begin to issue his story.

In the paragraph immediately following Mr. Barton does give, with the help of Mr. Cooper, detailed answers as to how certain stories broke into print. These incidents ought to interest lay readers, but they tell little that is new to practical newspaper men. The latter, however, will find much of interest in the answer to the question, "In what sort of news are people most interested?" Here is the answer:

> "So the first big fact that the editor keeps in mind is that you are most interested in yourself. The second fact is a corollary of the first. You are interested in the people whom you know and the things which you have seen. In telling how you read your own paper this morning, you did not mention the sporting pages, which thousands of readers turn to first of all, as you can see for yourself by watching readers on the trains or street cars. But if you had been to a baseball game or a football game yesterday you would have read the account of it, every word. You would have wanted to check the reporter's version against your own, to see whether he saw the plays as you saw them, and how his distribution of praise and blame agreed with your own. Similarly, if a friend of yours had been hit by a taxicab yesterday, you would search the whole paper for mention of it, simply because it touched your own private circle."

By way of postscript the following is added:

> "Finally, in enumerating the things in which people are interested, I should say that the last and, in many ways, the greatest of all interests is death. The younger readers of your article will not agree with that; to them, death is something so remote as to be of small concern. But newspaper men know that when a man reaches the age of forty-five he begins to read the obituary columns. When he gets to sixty that part of the paper claims his attention almost first of all."

The article, in closing with an obit. of a reporter who once worked for the New York World, reprints the wording on the bronze tablet in the editorial office of that newspaper:

> In memory of
> GREGORY T. HUMES
> Reporter on The World
> Mortally wounded in the Stamford
> Railroad Wreck.
> He thought first of his paper, and with > indomitable courage sent the news of > the disaster.
> Born April 22, 1878
> Died June 13, 1913

* * *

FRANK PRESBREY, the well-known advertising agent, discusses "The Phenomena of Modern Advertising" in World's Work for August. His general theme is that advertisements promote growth and prosperity and that they have played a leading part in simplifying the problems of production, distribution and financing.

Mr. Presbrey is very positive in his assertion that the old indictment that advertising adds to the cost of goods has been quashed by experience. He gives two instances to prove his point, the e perience of a fountain pen company a that of the makers of lighting fixtur These two incidents related somewh in detail show how advertising has duced rather than increased the cost manufactured articles to the consum In other words, advertising is a machi to aid in distribution. "The public ne questions the cost of a machine in manufacturer's plant which adds to v ume production. If the public did pay for the new machine it would p for the more costly hand labor."

On the following topic Mr. Presbr has rather pronounced views:

> Advertising campaigns have done more change the habits of the nation in the ma of sanitation and cleanliness than the speec of all the uplifters who have uplifted th voices in the past fifty years.

In enlarging on the point made in t quotation just given, Mr. Presbrey ad that "competition in advertising has r only increased the public taste but h have you been following the remarkable growth of the Detroit Times

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
NEW YORK
EVENING GRAPHIC

H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

BUILDINGS
PLANT LAYOUTS
PRODUCTION
OPERATION

An organization specializing solely in newspaper building design, manufacturing and production problems.

S. P. WESTON

Newspaper Buildings
Plant Layouts
Production, Operation

120 West 42nd Street New York

in Detroit—

Free Press circulation reaches 31,000 more than the total number of families owning their own homes.

The "Free Press"
"Starts the day in Detroit"

With a stable, uninflated, liberal pursed circulation productive of greater advertising returns at lower cost.

The Normal Season in Miami

23%
MORE CIRCULATION

Herald July circulation figures this year as compared with the same period for 1925 show a net increase of 23%—substantiating the continued phenomenal growth of Miami and its market under normal conditions—at a time when nearly every reader is a bona fide resident.

No other market in America is in as healthy a state as the Miami market. No other market offers greater possibilities to the national advertiser.

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED

SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK

Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

dinitely raised the standards of art as applied to merchandise." In addition, advertising has maintained "the high standard and purity of goods, particularly edibles."

Another item to be listed on the asset side of the ledger is mentioned:

t is conceded that advertising, by giving manufacturer more control over his product, distribution and its buying seasons, has done h to stabilize employment and national purchasing powers. As more manufacturers realize great and beneficial effects which advertising can have upon their production problems the purchasing power of their employees, present national prosperity can be made take on more and more of a permanent acter.

Mr. Presbrey concludes his discussion with the summary:

aving helped to create the will to produce, earn to have and to be prosperous in the ple of this nation, advertising has also, as ave pointed out, helped to stabilize that perity by stabilizing the employment and before the purchasing power of hundreds of sands of wage earners, and has helped also crease the income of thousands of farmers ugh the co-operative advertising they have ied on through their associations.

* * *

HE new edition, "Forty Years An Advertising Agent," by George Presbrey Rowell has just been issued by the Franklin Publishing Company at 357 Fourth avenue, New York City. This new edition will be mentioned at greater length in a later comment.

* * *

MAGAZINE editors, to use their own language, will read with interest the editorial which opens in the Bookman for August—"Absolute Truth." This editorial discusses pro and con the existence politeness of the modern rejection slip. To tell the absolute truth in a letter declining a manuscript would be not the same thing as telling the absolute truth in the newspaper.

* * *

THE Haldeman-Julius Company of Girard, Kan., announces for early publication "Dying Like a Gentleman, and Other Stories" by E. W. Howe who put the Atchison (Kan.) Globe, on the newspaper map. The remarkable thing about this "little book" is that it will cost only twenty cents.

* * *

THE latest book on advertising to come to this department is "Theory and Practice of Advertising" by S. Roland Hall (McGraw-Hill Book Co.). A more extended notice may be expected in a later issue of EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

* * *

THE history of printing has a shelf of books all its own. But the history of printing-ink has long lacked a competent historian. That mantle has fallen on the shoulders of Frank B. Wiborg, author of "Printing Ink" (Harper & Bros.)—a volume of 300 pages.

Mr. Wiborg, after admitting that rag paper is a Chinese invention the manufacturing methods of which were transmitted to Europe by the Arabs, remarks that a similar assertion cannot be made regarding ink, although the Chinese product is so superior to that produced in other countries that it was for centuries used by European artists under the misnomer "India Ink." Attention is called to the fact that while Chinese records record the name of the inventor of rag paper the name of the inventor of ink will never be given for the reason that ink was the invention of an individual. The Chinese tested and tried preparations for centuries before they uncovered acceptable formula for good ink. Mr. Wiborg remarks in passing that ink "is one of the outstanding examples of progress in Chinese technology and an eloquent refutation of the dogma of the stationary character of Chinese culture." Two chapters are devoted to the history of ink in China.

The story of printing-ink is then continued from its earliest use in Japan, Central Asia, India, Egypt, Palestine, Greece, Italy to the use of ink in the modern era. Chemical ingredients of ink, as used in these various countries, are stressed but the terminology used is that of a printer and not that of a chemist. One chapter is devoted to the history of plate and intaglio inks and another to the ink used in the modern offset process.

The concluding chapter (XX) is a sort of hellbox into which the author has thrown not waste material but good stuff about present day methods of ink making, the etymology of the term "ink," a bibliography which reviews books on printing-ink subjects, etc.

The volume is obviously a work of love on the part of Mr. Wiborg and represents a tremendous amount of research. So long as he keeps to ink he is doubtless an authority, but when he strays from his field and attempts to tell about the origin of newspapers he shows his unfamiliarity with the literature of the subject. The white surface on which was printed the news of the Roman Senate by the order of Julius Caesar consisted of a whitened board smeared with gypsum. This "news album" set up in the Roman Forum was more like a modern bulletin board than a newspaper. It was the origin of something like a newspaper for it was the source of news for professional news writers who copied its items to incorporate into news letters sent to patrons sojourning outside of Rome. But such minor slips in a field outside that of ink do not deserve detailed criticism.

Mr. Wiborg very frankly admits that the dispute as to whether Lourens Janszoon Coster of Haarlem, Holland, invented the art of printing with movable types, or whether the honor goes to Johnannes Gutenberg of Mainz, Germany, is a subject for the typographer rather than for the student of printing ink. Mention is made, however, that there are no authentic examples of printing by Coster and therefore no opportunity to study what he may have contributed to the science of ink-making. Examples of printing from the press of Gutenberg, however, are so numerous that the ink he used can be discussed with some fullness. Attention is called to the fact that irregularity in the color of ink on his pages was due to press work and not to a variation in ink. It certainly is remarkable that "pages which were printed between 1450-1456 are as bright as if they had just come from the press."

One of the many interesting sections of the books is where Mr. Wiborg records the history of the manufacturer of printing ink in America. Here, as elsewhere, he makes a very considerable contribution to the history of ink. During the Revolutionary War, for example, newspaper publishers had to use ink where fish oil had been substituted for imported linseed oil as a vehicle for the pigment. Credit is given to Charles Johnson of Philadelphia for establishing in America the first reglar printing-ink manufacturing plant (1804), although individual printers had for years been manufacturing their own inks and in some instances retailing it to others.

Interesting information is given about the amount of ink daily consumed by a metropolitan newspaper, the kind of ink best suited for newspaper work, etc. The old prints used to illustrate the volume add a peculiar charm. These show Chinese ink makers straining oil and compounding their inks, the early ink balls used on the hand press, etc. A valuable graph is given to represent the family tree of printing inks.

The publishers of the volume have done a fine piece of work for Mr. Wiborg. The cover is unusually attractive and is especially appropriate. It would be interesting to know whether the ink used in printing the book came from the plant of Ault and Wiborg. At any rate, a very fine grade of ink was used in printing this volume.

* * *

A GOOD book for the reference shelf is "Forestry Almanac," compiled and edited by the American Tree Association at Washington, D. C. Briefly, it tells about the work of the United States Forest Service, forestry in varied fields, and the activity of forestry associations. Especially valuable is the section outlining what is being done in forestry at the various educational institutions offering technical instruction in that subject.

Because newspapers are such heavy users of the raw material mention of this book is not out of place in "Our Own World of Letters." Various newspapers have paid editorial tributes to Charles Lathrop Pack, the president of the American Tree Association, who has done so much for American forestry.

PUBLISHER GIVES STAFF PICNIC

The Washington (N. C.) Daily News staff attended a banquet at Bayview, a resort near Washington, as the guests of the publisher, D. W. Bishop, on Saturday, July 31.

LONDON POST TO EXPAND

The London Morning Post has outgrown its present building on the famous site near the Strand and will soon move to a new home. Reduction of the subscription price from four to two cents a copy is said to have been successful.

Better Cross-Word Puzzles

Let us prove it by sending a week's service gratis.

Type and answers are matted

International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service
Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.
Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

DOMINANT!
in Pinellas County, Florida
Daily News
ST. PETERSBURG'S PICTURE PAPER
Owned by Frank Fortune Pulver
Edited by Major Alfred Birdsall
America's Biggest Tabloid
Florida's Fastest Growing Newspaper
To be assured of Complete Coverage—
USE THE NEWS
Represented by
GEORGE B. DAVID COMPANY
NEW YORK: 110 East 42nd Street
CHICAGO: 1010 Hartford Building

RADIO PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES
Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers
Send for samples and prices
AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

SOME FIGHTER—
SOME WRITER!
Capt. John W. Thomason, Jr.
AUTHOR OF Fix Bayonets
Ten magnificent chapters with 31 of the author's famous illustrations . . . absolutely the finest story of the war!!!
The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service
Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.
Six Pages Daily Illustrations in Mat Form
Write or wire for samples, price and territory.
Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Give the Comic Folk a Job Promoting Want Ads—Allentown Call Puts Ad Tip to Readers in Horoscope Feature—Motor Bus Routes New Classification in New York

VIRTUALLY all classified managers are now brightening up their classified pages with comic strips. The New York Herald Tribune recently broke tradition of many years for this very purpose.

Circulators, however, have the jump on most want-ad men. They have given the comic folk a job selling subscriptions. Andy Gump, for instance, now frequently appears in one-column promotion advertisements urging readers to invite him to come along on their vacation trips.

This week the question is asked: Why not let the funny people act as heralds for the classified page?

Several syndicates question by EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week are agreeable to the suggestion.

"If the characters are used to exploit a project of the newspaper itself it would be all right," Henry M. Snevily, general manager of the Bell Syndicate, Inc., declared. "We do not allow our characters to be used in copy put out by local or national advertisers, however.

"Naturally, because of contract arrangements, each character would have to be considered separately, before we could grant publishers permission to use them in their classified promotion copy."

"It's a corking idea," said Frank McCabe, classified advertising manager of the New York World. "Pictures add to the value of any kind of publicity.

Chester Nolan, classified advertising manager of the Brooklyn Eagle, frequently uses illustrations in his promotion copy, but he has never made use of the comic characters.

"Given a really popular comic figure, and the stunt would be most effective," he said.

"We have no objection to publishers using our comic characters to promote their classified pages in advertising copy," Harry Staton of the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate said, "although we are very strict in withholding our consent to outside advertisers."

Here would be an example:

The figures of the well-known Mutt and Jeff shown in a one column ad. The balloons would tell how much fun they'd had from a used car purchased after reading the (name of paper's) classified page. Then text of the advertisement could call attention to the day's page in the usual manner.

New York classified advertising managers are capitalizing on the present public interest in automobile bus tours and have started new classifications, which are meeting with good advertiser and reader-interest response.

Both Louis Heaton, classified manager of the Herald Tribune, and Frank McCabe, of the World, have added this new classification to their lists. In the Herald Tribune it is being promoted as "Motor Bus Routes" and in the World the classification is called "Motor Tours."

The latter paper, for the benefit of readers and to interest prospective advertisers in buying space has issued a complete schedule of motor tours. Mr. Heaton has organized an automobile bus tour information department for the Herald Tribune.

This box heads the Herald Tribune's new classification:

"For further information concerning motor bus tours write or phone Motor Bus Information Bureau."

The telephone extension given is Mr. Heaton's own desk.

"We receive many requests for information daily from readers," he said. 'One wanted to know how he could get to Florida by motor bus, another wanted to know how to get to Cleveland using the new method of transportation. We are gradually gathering together information covering the entire country."

Cancellations are not always easily checked. To protect readers and themselves the Columbus (O.) Citizen has a system whereby want ad clerks give out a kill number when a cancellation or stop order is received. Advertisers are urged to keep a memorandum of this number, because it indicates the time and the date of cancellation.

"For your own protection do not give cancellation orders to any employe who cannot give you a kill number," is the warning published by the Citizen.

John H. Finneran, classified advertising manager of the New York Times, is spending his vacation at Lake George. During his absence Carroll Schoenijahn is in charge.

The present season is said to be "house-cleaning-time" in the classified advertising departments of Chicago newspapers. In the summer months business in the classified advertising sections usually is dull. During this season the real selling ability of the solicitors may be noted. Many of the classified advertising managers of the newspapers take this time to observe the individual work accomplished, and the better solicitors are kept while the less competent ones are given opportunity to secure positions in other departments of the papers or to enter some other kind of work.

Early in September, however, the department chiefs strive to have the working force all organized and ready to meet the increasing fall business.

The Allentown (Pa.) Morning Call is using its daily horoscope feature to promote its want-ad section.

Slugged "Classified Ad Horoscope," the first paragraphs are concerned with the usual readings of the stars. In the last paragraph, however, the advice given is in regard to the agate pages.

For Aug. 4, for example, after telling readers the customary horoscope dope, the stars felt called upon to say:

"Read the Want Ads under the sign of Leo for special bargains in real estate."

Roy Johnson, who for the past three years has been a member of the classified advertising department of the Chicago Evening American, has resigned to take charge of the Classified Advertising Department of the Bellamy-Neff Company, 127 North Dearborn Street.

HONOR F. B. SMITH

LONDON, July 24.—Thomas McDougall, prominent advertising agent, this week enteretined at luncheon, on the occasion of the departure for the United States of Fred B. Smith, Chairman of the World Alliance of International Friendship, the following distinguished company: M. J. Clifford, Stephen Milliken, Percy Watson, Col. E. F. Lawson, E. J. Robertson, George Kingsley, T. B. Lawrence, Norman Bower, Wareham Smith, W. S. Crawford, Sir Charles Higham, F. H. Goodenough, Horace Imber, Sidney Walton and Jack Akeman. International good-will, war debts and popular understanding of world problems were discussed by the speakers.

LEGAL

INTERNATIONAL PAPER COMPANY
New York, June 30th, 1926.

The Board of Directors have declared a quarterly dividend of Fifty Cents (50c) a share on the Common Stock of this Company, payable August 16th, 1926, to Common stockholders of record at the close of business August 4th, 1926.

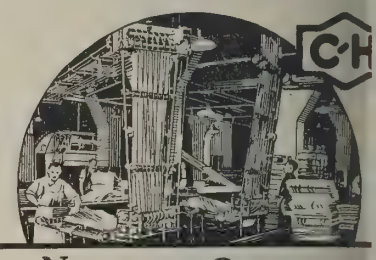
Checks will be mailed. Transfer books will not close.

OWEN SHEPHERD, Treasurer.

DROPS SATURDAY ISSUE

The Mansfield (O.) News has discontinued its Saturday evening edition, but will continue its Sunday morning paper. The price of the paper has been advanced from 12 to 15 cents.

Case Buys Papers in New York State



Levi Case has purchased the entire stock of the Wyoming County Times Corporation of Warsaw, N. Y. With the purchase, he becomes owner of five of the 11 newspapers published in Wyoming County.

MIAMI TAB PRESS RETURNED

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., Aug. 4.—A pre valued at about $50,000, a part of t equipment of the defunct Miami Te operated by Vanderbilt newspapers, In was ordered returned to the Duple Printing Press Company, Battle Cree Mich., in an order issued here today Judge Lake Jones of the United Stat District Court. John W. Brodix, Mian receiver, was instructed to turn the pre over to the Michigan concern followin a petition made to the court by attorne for the firm, stating that only a small pa ment had been made on the press.

Supplies—Equipment

Newspaper Conveyors

take the papers in a steady stream, as fast as the presses can deliver them, up, overhead, around corners, through a ceiling or a wall to wherever they're wanted for mailing or delivery. Eliminating waste and delay by their speedy, dependable operation they are profitable equipment for papers large or small. Newspaper plants from London to Tokio have been using them for years.

Let us tell you how you can speed deliveries from your presses.

The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Mfrs. of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue
MILWAUKEE, WISCONSIN
CUTLER-HAMMER

Carried in Stock

Some outstanding and exclusive features of The Goss Combination Wet and Dry Matrix Roller: Patented stretching roller produces dry mats without a wrinkle. Both ends of cylinder are set at same time. Heavy cast-iron cylinders with forged steel shafts. Extra heavy bed—no racks—large enough to run chase with columns crosswise. Rolls wet mats in 11¼ seconds; dry mats in 22½ seconds. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!

HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT
SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Equipment, new or used, can be bought or sold through
EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

Quite space charge at same rate per line per insertion as earned by frequency of insertion. Special rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. The Editor & Publisher reserves the right to classify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

Advertising Promotion—If you want more business, communicate with the International Publications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, 11 Broadway, New York City.

Newspaper Builder, responsibly connected in city of 350,000, offers a few publishers expert analysis and counsel by mail. This is a real proposition. A-704, Editor & Publisher.

BUSINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

$ 000 Cash will secure ownership of desirable daily newspaper in Illinois city of 13,000. Balance easy terms. Good property and fine future. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Two Weeklies and Job Plant, New York State; exclusive field; good circulation; liberal advertising patronage; earning handsome dividends on price asked; initial payment only $5,000; this is a real opportunity for quick buyer. J.B. Shale, Times Bldg., New York.

Interest for Sale

Half Interest for sale in money making evening daily in southwest. Fast growing city. Exclusive field. Buyer should have at least ten thousand. Property worth at least $75,000. Position of manager and good salary goes with sale. Owner interested in several other dailies. Address Von Goshorn, Tulsa Hotel, Tulsa, Oklahoma.

Printing

Newspapers and Publications printed—Finest workmanship—Lowest prices. Uptown News, 5 West 74th St., New York.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

Circulation—When quick, additional circulation storage becomes necessary, remember that our sixty years in this one line of endeavor is proof against experimenting. Write or wire Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell Block, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Circulation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Centre Ave., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesmanship Club Campaigns.

Paid Circulation—Try our "Opportunity Club" plan. Sherman & Eckert, 353 Northampton Street, Easton, Penna.

Newspapers Interested in securing quick results through an economical circulation promotion campaign in the early fall, may secure details from our Promotion Manager, care of Journal, New Haven, Conn., Union. The Albright Press Co., Palmyra, N. J.

Equipment

Newspaper Display Racks—The Steel Co., Box 10, Palmyra. N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Lansfield, Ohio, News and Martinsburg, W. Va. Journal are the new customers this week. For samples of a live, alert, up-to-date service write the Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Solicitor wanted by leading Middle newspaper in city of 40,000. Must be capable copy writer. State experience and salary expected. Address Telegraph-Herald, Dubuque, Ia.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Manager and Executive Wanted—Excellent opening for advertising manager of strong weekly and commercial printing plant. Converting weekly into a daily within a year. Prefer a man about 30 years of age who is aggressive and ambitious and when ability is demonstrated I am willing to sell part interest in plant and paper. Full particulars in first letter and conference necessary before final arrangements are made. Clayton Rand, Gulfport, Miss.

Business Manager wanted for weekly; Northern Ohio. State experience and salary wanted. Save stamps if your record as a producer is not A No. 1. Excellent prospects. Address Publisher, 5700 Train Ave., Cleveland, O.

Experienced Magazine Man Wanted to take complete charge poultry publication, 40,000 circulation, and invest $5,000, for substantial interest. Position will pay good salary. A man of editorial experience preferred. Give full particulars in first letter. G. M. DeMent, Montgomery, Alabama.

If Capable of Making Survey of newspaper mechanical departments you may acquire interest. A-687, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Vermont Daily seeks reporter with Vermont background, 22 to 32 years old, Should be capable of early growth to desk responsibilities, but genuinely devoted to reporting. Address A-705, Editor & Publisher.

Skilled Writer—A business service of high standing has an opening for a man of proved ability as a clear-headed thinker and writer. Business experience is desirable; trained brains essential. This job offers a good salary and a splendid opportunity to the right man. State your age, education, experience, and recent income. Your reply will be held in strict confidence. Address Box A-706, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager and Solicitor, employed, wishes a more satisfactory connection. Last year organized 4 community sales days, securing over 2,500 extra inches for each sale; sold 3 special editions 10, 14, 28 pages; sold 6 special pages, 26 weeks each; increased classified net revenue over 100%. This was in addition to developing new accounts and the regular routine and without assistance. A-699, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Solicitor—Young man with 6 years' record on metropolitan dailies and also advertising agency experience, looks for real opportunity. Now employed. A-1 references. Available at once. A-698, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Over 20 years' experience, wants responsible, permanent position in growing city. Hustler and profit producer, fully experienced in copy writing, lay-out and selling of advertising, local, national and classified. Married, Mason, Presbyterian. Will go anywhere. Available Sept. 1. Best of references. Address Lewis A. Jones, P. O. Box 93, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Advertising Manager—Classified Manager—Solicitor, now employed. Handles all local and national accounts, in or out of town. Travel representative. Over 12 years experience metropolitan newspapers. Experienced on magazine accounts. Promotion, publicity, merchandising. One whom a busy executive may rely upon. Excellent credentials. A-707, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising or Business Manager, with unquestionable record for maximum production, even under the most adverse conditions, contemplates making a change in the near future for purely personal reasons. Now employed in Southern city of 250,000. A thorough executive and big personal producer. No objection to second or third paper if real opportunity is offered. Age 33, married, excellent reputation. A-715, care Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Executive with fifteen years successful experience wants immediate change. Past record in building local, national and classified linage in both small and metropolitan cities is proof of my ability to organize and produce. Young, married. Write or wire for details and interview. A-712, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—12 years' experience, now employed, wants to connect with wide-awake newspaper where there is an opportunity for real development work. Capable executive, forceful copy writer and layout expert. Am a real business getter. Have always been able to show a satisfactory increase in linage. Age 33, married. Prefer a town of 50,000 to 200,000. Could be available September 1st. Reason for seeking change is that I want to locate in smaller city. Address "Advertising Manager," 1339 N. 15th Street. Philadelphia, Penna.

Business Manager, capable, knows newspaper accounting, 5 years present employment; 30 years of age, married. Prefer paper 20,000-50,000 circulation. Available Oct. 1. Address Box A-708, care Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant to Publisher, now employed, seeks change. Experienced in accounting, classified and display advertising, circulation and all branches of newspaper work. Familiar with large and small cities. A-680, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Business-Advertising Manager—Capable, hard hitting, straight thinking young advertising man, 15 years experience as copywriter, salesman, executive; now business manager in charge of advertising small city newspaper, will soon be available for similar position. Been through the mill from devil up. Fine record. Initial salary $85 or better. Address A-701, Editor & Publisher.

Boxing Writer—Have you an "Honest" boxing writer, not on any "list," who writes truthfully what he sees, learns, and believes, on your staff? One such awaits your call. Confidentially. A-697, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager, 33 years of age with ten years experience in circulation field. Wishes to connect with daily in Central States. Can furnish best of references and will be able to start to work at once. A-710, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Manager wants change. Practical experience in all branches of the work. Served in every position from carrier boy to circulation manager. City circulation manager of Northwest's greatest paper for four years. Circulation manager of large Central States Evening paper for four years. Best of references. Now employed. Address A-685, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation Man who can fill any position under manager in circulation department, desires opportunity on daily in New York or Pennsylvania. A-702, Editor & Publisher.

Classified Manager, twenty-eight, married, 7 years of successful experience with 3 newspapers and one advertising agency. Thoroughly experienced in increasing volume of classified advertising, and organizing and training salesforce to produce best results. At present employed on large West Coast daily. Prefer connection in city from 100,000 to 300,000. Salary secondary if results will determine future. A-716, Editor & Publisher.

Desk and Makeup Editor who can write good human interest features and report, wants change of position before September. Three years' experience, good references, college graduate. A-711, Editor & Publisher.

Editor or Managing Editor who knows newspaper making, including advertising and mechanical departments, is open for desirable connection where ability, experience, sound judgment and loyalty are appreciated. Splendid record as editorial writer. A-709, Editor & Publisher.

Editor or Managing Editor for a country weekly. Young, married, wide awake, has new ideas, knows what the people want. Will locate anywhere; can build up paper. Hard worker and has had experience. Excellent references. Albert R. Beatty, P. O. Box 72, Washington, New Jersey.

Editor or Managing Editor—Want permanent connection with daily afternoon paper in South. Now employed in responsible position with morning paper in Northern city of 70,000. Recently given promotion by present employer, and only reason for change is desire to return to native section. If you contemplate change this year, communicate with me. Best of references. Am willing to sign contract. A-682, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, City Desk and Feature Experience; capable in make-up, magazine direction; age thirty-four, married; on this job six years; trained in business management; credentials of the best; write A-695, Editor & Publisher.

Experienced Newspaper Man wants to join aggressive daily newspaper organization with opportunities for growth. Can invest $10,000. A-703, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Eight years' experience, 15 in game in metropolitan and smaller fields, voluntarily seeks desirable connection in city of 20,000 to 60,000. Strong editorial writer, knows men and news and how to handle both. College man, 39, no bad habits. Judgment safe, and no failures in record. Minimum salary $65. References and record gladly submitted. A-714, Editor & Publisher.

Mr. Circulation Manager. are you in need of an assistant—one that will carry through your ideas, plans and orders to the last letter. I am an expert on Home Delivery; familiar with all circulation promotion. Six years experience, metropolitan, provincial. Evening paper with over 75,000 preferred. At liberty with due notice. Good reference. A-700, Editor & Publisher.

News Editor—28, employed for last five years Sunday, telegraph and makeup editor on metropolitan dailies, desires similar position with wider scope of responsibility and opportunity. Would consider executive place on smaller daily. Salary must be adequate, but is secondary consideration. Am prepared to remain in present position until suitable opportunity is offered. B-666, Editor & Publisher.

Pressroom Superintendent with several years experience in charge of metropolitan papers with large circulation, would like to make permanent connection with publisher who desires a well printed newspaper. Will furnish good references as to character and ability. A-676, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Reporter—Young woman, university graduate with 3 years' newspaper experience desires reporting position in city of 500,000 or over, Excellent references. A-650, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Complete Newspaper Plant for sale. Two duplex tubular presses, complete stereotype equipment, seven Intertype machines, Ludlow machine, photographic and photo engraving departments, located San Francisco, installed ready to operate; also Wesel saw and planer and photo engraving plant at Miami, Florida. Address John W. Brodix, receiver, Vanderbilt Newspapers Inc., 56 Twelfth street, San Francisco, California.

Goss Straightline Press, 24-page, with complete stereotype equipment, all in fine condition. Current issues sent. Cheap for immediate sale. The Lima Morning Star, Lima, Ohio.

In addition to a complete line of newspaper presses, ranging from octuple to eight-page flat beds, we offer a Hoe Dry Mat Roller, Wood Dry Mat Roller, Hoe Mono-rail, Saw and Trimmer, Hoe Matrix Shears and a general line of equipment. Tell us what you need. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau St., New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Equipment Wanted

Press Wanted—Weekly wants twelve or sixteen page press, flat bed or rotary, with full equipment, stereotype, second hand, in first class condition. Give full details. News Letter, Orillia, Canada.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT
Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

BEGIN planning for a Labor Day spread of advertisements. One newspaper starting early in August last year, obtained three solid pages of advertisements, all of which had connection with Labor Day. Some were of the congratulatory type, while others recited briefly the history of labor in the city or its connection with the general progress of the community.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

Filene's in Boston devoted 1,500 line space recently to "current fashions"—sketches of clothes worn at country club races, a mighty timely feature, and salable to any goodly sized department store interested in style trends.—R. M. Campbell, Lowell, Mass.

Heat waves are occurring all over the country. People are looking everywhere for means of keeping cool. Why not start a section or space in your paper under the heading of "How to Keep Cool," and get the local electrical houses to advertise their fans, etc.; the ice cream houses to tell the virtues of their ice creams; the tonic dealers to tell of their product, and so on. There are many dealers who do no advertising that you could get with the logic and timeliness of this appeal.—C. E. Pellissier, Boston, Mass.

During the next few weeks every paper in an agricultural community will "pass up" increased linage if a special "Harvest Sales" edition is not offered to its advertisers. The fall is the season when the farmer gets the greater part of his money for his year's labor.—Davis O. Vandivier.

A newspaper in Indiana just recently woke up to the fact that it should advertise its job department—blotters, hand bills, cards, signs, etc.—and as a result has increased its business. Or, if you do not have a job department, go after the small printing shops in your town. Get three or four of these to co-operate in one ad.—Ralph Gibler, Huntington, Ind.

A log of auto trips which can be made in a half day, or not more than a day, has proved to be a big feature for the Marion (Illinois) Daily Republican for the past two summers. A map which is drawn on a chalk plate is used to illustrate each of the tours. Not only has it been a feature which has been followed up by auto owners in arranging their Sunday outings, but it has been the means of securing ads from filling stations, oil companies, auto accessory dealers, kodak finishing and barbecue stands. —W. O. Paisley, Marion (Ill.) Republican-Leader.

A "Who's Who and Where" contest in the Sioux Falls, (S. D.) Argus Ledger featured advertisements from 15 leading Sioux Falls business houses. In each of the advertisements the firm name was left blank, leaving the reader the problem of identifying the advertiser. Before submitting answers, readers were required to go to each of the 15 business houses to register. Prizes totaling $80 were offered for originality, correctness and neatness in submitting answers to the Argus Leader. contest editor.—L. E. Childers, South Dakota State College.

A book page recently developed by a Northwest paper showed how much interesting material can be worked up about books and authors of most any local section of the country. The Northwest book page was supported also by ads of the book stores and book departments which advertised the various books written by the men and women of that section.—C. M. L., Seattle, Wash.

Where are the "Fix-It Shops" located in your city. Get up a half-page or page devoted to the ads of such shops, put an appropriate heading over it and get all such shops in your city to advertise on the page.—Frank H. Williams, 815 South Van Ness avenue, Santa Ana, California.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

CONGESTED main roads are driving more and more motorists to seek out the lesser used thoroughfares for pleasure riders, especially on Sundays and holidays. Most towns, particularly in the older sections of the country—as in New England, for example—are surrounded by veritable networks of back roads that are usually in fair condition in the late summer and early fall and that are far more interesting and much pleasanter than the through routes. Look up trips over these secondary roads and run a series of Saturday stories. Pictures will help. If none of the regular staff can handle the assignment, it should be easy to secure the co-operation of some local automobilist—perhaps an official of an automobile club in the vicinity.—T. A. Hulbert, Winsted (Conn.) Evening Citizen.

Tobacco dealers in some localities declare that dark, gloomy days cause their sales to fall far below the average, while bright, sunny days cause them to rise far above the average. Why? Interview your dealers, and also talk with smokers and obtain their reasons for smoking more on pleasant days.—Cyril E. Lamb, Ypsilanti, Mich.

When police of Salt Lake City recently began holding pedestrians as well as motorists to traffic regulations in congested districts, the Deseret News assigned a staff man to assist the officers in a campaign of education. The News observer wrote a daily article on flagrant violations of traffic rules which was preceded by a list of cars he noted ignoring regulations, giving the place where the breach of the law was observed, the time, and the section of the ordinances violated. Numbers of cars which were first offenders were not published, but a second violation of the same section of the traffic rules called for publication of the license number. The series was featured under a two column heading on page one with a two-column boxed slogan intended to impress upon careless drivers and "jay-walkers" the dangers of ignoring the law.—N. C. Christensen, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Farmers' wives come in contact with the newspaper editorial departments but infrequently. Consequently their names appear little in print. With this thought in mind, one newspaper assigned a photographer and reporter to get some pictures and brief interviews with various housewives in its community.—B. A. Springfield, Ohio.

For many months the Rocky Mountain News, Denver, has been working weekly stunt in its Sunday paper, whi is building strong interest in the autom bile section. The scheme is this: Si pictures of automobile licenses are pu lished every week in the different aut mobile pages. After furnishing t proper identification credentials, t owners, whose licenses are pictured each week's pick, are given suital awards made by a Denver automobile accessory dealer. Fuel, tools and extr are the most frequent prizes. The p tures are snapped at various times a places by a staff photographer. Deale have been glad to participate in the pri awards for the publicity mentions. MSM, Denver.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER covers the fie

"Soch a Life"
By J. L. LEIBSON
A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in
One Thousand Word Stories
Illustrated by the well known artist
ALBERT LEVERING
The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
"Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

BY UNITED PRESS
AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK
UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York

How To Play
GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game
24 LESSONS
Illustrated
For release daily
KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service
Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.
4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates
NEA SERVICE INC. 1200 W. 3RD. STREET, CLEVELAND, OHIO

Let Us Tell You
—about our plan of securing advertising from manufacturers, industrial plants, jobbers, wholesalers and other concerns in your city who are now spending their appropriations for other forms of advertising.
Let us explain how we can place this business in your paper regularly without selling expense to you. WRITE—
THOS. W. BRIGGS CO.
COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS • • TENN.

Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series
Chicago Journal · Detroit News · Toledo Blade · Omaha Bee · Peoria Star Journal · Philadelphia Sun · Buffalo Times · Louisville Courier J'l · Oakland Post Enquirer · Memphis News Scimitar · Newark Jersey Transcript
Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory
COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY
Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

NEW ENGLAND—Where City follows City in an endless procession

A concentrated area is this great territory of New England, where city follows city and town follows town in an endless procession.

And every town is well kept, the pride of its citizens. There is something homelike about these progressive New England towns, cities and villages. In every municipality are substantial mills and factories, manufacturing every known type of product, and wages are higher than in many other sections of the United States.

Reach the buyers of this concentrated area through the daily papers listed below, which reach the home-loving families of New England.

MASSACHUSETTS—Population, 3,852,356

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Attleboro Sun .....(E)	5,845	.03	.03
Boston Globe .....(M&E)	287,590	.50	.50
Boston Globe .....(S)	332,282	.55	.55
*Boston Transcript ....(E)	38,807	.20	.20
Boston Post .....(M)	377,443	.60	.60
Boston Post .....(S)	349,596	.55	.55
Fall River Herald-News (E)	22,000	.06	.06
Fitchburg Sentinel ...(E)	11,828	.06	.045
*Haverhill Gazette ....(E)	15,729	.065	.05
††Lynn Item .....(E)	16,699	.065	.05
††Lowell Courier-Citizen and Evening Leader ..(M&E)	21,918	.07	.07
New Bedford Standard Mercury (M&E)	33,321	.10	.10
New Bedford Sunday Standard (S)	28,806	.10	.10
North Adams Transcript (E)	9,918	.0425	.035
††Pittsfield Eagle .....(E)	17,011	.05	.05
Salem News .....(E)	21,398	.09	.07
††Taunton Gazette ....(E)	9,279	.05	.04
Worcester Telegram-Gazette (M&E)	92,314	.28	.25
Worcester Sunday Telegram (S)	51,096	.21	.18

NEW HAMPSHIRE—Population, 443,683

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Concord Monitor-Patroit (E)	5,215	.0375	.025
††Keene Sentinel .....(E)	3,887	.036	.023
Manchester Union Leader (M&E)	29,368	.13	.10

RHODE ISLAND—Population, 604,397

††Newport Daily News..(E)	6,271	.0336	.0293
Pawtucket Times .....(E)	27,849	.07	.07
Providence Bulletin ..(E)	68,815	.18	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(M)	36,416	.11	(B).25
Providence Journal ..(S)	70,518	.18	.18
Providence News ....(E)	29,123	.08	.08
Providence Tribune....(E)	21,961	.10	.09
Westerly Sun .....(E&S)	4,950	.025	.025
Woonsocket Call ....(E)	14,508	.05	.05

VERMONT—Population, 352,428

Barre Times .....(E)	7,112	.03	.025
††Bennington Banner ....(E)	3,144	.0125	.0125
Brattleboro Reformer ..(E)	3,370	.03	.0175
Burlington Free Press (M)	13,071	.05	.05
Rutland Herald .....(M)	11,038	.04	.04
††St. Johnsbury Caledonian-Record (E)	4,055	.03	.0175

CONNECTICUT—Population, 1,380,631

	Circulation	2,500 lines	10,000 lines
Bridgeport Post-Telegram (E&M)	42,743	.15	.15
Bridgeport Post .....(S)	21,162	.10	.10
Hartford Courant ....(M)	33,003	.08	.08
Hartford Courant .....(S)	56,274	.11	.11
Hartford Times .....(E)	53,121	.13	.13
Middletown Press ....(E)	8,359	.0325	.03
††New Haven Register (E&S)	46,218	.14	.13
New London Day.....(E)	12,054	.07	.045
††Norwich Bulletin ....(M)	12,724	.07	.05
Norwalk Hour .....(E)	6,107	.04	.04
††South Norwalk Sentinel (E)	5,043	.04	.025
Stamford Advocate ..(E)	10,329	.05	.04

A. B. C. Publisher's Statement, March 31, 1926.

††Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

(B) Combination rate Daily Journal and Eve. Bulletin.

87 per cent of New York Telegram circulation today is either in those districts of Manhattan where the greatest purchasing ability is found, or in the business and financial districts where the Telegram is bought by busy business people bound home each evening to these home districts of upper Manhattan or to the similar close-in localities of the other boroughs

or the suburbs

Average net paid super-circulation for the months of May and June, 1926, was 216,147

THIS ISSUE: PRESS CENSORSHIP IN WARTIME.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America 1926

SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 12 | NEW YORK, AUGUST 14, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

Now ROTOGRAVURE!

Experienced editorship
The News was the first and is the most successful of all current pictorial tabloid newspapers.

The world's finest pictures
From the crack staff of The News, and from the fourteen branch offices and fifteen hundred resident correspondent cameramen of Pacific & Atlantic Photos, The News-Chicago Tribune international picture syndicate—affording exclusive selection of the best news and feature pictures available.

Exclusive features
To add new interest to an already unusually interesting and attractive metropolitan Sunday newspaper.

Highest visibility
Rotogravure presentation on the thousand agate line tabloid page.

Strongest reader interest
This new Rotogravure section will be the most attractive all-picture part of the tabloid size, pictorial Sunday News.

Printed by Art Gravure
One of the largest independent producers of fine gravure printing in the United States. The Sunday News Rotogravure will be their largest run.

Special stock
Standard forty-five pound rotogravure paper, the best rotogravure stock available.

Late closing
Advertising deadline is only fifteen days before date of issue—third preceding Saturday.

Lowest cost
Rotogravure advertising at the lowest milline rate in the country—only one-third more than regular black and white Sunday News rates.

CIRCULATION
in excess of 1,200,000
Approximately 75% city and suburbs

LOWEST ROTO MILLINE
Rate in America

Per line, one time . . .	$2.00 milline	$1.66
5,000 lines or 13 insertions	1.90 milline	1.58
10,000 lines or 26 insertions	1.80 milline	1.50

in the Sunday News—
A 16-page section every Sunday starting October 10, 1926

175 pages sold in the first ten days!

—because News rotogravure represents a superlative new selling force of wide and concentrated coverage, of unique effectiveness, of unparalleled economy. Equivalent magazine presentation in rotogravure, the finest pictorial presentation possible; in a section of the highest visibility and greatest interest, first to be seen and read in a picture paper; in the tabloid size, making all space do more work; before the largest newspaper circulation in America; at the lowest roto milline rate in America! So the space buyer who knows his stuff has grabbed it! And every advertiser in the New York Market will profit by considering it. ❦ ❦ One thing more—The Sunday News has grown at a rate of approximately 200,000 copies a year. Rotogravure will push this circulation up farther. Buy News rotogravure as current advertisers have always bought the News—on a bull market steadily rising. ❦ ❦ Get the facts, and get the orders in now to earn the introductory rates for a year!

THE NEWS
New York's Picture Newspaper

Tribune Tower, Chicago — 25 PARK PLACE, NEW YORK

You may deal with these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers as with one publication. Uniform marketing help is provided by the "Iowa plan."

Your whole sales problem is simplified—in Iowa

Here you have an unusually responsive market, best of distribution facilities and —in addition—the actual marketing help of our "Iowa plan."

When we say "unusually responsive market," we refer to such facts as these:

The average taxable wealth for every man, woman and child in Iowa is $4,146. (That of the entire U. S. A. is $2,731.)

Iowa has more telephones, proportionately, than any other state—67% above the nation's average.

Has the smallest percentage of illiteracy (less than 1%).

In Iowa, the percentage of people 18 years old who have finished high school is twice as great as in the Nation at large.

Iowa now has an automobile for every 3.7 persons. The average Iowa farmer has only a few minutes drive to his shopping center.

You can best reach these preferred prospects through their favorite reading material—their own daily newspapers.

One or more of these 28 leading Iowa daily newspapers goes into practically every home in the state. Total circulation — 571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000.

For any sales effort in this territory, you will find our merchandising help very valuable.

Rates of these publications will be sent upon request—also full details of what our uniform co-operation means to you.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

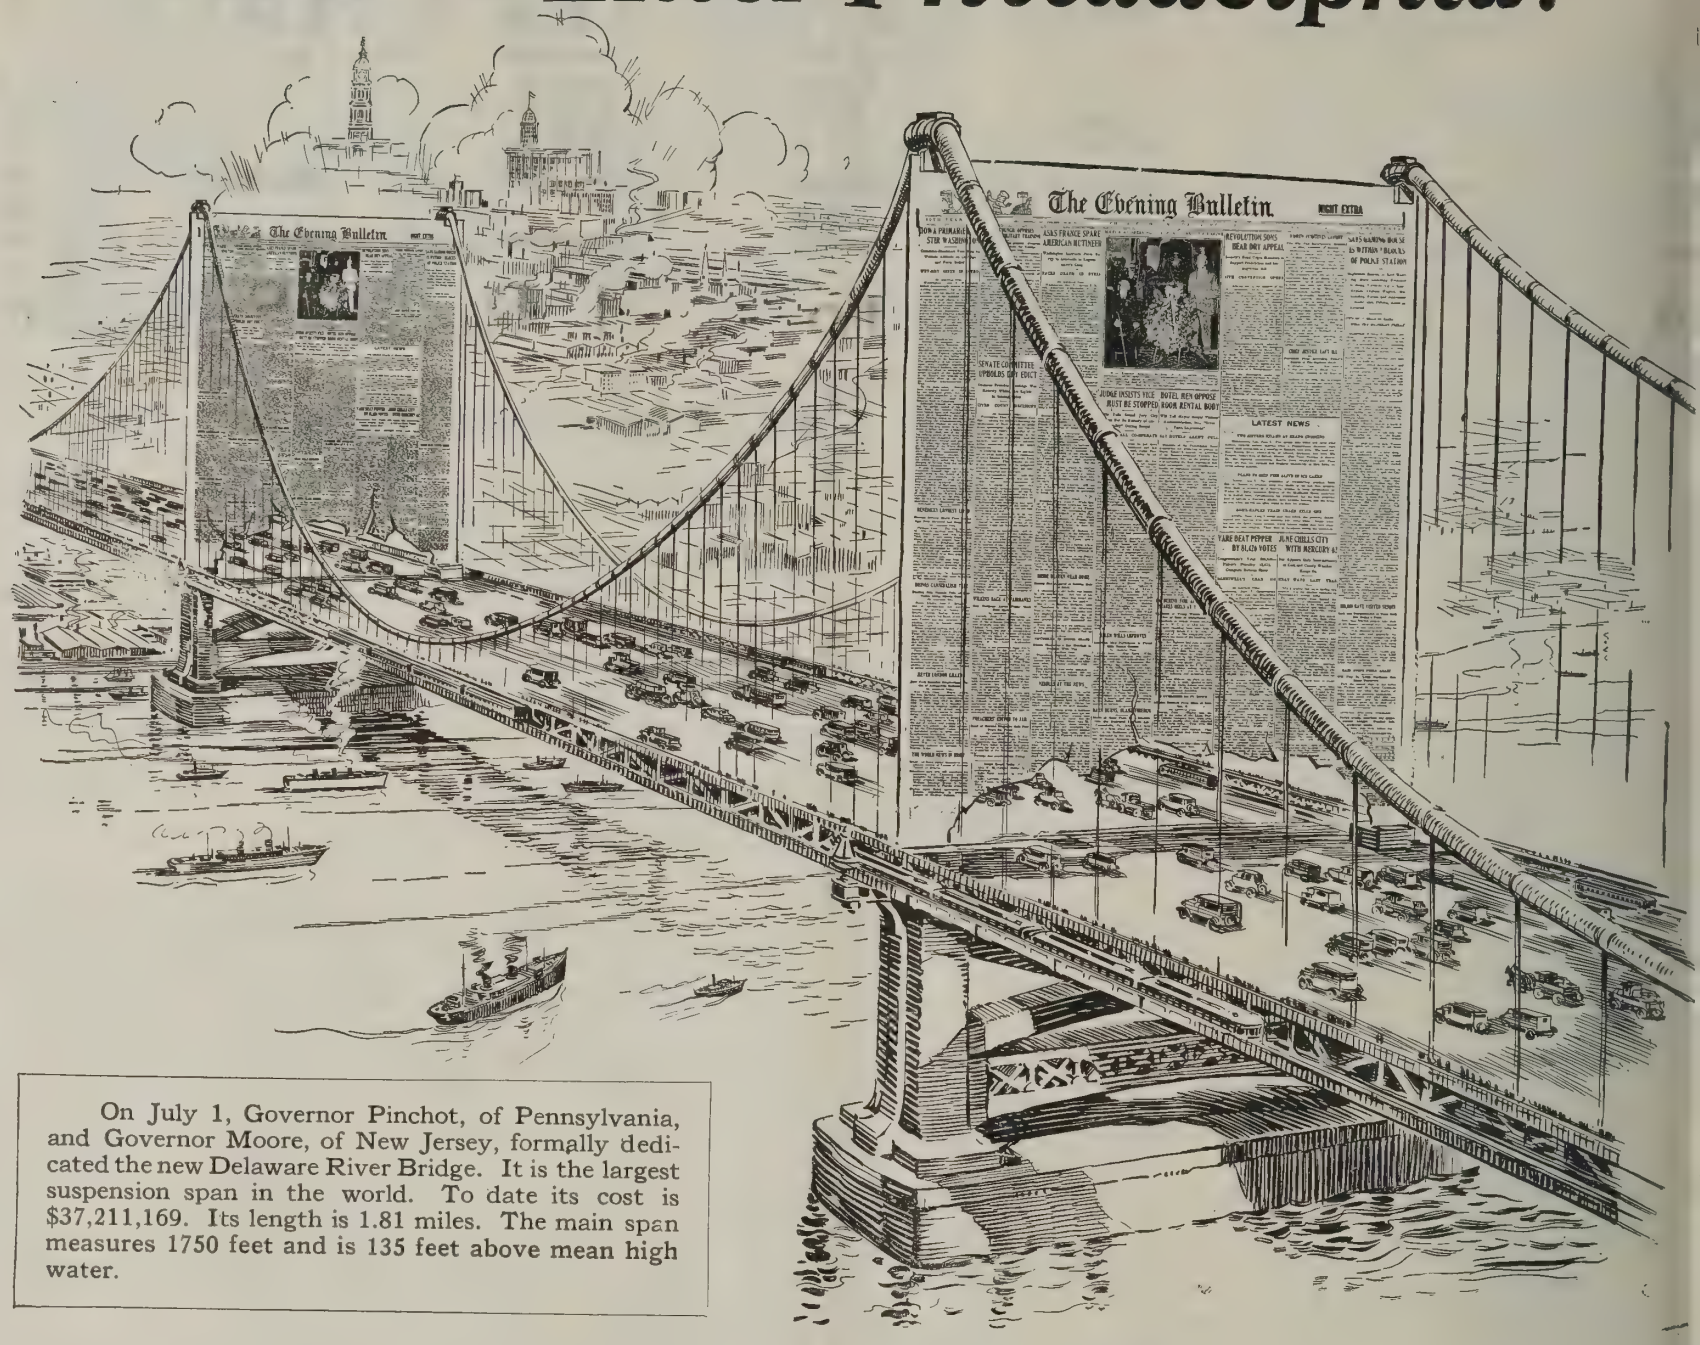
— and in July second in National Advertising in the morning field on week-days

After leading for March, April, May and June, 1926, in volume of national advertising published in the morning field on week days in New York—the world's greatest market—the Herald Tribune dropped back to second place in July.

One more advertisement the size of the panel on the left—107 lines single column—would have maintained the Herald Tribune's dominance in week day national advertising in the morning field, a classification of advertising considered by experts as a barometer of the purchasing power of a newspaper's readers.

106 lines of national advertising separated the first two morning newspapers. The actual totals as supplied by the Statistical Department of the New York Evening Post are:



Times - -	256,108 lines
Herald Tribune	256,002 lines
Difference	106 lines

LEADING

Among all morning or evening newspapers published in the United States, the Herald Tribune made the greatest gain in total advertising lineage during the first six months of 1926. The actual gain of the Herald Tribune was 1,847,996 lines, which is a further indication of the rapidly increasing dominance of the Herald Tribune in New York, the world's greatest market.

NEW YORK Herald Tribune

How to Enter Philadelphia!

On July 1, Governor Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, and Governor Moore, of New Jersey, formally dedicated the new Delaware River Bridge. It is the largest suspension span in the world. To date its cost is $37,211,169. Its length is 1.81 miles. The main span measures 1750 feet and is 135 feet above mean high water.

The Evening Bulletin is the Main Support of the "Bridge" between the Advertiser and the Philadelphia Consumer

The population of the Philadelphia retail area is about 3,300,000. U. S. Census figures give 4.5 persons to a family in this—America's third largest market.

Divide the population by 4.5 and the result will show you how completely this one newspaper covers this field.

"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads The Bulletin"

Dominate Philadelphia

Create maximum impression at one cost by concentrating in the newspaper "nearly everybody" reads—

The Evening Bulletin

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

533,169 copies a day

Average daily net paid circulation for the six months ending March 31, 1926. The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper and is the third largest in the United States.

(Copyright 1926—Bulletin Company)

New York—247 Park Avenue (Park-Lexington Bldg.)
Chicago—Verree & Conklin, Inc., 28 East Jackson Boulevard
Detroit—C. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 321 Lafayette Boulevard
San Francisco—Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 681 Market St.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, AUGUST 14, 1926 | No. 12

A. B. C. Proposal to Add Rate Service Discussed By Many Publishers

Some Newspaper Men Argue That Dues Should Be Reduced Before Bureau Attempts to Enter Field Foreign to That for Which It Was Organized—Fear Effort to Standardize Rate Changes

NEWSPAPER publisher members of the Audit Bureau of Circulations will go to the annual meeting of that body in Chicago during October prepared for a rigorous discussion of the Bureau's proposal that advertising rate cards be printed on the fourth page of semi-annual publishers' statements of circulation. This is indicated by a telegraphic poll made this week by EDITOR & PUBLISHER of prominent publisher members of the A. B. C. in all parts of the country. Opinion appears to be about evenly divided between those favoring the proposal and its opponents, the latter group including the New York City members.

Opposition is apparently based on three grounds:

1. That the function of the bureau is to audit circulation and to render audited reports to advertiser members and that the proposal to include rate cards with this service is a step beyond the proper bounds of service.

2. That the surplus funds which the Bureau will employ to perform this service should be used rather to reduce the fees paid by publisher members, especially the newspaper members, whose dues total more than 80 per cent of the A. B. C. income.

3. That the Bureau's expressed hope that rate changes be made by publishers to coincide with the issuance of semi-annual publishers' statements of circulation is contrary to good management policies and might become a severe handicap to newspapers whose increasing circulation might require more than two new rate cards a year. The rate card printed on a semi-annual circulation statement might be obsolete some months before a new circulation statement could be issued, with consequent disputes between publishers and advertisers.

The Bureau specifically disclaims any effort to force publishers into line. It is not intended, according to Stanley Clague, managing director, to compel publishers to furnish rate cards to the Bureau. The stated purpose is to centralize circulation and advertising rate information for the space-buyer, thereby saving the time needed to use several reference works and the money invested in additional services and filing space for their use and storage.

Behind this, some newspaper men see an effort by national advertisers to counteract the frequent rate increases by newspapers during the past few years by getting a more or less "official" time for rate card changes.

In New York, where all newspaper members last week voted not to supply rate cards to the Bureau, the "feeling being that A. B. C. statements should be confined to circulation only," it is understood that the chief objection lies in the use of the Bureau's $170,000 surplus for this new scheme rather than for the reduction of dues, long advocated by publishers and opposed by the Bureau's directors.

The replies received by EDITOR & PUBLISHER to a telegraphic inquiry this week divide roughly into two groups, one opposing the plan and the other wholeheartedly supporting it. There is apparently no "middle of the road" school of thought. Opposition is based upon one or all of the three points cited above, while advocacy in general follows the Bureau's arguments for the economy of centralized media information.

New York City members were reluctant to discuss their viewpoint beyond this expression of the four-line summary which was sent to members and to EDITOR & PUBLISHER from the office of the local publishers' association:

"The New York City publisher members of the A. B. C. at a recent meeting voted not to incorporate advertising rate cards in the A. B. C. circulation statements, the feeling being that A. B. C. statements should be confined to circulation only."

Individual members of the New York City group protested that it was unfair to publishers for the Bureau to institute a new and extraneous service with funds that might be used to reduce the fees now paid by newspaper members.

Mr. Clague informs EDITOR & PUBLISHER that the general tenor of communications from newspaper members since the announcement has been favorable. He furnished copies of extracts from letters written by upward of 50 newspaper executives all complimenting the Bureau on the new step and calling it "a splendid move," "excellent," "a forward step," "great advantage," etc. No criticism or suggestion or criticism appeared in any of the comments issued by Mr. Clague.

A. B. C. RATE CARD PLAN—PRO AND CON

INCLUSION of rate cards as part of the information on semi-annual publishers' statements was recently proposed by the Audit Bureau of Circulations.

The directors' belief was stated that consolidation of circulation and advertising rate data would save the space-buyer's time and therefor be of advantage to publishers.

It was also hoped, the board stated, that eventually it would be possible to make rate changes conform to the semi-annual publication of circulation statements.

Many publisher members agree with these views, but others regard the Bureau's proposal as a step outside of its proper functions. The opponents also declare that the Bureau should reduce dues if its surplus permits such a new enterprise. Most publishers oppose the principle of an actual or implied limit on rate card adjustments.

Beyond the Bureau's Function

E. H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo News, said:

"I feel that the Audit Bureau of Circulations should confine its efforts entirely to the field of circulation investigation, authenication and audits. It was for this purpose and no other that it was formed. If the Bureau goes beyond the bounds of its intended function, duplication and unnecessary expense will result. I am therefore opposed to the inclusion of advertising rate information, etc., in the semi-annual reports."

Can't Limit Rate Changes

George B. Dealey, publisher of the Dallas News and Journal, said:

"I would oppose any plan of the A. B. C. which seeks to regulate the time of changing our advertising rate card to conform to its publication of semi-annual publishers' statements. The time of changing our rate card will be governed solely by the condition of this firm's business.

"Aside from this, I have no objection to the A. B. C. reproducing our advertising rate card as of the date that the card bears, provided the plan is to publish rate cards of all or practically all member newspapers. We consider that this has some value to newspapers."

Ample Chance for Protest

T. R. Williams, vice-president of the Pittsburgh Gazette Times and Chronicle Telegraph, said:

"If newspaper members are dissatisfied with the proposal of the A. B. C. to print newspaper rate cards on the fourth page of the A. B. C. reports, the machinery is well provided in the A. B. C. organization for taking care of matters of this kind.

"The A. B. C. newspaper advisory committee came into existence several years ago for the purpose of taking care of matters of this kind and if members will send their reasons for objecting to the newspaper advisory committee, I, as a member, shall be glad to use my influence with other members to have these complaints taken up with the bureau's board of directors in the regular routine manner.

"It seems to me it would be better in a case of this kind to use the A. B. C. machinery already provided for adjusting such matters rather than starting a campaign of some other kind among the membership that may be misunderstood and misinterpreted."

Stick to the Old Job!

F. G. Bonfils, publisher of the Denever Post, said:

"We are of the opinion that the Audit Bureau of Circulations has a tremendous duty to perform in its recognized field.

"To correctly and honestly investigate and report on the actual paid circulation of the publications of its membership is certainly a big job, and we feel that all of its efforts should be devoted exclusively to this very necessary undertaking.

"Publishers, we feel sure, will resent any interference directly or indirectly with their rate cards, or when or how often they shall be published, changed or altered.

"In our estimation such interference is clearly outside the purpose for which the Audit Bureau of Circulations was created.

"We believe most emphatically that the A. B. C. should continue, as in the past, to devote all of its energies to reliable and authentic circulation reports."

No Advantage

A. F. Seested, General Manager of the Kansas City Star, said:

"Inasmuch as the Audit Bureau of Circulations was founded solely for the purpose of verifying and certifying circulations, the proposal to reproduce rate card with publishers' semi-annual statement and suggestion of semi-annual rate changes, it seems to me, is outside of the Bureau's sphere and meddling with matters which do not concern it. Besides I am unable to see the advantage of the proposition to either advertisers or publishers. I am opposed to the proposal."

Favors Centralization, But—

Curtis B. Johnson, president of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, said:

"It has been my thought that the incorporation of the rate card in publishers semi-annual A. B. C. statements would probably be a good thing, in asmuch as having the rates before the space buyers at the time the circulation of the publication is being considered, would to an extent at least facilitate the agency or advertiser reaching a decision on the particular publication then up for consideration.

"However, in my opinion any effort on the part of the A. B. C. to say to their members when they shall issue new rate cards or make changes, should, and I believe, will be, very strenuously opposed.

"In the case of the Charlotte Observer, we have found it necessary to send out two new rate cards within the past twelve months on account of the rapidly increasing circulation of this newspaper. Had we been restricted by the A. B. C. in sending out these new cards, it would have resulted in an expensive handicap and such a restriction on the part of the A. B. C. should not, and I am certain will not be permitted by the newspapers of the country."

EDITOR & PUBLISHER CALENDAR

Aug. 20-21—Washington Press Assn., annual meeting, Hotel Davenport, Spokane, Wash.

September 14-18—Press Congress of the World, Geneva.

Sept. 20-23—Financial Advertisers Assn., annual convention, Detroit, Mich.

Sept. 20-23—Advertising Specialty Assn., Hotel Sherman, Chicago.

Sept. 20-22—Georgia Press Assn., annual meeting, Louisville, Ga.

Sept. 21-22—National Publishers Assn., annual convention, Shawnee-on-the-Delaware.

Sept. 23-25—Missouri Press Assn., annual convention, Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Sept. 27—Directory and Media Department, I. A. A. meeting, Hotel Commodore, New York.

Sept. 30-Oct. 1—Illinois Press Assn., annual convention, Campaign-Urbana, Ill.

No Need for Service

F. J. Oexman, manager of national advertising Cincinnati Times-Star, said:

"While we see no real objection to adding the rate card information to the circulation figures in the A.B.C. statements, this change would seem uncalled for as the Standard Rate & Data Service already functions very effectively in furnishing this information to advertisers. We do not approve of the suggestion that rate changes be made semi-annually."

Time Limit Intolerable

E. J. Lynett, publisher of the Scranton (Pa.) Times, said:

"I have not seen the text of the proposed change of Audit Bureau rules, but if it proposes to force members to change rate cards for advertising every six months according to the variations of circulation, it is an invasion of the rights of publishers to conduct their own business in their own way, which seems to me to be beyond the jurisdiction of the Audit Bureau of Circulations or any other outside organization.

"I have regarded some of the rules of the Audit Bureau of Circulations as rather drastic, but have heretofore gone along with them because their application was uniform throughout the country and other publishers have submitted to them. I will be pleased to go along with publishers who will oppose the proposed new provisions. I am of opinion that they are intolerable."

Can't Understand Opposition

John B. Perkins, advertising manager of the Sioux City (Iowa) Journal:

"I was greatly pleased to learn that the Audit Bureau of Circulations would on Sept. 30 and following publishers statements, print on the back page the newspaper's rate card. I am at a loss to comprehend how any publisher should object to this feature or why they should consider the publication of same as 'Intimate Details.' Surely we are not ashamed of our rate cards nor averse to all the publicity we can get."

No Outrage on Newspapers

H. S. Scott, general manager Detroit News, said:

"We fully realize the difficulty on the part of the Audit Bureau of Circulations to please everybody where the interests of publishers, agencies and advertisers are all so intimately concerned.

"On the face of the proposal to include production rate card in publishers semi-annual statements, and that rate changes shall not be more frequent than semi-annually, we do not see where publishers' rights or dignity are being outraged especially when you consider the achievements of the Audit Bureau of

(Continued on page 18)

ONE-CENT P. M. PAPER FOR WINSTON-SALEM

Journal, Morning and Sunday, Announces It Will Add Afternoon Edition When Its New Plant Is Complete

The Winston-Salem (N. C.) Journal, a morning and Sunday newspaper, announces that it will soon establish a one-cent afternoon paper, to be known as the afternoon Journal. The paper has already contracted for both day and night services of the International News Service and the Consolidated Press. The Journal is now building a new home which will be one of the finest newspaper plants in the south.

Owen Moon, Jr.

It is presumed that the afternoon paper will be started when the paper moves into its new plant. A Scott octuple press will be installed.

The Journal was purchased about a year ago by Owen Moon, former publisher of the Trenton (N. J.) Times. It is represented in the national advertising field by the Kelly-Smith Company, New York and Chicago.

A. P. STARTS SPEEDIER FINANCIAL SERVICE

Use of Printers Under New System Enables Press Association to Clear Wires of Stock Tables One Hour After Exchange and Curb Closing

San Francisco newspapers are now printing closing prices of the New York stock exchange in their noon editions, where formerly such service was not possible until between 2 or 2:30 p. m. Pacific time.

This increase in speed is a reflection of a change throughout the entire double trunk circuit of the Associated Press, which went into effect Aug. 1.

"Under the new financial system we are able to clear all New York stock and curb lists by four o'clock daylight saving time," Milton Garges, traffic superintendent, said this week, announcing the new service. "This increased speed is made possible by the use of printer machines, instead of Morse operators.

"By making adjustments and by using some code, we are now able to handle the entire stock table in 40 minutes and other lists in proportion. It formerly required more than an hour using Morse wires."

Mr. Garges said that speeding up the A. P. financial service has made it possible for the press association to clear its wires of all markets and routine by 5 o'clock every afternoon. At that time early leads for morning papers are started.

STORES DONATE SPACE TO CITY

Nine New York stores, members of the Retail Dry Goods Association, have promised Health Commissioner Harris space in their daily advertisements to facilitate an early closing of his stagger census. They are: Oppenheim, Collins & Co., Bloomingdale Brothers, McCreery & Co., Lord & Taylor, Gimbel Brothers, B. Altman & Co., Franklin Simon & Co., and R. H. Macy & Co.

EDITOR DALE'S FUND

EDITOR & PUBLISHER hereby acknowledges, in fraternal appreciation, the following contributions to the fund being collected to defray the cost of appealing to the United States Supreme Court the case of George R. Dale, Muncie (Ind.) editor, denied the right to a "truth as justification" defense in a contempt of court case.

It is estimated that the appeal will cost $5,000. Editor Dale has been financially broken. Newspaper men have raised about $2,000 to date. Following are contributions sent through EDITOR & PUBLISHER:

J. C. Brimblecom, Newton (Mass.) Graphic	$ 10
Allen W. Clark, American Paint Journal Co., Inc., St. Louis	5
Samuel J. Barber, Havana (Ark.) Rural Record	10
C. C. Hamlin, Colorado Springs (Colo.) Gazette	100

LIBEL CHARGE FILED BY CANCER INSTITUTE

Organization in Taylorville, Ill., Demands $250,000 in Charging Conspiracy Against Fishbein, Medical Journal Editor

A $250,000 libel suit was filed in circuit court, Taylorville, Ill., on Aug. 9, by the Hoxide Cancer Institute, naming Dr. Morris Fishbein, of Chicago, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the Breeze Printing Company of Taylorville, and Frank Reed, its editor, as defendants.

The suit, the second filed by the Institute, charges a conspiracy to ruin the Hoxide Institute by a campaign of libel and misrepresentation. It alleges that the American Medical Association has condemned the Hoxide method of treating cancer as a "fake," without an investigation.

The first damage action was against the American Medical Association and was for $500,000. It has not come to trial.

ROTO SECTION PLANNED FOR N. Y. DAILY NEWS

J. W. Barnhart Announces Details of New Enterprise to Be Started Sunday, Oct. 10—Overholt Named Picture Editor

Details of the new Sunday rotogravure section of the New York Daily News to be published beginning Oct. 10 were announced this week by J. W. Barnhart, buriness manager.

The contract to print the section was signed with the Art Gravure Company of New York. New machinery is being ordered to take care of the News' roto, which, according to Mr. Barnhart, will be the largest issue of rotogravure in point of circulation ever printed. An initial print order for 1,350,000 copies has been made.

The roto section will be the same size as the regular tabloid daily—200 lines on five columns.

E. L. Overholt has been named rotogravure editor. A new department has been created to supervise advertising. J. H. Reilly, formerly of the national advertising department of the Daily News, has been appointed to take charge of national advertising; J. W. Bleakney will direct local advertising; and J. F. Russell, formerly of the promotion department, will be in charge of rotogravure advertising service.

Mr. Barnhart said advertisers have responded in surprising fashion to preliminary announcements of the new section. More than 175 pages of space have already been sold.

S. F. BULLETIN APPOINTS HAL H. KING

Former President of City's Ad Club Is Now Advertising Director of Newspaper — Eastern Campaign Planned

Charles S. Stanton, publisher, has announced the appointment of Hal H. King as advertising director of the San Francisco Bulletin, effective Aug. 16. M. King, past president of the San Francisc

Hal H. King

Advertising Club and Better Busines Bureau, is a familiar figure in Pacifi Coast advertising circles.

He brings to the Bulletin a well rounded experience in advertising an selling, including agency work, retail ad vertising, industrial advertising manage ment, sales management, publishers repre sentation and organization practice, an is well known for his work in selling th newspaper as the basis advertising med ium. He has recently been Pacific Coas manager of the E. Katz Special Agency

He is a fluent platform speaker and i frequently called upon to address adver tising clubs and other bodies on advertis ing practice.

It is understood that he plans an adver tising campaign in Easteren publication to acquaint advertisers with facts abou the Bulletin.

JUDGE ORDERS BRIEFS IN KANSAS CITY SUIT

Three Days Given to Argument on Motion to W. S. Dickey's Action to Set Aside Sale of Star

(By Telegraph to EDITOR & PUBLISHER)

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 11.—Following three days of argument on demurrers and motions to throw out of court the suit of Walter S. Dickey, owner and editor of the Kansas City Journal-Post to set aside the sale of the Kansas City Star to Irwin R. Kirkwood and his associates Judge O. A. Lucas of the circuit court today gave opposing counsel ten days in which to file briefs. Judge Lucas expects to give a decision after that period.

HOST TO OLD READERS

Strassburger Gathers 50-Year Residents of Montgomery County at Picnic

The Norristown (Pa.) Times-Herald last week held its second annual meeting of the 50-Year Club, composed of people who have been residents of Montgomery County for more than 50 years. The attendance was more than 2,500. R. B. Strassburger, publisher of the Times-Herald, was host to the party at Normandy Farm, where a picnic lunch with trimmings was served to the music of a 40-piece band and amusement provided by professionals.

LIBEL SUITS TO MOLD PUBLIC OPINION

New Orleans So Aroused in Favor of Hugh A. O'Donnell That Judge, Placed on Bench by Prosecutors, Wisely Permitted Successful Appeal in Famous Action of 10 Years Ago

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Libel laws in many states were consulted by defense attorneys to free Hugh A. O'Donnell, former editor of the old New Orleans American, of charges of malicious slander brought against him by politicians in power in an effort to silence the American's crusade against graft and vice. And the law was on O'Donnell's side.

But it was public opinion, crystallized by the editor's trial, that won the case and made the newspaper's exposes worthwhile, as it is shown in this, the 22d article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

IF anyone doubts the power of a newspaper to mold public opinion and the power of public opinion once aroused, let him consider the famous libel suit of the State of Louisiana against Hugh A. O'Donnell, former editor and publisher of the old New Orleans American, now assistant business manager of the New York Times.

O'Donnell was a fighting northern editor who went south and found the people of New Orleans asleep civicly, submitting to the will of politicians who had been in power for 16 years.

A moral code of long standing was reversed, the city was made clean, and those who had been playing upon the lethargy of a dulled metropolis were swept out of office in an amazing political upset, all because of a crusade for law enforcement started in the American.

O'Donnell fought with a pen dipped in truth. Slowly he won other papers, then the women of the city, then the voters to his side. He boldly and rightly risked a libel suit; and it was during his trial that public opinion was eventually crystallized in his favor and the editorial battle was won.

Libel cases are more difficult to defend in Louisiana, inasmuch as the procedure warranted by the Napoleonic code prevails, and the alleged criminal is tried without a jury.

The sentence was $501 and four months in jail. Public opinion had been so aroused in O'Donnell's favor that the judge wisely added the $1, permitting the case to go immediately to the supreme court where it was unanimously decided in the editor's favor.

It was an editorial written by O'Donnell entitled "Frenzied Financing; An Odd Racing Deal" that was used as the basis of one libel suit brought against him.

The news had been printed that the Business Men's Racing Association were about to buy the Fair Grounds, another race track, for $400,000 in order to keep out rivals in racing. The Mayor of New Orleans and the Commission Council were known to be working with the racing association.

"The City Administration has made no secret that it fathered for the Business Men's Racing Association the purchase of the City Park track from H. D. Brown, and in view of the fact that this story (referring to the news mentioned above) is published in the 'only Democratic' political organ of the 'machine,' possibly the City Administration is also fathering the later deal as to the Fair Grounds," O'Donnell wrote in his alleged libellous editorial.

"But if so, who is furnishing the money, the political crowd or the city treasury?

"Has the City Hall gone out and out into the racing business or is it trying to get a corner on that sport from which profits can only come from the gambling connected with it? . . .

"Has the Business Men's Racing Association lost its head? 'Upon what meat does this our Caesar feed?' Surely the city administration made a serious mistake in quitting its task of running the city to foster and father in risky ways the sport of racing and its dubious future. The financial condition of the city itself is next to bankruptcy. There can be little hope for the community if those who have been placed in office to manage the municipality are reckless enough to concoct or condone deals such as the one just proposed. It does not augur well for the immediate moral or financial future of New Orleans.

"And when the political crowd and the racing sports combine for such an illegitimate business scheme as the one suggested, they challenge the patience of decent members of the community. . . .

"It is a mistake to have the city authorities mixing up in any business but the city's and it is just as much a rueful error to let them own any business except what they should. . . ."

The libel, the prosecution alleged, was that the Mayor and the Commission Council were charged with dishonesty in "being about to use the sacred funds of the city for the purpose of purchasing a tract of ground to be used for racing."

Defense attorneys argued that the fundamental questions to be decided in the case were:

"Does the article published by the defendant maliciously defame any person? Or does the editorial complained of constitute an abuse of the liberty of the press?"

"Let us remember that the editor of a newspaper is charged with the discharge of a quasi-public duty," the defense argued.

"It is not only his right, but his duty to state, criticize and condemn the acts of public officials connected with any matter of general public interest, when such acts are in his honest judgment against the best interest of the public."

It was an easy libel case to defend, but O'Donnell had difficulty in engaging counsel. The majority of New Orleans attorneys were interested in politics as well as law practice. While admitting the law was on the editor's side they dared not come to his defense. The late S. A. Montgomery was eventually retained. He was assisted by Thomas V. O'Donnell, of Chicago, brother of the defendant.

When O'Donnell's libel suit came to trial, the whole city was keyed up and watching the drama. They expected the young northerner would be convicted and sent to jail, but O'Donnell was never forced to serve jail time.

Trial in the criminal district court was a regular third act scene of a melodrama. The judge on the bench, Frank D. Chretien, had been placed there by the political crowd who were prosecuting the editor.

The Mayor and members of the Commission Council, instead of running the city business, were spending their days in the courtroom. Representative of the public opinion aroused by O'Donnell were some 200 prominent society women who made it a business to go to court each day to see that justice was done to this man striving so powerfully to clean up their city.

Then Judge Chretien wavered.

Rising from the bench to pronounce sentence, he said, in effect:

"I doubt your guilt; therefore I grant you this opportunity to appeal your case."

Here was one great dramatic pause in O'Donnell's melodrama. Immediately afterwards came a burst of laughter. There had been those expecting to laugh at the editor. Instead, the guffaws were for the judge and for the men who had appointed him to office.

One other dramatic incident occurred when the libel case was carried to the supreme court of the state—one little sentence given voice that carried the public in still larger numbers to O'Donnell's side.

The attorney general of the state was pleading the prosecution's cause.

"We men in office," he said, "must stand together."

The judge couldn't stomach that. The citizens of a town could not agree.

O'Donnell's case was won.

Two main points were argued by the defense before the supreme court. If racing was legal, there was nothing wrong in saying that the Mayor and Commission Council were mixed up in the sport. If it was illegal, it was only right that a newspaper should call the attention of the public to it.

O'Donnell in his editorial had not named names. He had not even said anything so definite as the "Commission Council." For authority Newell on Defamation, Libel and Slander, c. XIII, p. 248, section 1, was quoted as follows in a defense brief:

"In every action for defamation two things are necessary:

"(1) A defamation apparent from the words themselves, for no innuendo can alter the sense.

"(2) Certainty as to the person who is defamed, for no innuendo can render certain that which is uncertain."

And on page 258 of the same authority:

"It is undoubtedly a correct principle of law, that, where defamatory matter is published against a class or aggregate body of persons, an individual member not specially included or designated among other reasons, the body may act very corruptly or disgracefully, and yet the individual may have been in the minority and may have opposed the measures alluded to; but where many individuals are severally included in the same attack, the plaintiff is none the less entitled to redress because others are injured by the same act."

Odgers on Libel and Slander, pp. 98 and 99 was quoted thus:

"The defamatory words must refer to some ascertained or ascertainable person, and that person must be the plaintiff.

"If the words used really contain no reflection on any particlar individual, no averment or innuendo can make them defamatory. An innuendo cannot make the person certain which was uncertain before."

Regarding the question of the privilege of a newspaper to criticize men in public office the findings of a court in a Massachusetts case was cited as:

"The editor of a newspaper has the right, if not the duty, of publishing, for the information of the public, fair and reasonable comments upon anything which is made by its owner a subject of public exhibition, as upon any other matter of public interest; and such a publication falls within the class of privileged communications, for which no action will lie without proof of actual malice."

Another case quoted was that of Eagan vs. the Signal Publishing Company, decided March 12, 1917. The Mayor of Crowley had vetoed an ordinance to abolish the redlight district, and the Crowley Signal, in denouncing the Mayor's action, stated:

"There is but one of two reasons why men want to keep it going. One is to make money. The other is that vile men may gratify their hellish lusts."

In discussing that editorial Chief Justice Monroe said:

"There are many matters in which sharp differences of opinion arise between a public officer and his constituents, and, as he is charged with the responsibility of acting for them his acts are open to their criticism, and such criticism should not be construed as a libel of the individual, when conscientiously directed, nor against him or his motives, but against his acts and their effects.

"In our opinion, the criticism of which the plaintiff complains is of the character thus indicated and furnishes no basis for this action."

A. P. AWARDS COME TO BROPHY FOR HEROISM ON "SHENANDOAH" STORY

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 5.—A precedent in the form of recognition of meritorious services of an Associated Press reporter was established here today when

L. A. Brophy

L. A. Brophy, Ohio state editor, who was first to flash bulletins of the Shenandoah disaster, received a cane which bears this inscription:

"L. A. Brophy, from the Associated Press in recognition of service Sept. 3, 1925, reporting wreck of U. S. N. airship, 'Shenandoah' of which this metal was part."

While covering the catastrophe, Brophy had greater need of a cane than he does today, for he suffered a broken leg when his automobile overturned while rushing to Ava.

Despite his injury, Brophy proceeded to the scene of the wreck and gathered several eye-witness stories before he was compelled to return to Columbus for treatment, where he was in the hospital six weeks.

A. E. McKee, chief editorial writer of the Ohio State Journal, made the presentation.

Acting upon the suggestion of Mr. McKee, Kent Cooper, general manager of the A. P., asked L. C. Probert, manager D. C., to ascertain if the Navy Department of the Associated Press at Washington, ment could furnish wood from the Shenandoah wreckage sufficient to make a cane.

It was found that there was no wood available, but duraluminum salvaged from the frame of the wreckage was donated by the Navy Department and out of this was fashioned the band upon which the inscription was engraved.

CRUSOE FATE ON GALE-SWEPT ISLAND AVOIDED BY LUCKY MIAMI NEWS MEN

Lack of Gas Forced Their Plane Down in Desolate Bahamas While Covering Aftermath of Hurricane and Chance Passer-By of the Air Saved Them

By CECIL R. WARREN

AS every newspaperman knows, behind the printed story is another oftentimes as "good" and infinitely more thrilling—the story of the getting of the story.

It is debatable whether the average reader would find more "story interest" in a yarn about the fortunes of three or four men stranded on a tropical isle in a worse fix than Robinson Crusoe—no wrecked ship to rifle, with a useless seaplane for company, very little food and a dwindling water supply, or in the moving finger of a hurricane, reaping a wide swath of ruin and death. To him who hasn't witnessed the stupendous playfulness of a hurricane, the best description of one must leave him with a vague impression. But most men have had, at some time or another, a definite feeling of hunger or thirst, or have felt loneliness.

Newspapers have been full of the story of the recent Florida hurricane. It is the same that lashed the Bahamas the other day, taking a toll of nearly 150 lives thus far counted, that caused damage at Nassau, the capital, of nearly $8,000,000, destroyed the famous Gun Cay rum fleet that lay off the Florida coast, scattered the picturesque sponging fleet of the islands, then reached over to Florida and nibbled off a big slice of the ocean boulevard near Palm Beach.

And the other instance is the story behind the story—that of the newspaper men who brought back the first reports of what the hurricane had done to the Bahamas.

The breeding and the progress of the storm were closely followed by all Miami newspapers. Then came news of the break in communication with Nassau and the Miami Daily News undertook the task of finding out how the islands had fared. A seaplane was dispatched to Nassau.

Hal I. Leyshon, the news editor, who, by the way, got mention in Associated Press dispatches about three years ago when in covering the Ben Burchfield murder case for the Knoxville Journal, his plane fell and injured both himself and pilot, led the party. With him were R. P. Mitchell of the Associated Press, George Dix, Daily News staff photographer, and Eddie Niermier, pilot.

About noon Wednesday of the week of the storm, the plane headed for Nassau. No chart was carried and strong winds carried them off their course. They were 100 miles south of their destination when lack of gas forced them down on a desolate part of Andros island, largest of the Bahamas group. No ships were in sight from whom they might refuel and they were then too far from land to return.

A reconnaissance failed to discover other signs of life than a few sea gulls and two deserted fishermen's huts. Scrub palmettos were the only vegetation the island afforded and, as it was then about 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the sun had all the fierceness for which it is famous in these latitudes. Only ten minutes of gas had been left in the plane, as it had been agreed that this much would be needed to take them out to the ship lanes should a craft chance by.

Examination of their stores was not encouraging. They had six sandwiches, two cans of tomatoes, one can of pork and beans and a half gallon of water. In the radiator of the plane were seven more gallons of water but they knew it would not do to dip in on this. The plane might be their only hope of salvation.

During their slow survey of the island they frequently rested as they knew they must keep from thirst. All the water they found was salt or brackish. It was agreed that rain might come in a day or two, and, if it did, they planned to stretch the tarpaulin over the plane, use the waterproof tail of the plane as a receptacle and hang out their clothes to c moisture.

After a further discussion of pl brush was piled for signal flares. It not known where the ship lanes lay, it was decided to fly the ten-minute suf of gas, carrying in the plane enough metto branches to thatch the wings the plane. They hoped this contriva would gather enough wind to act as s and drive them on further into the quented roads of the Atlantic.

Had the party sat down and passiv waited for a steamer to pick them up, the natural course of things, they mi have been still trying to keep up inter in their "watchful waiting" policy ab the year 1928.

A systematic search for water started. None they found was fit drinking and they had nothing in wh to boil it. They were planning to s a hole for some when they heard a sh from Mitchell, the one of the party was left to guard the plane. They ra for him and soon heard the roar of airplane above them. They saw Mitch frantically waving his shirt. Their res was a chance in a million, but it is luck of the newspaper man to usually out of scrapes.

The plane was that of Charles Kreu of Miami, who was trying to locate houseboat lost in the storm. If he h not been lost himself, he would ne have passed that way. Besides the he had in the tank, Kreuger had be forethoughted enough to bring 40 ex gallons with him for emergency. This

(Continued on page 37)

FLORIDA HURRICANE WRECKED POWER LINES, BUT NOT NEWSPAPERS

WEST PALM BEACH TIMES, WEST PALM BEACH, FLORIDA, WEDNESDAY, JULY 28, 1926

The Palm Beach Times

DEVOTED TO THE BEST INTERESTS OF SOUTH FLORIDA

VOL. V, No. 298 WEST PALM BEACH, FLORIDA, TUESDAY, JULY 27, 1926

STORM BULLETIN

Palm Beach residents wove their way through hurricane wreckage and debris while the infuriated elements continued to write defiance to man made necessities.

Lashed by a gale driven sea the water front of Palm Beach represented a mass of blown trees, unroofed houses, crumbling sea walls and broken plate glass.

The exact estimate of the damage done could not be determined because of inability fo parties to successfully get information from various parts of the city.

Rainbo Pier was closed to the public last night. The radio station was out of commission long before the barometer reached its low point of lese than 28.

House boats on various parts of the water front went down before the frenzied water.

Wreckage, evidently from a freighter was sighted near the inlet about one o'clock. It could not be established from where it came but it has been unofficially reported that the pieces of timber might have been parts of any one of several freighters signalling for aid during the night. Watch parties will be established tonight to watch for possibilities of bodies or members o. crews clinging to floating pieces.

Damage by the hurricane to the Palm Beach Yacht Club and to boats owned by club members was reported to be around $600,000 at noon today.

This issue was made possible by courtesy of The Palm Beach Press.

Henry T. Reed, Florida field agent of the American Red Cross arrived in West Palm Beach Monday night and began organization work among the local unit to render and aid where it may be needed.

Almost frozen after a night on the lake drifting in a half submerged open boat, M. R. Singleton, captain of the now sunken dredge boat "Reliable," drifted ashore near the Lake Worth casino about dawn and was revived by persons at the casino.

Singleton was the only man aboard the "Reliable" about 9 o'clock last night. The dredge was anchored in West Palm Beach canal and when the heaviest of the storm struck, she began to sink. Singleton stuck by the boat as long as practical and then leaped overboard, clad only in a pair of trousers.

Unable to swim to shore, the dredge captain seized an open row-boat and climbed into it. The boat broke from its moorings and drifted into the lake, shipping more water all the time.

Singleton drifted all night, half frozen by chill, wind, water and lack of clothes. About dawn the half sunken boat drifted ashore in a swamp north of the Lake Worth casino. He was found and revived shortly afterward.

The dredge "Reliable" is owned by H. Loennereke.

A most daring display of bravery was shown about 10 o'clock this morning when Gus Jordahn and Hugo Dealey, upheld the reputation of the "Cowboys of the Sea," and successfully saved the lives of Mrs. Arthur Meade and Captain L. B. Clark who had been stranded on the dock house at the Yacht Club pier.

Mrs. Meade and Captain Clark had been there for hours, after failing to save the Meade cruiser. No one else able to effect a rescue, Jordahn and Dealey plunged into the raging, wind whipped lake, two hundred yards above, swam to the dock house, loaded their human cargo on "Sug-ooters" and battled their way to the F. E. C. bridge a quarter of a mile away.

More than a dozen houseboats and small power cruisers anchored at Kennedy's pier went down under the lashing waves of Lake Worth and the pier threatened to break in two momentarily.

The houseboats which were lost were: "Arno," "Dodge Inn," "Julia," "Tiny," Welcome, Delsea, Helna, D. C. The city dockmaster's office at the pier was in danger of being swept away.

Battered by loose barges and strained by the violent winds that swept across it, nearly half Lake Worth bridge broke loose and partially detached itself from the sunken remainder, shortly after 10 o'clock Tuesday morning.

The bridge had been impassable since early morning, automobile drivers were warned not to make any attempt to cross it.

The supports of the span were knock loose late last night when a number of wild barges in the lake were tossed against it. It slowly settled and parts of it sank, finally breaking away.

Several estates in Palm Beach in the south residential section are completely inundated. Water in some places is two feet above the porches.

Parts of the Ocean boulevard near the Rainbo pier are already impassable. Rocks as large as a man's head, cocoanuts, debris and rubbish have been thrown on the road by the force of the waves.

Palm Beach is a veritable Venice. Automobiles throw a spray higher than the machine passing over most of the streets.

No word had been heard Tuesday afternoon from the Betty Weems, Baltimore and Carolina freighter anchored several miles off of the Palm Beach coast Monday afternoon and disappeared during the night.

WEATHER

Hurricane warnings continued to be flown along the east coast of Florida from Miami to Titusville and storm warnings were displayed at government stations from Jacksonville as far north as Charleston.

At 9:05 today the barometer hit 29.03, the lowest point ever hit here. According to Gus Jordahn, the worst of the hurricane will probably hit the beach this afternoon.

Member of the Associated Press. Inland Florida's Greatest Newspaper

ORLANDO MORNING SENTINEL

Orlando, Florida, July 28, 1926.

HURRICANE PARALYZES ENTIRE STATE

In the event that power is restored, the regular edition of the Orlando Morning Sentinel will be issued at the earliest possible time this morning.

POLICE CAPTURE SEA GULLS.

Two sea gulls, believed to have been blown inland by the gale, were captured early today by members of the police department.

Telephone Service Crippled.

After telephone service in Orlando had been thrown out by thestorm, emergency service was inaugurated by the telephone company with a gasoline generator which will provide temporarily with sufficient power to supply the majority of local telephones.

Weather -- Orlando.

Minimum temperature 71
Maximum temperature 78
Precipitation 2.59

OFFERS AID TO SENTINEL.

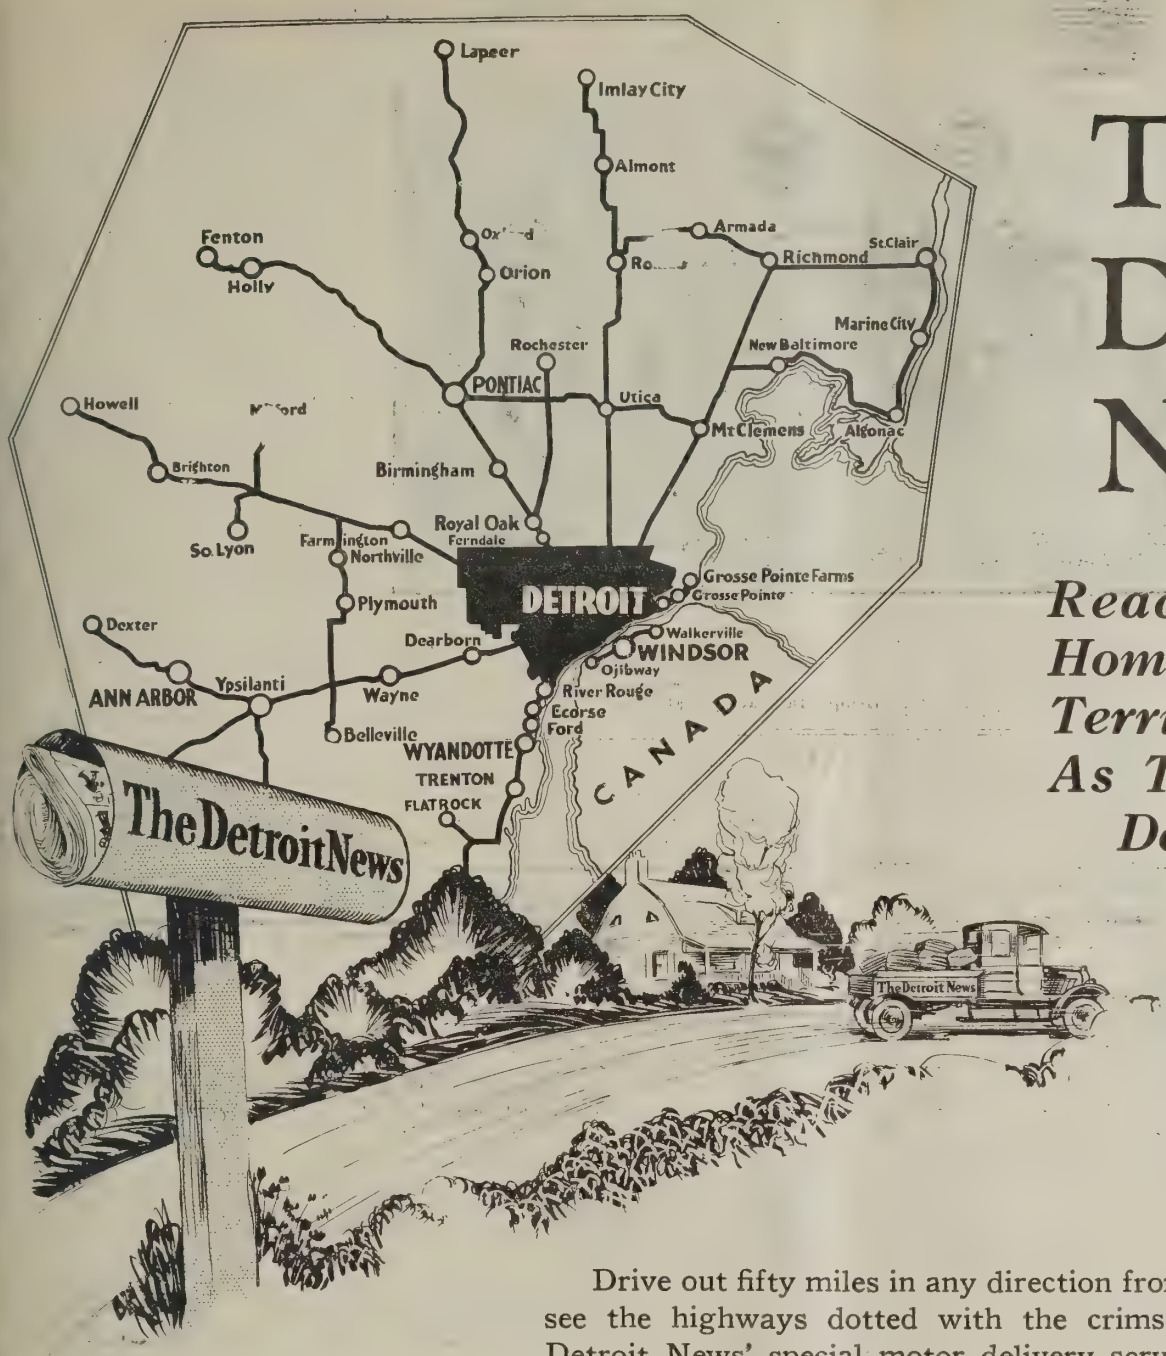
Josiah Fariss, veteran publisher of Orlando, came to the aid of the Sentinel late last night, when attempts were made to publish the paper on the presses of his printing shop. Although he had retired when he was called on the telephone, Mr. Fariss came to his shop in the downpour and afforded every assistance available.

Gale Sweeps Throught Length of Peninsula at 135 Mile an Hour Rate; Light and Power Lines Off.

Hurricane gales, originating in the Caribbean Sea Saturday, swept over Orlando and Florida for an eighteen hour period, with resultant damage that will reach into millions of dollars.

The city of Orlando, although damage is comparatively slight, has been without light or power since 6 o'clock last night. While some of the white way lights were on all night, all other electric lights were out from 6 o'clock.

Telephone and telegraph communications throughout the central part of the state were continued to some extent until midnight, but were crippled by the high wind and falling branches at that time until outside connections were impossible.



The casualty list in Orlando was confined to one man who is reported to be seriously injured. Hubert Murrah, 1263 Lakeview avenue, driver of a utilities trick, was injured when his truck crashed into the traffic tower at Orange and Central avenues after he had been blinded by the rain.

Traffic was blocked on many of the streets of the city, although city clean-up gangs were on the streets early this morning to clear away the debris.

Train service, which was crippled to some extent, is expected to be operating on regular schedule early today.

HURRICANES which swept Florida last week tore bridges loose from their piers, piled ships and barges on the beach, flooded homes and made canals of streets, but their force did not stop the newspapers of the harried area from telling the news. With all power shut off because of danger of fire and loss of life through the dangling wires, the Palm Beach Times went back to hand-set type and hand-power presses to issue its "Storm Bulletin," reproduced above. A. P. and I. N. S. wires were closed from Tuesday morning until Wednesday afternoon and on Wednesday a 12-page paper was issued without the press service reports.

Although 20,000 of the storm bulletins were printed, so many requests were received for copies that it was included in the Wednesday number. Another courageous Floridian was the editor of the Orlando Sentinel, who turned out his edition on a multigraph machine.

Today's Detroit News

Reaches The Rural Homes Of Its Trading Territory As Quickly As The Homes In Detroit Proper

Advertisers using The Detroit News have the opportunity of tapping the wealth of the country's most prosperous market at an economical rate unrivalled in proportion to circulation coverage and the market's size.

Drive out fifty miles in any direction from Detroit and you will see the highways dotted with the crimson containers of The Detroit News' special motor delivery service. Every farmer or suburbanite, no matter how far he may live away from town or village, can have his copy of The Detroit News delivered on the day of publication, often as quickly as it is delivered in Detroit proper. Thus The Detroit News covers its local trading territory assuring its advertisers adequate circulation in the territory adjacent to the manufacturers' points of distribution—stores and shops easily reached by street car, bus, telephone or rail.

The Detroit News' circulation of 335,000 Sundays and 320,000 Weekdays, is thoroughly concentrated so that 94% of its weekday and 80% of its Sunday circulation covers the local trading territory —the most profitable section in Michigan from the viewpoint of the advertiser. Here is located one-third of the total population of the state and one-third of the taxable wealth.

The Detroit News

Detroit's HOME Newspaper

335,000 Sunday Circulation 320,000 Weekday Circulation

NEW NEWS EDITOR ON N. Y. HERALD TRIBUNE

Joseph B. Crandall Fills Vacancy Caused by Clarke Promotion—Fred Lassen Appointed Night Superintendent by Davis

Two staff appointments were announced this week by the New York Herald Tribune. Joseph B. Crandall, formerly of the New York Times, was named day news editor, succeeding Arthur C. Clarke, recently made Sunday news editor; and Howard Davis, business manager, promoted Fred Lassen to the position of night superintendent.

JOHN B. CRANDALL

Mr. Crandall's early newspaper days were spent on the New York Sun. In 1911 he went to the New York Times and soon became night city editor. In 1913 he was made assistant managing editor of the Evening Sun and served in that capacity until 1918 when he joined the Hearst forces as night editor of the New York American. Later he was Sunday editor of the American and night editor of the Evening Journal. A year ago last June his health broke down and he spent a year recuperating. In June this year he rejoined the staff of the Times and went to the Herald Tribune on August 9.

Mr. Clarke came to the Herald Tribune in March, 1924, at the time of the amalgamation of the Herald and Tribune. He had been news editor, night city editor and acting managing editor successively, on the Herald for two years, prior to which he had been on the morning World for many years.

FRED LASSEN

Mr. Clarke will be assisted by Edward A. McSweeney, who has been in charge of the department for the past few weeks.

Mr. Lassen will be the direct representative of the business management during the night hours. His appointment was announced Aug. 10.

In his announcement, Mr. Davis said: "Mr. Lassen's general knowledge of the many details necessary to proper coordination of the various departments, gained by years of faithful and intelligent service, has equipped him for this position."

Mr. Lassen joined the Herald Tribune in January, 1916, taking advertisements over the counter and marking the paper for advertisements. Later he took over the copy control desk of the advertising department, and was in charge of that department until his appointment as night superintendent.

Charles H. Sandkam, for many years circulation manager of the Herald Tribune, has resigned. Porter Carruthers, promotion manager, is temporarily in charge. Mr. Sandkam's future plans have not been announced. A report that he was to join the circulation staff of the New York Evening Post was denied.

DODGE SETS SALES RECORD

Dodge Brothers report that July retail sales will approach 40,000 vehicles making that month the record July in the company's history. At the same time it is learned that stocks of cars in dealers' hands or in transit are approximately 21,000, considered a subnormal figure.

EDITORS INSPECT ILLINOIS GUARDSMEN

Charles H. Dennis (left), editor of the Chicago Daily News; Major Gen. Milton J. Foreman, commanding the Illinois National Guard (33d Division) and Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling (right)), editor of the Rockford Register-Gazette, inspecting the state troops in training at Camp Grant, Ill.

EXECUTIVE ON TRIP SEES PROSPERITY

Allen H. Seed, Jr., Vice-President of William J. Morton Company, Investigates Economic Conditions in U. S. and Canada

Conditions throughout the United States and Canada are most favorable in the opinion of Allen H. Seed, Jr., vice-president and general manager of the William J. Morton Company, who returned this week from a two months' trip to the Pacific Coast.

"This prosperity will doubtless be reflected in increased national advertising," he said.

Mr. Seed had an opportunity to investigate local economic conditions throughout the west and talked to publishers and advertising men in about forty cities, and in all covering 12,000 miles of territory, which took in the Pacific Coast from Vancouver to the Mexican border. He reports extremely favorable business conditions.

Almost everywhere advertising linage, which is generally conceded to be a good index of market conditions, is at a higher peak than in 1925. Gains in linage from 10 per cent to 40 per cent were noted in nearly every Pacific Coast paper. Crops are good and a general atmosphere of prosperity prevails, particularly in the fruit and wheat countries. The Pacific Northwest seems particularly prosperous, according to indications in the larger cities. Retail business is recovering rapidly and a good turn over is expected this fall.

The various fruit growing co-operative exchanges are in very favorable condition, having solved their marketing problems to the satisfaction of their members. This is particularly true of the raisin growing industry in California, which is at last out of the rough going. With land values back to normal and surplus stock disposed of, the industry faces a better fall than any year since the war.

Mr. Seed also visited a number of Canadian cities in British Columbia, Ontario, and Quebec, where he found conditions most favorable. The Pacific provinces are expanding rapidly both in population and exploitation of natural resources.

The Maritime provinces are engaged in building up and developing the industry on a larger scale than ever. Industrial Ontario is enjoying prosperity, and due to the revenue derived from liquor and expansion of industry in the larger cities the wealth of the Province of Quebec has been greatly augmented.

McKEE'S HOME ROBBED

The residence of A. E. McKee, associate editor, Columbus Ohio State Journal, was entered a few days ago by thieves, who stole $260.

EDITORS AT CAMP GRANT

Some as Officers, Some Visitors 33d Division Drills

Prominent Illinois newspapern played a conspicuous part in the "V itors' Day" ceremonies staged at Ca Grant, August 8, when troops of the Division were hosts to 30,000 visitors

Charles H. Dennis, editor of the C cago Daily News, inspected the ca as the guest of Maj. Gen. Milton J. Fo man, divisional commander. Mr. Den spent the day in the field with the troc

Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling, editor the Rockford Register-Gazette, was hand to represent Gov. Len Small, as ficial host for the state.

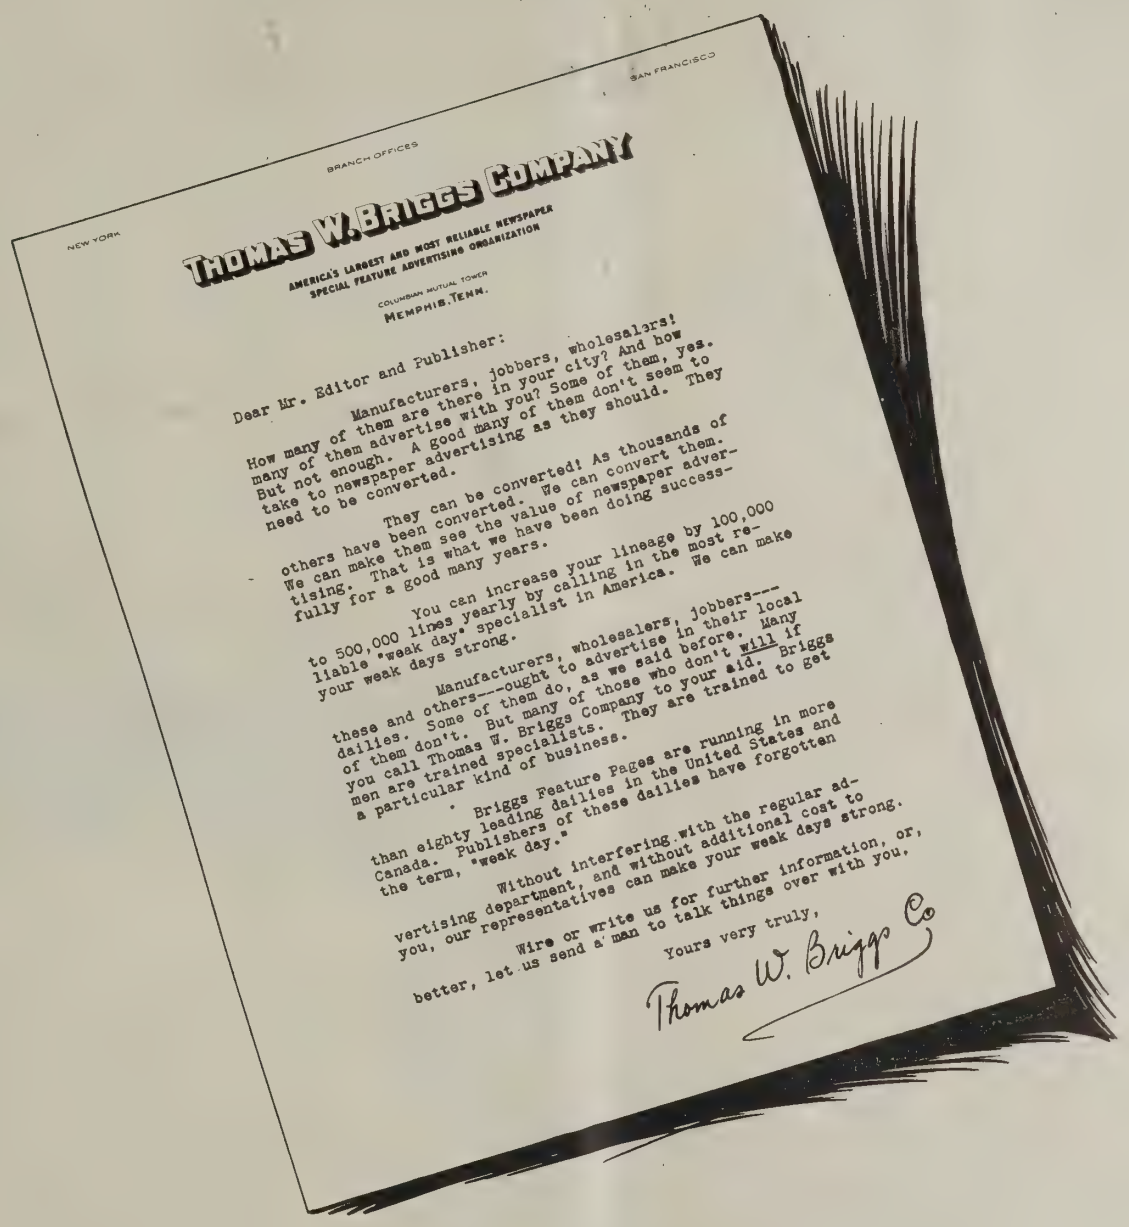
Lieut. Col. Roy D. Keehn, of the C cago Herald & Examiner, who has j returned from Europe, arrived in ca Monday. He is in charge of intellige work on the division staff.

Lieut. Col. Knowlton S. Ames, p lisher of the Chicago Journal of Co merce, is also on General Foreman's st

Gov. Small, publisher of the Kanka Republican, arrived at Camp Gra Wednesday to inspect the state troo His son-in-law, Col. Arthur E. Ingle editor of the Republican, is on duty camp with the adjutant general's partment.

HARTMAN CHANGES

E. C. Hartmann, formerly of Thomas E. Basham Company, Louisvi has gone to Chattanooga as natio field representative of Nelson Chesn & Co.



Tourist Traffic for June Shows a Gain

Forty-seven states sent visitors to Jacksonville and Florida during the month of June. Each month's figures prove the fact that tourist traffic to Florida continues without abeyance.

And the state's leading newspaper forges ahead with gains in agate lines of paid advertising and circulation. The columns of the Florida Times-Union offer the advertiser or agency maximum circulation at minimum cost.

The Florida Times-Union

JACKSONVILLE

BRANCH OFFICES

NEW YORK SAN FRANCISCO

THOMAS W. BRIGGS COMPANY

AMERICA'S LARGEST AND MOST RELIABLE NEWSPAPER SPECIAL FEATURE ADVERTISING ORGANIZATION

COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS, TENN.

Dear Mr. Editor and Publisher:

How many of them are there in your city? And how many of them advertise with you? Some of them, yes. But not enough. A good many of them don't seem to take to newspaper advertising as they should. They need to be converted.

They can be converted! As thousands of others have been converted. We can convert them. We can make them see the value of newspaper advertising. That is what we have been doing successfully for a good many years.

You can increase your lineage by 100,000 to 500,000 lines yearly by calling in the most reliable "weak day" specialist in America. We can make your weak days strong.

Manufacturers, wholesalers, jobbers---these and others---ought to advertise in their local dailies. Some of them do, as we said before. Many of them don't. But many of those who don't will if you call Thomas W. Briggs Company to your aid. Briggs men are trained specialists. They are trained to get a particular kind of business.

Briggs Feature Pages are running in more than eighty leading dailies in the United States and Canada. Publishers of these dailies have forgotten the term, "weak day."

Without interfering with the regular advertising department, and without additional cost to you, our representatives can make your weak days strong.

Wire or write us for further information, or, better, let us send a man to talk things over with you.

Yours very truly,

Thomas W. Briggs Co

Thomas W. Briggs Co.

HOME OFFICE - COLUMBIAN MUTUAL TOWER
MEMPHIS, TENN.

THREE DAYS OF NEW YORK'S BEST FUN PLANNED FOR PRESS CONGRESS

Committee of Publishers and Allied Interests, Headed by Dr. Finley, Prepares Entertainment While Awaiting Departure

THREE full days of sightseeing and entertainment are scheduled for the delegates to the Press Congress of the World while in New York City en route to Geneva-Lausanne, Switzerland, where the third sessions will be held September 14-18. The majority of the North American delegation will arrive Aug. 31, and the entire day will be given over to official registration at Hotel Roosevelt, Madison avenue and 45th street, the headquarters hotel.

Beginning Wednesday morning, Sept. 1, there will be a round of sightseeing, luncheons, dinners, theatre parties and after-theatre suppers continuing through Thursday, and on Friday, Sept. 3, the final day, a luncheon given by M. Koenigsberg, president of the International News Service and the King Features Service, will be the only scheduled event, as the day is set apart as one for shopping and private bon-voyage parties. The delegates will board the Carmania before 9 o'clock Friday night, as the scheduled sailing is at midnight.

Dr. John H. Finley, associate editor of the New York Times, will be chairman of the New York City Reception and Entertainment Committees, assisted by the following publishers and heads of allied interests:

Dr. John H. Finley, New York Times, Chairman.
Ogden M. Reid, New York Herald Tribune.
Howard Davis, New York Herald Tribune.
Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times.
Louis Wiley, New York Times.
Arthur Brisbane, New York Evening Journal.
James C. Dayton, New York Evening Journal.
Bradford Merrill, The Hearst Newspapers.
E. M. Alexander, New York American.
P. A. Payne, New York Mirror.
J. Mora Boyle, New York Mirror.
W. T. Dewart, The Munsey Publications.
E. S. Friendly, New York Sun.
Fred A. Walker, New York Evening Telegram.
Gilbert T. Hodges, The Munsey Publications.
Robert H. Davis, The Munsey Company.
Ralph Pulitzer, New York World.
Herbert Bayard Swope, New York World.
J. F. Bresnahan, New York World.
Roy W. Howard, The Scripps-Howard Newspapers.
W. W. Hawkins, The Scripps-Howard Newspapers.
Ray Long, Hearst's International Cosmopolitan.
A. J. Kobler, American Weekly.
Lincoln B. Palmer, American Newspaper Publishers' Association.
W. A. Thomson, American Newspaper Publishers' Association.
Lester L. Jones, New York City Publishers' Association.
Bernarr MacFadden, New York Graphic.
Herbert F. Gunnison, Brooklyn Eagle.
H. W. Crist, Brooklyn Eagle.
R. F. R. Huntsman, Brooklyn Standard Union.
F. C. Peck, Brooklyn Times.
James O'Shaughnessy, Executive Secretary A. A. A. A.
W. H. Field, New York Daily News.
Capt. J. M. Patterson, New York Daily News.
William Preston Beazell, New York World.
C. C. Green, Advertising Club of New York City.
C. D. Jackson, Advertising Club of New York City.
John H. Perry, American Press Association.
Norman Dodge, Mergenthaler Linotype Company.
J. T. Mackay, Mergenthaler Linotype Company.
H. R. Swartz, President, R. Hoe & Co.
John C. Martin, New York Evening Post.
Julian S. Mason, New York Evening Post.
Melville E. Stone, The Lotos Club.
Kent Cooper, The Associated Press.
M. Koenigsberg, President, International News Service.
Karl A. Bickel, President, The United Press Associations.
J. H. Furay, The United Press.
Major Loring Pickering, North American Newspaper Alliance.
W. E. Douglas, North American Newspaper Alliance.
George G. Shor, Manager, International News Service.
J. J. Early, Brooklyn Standard Union.
S. S. Carvalho, Hearst Newspapers.
D. E. Town, Hearst Newspapers.
Hon. Grover A. Whalen, General Manager, John Wanamaker Store.
Robert K. Leavitt, Association National Advertisers.
Philip T. Dodge, President, Mergenthaler Linotype Company.
Roy Durstine, Barton Durstine Corporation.
R. S. Kellogg, News Print Service Bureau.
J. L. Fearing, Vice-President, International Paper Company.
Neal Dow Becker, Intertype Corporation.
Emmet Finley, The American Press Association.
A. R. Graustein, President, International Paper Company.
C. King Woodbridge, President, International Advertising Association.
Earle Pearson, General Manager, International Advertising Association.
Ernest F. Eilert, President, United Typothetæ of America.
Isaac Van Dillen, President, New York Employing Printers' Association.
John Clyde Oswald, Executive Secretary, New York Employing Printers' Association.

The day-by-day program, so far complete, with the exception of theatrical attractions, follows:

Tuesday—Aug. 31. Entire day given over to registration.

Wednesday—Sept. 1. (Cars will call at Hotel Roosevelt.)

10 a. m.—Downtown motor trip to points of interest, including the New York Stock Exchange, and laying of wreaths on graves of William Bradford and John Holt.

1 p. m.—Greeting and official welcome by Mayor James J. Walker at the City Hall.

1:45 p. m.—Luncheon at Wanamaker's Store, guests of Rodman Wanamaker, proprietor of John Wanamaker, New York and Philadelphia.

6:30 p. m.—Guests of Karl A. Bickel, president of the United Press Associations, at a dinner to be given at the Waldorf-Astoria.

8:15 p. m.—Theatre party, courtesy of Charles C. Capehart, president of Capehart & Cary, advertising agents specializing in theatrical advertising, in connection with Messrs. Lee and S. Shubert.

11:15 p. m.—After-theatre supper at the offices of the New York Herald Tribune, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Reid. Inspection of the plant.

Thursday, Sept. 2:

12:30 p. m.—Guests of H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co., at a luncheon at the Advertising Club of New York.

2:15 p. m.—Sightseeing tour of Upper Manhattan.

4:30 p. m.—Return to hotel.

6:30 p. m.—Dinner. Guests of A. Graustein, president, and J. L. Fearin vice-president, International Paper Co pany, Ritz Carlton.

8:15 p. m.—Theatre party, guests Ralph Pulitzer, an general manageme New York World.

11:15 p. m.—After-theatre supp guests of Adolph S. Ochs and the gener management of New York Times, Tim Annex, West 43rd street, just off Broa way. Inspection of plant.

Friday, Sept. 3:

1 p. m.—Luncheon. M. Koenigsber president International News Servic King Features Service and other alli Hearst interests, balance of day.

Free for individual shopping and pr vate bon-voyage parties.

FARM EDITORS ELECT

Rogers, Journalism Head, Named Pres dent of Collegiate Group

Prof. C. E. Rogers, head of the depar ment of industrial journalism at th Kansas State Agricultural college, w elected president of the American Asso ciation of Agricultural College Editor at the recent meeting of that organiz tion at East Lansing, Mich. At th meeting an exhibit of newspaper an magazine articles and various othe forms of news from the Kansas colleg received third place rating in a conte sponsored by the association.

Maynard W. Brown, associate professo of industrial journalism at the Kansa college, was chosen secretary of th American Association of College New Bureaus at the regular meeting of th association at Purdue University, Lafay ette, Ind.

DIRECTORS MEET POSTPONED

Directors meeting of the America Newspaper Publishers Association, to b held this month, has been postponed unti early in September. President Joh Stewart Bryan, Richmond News-Leade will have then returned from abroad.

FOR PROMPT SERVICE

TYPE

BORDERS ~ ORNAMENTS ~ BRASS RULE

Printers' Supplies

KELLY PRESSES ~ KLYMAX FEEDERS ~ PAPER CUTTERS
HAMILTON WOOD AND STEEL EQUIPMENT, INCLUDING OUR AMERICAN CUT-COST EQUIPMENT

Carried in stock for prompt shipment at the following Selling Houses of the

American Type Founders Company

BOSTON, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BALTIMORE, RICHMOND, ATLANTA, BUFFALO, PITTSBURGH, CLEVELAND, DETROIT, CHICAGO, CINCINNATI, ST. LOUIS, MILWAUKEE, MINNEAPOLIS, KANSAS CITY, DES MOINES, DENVER, LOS ANGELES, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, SPOKANE, WINNIPEG

The INDIANAPOLIS NEWS

In the first six months of 1926, The Indianapolis News published more than 600,000 lines more national advertising than for the same period of 1925—a gain of 40.4%. More proof of the desirability of the Indianapolis Radius market, and of the towering dominance of its greatest advertising medium.

Dan A. Carroll, 110 E. 42nd, NEW YORK
J. E. Lutz, Tower Bldg., CHICAGO

Frank T. Carroll, Advertising Director

—and now comes THE FINISHING TOUCH!

A ROTOGRAVURE section will be published each Sunday, by The Houston Post-Dispatch, beginning Sunday, September 19.

This section will be a powerful media in which to address a definite market, rich in profit possibilities.

Every page will carry impelling and attractive pictures depicting subjects which will hold the attention of the reader—representing the artistic finishing touch to a newspaper which has already broken all past records in the annals of Southern Journalism for progress and growth.

Mechanical Requirements and Rates

Pages are 7 columns wide by 280 lines deep—1960 lines to the page. A page is 15 inches wide by 20 inches deep. 1 column space is 2 1/12 inches wide; each additional column 2⅛ inches.
Position not sold. All copy must be illustrated.

Advertising Rates

TRANSIENT .....30c Per Line
1000 Line Contract.....28c Per Line
2000 Line Contract.....25c Per Line
Forms close 3 weeks preceding date of issue.

The Houston Post-Dispatch now offers advertisers a rare opportunity in thus providing a rotogravure section second to none. You can now secure a fixed rate for contract space with the assurance of ever increasing value.

THE FASTEST GROWING PAPER IN THE FASTEST GROWING CITY IN TEXAS!

Houston Post-Dispatch

Owners and operators of Radio Broadcast Station KPRC.

R. S. STERLING, Chairman of Board W. P. HOBBY, President C. C. MAES, General Manager R. J. MEEKER, National Adv'ng Mgr.

THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY

National Representatives

New York	Kansas City	Detroit	San Francisco
Chicago	St. Louis	Atlanta	Los Angeles

UNITED PRESS EDITOR PRAISES REPORTERS

Singles Out Four Staff Men and Heralds Recent Work as Symptomatic of Return to Real Old-Time Reporting

Four staff correspondents of the United Press were this week given niches in the U. P. hall of reportorial fame. They were A. E. Bradford, of the Paris bureau; A. W. Folger, Mexico City, and Sidney Williams and Minott Saunders of the London office. Bradford cabled an exclusive follow-up on why Clemenceau had written his letter to President Coolidge; Folger furnished first-hand information on Mexico's religious controversy, and Williams and Saunders covered Gertrude Ederle's triumphant channel swim.

Tribute to their work was paid by Robert J. Bender, general news manager, at New York headquarters.

"The enterprise these men showed," Mr. Bender said, making a sort of general citation, "is a wholesome sign. I believe it is symptomatic of a return of real old-time reporting. And it is the young men in the business who are bringing back the right spirit to newspaper work. What appeals to editors in this country today is enterprise, energy, enthusiasm and youth.

"During the war and since the war a widespread habit among reporters has been to sit around and get the news on a silver platter. This habit is gradually being shaken off."

"When Ederle neared the shore," Williams cabled the United Press, "I jumped from the motor boat, waded chest deep to the shore, and arrived at Kingsdown dripping wet. I went to a telephone in a hurry, once I had made sure that Ederle had won her race."

Not content with mere hand-out statements, Folger, in Mexico City, sent an investigator out to make a swing around to principal cities of the republic to learn about the situation first hand.

Minnott Saunders, United Press London man, interviews Gertrude Ederle at Cape Gris-Nez.

MISS EDERLE WON $7,500 OF NEWSPAPER MONEY

Chicago Tribune and New York Daily News Financed Channel Swimmer in Return for Exclusive Story

Both the Chicago Tribune and the Chicago Herald & Examiner carried "impression" stories dictated by Miss Gertrude Ederle, after her successful attempt to swim the English channel. The Tribune's story was copyrighted by the Tribune News Service and the Universal Service furnished the Herald and Examiner and other clients with its story.

The Tribune and the New York Daily News lay claim to a share in the personal jubilation over Miss Ederle's feat. Through confidence in the ability of the American girl, those two papers, and their joint press service, made possible her attempt to swim the channel by financial and personal support, it is said.

The "inside" account is as follows:

It was on May 29 that Miss Ederle found her newspaper support in a contract which was witnessed by Arthur W. Crawford, of the Chicago Tribune News service, Dudley Field Malone and Miss Ederle's father.

Under this contract the New York Daily News and its associates agreed to pay Miss Ederle $5,000 for her own exclusive story of her trip, training and swim in the event that she did not succeed, and $7,500 if she won the great fight against the treacherous waters of the channel.

By winning she added $2,500 to the sum that she would have received for merely trying to win.

Miss Ederle sailed from New York on June 2. With her went Arthur Sorenson, of New York, representing the News and Pacific & Atlantic photos and Julia Harpman, a special writer from The News.

FINANCIAL ADVERTISERS

Plans are complete for the annual meeting of the Financial Advertisers' Association, at Detroit, starting Sept. 20.

PUBLISHERS DISCUSS A. B. C. RATE CARD SERVICE

(Continued from page 4.)

Circulations during the few years of its operation."

No Objection

J. M. Stephenson, publisher of the South Bend (Ind.) News-Times, said:

"We cannot find any serious objections to the new rules of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, for it seems that these rules are based on a desire to better serve the advertiser. It seems to me that it will help to keep all information necessary to selecting media in one place, which is desirable. Semi-annual rate changes are surely frequent enough, even for a very rapid growing newspaper and it strikes me that both changes are in the interest of the advertiser, which all newspapers are striving to serve more efficiently. We certainly have no objection to the new rules."

Dangerous Duplication

Victor H. Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News, said:

"I see no objection whatever to giving the Audit Bureau of Circulations the national advertising rate card of the Birmingham News, with all of the data printed thereon. As a matter of fact, all of this appears regularly in Standard Rate and Data, and no phase of it is in any sense secret. However, I very seriously doubt the wisdom of the Audit Bureau of Circulations entering the field of advertising service. I see nothing to be gained by it for either newspapers, or advertisers. All information that would be furnished by the A. B. C. is already available to any person interested from many different sources. On the other hand, it is highly dangerous in tendency. Every newspaper, it seems to me, would resent any effort by the A. B. C. whatever to go further with the idea, and unless there is some tendency to go further with it, I see no point in starting it."

Would Assist Space-Buyers

A. L. Shuman, vice-president and advertising Director of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram and Record-Telegram said:

"Personally, I can see no objection to the reproduction of publishers' rate cards, in connection with the semi-annual statements to the A. B. C. As a matter of fact, we have already sent them our rate cards, and while we did not, and could not agree to make our rate changes, if any, coincident with the dates of the semi-annual statement, we are not averse to having our rates incorporated with this statement for the information of advertisers and space buyers. As a matter of fact, I think it will greatly assist space buyers in having both rate and circulation data included with the semi-annual statement."

Only one publisher referred favorably to the suggestion as to a uniform semi-annual period for changing advertising rates. He was E. B. Jeffress, manager of the Greensboro (N. C.) News, whose comment follows:

"I see no objection to the Audit Bureau of Circulations reproducing rate card data on publishers' semi-annual statements. When a man looks at the rate card, he also wants to know about circulation, and if the two are together, it makes for a more efficient newspaper service. I see no objection to a uniform time for making changes in newspaper rates, since this would probably simplify matters, instead of causing confusion by having rate changes come all through the year."

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg. LOS ANGELES

The DAILY OKLAHOMAN
OKLAHOMA CITY TIMES
thoroughly and alone — COVER — the Oklahoma City Market

A gain of more than three-quarter million lines of advertising during the first six months of 1926 evidences first —the growing influence of the Oklahoman and Times.

—the increasing importance of the Oklahoma City market.
—the never-before-attained heights to which the Oklahoma business level has ascended due to three successive banner crop years.

Through the Oklahoman and Times thorough coverage in the Oklahoma City trade territory is obtained—without these newspapers thorough coverage is impossible.

E. KATZ SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENCY
New York Chicago Kansas City Detroit Atlanta San Francisco

The Knoxville News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, leads all other newspapers, daily or Sunday, in Knoxville circulation and is the best advertising contact with worth-while Knoxville families.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

I. T. U. REPORTS HIGHER WAGES FOR PRINTERS

Several Scales Run for More Than Year, With Progressive Annual Increases for Newspaper Composing Rooms

New wage scales concluded between local typographical unions and newspaper publishers in a number of cities are reported in the August issue of the Typographical Journal. The increases noted apply to the basic rates of the previous contract and do not take into account bonuses. The summarized scale provisions follow:

Columbus, Ohio.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $52, night $56, to May 7, 1927; then day $53, night $57; forty-eight hours. The contract covers a period of three years, from May 8, 1926, to May 7, 1929. Increase—$2; May 7, 1927, $1 additional.

Roanoke, Va.—Newspaper—Day $44, night $48; overtime price and one-half over eight hours. The scale is effective from May 1, 1926.

Springfield, Mo.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $40, night $43; forty-eight hours. Award of International Board of Arbitration, effective from November 15, 1925, to May 19, 1927. Increase—Day $2, night $3.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Newspaper and Job—Journeymen, day $53, night $56; newspaper forty-eight hours, job forty-four hours. The contract covers a period of one year, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1927. Increase—$5.

Easton, Pa.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $41, night $44, to April 3, 1927; then day $44, night $46; forty-eight hours. The contract covers a period from July 12, 1926, to October 1, 1928. Increase—$4; May 1, 1927, $3 additional.

Kingston, Ont.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $34, night $36; forty-seven hours. Job—Day $32, night $34; forty-four hours. The contract covers a period of three years, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1929, and may be opened for adjustment of wages May 1, 1928. Increase—$1.

Cohoes, N. Y.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $42, night $47; forty-eight hours. Job—Handmen, day $36.75, night $42; operators, day $36.75, night $47; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of one year, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1927. Increase—Newspaper, day, $2, night $4; job $2.

Cleveland, Ohio (Typographia No. 6).—Newspaper—Journeymen, $49 to October 16, 1926, then $51.50 to October 16, 1927, then $52.50; forty-five hours. The agreement covers a period of three years, from October 16, 1925, to October 16, 1928. Increase—$1; October 16, 1926, $1.50 additional; October 16, 1927, $1 additional.

Edmonton, Alberta.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $43.20, night $46.20, to May 15, 1927; then day $44.10, night $47.10, to May 15, 1928; then day $45, night $48; forty-five hours. Memorandum agreement is effective for three years, from May 16, 1926, to May 15, 1929. Increase—90 cents; May 15, 1927, May 15, 1928, 90 cents additional.

Ottawa, Ill.—Newspaper—Journeymen, day $39.40, night $42.40, to May 1, 1927; then day $40.40, night $43.40, to May 1, 1928; then day $41.40, night $44.40; forty-eight hours. Job—Day $36, night $39, to May 1, 1927; then day $37, night $40, to May 1, 1928; then day $38, night $41; forty-four hours. The contracts cover a period of three years, from May 1, 1926, to May 1, 1929. Increase—$1; May 1, 1927, May 1, 1928, $1 additional.

HOLIDAY IN VERMONT FOR N. E. CIRCULATORS

Association Delegates Exchange Greetings with President Coolidge—Hear Plans for Promotion of Region's Welfare

About 20 members of the New England Association of Circulation Managers gathered in Burlington, Vt., August 4 and 5, for the mid-summer conference of the association.

Headed by President Thomas F. Farrelly, Providence Journal, several of the members met the special train carrying President and Mrs. Coolidge from White Pine Camp to Plymouth, when it arrived in Burlington, and extended to the President and the First Lady the greetings of the newspaper men, receiving in return the best wishes of the President for a successful meeting.

The newspaper men and their ladies also enjoyed a steamer trip on Lake Champlain, and in the evening banqueted in the roof garden of the Hotel Vermont.

During the dinner, President Farrelly presided and called upon many of the members to speak briefly. These talks were mostly of a humorous vein. Following the dinner, Daniel A. Loomis, general manager of the Champlain Transportation Company, gave the visitors a talk on the history of Lake Champlain and the part which his company had played in that history.

Mr. Loomis told the circulation men that his company was the oldest steamboat company in the world, and that among its achievements was the bringing into Burlington of the first Sunday newspapers to be delivered in the city on Sunday. The circulation manager of the New York Tribune conceived the idea of having a boat meet the Delaware & Hudson train on the New York side of the lake and bring the papers across to Burlington, so that they arrived in the city early Sunday afternoon. That was before the days of Sunday trains on the Rutland Railroad, so that no Sunday papers had previously reached Burlington before Monday morning.

At the session on the morning of Aug. 5, Hobart Pillsbury, Secretary of State of New Hampshire and a former newspaper man, talked to the circulation men about their privileges and responsibilities in connection with the development of New England. He told them that the greatest development of the last year in New England had been the formation of the New England Conference.

Joining business and professional interests, this movement aims to give New England renewed confidence in itself, to make the people of these six States realize their essential unity, to set at rest the impression that New England is slipping, and to work out an intelligent development of the entire region.

Mr. Pillsbury said that the newspapers of New England can aid materially in spreading this idea. "The New England papers measure up in character with papers of recent founding in the West and South,'" Mr. Pillsbury declared. "The New England newspapers have as a second mission to keep the sons of New England who have gone elsewhere interested in their old home section by cultivating them as subscribers and caring for their interests."

Among those present at the meeting were: D. E. Byron, Pawtucket Times; Edward Byron, Augusta Kennebec Journal; A. B. Croshere, New Bedford Standard Mercury; E. D. Dolhenty, Worcester Telegram-Gazette; T. F. Farrelly, Providence Journal & Bulletin; L. D. Flynt, Augusta Kennebec Journal; L. M. Hammond, Jr., Boston Transcript; J. E. Hennessy, Fall River Herald-News; D. W. Howe, Burlington Free Press; W. E. Potter, Manchester Union-Leader; Ge H. Reynolds, New Bedford, Mass.; C Schofield, Waterbury Republican American; H. H. Sloan, Worcester P W. C. Smith, Meriden Record; Ge Fisher, Pittsfield Berkshire Eagle, L. V. Chew, Rutland Herald.

PAPER COMPANY REPORTS

A net profit of $1,460,146 after inte depreciation, depletion and federal t was shown in the six-months' repor the Crown Willamette Paper Comp made public this week. Pacific M Ltd., controlled by the same concern, ported a net profit of $395,528 for the months.

PAPER COMPANY IS HOST

West Virginia Pulp & Paper C pany this week entertained a numbe friends in the printing and publis trades by conducting an excursion f New York to the Mechanicville Mill the company, traveling by Hudson R boat from New York to Albany. Albany automobiles took the party to mills for an inspection of the paper ma facturing process from pulp to the ished product. Later the party was en tained at Saratoga Springs, races golf course, with a side trip to L George. The party returned to N York Wednesday night.

Says Dr. Salov, addressing the editor of the Newark Evening News: "It would be u... It is easier to read than seven poi... ing. A happy medium has been effecte...

TRADE LINOTYPE MARK

...every one interested in the conservation of vision; for it is the accumulated unnecessary strain on the eyes, due to the extremely small and poor type used in many newspapers, that ha... the day when artificial ... though not ... of the typ... last few... ter t... and ... ab... t...

...ders gives good legibility even wh... solid. Cast on seven point bod... Point Ionic gives the effect ... leaded—and with a de... word-count over the ... The first paper ... was the Evening ... a trial of s... ...nt of th... ...n ... ...ne mar... ...re enthus... ..., and reade... ...ds of commer... ...e of the most appre... ...oseph H. Salov, a leac... ...st, and past president ... ...Optometric Associatio... addressing the editor ... ...ning News: "It would b... ...or any one else wh... ...unt of good that wi... ...recent change in th... ...use in the makeup ... ...s was not recognize... ...so acknowledged b... ...ted in the conservatio... ...is the accumulated un... ...on the eyes, due to th... ...l and poor type used i... ...bers, that hastens the da... ...al aid must be sought. Al... ...versed in the nomenclatur... ...e you have been using for th... ...days, it is of a style and charac... ...t immediately makes itself felt ...is far more readable and comfort...ble than the former style. I am sur... that there are many thousands o... readers who, possibly unknowingly, fee... the added comfort." After several year... of investigation and experimentation

...ne line... ...ig. The eve... ...particularly ac... ...of newspaper s... ...advantage of t... ...ation of visio... ...out is restf... ...onotor...

Study the design of this NEW face

Linotype 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

See how perfectly it meets the difficult requirements of modern newspaper printing conditions. Notice the full, round contours of the letters, no "pin holes" or sharp corners to fill up with ink; no fine lines to break down in stereotyping.

Ask the nearest Linotype Agency for copies of newspaper set in this face and compare it with the body type you are now using both for legibility and word count. You will find it easier to read than 7 point faces and that it gives the same word count as a 6 point.

The 6½ Point Ionic is made with italic and small caps and also in combination with Bold Face No. 2.

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

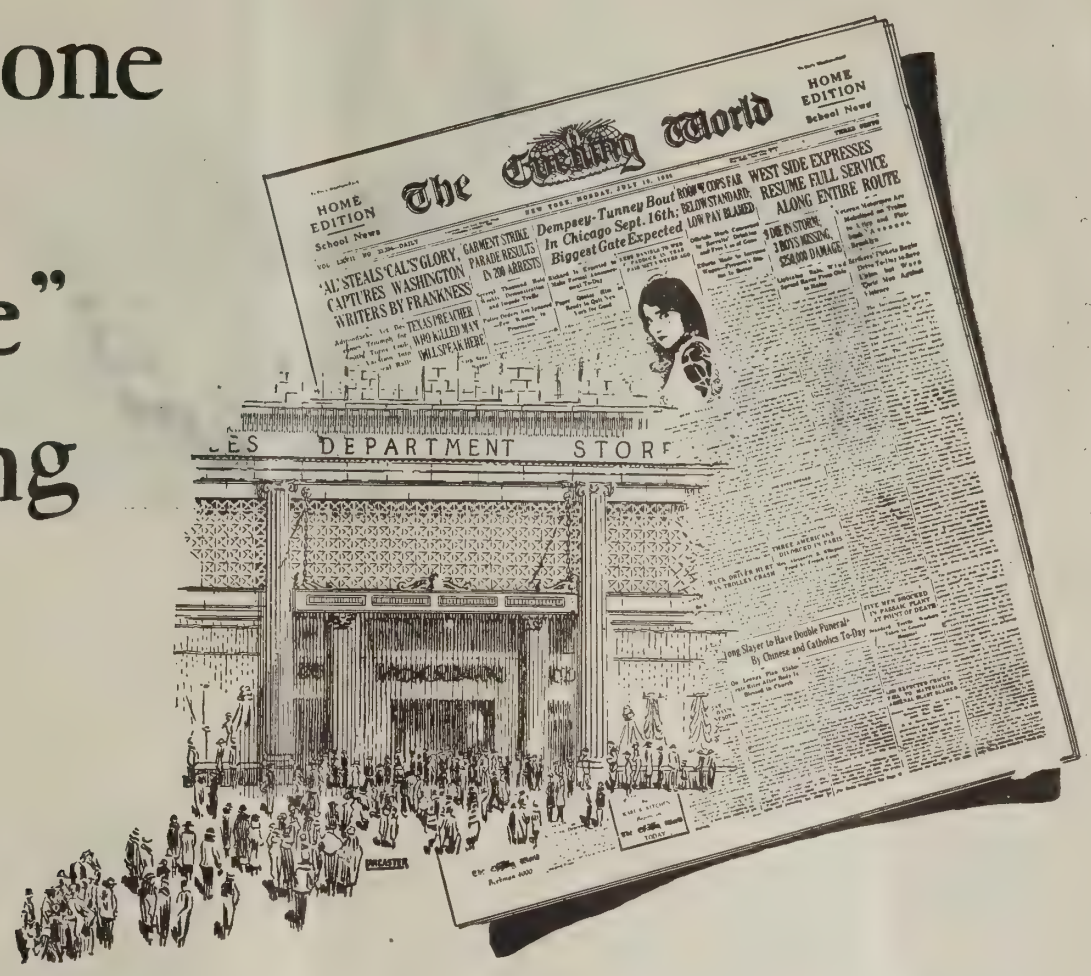
BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

We still continue our upward climb by adding two more fine newspapers of the South to our Complete Checking Proof Service . .



BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—POST

CHARLESTON, S. C.—POST

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO — 79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

The Backbone of "Big Store" Advertising

TWENTY-EIGHT per cent of all Dry Goods Advertising printed in the five standard sized evening newspapers of New York during the first six months of this year appeared in THE EVENING WORLD.

THE EVENING WORLD'S gain of 584,072 lines in this classification was more than the combined Dry Goods increase of The Sun, The Times (daily and Sunday) and The Herald Tribune (daily and Sunday). Thus, THE EVENING WORLD, issuing six papers a week, piled up greater gains than the combined twenty papers per week issued by its three most active competitors for the business of New York's big stores.

The figures for the month of June are equally impressive. In the evening field the leading papers ranked as follows, according to their gains:

Dry Goods Advertising in June

	Gain	Loss
EVENING WORLD - -	91,672	———
The Sun - - - - - -	37,308	———
The Post - - - - -	———	25,538
The Journal - - - -	———	47,568
The Telegram - - -	———	82,420

The Evening World

PULITZER BUILDING—NEW YORK
TRIBUNE TOWER—CHICAGO

The Matured Judgment of the Most Important Group of Merchants in the Country

NEW YORK MERCHANTS, as a body, constitute the most important group of retailers in the country, because their establishments dominate America's greatest market.

It is interesting to note, therefore, that the following big stores, in the first six months of this year, increased their space in THE EVENING WORLD 593,048 lines, a gain of 39.4%:

Arnold, Constable & Co. — Bonwit, Teller & Co.
Gimbel Brothers — Jas. A. Hearn & Son
R. H. Macy & Co. — James McCreery & Co.
Oppenheim, Collins & Co. — Saks Fifth Avenue
Franklin Simon & Co. — Stern Brothers
John Wanamaker

The combined lineage of the above stores in THE EVENING WORLD was 2,098,235. Only one other evening paper approached THE EVENING WORLD'S gain, with an increase of 331,375 lines, or 17.5%. THE EVENING WORLD'S lead in gains was 261,673 lines over its only serious competitor.

RETURNS RADIOED BY CHATTANOOGA NEWS

Phone Calls on Election Night Reduced by Broadcasting — Next Day's Sales Increased

Believing that the radio is a valuable medium that can be used to assist newspapers in broadcasting to their subscribers extraordinary news, the management of the Chattanooga (Tenn.) News recently leased station WDOD and broadcast election returns during the state Democratic primary, and the county general election.

WALTER C. JOHNSON

Walter C. Johnson, chairman of the board of directors of the Southern Newspaper Publishers' association, who is general manager of this publication, declares that he enlisted the services of the local radio station because he felt it would be an asset to the paper.

In addition to broadcasting the returns over the radio and flashing them on the screen a battery of telephones was kept busy at the News office answering inquiries. Nevertheless, Mr. Johnson is of the opinion that the number of telephone calls was materially reduced by the adoption of the radio broadcasting program. This made it possible for the office force to devote more time to tabulating returns.

Another unusual experience tried out by the News in its broadcasting program wts that of furnishing the entire evening's program from its own organization. Musical numbers were used to fill in when the announcer was waiting for additional election information.

"The radio should be looked upon as an auxiliary to the newspaper business, rather than as a competitor," said Mr. Johnson. He expressed the further opinion that the broadcasting of election returns created additional interest in the newspaper accounts the following day

STOP CRYING FOR CRIME!

Call Off Sob Sisters and Blubbering Brothers Is Editor's Plea

Police killings in New York this week, the Hall-Mills murder revival, and more than the usual amount of crime stirred Frederick Boyd Stevenson, columnist of the Brooklyn Eagle to a fresh outburst against what he termed the sympathetic attitude of the press toward criminals.

"Call off your sob sisters and blubbering brothers," he urged. "Be hard-hearted against crime."

He said he intended to suggest to the American Society of Newspaper Editors that they sponsor a nation-wide campaign for a universal anti-pardoning law.

"Abolition of the pardoning power of parole boards, commissions, governors or even the President would be the best remedy to cure crime waves," he said.

"A slogan for a national newspaper campaign against abuse of pardoning power might be 'It takes 12 men to put a man in jail; it should take 12 men to get them out.'"

RESEARCH IN CANADA

Pulp and Paper Association Has Fund of $350,000, 70% Subscribed

Seventy per cent of the total amount has been subscribed for the new Canadian Pulp and Paper Association building to be erected on McGill University grounds. In view of the fact that this is the vacation season and that already $270,000 of the $350,000 needed by October has been received, the outlook is regarded as favorable.

NOTTINGHAM RETURNS FROM SHANGHAI

Edwin A. Nottingham, who has been publishing the Shanghai Times, for the last sixteen years, is in America touring the states and resting. He is accompanied by his wife.

R. E. Thorne and Carl Riordon of the Riordon Pulp Corporation have returned from England, having engaged the services of prominent chemists for their new research laboratories at Hawkesbury, Que. Among them is the leading authority on pulp and paper chemistry, Prof. Emil Heuser of Berlin, editor of the official organ of the German Pulp and Paper Association, and Dr. Lorenz, an authority on colloid chemistry.

With these and other additions it is the intention of the International Paper Company to proceed with an extensive program of research work in its newly equipped laboratories.

To the EDITOR of any Newspaper, Magazine, Feature Syndicate, or Press Association:

Better Sports

If you are interested in that subject and willing to pay good money for the man who can give you BETTER SPORTS write me.

I will consider nothing but a high class proposition. If money is there along with pleasant associations and a full opportunity for me to give you the best I have then I will be agreeable to accepting a long time appointment.

Not too young nor too old; fully experienced; possess creative ability and promotional enterprise; optimistic and enthusiastic; personality to make friends and keep them; healthy and clean in habits.

Ready September 30, or possibly before. Address Box A-728, EDITOR & PUBLISHER.

"COAL CLUB" FORMI TO BOOST SALES

Hot Month Advertising for Cold Sea Product Takes Unique Turn in Clev land, with Coupon Copy of City Ice and Fuel Company

Hot month advertising for a cold s son product has taken a unique turn Cleveland.

The City Ice & Fuel Company of t city is now placing copy in local ne papers promoting what it calls its "C Club." By joining the club now, hou holders gain the advantage of the pres low prices and are allowed to pay their coal on the budget plan after it delivered, the company advertises.

A coupon carried in the company's vertisement in the Cleveland News rea "Without obligating myself in a way, please send me details of how I n join your coal club."

The company is thus furnished with valuable list of prospective coal custo ers. Those returning the coupons told of the advantages of buying coal winter during the summer, and at th request are formally enrolled in "coal club," a procedure which perm them a special rate and time payment.

The Telephone and the Farm

THERE was not a farmer in the world fifty years ago who could talk even to his nearest neighbor by telephone. Not one who could telephone to the doctor in case of sickness or accident. Not one who could telephone for the weather report or call the city for the latest quotations on his crops. Not one who could sell what he raised or buy what he needed by telephone. A neighborly chat over the wire was an impossibility for the farmer's wife or children.

In this country the telephone has transformed the life of the farm.

It has banished the loneliness which in the past so discouraged the rural population and drove many from the large and solitary areas of farms and ranches.

It is a farm hand who stays on the job and is ready to work twenty-four hours every day.

The telephone has become the farmer's watchman in times of emergency.

It outruns the fastest forest or prairie fires and warns of their approach. It has saved rural communities from untold loss of lives and property by giving ample notice of devastating floods. Three million telephones are now in service on the farms, ranches and plantations of the United States.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH COMPANY AND ASSOCIATED COMPANIES

BELL SYSTEM

IN ITS SEMI-CENTENNIAL YEAR THE BELL SYSTEM LOOKS FORWARD TO CONTINUED PROGRESS IN TELEPHONE COMMUNICATION

EUROPEAN CRISIS

CALLS FRANK H. SIMONDS ABROAD AGAIN, IMMEDIATELY

Widely Spreading Anti-American Sentiment Throughout Europe Necessitates Speedy Trip of Noted Interpreter of International Affairs to Study Effect on American Business Outlook

The situation in Europe has not been more acute since the outbreak of the World War in 1914.

The anti-American demonstrations in Paris, former Premier Clemenceau's open letter to President Coolidge, the harsh criticism of the United States in the press of the leading foreign capitals, Lord Rothermere's explanation of the London Daily Mail's editorial, have given grave concern to many serious-thinking people.

Just what is all this leading to? Another war? A general European boycott of American-made goods? Just what will be its effect on the business outlook of the United States during the coming year? Prudent business men in every community want to know.

Realizing this, many editors have urged FRANK H. SIMONDS—the one generally acknowledged authority on European affairs—to make a flying trip to Europe IMMEDIATELY.

MR. SIMONDS SAILS AT ONCE. He will be GONE EIGHT WEEKS. He will visit London, Paris, Berlin, Brussels, Amsterdam and will cover the session of the League of Nations at Geneva and will write a weekly cable article for American newspapers.

SIMONDS is NOT a reporter. He is NOT A FOREIGN CORRESPONDENT. He is an INTERPRETER OF INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS. He knows Europe as does no other American. He knows Europe probably as does no European. In Paris he generally is invited to address the Paris Chamber of Commerce on European Affairs. He has access to the real sources of information as has probably no other living writer. He is the confidant of Rulers, Premiers, Ambassadors, Statesmen, Party Leaders of every faction in every European country.

SIMONDS does NOT MERELY REPORT things as they are happening. He gets information far in advance, interprets what is happening and predicts what is going to happen. He predicted the Spanish-American War, the World War long before either happened. He predicted Locarno, the present European crisis and foretold their economic effect on the United States.

While in Europe on his regular trip last spring, SIMONDS' articles were printed by more than SIXTY NEWSPAPERS in the United States and by a large number of foreign papers. Many editors, realizing the necessity of providing the business interests of their respective communities with as much exact information of the present situation as possible, with an accurate interpretation of what is happening, and with as much advance information as is possible only for FRANK H. SIMONDS TO GET, have urged him to make THIS SPECIAL TRIP at this time to INTERPRET THE PRESENT CRISIS.

Among those Papers taking the SIMONDS SERVICE REGULARLY are:

Philadelphia Inquirer	St. Paul Dispatch	Canton Repository	Hartford Courant
Boston Herald	Atlanta Journal	Denver News	Salt Lake City Telegram
Kansas City Star	Seattle Times	Buffalo News	Newark News
Washington Star	Birmingham News	Cincinnati Enquirer	Dayton Journal
New Orleans States	Syracuse Herald	San Francisco Chronicle	Portland Oregonian
Brooklyn Eagle	Charleston, S. C., Post	Oklahoma City Oklahoman	Miami Herald

Among the Foreign Papers are:

London Times	Mexico City Excelsior
Leeds Yorkshire Post	Brantford, Can., Expositor
Cardiff Western Mail	Havana El Mundo

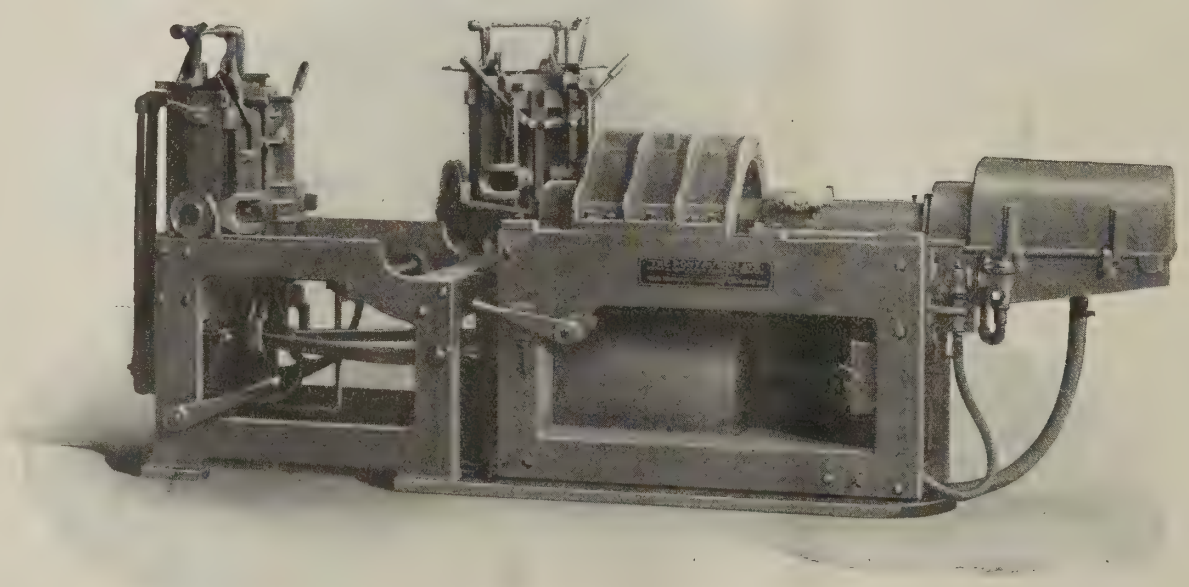
If your territory is still open this is YOUR OPPORTUNITY to PROVIDE YOUR READERS with FRANK H. SIMONDS' ADVANCE INTERPRETATIVE INFORMATION on CONDITIONS ABROAD that will affect every country and every community of the United States during the coming business year.



The McClure Newspaper Syndicate, 373 Fourth Avenue, New York City

Annou

TWIN PONY AUT

THERE has recently sprung up a demand fo the Pony Autoplate Machine, used by the s used by the metropolitan newspapers.

To satisfy this demand we have designed the T now offer the trade. This consists of two casting mechanism which, at the will of the operator, s mechanism to receive its plates and finish ther upon the output required of it.

Although the TW
MACHINE doe
Autoplate Machi
their working spac
than 80% of their

Pric
f. o. b.

Machines ma

R. HOE & COMPANY, Inc.

GOSS PRINTING PRESS COMPANY
THE GEORGE RUSSELL REED

WOOD NEWSPAPER MACHINERY CORP

ing the

)PLATE MACHINE

t making machine able to fill the gap between ity dailies, and the Junior Autoplate Machine,

IONY AUTOPLATE MACHINE, which we nisms served by a single finishing and cooling utomatically into position before either casting ay be worked by one man or two, depending

NY AUTOPLATE work of two Pony requires less than may be had for less se price.

==

,750
ld, N.J.

==

red of us or of

LTER SCOTT & COMPANY
PANY of San Francisco, California

DUPLEX PRINTING PRESS COMPANY

TION, 501 Fifth Avenue, New York City

EDITORIAL

MUSSOLINI'S POWER

THE official organ of Fascismo in Italy is Il Popolo D'Italia (The People of Italy), founded eleven years ago by Mussolini, then a fire-eating Socialist fighting his way to power. It is today edited by the dictator's brother. It reeks with the details of the present political regime and everything in life is colored to harmonize with the Fascist theories of government.

Although the Dictator has iron-heeled and terrorized the press of the nation the interesting and important fact remains that Mussolini cannot make the people buy and read his paper, his circulation being only 80,000 compared with 600,000 of his evening competitor Il Corriere Della Sera.

Neville Smith, Australian newspaper man who recently investigated the press of Italy under the dictatorship, significantly remarks: "Even Italians get tired of paying their 25 centissimi to read page after page of fulsome laudation of Fascismo."

Mr. Smith tells us that the least dereliction from Fascist wishes brings speedy and condign punishment to editors. Sequestration is the least of the ills, murders and thrashing to death of recalcitrant editors the worst. But the papers continue to appear, the inextinguishable spark of independence flickering up here and there even though the sword hangs low. It is a penal offense to print anything but laudation of Il Duce.

How anyone who has read history or understands even the rudiments of nationalistic psychology can believe that such impudent repression and brutal tyranny can long endure on the face of the civilized earth, or that this so-called "evil expedient" is not breeding a holocaust, is beyond our poor minds to comprehend.

No one here objects to a news coverage of the forthcoming heavyweight championship contest, but just watch sports writers dig in and promote it as if their newspapers were actually interested in the gate receipts.

WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

WHAT are these poisonous elements that are squirming in the bottom of the wonderful, overflowing cup of American life? Most of us are drinking the bounties of freedom and prosperity from the frothing rim without investigation of the venomous dregs.

The martyrdom of Don Mellett opened the eyes of an untold number of good citizens a month ago, but the story is off the front page now and in our customary American fashion we are hastening to forget. How deep, we ask those who should know since they live in the world of news, has the cancer of bootleg graft eaten into the heart of the institution of local government? Is it true that bat-eared, slit-eyed, cutthroats of the metropolitan underworld, who for a few dollars buy an enemy's death at the hand of some drug-crazed thrall, are actually able to reach with bribes public officials of the smaller cities as a means of protecting their traffic in booze and dope? There are proven instances of such vile corruption, but how general has it become and is the press, for local reasons, silently sitting on the lid of a dynamite can?

Don Mellett died that the truth might be known. The arrest and conviction of some underworld half-bake would poorly avenge his sacrifice if official corruption, in league with criminal enemies of the social order, are to go undisturbed, whether they be in Canton or in any other city where similar evil conditions stew beneath the surface.

Seven policemen have been murdered in cold blood in New York city in five months—by whom? The identical type of modern bandit that Don Mellett said was bargaining with officialdom in his Ohio city.

Dig in, reporters—tell us what it all means!

To appreciate the benefits the Audit Bureau of Circulations has showered upon our press and its advertisers one has but to consider the existing chaos in publishing and advertising affairs in foreign countries where no system of auditing obtains and where a lively false claim beats modest honesty.

All things are full of labour; man cannot utter it: the eye is not satisfied with seeing, nor the ear filled with hearing.—Ecclesiastes; I, 8.

BURNHAM ON PUBLICITY

CONTRIBUTING to a recent exceptionally interesting number of the Advertising World of London, an issue edited by Mrs. Ethel M. Wood, the intelligent and beautiful President of the Women's Advertising Club, Viscount Burnham made two cogent observations concerning publicity which deserve frames:

"The greater interests of life require as much light and leading as the smaller, and if publicity is essential to understanding, then it touches life as a whole and in every part. The right use of publicity, like the other arts of life, depends upon selection, and that is where knowledge is not sufficient if it be not clarified and concentrated in an attractive light. Merely to scatter it broadcast, like refuse from a dust-cart, may do more harm than good, and it is not all knowledge that fertilizes and illumines the ways of the world. Everything depends upon proportion and perspective."

"In these latter days the secret methods of the past have become an anachronism. To-day it is almost true to say that there are no State secrets. Everything is under the violet rays of public curiosity, and it is undoubtedly best to recognize the necessity of conforming to the present ordering of things. Call it by whatever name you will, all the boons and blessings of the new age have to be made known urbi et orbi if they are to serve the increasing wants of men, and, even more, of women."

"Why don't you call the press agents pub-jackers, to fit in with the age?" asks H. H. P.

A CURIOUS QUESTION

AT the Institute of Politics at Williamstown Arthur K. Kune, President of the American Branch of the International Law Association, asked this question:

"We have strong laws against bribery at the polls, and if a man can be put in prison for accepting $2 to cast a vote at election which may not have any influence upon the course of public events, why should the press that claims freedom of expression and of truth and of opinion be allowed to be paid for the expression of any opinion which is really not its own but that of the person or the interest from which the payment comes?"

We take it that the gentleman wants to know whether political advertising is not tantamount to bribery at the polls. We assume that he does not charge that American newspapers are accepting secret bribes from political candidates or parties for their public influence.

Political advertising is as legitimate as the business of the printer who runs off a hand bill for general distribution, or the owner of a hall that is rented for political meetings, and by no stretch of imagination can properly labelled display advertising purchased by candidates or parties be classed as bribery. It is not considered the most desirable form of advertising, and when the copy is unfair to the public is often refused. The people of this country understand what advertising it, and this includes political notices in newspapers.

If this speaker means that he believes that editors and publishers accept secret bribes for their political influence he was never more mistaken on any subject. Whatever else may be said of the American press, it is politically free and is more independent than any press of any nation.

CALL TO PUBLIC DUTY

THERE is one public institution to which an newspaper may tie itself without qualificatio We refer to the public school. Intensive cultiva tion of this interest is desirable in every way. Indee to neglect it is a journalistic crime.

How goes public education in your community?

Can you answer that question in concrete terms If not, an obvious duty is being neglected. We wi not bore our readers by saying anything about th "citizen of tomorrow," but if we should remark tha boys and girls of today are getting a rough educationa deal in hundreds of communities it might do som good. Take New York state, for instance: The rura districts are fairly plastered with antiquated one-roo district school houses, where big boys and girls ar annoyed and held back by the prattle of six-year-ol youngsters and where discouraged, often distracte women teachers struggle to make bricks without straw The average New Yorker, of course, highhats Nort Carolina as deep in the back woods, but North Caro lina is a half century ahead of New York in th practical matter of free union schools and bus servic giving even the negro population advantages tha excel those provided for white children in New Yor rural sections known to this writer. In the metropoli schools are chronically over-crowded and there ar problems in politics, city finance and administratio that challenge the best talent of New York's news papers.

Why is the school assignment one of the last t be made by the average city editor? It is all righ to cover fires, prize fights, ball-games, divorce courts gambling house raids, chamber of commerce meeting and all other trifling and routine matters of every da in every town, but why subordinate school news Why play down information which, at least in theory is of superlative importance to more than 50 per cen of any newspaper's reading public?

The answer is plainly this: The public school i the one institution that the average American seem willing to take for granted. Millions of children wil return to class rooms within a couple of weeks, gree new teachers and pass through the winter's stud without their parents taking even enough interest t visit the school or make the acquaintance of the teache Hundreds of thousands of mere babies will be led t school for the first time next month by other children their fathers and mothers casting them into the worl with a seeming total lack of personal concern. Thi seems incredible, but every newspaper man knows i is true.

One big thing that newspapers may do is to en courage parental co-operation by visiting schools an assisting teachers. Another responsibility is to keep th hands of ignorant, exploiting politicians off the schoo system. Another is to test the competency of th school faculty. Another is to expose lack of prope school facilities and make the laggard taxpayer d his duty and like it. Still another is to show childre how to concentrate and build mental strength ami the destructive distractions of a jazz age.

There is plenty to do in the cause of public educa tion, the rewards are rich and the time to start is a hand! It is a job for good newspapers.

Florida woman asked Tampa Tribune editor for the name and address of the White House spokesman, and the editor replied by publishing the anonymous biography of a man who has lived the life of Calvin Coolidge.

HISTORIC CIRCUMROTATION

WHEN Sir William Berkeley was royal Gov ernor of Virginia, Richmond Times-Dispatc points out, he thanked God that Virginia ha no free schools or printing presses and fervently hope that the people would be denied these privileges fo a hundred years. In the following century Virgini had a governor in the person of Thomas Jefferso who said that if he had to choose between a govern ment without newspapers and newspapers withou government, he would prefer the latter. Today Vir ginia has still another Governor who is a newspape publisher and editor and in the state 32 dailies, 14 weeklies, 1 tri-weekly and 9 semi-weekly newspaper are published.

PERSONAL

ELMER E. CLARKE, publisher of the Little Rock (Ark.) Democrat, with Mrs. Clarke and their daughter, will spend several weeks in Europe.

C. I. Putnam, publisher of the Washington (D. C.) Times, recently called on old newspaper friends in San Francisco, where he started as a reporter on the Call before the Spanish-American War.

John Lederer, Chicago advertising representative of the San Antonio Light, Los Angeles Herald and San Francisco Call, during several days spent in San Antonio last week was guest at a banquet tendered by Publisher W. M. McIntosh to the Light advertising staff This week Mr. McIntosh entertained Herbert Maloney, New York representative of the same papers.

Dr. Frank F. Barham, publisher of the Los Angeles Herald; E. O. Menz and Arthur Holliday, advertising managers of the Herald, have been visiting the Light, San Antonio paper of the Hearst chain, on their way east this week.

Joel H. Bixby, publisher of the Muskogee (Okla.) Times-Democrat and the Muskogee Phoenix, has been nominated for justice of the peace of Muskogee county by the Republicans.

Hugh Bancroft, editor of the Boston (Mass.) News Bureau, has deeded to the Federation of Bird Clubs of New England twelve acres of land at Cohasset, Mass., to be used as a bird sanctuary and to be known as the Bancroft Wild Life Reservation.

M. D. Witter, publisher of the Brawley (Cal.) News, is a candidate for member of assembly.

Paul Poynter, owner and publisher of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Times, has left for the summer and is spending a vacation in Sullivan, Ind.

L. C. Brown, business manager of the St. Petersburg Independent, accompanied by Mrs. Brown, has left St. Petersburg for West Outlet, Me., where he will join Major Lew B. Brown, his father, owner and publisher of the Independent, who is spending the summer there with Mrs. Brown.

John T. Mack, editor of the Newton (Kan.) Kansas-Republican, was nominated for state representative from his district in the Republican primary.

Arthur Murlin, owner and editor of the Parsons (Kan.) Daily Republican, was nominated for state representative from the 24th Kansas district.

Homer W. Hoch, U. S. Congressman from the Fourth Kansas district and a member of the Hoch family, which owns the Marion (Kan.) Record, has been nominated.

Dan R. Anthony, Jr., owner of the Leavenworth (Kan.) Times was renominated by the First Kansas district for Congressman. He is serving his tenth term in Congress.

Guy U. Hardy, publisher of the Canon City (Colo.) Record, was unanimously nominated for re-election to Congress. He is completing his third term.

THE BUSINESS OFFICE

JAMES J. BURNETT, for the past four years classified advertising manager of the Binghamton Press, is now advertising manager of that newspaper. Leo S. Mulford has been named classified manager.

William A. Maillet has joined the advertising department of the Lockport (N. Y.) Union-Sun and Journal. He has had considerable experience on New England dailies.

John W. Jones has resigned as foreign advertising manager on the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

Miss Henrietta De Walt has gone from advertising manager of Schwabacher-Frey Company of San Francisco to the Kansas City (Mo.) Independent.

Franklin O. Schroeder has resigned from the San Diego (Cal.) Independent, and has been temporarily succeeded as general manager by Charles J. Plambeck, advertising manager for the past year.

IN THE EDITORIAL ROOMS

MILES D. STETTENBENZ is acting managing editor of the New York Evening World, in the absence of John H. Tennant, who is spending his vacation at Paul Smiths in the Adirondacks.

E. Perrin Schwartz, assistant Sunday editor of the Milwaukee Journal, has been promoted to makeup editor. Walter Weyrick, formerly makeup editor, has succeeded Phil Stitt in charge of the New York bureau with headquarters in the World building. Clifford F. Butcher, formerly head of the copy desk of the exchange department of the Kansas City Star, has become assistant Sunday editor of the Journal.

Joseph F. Reilly has returned to the Newark (N. J.) Star-Eagle, as assistant city editor, succeeding Nugent Freeman, now suburban editor.

Frank D. Hicks, who has been night telegraph editor of the Omaha Bee, has been appointed sports editor of the Rockford (Ill.) Star.

Arthur J. Busch, formerly dramatic editor and critic of the Brooklyn Daily Times, has been made city editor of the Brooklyn Citizen, succeeding James J. Dempsey, who is now managing editor.

William Hacker, for six years a member of the Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel editorial staff, has purchased the Flemingsburg (Ky.) Fleming Gazette.

Roy W. Howard, chairman of the board of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers sailed for abroad last week. He will join Mrs. Howard in Paris and return with her in about six weeks.

J. M. Roberts, Jr., of the Asheville (N. C.) Tab, has joined the staff of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer.

John E. McKirdy, a well known Pittsburgh newspaper man and a former president of the Pittsburgh Press Club, was appointed publicity director of the Republican State Committee of Pennsylvania.

Donald McIvor, oil editor of the Wichita (Kan.) Beacon and Mrs. McIvor are the parents of a son, Roderick Kenn.

Joe Sims, former editor of the Medicine Lodge (Kan.) Index is now associated with the Wichita (Kan.) Eagle editorial staff.

Leo H. Wise has resigned from the staff of the St. Petersburg (Fla.) Independent, and gone to White Plains, N. Y.

Floyd Logan, former Lima, Ohio, news reporter has joined the Fort Wayne (Ind.) News-Sentinel editorial staff.

FOLKS WORTH KNOWING

LEO A. BORAH, appointed acting director of the School of Journalism at the University of Washington, July 16, 1926, to succeed Dean M. Lyle Spencer, recently resigned, is doubtless one of the youngest men ever heading a department at a state university. Mr. Borah was born in Iowa Nov. 24, 1889, taking his A. B. degree at Huron College in South Dakota in 1913 in a classical course. Before entering journalism Mr. Borah traveled as a concert tenor for two years.

LEO A. BORAH

However he gave up his aspirations to become an operatic star and took up newspaper work in the middle west, working on papers in Iowa, South Dakota and Illinois. He left Illinois at the close of the war to come to Spokane, as teacher of news writing in the North Central High school. At the same time he worked on the Spokane Chronicle and later on the Spokesman-Review.

In 1921 he went to Minneapolis where he did graduate work in journalism at the University of Minnesota.

In 1922 he came to the Washington School of Journalism as instructor. In 1924 he took his M. A. degree from that university and in 1925 was advanced to assistant professor.

Tom Killian, a Chicago Herald & Examiner staff reporter and a former flier, is accompanying the Ford reliability fleet on its thirteen day air derby and commercial plane survey of the Upper Mississippi valley.

S. J. Newell is the new editor of the Jackson (O.) Herald, succeeding the late Volney H. Benton.

E. E. Cook, editor of the Columbus (O.) Citizen, has been appointed a member of the board of directors of the Columbus Community Fund. He succeeds the late Howard P. Woodbury of the Citizen.

Wayne G. Lee, former newspaper man, has been chosen managing director of the Dayton (O.) Chamber of Commerce. Lee operated a newspaper at Defiance, O., for six years and had worked on papers in Columbus and Springfield.

J. C. Atchinson, for eight years head of the Washington (D. C.) office of the

(Continued on page 28)

The Scranton Times

and

The Charleston, West Va., Gazette

the dominant newspapers in their respective fields, have just subscribed for the World's Best Picture Page. The list of users now includes 100 live newspapers. Do you have it? If not, write or wire today for samples and prices.

The Central Press Association

V. V. McNITT, President — Central Press Bldg., Cleveland — H. A. McNITT, Editor and Manager

So unmistakable has been the popularity of the ELLA CINDERS Strip, that the Sunday Comic is going on the front page of comic section after comic section.

THE ELLA CINDERS SUNDAY PAGE

Starting September 19

Metropolitan Newspaper Service

Maximilian Elser, Jr. General Manager — Earl J. Hadley Associate

150 Nassau St. New York City

Fairchild Publications, New York, has been transferred to the Berlin bureau of that organization. He has been succeeded in Washington by Russell Kent.

Florence Buchanan, millinery editor of Women's Wear, has returned from Paris.

S. Morgan-Powell, dramatic critic of the Montreal Star, is spending several weeks in New York City looking over the new plays.

Miss Carolyn D. Larkins, formerly on the Philadelphia North American, New York Sun and Worcester (Mass.) Telegram, has become publicity executive for the Fiscal Service Corporation of Boston.

Henry S. Wrenn, traveling correspondent for the Greenville (S. C.) News, has resigned to become city editor of the Durham (N. C.) Sun.

Henry Belk, director of the Wake Forest College news bureau, has been made managing editor of the Goldsboro (N. C.) News.

C. R. Sumner, who has been doing publicity work for a development proposition in western North Carolina for several months, has returned to the city desk of the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen.

H. F. Bacon managing editor of the Bristol (Pa.) Independent, has resigned to join the Philadelphia Sun, Curtis-Martin tabloid. He has been succeeded by Henry Snyder, city editor of the McKeesport (Pa.) Times.

C. J. Parker, publicity director of the Morehead City Chamber of Commerce for the summer months, has joined the staff of the Greensboro (N. C.) Daily Record.

IN THE MECHANICAL ROOMS

L. E. OWENS, production manager of the New York World, has purchased a home in White Plains, N. Y. and will move in either next month or the first of October.

Miss Lorena Carney this month observed the twenty-fifth anniversary of her connection with the Shelbyville (Mo.) Shelby County Herald. She started to work in this office August 1, 1901 at first setting type by hand and later as linotype operator and has been there ever since. Nine different owners have been in charge of the Herald, but Miss Carney has retained her chair at the type-setting machine during the entire period.

ASSOCIATIONS AND CLUBS

THE name of the MONTREAL PUBLICITY ASSOCIATION has been changed to ADVERTISING CLUB OF MONTREAL. Henry Viau is secretary-treasurer.

The mid-summer meeting of the OZARK PRESS ASSOCIATION at Forsythe, Aug. 20-21, will be a joint affair with the members of the CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION as guests. W. E. Freelan, editor of the Forsythe Republican, will be host to the editors. The program includes discussions of newspaper problems and a series of trips over the Shepherd of the Hills country, the Powersite dam, Lake Taneyvomo and recreation camps. Both Republican and Democratic groups will have meetings to discuss political activities for the coming campaign. C. H. McNay, editor of the Butler Republican-Press is president of the CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION and F. L. Stufflebaum, editor of the Bolivar Herald, is president of the OZARK ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the GEORGIA PRESS ASSOCIATION scheduled for Aug. 11-12 at Louisville, Ga., was postponed by the executive committee until Sept. 23 at the same place. The postponement was caused by the fact that a side trip to North Carolina was desired by the editors and they could not be accomodated there until the latter part of September. Ernest Camp, editor of the Walton Tribune, is president.

Representatives of newspapers and periodicals published in the United States by Negroes gathered in Philadelphia recently at the 25th annual convention of the NATIONAL NEGRO PRESS ASSOCIATION. E. Washington Rhodes, editor of the Philadelphia Tribune and treasurer of the association, was the host to the visiting delegates. Among those at the convention were William Walker, managing editor of the Washington Tribune; J. Finley Wilson, of the Washington Eagle; the Rev. J. E. East, of the Mission Herald; J. A. G. LuValle, of the St. Louis Standard News; W. A. Hamilton, managing editor of the Washington Sentinel, and R. S. Abbot, of the Chicago Defender.

JOINS PAUL BLOCK STAFF

Harry Gould, who for many years was associated with the publications represented by Julius Mathews, both in Boston, and as Chicago manager, has joined the organization of Paul Block, Inc., with headquarters in Boston.

MARRIED

HAROLD F. JOHNSON, managing editor, the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Record-News, to Miss Edith Lansford of San Antonio.

Allen A. Oxford, classified advertising manager of the Wichita Falls (Tex.) Record-News, to Miss May Dee Smith of Beaumont.

Miss Winnie D. Jackson, Wichita Falls (Tex.) Record-News staff, to John A. West of Wichita Falls.

John W. Livingood, of the Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger copy desk, to Miss Dorothy Kelchner Wenrich, of Lebanon, Pa.

Eileen Lois Dwyer, formerly on the society desk of the San Diego (Cal.) Sun, and Everett G. Jackson of Mexia, Tex., in El Paso recently.

Clark Queer, editor and publisher of the Mt. Pleasant (Pa.) Journal, to Miss Bessie V. Swartz of Pittsburgh, Aug. 4.

Henry Love, member of the San Diego (Cal.) Union editorial staff, to Miss Agnes B. Jones.

James F. Tweedy, automobile editor San Antonio Light, to Miss Lilla Leone Burritt of San Antonio.

Worden Pope Wren, Jr., of Great Falls, Mont., now advertising manager of the Alaskan Weekly, to Miss Donna Mary Ford of Seattle.

SPECIAL EDITIONS

TEXARKANA GAZETTE issued "Selling Texarkana Edition," 7 sections, 112 pages, July 15.

Pottsville (Pa.) Republican and Pottsville Morning Paper issued "Prosperity and Anniversary Number," 116 pages, including 3 tabloid sections, 2 news sections and 2 art gravure sections.

Halifax (N. S.) Evening Mail, 8 page Dartmouth Natal Day Section, Aug. 3, in honor of the 176th anniversary of Dartmouth, celebrated Aug. 5.

Danville (Ill.) Commercial News, Aug. 2, 10-page special section dedicated to the I & I Fair.

The Tulare (Cal.) Advance-Register, Prosperity Edition featuring Tulare Lake country.

The Chattanooga (Tenn.) News recently celebrated its 38th birthday anniversary by getting out a 60-page special edition. Advertising was handled by Cuthbert Scott, and feature articles by Ernest Taylor.

SCHOOLS

JOHN V. LUND, a 1925 graduate from the School of Journalism, University of Washington, left July 17 for a year's study at the University of Oslo in Norway.

Newspapers and magazines on which former journalism students of Indiana University are now employed will be displayed as part of the University exhibition of the Indiana State Fair, to be held at the Fair Grounds in Indianapolis Sept. 4 to 11. Advertisements and special articles which have been written by former students will also be shown. The Indiana Daily Student, official daily of the University, will be published six days of the eight of the fair. It will have a leased wire of the Associated Press. This has been a feature of the fair for several years. Victor Green, of Mt. Vernon, Ind., a senior, will edit the State Fair Student this fall.

PRESS ASSOCIATION NOTES

C. RUSSELL ZEININGER, one of the principal owners of the Manila Bulletin, has entered press association work as assistant to G. M. Clayton, assistant business manager of the United Press in charge of the central division. Mr. Zeininger went to the Philippines from the United States in 1910, joining the staff of the Bulletin in 1913. He became associate editor in 1915 and managing editor in 1918. During these later years he was gradually accumulating stock in the paper. He still retains his interest in the Manila property.

Henry Lasesne has been appointed manager of the Raleigh (N. C.) bureau of the International News Service, succeeding J. F. Arina, resigned.

Willard Smith, formerly of the Des Moines bureau of the United Press, has been made manager of the U. P. bureau at Madison, Wis., succeeding Charles Engelberth.

Make Your Title A Mark of Pride with

Hardened Steel Newspaper Heads

— they last forever

::

A. J. SOSSNER
361 West Broadway
New York

FACTS NOT FICTION

The Portsmouth [Ohio] Morning Sun acknowledges with grateful appreciation

4,687 NEW, paid-in-advance Subscribers

(An increase of 86% new business)

Thanks to the efficient and high class subscription campaign conducted for us by

THE PACIFIC COAST CIRCULATION SERVICE
511 BELL BLOCK, CINCINNATI, OHIO

::

WHAT WE DID FOR THE SUN — WE CAN DO FOR YOU

CONTINUOUS COMPOSITION

ON THE TRADE LINOTYPE MARK MODEL 26

MENSE SURPLUS

that with the undry to pay them and he you you that contract and is now much
w he came in.
d J. Danziger
nd Company
f the country in Stamford is Clougher's as as a short-would like to he admitted.
that was so
The whole
n September,
o come back,
was a short-
he never dis-
of office.
e first check,
hard. H. Fox
m he wanted that came in im he should lter Danziger other's home
Nabout 90 per N "This is a
he answered,
ıy questions.
few others."
Sunday night
restaurants.
..tinue pay-
and the whip
ıe could shut or occupancy friend. They ty-five times
nd Danziger
Othe District hadn't made er in the year was, 1925, he we $100,000."
he charges in t upon which
-said that he o telephoned ın his valet," nager's home llagher came tomobile and n Miss Helen d they, saw it erward as she when in the uman events hat with the undry to pay
tell you that contract and ofhow much as coming in ziger and Co.
T telephoned SSMiss Helen ne she saw it tomobile and rdinary time

LARGE RECEIPTS FOR NEW LOAN

Mellon Announces Refunding of Securities is Unnecessary for First Time Since the War.

DEBT CUT OF $85,000,000

Income and Other Tax Payments Will Run Beyond the Earlier Estimates of Treasury.

WASHINGTON—Government receipts from income taxes and other sources are exceeding estimates by so wide a margin that it will be possible to meet all current expenditures for the rest of the fiscal year and retire approximately $333,700,000 of the short term debt which matures on June 15 without resort to further borrowing this month, according to an announcement made today by Secretary Mellon.

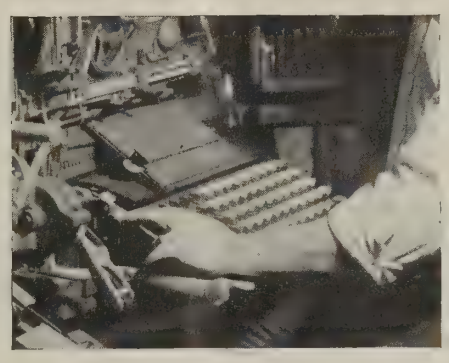
This means that, for the first time since the Government started its program for handling the public debt following the end of the World War in 1919, there will be no quarterly offering of short term securities for refunding purposes. It also indicates that the surplus of ordinary expenditures over ordinary receipts at the close of the fiscal year on June 30 may be $400,000,000 or more, and that public debt retirement

Body Type: 6½ Point Ionic No. 5

STENOGRAPHER, one familiar with calculations. Address F 29, P. O. Box 3443.

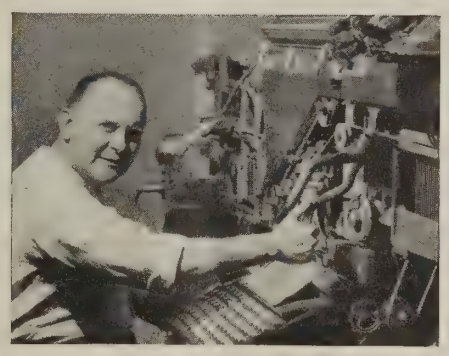
TELEPHONE OPERATOR, for night work, on private branch; good pay; steady work; state age and experience. P 518, Ledger Office.

YOUNG LADY for clerical work; good writer; state age, experience and salary expected. Address "E-55," P. O. Box 3500.

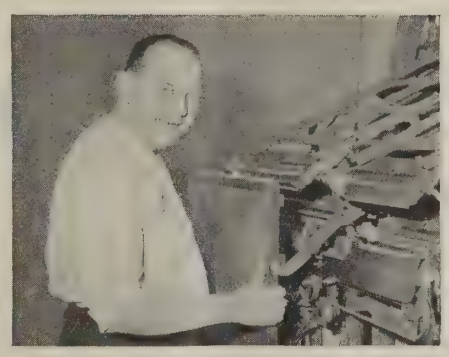


YOUNG LADY for general office work; state experience and salary. P 419, Ledger Office.

DESIRABLE TRAVELING POSITION will be vacant Dec. 1; acceptable applicant must be 28 to 45 years old, with high-school or college education; an unmarried woman or widow without incumbrance preferred; pleasing personality and adaptability essential; no investment necessary; no experience required; position permanent, with advancement; will pay right party excellent salary.



5½ Point No. 4 with Bold Face Cond. No. 2



You can carry your display heads in the two auxiliary magazines (two fonts of caps and figures)

A touch on the shift-key changes the keyboard action to one of the main magazines and you can set the sub-head

Lift a lever and the other main magazine is instantly brought into operative position ready to set the body matter

If you want other faces for classified or display ads, the magazines can be quickly changed and are all interchangeable with other Linotypes

MERGENTHALER LINOTYPE COMPANY

SAN FRANCISCO CHICAGO NEW ORLEANS

BROOKLYN, NEW YORK

Representatives in the Principal Cities of the World

CANADIAN LINOTYPE LIMITED, TORONTO

B30.26.7-F

COMPOSED ON THE LINOTYPE IN CLOISTER AND CLOISTER BOLD, DISPLAY IN NARCISS

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Aiding Advertisers to Obtain Satisfactory Answers to Their Want-Ads —Daily Issues Bulletin on Employment Problems—A Message from President Nax

LACK of information has caused many applicants to fail to obtain satisfactory answers to their ads and this reason prompted the San Francisco Examiner's Want Ad Department to put out two forms called "Want Answers." One is for answers to "Help Wanted Ads" and the other is applicable for general classifications.

The employment form is printed on letter head size and contains the following questionnaire:

Name, Address, Telephone, Age, Nationality, Schooling, Married, Single, Dependents, References—Last 3 Employers, Experience, Remarks. On the reverse side is an excerpt from their booklet, "Writing a Wand Ad that Gets Results," and selected to secure better copy from the advertiser.

The general form is shorter and merely contains the following: Name, Address, Phone, Remarks, with the reverse side covered with a promotion ad on the same lines as the Employment form. A distinctive envelope is also used with the line "This is an answer to an Examiner Want Ad" printed across the bottom.

Constructive advice to classified advertisers is contained in the Examiner's booklet.

"Remember when you are writing an advertisement that you are simply seeking for that single buyer who is waiting to purchase just the thing you have to offer. You have to tell him exactly what the article is and you must describe it in your ad just the way that you would describe it in a personal letter or by word of mouth. Your advertisement should be distinctive; it should stand out so that the lost buyer will be found at once as soon as he scans the want-ad columns.

"Treat your advertisement in a familiar manner. It isn't a telegram, it is a friendly communication with a definite object to perform. Better that you spend a few cents more to describe the article you have for sale in an intelligent manner than that you should be so brief that the reader fails to understand the message you wish to convey.

"Don't forget that the sale is made before the want ad is even read and act accordingly."

The classified department of the New York Herald Tribune, L. L. Heaton, manager, is publishing "Help," a bulletin on employment problems, mailed free to a selected list of prospective advertisers.

Copies are being mailed out with an enclosed post card reading:

"Since there is no charge for 'Help' and its cost of production is high, we are anxious to confine its mailing list to those who find it of real interest. We are therefore revising the list of those to whom the publication is sent and would appreciate your indicating below whether or not you wish to continue to receive it."

A recent number contains articles of interest to employers under the titles, "The Continuation School Problem," "Hints to Advertisers," "Substitutes' Supply," "Vacation Policies," "Current Wage Scales," and "The Personnel Equation."

Under "Hints to Advertisers," Mr. Heaton wrote:

"Advertisers frequently ask us our opinion as to the relative value of 'Box Number' or 'Blind' ads, as compared to those incorporating the name of the firm advertising. We feel that there is much to be said on both sides of the question, and one point of view seems to us to be well illustrated by the following example:

"Recently four advertisements were inserted in the New York Herald Tribune by two well-known companies. In each case the first insertions carried only addresses, one of which was very far east in a mid-town street and the other in Greenpoint. Apparently prospective applicants were deterred by the inaccessibility of the locations, for few answers were received.

"Several days later the same ads were republished, this time carrying the names of the companies, one of which is a well-known oil organization and the other a prominent electrical house. The same addresses were used, of course, but the fact that the locations were inconvenient was this time over-balanced by the pulling power of the firm names. More than four times the number of applicants answered the second advertisements as did the first."

A message from Charles W. Nax, St. Louis Globe-Democrat, and president of the Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, printed in the current number of the Classified Journal, lists association projects to be undertaken this year as follows:

1—Possible enlargement of the Classified Journal, edited by C. C. Armstrong, Cleveland Press.

2—Preparation of a campaign of classified publicity that will be adaptable for newspapers of all sizes to be published simultaneously if possible by all association members.

3—Compilation of a text book on classified advertising to be used in schools of journalism.

4—Continuation of effort to gain new members, with a goal of not less than 350 before the Denver convention next year.

5—Further co-operation with the National Better Business Bureau in development of the bulletin service to war against fake advertisers.

John L. Irvin, New Orleans Item-Tribune, recently worked an effective promotion stunt for his classified section in the form of a "Treasure Hunt."

Clues were published in the classified and in the promotion matter on other pages, including, each day, a front page box. Two clues were used in each treasure hunt. The first directed readers to some specific classification in the Tribune on the following morning and the Tribune clue, properly solved, directed them to where the treasure could be found and when. Each clue was deliberately made easy to solve. A daily story announcing winners was run.

Plans for revising the present method of count measurements in classified advertising linage were discussed last week at a meeting of the New York City Classified Managers Association, of which L. L. Heaton, New York Herald Tribune, is president.

Sidney H. Wolf has become classified advertising manager of the Toledo Blade, following several years as a classified solicitor on the Detroit Free Press.

W. E. Douglas has been appointed classified manager of the Long Beach (Cal.) Press-Telegram. Until recently he was with the Washington (D. C.) Post.

NEW PLANTS AND EQUIPMENT

The Easton (Pa.) Free Press has installed two new Linotypes.

W. R. Flad, publisher of the Freeland Pa.) Press, has installed a Miehle vertical press.

The Edinburg (Tex.) Review has plans for a new reinforced concrete and brick building to house the publication's plant.

The Welch (W. Va.) Daily News will shortly start construction on a two-story building devoted entirely to its own uses.

The DeLand (Fla.) Daily News is now operating in its completely remodeled plant. Steel beams have been substituted for wood throughout the two-story building and decorations, interior and exterior, have been renovated.

The Martinez (Cal.) Standard has moved into its new two-story building in the heart of the city's newest business district, opposite the court house.

Salamanca (N. Y.) Republican-Press has moved into its new plant.

Elrod casters were recently installed by the Birmingham (Ala.) News, Frederick (Md.) News-Post, Pocatello (Idaho) Tribune, Burlington (Vt.) Free Press, and the Iola (Kan.) Register.

ENVELOPE FIGHT WEAPON

Colorado Press Cites Rule Barring Postmasters from Soliciting Business

In its campaign against government competition in printed envelopes, the Colorado Editorial Association draws attention to one postal regulation not commonly known to exist.

This regulation, it is pointed out, expressly forbids postmasters to solicit envelope orders from business houses.

Commenting on the subject, Arthur L. Craig, president of the Colorado association, said:

"I have known as least one case in which the postmaster (not now in office) systematically canvassed the business houses of his city for their envelope orders in an effort to increase his postal receipts.

"The leading job printers there suffered a noticeable decrease in business as a result.

"If any Colorado postmaster is known to be disregarding the official order mentioned and fails to desist after this regulation is called to his attention, a complaint, directed to the department in Washington, will not be out of order."

In the old days a doctor couldn't get rid of a troublesome patient by sending him to a specialist.—Waterbury American.

Your Name on a Postcard with your address, business connection and title is all that is necessary to start EDITOR & PUBLISHER coming to you at once—or to RENEW your present subscription for another year.

Why not send it today?

It surely will be worth your while. EDITOR & PUBLISHER is the oldest, the strongest, the best liked, the most consistently USED publication serving newspaper men, advertisers and advertising agencies. With the promptness and aggressiveness of the daily paper it gives the news and views of the master craftsmen in its field, affording an insight into current conditions, movements and trends SUCH AS CAN BE HAD FROM NO OTHER SOURCE.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Suite 1700, Times Building • • • New York

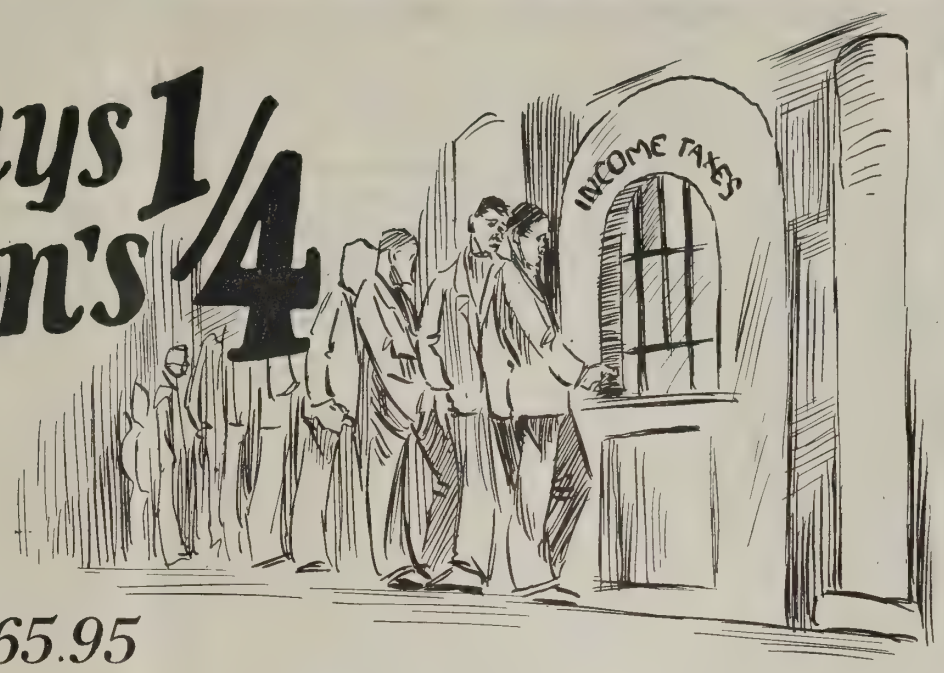
Cline-Westinghouse Motor Equipment

Insures the most economical power and control of printing machinery

CLINE SYSTEM — CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO. CHICAGO — QUALITY NAME SERVICE FAME — CLINE WESTINGHOUSE

Alternating and Direct Current

Used by the best known newspapers



CLINE ELECTRIC MFG. CO.

Western Office First Nat'l Bank Bldg. San Francisco, Calif.

Conway Bldg. 111 W. Washington St. CHICAGO

Eastern Office Marbridge Bldg. 47 W. 34th St. New York

New York pays 1/4 of the Nation's Taxes

Income Tax Total Amounted to $733,072,365.95

ONE quarter of all income tax, $733,072,365.95 was paid into the United States Treasury by the citizens of the Empire State.

New York has the farms, the factories, the commercial enterprises, that assures a steady and increasing revenue to its salaried employees and wage earners. That is the main consideration why most of the national advertisers look upon New York State as their principal market.

The population, the prosperous cities and the hundreds and hundreds of well-paying farms are the deciding influence.

You can best cover this great market by using the papers listed below.

Write them for full information.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
Albany Evening News (E)	34,444	.10	.10
Albany Knickerbocker Press (M)	34,018	.11	.11
Albany Knickerbocker Press (S)	56,924	.16	.16
Amsterdam Recorder-Democrat (E)	7,810	.04	.04
††Auburn Citizen (E)	6,389	.065	.055
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (E)	73,764	.22	.22
Brooklyn Daily Eagle (S)	84,997	.22	.22
Buffalo Courier-Express (M)	116,000	.22	.22
Buffalo Courier-Express (S)	155,000	.30	.30
Buffalo Evening News (E)	138,294	.25	.25
Buffalo Evening Times (E)	100,393	.21	.21
Buffalo Sunday Times (S)	104,076	.21	.21
††Corning Evening Leader (E)	9,339	.05	.05
Elmira Star-Gazette Advertiser (E&M)	33,487	.11	.11
Freeport Daily Review (E)	7,991	.05	.05
††Geneva Daily Times (E)	5,040	.04	.04
Gloversville Leader Republican (E)	7,238	.035	.035
††Ithaca Journal-News (E)	7,751	.05	.05
Jamestown Morning Post (M)	11,722	.04	.035
Middletown Times-Press (E)	7,127	.04	.04
Mount Vernon Daily Argus (E)	10,437	.05	.05
Newburgh Daily News (E)	12,132	.06	.06
††New Rochelle Standard-Star (E)	3,598	.04	.04
The Sun, New York (E)	257,067	.60	.56
New York Times (M)	356,471	.80	.784
New York Times (S)	610,041	.95	.931
††New York Herald-Tribune (S)	345,484	.693	.672
††New York World (M)	287,632	.595	.58
††New York World (S)	582,929	.595	.58
††New York Evening World (E)	294,442	.595	.58
Niagara Falls Gazette (E)	20,629	.07	.07
Port Chester Item (E)	4,732	.03	.03
Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise (E)	12,824	.06	.06
††Rochester Times-Union (E)	70,406	.21	.20
††Syracuse Journal (E)	65,326	.16	.16
Troy Record (M&E)	22,679	.06	.06
Watertown Standard (E)	17,617	.07	.07
Watertown Times (E)	17,334	.08	.08

 A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
†† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.
 Merged as Buffalo Courier-Express, June 14, 1926.

BUILDING NEWSPAPER CIRCULATION

Marks of Asheville Citizen Claims "Peppiest" Newsboys—Milwaukee Sentinel Fostering "See America First" Contest—Getting Business in Suburban and Country Towns

WHAT newspaper has the peppiest carrier boys?

J. R. Marks, circulation manager of the Asheville (N. C.) Citizen, last week claimed the superlative for his organization of 45 newsboys.

"The boy route carriers of the Citizen are the best organized and peppiest bunch of youngsters I have ever seen during a long experience in the circulation field of daily newspapers," he declared, addressing the last monthly meeting of Citizen carriers.

In addition to the 45 boy carriers there are several men carriers two of whom have an average of 400 papers each to deliver. It has been explained that these men are enabled to deliver this great number of papers in a comparatively short time since so many of the subscribers compose entire communities, thereby eliminating waste of time in travel from place to place. Several of the boy carriers also deliver more than one route.

Sammy Knight, 12, was crowned "King of the Citizen Carriers" at the monthly meeting and was presented a $2.50 gold piece by Mr. Marks. Sammy delivers 10 more papers than there are houses on his route, delivering 259 papers in all. His extra papers go into apartment houses.

When Sammy started carrying his route there were 150 papers being delivered. This was last December. Four weeks ago he had raised this number to 190 daily, and now has reached the peak of 259, a gain of 109 starts in about seven months.

A contest among Citizen carriers closed Aug. 9. Each carrier was paid a fee for each new subscriber and cash prizes were awarded to the five highest boys.

Promotion work for building newspaper circulation in country and suburban towns must be centered chiefly among the boys supplied by sub-dealers, in the opinion of George Erb, Jr., of the Buffalo Evening News.

"We keep a card record of every agency boy together with a record of the boys with whom we deal direct," Mr. Erb said. "These records are kept up to date and checked over carefully each month. The office sends out a letter to those who have shown an increase commending their efforts, while another letter goes out to those showing a decrease.

"We also have a card record of every town in which the News is sold. The card gives complete information with reference to the dealer or carriers' average draw, together with data regarding the sale of the competing papers. It also gives valuable information concerning the size, location, etc., of the towns.

"Contests among the boys at the agencies usually result in getting new business, provided they are worked properly and are followed up judiciously by the road man and office. A bonus to dealers for increased sales will also bring in new business.

"A special edition for one particular town run for about a week will make it possible for your solicitor to place your publication in a great many more new homes than it would be possible to do in any other way."

The Pittsburgh Sun, through its "Sun-Ray Club," children's organization, is offering a box of candy daily to club members who predict the weather correctly. Contestants fill out a coupon as follows: "I predict that the weather at 8 o'clock on (date)..... will be..... (clear, cloudy, rain). The temperature will be..... (degrees).

The Milwaukee Sentinel is publishing preliminary promotion on a "See America First" contest to open Aug. 21. On that date, it is advertised, readers will be given an opportunity to see all the "wonder sights in America in pictures" and a chance to win part of $100 in gold by correctly naming the interesting places.

"Let the boys have most of the fun themselves" is the rule followed by Galt Burns, circulation manager of the Washington Star, when he supervises a carrier outing. The Star "newsies," 500 in number, with more than 300 guests, were treated to a boat ride on the Potomac River, Aug. 6. Mr. Burns then saw to it his rule was obeyed.

"I always reckon mainly on the recognized ability of youngsters to create their own amusements when out with the crowd," Mr. Burns said. "They accomplish it in much better style than when the recreation is planned for them by some grown-up.

"So only a limited number of program features were scheduled and the boys settled down and proceeded to extract the happiness out of the evening that only boys can."

Twenty-six Chicago mermaids took to the waters of Lake Michigan, Aug. 7, to swim two miles up the Chicago river in the Chicago Daily Journal's sixth annual Chicago river marathon for girls. The title at stake was the long-distance swimming championship of the middle west.

"Red" Grange, Dick Howell, Chicago swimmer, Helen Wills, Jack Dempsey, "Babe" Ruth, "Hack" Wilson, Bobby Jones, Gertrude Ederle, Walter Johnson and Gene Tunney are the leaders in the Chicago Evening American's sport popularity contest. Votes are printed in every issue of the American whereby fans may vote for their favorite athlete, who must be a resident of the United States.

Chicago's most perfect baby is to be chosen by the Chicago Daily News in conjunction with the Uptown theatre in Chicago. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, health commissioner of Chicago, will head a body of judges who will select the winning babies from photographs and the infants themselves. Two hundred dollars in cash, given by the Daily News, will be the first prize. Other prizes will be an oil painting, a savings account and photographs.

The Philadelphia Inquirer's annual "Famous Fifty" circulation campaign is again in full swing this year. Fifty persons who obtain the greatest numbers of subscriptions to the Inquirer are the guests of the newspaper at the World's Series baseball games, with all expenses paid, including amusements and side trips.

The annual amateur baseball classic of the Rocky Mountain states—the Denver News and Times championship tournament, was launched last week. Awaiting the winning teams are a number of cash prizes and sports trophies.

To encourage wholesome recreation and sport among Seattle children the Post Intelligencer is sponsoring a program of athletic meets, tournaments and outings, open to boys and girls of the city. The first event was a swimming carnival August 7. The girls' playground efficiency test ends August 14, when prizes will be awarded. For the boys, the Post Intelligencer has arranged an overnight encampment at Fort Lawton, to be held the last week in August.

The Philadelphia Evening Public Ledger is offering a $7,500 travel and pedestrian accident insurance policy to any subscriber for $1 a year during which the publication will be delivered daily.

The "Sesqui Kids" of Reading, Pa., 3,500 strong, visited the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition this week, as the guests of the Reading Times. Gathered from homes in the poorer sections of Reading, the children made a tour of the Exposition under the direction of Joseph Hornstein, of the Times, and Mrs. J. Milton Miller, the chief hostess.

Walter R. Schaefer, for a number of years on the circulation staff of the Milwaukee Journal, is now circulation manager of the Marinette (Wis.) Eagle-Star, succeeding Stephen P. Jones. Mr. Jones remains with the Eagle-Star in another capacity.

C. R. Goodrich, circulation manager of the Charlotte (N. C.) Observer, has resigned to accept a similar position with the Charlotte (N. C.) News.

Robert Foster, connected with the circulation department of the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, was seriously hurt when an automobile in which he was riding was struck by a train at a grade crossing near Burgettstown, Pa. on August 7. T man with whom he was riding was i stantly killed. Foster is expected to r cover.

A close tie-up with radio fans is beir offered by the St. Louis Globe-Democr in the form of radio logs and distan maps, given free to those who write call. The paper describes the log as "t neatest, most compact, and most practic that we have ever seen." It works c the same principle as the dials of a r ceiving set. Of course it contains th Globe-Democrat's own advertising pr motion copy. This St. Louis daily c operates in the conduct of Static KMOX..

The Fort Worth Record-Telegran Harold Hough, circulation manager, among papers interesting young reade through organization of a local birthda club. Membership is limited to childre between the ages of 1 to 12. They fi out coupons giving their name, addres and date of birth and are given publicit when their birthdays roll around.

The same paper effectively circuse "The Misty Pathway," a serial novel th started running Aug. 4, by picking ou the most exciting illustrations and prin ing them with teaser captions sever days before the opening chapter appeare

---

The Cleveland News is working a clu bing offer with a group of magazines i an effort to increase its list of paid sul scribers.

Among papers offering accident insu ance policies to readers agreeing to sul scribe for the summer months are th Louisville Courier-Journal, Louisvil Times, Atlanta Journal, and Detroit Fre Press. Promotion copy for the insuran plays up the slogan: "Vacation Time Accident Time." Insurance companie offering the circulation tie-up to new papers include the Continental Life Insu ance Company and the Federalized Reac ers Service Accident Insurance Compan was the average net paid daily circulation of The Baltimore Sun (morning and evening issues) for the month of

243,311

July, 1926

The average net paid circulation of THE SUNDAY SUN per Sunday for the month of July, 1926, was 187,733.

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around

THE SUN

Morning Evening Sunday

We offer for Sale

COMPLETE NEWSPAPER PLANT

of the

TAMPA MORNING TELEGRAPH

This plant had been operated only a few months when it was purchased by the Tampa Tribune. The equipment was installed less than a year ago and most of it was new. Will be sold complete or in separate lots.

Hoe Sextuple Press with complete Stereotype equipment for dry mats and electrical equipment for alternating current.
30 Hoe Steel Stereotype Chases.
30 Goss Steel Form Tables.
1 Goss Curved Routing Machine.
1 Hoe Saw Table.
1 Hoe Flat Casting Box.
1 Metal Melting Furnace.
1 Curtis Air Compressor.
1 Monotype Type and Rule Caster with 5 molds and 20 fonts display mats. 10 Type Storage Cabinets with boxes.
1 Monotype Material Making Machine, 3 molds units and 15 material mats.
9 Model 8 Linotype Machines.
3 Model 14 Linotype Machines.
1 Model 22 Linotype Machine.
1 Model 26 Linotype Machine.
3 Stevenson Furniture Molds.
Linotype Matrices for 5½ and 6-point body, and 10 to 36-point Head line and Display in Cheltenham, Century, etc.
2 Miller Universal Saw Trimmers.
1 Wesel Electric Proof Press, bed 10 x 29.
1 Wesel Self-Inking Proof Press, 18½ x 30.
4 No. 12030 Hamilton Steel Newspaper Type Cabinets.
2 Hamilton 12-ft. Steel Make-up Tables.
1 Hamilton 6-ft. Dump Table.
1 Hamilton Steel 6-ft. Correcting Table.
3 Hamilton Square Leg Imposing Tables with marble tops.
1 Hamilton Steel Sort Cabinet No. 13440 with sort boxes.
4 Type Case Racks with California cases.
1 Hamilton Steel 6-ft. Correcting Table.
291 Pressed Steel Galleys, one column.
24 Pressed Steel Galleys, 6¼ x 23½.
12 Steel Mailing Galleys, 8½ x 23½.
50 Steel Galleys, 3½ x 23½.
6 Brass Job Galleys, 12 x 18.
7 Brass Job Galleys, 18 x 25.
16 Paragon Brass Galleys.
5 Six-col. Brass Galleys, 15 x 23½.
1 Font Single-col. Cast Iron Newsp. Base.
1 Font Double-col. Cast Iron Newsp. Base.
8 Rouse Job Sticks, 10 x 2¼.
4 Rouse Job Sticks, 20 x 2¼.
Display Type in weight fonts; 48-60-72-96 and 120-point. Cooper Bold, Cheltenham Bold, Cheltenham Bold Italics.
Century Old Style, Century Old Style Bold, Railroad Gothic, Pabst Old Style, Goudy Hand-Tooled Italic, Spaces, Quads, Per Cent Marks, Fractions, etc.

For prices and full details write or wire

BAKER SALES COMPANY, 200 Fifth Avenue, New York City

A Pig in a Poke is nothing in comparison with the futility of a national newspaper advertiser launching a campaign without first investigating the buying habits of the people who compose his prospective market.

SUCH AN INVESTIGATION

covering any considerable number of trading areas would cost a fortune and take months and months to complete.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S MARKET GUIDE

does away with all necessity of extended research work on the part of either advertiser or agency.

ITS THOUSANDS OF FACTS AND FIGURES

tell all that need to be known about the 1300 cities where American and Canadian daily newspapers are published before deciding how much money can be spent profitably and what kind of advertising can be placed to advantage in reaching out after new markets for a product—from their physical characteristics to their industrial, financial, social, educational and retail-store resources.

THAT IS WHY

you'll find a copy of the Market Guide on the desks of practically all the advertising managers, sales managers, agency account executives, space buyers and research men who have the final say in the placing of 95% of the national newspaper advertising of today.

A WONDERFULLY GOOD REASON, TOO, IS THIS

for the publishers of daily newspapers to use the columns of the Market Guide to sell their space to these prospective buyers of space. There are a lot of other good reasons—want to know them? No obligations.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER [Suite 1700] Times Building, New York

WOMEN IN ADVERTISING AND JOURNALISM

Prejudice Against Newspaper Women Has Vanished, Louella O. Parsons Finds—Advertising Scholarships Commended—Florence McIntyre Fiction Editor for King

PREJUDICE against newspaper women has entirely vanished, in the opinion of Louella O. Parsons, motion picture editor of Universal Service.

Louella Parsons

"The percentage of successful women in the field of journalism today has increased 75 per cent since I began my career," she declared. "The idea, too, of the dowdy-looking female with bedraggled hair and ill-fitting clothes as typifying every woman reporter went out with the bicycle. The modern newspaper woman is not only mentally alert, but is smartly dressed."

Mrs. Parsons' particular work for the past 12 years has been along specialized lines, first as moving picture editor of the Chicago Herald, then as editor on the New York Morning Telegraph, later with the New York American, and now with Universal Service.

"There is no craft in the world as exciting as the newspaper profession and no part of the work as interesting as reporting because it offers a variety of subjects and a world of experiences," she said. "Even now I forget the movies every so often to report a special story for the city editor.

"Only a few weeks ago I met the train bringing Aimee Semple McPherson to Los Angeles to write a feature article on mob psychology as represented by the crowd at the station.

"My first newspaper job dates back so many years that I refuse to give actual figures. I was home from school on a summer vacation with no thought but having a good time when I was offered the position of society editor on the Dixon (Ill.) Star. One of my best friends was married to the publisher of the paper in Dixon, a town of twelve thousand. I was paid the large sum of $5 a week. As the first woman reporter in Dixon I felt my responsibilities. I bought a huge notebook which accompanied me wherever I went. I was so delighted with the distinction that I gradually accepted the added responsibilities of dramatic editor, musical critic and assistant city editor, all for the same salary.

"Just when I was getting $6 a week I left it all to get married. For the next four years I was busy in my home and with my small daughter. Then when I found myself alone with a three-year-old baby I naturally turned to the one thing I knew, newspaper work.

"I wrote feature stories for the Chicago Tribune which were sometimes accepted and sometimes put into the waste basket. The uncertainty of definite remuneration made me accept with alacrity, an offer to join the Essanay Film Company as scenario writer at $20 a week.

"For the next five years I turned out on an average of two scenarios a week, I wrote a textbook on "How to Write for the Movies," and I contributed a Sunday feature to the Chicago Herald.

"My heart, however, was always more in newspaper work than in writing the "thrillers" demanded and so when James Keeley, publisher of the Herald, asked me to inaugurate a daily column and write reviews in addition to doing the Sunday page, I resigned from Essanay to affiliate myself with the Herald.

"My most interesting assignment happened when I was on the Chicago Herald. I was told to cover the Eastland disaster where more than two thousand people were drowned on an excursion boat. I was instructed to visit the homes of the afflicted and get their personal stories.

"In the beginning I approached these small houses with reticence. But the eagerness of the people who were of the poorer class to tell their stories made me forget myself. There is a curious, morbid desire to talk among people who have had trouble and their willingness to tell me little intimate stories of their loved ones was one of the most touching things I have ever encountered. In some homes three and four children were drowned and it seemed to give the parents relief from their grief to talk to someone who understood. Any stranger, I suppose would have sufficed, but a newspaper reporter stood for a certain amount of dignity and they felt honored that the paper had sent someone to visit them. I worked unceasingly with about two hours' sleep a night, learning more about human nature than I have learned before or since.

"My most exciting assignment was a murder case that happened many years ago. The young man, son of a wealthy family, while intoxicated, shot and killed a barkeeper. He was sentenced to twenty-one years in the penitentiary and my job was to shadow the girl who came from Chicago to see him and who was determined to marry him in spite of all opposition. I followed the girl, won her confidence and went with her while she married the boy. I have often wondered what happened to her and to him, if he were ever pardoned and if they lived together after he was released from jail.

"I entered newspaper work because I think it is the most fascinating and the most interesting although in many ways the most difficult and heart-breaking work in the world. I never intended to specialize, I wanted to be a reporter and if I do say it myself, I think now that I am a far better reporter than editor.

"I have always wanted to write something other than newspaper articles but I have been too busy supplying a story a day and a feature on Sunday to give much thought to anything beyond the exacting demands of a daily column. I feel that I owe a great deal to my newspaper work since I have been able to send my daughter to the best schools in the country. She is now in Wellesley College and she too, wants to write. I hope she will accomplish many of the things I have never had time to do."

Arthur Williams, vice-president of the New York Edison Company, this week commended the memorial advertising scholarship at New York University for young business women recently announced by the League of Advertising Women, New York.

"The league is not only giving a valuable stimulus to its own profession, but is also making a fine contribution to American business in general," he said.

Mr. Williams pointed out that Miss Helen M. Rockey, president of the League, has for many years been "the right hand man to the manager of our advertising department."

The scholarships offered by the League of Advertising Women were recently established in memory of two prominent members of the League—Helen Louise Johnson and May S. Thayer. They are open to any young women employed in the advertising profession, including advertising agencies, publishers, newspapers and magazines, printers, engravers, department stores, specialty shops, national advertisers and local advertisers. The closing date for letters of application which should be addressed to the League's office at 25 Park avenue, New York, has been set for August 20.

Florence E. McIntyre has been appointed fiction editor of King Features Syndicate, New York. She will be in charge of a staff that writes and edits newspaper serials.

Ishbel Ross of the staff of the New York Herald Tribune spent several days at Red Bank, N. J. last week covering the search for the leopard which escaped and was thought to be in the Harry Payne Whitney horse farm near Red Bank.

AD TIPS

William Henry Baker, Guardian Building Cleveland. Placing orders for 28 lines durin August and September, for Rahnous Prescrip tion, a hay fever remedy.

Campbell-Ewald Company, General Motor Building, Detroit. Has secured contract t advertise new car of Buick Motor Car Com pany, Flint, Mich.

Caples Company, 225 East Erie street, Chi cago. Has secured account of the Cuba National Tourist commission to advertise Cub as a playground for Americans. Magazine and metropolitan papers to be used.

Dorland Agency, Inc., 244 Madison avenue New York City. Will place account for A. I Babcock Company, New York, manufacturer "Babex" a deodorant and toilet preparations.

Henri, Hurst & McDonald, 58 East Washing ton street, Chicago. Placing account of th Beaver Products Company, Buffalo, manufa turers building materials.

Homer McKee Company, Kahn Building Indianapolis. Placing hay-fever remedy accou of Fugate Remedy company, Indianapolis, i middle western papers.

Lamport-McDonald Company, J. M. S. Build ing, South Bend. Handling account of th Chicago Paper Company, Chicago, manufa turers "Foldwell" line of coated paper.

Lord & Thomas and Logan, 247 Park avenu New York City. Now placing account of th Electric Vacuum Cleaner Company, Clevelan manufacturers "Premier Duplex," "Premie Handy" and "Premier" vacuum cleaners.

C. F. W. Nichols Company, 14 East Jackso boulevard, Chicago. Has secured account o the Canadian Pacific railway in wheat growin states.

Phelps and Pietsch, 14 East Jackson boule vard, Chicago. To run tryout campaign o Milani Salad Dressing company in four cities.

Reardon Advertising Company, Inc., Quinc Building, Denver, Colo. Now placing accou of the Biel Manufacturing Company, Denve manufacturers of artificial eyes.

Rickard & Co., Inc., 25 Spruce street, Ne York City. Handling account of Jenkins Bro New York, manufacturers valves and mechanic rubber goods.

Williams and Cunnyngham, 6 North Mich gan boulevard, Chicago. Has secured accou of Mason Fibre Company, Chicago.

BEGINS SERIES ON RUSSIA

The New York Herald Tribune o Aug. 10 began publication of a serie of articles on the latest developments i Russia, written by Elias Tobeken.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER $4 a year.

Our Customers Write Our Ads

JOHN D. McADAMS, of the ALTON, ILL., TELEGRAPH

Says—

"I personally think the DUPLEX TUBULAR press a great institution for a paper with from 10,000 to 15,000 daily circulation."

DUPLEX PRESSES

FOR ALL NEWSPAPERS

Duplex Printing Press Co.
BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

EDITORIAL CONTROL WANTED

The publishers of a daily newspaper, operating on a limited capital, have built up a very valuable newspaper property, but in so doing were forced to borrow $40,000 from a group of local business men. The total business of the firm last year was over $160,000, a net profit of 12.5 percent being realized on this amount.

The $40,000 loan pays eight percent interest and is well secured, the owners having pledged their entire interest in the newspaper as security. The loan is due June 10, 1929, having practically three years to run, but may be paid in full at any time.

One of the conditions of the loan gives editorial control of the newspaper to this group of citizens until such time as the loan is repaid.

In order to free themselves from this condition, the publishers are willing to pay as high as ten percent interest on a loan of similar size ($40,000), giving the same security, making the loan payable in full at some definite time or in yearly $10,000 installments. Interest could be made payable either annually or semi-annually.

A thoro investigation of the books of the firm by responsible parties is invited.

Write Box A-718, care of EDITOR & PUBLISHER

WHAT'S WHAT IN THE FEATURE FIELD

Yale Enters Syndicate Field — Norman Hapgood with United Features—Dr. Morris Fishbein Writing for NEA Service, Inc.

YALE UNIVERSITY has entered the syndicate field. A. Rowden King, of the New York office of the Yale University Press, 522 Fifth avenue, this week announced the offering to newspapers of a special once-a-month Sunday feature page of "a commemoroative-historical nature." The first page is scheduled for publication Sunday, Oct. 10, the Sunday before Columbus Day, and will be an article on Christopher Columbus written by Irving Berdine Richman, Litt. D.

Among 37 authors who will contribute articles on succeeding months are: Mary Johnston, Emerson Hough, Ralph D. Paine, Max Farrand, John Moody, Nathaniel W. Stephenson, Herbert E. Bolton, and Charles Seymour. They were among the authors of the 50-volume history of America known as "The Chronicles of America," published by the Yale University Press.

The feature will be available in typewritten form, glossy photo-prints, or as full page mats.

The Yale University Press is also syndicating a daily feature called "Our Nation in the Making," through the New York Herald Tribune Syndicate, New York.

Among new newspaper serial offerings announced this week are: "The Double House," mystery novel, by Elizabeth Dejeans and "Eyes of Fire," a romance by Roger Daniels, being distributed by King Features Syndicate, New York; "Myra," by Mabel Greene; and "Spoilt Music," by Ruby Ayres, handled by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York.

Mabel Greene is the psuedonym of Miss Mabel Denison, fiction editor for McClure. Her story will be offered in 1,000-word installments with half-tone illustrations to begin Oct. 4. Miss Denison was for seven years a member of the editorial staff of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch and prior to that time was connected with the Omaha World-Herald. Florence E. McInyre is the new fiction editor for King.

Norman Hapgood has joined the United Features Syndicate and is to cover spot news, political and otherwise, the matter to be distributed by wire. His contract begins Sept. 15. At present Mr. Hapgood is special writer for the Hearst newspapers and services, being mainly assigned to Washington. United Features Syndicate announced this week that among the papers that had contracted for Hapgood's articles were the Hearst newspapers.

Dr. Morris Fishbein, editor of the Journal of the American Medical Association, has been signed by NEA Service, Inc., New York and Cleveland, to write a daily series of articles on health. The new series will replace the health talks distributed by NEA during the past year written by Dr. Hugh S. Cummings, surgeon general of the United States Public Health Service. The press of official duties prevented Dr. Cummings from continuing his writing, according to the syndicate.

Serial publication of "Fix Bayonets," by Capt. John W. Thomason, Jr., U. S. M. C., a Bell Syndicate offering will begin Sept. 12, the eighth anniversary of the battle of St. Mihiel.

O'Dell Newspaper Syndicate, New York, announced its first feature this week as a series of 10 weekly articles on criminal psychology written by David Seabury, author of "Unmasking Our Minds." Publication date has been set for Sept. 19.

Merton E. Burke, one-time managing editor of the New York Daily News, later managing editor of the Washington Daily News, has joined the editorial staff of the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York.

Premier Syndicate, New York, will start syndicating "House Plans for Home Builders," a weekly illustrated article by Cora W. Wilson, beginning Aug. 29.

"Laughs From Life" and Robert Sherwood's "Motion Picture Album," formerly handled by the Life Syndicate, New York, have been taken over by Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York.

A new daily picture strip on the "Outline of Science" has been prepared for newspapers by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, New York, for fall syndication.

North American Newspaper Alliance has signed a contract with Suzanne Lenglen, through C. C. Pyle her manager, for a series of 18 articles covering her American tour as a professional tennis player.

Famous Features Syndicate, New York, is handling "My Honeymoon Diary," by "Peaches" Browning.

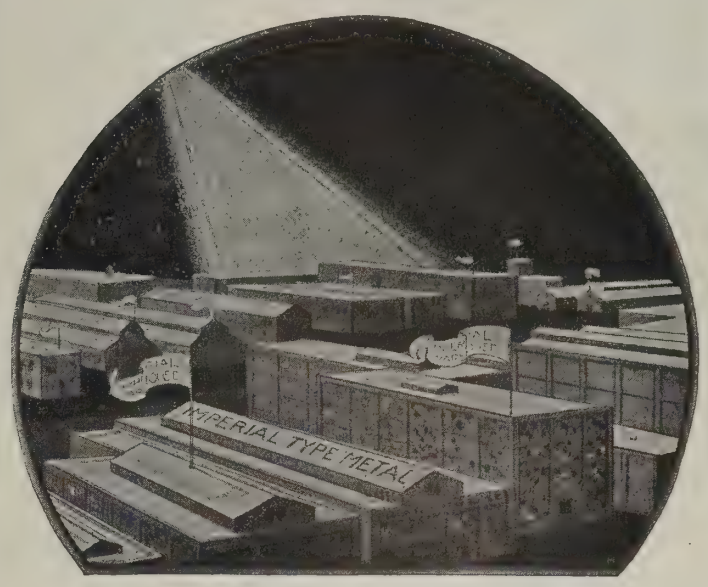
Montague Glass will write the balloons for "Potash and Perlmutter" who will make their bows as comic strip characters shortly through the Bell Syndicate, Inc., New York.

Frank M. Simonds will start late this month on a special European trip for the McClure Newspaper Syndicate, Inc., New York, to cover the approaching Geneva conference by cable. He will also visit Paris, London, Berlin and Brussels.

The annual "Babe" Ruth all-American baseball team picking contest, sponsored by the Christy Walsh Syndicate, New York, is underway.

The Chicago Tribune's cartoon character, Little Orphan Annie, and her creator, Harold Gray, will meet and entertain 4,200 other small orphans on Aug. 18 when Chicago's annual picnic for orphans and aged is held in Lincoln park.

V. V. McNitt, president of the McNaught Syndicate, Inc., New York, will return to this country from a European trip soon after Labor Day.



ROGERS—MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

William F. Rogers, advertising manager of the Boston Transcript, and chairman of the committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising, has returned home after a month's mountain climbing trip in the Rockies. Mr. Rogers is a former president of the Appalachian Club and is a well-known outdoor man. With Mrs. Rogers he spent his vacation in the Rocky Mountain National Park, climbing over all the bases and mountain peaks. He also scaled Long's Peak, which is 14,255 ft. high and is regarded one of Colorado's sporty climbs.

SWAPS PEN FOR SWORD

Major C. E. Lovejoy, publisher of the Bronxville (N. Y.) Press and the Eastchester Citizen Bulletin, Tuckahoe, N. Y., is serving on 15 days of active Army duty at Madison Barracks, N. Y., as director of publicity. He holds a commission as major in the Military Intelligence, Reserve, and was a captain of infantry in the Regular Army until resigning his commission a year ago to re-enter newspaper work.

Imperial METAL

They Make a City of Warehouses

IF ALL the warehouses for distributing Imperial Type Metal were gathered together, they would form a city in themselves.

A complete system of warehouses located at convenient points assures publishers that they can secure Imperial Type Metal at any time.

These warehouses have been made necessary by the popular demand for Imperial Metal by thousands of publishers, who know that Imperial Type Metal and the Imperial Plus Metal Plan are two most important factors in securing good results and eliminating trouble. They know that the Plus Plan will add years of working life to their metal at a big saving.

If you are in doubt about the advantages of the Plus Plan, write and we will send you a list of prominent publishers in your vicinity who will be glad to give you their experiences.

IMPERIAL TYPE METAL CO.

Manufacturing the following metals:

LINOTYPE MONOTYPE INTERTYPE STEREOTYPE
ELROD LUDLOW LINOGRAPH THOMPSON

Philadelphia Cleveland New York Chicago

BEST BY ACID TEST
TRADE MARK REG

WITH THE GENERAL ADVERTISERS

Newspaper Campaign Launched by Baltimore & Ohio Railroad—National Carbon Company Names Schott Sales Manager—Federal Radio Plans Fall Drive

A NEWSPAPER advertising campaign, with copy placed in virtually all cities and towns along the 5,000 miles of Baltimore & Ohio tracks was launched this week by that railroad to tell prospective passengers about its new terminal facilities in New York. In addition space will be used in other large cities throughout the country. The newspaper drive will be supplemented by direct mail and in some sections by outdoor advertising. The account is being placed by the Richard A. Foley Advertising Agency, Inc., New York and Philadelphia. The B. & O. will move from the Pennsylvania station to its own depot in Jersey City, Aug. 29.

Harry S. Schott has been appointed general sales manager of the National Carbon Company, Inc., New York. He was formerly with the American Eveready Works, and when that concern was absorbed by the National Carbon Company in 1921, he became eastern district manager.

Plans for the fall and winter advertising campaign of the Federal Manufacturing Company, Buffalo, call for the use of space in 55 newspapers, according to A. C. Stearns, advertising manager. Special attention is to be given this year to dealer tie-up and follow-up copy. Mr. Stearns reports the advertising appropriation has been considerably increased over last year. The period of the drive will be from Sept. 12,-Dec. 19.

Paul Stearns Ellison has been appointed advertising manager of the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Company, Chicago, succeeding S. D. Leopold, resigned. For the last three years Mr. Ellison has been with the advertising department of the Vacuum Oil Company, New York.

The National Jewelers' Publicity Association will start an advertising campaign in September. Copy is being prepared by the Mills Advertising Company, Indianapolis.

Advertising will start soon to promote Sun-Maid Nectars, new product of the Sunland Sales Cooperative Association.

Newspapers are on the promotion program for Bradley Knit Underwear, manufactured by the Bradley Knitting Company, Delavan, Wis. The account is now being handled by the Federal Advertising Agency, Inc., New York.

Meetings were held on the Pacific Coast this week by the National Lumber Trade Extension Committee to discuss preliminary plans for a five-year general advertising campaign. Efforts are being made to raise a fund expected to amount to more than $1,000,000 a year. H. B. Hewes, vice-president of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association, is head of the trade extension activities.

The American Solvents & Chemical Corporation, New York, has been formed to take over the business and good will of five old-established companies manufacturing industrial alcohol and other solvents. An advertising campaign to acquaint the trade with the advantages of the amalgamation and the wide scope of the products to be manufactured by the new corporation has been placed in charge of the Hazard Advertising Corporation of New York.

Fred A. Von Ritter, formerly with the national advertising department of the Chicago Herald & Examiner, has been appointed sales manager of the Chicago factory branch of the Kleen-Heet Company.

ADVERTISING AGENCY AFFAIRS

Two Suits Filed Against Defunct Kansas City Agency—Newspaper Men Join Staff of Coast Firm—Appointments by Young & Rubican Hall Starts Own Agency in Detroit

TWO suits charging that officials of the defunct Gray Advertising company of Kansas City, Mo., manipulated the company's records to show falsely that $70,000 in stock was paid up, and that they overdrew their accounts to the extent of $130,000, were filed in Kansas City Aug. 7 by A. E. Adams, trustee in bankruptcy for the company. F. A. Gray, Ward H. Webb, Warren W. Burgess and L. D. Johnson were the officials named. The last named three, as officials of the Burgess-Johnson-Webb Medical company, are under federal indictment on charges of using the mails to defraud in the sale of alleged fake patent medicines.

George Thompson, who was the first automobile editor of the Los Angeles Herald, and later occupied a similar position on the Los Angeles Examiner, has been appointed Los Angeles manager of James Houlihan, Inc., Advertising Agency. R. A. McMillan, formerly city editor of the Tacoma (Wash.) News-Tribune, also has been added to the Los Angeles personnel.

H. S. Ward, formerly with N. W. Ayer & Son, Philadelphia, and Herbert R. Burgess, Jr., have joined the advertising agency of Young & Rubican, New York and Philadelphia, the former in the copy department, the latter on the merchandising staff.

Miss May Spear has been added to the staff of Street & Finney, New York. She will specialize on accounts pertaining to fashion and women's wear. Formerly Miss Spear was with J. Walter Thompson and later with B. Altman.

John L. Thatcher, Jr., has been appointed space buyer of Bauerlein, Inc., New Orleans advertising agency.

Martin-Gessner Advertising, Inc., was recently formed to conduct a general agency business in New Orleans. Alan R. Martin is president and Leonard E. Gessner, vice-president and treasurer.

E. B. Jeffress, business manager of the Greensboro (N. C.) News, and recently appointed receiver for the Carl J. Balliett, Inc., advertising agency, states that he hopes within a year's time to be able to pay 50 cents on the dollar.

Shepherd Advertising, an Asheville firm, has opened offices in Greensboro, N. C., according to G. O. Shepherd, head of the firm. George B. Dermody, account executive has been placed in charge of the Greensboro office, which is located in the Jefferson Standard building.

Phelps & Pietsch, Inc., Chicago advertising agency, has been disbanded. The Williamson Candy and Kraft Cheese accounts are now being handled by the Chicago office of H. W. Kastor & Sons Company.

J. W. Sanger, director of foreign service of Frank Seaman, Inc., New York advertising agency, will leave for Europe, Aug. 21, to spend the next three months on the Continent, making an advertising and marketing survey for agency clients.

Edward T. Clark, formerly advertising manager of the Greenlease Motor Car Company, Kansas City, Mo., has joined the staff of the Roche Advertising Company, Chicago.

William B. Hall has started an advertising agency under his own name in Detroit. He was formerly vice-president of the Grenell Advertising Agency, Detroit.

E. Milton Clases has resigned as manager of the Los Angeles office of Lord & Thomas and Logan to becone general manager of Motorgrams, Inc., Los Angeles.

Marvin F. Casmir has joined the copy department of W. I. Tracy, Inc., New York advertising agency. He was formerly connected with the Dorland Agency, Inc., of the same city.

Arthur A. Dole is now New England sales manager for the Wendell P. Colton Advertising agency, New York and Boston. Mr. Dole will be located at the Boston office at 80 Federal street. P. J. McAward has been made resident manager of the Boston office.

PAPER PIONEER DEAD

Albrecht Pagenstecher Credited with Having Introduced Wood Pulp Making

Albrecht Pagenstecher, 87, who organized several of the largest pulp and paper companies of this country, died Aug. 6 at his residence in Cornwall, N. Y.

Mr. Pagenstecher is credited with having introduced into the United States the making of wood pulp, which is the basis of the present-day newsprint paper. The ground wood took the place of rags, making it possible to use presses of increased speed, as the ink dried much more quickly on wood paper.

The first pulp mill began operations in Curtisville, now Interlaken, Mass. Mr. Pagenstecher was also a pioneer in the Canadian field, organizing the Laurentide Pulp Company at Grand Mère, Quebec, of which he was the first President.

Other concerns that he organized were the Hudson River Pulp and Paper Company, the Montague Paper Company, the Turner's Falls Pulp Company, the Keith Paper Company, the Central Paper Company of Muskegon, Mich.; and the Manufacturers' Paper Company.

For many years he was a director of the International Paper Company, which had absorbed several of the plants in which he held large interests.

He was born in Osnabrück, Prussia, in 1839. He leaves a widow, the former Helene Westermann, seven children and seventeen grandchildren.

FLASHES

Report says the illegal hooch industry gives employment to one million persons—not including, of course, the undertakers.—New York American.

"I am no Bolshevist," declares Mussolini. Or, as the stenographers would put it, "Dictator, but not Red."—Windsor (Ont.) Border Cities Star.

If there isn't a "mystery witness" connected with it, it's not a real front-page crime.—Florence (Ala.) Herald.

Alas! rich relatives are usually distant relatives or close relatives.—Birmingham News.

Our local "modernists" have some reason to doubt the story of Noah taking every kind of animal into the ark. Nobody with good sense would have saved the mosquito.—Honolulu (H. I.) Star-Bulletin.

Whatever else may be ailing Illinois, it isn't cheap politics.—Little Rock Arkansas Gazette.

Sad things: A wilted flower; a cold fried egg; a silk stocking that's empty.—Vancouver (B. C.) Sun.

Hens lay best when their houses are lighted by electricity; cows give more milk when listening to jazz. The thing the farm needs is more night clubs. Then the hired men might stay.—Columbia (S. C.) State.

A study of all the evidence shows that we drove a hard bargain with France in the settlement of her war debt, at the same time giving her most generous terms.—New York Evening Post.

Those turning furrows in Florida are still turning profits.—New Haven Register.

Many a suit guaranteed to wear like iron does so by eventually becoming rusty.—Christian Science Monitor.

You can't tell. Maybe a fish goes home and lies about the size of the bait he stole.—Syracuse Post-Standard.

Anyway, there's a lot of darned good company at the bottom of the ladder.—New Haven Register.

The farmers feed the nation—even to giving our politicians most of their food for thought.—Norfolk Virginian Pilot.

The first essential in writing memoirs is to outlive those you wish to knock.—New York Telegram.

America now produces nearly all the necessities of life, including its own naughty literature. — Florence (Ala.) Herald.

20 INTERTYPES

are being used by

Houston Post-Dispatch

Houston

Labor Men To Draw Up Platform

SENATE HEARS REVELATIONS OF DRY AGENTS

Two Killed, Eight Hurt In Explosion On Submarine S-49

No Standardized Intertype has ever become obsolete

CRUSOE FATE ON GALE-SWEPT ISLAND

(Continued from page 12)

ıared equally with the Daily News lane, while the members of the party did dance of thanksgiving that would put ıe "green corn" dance of the Florida eminoles to shame. Again they set off ɔr Nassau, heading straight across the ·ide part of Andros Island.

Again the gas was falling low when ıey reached Red Bay off the northwest-ɔn portion of Andros island. Here they ɔied two small sponging boats and ropped down to get their bearings. They ·ere directed to New Providence island. Dusk came upon them and, when they ·eached the tip of New Providence island, ıe gas gage showed they did not have nough gasoline for the ten-minute flight cross to Nassau. They landed, begged ve gallons of fuel from a Negro fisher-ıan, and made Nassau before it was ntirely dark.

It was no tame reception of the Jassauvians gave the voyagers. They ·ere taken to the finest hotel in the city nd the best in the wine-cellar was set efore them and this, so they claim, is ot figuratively speaking. There were hampagne and other things that Volstead oes not permit us to know about. There ·as only one "fly in the ointment"—the on-appearance of the Kreuger plane.

Next morning the stern sense of duty hat drives newspapermen through all azards naturally called them to the story hat lay in shattered Nassau. But human ife must ever take precedent over a ews beat. Kreuger must be found. But ust as the party were refueling to go in earch of him, he appeared.

So the story claimed their interest for he morning.

At 1 p. m., the planes hopped off from Jassau for Miami. Until Bimini was icked up, this territory was unfamiliar o Niermier, so it was necessary for him o pay full attention to the chart and ompass. The guidance of the plane was eft to Mr. Leyshon who, although he had een up in planes many times, had never efore attempted to direct one. On the eturn trip, Mitchell traveled with Kreuger.

After Bimini had dropped behind them n their right, Gun Cay was sighted. But strange scene was presented to Mr. eyshon and Mr. Dix who had seen the amous rum running ships in all the glory f a thriving trade but a few days before ·hen they had dropped in on them for a tory.

Some of the boats were lying on the ottom with their masts jutting out.)thers had been relentlessly twisted in wo by the fury of the sea as a man might wist a match. The rest lay high, dry nd broken on the beaches. Some small oats would be seen about the wrecks shing and parties of West Indians were usy attempting to raise some of the rum essels.

A landing was made, but Dix had shot his last plate. It was a wonderful opportunity for "art." It was too much for the news men to bear, so a rum runner was accosted in the hopes of solving the situation. He had a small camera and loaned it.

In the meantime, there came a report that Great Isaac's light, 22 miles northwest of Bimini, was in distress. Kreuger's plane, carrying Mitchell, was dispatched there, to find out the true circumstances. It was found the keeper's houses had been flattened by the storm, the light was tottering and his water supply depleted. He was left with the promise that the British lighthouse service would be radioed.

While the Kreuger plane was gone to Great Isaac's, the Daily News plane hopped back to Bimini to refuel. It was again out of gas and five gallons had to be borrowed from the Kreuger plane before its departure.

When Kreuger settled at Bimini after his return from Great Isaac's, he failed to make the channel and stuck on a mud flat. This was his first and last mishap and was not serious. It merely necessitated Leyshon and Dix stripping and swimming and wading out to the plane.

The 48-mile hop to Miami from Bimini was without moment. Miami was reached at dusk Thursday. It was necessary to wait in the harbor for customs clearance, of course, but Leyshon had typewriters sent down from the Daily News tower, which is on the bay front. By the light of a flickering lantern, he and Mitchell then divided time between thumping out their stories of the wrecked Bahamas and fighting off the mosquitoes. The takes were carried from the plane to the Daily News office by an office boy, Mitchell's to be placed on the wire and Leyshon's to go into an extra,

Much might be said of the enterprise of the Miami Daily News in "handling" the story. But not now.

This has to do with two newspaper writers and a photographer who brought word from Nassau after the hurricane.

Mitchell of the A. P., Wiermier, pilot of the plane, and Leyshon, news editor of the Miami News, came back smiling from a desert isle.

"LAILA"

A Tale of the Days of Christ

EUGENE MacLEAN

827 Folsom St. San Francisco, Cal.

The Great Empire of The Southwest

is literally spending millions of dollars.
The thoughts, actions and habits of Southwesterners are influenced by their

Weekly Newspapers

Our organization represents 325 weekly newspapers in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, and we can furnish complete market information on this territory.
A letter to our Dallas office will bring you some very interesting figures.

The H. L. Grable Co.

"National Advertising Representatives of Weekly Newspapers"
TEXAS—OKLAHOMA—NEW MEXICO

NEW YORK
25 East 26th St.
Phone Ashland 9127

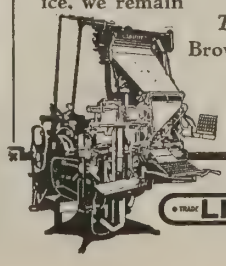
PHILADELPHIA
Widener Bldg.
Phone Rittenhouse 9698

CHICAGO
123 West Madison
Phone Central 3021

DALLAS, TEXAS
606 Mercantile Bank Building

From the Linotype Mailbag

"Speed with a Cap 'S'"



"Duplex rail I ordered by wire arrived last evening, which is what can be termed genuine speed, with a cap 'S.'

"You state that the telegram was received at 4:14 P. M. and the part dispatched at 4:30 on Monday. It arrived in Browns Valley and was in my hands at 6:30 the next evening. When you consider that it traveled a distance of about 600 miles in that time, it shows that Linotype Service is pretty well planned.

"It is the type of replacement service that makes one appreciate a large company. For had we not received this part promptly, we would have experienced a very serious delay, because the part snapped at a very critical moment."

Again thanking you for the service, we remain

The Valley News
Browns Valley, Minn.

LINOTYPE

Intriguing? yes!

Fascinatingly true to life, too, for Eugene MacLean makes them so.

And coupled with writing ability Mr. MacLean has sound business sense. He knows that the illustrations for his stories must be the "finest photographic pictures." He also knows that the medium used for distributing these illustrations to his clientele must be such as to insure perfect reproductions.

No wonder, then, that Mr. MacLean has adopted Certified Dry Mats and uses them exclusively; he finds, and his clients do, too, that the "mats are as good as cuts."

You, too, can use Certifieds with just as much profit and satisfaction.

Why not let us tell you how Certifieds can serve you. There's no obligation for asking for the facts or trying some samples.

CERTIFIED DRY MAT CORPORATION
340 Madison Avenue
New York, N.Y.

For wet mat printing with DRY MAT facility — use Certifieds

Made in the U. S. A.

MINUTES PER COLUMN A COST YARDSTICK

Divide Number of Standard Columns Printed by Number of Minutes Worked—No Money Variations Apply

A method of computing composing room costs, without bringing into the equation the varying and confusing dollars and cents element, has been devised by a Canadian newspaper publisher. It is called the "minutes per column" system and according to its founder and the comparatively few American newspaper publishers who have put it into effect, it provides an unfailing measure for comparing the work of the composing rooms of two different newspapers or of one newspaper at widely separated periods. The variables caused by changes in wages or working hours are eliminated.

The pioneer of the plan recently outlined its history, as follows:

"In 1914, when the newspaper business was so flat and help was so difficult to obtain, the writer spent all the time necessary for a period of six months in the composing room, reorganizing production until many of the old ruts were entirely smoothed out and reasonable efficiency installed. Then we put it up to the foreman to maintain this standard on figures compiled by a new system. We found that due to changes in scale, bonus, hours of work, etc., a cost comparison, based on dollars and cents compared with the last period of reorganization, was valueless from an efficiency standpoint.

"To record this information on a basis that would be good for all time we reduced our April, 1915, figures to a basis of 'minutes per column' and found this to be 110 minutes for each column. The method of computation was as follows:

"The number of minutes per column (300 agate lines is taken as standard) is arrived at by dividing total minutes worked by total columns printed.

"Weekly compilation: To arrive at total minutes worked, multiply the total number of employes on composing room staff, including machinists, apprentices, janitor, proofreaders, etc.) by the regular hours per week worked. Add overtime hours and subtract lost-time hours. Reduce hours to minutes. A week is from Thursday to Wednesday, or whatever the newspaper's salary week is.

"To arrive at total columns published —from the total number of pages published subtract those not set in the composing room. Reduce pages to columns. Multiply by the number of lines actually in the column and divide by 300 to make the columns standard.

"Monthly computation: The same method as for weekly is followed, the total pages and hours worked for the month being taken as the basis. If the beginning or end of the month comes in the middle of the salary week, pages published and hours worked that week will be allocated to their respective months.

"The above eliminates all objections to a comparison on a basis of dollars and cents and we find it a very valuable yardstick, enabling us to judge the efficiency of our production each week, month, and quarter. We carry this out each week to show the superintendent the degree of efficiency in his department."

DENVER "FIXIN' " FOR I. A. A.

Mountain City Expects 7,000 to Attend Convention Next June

Denver is already formulating plans for the June, 1927, convention of the International Advertising association. Reginald Colley, special field representative of the association, was in Denver last week to confer with President R. H. Faxon and the board of directors of the Denver Advertising club.

Prediction has been made, that approximately 7,000 persons will attend the gathering.

"Two or three special trains probably will be run to Denver from the Pacific coast alone," said Mr. Colley. "The Pacific coast has a strong district association, older even than the international, and the date of the district convention at Portland, Ore., will be arranged so as not to conflict with the Denver gathering."

President Faxon has just received the Palin trophy which, following the usual custom, will be in the custody of the convention city during the year prior to the annual meeting.

WINNIPEG FREE PRESS ADDING TO HOME

Giant Flagstaff Surmounts New Addition, to Fly Paper's House Flag —A Novel Newspaper Custom Described

An all-steel flag pole towering 100 feet above the top of the addition to the Winnipeg Free Press building was placed in position last week. It is one of a series of three placed respectively at the north, centre and southern sides of the front of the building, all of which are of equal size and height.

The new pole at the base is 9½ inches in diameter, tapering off till at the top to 2½ inches.

When the new addition is completed, and forms part of the parent building, all three poles will be used. The center staff will carry the Free Press house flag, now being designed, while that on the north will fly the Canadian ensign, and on appropriate occasions used to display flags of sister nations. The south pole will spread to the breeze the Union Jack.

Distinguished visitors from foreign countries in more than one instance have expressed their pleasure on seeing their country honored, when on an anniversary or national holiday the flag of their country had flown from the Free Press building.

MICHIGAN DAILIES EXPAND

Expansion of two Michigan dailies is indicated this week in the change of the Petoskey News and the South Haven Tribune from pony clients to leased wire clients of the United Press.

AD BUREAU BOARD TO MEET

The committee in charge of the Bureau of Advertising of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association will meet in Chicago during the annual convention of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, Oct. 21-22.

VAN NUYS LEADER STARTS

Publication of the Van Nuys (Cal.) Leader, a new daily newspaper, began Aug. 9. United Press news is being used.

NEW PRESS IN ZANESVILLE

The Zanesville (Ohio) Times-Recorder is installing a new 24-page Duplex tubular press in its new plant, increasing its page capacity by 4 pages.

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago
170,000 Daily
390,000 Sunday
LOS ANGELES Examiner

THEY KNOW IT PAYS!

GETTING advertising for the Stuart (Neb.) Advocate isn't really a hard job for A. N. Coats and his son, Norris, publishers of the paper. Besides their interests in the newspaper plant, they own the implement, furniture, undertaking and radio businesses in the town and are extensive landowners as well. "Yes, all our businesses advertise," admitted the younger Mr. Coats, "because it pays. Naturally other business men feel safe in advertising when they see that we have confidence enough to advertise in our own paper."

UNIFORM COST SYSTEM IN CALIFORNIA

Southern Publishers Compare Operating Expenses on Form Prepared by San Bernardino Auditor

After studying newspaper plants in all parts of the country, Ralph E. Parr, auditor and business counsellor for the San Bernardino (Cal.) Sun and Telegram, believes that the greatest field for progress in modern newspaper methods lies in cost accounting.

"Too few newspapers have any definite idea of what it costs to produce an inch of advertising," he told EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. "Newspapers which keep strict cost figures in every department with monthly balances are basically sound and are ready to meet any changing condition."

Mr. Parr arrived in New York this week with his wife and three children after a motor trip from the Pacific coast. En route he has visited many large and small newspaper plants to study their methods. He is making the trip largely on behalf of the Southern California Editorial Association and his report, submitted on his return, will be sent to each member paper for study. Southern California newspapers are highly progressive, he stated, and are constantly seeking better operating methods.

Mr. Parr, who was a public accountant before he joined the San Bernardino papers eight years ago, and who still conducts a private accounting business, has installed a strict cost system on the Sun and Telegram.

It was Mr. Parr who prepared the cost accounting form adopted by the Southern California Editorial Association at its meeting last May, here reproduced.

"On my trip I discovered that practically every newspaper which keeps cost figures uses a different system. Classifications differ widely, and there is no standard. The form adopted by the Southern California Editorial Association is an attempt at a standard form practical for both large and small papers.

"Eventually all newspapers will have to keep accurate cost data. Conditions are changing rapidly. Such records are vital in modern competition."

"We know absolutely what our costs are on the Sun and Telegram. At the beginning of 1925 by reference to previous records we made an estimate of the amount of gross business and the amount of net profit for that year. When the year was up we found that net profits were $2,500 beyond the figure we had anticipated. Keeping costs enables a publisher to forecast his progress."

Mr. Parr was asked how his papers are combating the free publicity evil.

"Into the wastebasket is our attitude," he replied. "We firmly believe that printing free publicity not only causes readers to lose confidence in the news columns but that it depreciates the value of the advertising columns as well.

"All press agent matter and all requests for publicity go to the managing editor, who turns thumbs down. No free publicity goes through the business office. Only recently one of our largest adver-

What If You Are First In Linage?

How much information about your market, does this fact give the advertiser of canned goods—hardware—automobiles—or any other commodity seeking the proper fields to cultivate the distribution of his product.

Not only do we know the publisher's message to the advertiser, but we know how to put it across with a SMASH.

We are the service department for the publisher who is looking for new ideas that will sell his newspaper space to the national advertiser.

We create copy and layout campaigns for the publisher pictorially illustrated that visualize the publishers field, and tie up its value with the newspaper.

If you are interested in a real selling campaign get in touch with us at once.

Publishers Space Selling Service
49 WEST 45th STREET
New York City

iers wanted free space in connection wh an anniversary event, but it was ·used. We agree heartily with EDITOR & PUBLISHER'S stand in the matter of p:ss agentry."

Circulation is best promoted by a sound ·itorial policy coupled with solicitation) carriers, Mr. Parr said.

'Although we recently ran a success- f contest I do not favor this method) increasing circulation. I believe a ntinuous effort through the carrier rs to obtain three and six months' sub- iptions is far better in the long run."

The outstanding impression gained by r. Parr from visiting many newspaper ces is crowded quarters and need for ansion.

"Newspapers are growing so fast they are continually crowded and seeking more room," he said. "It was the same story in almost every office. Papers which built plants five years ago which they thought would be adequate for 20 years or more are talking about new buildings and additions. On the Sun and Telegram it is the same. A year ago we added another story to our plant. Right now we are so crowded it will be necessary for us to erect a six-story office building in the next two years, at the very latest."

Mr. Parr will drive back to the coast visiting plants in Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago, Des Moines, and Salt Lake City and other cities.

Morning [ ] Evening [ ] PUBLICATION NAME CITY
No. Pages Avg.....
Competition No. ..... Read Instructions on Reverse Side Before Filling This Out Circulation .....
Morning [ ] Evening [ ] Daily Average .....

PERCENTAGE STATEMENT OF REVENUE AND EXPENSE

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION

REVENUE

Advertising.....% Circulation.....% Miscellaneous.....% Total.....%

1. Editorial and News Department
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
2. Display Advertising Department
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
3. Classified Advertising Department
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
4. Circulation Department
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
5. Mechanical Department
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
6. Paper and Ink .....%
7. Fixed Charges .....%
8. Administration and Miscellaneous
   Pay Roll .....%
   Expense .....% .....%
9. Executive Salary .....%
10. Depreciation.....
    Rate Used—Machinery.....% Type.....%
    Furniture and Fixtures.....% Building.....%
11. Bad Debts (Actual Loss or Reserve?).....%
12. .....% .....%
13. Net Profit .....%
14. Total Expense and Profit or Loss..... 100%
15. Net Cost per Inch of Advertising (Total Expense Less Circulation and Miscellaneous Revenue Divided by Inches of Advertising).....%
16. Composition Cost per Page: { Composing Wages..... / Composing Expense.....
17. Total Mechanical Cost per Page (Comp.-Press-Stereo.).....%
18. Total Cost per Page (Total Expense Divided by Total Number of Pages).....%

Omit Job Department Revenue and Expense.

INSTRUCTIONS

This report should be a statement of percentages only—No money values are asked for—By closely following instructions you will produce results of great value to yourself and fellow members.

First: Ascertain the amount of your revenue from all sources. Then divide the amount of Advertising, Circulation and Miscellaneous Revenue by this figure, the resulting percentages for each segregation should total 100%. Enter these percentages in the space provided under the heading of REVENUE.

Second: Take the total amount of revenue, as first determined and divide it into the amounts of department and other expense shown under Items 1 to 13. Item 13 will thus show the per cent of profit made on revenue, but if a loss was sustained, the percentage under Item 14 will be more than 100%.

The following analysis shows some of the different classes of expenditures that are to be included in the classifications required by Items 1 to 13. Any extraordinary expense, such as Special Edition, Advertising or Circulation Campaigns, etc., should be stated under Item 12.

1. Editorial	2. Display Ad.	3. Class. Ad.	4. Circulation	5. Mechanical Dept. (Comp., Press., Ster.)
Press Assns.	Promotion	Promotion	Promotion	Metal
Telegraph	Cuts and Mats	Tel. and Tel.	Solicitors Ex.	Power and Fuel
Features	Tel. and Tel.	Supplies	Agencies	Blankets and Mats
Travel	Travel	Commission	Comics	Rollers
Supplies	Supplies	Collection	Tel. and Tel.	Repairs to Equip.
Miscellaneous	Miscellaneous	Miscellaneous	Supplies	Supplies
	Agency Com.	Discounts	Delivery Ex.	Miscellaneous
	Discounts		Premiums

6. Paper and Ink. Include freight, hauling and storage with the invoice cost of newsprint.
7. Fixed Charges. Includes Rent, Interest, Insurance and Taxes. If you own the building and have charged off taxes, interest and depreciation in connection therewith, add the amount of difference between the total of these items and the amount you would pay as rent if less than rental cost.
8. Administration and Miscellaneous. General Promotion, Legal Expense, Dues, Telephone and Telegraph, Travel, Postage, Supplies, Miscellaneous, Donations.
9. Executive Salary. Enter here the percentage paid as salaries to the owner, publisher, business manager. If working part of time in other departments, state where and what per cent.
10. Depreciation. Enter here the percentage and show in space provided, the rates used in determining such percentage.
11. Bad Debts. Enter here the percentage of loss due to bad accounts and state whether this is an actual loss for the period or an amount set aside as reserve for future losses.
12. All Other Expense. Such as Special or Anniversary Editions, Special Circulation or Advertising Campaigns.

Front and reverse side of blank devised by Mr. Parr for comparison of Southern California newspapers' operating expenses. Explanatory notes which appear below rule are printed on back of 8½ x 11 blank.

Illinois—

Over 1600 petroleum wells in the State——

Illinois is known as a great commercial state—among the leaders in industry, ahead of many states as a railroad and shipping center. But how many realize that over 1,600 wells spout out wealth to their owners, and high wages to thousands of employees.

More than 22,000 barrels of crude oil is refined daily in Illinois, and the average daily production per barrel is greater than in Pennsylvania, West Virginia, and Indiana.

These are facts that have influenced many advertisers to select Illinois as a major market—and they have chosen wisely.

The papers listed below cover the majority of the homes in Illinois. They also furnish a good merchandising and distribution service. Write to them for the facts.

	Circulation	Rates for 2,500 Lines	Rates for 10,000 Lines
Aurora Beacon-News .....(E)	18,694	.06	.06
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(M)	385,276	.55	.55
†Chicago Herald & Examiner.....(S)	1,153,360	1.10	1.10
†Chicago Daily Journal.....(E)	123,771	.26	.24
Evanston News Index.....(E)	6,729	.04	.04
Freeport Journal-Standard .....(E)	9,613	.045	.045
Joliet Herald News.....(E)	19,591	.06	.06
††Mattoon Journal Gazette.....(E)	5,712	.03	.03
Moline Dispatch .....(E)	11,680	.045	.045
Monmouth Daily Review Atlas...(E)	5,416	.035	.035
Peoria Star.....(S) 22,497..(E)	29,874	.085	.07
Rock Island Argus.....(E)	11,248	.045	.045
Waukegan Daily Sun.....(E)	5,213	.03	.03

A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926
†Government Statement, March 31, 1926
††Government Statement, September 30, 1925

THEODORA BEAN DIES; NOTED NEWS WOMAN

Head of T-Bean Syndicate, and Former Editor of N. Y. Morning Telegraph, Passes Away—Tribute from Newspaper Club

Theodora Bean, editor and owner of the T-Bean Syndicate, New York, is dead. Complications following an operation caused her death in a New York hospital late Thursday evening, Aug. 5.

Funeral services held Aug. 9 were attended by members of the New York Newspaper Club of which she was president. Tribute to her memory was paid by fellow journalists of the Newspaper Club of New York, in the form of a letter from William Preston Beazell, assistant managing editor of the New York World, and club president. He wrote:

"On behalf of the Newspaper Club of New York I extend to the New York Newspaper Women's Club our sincerest sympathy in the loss of your president. Miss Bean was a truly distinguished figure—distinguished in ability, integrity and personality. Her passing will mean much to you, but it will also mean much to the profession to which she devoted her life."

Miss Bean was born in Anoka, Minn. At 19 she left Carleton College, Northfield, Minn., to seek a newspaper job in Chicago. Charles H. Davis, who was managing editor of the Chicago Daily News, gave her her first assignment, which was to write an advance story of a society bicycle race. Her resourcefulness so compensated for inexperience that her story was printed on the front page, with illustrations by John T. McCutcheon. The freshness of the style caused the managing editor to engage her as a regular member of the staff.

The young reporter covered club news, worked in the sports department, took general news assignments, and learned from George Ade, a fellow member of the staff, how to rewrite. When Carrie Nation arrived in Chicago to clean up the saloons, Miss Bean was assigned to interview her. She induced Mrs. Nation to spend the night at a Turkish bath, thus eluding other newspaper reporters. Miss Bean's interview was thus the only one to appear next day.

Miss Bean later went to Europe. Interviews she obtained there were so readily accepted by American newspapers that she made a second trip.

Shortly afterward she joined the staff of the Morning Telegraph as a feature writer. The news stories she wrote of the gathering of suffragists at the Newport home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont attracted the attention of the late James Gordon Bennett, who asked her to do feature work for the New York Evening Telegram. After another trip to Europe, she rejoined the Morning Telegraph as Sunday editor. In 1924 she resigned, and a year ago founded the T-Bean Syndicate.

The syndicate has been discontinued.

Largest Weekday Circulation in THE CITY
The Item Tribune
NEW ORLEANS

GEORGE C. BRIGGS

New York Correspondent of Chicago News 30 Years with That Paper

George C. Briggs, 48, a newspaper reporter for the past thirty years, most of which was spent in service of the Chicago Daily News, died Aug. 9, in New York, after an illness of three days. Pneumonia was the cause of death.

Mr. Briggs was known to hundreds of soldiers for his "greetings from Chicago" as the New York representative of the Daily News at the close of the war. He established the Daily News' New York bureau in 1919.

Mr. Briggs began his career as a reporter on the Daily News in August, 1899. Except for an absence of about two years, from 1906 to 1908, his connection with the paper was virtually continuous. Early in his career he covered the many labor troubles in Chicago. Later he was appointed picture editor.

In the fall of 1918 Mr. Briggs was given the assignment of meeting transports in New York harbor, meeting the Chicagoans aboard, extending to them greetings from their home city and wiring the glad tidings to be published for their relatives and friends to read.

REPORTER'S BODY FOUND

Daniel Madden, New York American, May Have Been Murdered

The body of Daniel Madden, a young reporter for the New York American, was found Wednesday evening, Aug. 11, near Peekskill. Because of the battered condition it was impossible to tell whether he was murdered or had been accidentally killed.

Madden, who had been dead about fifteen minutes, according to a surgeon who examined him, was lying on the edge of Wallace's Pond, his head a few feet from the water. He was badly cut and bruised.

Madden, who was 19, was in training at Camp Smith, about two miles from the pond, as a private in Co. H, 71st Infantry, New York National Guard. He had been missing from camp all day, and the body was discovered accidentally by a civilian who was walking along the shores of the pond.

Obituary

Alton Harmon, 50, publisher of the Erie (Pa.) Herald, died in that city.

Harry L. Andrews, publisher of the Woburn (Mass.) News, died in Woburn recently. Mr. Andrews began his newspaper career as a printer on the Middlesex Journal. He founded the Woburn News 15 years ago.

Thomas A. Dunn, 35, formerly advertising manager of the Douglas (Ariz.) Dispatch and more recently connected with the Tucson (Ariz.) Citizen, died recently.

L. P. Mitchell, 62, editor and proprietor of the Corcoran (Cal.) Journal, died July 24.

Mrs. Julia Frances Spear, 57, wife of J. W. Spear, editor of the Phoenix (Ariz.) Republican, died July 29.

Charles Stevens, 95, first financial editor of the Cincinnati Enquirer and a man who was noted as never having had a vacation or a day or night off from his desk since 1893, up to his retirement at the age of 90, died Aug. 5 in this city. The late John R. McLean lured him from the staff of the old Cincinnati Commercial Gazette by offering a bonus for him to start a "Finance and Traffic" column in the Enquirer.

Aaron William Hardman, 71, editor and publisher of the North Adams (Mass.) Transcript since 1883, died at North Adams, Aug. 6, after a brief illness. He entered the newspaper field many years ago when he purchased the old Hoosac Valley News, a weekly publication. A widow and two children survive.

Harold Miller, 22, staff artist of the Sioux City (Ia.) Journal, died suddenly Aug. 2. He had been on the Journal staff for the last two years.

Fordyce Benjamin Johnson, 65, former reporter on the Omaha World-Herald in the early '80's and later on newspaper staffs in Kansas City, St. Paul, Chicago and New York, died Aug. 1 after a brief illness in Pontiac, Ill.

per publisher at Chillicothe, O.

Gilbert B. Daniels, 70, died after 12 hours' illness in a San Francisco hospital Aug. 3. He had been publisher of the old Oakland Enquirer for 20 years, after which he entered politics.

James N. Purdum, president of the Copper Belt Printing & Publishing Co., publishers of the Globe (Ariz.) Record, died Aug. 6, following an extended illness. Burial was at Hollywood, Cal.

F. R. MacKenzie, for 20 years a member of the Vancouver (B. C.) Province composing room staff, died recently at the Printers' Home, Colorado Springs.

Ernest W. Raper, 55, formerly of Columbus, O., died at the Soldiers' Home in Dayton a few days ago. He was a brother of the late Frank (Tod) Raper of the Columbus Dispatch, and of John Raper, of the Cleveland Press. His father was John Raper, former newspaper publisher at Chillicothe, O.

F. E. Johnson, 51, editor of the Rossville (O.) Leader, died in that city a few days ago.

Mrs. Chase S. Osborne, Jr., 36, wife of the publisher of the Fresno (Cal.) Morning Republican, died Aug. 4.

Cleaner, Brighter Pages Spell Success

JUST as surely as night follows day, cleaner, brighter pages spell bigger success for the newspaper. And the surest, fastest, most economical way to brighten your pages is to set them with sparkling new type in Ludlow sluglines.

The Ludlow user has at his instant command all the distinctive, new typefaces he can use—in six to sixty-point, condensed, medium-width and extended faces. Sorts shortage is impossible, as he sets matrices—not type.

Advertisers are quick to recognize the increased value of Ludlow-set ads and heads—a value that will be apparent when all the facts are known. And the facts are yours for the asking.

Ludlow Typograph Co.
2032 Clybourn Ave., Chicago
San Francisco—Atlanta—Boston—New York

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

AUTOMOBILE PRIZE CAMPAIGNS
Get the Circulation
Get the Money For It
Get It Quickly
Get It Right
Conducted on THE KENDALL PLAN

Contracts for FALL and WINTER
CIRCULATION DRIVES are being made
—NOW—
WIRE OR WRITE FOR DETAILS, REFERENCES OR SPECIMEN CONTRACT.
W. S. Kendall Company
104 NORTH BAILEY AVE.
LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

GROWING IN IMPORTANCE
The Inter-Mountain territory of Utah, Idaho, Western Wyoming and Eastern Nevada is rapidly developing and becoming more important to the advertiser whose merchandise has national distribution.
Don't overlook this rich section of the West.
The Salt Lake Tribune
THE S. C. BECKWITH SPECIAL AGENCY
—Sole Eastern Agents—
New York—Chicago—Detroit
St. Louis—Kansas City
Atlanta
M. C. MOGENSEN & CO., INC.
Pacific Coast Representatives
San Francisco—Los Angeles—Seattle

Greater Merchandising Service offered, than any other Milwaukee paper.
THE MILWAUKEE LEADER
"Unawed by influence and Unbribed by Gain"
Advertising Representatives
FRALICK & BATES
Chicago, New York, Atlanta, Los Angeles

Continued Leadership

For the month of July, 1926, The Sun published over 100,000 lines of advertising more than the second New York evening newspaper.

For the first seven months of 1926 The Sun led the second New York evening newspaper by over 800,000 lines of advertising.

The Sun
280 Broadway New York

THE WELFARE COMMITTEE
of the
INTERNATIONAL CIRCULATION MANAGERS ASSOCIATION
Can supply you with competent circulation men of capacity and ability capable to take entire charge of your department or to fill important posts in the department.
Address the Secretary-Treasurer please, Mr. Clarence Eyster, care Star Building, Peoria, Ill.

Our Own World of Letters

By JAMES MELVIN LEE

the Little Times for August—the house organ of the New York Times—be found several items of more than al interest. Possibly the most impor- of that group is the one on the edi- al page headed "Sent the Times ws by Sahara Camels." It tells of experiences of Harold Norman ny, a member of the news staff who ently returned from Africa.

eporters who want to become foreign respondents may not be quite so ious after they have read this com- nt:

f any newspaper correspondent could cover nts in North Africa as capably as the fleas er a newspaper correspondent there he ld establish an enviable record in journalenny's description of the Sahara is a ghtful piece of reporting. In describ- how events were covered in Morocco asserts that the two biggest problems reporting such stories were those of nsportation and telegraphic transmis- n. Of these difficulties he speaks as ows:

he French censorship at Fez for a time was pling, but the American correspondents pro- ed so strongly against it that eventually the fers in charge were transferred and the work administered personally by General Mougin, was the soul of courtesy and efficiency. censors seldom altered dispatches seriously, they delayed them frequently.

his issue of the Little Times outlines plan for handling visitors anxious to a newspaper in the making, lists the mber of employees on the Times in a le covering the years 1906-1926, an- nces the awards of twenty-eight prizes welve members of the staff who found tectionable features in announcements, prints an advance notice of the typo- phical rules book of the Times—now course of preparation. Mention is also de of the third edition of the "New k Times Type Book" which has just ne from the press.

* * *

A PAMPHLET, "Robert E. Lee and Journalism," by Roscoe Ellard has reached my desk. It opens with an count of the effort of Gen. Lee to es- ish technical instruction in journalism Washington College—now Washington Lee University—in 1869. Mention is le of the fact that the only leading or of the time who favored special ruction was Whitelaw Reid of the w York Tribune.

Considerable space is given to an in- iew with Prof. Preston Johnson of history department of Washington lege as reported in the columns of the w York Sun. Gen. Lee in his plan posed the establishment of press olarships. When asked about these f. Johnson replied:

The reason we propose giving these press scholarships is this: that printing is one of the arts which diffuse education and we should therefore seek to qualify printers for the task of educating as far as possible. We do not hope to make men fit for the editorial chair at once, but we do hope to give them as thorough a training as possible in the ways of their profession and to give them as good an education as possible that they may make better and more cultivated editors."

Section two of the pamphlet deals with modern training for journalism, describes the courses offered in that subject at Washington & Lee University, and concludes with a list of newspapers contributing to the Lee Memorial School of Journalism—supplemented by an additional list of the various chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy that have subscribed to its support.

Prof. Ellard who heads the technical instruction in journalism at Washington & Lee University has presented a side of Gen. Lee's character too often overlooked by historians. Lee was a warrior, but he was also an educator. It may be news to some to learn that at one time he was the officer in charge of the United States Military Academy at West Point. While Commandant of that institution he made many important revisions in its curriculum.

* * *

THE current issue of the Washingtonian of Washington University of St. Louis contains on its cover a picture of Walter Williams, dean of the School of Journalism of the University of Missouri. He was the recipient at the last commencement of Washington University of the honorary degree of L.L.D.

In conferring this degree upon Dean Williams, Chancellor Hadley paid a fitting tribute to the services of Dean Williams to journalism. But the part under which I put ditto marks is, "But your friends will probably find their greatest satisfaction in the fact that through your ability, your courtesy and your kindliness you have won for yourself an enduring place in the minds and hearts of all who know you."

* * *

READERS of this department are doubtless familiar with that series of advertising pamphlets entitled "Tell It To Sweeney" published by the Daily News, the New York tabloid. Consequently this item is a memo not to overlook "Good News and Bad" by Agnes Repplier in the July number.

This article by Miss Repplier, originally published in the Commonweal, is an answer to "Headlining Happiness" by Willis J. Abbot, editor of the Christian Science Monitor. In replying to Mr. Abbot's statement setting forth the policy of the Monitor Miss Repplier prints the following:

There is a great deal to be said in favor of expurgated news, and only one objection to be urged against it—the life so indicated is not the life about us, the world so described is not the world we live in. It is pleasant to dwell with the Monitor upon "every event, material, intellectual and spiritual, which has its bearing upon the ascent of man;" but man is not ascending in a straight line, beautiful and exhilarating to behold. His progress is so impeded that it is a trifle hard at times to know if he is going up or down. He was stumbling along in this fashion when Plutarch unkindly remarked that his falls were more interesting than his climbs. He was making the same irregular advance when Montaigne, observing him, and knowing the weakness of his own heart, saw the candles lighted before St. Michael and the dragon. Today the ascent is as difficult, the downfall as easy as ever, which is why an unblinking Church preaches penance and atonement for sin.

After admitting that much has been said about the atrocious "crime news" published in American newspapers, Miss Repplier reminds her reader that the atrocity lies in the crime rather than in the news. She calls attention to the fact that there are nine ways of being an accessory to sin and that one of these is silence. In mentioning the fact that any assertion that crime news stimulates youth to crime is at least a disputable point she is careful to point out that men "are always searching for incidental rather than for fundamental causes."

The paragraph, however, that deserves to be marked in red is the one that begins:

The American, it has been said, bears lightly the burden of human knowledge and of human pain. He is not looking for trouble at home, and he is not lying awake at night because of trouble elsewhere. He needs coddling less than any man on earth, and he can bear plain speaking better.

The trend of the entire article is given in the original cartoon which illustrates the article. It has for its caption "The Press, contemplating sweetness and light." This cartoon shows the press dramatized as an individual smelling a sweet flower while blinders beside the eyes blot out crimes being committed on either side and in the rear.

* * *

W. ORTON TEWSON shakes the following from his "Attic Salt Shaker" on the literary page of the Philadelphia Public Ledger:

According to James A. Campbell, one of the best known old-time newspaper men in the country—every one calls him "Uncle Jim"—it wasn't Hubbard who administered the gentle rebuke to Dick Davis for his snobbishness in signing the hotel register "Richard Harding Davies and Valet."

"Here is the true story," writes Uncle Jim: "The place was Devon Inn, just outside of Philadelphia, Davis registered:

Richard Harding Davis and Valet.

Barclay H. Warburton, then publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, came in. He was a cousin of Davis. He wrote:

Barclay Harding Warburton and Valise."

If Quality
of circulation is your first consideration

The Evening Star
With Sunday Morning Editions
Washington, D. C.
will have your preference—same as it has the preference of practically everyone in the National Capital.

The Star's circulation is home circulation—both quality and quantity—the kind that counts most with advertisers.

N. Y. Office—110 E. 42nd St.
Dan A. Carroll
Chicago Office—Tower Building
J. E. Lutz

A paper with the people

The public decides the progress of a newspaper.

The continuous rising circulation of the New York Evening Graphic vividly demonstrates popular acceptance of this newspaper as a medium of unusual reader interest.

Advertisers daily realize the benefit of this power through achieved results from the advertising columns of the New York Evening Graphic.

With a constantly increasing circulation, plus a constant growth in advertising lineage, the New York Evening Graphic offers the advertiser an extremely profitable opportunity.

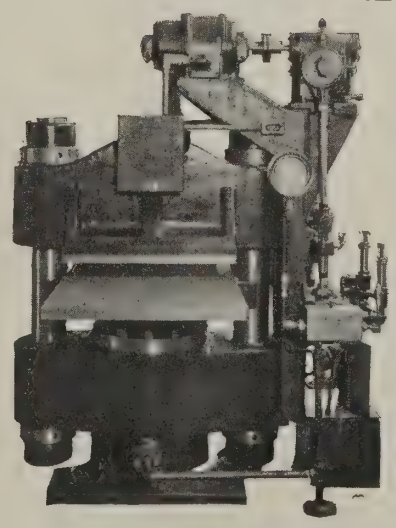
Published by BERNARR MACFADDEN
NEW YORK
EVENING GRAPHIC
H. A. AHERN, Advertising Mgr.
25 City Hall Place
New York City

MICHIGAN
is growing faster than any State in the Union.

Its increase in manufacturing products surpasses anything in the world.

BOOTH NEWSPAPERS
cover Michigan outside of Detroit—Eight principal cities with the only or leading Newspaper in its respective community.

The Grand Rapids Press
The Flint Daily Journal
The Saginaw News Courier
The Kalamazoo Gazette
The Jackson Citizen Patriot
The Bay City Times Tribune
The Muskegon Chronicle
The Ann Arbor Times News



National Advertising Representatives
I. A. KLEIN, 50 East 42nd St., New York City
J. E. LUTZ, Tower Building, Chicago, Ill.

Use the COMBINATION RATE
OF
The Gazette Times
(Morning and Sunday)
AND
Chronicle Telegraph
(Evening)
in order to cover Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania thoroughly at the lowest cost.

Member A. B. C.

URBAN E. DICE, Nat. Adv. Mgr.
GAZETTE SQ., PITTSBURGH, PA.
National Representatives:
E. M. BURKE, Inc.
42nd and Broadway, N. Y.
122 S. Michigan Blvd., Chicago.
Constitution Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.
J. J. BIDWELL CO.
82 Market St., San Francisco, Cal.
mes Bldg., Los Angeles, Cal.

BIROTADRUCK

HYDRAULIC MATRICE PRESS
Direct Pressure Under Complete Control. Fast, Positive, Non-Vibrating Hydraulic Operation. The first successful hydraulic matrice moulding press to be introduced into this country.
Birotadruck Presses are now in operation on the plants of The New York Times (3 presses), New York Herald-Tribune (2 presses), Boston Globe, Cleveland Press and Dallas News.
AMERICAN BIROTADRUCK CO., Inc.
120 West 42d St., New York City

DO YOU NEED A TRAINED MAN?
The Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, an organization of college trained newspaper, magazine and advertising men, wants to help you find him. The Bureau puts you in touch with experienced, energetic men—it saves you time by recommending only those who meet your requirements.
If you expect a vacancy, please write Robert B. Tarr, Director, Personnel Bureau of Sigma Delta Chi, P. O. Box 115, Pontiac, Michigan.
NO CHARGE TO EMPLOYERS

The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Completely covers Des Moines' entire trade territory for you at a rate of 14c per line.
It is the best Advertising buy in the midwest
O'Mara & Ormsbee
Special Representatives
The DES MOINES CAPITAL
Lafayette Young
Publisher

GERALD W. JOHNSON will print an interesting article about journalism in the American Mercury for September. He thus describes journalism below the Potomac:

At present Southern journalism is in the main controlled by the sublime slogan of business: "Give the public what it wants." The Southern public, as a whole, has not in this generation tasted leadership by the press, and so it does not want it—as yet. It is content with the gist of the Associated Press dispatches in the news columns. It is content with an editorial page made up of thundering denunciations of the Republican party and of Antichrist, variously personified in Clarence Darrow, the Pope, Harry Emerson Fosdick and the Elders of Zion, balanced by maudlin eulogies of the Southern climate, the Confederacy, cotton manufacturers, and successful realtors. It is content with features including book reviews by estimable maiden ladies who accept Miss Rutherford as a historian inspired of God and infallible and who think Dreiser uncalled-for, music criticism by the most oppressed of the cubs, dramatic criticism by the third assistant advertising manager (he who handles the theater accounts), and, for the rest, canned stuff from the syndicates and the comic strips.

* * *

THE house organ of the L. C. Smith Typewriter Company is called Typebar Bulletin. In the current issue there is an article telling how one of its dealers turned printer during the general strike in England. It thus quotes from the Northampton Mercury a description of how the Northampton Daily Echo maintained regularity of publication through typewritten newspapers:

Two days before the strike was declared, a Northampton daily paper approached V. P. Chisholm and Company, the well known typewriter and duplicator experts, of the Arcade, with a view to ascertaining the possibilities of their services. Such a contingency had never before arisen in the history of journalism. However, arrangements were speedily got in hand, and all other work stopped. Here the L. C. Smith typewriter, for which Messrs Chisholm are sole local concessionaires, proved its sterling worth. Three machines were pressed into service and a very interesting experiment was tried with a view to speeding-up production on the duplicators. It was found possible to cut two and even three stencils simultaneously upon the L. C. Smith; thus, the moment a stencil was finished, several rotary duplicators could be brought into operation at once.

IN the Iowa Journalist for August is an editorial, "The Eternal Fight Against Injustice," that reviews some of the attempts in America to curb the freedom of the press. It concludes with a quotation from EDITOR & PUBLISHER about the Dale case.

* * *

TWO articles in Oregon Exchanges should be marked. The first is "How Banker and Editor Can Work Together for Public Benefit," by E. O. Blanchar, president of the First National Bank at Hood River, Ore. The other is "China Rich Field for Journalist," by Erma Zimmerman Smythe whose husband was at one time a professor in the Peiyang National University, a Chinese government engineering school, at Tientsin.

* * *

GENE FOWLER, formerly managing editor of the New York American, and now promotion manager of the King Features Syndicate, contributes to Circulation for July an article on Dean Williams of Missouri. Briefly, the article is a personal impression of Journalism Week at the University of Missouri in general, and a personality sketch of its "Trail-Blazing Dean" in particular.

IN preparing "Theory and Practice of Advertising" (McGraw-Hill Book Company) S. Roland Hall went about the preparation of his manuscript in the right way. He wrote to teachers of advertising to find out what kind of a text they wanted. Knowing the demand, he then sought to produce the product to meet it. He has done a good piece of work.

One of the best selling points of the book is that it treats advertising as a business force which interlocks with other business forces, such as personal salesmanship, and is interwoven with other elements such as the design of the container. Mr. Hall frankly admits that "the popular conception of advertising has been unfortunate in more than one way."

He also openly confesses that advertising in some of its forms is open to criticism, as this quotation from the book will show:

Advertising employed with only the most commercial and selfish motives has created fortunes, large or small, for patent medicines and oil stocks of uncertain or no value.

Advertising in the hands of unscrupulous politicians and publishers has spread abroad biased views of city, state or national affairs.

Advertising, used timidly and to too small an extent, to influence opinion or desire to any noticeable extent, has fallen short of success and wasted the advertiser's expenditure.

Advertising, placed in poorly selected media, in immoderate space, with weak appeals or with unwisely timed schedules has squandered great sums of advertiser's capital which in many instances was never recovered.

Attention is thus called to the fact that not all advertising aims to educate the people to buy more goods:

Mankind is being urged, through the printed word, to save, to use the banks, to invest in a home, to beware of unwise speculations with money. "Safety First" methods, though exploited by lecture, demonstration, and personal caution, are disseminated even more broadly through the medium of advertising.

* * *

CONSIDERABLE space is devoted to the distribution of the product. In this part of the book Mr. Hall might well have listed those newspapers which will not accept advertising unless the product advertised has distribution within the newspaper trading radius. But in spite of this omission one of the best sections of the book is that dealing with the need of data on specific markets. The graphs shown in this section are especially illuminating.

The section headed "Psychology of Advertising" deserves more than passing mention. In it Mr. Hall makes a distinct contribution to the literature on the subject. The trend of this part of the book may be summed up in the assertion that "the scientific deductions of one generation become the common-sense knowledge of the next." In this section Mr. Hall reprints the following results of some newspaper tests on the attention value of advertisements:

That one 2-inch advertisement received as much attention, apparently, as another advertisement measuring 9 inches. This shows what good copy, good illustration, good display or good position may do.

That single-column advertisements under 6 inches are not likely to be seen by more than 5½ per cent of the circulation of the paper—which seems to sustain the belief of many advertisers that good copy can be safely repeated a number of times, though probably it is not best, because of the 5½ per cent who see it the first insertion, to repeat immediately.

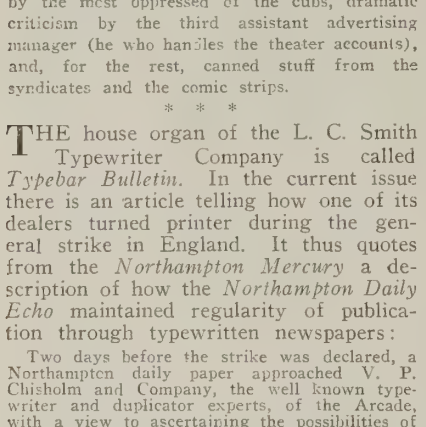
That advertisements running from 15 to 30 inches apparently receive an average of 8.89 per cent of attention as compared with attention-value of 6.72 per cent for advertisements running from 1 to 15 inches. Such findings can hardly be taken as being extremely accurate, but they seem to indicate that increasing the size of space does not necessarily increase the attention-value proportionately, or else it follows that small advertisements are generally better written or displayed more effectively.

That the second and third pages of a paper, when these are devoted to live news, receive from 15 to 20 per cent more attention than pages generally, and an attention superior to that given the sporting page or the last page.

That illustrated copy has a higher attention-value than unillustrated copy—a principle long ago recognized—but that statements in copy are remembered better than illustrated values or features.

That right-hand newspaper pages are slightly superior to left-hand pages.

That the upper half of the newspaper page has an attention-value approximately 25 per cent greater than the lower half. This, however, might not be true if the page contained only one half-page advertisement, placed either at the top or the bottom; the principle applies to pages containing more than two or three advertisements.



What is said about pruning, transposition and substitution in order to make advertising copy more effective may be read to advantage by reporters. The text columns of our newspapers would unquestionably be improved if reporters, instead of being on space rates, had to pay so much per line for what was inserted. The long string is often good for the reporter but bad for the reader. The reporter, therefore, should begin his perusal of this volume on page 187. He should not overlook what is said about human-interest copy on page 212. The copy desk may well peruse what is said about clarity and pertinency of headlines. Here advertising takes some lessons from daily journalism.

On the subject of newspaper practice the situation is thus summed up:

On account of the short time allowable for changes, newspapers object to giving revised proofs as a general practice. Some newspaper offices ask that they be allowed to print advertising without submitting proofs at all, but this is hardly desirable unless the composition is of a simple nature. Where the copy abounds in detail, description, prices and the like, embarassing errors are likely to be made in the advertiser's announcement unless he calls for at least one proof. But unless the proof is very erroneous, a newspaper office should be allowed to make corrections and to proceed with the insertion of the advertisement. An exception to this rule is found in the case of large stores that supply their copy several days ahead of publication and where there may, possibly, be ample time to submit a proof showing the corrections made.

Members of the circulation staff ought to find the letter of the Baltimore News full of suggestions on how to make circulation letters original and interesting. This letter of the Baltimore News may be found on page 458.

"Theory and Practice of Advertising" is a sound exposition of advertising in its various aspects. The text is developed logically and clearly; the points are well made and very aptly illustrated. Sectional headings aid in promoting reference value. Students of the business of advertising will find in the chapters on marketing campaigns, problems of retail and sectional advertising, mail-order and direct advertising, detailed and complete resumés of the current situation.

The Normal Season in Miami

23%
MORE CIRCULATION

Herald July circulation figures this year as compared with the same period for 1925 show a net increase of 23%—substantiating the continued phenomenal growth of Miami and its market under normal conditions—at a time when nearly every reader is a bona fide resident.

No other market in America is in as healthy a state as the Miami market. No other market offers greater possibilities to the national advertiser.

The Miami Herald
"Florida's Most Important Newspaper"
Frank B. Shutts, Publisher.

MERCHANT & EVANS CO.
PHILADELPHIA

Producers of

SPARTAN TYPE METAL

Since 1866

LINO • MONO • STERO
INTERTYPE COMBINATION

Stocks in Principal Cities

Buffalo, The Wonder City of America

Buffalo—a Profitable Market for Advertisers

Sales in Buffalo are splendid for advertised goods. Employment conditions excellent, retail and other business thriving. One newspaper will put your story over to 83% of the people—that paper is the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS
Read in 4 out of 5 Buffalo Homes

Edward H. Butler, Editor and Publisher
Kelly-Smith Company, Representatives
Marbridge Bldg. New York, N. Y. — Tribune Tower Chicago, Ill.
Atlantic Bldg. Philadelphia — Waterman Bldg. Boston

HALF A STATE COMPLETELY COVERED
at one Combination Rate
EVENING COURIER MORNING POST
Two Great Newspapers—Published at Camden, N. J.
National Representatives
STORY, BROOKS & FINLEY

Largest Evening Circulation in Largest Market

For 26 consecutive years the Evening Journal has had the largest evening circulation in America—concentrated in New York and suburbs. More than DOUBLE the circulation of any other New York evening paper.

NEW YORK JOURNAL

America's Largest Evening Circulation and at 3c a copy

Peoria
The Try-Out City
THE PEORIA JOURNAL
Transcript
Puts Tryouts Over!
CHAS. H. EDDY CO.
New York - Chicago - Boston

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

HERE'S A HUNCH

To Editor & Publisher: In view of the recurrent excitement over swimming the English Channel why should it not be possible for some newspapers to stir interest in swimming Long Island Sound, Chesapeake Bay, or other well known bodies of water in this country?

Evart G. Routzahn.

BEATING DISCOUNT DATE

To Editor & Publisher: We have a letter from one of the largest advertising agencies in the country. It reads:

"The attached bill is returned for the reason that you have incorrectly written our firm name.

"You will note from insertion orders submitted to you that our correct corporate title is "Blank, Blank & Company, Inc.

"Please make the necessary corrections and return to us when we will avail ourselves of the usual cash discount period of 10 days from receipt of invoice.

"Please observe this ruling when rendering future invoices in order to prevent unnecessary delays in payment of bills."

The amount of the bill for advertising was less than $50. The name as written on it by our clerk was Blank and Blank. Of course we shall use the letter to impress upon our bookkeeping staff the importance of accuracy in even the smallest details. Nevertheless we consider this letter the most novel of any we have received from a big concern. Our "corrected" bill will not reach the company until the fifth, so that the discount period will have been extended five days, according to their way of reckoning. We could refuse the discount if we didn't have things of far greater importance to worry about. But what's the use? The bookkeeper who returned our bill won't be looking for Blank, Blank & Company, for very long. Someone will find him out.

James M. Langley,
Concord (N. H.) Daily Monitor.

PERENNIAL WEEDS

To Editor & Publisher:

May we commend your editorial, "A Criminal Business," in issue of July 31st. The pseudo news agency seems to be the vilest of perennial weeds and is one which should not be allowed to encroach upon the ground of the legitimate publishing business. The more publicity which is given to such tawdry business, the better.

R. K. Leavitt.
Secretary-Treasurer.
Association of National Advertisers, Inc.

IMPORTANT IF TRUE

To Editor & Publisher:—If your space is good these warm days, put this question before your readers:

Why are so many publishers, supposedly interested in the increase of population in their own fields and in the increase of their circulations, allowing the insertion of innocently (?) worded abortion pills.

Please observe, dear editor, that I have not named the group or groups of publishers that are taking their dividend dollars from this abominable business. I am leaving this to the imagination. But if office boys are responsible for letting this sort of advertising get by, it is evident that a good number of office boys are in managers chairs in the year 1926.

S. Roland Hall.

NEWSPAPER IS AIDING MEN'S WEAR STORES

Detroit Free Press Starts Publication of Series of Advertisements in Interests of Those Who Sell Clothes to Men and Boys

The Detroit Free Press last week started publication of a series of advertisements "in the interests of those who make and sell apparel of every sort for the men and boys of Detroit."

Copy of the series is designed to instill "clothes consciousness" in the minds of masculine readers of the Free Press.

Text of the initial advertisement read in part:

"One cannot be well-dressed from happy-chance, but from plan, and while man is not called upon to study the amazing vagaries of the mode as is the fairer sex, yet clothes correctness does call for some usage of the 'noodle.'

"Those who make good clothing, and those who sell good clothing in Detroit present to you each morning through the pages of the Free Press the mode-message for men, and their advertisements you can study with pleasure and respond to with profit."

The "eye-catcher" of the first advertisement was the slug "If Lincoln Had Been Well Dressed." The copywriter then goes on to say that whether or not Lincoln would have had more influence had he been a so-called "Beau Brummel" is debatable, but that, after all, not every man "has or can acquire the immense personality of the 'Great Emancipator.'"

Text is illustrated with a line cut of an old "Uncle Tom" valet holding what might have been Lincoln's great-coat.

WILLIAM CANTNER CHAPIN

Former Publisher of Sacramento (Cal.) Union Dies in 93rd Year

William Cantner Chapin, 92, former publisher of the Sacramento (Cal.) Union, died Aug. 10 in San Francisco, Cal.

Mr. Chapin was born in Penn Yan, N. Y., Nov. 13, 1833. He went to California in 1858 and engaged extensively in mining there and in Nevada. In 1860 he won distinction fighting the Sioux Indians.

For some time, Mr. Chapin was associated with William Rockefeller and S. H. Rogers in the oil business. Later he became publisher of the Union, of which his son, W. W. Chapin, is now publisher.

REPORTER A POLICE JUDGE

Also Acting Prosecutor of Covington and on Times-Star Staff

"Guilty, yer honor!"

"Not guilty, yer honor!"

"May it please yer honor, I should like to submit that . . ."

These were salutations that trickled into

His Honor, H. R. McMillan

the ears of Hervey R. McMillan, 26, Latonia, Ky., a member of the Cincinnati Times-Star staff.

Sitting on the bench of the Covington police courtroom, armed with the dignity of the law, "Mac" proceeded to deal out justice to the motley crew of minor offenders whom the Covington police had arrested over the week-end.

Ears that had been accustomed to hectic recitals of crime and wild adventure, which ultimately dribbled through typewriters and copyreaders' pencils into print, now began to hear another side of crime.

This was the sordid side, stripped of the romance and glamor which attaches to written accounts of ventures on forbidden ground.

For a week "Mac" was a judge, taking the place of Judge George E. Philipps, on vacation. "Mac" is a full-fledged lawyer, having been admitted to the Kentucky bar in April, 1924.

Just now he is holding down three jobs. He is acting police court judge; he is acting county attorney, in the absence of County Attorney Rodney Bryson; he is staff man on the Kentucky Times-Star, which is by no means a "snap."

NEW LOUISIANA GROUP

The meeting in Minden for permanent organization of a North Louisiana Press Association has been set for Aug. 15. John W. Conniff, president of Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, Ruston, will speak.

FLORIDA
continues to be the fastest growing state in the Union.

TAMPA
is the recognized industrial center and the most substantial city in Florida.

THE TAMPA MORNING TRIBUNE
is the only morning and the only Sunday newspaper in Tampa, covering the entire rich, productive and populous territory of Southwest Florida, reaching a population of 713,943.

200,000 Daily Readers.
300,000 Sunday Readers.

Represented nationally by
The S. C. Beckwith Special Agency.

E. F. S.
Editors' Feature Service
Over 70 independent newspapers throughout the country subscribe to this fine daily service as a protection against rising feature costs.
Six Pages Daily
Illustrations in Mat Form
Write or wire for samples, price and territory.
Editors' Feature Service, Inc.
1819 Broadway, New York
Allied with Johnson Features, Inc.

The right thing can't be done the wrong way. Records say we know the right way to build classified volume.
THE BASIL L. SMITH SYSTEM, Inc
International Classified Advertising Counsellors
Packard Building, Philadelphia

COMPLETE WIRE REPORTS FOR EVENING AND SUNDAY PAPERS
International News Service
Get It FIRST but First Get It RIGHT"
63 Park Row
NEW YORK CITY

Among The Newspapers Publishing
Constance Talmadge's Flapper Series
Chicago Journal — Philadelphia Sun
Detroit News — Buffalo Times
Toledo Blade — Louisville Courier J'l
Omaha Bee — Oakland Post Enquirer
Peoria Star Journal — Memphis News Scimitar
Newark Jersey Transcript
Why Not Join This List of Papers
Wire for Terms and Territory
COSMOS NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE INC
Covering the World
NINE EAST THIRTY-SEVENTH STREET NEW YORK CITY
Herbert S. Houston, President and Editor-in-Chief
Myles F. Lasker, Vice-President and General Manager

Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Complete Feature Service
Wire us for samples and prices of the Largest, Most Original
Most Artistic and Finest
blanket feature service on the market, which includes IVANHOE, VIVIAN VANITY, and the FAMOUS SHORT STORY SERIES, in addition to SPORTS, WOMAN'S PAGE FEATURES, COMICS, FICTION, VERSE, CARTOONS and everything for the newspaper.
Wheeler-Nicholson, Inc.
Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson, President
373 4th Ave., New York City

GRAVURE SECTIONS PRINTED
SPECIAL AND REGULAR EDITIONS, MAGAZINE INSERTS AND COMMERCIAL WORK
Standard Gravure Corporation
LOUISVILLE KY

N. Y. WORLD STARTS TEST OF DRY MATS

Now Using Them Exclusively—Experimenting Also with Hoe Hydraulic Sterotype Machine—New Presses Being Installed

The New York World on Aug. 4 started a test of dry mats, using them exclusively in publication of the daily and Sunday editions. For the past year and a half, according to L. E. Owens, production manager, dry mats have been used on the picture page, but this is the first time they have been given a test on the whole paper.

At the same time, Mr. Owens said, the World is experimenting with one of the new Hoe hydraulic stereotype molding machines.

The World is now installing the last two units of a 10-unit Duplex press and is also adding an additional unit to two octuple presses, making them dectuples. All together so far 28 new Duplex units have been added to the World's press room. Other press equipment includes two double sextuple Hoe's; two sextuple Hoe's; one octuple Hoe; and two octuple Scott's.

Mr. Owens reported he was getting increasing satisfaction out of the color press, imported some time ago from Germany.

LINOTYPE SHORT COURSE

Operators Go to School at Iowa State College

Twenty-five Iowa county newspaper linotype operators attended a new kind of "school" from July 14 to 17. It is believed to have been the first short course for linotype operators ever held by a college or university.

The idea originated with F. W. Beckman, head of the Technical Journalism Department of Iowa State College, Ames. The Mergenthaler Linotype Company cooperated with the department.

The instruction was given by Thomas Knapp, of the education division of the Mergenthaler Company, B. S. Stafford and Barney Chittick of the same organization, and Mr. Beckman.

Every phase of machine operation and mechanism was discussed and demonstrated. Hundreds of questions, which the "students" had been asked to bring with them, were answered. The demonstrations were held in the composing room of the Collegiate Press incorporated, a printing shop owned by the student publications of the college.

KNIGHT AT TAMPA

M. S. Knight, formerly with Street & Finney, Inc., New York, has been appointed manager of the Tampa office of the Caples Advertising Agency of Chicago.

NEW MICHIGAN DAILY PROMISED

New presses are being installed in the plant of the Mount Pleasant (Mich.) Times, and it is expected this weekly will enter the daily field some time in September. The Times was purchased last April by F. H. Goodrich, publisher of the Greenville (Mich.) Independent Daily News, and T. O. Huckle, formerly business manager of the Ypsilanti (Mich.) Press. A contract has been signed with the United Press.

CLEBURNE (TEX.) TIMES LEASED

R. W. Thompson and S. L. Perry have leased the Cleburne (Tex.) Times from James N. Vickers, owner. They took possession Aug. 2. The paper had been under lease to Roy Dennis.

ENTERTAIN BEAVERBROOK

Lord Beaverbrook, publisher of the London Daily Express, was honored at a luncheon given at Newport, R. I., Aug. 9, by Mr. and Mrs. James W. Gerard. From Newport, the British publisher sailed on his yacht Miramichi for Chatham, Mass., where he will remain a short time before proceeding up the New England coast on a cruise in Canadian waters.

OROVILLE PAPER INCORPORATES

The Oroville (Cal.) Mercury Company has filed articles of incorporation, and will take over the ownership and publication of the Mercury. The capital is $50,000, and the incorporators are Farwell Brown, F. W. McKechnie, Jr., Helen G. McKechnie, Clarence A. Davy and Sidney M. Van Wyck, Jr.

ISSUE DAILY DURING HARVEST

Blackshear and Metter, two small towns in Southeast Georgia, have entered the daily newspaper field for a short period. The Blackshear Times and the Metter Enterprise are printing daily during the tobacco harvesting season. This is the first time this has been attempted.

CORRECTION

In a recent advertisement in this publication the Detroit News listed the leaders of the evening newspaper field in linage for the first six months of 1926 as follows: Detroit News, 12,628,168 lines; Chicago News, 11,274,018 lines; Philadelphia Bulletin, 10,972,200; Indianapo News, 9,131,913, omitting the Washingt Star, which should have been given four place with 10,640,590 lines.

FINNISH PAPER CHARTERED

The Eastern Publishing Company Fitchburg, Mass., was granted a Mass chusetts charter last week to conduct publishing business. Capital is listed $100,000. Incorporators are Oscar Pu akka, Yrjo W. Siipola and Simon V Nelson, all of Fitchburg. The compa intends to publish a Finnish conservati weekly, having recently purchased t press of the defunct Quincy (Mass Times.

Supplies and Equipment

Rebuilt
GOSS & HOE
PRESS
BARGAINS
ALL TYPES
SEND for LIST
THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO.
CHICAGO – NEW YORK – LONDON

GOSS
STEREOTYPING MACHINERY
Carried in Stock

Fastest, most easily operated, most accurate and durable flat casting box you can buy. Perfectly balanced. New design lock-up bar allows for quick change when regulating thickness of casts. Positive quick lock-up at four points on box with one lever movement. Write for complete catalog of Goss Stereotyping Machinery.

THE GOSS PRINTING PRESS CO., CHICAGO

Buyer and Seller secures desired results through
Editor & Publisher

USED NEWSPAPER PRESSES

Scott 16, 24 and 32-Page Presses

GOSS 24 and 28-page presses good for black or color work, also Goss Sextuple.

HOE Pony Quadruple, Quadruple, Sextuple, Sextuple color Press, Octuple and Double Sextuple Presses.

DUPLEX Metropolitan Quadruple stereotype presses—print up to 32 pages.

Available For Early Delivery

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY
Main Office & Factory.....Plainfield, N. J.
New York Office..Brokaw Bldg., 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office.....Monadnock Block

PRESS CONTROL
C-H
"Safest System in the World"

For large and small plants

Cutler-Hammer Controllers for presses of every size and for every type of motor-driven machine.

Address all communications:
The CUTLER-HAMMER Mfg. Co.
Pioneer Manufacturers of Electric Control Apparatus
1203 St. Paul Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis.

CUTLER-HAMMER

Don't "Pig" Metal
It Wastes Money

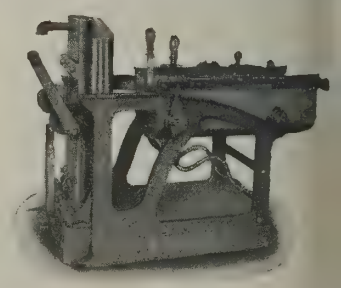
Don't melt your metal twice to use it once. Write for trial offer. The Monomelt "Single Melting System." References gladly furnished.

MONOMELT
SLUG FEEDER
Eliminates the Metal Furnace
The Monomelt Co.
4509-19 Ravenswood Ave.
Chicago Illinois
World Bldg., New York City

Modern
Composing Room Furniture

as made by us will speed up production and reduce costs—a real saving in your Pay Roll. Are you interested? If so, consult your regular dealer in printers' supplies or write us direct.

Do it now!



HAMILTON MFG. CO.
TWO RIVERS, WIS.

Hoe Patented Duo-Cooled Equipoise Curved Casting Mould

"It is essential to Success to be the first out with the news—and Minutes count."

This Hoe Curved Casting Mould is a time-saver, designed especially for Speed and Efficiency. Cold Water circulating through the stationary Lid and the concave Side, gives quick cooling for rapid Casting.

IF IT'S A HOE, IT'S THE BEST

R. HOE & CO., INC. 504-520 Grand St., New York City
7 South Dearborn Street CHICAGO, ILL. also at DUNELLEN, N. J. 7 Water Street BOSTON, MASS.

Employment—Equipment—Services

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Classified Advertising Information

TRANSIENT RATES

SITUATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .40 per line
3 Times — .30 per line

ALL OTHER CLASSIFICATIONS (Cash with Order)

1 Time — .60 per line
4 Times — .55 per line

Vte space charge at same rate per line per rtion as earned by frequency of insertion. rial rates quoted for 13, 26 and 52 insertions. Editor & Publisher reserves the right to lify, edit or reject any advertisement.

COUNT SIX WORDS TO LINE

ADVERTISING

General Promotion

ertising Promotion—If you want more ness, communicate with the International ications Service, Incorporated, Suite 1004, Broadway, New York City.

SINESS OPPORTUNITIES

Brokers

H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.; Times Building, New York; 1216 Holworth Building, Los Angeles. Your desire quire a newspaper, or any dissatisfaction he newspaper situation in your community, ld be reported to this Agency for satisory solution.

ndid Middle West Opportunity—Evening r; exclusive field; modern plant; good ulation; net profit for past five years 15%; al payment $75,000; banks will loan $25,000. . Shale, 1012 Times Bldg., New York.

Interest for Sale

Interest for sale in money making evening r in southwest. Fast growing city. Exve field. Buyer should have at least ten sand. Property worth at least $75,000. ction of manager and good salary goes with Owner interested in several other dailies. dress Von Goshorn, Tulsa Hotel, Tulsa, homa.

Interest Wanted

rest in Daily Newspaper wanted by exnced editor and publisher who has achieved rkable success on two dailies, this in the of stiffest kind of competition. Publisher desires to lesson his responsibilities or trid of them entirely, may find the opporty, if he will communicate with this adser, who understands every phase of newsmaking; is a tried and proved executive, whose personal integrity will stand the acid Address A-727, Editor & Publisher.

Newspapers for Sale

kly in Unequalled Field—Big little paper far-flung repute for editorial excellence progressiveness, in big center of northern sconsin's pre-eminent resort region. Prosperg rapidly expanding town of 1,600; county Specializes in high-class resort literature ur direction of typographical expert who ains. Unlimited field; minimum competition. kly average July: Advertising, $110.65; criptions, $35; job work, $371.44. Annual ess, $20,000. This can be vastly increased. stigate. Price $9,000, plus value paper . $4,500 cash. A-730, Editor & Publisher.

u are looking for a safe, profitable investe, read the quarter page ad on Page 34.

CIRCULATION

Promotion

rculation—When quick, additional circulation wage becomes necessary, remember that our ty years in this one line of endeavor is u proof against experimenting. Write or Pacific Coast Circulation Service, Bell , Cincinnati, Ohio.

rculation Builders—Blair & Austin, 1504 Cenve., Reading, Penn. Originators of Salesship Club Campaigns.

Circulation—Try our "Opportunity Club" Sherman & Eckert, 353 Northampton , Easton, Penna.

wspapers Interested in securing quick reit through an economical circulation proon campaign in the early fall, may secure is from our Promotion Manager, care of New Haven, Conn., Union. The Albright Co., Palmyra, N. J.

CIRCULATION

Equipment

Newspaper Display Racks—The Steel Co., Box 203, Palmyra, N. J.

EDITORIAL

Syndicate Features

Montreal (Can.) World and Omaha Daily News are the new customers this week. For sample of a live, alert, up-to-date service, write The Graphic Syndicate, 25 City Hall Place, New York.

EMPLOYMENT

Help Wanted

Advertising Salesman Wanted, capable of maintaining high-class policy and developing new business on well-established trade publication. Right man can grow into executive position at excellent salary by proper production. Forty dollars a week to start with, fifty upon assurance of ability. We are developing new territory and need also three real salesmen. Florida Financial Journal, Inc., Box 270, St. Petersburg.

Circulation Manager wanted. Must be experienced and efficient; one familiar with A. B. C. records to take charge of morning newspaper in Middle West. Very large field. Must have best of references. Address A-731, Editor & Publisher.

Reporter—Vermont Daily seeks reporter with Vermont background, 25 to 35 years old. Should be capable of early growth to desk responsibilities, but genuinely devoted to reporting. Address A-705, Editor & Publisher.

Situations Wanted

Advertising Manager—12 years' experience, now employed, wants to connect with wide-awake newspaper where there is an opportunity for real development work. Capable executive, forceful copy writer and layout expert. Am a real business getter. Have always been able to show a satisfactory increase in linage. Age 33, married. Prefer a town of 50,000 to 200,000. Could be available September 1st. Reason for seeking change is that I want to locate in smaller city. Address "Advertising Manager," 1339 N. 15th Street, Philadelphia, Penna.

Advertising Salesman—Thirty-three years old. American. Good health. Fifteen years newspaper experience both on Hearst and Scripps papers, morning and evening. I know how to write and sell copy and am familiar with general merchandising problems. In position to help him. Now employed. Good reasons for wanting to change. Address E. W. Foster, care The Herald, El Paso, Texas.

Advertising Solicitor—Young man with 6 years' record on metropolitan dailies and also advertising agency experience, looks for real opportunity. Now employed. A-1 references. Available at once. A-698, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising Manager—Over 20 years' experience, wants responsible, permanent position in growing city. Hustler and profit producer, fully experienced in copy writing, lay-out and selling of advertising, local, national and classified. Married, Mason, Presbyterian. Will go anywhere. Available Sept. 1. Best of references. Address Lewis A. Jones, P. O. Box 93, North Tonawanda, N. Y.

Advertising Manager—Classified Manager—Solicitor, now employed. Handles all local and national accounts, in or out of town. Travel representative. Over 12 years experience metropolitan newspapers. Experienced on magazine accounts. Promotion, publicity, merchandising. One whom a busy executive may rely upon. Excellent credentials. A-707, Editor & Publisher.

Advertising or Business Manager, with unquestionable record for maximum production, even under the most adverse conditions, contemplates making a change in the near future for purely personal reasons. Now employed in Southern city of 250,000. A thorough executive and big personal producer. No objection to second or third paper if real opportunity is offered. Age 33, married, excellent reputation. A-715, care Editor & Publisher.

Business Manager or Assistant, now employed. University trained. Worked my way up from desk through circulation and advertising departments to present position as business manager. Familiar with all branches of newspaper work. A-720, Editor & Publisher.

Business or Advertising Manager, engaged in South, desires to return North. Prefer Middle West. 32 years of age. Christian, excellent character. Unusual training and experience. Good organizer and producer. Understand all branches of the business. Successful record. A-721, Editor & Publisher.

Business-Advertising Manager—Capable, hard hitting, straight thinking young advertising man, 15 years experience as copywriter, salesman, executive; now business manager in charge of advertising small city newspaper, will soon be available for similar position. Been through the mill from devil up. Fine record. Initial salary $85 or better. Address A-701, Editor & Publisher.

EMPLOYMENT

Situations Wanted

Boxing Writer—Have you an "Honest" boxing writer, not on any "list," who writes truthfully what he sees, learns, and believes, on your staff? One such awaits your call. Confidentially. A-697, Editor & Publisher.

Cartoonist—Copy Writer—Newspaper and advertising experience—now with leading Philadelphia daily, desires position in Southern state. Also does lettering-retouching. A-717, Editor & Publisher.

Circulation—South's most brilliant circulation manager is probably satisfied with his present connection, but the next best isn't. Age 35. Salary $6,500. Go anywhere. Confidential correspondence solicited. A-726, Editor & Publisher.

Desk and Makeup Editor who can write good human interest features and report, wants change of position before September. Three years' experience, good references, college graduate. A-711, Editor & Publisher.

Editor or Managing Editor—Want permanent connection with daily afternoon paper in South. Now employed in responsible position with morning paper in Northern city of 70,000. Recently given promotion by present employer, and only reason for change is desire to return to native section. If you contemplate change this year, communicate with me. Best of references. Am willing to sign contract. A-682, Editor & Publisher.

Editor, City Desk and Feature Experience; capable in make-up, magazine direction; age thirty-four, married; on this job six years; trained in business management; credentials of the best; write A-695, Editor & Publisher.

Editor or Manager—College graduate with ten years active experience on biggest metropolitan dailies; two years as manager of semi-weekly; now holds responsible editorial position on Southern daily; skilled writer and business creator; with knowledge of all branches of newspaper or magazine publication; seeks position of permanence with opportunity to acquire part interest dependent on growth and expansion. Age 31; salary expected, $200 month. A-729, Editor & Publisher.

Editorial Writer, capable and experienced, now managing editor of paper in city of 15,000, seeks connection with reputable editorial organization. A-732, Editor & Publisher.

Energetic Newspaper Man whose experience covers every branch of newspaper making wants connection with aggressive daily newspaper organization. Will invest $10,000 or more. What have you to offer? Prop 1732a. The H. F. Henrichs Agency, Litchfield, Ill.

Expert Rotary or Flat-Bed Pressman desires permanent position with well established newspaper near New York. Open shop. Best wages expected. Can supervise stereotyping department. Long experience and thoroughly reliable. Address A-724, Editor & Publisher.

Managing Editor—Holding important post on great city daily, wants position on paper in small city. Have built two. Prepare for the Fall battle by writing or wiring. A-725, Editor & Publisher.

Mr. Circulation Manager, are you in need of an assistant—one that will carry through your ideas, plans and orders to the last letter. I am an expert on Home Delivery; familiar with all circulation promotion. Six years experience, metropolitan, provincial. Evening paper with over 75,000 preferred. At liberty with due notice. Good reference. A-700, Editor & Publisher.

Private Secretary—Male. Capable stenographer. Splendid commercial and literary background, with practical experience of accounting, journalism and copywriting. Matriculated in London University. Will consider very moderate salary for good connection. A-719, Editor & Publisher.

Press Erector wants to get off road. Will consider permanent position as Pressroom Superintendent-Maintenance man. Available Sept. first. References. A-723, Editor & Publisher.

To a Publishers' Representative—Am 32 years of age, Christian, excellent character, 15 years experience in newspaper work. Business manager, National Advertising Manager and other capacities, with one newspaper. Wide acquaintance among publishers. Desire to locate in Middle West and affiliate with young, aggressive group of representatives. A-722, Editor & Publisher.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Complete Newspaper Plant for sale. Two tubular duplex presses with stereotype equipment; seven intertype machines; photographic and photo engraving departments located San Francisco; Wesel saw and planer and photo engraving plant, Miami, Florida. Whole or in part as is, where is. Address John W. Brodix, receiver. Vanderbilt Newspapers, Inc., 56 Twelfth street, San Francisco, Calif.

Goss Straightline Press, 24-page, with complete stereotype equipment, all in fine condition. Current issues sent. Cheap for immediate sale. The Lima Morning Star, Lima, Ohio.

MECHANICAL

Equipment for Sale

Hoe Mat Roller, 500 H. P. D. C. Motor, $100.00. Daily News, Washington, D. C.

In addition to a complete line of newspaper presses, ranging from octuple to eight-page flat beds, we offer a Hoe Dry Mat Roller, Wood Dry Mat Roller, Hoe Mono-rail, Saw and Trimmer, Hoe Matrix Shears and a general line of equipment. Tell us what you need. Griffiths Publishers Exchange, 154 Nassau St., New York.

Job Presses, Paper Cutters, Wire Stitchers, etc.—A complete line. Overhauled and guaranteed machines at bargain prices. Easy terms. Hoffmann Type & Engraving Co., 114 E. 13th St., N. Y. City.

Printers', Bookbinders' Outfitters—Modern cut-cost equipment, also rebuilt machinery. Conner Fendler Branch, A. T. F. Co., New York City.

Used Goss Matt Roller for wet mats only, for sale cheap. The Goss Printing Press Co., 1535 So. Paulina St., Chicago, Ill.

Equipment Wanted

Press Wanted—Weekly wants twelve or sixteen page press, flat bed or rotary, with full equipment, stereotype, second hand, in first class condition. Give full details. News Letter, Orillia, Canada.

Newspaper Properties

Bought, Sold and Appraised.
All negotiations confidential.

PALMER, DEWITT & PALMER
350 Madison Ave., New York
Business Established in 1899.

CONSOLIDATION

The merging of newspaper interests is a subject that has received special study and investigation by this firm for nearly 17 years. It is a big subject and requires considerable technical knowledge, both as to valuation and operating methods. When properly organized, the results are never disappointing.

We have been factors in many important consolidations, sales and appraisals.

HARWELL & CANNON
Times Bldg. New York

WE CONNECT THE WIRES

WE WANT
Reporters
Copy readers
Advertising salesmen

FERNALD'S EXCHANGE, INC.
THIRD NAT'L B'LD'G., SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Many Publishers

delay staff changes until after September first. That date will soon be here and we have a number of Executives listed who are awaiting opportunities.

Classified Department
Editor & Publisher

DOLLAR $ $ $ $ PULLERS

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH IDEA PUBLISHED

THE Rockford (Ill.) Star this week worked out a seven-page advertising feature in a "Who's Who" contest. The pages were blocked off in 20 sections each, and merchants, stores and businesses were solicited with 140 responses. A huge black "Who" dominated each section and below was a statement of the business but with the firm in jumbled letters. The paper offered $75 cash prizes to the readers who brought in the greatest number of corrected firm names. The contest closed three days later and the next day the whole section was run again, with the names correctly printed.—S. L. J., Rock Island, Ill.

This fall, when interest in radio is reviving, put on a "radio week" during which all dealers in radio would push their goods by means of advertising in your paper. If possible, help to make the week a big success by getting the dealers to put on a radio show.—Frank H. Williams, Santa Ana, Cal.

An Ohio paper, feeling that the clothing stores, shoe stores and the like would advertise without a special page incentive did not go after them in getting out its "Get Ready for School" page, but sought another class. It got the dry cleaners, the shoe repair men, the stores that handled second-hand books, the store that sells rebuilt bikes, and lunch baskets. All children cannot have new outfits to start the school year, but all must have a certain number of things.—Yandell C. Cline, Columbus (Ind.) Republican.

The Santa Cruz (Cal.) Morning Sentinel is running two co-operative advertisements for (1) beauty parlors and barber shops; (2) restaurants, tea rooms, lunches, etc. The first a 3x9, with ten advertisers, one-third of the space used for heading. The "Restaurant Directory" has fifteen advertisements in it, and one-fourth of the space is devoted to illustrated heading.—Fremont Kutnewsky, San Luis Obispo, Cal.

Classified advertising accounts from the residential districts are collected by carrier boys on a small percentage basis on one newspaper, saving the time of the regular collectors and obtaining more efficient collections. The collections are made on forms given to the carrier boys each week.—B. A. T., Springfield, Ohio.

Closing exercises and exhibitions of playground work usually call for sneakers, sandals or tennis shoes for the youngsters, and perhaps materials for dresses. Department stores and shoe stores can well go after this trade.—R. M. Campbell, 26 Florence avenue, Lowell, Mass.

The Dallas Dispatch ran a striking advertisement for its classified department on July 21. The message was addressed to "Mrs. Housewife" and offered to run a three line ad four days for one dollar. It is a fact that people commonly overestimate the probable cost of a classified ad. Four times for one dollar sounds like a real bargain, and is a definite proposition, easy to accept.—Fremont Kutnewsky, San Luis Obispo, Cal.

September 1, which, in America, also means "moving day," opens a host of advertising opportunities to newspapers. Besides the customary use of the classified columns by renters in their search for suitable homes and by home owners in their search for suitable renters there is then an opportunity to educate movers in the use of classified ads in disposing of excess furniture. Furniture dealers should also make an extra appeal at this time to supply the needs of the home seekers.—F. D. H.

Many garages and outdoor parking places make a specialty of parking cars during the day or evening at reasonable rates. Stricter parking regulations and the danger of parking at the curb in congested streets are leading many motorists to seek a convenient private parking place while they are in town for the day. Solicit advertisements from such garages and private parking places and group same under the heading "Where to Park in Town."—D. F., 171 Jerome street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Rockford Register Gazette intersperses its "10 Years Ago Today" news with brief advertisements. Many of the older firms use this space to emphasize the number of years they may have been in business. This unique use of the old newspaper files also affords a new means of approach to the freak advertiser.—F. D. H.

HUNCHES

ONE DOLLAR WILL BE PAID FOR EACH "HUNCH" PUBLISHED

THE Sioux City (Ia.) Tribune is seeking the best proposal of marriage, announcing that its "contest editor, eager to help timid swains, offers prizes for guaranteed non-failing 1926 pleas for hand of lady fair. Maidens, too, were urged to assist in submitting proposals they would like to receive." The Tribune announced that inasmuch as the June honeymoons were over "now it can be told" and offered suitable awards for stories of the pleas that won the current crop of June brides. The contest editor, quoted from the old fashioned books on proposals, pointing out they were archaic. The possibilities of a news feature are unlimited and the contest is an interest winner.—S. L. J., Rock Island, Ill.

Any newspaper that wants to establish a column that will interest its women readers will find a series of articles written under the caption, "Doeville Women's Hobbies," to be of interest. Mrs. Jones will display an interesting collection of antique books; Mrs. Brown will have a flower garden, etc. They say people do well what they like to do. It is equally true that they talk well about what they like, their hobbies.—C. Joyce, 612 Topeka avenue, Topeka, Kansas.

Veteran motorists, demonstrators, repairmen, taxi men and others usually have a fund of odd and humorous experiences in which the automobile figures. To stimulate contributions to such a column, offer small prizes for the best stories offered each week. Such a feature will prove of widespread interest to local readers.—D. F., 171 Jerome street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

From ten to twenty little funny happenings in which local persons are involved are carried daily by the Wabash (Ind.) Plain Dealer under a heading "Town Talk." They make the first column of the front page and cause more comment than any other department of the paper. They are all stories which ordinarily could not make the news page but as little comic features they have proved wonderful smile makers and friend gatherers.—E. W. H., Wabash (Ind.) Plain Dealer.

A woman reporter of one newspaper took dinner with a group of telephone operators in the cafeteria provided by the company for its operators, and during the half hour, picked up more than a score of interesting bits of gossip as well as some good tips on stories.—B. A. T.

"My Code of Living," is the subject of a series of short newspaper articles signed by prominent citizens and published recently by a Colorado paper. The stories appeared daily and enabled the publisher to score a direct hit.—M. M., Denver.

"Soch a Life"

By J. L. LEIBSON

A new comic dialect dialogue without a sting to any race. Weekly doses of laughter in

One Thousand Word Stories

Illustrated by the well known artist

ALBERT LEVERINO

The McClure Newspaper Syndicate
373 Fourth Avenue, New York

The World's Greatest Newspaper Feature Service

Supplying a complete and exclusive daily illustrated feature service to newspapers throughout the United States and in foreign countries.

4 page ready-print color comics.
Write for samples and rates

NEA SERVICE INC.
1200 W. 3RD STREET,
CLEVELAND, OHIO

A DAILY LAUGH IN THE DAILY LIFE OF—

POTASH and PERLMUTTER

MONTAGUE GLASS' famous partners are now in comic strip form—every comic move guided by the author

The Bell Syndicate, Inc.
JOHN N. WHEELER, Pres.
154 Nassau St. New York City

Better Cross-Word Puzzles

Let us prove it by sending a week's service gratis.

Type and answers are matted

The International Syndicate
Baltimore, Md.

How To Play
GOLF
By JOHNNY FARRELL
Famous Teacher of That Game

24 LESSONS
Illustrated

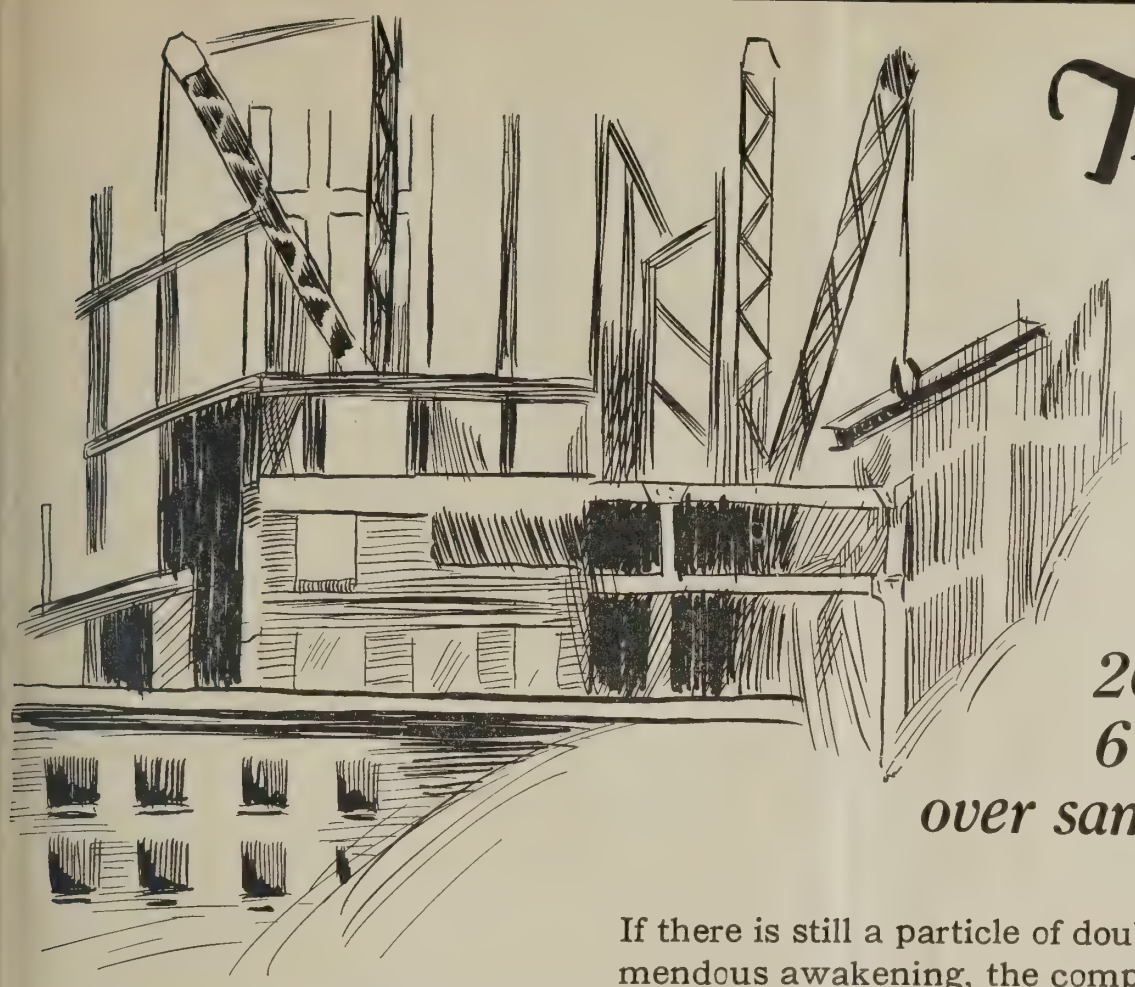
For release daily

KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, Inc.
New York City

BY UNITED PRESS

AROUND THE WORLD AROUND THE CLOCK

UNITED PRESS ASSOCIATIONS
World Building New York



RADIO

PROGRAMS
NEWS NOTES
FEATURES

Used and Praised by More than 200 Newspapers

Send for samples and prices

AUDIO SERVICE
326 West Madison St.
Chicago

They're building in the South!

26% Gain in first 6 Months of 1926 over same period of 1925

If there is still a particle of doubt as to the South's tremendous awakening, the comparative figures showing the gain in building during 1926, over that of last year, should be the most conclusive evidence.

A gain of 26% during the first six months of 1926. Can any other section show such a fine record of activity? Reports from ninety-six cities in the South show that during the first 6 months of this year $288,252,991 in building permits were issued.

Since building construction usually acts as an indicator, these figures prove that for the National Advertiser the South presents the greatest opportunity.

The daily papers listed below will reach the buyers of the Southern Consumer Market. We will gladly send you the details explaining how you can break into this fertile field.

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
ALABAMA
*Birmingham Age-Herald .....(M)	34,994	.09	.09
*Birmingham Age-Herald .....(S)	50,699	.11	.11
*Mobile News-Item .....(E)	11,993	.05	.05
*Mobile Register .....(M)	20,427	.08	.08
*Mobile Register .....(S)	32,096	.10	.10
FLORIDA
†Daytona Beach News..... (ES)	5,731	.04	.04
*Florida Times-Union (M) 49,903.....(S)	59,239	.12(S.15)	.12(S.15)
*Lakeland Ledger .....(E)	5,173	.03	.03
*Miami Herald .....(M)	48,108	.11	.11
*Miami Herald .....(S)	60,006	.12	.12
*Orlando Reporter-Star .....(E)	8,502	.06	.06
*Orlando Sentinel .....(M&S)	10,655	.06	.06
*Pensacola News and Journal .....(E&M)	9,805	.06	.06
†St. Augustine Record .....(E&S)	3,382	.04	.04
†St. Petersburg Independent.....(E)	11,917	.055	.055
*Tampa Times .....(E)	23,325	.08	.08
†Tampa Tribune (M) 34,841.....(S)	53,762	.09(.11S)	.09(.11S)
*West Palm Beach Post.....(M)	12,243	.06	.06
GEORGIA
*Augusta Herald .....(E)	14,246	.05	.05
*Augusta Herald .....(S)	14,547	.05	.05
*Macon Telegraph .....(M)	24,035	.08	.08
*Macon Telegraph .....(S)	24,439	.08	.08
Savannah Morning News (M), 21,015.(S)	22,204	.06(.07S)	.06(.07S)
KENTUCKY
*The Lexington Leader.....(E)	19,640	.06	.06
*The Lexington Leader.....(S)	19,531	.06	.06
Paducah Sun .....(E)	9,255	.04	.04

	Circulation	2,500 Lines	10,000 Lines
NORTH CAROLINA
†Greensboro Daily News.....(M)	27,485	.08	.07
†Greensboro Daily News.....(S)	31,505	.09	.08
*Salisbury Post .....(E)	7,188	.04	.04
†Winston-Salem Journal .....(M)	13,702	.05	.05
†Winston-Salem Journal .....(S)	13,720	.05	.05
*Winston-Salem Sentinel .....(E)	18,259	.07	.07
SOUTH CAROLINA
Columbia State .....(M)	23,663	.07	.07
Columbia State .....(S)	24,838	.07	.07
Greenville News .....(M)	21,704	.075	.07
*Spartanburg Journal .....(E)	4,613	.05	.05
*Spartanburg Herald (M) 6,860.....(S)	9,856
TENNESSEE
Chattanooga Times .....(M)	30,203	.10	.10
Chattanooga Times .....(S)	30,230	.10	.10
*Memphis Commercial Appeal.....(M)	100,934	.18	.18
*Memphis Commercial Appeal.....(S)	129,219	.21	.21
*Nashville Banner .....(E)	54,519	.11	.11
*Nashville Banner .....(S)	56,007	.12	.12
VIRGINIA
*Danville Register and Bee.....(M&E)	14,313	.06	.06
*Danville Bee and Register.....(E&S)	9,065	.09	.07
*Newport News Times-Herald.....(E)	7,968	.05	.05
*Newport News Daily Press.....(S&M)	5,413
*Roanoke Times & World News...(M&E)	25,772	.08	.08
*Roanoke Times .....(S)	16,076	.07	.07
*Staunton News-Leader (M), Leader..(E)	6,855	.035	.035

* A. B. C. Statement, March 31, 1926.
 A. B. C. Statement, September 30, 1925.
† Government Statement, March 31, 1926.

RUKEYSER — and Success

M. S. Rukeyser has blazed a new trail in journalism.

He has discovered and uncovered the human side of the news of commercial enterprise and linked it up with personal, "pocket-book finance."

The proof of his popularity is a response from readers evidenced in 35,000 letters.

M. S. Rukeyser has hammered home a universal message with the brass tacks of practical application.

He discusses getting money and spending money in terms of the actual experience of people of all classes, those who are building successful careers and those who have already achieved success.

He writes of business and domestic budget problems as intimate and personal as the questions answered in the lovelorn column and as important as those passed upon by the banker and the lawyer.

[These are the RUKEYSER features]

Men and Money

There is a wealth of color in the personalities and the institutions that figure in the day's financial news. This "human side" of finance is covered in a half-column daily feature the stories of the "big deals," the life and atmosphere of the financial district. It helps the "new investor" understand the current financial news of the day.

The Business of Getting Ahead

Here is a field wherein Rukeyser is a past master. His successful book "Common Sense of Money and Investments" is evidence. In a half-column he discusses the domestic and business problems revealed in his thousands of letters, touching the worker, housewife, the professional man and the business man, the obstacles and the opportunities in their respective fields.

Makers of America

So interlocked have the interests of this country become that the business leaders of the nation form the most interesting subjects in the current literature of the day. Henry Ford, E. H. Gary, Bernard Baruch, Van Sweringen and a host of others have already spoken to the nation through M. S. Rukeyser. His reputation as an economist assures him a welcome from these men who are guiding American enterprise and industry. A one-column interview with some national figure in the business world will be offered once a week.

Service starts Sept. 15. Wire Reservations for Remaining Territory.

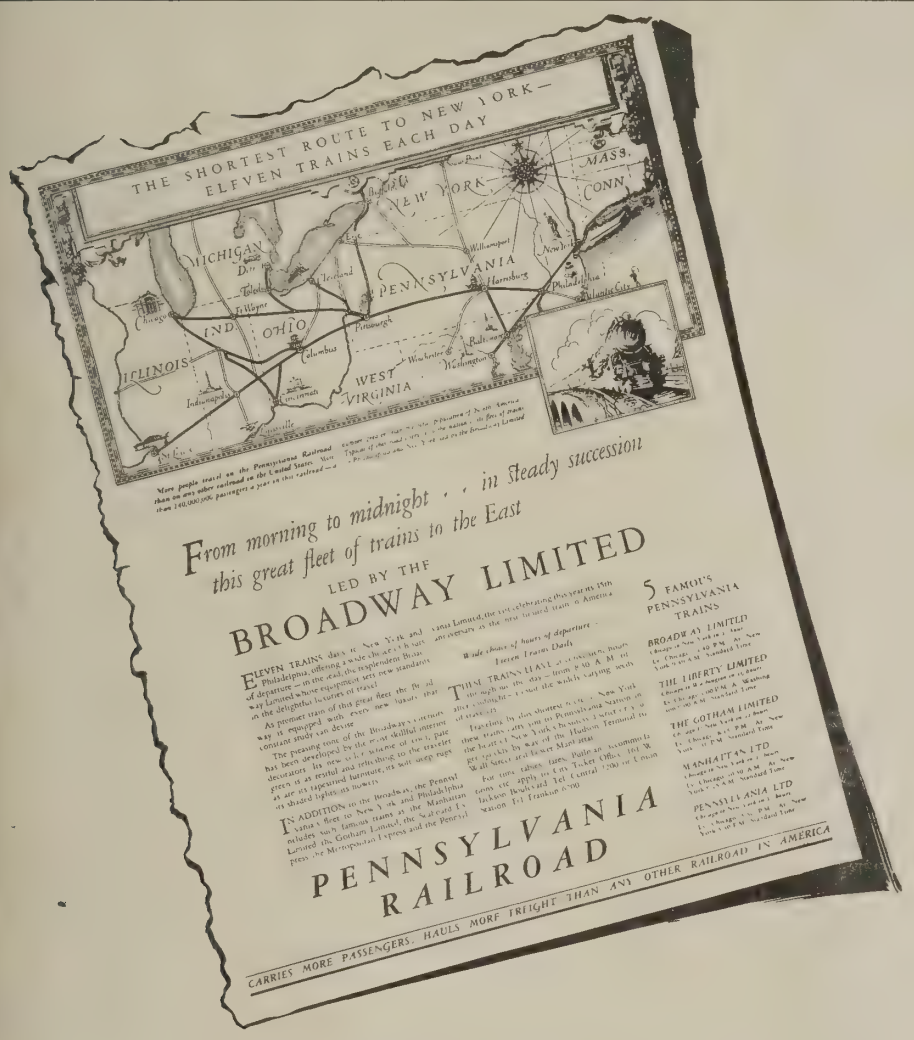
Current News Features
INCORPORATED

520 Star Bldg., Washington, D. C.

THIS ISSUE: ADVERTISERS MARVEL AT IMPROVED NEWSPAPER PRINTING

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

1884 — The Oldest Publishers' and Advertisers' Journal in America — 1926



MEMBER A.B.C.

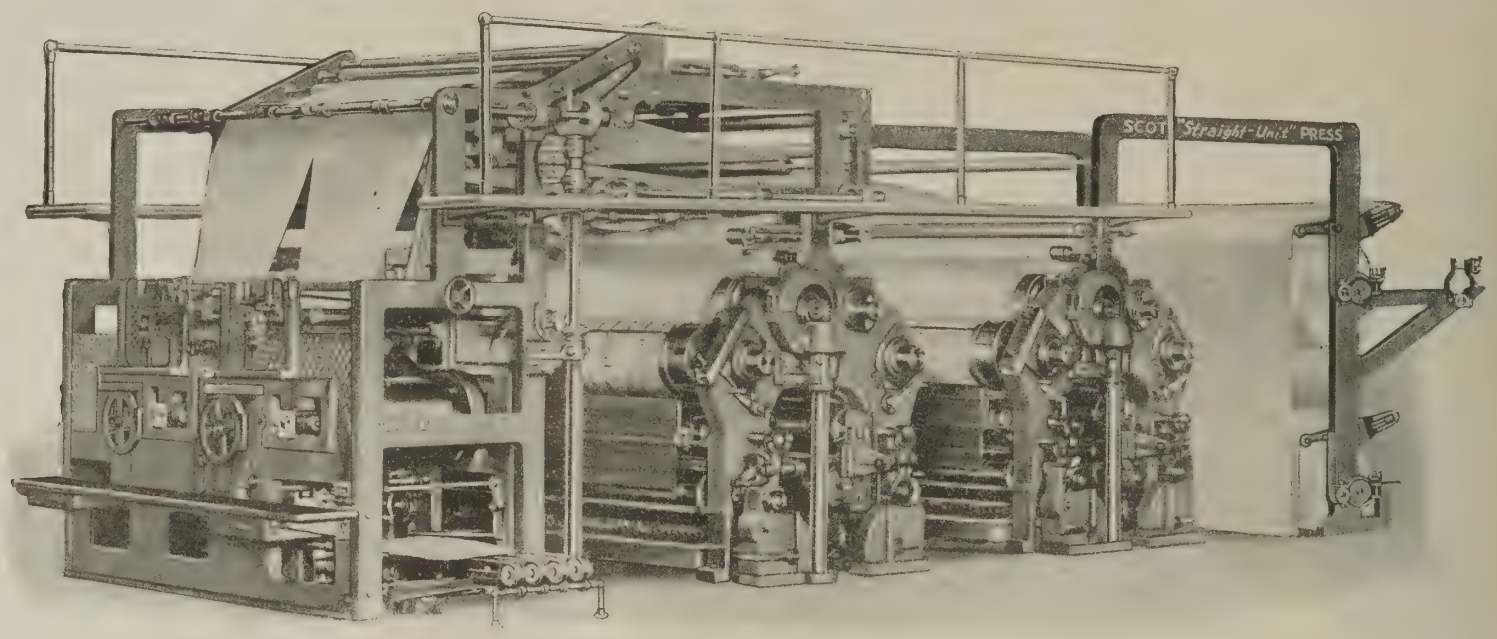
SUITE 1700 TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK
42ND STREET AND BROADWAY.

MEMBER A.B.P.

Original second class entry The Journalist, March 24, 1884; Newspaperdom, March, 1892; The Editor & Publisher, December 7, 1901; The Editor & Publisher and Journalist, October 30, 1909; Advertising, February 7, 1925; Revised entry, Editor & Publisher, May 11, 1916, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. 59. No. 13 | NEW YORK, AUGUST 21, 1926 | By Mail in Advance $4, U. S. A. $4.50, Canada; $5, Foreign | 10c Per Copy

A Great Campaign



THE Chicago Daily News has been chosen to carry the full schedule of the Pennsylvania Railroad advertising now appearing in a selected list of American newspapers. The advertising is placed by the J. Walter Thompson Company.

THE CHICAGO DAILY NEWS

First in Chicago

Advertising Representatives:

NEW YORK	DETROIT	CHICAGO	SAN FRANCISCO
J. B. Woodward	Woodward & Kelly	Woodward & Kelly	C. Geo. Krogness
110 E. 42d St.	Fine Arts Building	360 N. Michigan Ave.	353 First National Bank Bldg.

SCOTT "STRAIGHT-UNIT" QUADRUPLE FLOOR-FED PRESS CONSISTING OF 2 UNITS AND 2 HEAVY DUTY 64-PAGE FOLDERS

"High Speed Collect Runs"

Scott High-Speed Heavy-Duty Folders are built with double size knife cylinders and one and one-half size steel folding cylinders.

These folding cylinders are exceptionally rigid and are carried in large diameter bearings. Their size permits collecting without transfer from one set of pins to another.

It is therefore possible to make collect runs at high speed—and at the same time eliminate the cutting of ribbons.

Folders with smaller knives and having to transfer sheets cannot be run collect at high speeds, particularly on heavy products while Scott Folders run as well collect as straight.

To Speed up Production install Scott High-Speed Heavy Duty Folders with—

Scott

"Multi-Unit" or "Straight-Unit" Presses

Cylinder Speed—400 r. p. m.

WALTER SCOTT & COMPANY

Main Office and Factory - - - Plainfield, New Jersey, U. S. A.
New York Office - - - - 1457 Broadway
Chicago Office - - - 1330 Monadnock Block

Cable Address: WALTSCOTT NEW YORK

"Talking in Millions" . . . . .

¶ There are some men in the world who can "talk in millions" without dealing in flights of fancy.

¶ A few newspapers can talk in terms of millions of lines as easily as in millines. And yet there will always be a certain glamour associated with the word "million."

¶ So you'll pardon us for repeating—

The Baltimore Sun (Morning, Evening and Sunday) gained 1,168,030 agate lines during the first six months of 1926 as compared with the corresponding period of 1925.

¶ You see we feel that no one will take offense at our talking in millions—when we have the actual lineage to back up the "talk." The total Paid Advertising Lineage in the Sun papers for the first six months of 1926 was 18,222,407 lines.

¶ Advertisers like Sunpapers' home carrier delivered circulation. The better they like it the higher the advertising totals mount.

Average Net Paid Circulation for Month of July, 1926

Daily (M. & E.). . . 243,311
Sunday. 187,733

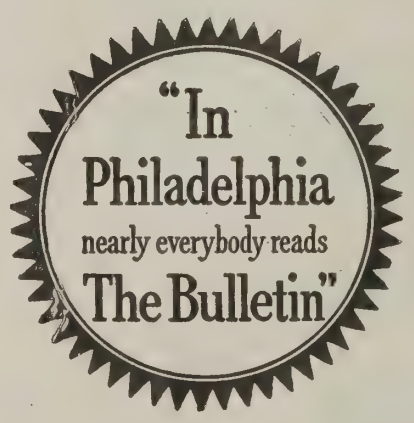
A Gain of 7,665 Daily and 4,279 Sunday Over July, 1925

JOHN B. WOODWARD
Bowery Bank Bldg.,
110 E. 42d St., New York

GUY S. OSBORN
360 N. Michigan Ave., Chicago

C. GEORGE KROGNESS
First National Bank Bldg.
San Francisco

Everything in Baltimore Revolves Around



THE SUN

MORNING EVENING SUNDAY

Baltimoreans Don't Say "Newspaper"—They Say "SUNpaper"

533,169 copies—
*550,000 homes—
Isn't it perfectly plain that

*"In Philadelphia nearly everybody reads
The Bulletin"*

Net paid daily average for six months ending March 31, 1926:

533,169 copies a day

The circulation of The Bulletin is larger than that of any other Philadelphia newspaper, and the third largest in the United States.

The Evening Bulletin.

PHILADELPHIA'S NEWSPAPER

New York . . . . . 247 Park Avenue (Park-Lexington Building)
Chicago . . . . . Verree & Conklin, Inc., 28 East Jackson Boulevard
Detroit . . . A. L. Weaver, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 321 Lafayette Boulevard
San Francisco . . Thomas L. Emory, Verree & Conklin, Inc., 681 Market Street

*There are 550,000 homes in the Philadelphia-Camden retail trading area—third largest market in the United States.

(Copyright 1926, Bulletin Company)

EDITOR & PUBLISHER

Issued every Saturday, forms closing ten P. M. Thursday preceding Publication by The Editor & Publisher Co., J. W. Brown, Publisher; Marlen E. Pew, Editor; Suite 1700 Times Building, 42nd St. at Broadway, New York. Telephone, Bryant 3052-3053-3054-3055-3056. Charter Member Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Vol. 59 | NEW YORK, AUGUST 21, 1926 | No. 13

Vast Improvement In Newspaper Printing Aids Soaring Linage Figures

Advertisers Getting Better Effect with Copy in Daily Media as New Treatments and Facilities Are Devised—Space-Buyers Comment on Cleaner Typography

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

NEWSPAPER advertising linage is climbing to new heights. Furnishing important rungs for the ladder are the improved printing facilities being offered advertisers by newspapers of the land and their auxiliaries.

Intelligent engravers have made great strides in perfecting what they call "indirect cross-grained half-tones," most adaptable to newspaper conditions; many new treatments, mechanically suited to newsprint, have been devised by agencies; Ben Day is being used with effect and mats are being manufactured in a way to produce better results.

Half-tone illustrations that not long ago were mere smudges are, in consequence, now being printed in clear clean fashion, line drawings are being made to "talk" in commanding manner, greater care is being taken in press rooms, and, in general, while there is, of course, still room for improvement, better typography and make-up is everywhere catching the eye of the consuming public and pleasing the present and prospective purchaser of newspaper space.

The case of the Lambert Pharmacal Company of New York and St. Louis, makers of Listerine, is typical and in itself supports the foregoing contention. While Lambert & Feasley, Inc., the New York advertising agency directing the account, declines to discuss detailed figures, it is generally known that expenditures in newspaper space have followed a decided upcurve in the last few years. Gerard B. Lambert, president of the Lambert Pharmacal Company, has told the story in financial advertisements that have appeared in the daily press.

Newspaper copy is being placed in about 150 cities, and Lambert & Feasley, Inc., reported to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week that the printing work has been "excellent, on the whole." Indeed, a great improvement in newspaper printing has been noted by officials of this agency in the last three years.

As all advertisement readers know, the Lambert concern makes frequent use of the half tone in illustrating and in imparting attention to its copy in both newspapers and magazines. Splendid results are now obtainable on newsprint by using "indirect half-tones."

Indirect half-tones have been available to advertisers for the last several years, but their full possibilities were not realized until about two years ago. They are said to be "fool-proof" and particularly adaptable to newspaper printing.

From the original picture, a small copy half-tone is first made with its surface half the size it is eventually going to appear. After this has been completed, a line negative is made from it, and this is marked up to the publication size. The screen is dependent entirely upon publication requirements. For a 55 or 60 screen, the first half-tone would be made with 130 screen.

Many engravers are now furnishing this service to advertisers and the results obtained are said to be most gratifying.

An interesting sidelight on the Listerine experience is the assertion made by agency executives that the best printing results are given by newspapers in cities of about 150,000 population. Heavy circulations often bring messy results, they say.

The Listerine comment on better newspaper printing finds its echo throughout the advertising world.

"American newspapers are showing improvement in their make-up and printing," Edward T. Hall, vice-president of the Ralston Purina Company, St. Louis, Mo., and and president of the Association of National Advertisers, said to EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week. "Some newspapers are outstanding."

Mr. Hall, however, had some constructive criticism to offer together with his comment on improvement.

"The resolution passed by the Association of National Advertisers at their Chicago convention shows that the large national advertisers strongly object to the style of copy and layouts still accepted by most newspapers, printing heavy line borders and heavy block type presenting a cheap appearance," he declared. "They believe that high class advertisers suffer thereby.

"I personally believe newspapers would profit materially by raising their advertising standards. Supervision of the Ralston newspaper campaign shows a large increase over last year, but I hate to see our copy run on some pages."

A possible reason for Mr. Hall's complaint was suggested by Sturges Dorrance, president of Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., New York advertising agency. Mr. Dorrance came to the agency field after a thorough experience as a practical printer. At one time he was superintendent of the J. Horace McFarland Company of Harrisburg, Pa., then printers of Country Life.

"My chief criticism of newspaper reproduction is the lack of care apparently taken in handling make-up," he said. "A little more judgment and discretion is needed in newspaper press rooms. Frequently an advertisement requiring a great deal of ink is placed next to one needing only a small amount. The ink fountains are adjusted for the heavy advertisement. In consequence the dainty advertisement is over-inked and the plate is filled and blurred so that it looks as though it were printed with apple butter. All this could be obviated by a careful make-up man.

"But there is no doubt there has been considerable improvement in newspaper printing. A campaign we conducted recently for the Royal Typewriter Company is illustrative. It was based on a series of photographs and was hard to print. Not long ago we would not have attempted to place such copy in the newspapers, but it came out in beautiful shape. Of the copy placed in between 80 and 90 cities only one-half of one per cent were not well printed.

"Good press work is not now confined to the larger papers. Small towns are now giving much better service than they did a few years ago.

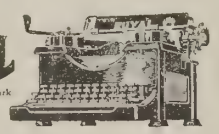
"Dainty lacy copy, once hard to reproduce, is now being printed very effectively by the newspapers."

The Royal copy referred to by Mr. Dorrance featured a series of photographs of girl heads with the caption "Your Stenographer." To get good results from the half-tones, what the agency terms the "blow-up and highlight" system was used. That is, the original picture was enlarged and retouched to give it contrasting highlights and then reduced when engraved.

Another advertisement treated in this manner is the current copy promoting McClure's Magazine. It pictures a beautiful girl gracefully poised in the lower leafy branches of a tree. The main headline, "Romance," is well illustrated by the half-tone. The poor printing of a few years ago would probably have botched the job.

Dorrance, Sullivan & Co., has also developed a new treatment for making cigar copy effective when it is printed by newspapers. It is appearing in the advertisements for "Kelly's Bouquet," a brand manufactured by the American Cigar Company.

Many other agencies are likewise de-



Appealing pictorial effects, such as shown in the Listerine copy above, are easily obtained in American newspapers today.

YOUR STENOGRAPHER

YOUR stenographer will find the Easy Writing Royal Typewriter so smooth in operation and light of touch that she can do her best work quickly and easily.

The Easy Writing ROYAL Trade Mark TYPEWRITER

"Compare the Work"

ROYAL TYPEWRITER COMPANY, Inc., 316 Broadway, New York
Branches and Agencies the World Over

Portraits Now Reproduce Clearly on Newsprint Stock—Pleasing Advertisers Wanting to "Own Their Page" —as "Your Stenographer" Will Tell You vising treatments that lend themselves to the exigencies of newspaper printing. Heavy black displays and smudgy pages are rapidly fading out of the newspaper picture. The clean-up is coming from both the outside and the inside. Criticism is still necessary and is readily given.

Guy Gayler Clark, art director of Street & Finney, New York advertising agency, while declaring himself in hearty accord with the efforts being made by newspapers to get rid of the "boiler-plate type" of heavy display advertisements and the gradual abandonment of reverse-plate displays of white lettering against black, stands opposed to what he insists are "the arbitrary regulations of some newspapers." Mr. Clark is a keen student of typography. He watches the newspapers carefully and has noted a decided improvement in newspaper printing.

"The attempt on the part of newspapers to clean up their pages both by fiat and by improving their mechanical facilities is most gratifying," he said. "But some newspapers, I think, take too much liberty with the copy furnished them. They frequently stipple the blacks in a way that is very embarrassing to the advertiser and not always acceptable.

"Most advertisers believe that the most essential quality of an advertisement is that it should stick out from its surroundings. White space or black units are the only weapons at the disposal of an advertising agency as far as newspaper copy is concerned. And it seems more difficult to persuade a client to pay for white space than to keep him happy by giving him juicy blacks.

"Of the newspapers of the country, the finest example of good typography and press work is I believe furnished by the Christian Science Monitor. I chose this paper because of the quality of its half-tone reproductions on newsprint stock and because of the beautiful type dress created for it by Will Bradley.

"Greater co-operation in improving mechanical operations on the part of newspapers would give greater interest to the advertiser and inspiration to the artist to produce more beautiful drawings for newspaper reproduction. Complaints are still heard on every side by artists whose work has been butchered by sloppy reproduction.

"I think also there is opportunity for the development of a more catholic taste in popular standards of typography. There is an inordinate amount of reverence for the old masters of type, and the average typographic expert is inclined to be somewhat pedantic. A less bigoted and narrow point of view would make for greater originality in type designs and would afford opportunity for the development of a type style peculiarly appropriate for modern requirements—a style that need not necessarily be a slavish imitation of classic roman letters."

But Mr. Clark reiterated that regardless of his disappointment with general typography he had noted improvements in newspaper printing that could not be denied. There are others, many others, who agree. Statements made this week by a few of them follow:

Herbert Metz, advertising manager, Graybar Electric Company, placing copy in 66 newspapers in 58 cities: "In the larger cities there has been a decided improvement in newspaper printing. One thing I am still critical about is the make-up of many papers. It seems as though the majority of make-up men do not care how their pages are going to look. They simply slam in advertisements and text to fill up space."

C. C. Green, president of the C. C. Green Company, New York advertising agency, and also president of the Advertising Club of New York: "The improvement in newspaper printing is to be seen right under our noses in New York. The leaders in this city are being followed elsewhere."

C. W. Holland, production manager, Cecil Barreto & Cecil, New York advertising agency: "Most decidedly there has been an improvement in newspaper printing, which is proving most interesting and profitable to the newspaper advertiser."

J. M. Cleary, sales manager, Studebaker Corporation of America:—"My impression is that during recent years newspaper headlines have become more sensational, news makeup has been made more attractive by the increasing use of pictures, maps, cartoons, etc. Advertising typography is cleaner and advertising makeup has been improved by the growing use of the pyramid style. Some cities seem exempt from the general upward trend."

"U. S. PAPERS BEST IN THE WORLD"

By W. H. STANLEY

(Advertising Director, Wm. Wrigley, Jr., Company)

The writer believes that there are no newspapers in the world that compare with make-up, typography or paper used by newspaper publishers in this country.

Aggressive nations are copying America and aggressive merchants the world over are imitating the American style of advertising.

The old-fashioned newspaper that will not put in illustrations and insists on using old-fashioned type in the whole make-up of his newspaper is very rare nowadays.

We have nothing but words of commendation for the great improvement that has taken place in American newspaperdom within the last few years.

Using the "Blow-Up and Highlight System" of Treating Portraits, Agencies Now Are Able to Illustrate Newspaper Copy with Dainty Pictures Like the Romantic Scene Above

NEWS AGENCIES ASKI TO KEEP OFF THE AIR

New York Publishers Appeal to P Associations to Refrain fron Broadcasting News from Local Radio Stations

News gathering agencies have b asked to refrain from broadcasting a thing but news of transcendent imp tance by a committee of the Publish Association of New York City, hea by Fred A. Walker, managing di tor of the New York Telegram.

Kent Cooper, general manager of Associated Press, acquiesced in the quest to the extent of instructing s members to furnish broadcasting stati in New York only with news of "trani national and international importan such as "the lilness of the Preside or "an election".

The United Press will likewise "g erally conform" to the publishers' p according to Karl A. Bickel, president

"The United Press was first to co-op ate with newspapers in the radio pr lem," Mr. Bickel said, "permitting th to broadcast news considered advanta ous by the newspaper. This co-operat will be continued.

"We have informed clients that if t desire to broadcast the coming Wo Series games they may do so upon m ing proper applications."

Both the Associated Press and United Press broadcast Gertrude Eder successful swim, considering the event international importance. William Fagan, radio editor of the United Pr is continuing to broadcast baseball sco nightly from WEAF. The A. P. giving its scores to WJZ.

Most of the New York dailies using the radio. Bill Waters of Telegram staff talks sports over W every evening; the New York Su "Sun's Rays" and "Commercial Dige are broadcast by WRNY; the New Y American provides WJZ with news iter the New York Mirror makes use WHN.

International News Service does broadcast according to George C. Sh editor and manager.

BERKOWITZ TO NEW YORK

Mortimer Berkowitz, who for the p three years has been an executive of Hearst newspapers in Boston, is to associated with the American Wee the color magazine section of all Hearst newspapers, at headquarters New York, beginning early in Septemb according to an announcement made Boston this week.

SHERMAN LEAVES SPRINGFIEL

M. S. Sherman for many years edi of the Springfield (Mass.) Union, t week announced his resignation to beco effective September 25. Mr. Shern would neither affirm nor deny report t he planned to become associated in executive capacity with another import New England newspaper. He has c tinued as editor of the Union since purchase by the Republican owners 1 December.

SAJOUS IN NEW YORK

Edward T. Sajous, formerly of staffs of the Santa Barbara (Cal.) Da News and the Santa Barbara Morn Press and staff correspondent for International News Service and Angeles Times, has joined the Avond Press, Inc., New York, as editor. Sajous has also been elected vice-pr ident of the Universal Utilities Compa of which the Avondale Press is a su sidiary unit.

NEW FINNISH DAILY

Amerikan Suomalianen or the Finn American, a new daily newspaper in Finnish language, appeared in Fitchbu Mass., Monday, Aug. 16, with Geo Sjoblom of Brooklyn, N. Y., as edi and Simon W. Nelson of Fitchburg bu ness manager.

CASES WHERE PAPERS HAVE PAID LIBEL BILLS

ınd Some Other Actions That Never Came to Trial—Carefulness Alone Will Keep Damage Collectors from Publishers' Doorsteps—Reporter's Fake Cost Daily $4,000

By PHILIP SCHUYLER

Newspaper carelessness and speed have cost publishers dearly on more than one occasion. A few big libel bills paid in full are listed in this the 23rd article obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER, stripping the libel law of legal verbiage.

N expense impossible to budget is a newspaper's libel bill. The surest ay to keep the clamoring damage col-ctor off the publisher's doorstep is to ake sure of a careful, painstaking, and ntlemanly editorial and news staff. nd, of course, malice must be kept out print.

Not all libel bills paid by newspapers e treasured and talked about even in ofessional circles. But the examina-on of legal records will show long lists payments ranging from $25 to $125,-00. Then, besides court verdicts, there e innumerable cases of settlements out court to be added to counsel fees, orth paying, but none the less costly.

A New York court has returned a erdict of $125,000 against a newspaper. he plaintiff was a state senator. The ewspaper charged he had stayed away om an important meeting in Albany, nplying that he had been paid to do so.

Every cent of $50,000 was once paid ut by a St. Louis paper for libel. Add that amount the expenses of dragging defense through court and a pretty bill drawn up, long enough to put a rinkle into almost any publisher's orehead.

A writer for the St. Louis paper mpooned in slang dialect the libel laintiff, who at one time had been a rominent public officer and at the time f publication was the president of a rge financial institution. The plaintiff as charged with making affidavit that e contributed a sum to a campaign und, which sum had in fact been given y another whose name was sought to e concealed, that he sold legislation for ampaign contributions.

Previously the newspaper had charged ie plaintiff with the embezzlement of he sum, and the latter with two friends ad called on the editor stating that the harge was false and the editor had re-racted. An apology was printed, which, owever, was merely a repetition of the harge.

No attempt was made by the news-aper defendant to prove the truth of he charge when the action came to trial. The first verdict rendered was for 75,000 exemplary and $75,000 actual damages. Judgment was later affirmed n condition of a remittitur of $50,000 exemplary and $50,000 actual damages, eaving the total of $50,000 to be paid.

Out-and-out reportorial faking recently cost a New York newspaper $4,000 in a case that went to the highest state court. The reporter was assigned to get a photograph of a girl who was figuring in the news. For some reason known only to himself he simply went to the office of a photographer friend and went through the files, picking at random the picture of a woman. Evidently he didn't wish to fall down on his assignment and thought no one would be the wiser. They were old pictures from which he made his choice, and he may have thought the person it represented would never see the paper in which it was reproduced.

He was fooled and so was his paper. The libel suit was speedily filed and a long war waged through the courts.

The newspaper had this faking reporter arrested on a charge of furnishing false information for publication, a crime in New York state. Bail was set at $1,000. By appealing to the fraternal instinct of a number of reporter friends this sum was raised. Soon after the reporter jumped his bail, and disappeared.

In another case a professor whose name wasn't even mentioned in the alleged libellous publication recovered a verdict of $20,000 from a Detroit paper. An appeal was taken, but judgment was affirmed without costs. The question of excessive damages, for some reason, was not raised in the supreme court.

The article in question was headed "Debauchery and Ruin—The Sad Story of a Crazed Husband and Broken Family—the Wreck of a Canadian Home Charged to a Michigan Professor."

The news broke when a Canadian suddenly went insane and hurled himself in front of a moving train near Buffalo, N. Y. Tracing the reason for his act, a newspaper reporter pieced together a domestic triangle story from letters found in the man's possession. The resulting story implied that the man's wife had been ensnared by a rascally physician's affection and could not resist the temptation of making him annual visits. The physician, who was also a professor at the University of Michigan at Ann Arbor, it was said, had cured the woman of cancer.

The libellous editorial comment concluded as follows:

"If professors of this description are to be kept at the head of important institutions the usefulness of hospitals, etc., will soon be gone. And what certainty and security will there be for any man's wife or daughter's character being left untarnished after once visiting them for treatment of any disease whatever? It is to be hoped that the matter will be looked into and if the professor is guilty, we will have great pleasure in making his name public."

Many other payments could be cited. The majority of them are unnecessary payments that served no really useful purpose, and were caused by avoidable carelessness.

On the other hand extreme fear of libel should never clog the keys of any American newspaper writer. Rather a respect for law and truth should keep his writing machine running steadily and smoothly and safely in the cause of public information and enlightenment.

Harold L. Cross, attorney for and secretary of the New York Herald Tribune is authority for the assertion that any number of libel suits are brought in this country that are never finished. The experience of many a publisher bears this out and justifies the remark frequently made by newspaper men that the law of libel is often perverted to serve as a gag, usually unsuccessful, to stop journalistic efforts at performing service for the public at large to the detriment of a minority. Sometimes pleadings are filed by men and women simply for the purpose of pilfering the treasuries of prosperous papers.

It is a cheap business to file a libel suit. It is quite another matter to see it through the courts.

Politicians running for office and criticized by a daily have on a great many occasions filed suits against a newspaper simply as a threat or as a means of branding published truths as lies to retain the confidence of the voters.

Suits are filed and never pressed. An outstanding case of this sort is the action brought by former mayor John Hylan of New York against the New York World, reviewed previousliy in this series. They are common throughout the country.

Out in Arkansas the newspaper men call them "political libel," because the suit or threatened suit is usually brought with no intention of prosecution.

Allen Tilden, political writer of the Little Rock (Ark.) Democrat, a short time ago described two cases of this order that had occurred recently in his city. A local newspaper printed a story to the effect that witnesses before a legislative investigating committee had told of seeing liquor in the office of a certain state official. The story was printed during the height of a campaign and the official brought suit for $50,000, alleging that the statement was untrue and that it had injured his chances for re-election. He was re-elected and the suit was never prosecuted.

In the other case two local papers carried stories to the effect that the attorney general had ruled that a deputy sheriff could not also accept fees as a deputy constable, and that the opinion had been asked by the state comptroller and the request of officials.

No names were mentioned in the story, but the sheriff of the county came to the capital the next day and threatened suit on the ground that the stories had been published with the malicious intention of defeating him for re-election. He won also in the election and the suit was never brought.

Mr. Cross listed four distinct classes of libel suits of the sort that never come to trial and cost a newspaper worry rather than money. They are:

1—The "gag" suit, brought in an effort to silence a newspaper without any intention of bringing it to trial.

2—The suit brought in a moment of wrath that later cools down.

3—The suit that frightens the plaintiff by the thought of the cost of trial, likely to prove more than the verdict obtainable.

4—The "true suit," in which the plaintiff fears the newspaper will prove the libel.

SAME IDEA METEOR STRIKES TWO SAN FRANCISCO CARTOONISTS

THURSDAY—San Francisco Examiner Editorial Page—AUGUST 12, 1926

For everyone that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved.—JOHN 3:20

To Keep the San Francisco Bay District The Commercial Center of the West. The Examiner Advocates

Harbor improvements and tideland reclamation

A 48-hour train schedule between San Francisco and Chicago

Immediate completion of the Feather River project

Every San Franciscan Is Now His Own Appraiser

LOOK OUT BELOW!

THE EARTH

NORMAN HAPGOOD
Echoes of the Institute

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY By S. E. Kiser

Editorial Page San Francisco Chronicle August 12, 1926

Why Do You Suppose Ohio's Voters Renominated Willis?

NEVER TOUCHED US!

Zangwill's Posthumous Article on Immortality

Air Commerce Will Go Where Ports Are

We Have Met Enemy And They Are Ours

The People's Safety Valve

Shortridge Acts Promptly

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

Astronomers said the world entered a shooting star belt last week, and this news set similar thought stars to twinkling in the minds of Jack Lustig, San Francisco Examiner cartoonist and Bronskup cartoonist for the San Francisco Chronicle. On Aug. 12, the above cartoons appeared in the Examiner and Chronicle respectively, differing slightly in title and treatment but bearing a marked general resemblance to each other.

JULY LINAGE IN BIG CITIES KEEPS UPWARD COURSE

NEWSPAPER linage for 131 newspapers in 30 large cities listed by the New York Evening Post Statistical Department for July totalled 104,613,704 lines, a gain of 6,355,614 lines over last July, or about 7 percent. The comparative totals follow:

SUMMARY OF ADVERTISING BY CITIES

30 cities listed	27 show gain	3 show loss
131 papers listed	103 show gain	23 show loss
	5 no comparison

	1926	1925
†New York	10,908,848	10,466,714	442,134 Gain
Chicago	6,128,904	5,725,524	403,380 Gain
Philadelphia	5,526,833	5,316,323	210,510 Gain
Detroit	4,611,572	4,393,970	217,602 Gain
Cleveland	3,260,250	3,308,925	48,675 Loss
St. Louis	3,388,120	3,133,660	254,460 Gain
Boston	5,188,306	4,910,796	277,510 Gain
Baltimore	3,981,258	3,593,853	387,405 Gain
Los Angeles	6,265,147	5,978,784	286,363 Gain
†Buffalo	2,726,149	2,925,057	198,908 Loss
‡San Francisco	4,350,132	4,023,612	326,520 Gain
Milwaukee	2,499,950	2,302,895	197,055 Gain
Washington	4,113,736	3,565,690	548,046 Gain
Cincinnati	2,988,900	2,649,000	339,900 Gain
New Orleans	3,561,339	3,133,904	427,435 Gain
Minneapolis	2,539,001	2,351,611	187,390 Gain
Seattle	2,657,536	2,502,206	155,330 Gain
Indianapolis	2,746,095	2,675,445	70,650 Gain
Denver	1,872,976	2,006,816	133,840 Loss
Providence	2,408,366	2,344,979	63,387 Gain
Columbus	3,196,423	2,833,597	362,826 Gain
Louisville	3,011,252	2,582,481	428,771 Gain
St. Paul	2,130,898	1,917,412	213,486 Gain
†Oakland	2,145,906	2,116,632	29,274 Gain
Omaha	1,544,809	1,507,884	36,925 Gain
Birmingham	2,445,282	2,168,796	276,486 Gain
Richmond	1,775,788	1,730,904	44,884 Gain
Dayton	2,480,898	2,406,642	74,256 Gain
Houston	2,483,348	2,103,892	379,456 Gain
†Des Moines	1,675,682	1,580,086	95,596 Gain
Totals	104,613,704	98,258,090	6,355,614 Gain

†Note reference under individual newspaper linage of these cities.

NEW YORK

	1926	1925
American	853,246	887,186	33,940 Loss
Herald Tribune	1,141,582	1,002,686	138,896 Gain
Times	1,839,506	1,756,832	82,674 Gain
World	1,200,534	1,170,454	30,080 Gain
*Mirror (Tab.)	228,500	262,148	33,648 Loss
News (Tab.)	469,534	406,110	63,424 Gain
*Evening Graphic	239,066	†148,668	90,398 Gain
*Evening Journal	801,094	837,390	36,296 Loss
*Evening Post	307,850	281,358	26,492 Gain
*Evening World	527,260	537,752	10,492 Loss
*Sun	925,662	858,650	67,012 Gain
*Telegram	401,336	440,736	39,400 Loss
Brooklyn Eagle	1,157,092	1,120,024	37,068 Gain
Brooklyn Times	450,456	348,890	101,566 Gain
Standard Union	366,130	407,830	41,700 Loss
Totals	10,908,848	10,466,714	442,134 Gain

†Sunday Graphic discontinued Sept. 1, 1925; 51,794 lines for four Sundays included.

CHICAGO

	1926	1925
Herald-Examiner	848,985	799,413	49,572 Gain
Tribune	2,135,685	2,045,943	89,742 Gain
*American	921,381	812,403	108,978 Gain
*Daily News	1,482,414	1,390,791	91,623 Gain
*Journal	340,677	299,355	41,322 Gain
*Post	399,762	377,619	22,143 Gain
Totals	6,128,904	5,725,524	403,380 Gain

PHILADELPHIA

	1926	1925
Inquirer	1,437,900	1,419,900	18,000 Gain
Ledger	1,025,123	970,942	54,181 Gain
Record	677,700	620,400	57,300 Gain
*Bulletin	1,415,100	1,341,900	73,200 Gain
*Evening Ledger	971,010	963,181	7,829 Gain
Totals	5,526,833	5,316,323	210,510 Gain

DETROIT

	1926	1925
Free Press	1,219,680	1,177,302	42,378 Gain
News	2,410,366	2,331,588	78,778 Gain
Times	981,526	885,080	96,446 Gain
Totals	4,611,572	4,393,970	217,602 Gain

CLEVELAND

	1926	1925
News Leader	883,575	926,325	42,750 Loss
Plain Dealer	1,284,900	1,343,175	58,275 Loss
*Press	1,091,775	1,039,425	52,350 Gain
Totals	3,260,250	3,308,925	48,675 Loss

ST. LOUIS

	1926	1925
Globe-Democrat	1,002,000	920,100	81,900 Gain
Post-Dispatch	1,605,520	1,471,960	133,560 Gain
Times	301,200	257,700	43,500 Gain
*Star	479,400	483,900	4,500 Loss
Totals	3,388,120	3,133,660	254,460 Gain

BOSTON

	1926	1925
Advertiser	355,277	304,302	50,975 Gain
Globe	1,090,222	1,028,264	61,958 Gain
Herald	1,040,894	957,547	83,347 Gain
Post	794,824	779,870	14,954 Gain
*American	347,251	307,926	39,325 Gain
*Telegram	211,361	247,222	35,861 Loss
*Transcript	511,540	464,949	46,591 Gain
*Traveler	836,937	820,716	16,221 Gain
Totals	5,188,306	4,910,796	277,510 Gain

*No Sunday edition.

BALTIMORE

	1926	1925
American	484,241	377,046	107,195 Gain
Sun	1,220,984	1,243,037	22,053 Loss
*Evening Sun	1,298,938	1,205,169	93,769 Gain
*News	635,045	547,569	87,476 Gain
*Post	342,050	221,032	121,018 Gain
Totals	3,981,258	3,593,853	387,405 Gain

LOS ANGELES

	1926	1925
Examiner	1,695,239	1,644,342	50,897 Gain
News	180,082	205,324	25,242 Loss
Times	1,940,316	1,860,460	79,856 Gain
*Express	717,724	673,232	44,492 Gain
*Herald	1,340,122	1,214,038	126,084 Gain
*Record	391,664	381,388	10,276 Gain
Totals	6,265,147	5,978,784	286,363 Gain

WASHINGTON

	1926	1925
Herald	524,422	365,160	159,262 Gain
Post	794,161	707,696	86,465 Gain
Star	1,979,373	1,767,751	211,622 Gain
*Evening News	203,595	138,438	65,157 Gain
*Evening Times	612,185	586,645	25,540 Gain
Totals	4,113,736	3,565,690	548,046 Gain

CINCINNATI

	1926	1925
Enquirer	987,000	870,600	116,400 Gain
Tribune	262,800	242,100	20,700 Gain
*Post	728,400	615,900	112,500 Gain
*Times-Star	1,010,700	920,400	90,300 Gain
Totals	2,988,900	2,649,000	339,900 Gain

NEW ORLEANS

	1926	1925
Item	807,020	727,484	79,536 Gain
States	707,065	603,177	103,888 Gain
Times-Picayune	1,542,076	1,343,933	198,143 Gain
*Tribune	505,178	459,310	45,868 Gain
Totals	3,561,339	3,133,904	427,435 Gain

MINNEAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Journal	1,079,021	960,299	118,722 Gain
Tribune	1,063,575	1,015,386	48,189 Gain
*Star	396,405	375,926	20,479 Gain
Totals	2,539,001	2,351,611	187,390 Gain

BUFFALO

	1926	1925
Courier	706,921	490,849	216,072 Gain
Express	.....	410,429	.....
Post	.....	102,043	.....
Times	906,476	865,194	41,282 Gain
*News	1,112,752	949,995	162,757 Gain
*Star	.....	106,547	.....
Totals	2,726,149	2,925,057	198,908 Loss

Post discontinued February, 1926.
Express combined with Courier June 14, 1926.
Star combined with Courier June 14, 1926.

MILWAUKEE

	1926	1925
Journal	1,305,139	1,161,581	143,558 Gain
S. T. & A. M. Sentinel	486,140	494,103	7,963 Loss
*Leader	197,386	188,554	8,832 Gain
*Wis. News	511,285	458,657	52,628 Gain
Totals	2,499,950	2,302,895	197,055 Gain

SEATTLE

	1926	1925
Post-Intelligencer	802,270	660,296	141,974 Gain
Times	1,176,588	1,164,478	12,110 Gain
*Star	547,918	553,644	5,726 Loss
*Union-Record	130,760	123,788	6,972 Gain
Totals	2,657,536	2,502,206	155,330 Gain

INDIANAPOLIS

	1926	1925
Star	922,893	943,170	20,277 Loss
*News	1,398,414	1,282,767	115,647 Gain
*Times	424,788	449,508	24,720 Loss
Totals	2,746,095	2,675,445	70,650 Gain

DENVER

	1926	1925
News	458,528	548,016	89,488 Loss
Post	1,047,368	1,032,136	15,232 Gain
*Times	367,080	426,664	59,584 Loss
Totals	1,872,976	2,006,816	133,840 Loss

PROVIDENCE

	1926	1925
Journal	747,066	708,080	38,986 Gain
Tribune	345,596	332,754	12,842 Gain
*Bulletin	982,621	955,565	27,056 Gain
*News	333,083	348,580	15,497 Loss
Totals	2,408,366	2,344,979	63,387 Gain

COLUMBUS, OHIO

	1926	1925
Dispatch	1,633,707	1,537,357	96,350 Gain
Journal	629,133	541,737	87,396 Gain
*Citizen	933,583	754,503	179,080 Gain
Totals	3,196,423	2,833,597	362,826 Gain

ST. PAUL

	1926	1925
News	654,038	574,140	79,898 Gain
Pioneer Press	737,688	652,344	85,344 Gain
*Dispatch	739,172	690,928	48,244 Gain
Totals	2,130,898	1,917,412	213,486 Gain

SAN FRANCISCO

	1926	1925
Bulletin	539,462	528,528	10,934 G
Chronicle	875,196	836,598	38,598 G
Examiner	1,395,096	1,335,290	59,806 G
*Call	869,106	656,488	212,618 G
*Herald	.....	123,186	.....
*News	671,272	543,522	127,750 G
Totals	4,350,132	4,023,612	326,520 G

Herald discontinued May 5, 1926.

LOUISVILLE

	1926	1925
Courier-Journal	1,022,123	930,846	91,277 G
Herald-Post	561,299	492,923	68,376 G
*Post	494,119	346,926	147,193 G
*Times	933,711	811,786	121,925 G
Totals	3,011,252	2,582,481	428,771 G

OAKLAND

	1926	1925
Tribune	1,402,184	1,358,952	43,232 G
*Post-Inquirer	743,722	673,932	69,790 G
*Record	.....	83,748	.....
Totals	2,145,906	2,116,632	29,274 G

Record discontinued October 24, 1925.

OMAHA

	1926	1925
Bee	368,578	368,207	371 G
News	316,260	340,165	23,905 L
World-Herald	859,971	799,512	60,459 G
Totals	1,544,809	1,507,884	36,925 G

BIRMINGHAM

	1926	1925
Age-Herald	620,830	579,936	40,894 Ga
News	1,325,394	1,194,368	131,026 Ga
*Post	499,058	394,492	104,566 Ga
Totals	2,445,282	2,168,796	276,486 Ga

RICHMOND

	1926	1925
Times-Dispatch	778,470	826,294	47,824 Lo
*News-Leader	997,318	904,610	92,708 Ga
Totals	1,775,788	1,730,904	44,884 Ga

DAYTON

	1926	1925
Journal	520,548	563,850	43,302 Lo
News	1,185,254	1,124,116	61,138 Ga
*Herald	775,096	718,676	56,420 Ga
Totals	2,480,898	2,406,642	74,256 Ga

HOUSTON

	1926	1925
Chronicle	1,115,100	979,188	135,912 Ga
Post-Dispatch	852,432	677,544	174,888 Ga
*Press	515,816	447,160	68,656 Ga
Totals	2,483,348	2,103,892	379,456 Ga

DES MOINES

	1926	1925
Capital	420,863	‡493,629	72,766 Los
Register	547,973	478,146	69,827 Ga
*Tribune	706,846	608,311	98,535 Ga
Totals	1,675,682	1,580,086	95,596 Ga

‡Sunday Capital discontinued Feb. 21, 1926.

SUPPLEMENTARY JULY LINAGE FIGURES

Note—These figures were obtained by EDITOR & PUBLISHER from the newspapers listed.

ATLANTA

	1926	1925
Constitution	804,860	672,854	132,006 Gain
Journal	1,063,048	922,922	140,126 Gain
Totals	1,867,908	1,595,776	272,132 Gain

KANSAS CITY

	1926	1925
Journal	744,292	686,752	57,540 Gain
*Post	295,350	311,648	15,298 Loss
Star	1,282,618	1,192,232	90,386 Gain
*Times	787,809	714,668	73,141 Gain
Totals	3,110,079	2,905,300	204,779 Gain

MEMPHIS

	1926	1925
Commercial Appeal	1,206,324	1,009,778	196,546 Gain
News-Scimitar	580,090	492,478	87,612 Gain
*Press	576,261	440,790	135,471 Gain
Totals	2,362,675	1,943,046	419,629 Gain

PITTSBURGH

	1926	1925
*Chronicle-Telegraph	815,836	793,380	17,456 Gain
Gazette Times	741,720	609,612	132,108 Gain
Press	1,692,306	1,613,038	79,268 Gain
Post	749,896	667,492	82,404 Gain
*Sun	612,080	656,040	43,960 Loss
Totals	4,611,838	4,339,562	272,276 Gain

PORTLAND

	1926	1925
*News	440,216	439,572	644 Gain
Oregonian	1,059,016	1,047,886	11,130 Gain
Oregon Journal	917,098	883,582	23,516 Gain
Totals	2,416,330	2,371,040	45,290 Gain

*No Sunday edition.

"50-WORD TECHNIQUE" MAKES SMALL ADS SELL

Rothschild's Terse, Forceful Copy Praised by Agents and Newspaper Men—Aims to Condense a Paragraph Into Two or Three Words—Writes Suggestions Rather Than Sentences

By HAMMOND EDWARD FRANKLIN

THE Fifty-Word Technique is the shortest distance etween tell and sell.
t reduces ongwindedness o pith—ccelerates action—
roadens the budget
nd drives your point
ome nd not over!
People see many dvertisements ut they ead his kind!

The newest in copy is "the fifty-word echnique." It has leaped into wide rogue in recent months especially for small-space newspaper advertising. Newspapers themselves have adopted it for their own promotion advertising.

J. H. Rothschild

"It isn't how much we say, that sells goods through advertising or over the counter but how forceful we can make a few words," George E. Harris, president of the Dauchy Company advertising agency commented. "I believe that in striking the chord of brevity and uniformity in the amount of copy, the Fifty-word Technique comes very near to the correct idea in the making of advertisements."

The newspaper view of the fifty-word technique" was sounded by Harvey R. Young, advertising director of the Columbus (O.) Dispatch, as follows:

"We have too many small advertisers who use space haphazardly. Their only excuse for doing it at all is their competitive advertisers. If they would take the same pains in planning, preparing and displaying their copy as they do in buying their merchandise, there would be more small advertisers and more who could report profitable results. The fifty-word technique is a demonstration of what can be accomplished in the preparation and displaying of smaller-sized spaces."

The value of striking small copy in a large national advertising campaign was emphasized by William H. Rankin, president, William H. Rankin Company advertising agency. He put it this way:

"Apart from the advantage of short advertisements to merchandisers with a small advertising appropriation, the style can be adapted also to the use of larger advertisers. More and more such firms are coming to realize the necessity of constantly keeping their names before the public by means of small space frequently used, in addition to their large-space campaigns.

"The condensation necessary in these small advertisements is the supreme test of a copywriter's skill. A tersely worded piece of copy—even though the space is small—will have the most telling effect.

The agency that can get the maximum of sales from a 56-line advertisement proves its ability to handle with the utmost success the most difficult campaign.

Among others who recently have gone on record as approving this "multum in parvo" technique are Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Sun; J. G. Tritsch of the Toledo (O.) News-Bee; A. H. Mason of the New York News; C. M. Marvin, advertising manager, Cleveland News; F. G. Caskey, Washington (D. C.) Herald and Times, and Lee D. Hanson of the Cramer-Krasselt Company, Milwaukee.

Morning newspapers have increased 26 per cent in six years, evening papers 23 per cent, and Sunday papers 53 per cent, in number of copies issued. Further, bulk has increased. Hence, the advertiser has the problem of getting attention and then getting his copy read and remembered.

The "fountain head" of the new "fifty-word technique" is a New York copy writer, James H. Rothschild of 33 Fifth avenue, New York City, with whom is associated Nat C. Wildman. For a period of 12 years Mr. Rothschild wrote the longer type of advertisements almost exclusively. During the last several years, after introducing the technique, he has devoted 75 per cent of his time to copy written in 50 words or less in a definite plan. With one exception, Mr. Rothschild is reputed to do the largest free lance copy business in the U. S.

It was while cogitating upon some new approach to present the American Weekly of the Hearst publications that this member of the younger generation of New York copy creators hit upon the "fifty-word technique." This form enabled the Weekly to make a single striking point in each advertisement with the result that inquiries began to come in right away.

What is this "technique"? How may it be used?

Page Mr. Rothschild and let him do the talking, but please don't limit him to fifty words this time:

"The fifty-word technique is the process of putting a paragraph of pith into two or three words.

"The first impression many advertising men get is that the fifty-word technique is a system of breaking an otherwise usual sentence into short lines for easier consumption. Reading an advertisement in the technique will convince you that this isn't so. Rather, it is a process of writing in suggestions rather than sentences.

"Instead of having to limit your advertisements to what you want your readers to know, it permits you to start him on the path of what you want him to think. Fontaine Fox laid the success of his cartoons to the fact that the little figures looking at the reader brought the reader into the picture. The fifty-word technique does the same thing. Instead of talking at the reader, it talks with him.

"An advertiser was in the throes of marketing a product that was destined to revolutionize manufacturing in his particular industry. The first three paragraphs, devoted to telling of the astonishing simplicity of his discovery, contained 310 words! The fifty-word technique told the same story—as follows—in 15.

Great comfort!
Great convenience
Great idea
Great heavens—
Why didn't someone think of it before!

"This probably explains better than anything else what I mean by calling the technique a system for writing in suggestions—and for letting the reader complete the picture!

"Today, a matter of three and a half years actually since the first use of the fifty-word technique, I have written in the technique for 107 advertisers on three continents, in four countries and in 22 cities of the United States. In the last six months, I have collected advertisements simulating the technique, written by others, for 66 different products run in newspapers in Canada, England and the United States."

Yes, this form has its limitations. In the case of retail women's wear, it has fallen down, perhaps because women missed the gushy descriptions and fancy art work, and it did not work out in the proprietary medicine field. Nor has it pulled when used alone through the mails. But for any and all service businesses, for all low-cost-per-unit items, and for institutions and businesses to whom keeping before the public and building good will are important, this has possibilities. This kind of advertising can be used in as little as 50 lines.

It has opened the way to institutions which had never advertised before.

"It is my belief," Mr. Rothschild stated the other day, "that the tremendous and costly advertiser turnover is due to the fact that many advertisers—even large concerns—can't afford to spend sufficient money to run large advertisements daily, and large advertisements run at intervals of a week or even two or three weeks are unable to deliver, sometimes, at least against the advertising of those concerns that do use large space daily or several times a week. This makes for skepticism about advertising and dissatisfaction with advertising affiliations. Result—continual change of agency relations with slight benefit or betterment.

"The fifty-word technique enables an advertiser to use smaller space, to tell the same story in a style that is even easier to read and to keep his story in the papers daily and continually. As a leading agency says, so aptly: 'Keeping everlastingly at it brings success.' This technique, therefore, is responsible for smaller advertising units (which doesn't sit so well with some publishers) but for more of them, which suits most publishers a lot better. And when linage pulls, regardless of size, it means continued sale of space for the newspapers."

Now for an instance or two of experiences with this form of advertising:

A business that had advertised two years ago had spent $46,000 and hadn't cashed in on its appropriation to any extent. A year and a half ago it started all over again with copy in the fifty-word technique. At the end of five weeks of running on an every other day schedule in three New York newspapers, the business, according to its owners, showed an 11 per cent increase.

Within eight months, the advertiser had invested $51,000 in advertising. In ten months last year, he spent $89,000.

A Gotham night club, has by reason of these small advertisements of fifty words or less, been able to sell "parking space on the steps leading to the dance floor of his restaurant" as late as four A. M. in midsummer.

That's the Club Alabam. This club has received comments on its advertising from as far away as China.

A clothier with a chain of 22 stores, spending an average of $595,000 a year in newspapers exclusively, invariably discontinued advertising in June and didn't resume until the middle of September. He decided to try out fifty-word technique advertisements because, at most, they wouldn't cost him much.

They not only kept his store in the public eye but, as a result of the advertisement first published, 100 lines double column, run in 22 cities, 18 stores reported 216 sales on the garment advertised, traceable to the advertisement. Four stores reported no results whatsoever. Eighteen store managers requested the copy be kept up because of the comment created.

If there is any problem, above all others, which every newspaper advertising executive grapples with daily, it is how to help advertisers get more out of small space. The fifty-word technique, although not a panacea for all advertising ills, has possibilities.

Three examples of the "Fifty Word Technique" in newspaper copy, showing various effects obtainable. The ads are terse, personal and typographically attractive.

MR. BARRON FINDS PUBLISHERS RESISTANT TO HIS ADVERTISING METHODS

"WHAT," asks a daily newspaper editor, "is the opinion of EDITOR & PUBLISHER of the 2,700 newspapers in the United States which, according to the enclosed letter from C. W. Barron of New York, accepted his proposition to run a paid advertisement of 23 inches provided a free advertisement of 37 inches was also run?"

The question has been thoroughly answered in similar instances by EDITOR & PUBLISHER in the past. The 2,700 publishers alleged by Mr. Barron to have printed the "reader" have a wholly mistaken sense of newspaper values—and they are a small minority of the nation's press. Apparently Mr. Barron ascribes the non-acceptance of his proposal by more than 80 per cent of the daily and weekly newspapers of the country to the fear of publishers that they would have to set in their own shops the type for the 37-inch digest of his magazine article. The lure which he adroitly holds out to the recalcitrant 80 per cent is a matrix of the article, to be run at the publisher's convenience, to be followed in a subsequent issue by reproduction of the 23-inch advertisement, for which Mr. Barron proposes to pay card rates, less the agency commission to be paid to Doremus & Co., of which he is president.

Mr. Barron in his recent voluminous correspondence with EDITOR & PUBLISHER has stressed the news interest he personally found in the achievement of Galli-Curci in mastering the writings of Swedenborg, and a reprint of part of that correspondence, stressing the news thought, is one of the enclosures of his "follow-up" letter. Otherwise, no direct appeal to the news sense of the publisher or editor of a newspaper is made.

The proposal is that publishers who print the reader can print the advertising and pay Mr. Barron commission on the latter. The fourth and fifth paragraphs of the letter reproduced on this page tell in a few words Mr. Barron's estimate of the current newspaper practices.

One newspaper, which did not accept either of Mr. Barron's bids, comments that its rate for an advertisement of this kind would be 70 cents per inch, which on a 23-inch advertisement would have amounted to $16.10. Instead of 23 inches this publisher notes, he would have been compelled to run 60 inches, which would have been charged against the office on the publisher's books. Thus the revenue from the advertising would have been at the rate of 26.8 cents per inch, or 15.2 cents less than the scheduled rate for advertisers using 5,000 lines or more a year.

Other advertisers request newspapers to publish free favorable "readers" concerning their product or service. Mr. Barron, apparently, does not stress the "favorable" element—any mention of Mr. Barron and his article on Mme. Galli-Curci's marvelous mind seems to entitle the publisher to the advertising. A San Pedro publisher whose letter appears on another page saw no reason to give columns of his space to Mr. Barron's article or a digest of it, but he did find a hint for a hot-weather editorial. He got the ad as soon as Mr. Barron's attention fell on the mention.

EDITOR & PUBLISHER has stated its position with regard to Mr. Barron at length in these columns, besides reproducing Mr. Barron's lengthy disquisitions on editorial ethics in general and his ideas on Swedenborg in particular. Possibly Mr. Barron feels gratified at this generous treatment. Possibly he considers any mention critical or not of his literary achievement in the Dearborn Independent creates the atmosphere needed for proper reception of his advertising message.

At any rate, the editor in charge of this issue discovered on make-up day that Mr. Barron had decided that EDITOR PUBLISHER is a worthy medium for paid announcement of Swedenbor works. It appears on page 34.

Other elements in Mr. Barron's rec follow-up campaign to bring into the reluctant 80 per cent are reproduc below.

Whatever Mr. Barron may think of idea that news interest must be arous (at the publisher's expense and withc consulting the editor) before advertisi can be sensibly used, he finds acquiescen among only a small minority of prese day newspaper men.

"KITCHENER BETRAYED"

Press agentry's close alliance with faking was demonstrated again in news from England Aug. 19 that Frank Power's "Kitchener's Coffin" hoax was a stunt designed to furnish publicity for a moving picture called "How Kitchener Was Betrayed."

The disclosure was made by Singleton Gates, a British newspaper man, who in a signed story in the London Daily Sketch bluntly asserted it was he who invented the whole story of finding Lord Kitchener's body in Norway for the sake of free publicity.

DOW, JONES & CO.
PUBLISHERS
THE WALL STREET JOURNAL
FINANCIAL NEWS BULLETINS
ELECTRIC PAGE NEWS TICKER

44 BROAD ST., NEW YORK, N. Y.

July 30, 1926

TO THE PUBLISHER:

Under date of June 19th I offered you a 23 inch advertisement entitled "The Most Wonderful Book in the World" to be run in your paper at regular rate less agency discount, also a reprint of an article entitled "Galli-Curci Swayed by Seer of Sweden".

More than 2700 publishers accepted this offer, but I can find no record of an acceptance from you. With the original offering was a reprint of the Galli-Curci article as it appeared in the Dearborn Independent, also a proof of a two-column condensation of the same story.

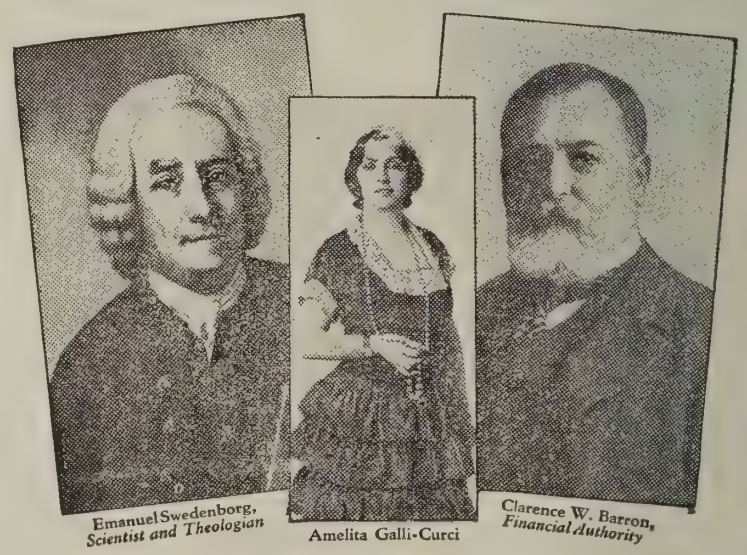
Some publishers were under the impression that they were asked to set and print the complete article. Possibly this is why you did not accept the offer.

My offer is - I will furnish you a mat or plate (check preference on card) of the 23 inch ad "The Most Wonderful Book in the World", also, of the two-column story entitled "Galli-Curci Swayed by Seer of Sweden".

The reader to be run in your columns at your convenience and in a subsequent issue you may publish the advertisement for which you will be paid at your regular rate less agency discount.

The attached postcard properly filled in and returned will cover the ad insertion, plate or mat of which, together with the news story will be sent to you.

This and any further advertising should be billed to Doremus & Company, 44 Broad Street, New York, of which agency I am president. Information as to the responsibility of Doremus & Company can be obtained from the Western Newspaper Union, to whom I refer with their permission.



Please return the card promptly as the schedule for insertion of this advertisement will be closed on August tenth.

Yours very truly,

C. W. Barron

PLEASE READ THE ATTACHED FOLDER "NEWS VS. ADVERTISING".

Galli-Curci Swayed by the Seer of Sweden

Emanuel Swedenborg, Scientist and Theologian — Amelita Galli-Curci — Clarence W. Barron, Financial Authority

Prima Donna Gives Wonderful Interpretation of the Writings of Emanuel Swedenborg—

HENRY FORD'S Dearborn Independent publishes a remarkable article on Galli Curci and Emanuel Swedenborg, by Clarence W. Barron of the Wall Street Journal, the world famous financial authority.

Mr. Barron declares that Galli-Curci has the most wonderful brain he has ever met or heard of in a woman, although she is much more "a true woman with a life and soul of affection for all that is ennobling and uplifting in the family, and in color, form, and music."

Mr. Barron is chairman of the Rotch Trustees, who acting under the will of Lydia S. Rotch of New Bedford, Mass., began in 1872 a modern of the Theological Works Swedenborg wrote

Then answer to yourself the number of years that ought to be required to master these thirty-two volumes."

Mean More Than Any Other Books

Mr. Barron, still credulous, continued his correspondence with Madame Galli-Curci for some months. He learned that soon after she lost her dear mother she had sought the Writings of Swedenborg in a desire to know more about the other world whence her mother had gone. She spent the entire summer vacation studying Swedenborg's Works, and declared: "They have meant, and mean more to me than anything else I have ever read."

When Galli-Curci returned from California Mr. Barron motored up into the Catskills to her beautiful Italian palace and in an

With the letter reproduced at the left, Mr. Barron seeks to induce 80 per cent of the nation's publishers to print the "reader" shown in part at the right in order to create a "properly receptive atmosphere" for his advertising, which appears in paid space on page 34 of this issue, Mr. Barron apparently feeling that the "requisite atmosphere" had been created by recent criticism of his methods in these columns.

WALL NAMED PRESIDENT OF VIRGINIA PRESS

Farmville Herald Publisher Succeeds W. S. Copeland—Group Plans to Employ Full-Time Secretary —Gov. Byrd Speaks

J. Barrye Wall, of the Farmville Herald, was elected president of the Virginia Press Association at the thirty-eighth annual convention at Pulaski, Friday and Saturday of last week. W. S. Copeland, Newport News Daily Press, was renominated, but declined to serve a second term as head of the organization.

J. Barrye Wall

C. L. Weymouth, Ashland Herald - Progress, was re-elected secretary, and George O. Greene, Clifton Forge Review. was re-elected treasurer.

Under a change in the by-laws adopted by the convention, officers were renominated on the floor of the meeting instead of in committee.

A committee headed by Mr. Wall, the new president, submitted a plan whereby it is hoped to raise sufficient funds for the employment of a full-time secretary of the association. The place for the 1927 meeting was left to the executive committee, but the convention recommended that the invitation of Dr. J. A. C. Chandler, president of the College of William and Mary, at Williamsburg, be accepted and a winter session be held at the institution as suggested in Dr. Chandler's invitation.

At a meeting of Virginia members of the Associated Press, plans for improving the news service to daily papers in the state were discussed, along the lines of expansion of service to all papers.

Major Powell Glass, of the Lynchburg News, was re-elected state chairman of the Virginia Associated Press Association, and F. J. McDermott, Richmond correspondent, secretary. This association will meet again with the Virginia Press Association at its coming winter conclave.

One of Virginia's most valuable assets in the state's new era of progress is its newspapers, Governor Harry Flood Byrd, publisher of the Winchester Star told the Virginia Press Association at the first session of the two-day meeting. The Governor praised the work of Virginia newspapers and the high standard they have reached.

Picturing a new era for the state through its ambitious plans for industrial development, the chief executive declared that much of the credit for Virginia's new position was due to its newspapers. The progressive policy, high standard of journalism and co-operation of the Virginia press had, he said, brought before the public the needs of the state and co-operated to bring about advancement.

Newspaper men from all sections of Virginia attended the two-day session.

The report of the association's legislative committee, which showed that not one of four bills advocated by the association before the General Assembly ever reached the floor of that body, was submitted. All were tabled in committee, it was declared. The convention went on record to press these matters at the next meeting of the legislature.

The Governor was followed by Norman Call, vice-president of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, who spoke on the "Relationship Between the Railroad and the Press."

"The day has long since passed," Mr. Call said, "when newspaper reporters, seeking legitimate railroad news, ofttimes were treated with discourtesy, occasionally as an interloper and at times actually threatened with bodily harm. My own experience with reporters and editors alike is that they are remarkably accurate even in their handling of technical subjects and they invariably 'tote fair.' I have never known a newspaper man to violate a confidence. But it devolves also upon the railroad official to deal with them in a spirit of complete frankness and understanding."

The newspaper men were guests of Dr. John Preston McConnell at an entertainment at the Radford State Teachers' College.

HENRI JOINS S. F. BULLETIN

Former Classified Manager of Chronicle Takes Similar Position

Robert Henri, formerly classified advertising manager of the San Francisco Chronicle, has been appointed manager of the classified advertising department of the San Francisco Bulletin.

For a number of years Mr. Henri has been classified advertising counselor for various Pacific Coast newspapers. Starting fourteen years ago as a reporter for the City Press Bureau of Chicago he later joined the staff of the Newspaper Enterprise Association and served in Chicago and Cleveland. During the war he was a government train tracer in the Service of Supplies Department.

Henri is a member of the Association of Classified Advertising Managers. He was formerly classified advertising manager of the San Francisco Call and the Los Angeles Record, and also organized and managed the classified department of the Fresno Bee.

INNOVATION ON K. C. POST

A new theatrical page, conducted by "Ace" has been inaugurated by the Kansas City Post. The page, an innovation in Kansas City, is entitled "Right Off the Reel and Across the Footlights."

SALT LAKE DESERET NEWS NOW PRINTING FROM NEW $250,000 PLANT

THE Deseret News, established June 15, 1850 at a time when Salt Lake City, pioneer settlement of the Rocky Mountain territory, was fourteen or fifteen hundred miles from the nearest Eastern civilization and upwards of a thousand miles from such civilization as the West Coast had to offer, has just erected a large new home facing on Richards street, near its old location, which will accommodate the entire plant.

The building is of concrete and steel and as fireproof as modern building science could make it. Assistant General Manager James M. Kirkham and the architect spent several weeks in the large cities of the East gathering ideas for the new structure. The inside woodwork is of gray black stained oak with furniture to match. The floors are all designed to carry 250 pounds per foot live load. The completed building has cost about $250,000.

There are four floors and a basement and the building is an "L" shaped structure with 98 feet on Richards street and 142 feet deep, at its greatest depth. The basement is devoted to job department stock, bindery supplies, book papers, in one section, and in the other to newsprint. The first floor contains the newspaper presses, mailing room, carriers' room, circulation room, shipping room and shipping dock, and the job department's business offices. The second floor contains the business offices, editorial and advertising departments, office of the Utah Farmer, news composition and stereotyping departments. The third is devoted to the big bindery and the fourth is occupied by the job department.

The name "Deseret News" has nothing to do with the fact that the paper was born in a desert, as is generally supposed. "Deseret" means "busy bee" and is from the book of Mormon, a book given to the world by Joseph Smith, founder of Mormonism and claiming to be a religious history of the American Continent, as the Bible is a religious history of the East. The News was founded under the auspices of Brigham Young, famous Mormon leader and first governor of Utah, and is still owned by the Church.

The publisher of the Deseret News has always been, though sometimes only nominally, the president of the Mormon Church. Today it is headed by Heber J. Grant, whose brother, B. F. Grant, a newspaper man by training, is the general manager. James M. Kirkham is assistant general manager. Harold Goff, a product of the News, is the editor. Amos Jenkins is advertising manager; Ralph Whitney, circulation manager; Dave Ockey auditor; and June Harrow is in charge of news composition and stereotyping departments.

21 GRADUATED FROM N. Y. PRINTING SCHOOL

Three Complete First Photo-engraving Course at Empire School Conducted by N. Y. State Publishers Association—Kellogg Presents Diplomas

With assurances of the worthiness of their trade and the promising future of their profession, 21 students were graduated Saturday, Aug. 14, from the Empire State School of Printing and the Empire State School of Engraving. While this was the eighth semi-annual commencement of the printing school, it signified the termination of only the first term for the engraving division.

Commencement speaking and awarding of diplomas followed a luncheon in the Bank Restaurant. In the absence of Frank E. Gannett of Rochester, president of the New York State Publishers Association, John W. Baker of Ithaca, chairman of the educational committee of that association, presided.

Because of the plan followed in permitting students to enter and to leave each month, not all of the graduates were present at commencement. Several were kept in other towns by their new positions. Those to whom diplomas were awarded were:

In course No. 2—Harvey A. Alexander, Warren C. Anderson, Charles E. Backus, Raymond R. Baker, Lewis J. Baum, John R. Bathrick, Charles Carter, W. Arthur Daniels, Philip Del Negro, Kenneth Hallam, Peter Murphy, Leland Northrop, Leroy L. Parshall, Frederic E. Simons, William Vasteno, Wallace A. Wood.

Special students in Linotype-Intertype operation and mechanism—Walter Grose and Thomas Hinchey.

In photo-engraving—George Kalamjian, Thomas E. Ryan, William Troy.

Mr. Baker, in introducing the first speaker, predicted greater changes in the printing industry during the next 10 years than have occurred in the past, and admonished the new recruits to take advantage of those changes.

John F. Rolfe, managing editor of the Corning Evening Leader, was heard on the subject of "The Employers' Points of View."

"The publisher is more interested in your thought life than in your material and practical ability," he told the graduate printers. "The pay-envelope means no more than that it takes 30 years to grow a useful man."

"The Printer's Equipment" was the topic of Edward Amherst Ott, dean of the School of Chautauqua and Lyceum Arts at the Ithaca Conservatory of Music. His first advice was "Keep in condition." Next: "You must have a talent of values, and that is a thing which you in the printing industry have had more opportunity to learn than most of us. Simply apply to life the things you have learned in type.

"Have respect for your calling. Everything that pertains to printing is a high, dignified activity. Publishing is the highest form of transportation the world knows. It means the transportation of ideas from brain to brain.

"Printers are dealers in words, the most subtle things in the world . . . The newspaper office in the smallest town should be the center from which idealism goes out to the whole community.

At the close of the program, the diplomas were presented by Ross W. Kellogg, director of the schools. He summed up briefly the progress which has been made in this unique enterprise since the last commencement, and also touched on the plans for the American Newspaper Institute to be located in Ithaca.

A. B. BEDELL TRANSFERRED

Alfred B. Bedell, for several years a representative with the New England office of the Mergenthaler Linotype Company, has been appointed representative for central and northern New Jersey.

A. B. C. RATE CARD SERVICE OPTIONAL, CLAGUE TELLS PUBLISHERS

Newspaper Men Commenting on Proposal, Approve Main Idea, But Oppose Any Attempt to Standardize Time of Rate Changes

COMMENTS upon the proposal by the Audit Bureau of Circulations that publishers' rate cards be printed on the back page of semi-annual statements of circulation by its members among newspapers, magazines, farm papers, and business papers continued to reach EDITOR & PUBLISHER this week.

Taken generally, these comments by publishers voice approval of the Bureau's publication of their rate cards, but the Bureau's suggestion in its original announcement of the plan that eventually rate changes might be synchronized with the semi-annual statements as a rule meets dissent.

Stanley Clague, managing director of the Bureau, reiterated to EDITOR & PUBLISHER that "it is entirely optional with the publisher as to whether he shall or shall not use the space allocated for this purpose."

"Although the closing date is not until Sept. 15," Mr. Clague contiued, "we have already received more than 400 responses and have had only six communications in opposition to the new plan. Publishers of smaller publications are particularly enthusiastic about this plan because it enables them to show in one document a complete story concerning circulations and rates. The matter was under consideration for several months by the board of directors and the final decision was unanimous."

Opinions expressed by publishers and other newspaper members of the Bureau during the past week follow:

Col. Robert Ewing, publisher New Orleans Daily States, said:

"The Audit Bureau of Circulations was organized in the interest of both advertisers and honest publishers with a view of creating a more accurate and dependable standard of circulation. The Audit Bureau has unquestionably improved former conditions, but even its strongest advocates know that much yet remains to be done to clean up circulation exaggeration, to put it mildly. Reproduction of rate cards with the publishers' statements and the suggestion that rate changes be made semi-annually was never contemplated by its founders and is entirely foreign to the purposes of the Audit Bureau. I hardly think publishers will ever submit to dictation in this branch of their business."

Edgar T. Bell, business manager of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times, said:

"We can see no objection to the Audit Bureau of Circulations making a publisher's advertising rate card a part of the publisher's circulation report. It also seems to me that this would enable space-buyers to have more information on one sheet or one form than they now have.

"We would, however, oppose any efforts of the Audit Bureau of Circulations to name a time when rates should be changed, for that is the publisher's private business which I cannot see concerns the A. B. C. in the least. Conditions are liable to arise at any time which would make it necessary for a publisher to change his rates immediately. The Audit Bureau of Circulations should realize that it could not get publishers generally to agree to any such arrangement. We certainly would not agree to it. We would, however, have no objection to making our rate card a part of our circulation report."

J. S. Mims, general manager of the Tampa (Fla.) Tribune, said:

"The proposed plan of the Audit Bureau of Circulations to include complete advertising rate cards in all newspaper periodical statements is admirable so long as the Bureau does not attempt to dictate to the publisher or deprive him of his rights to make his rate card at such intervals as he may choose."

W. J. Hofmann, advertising director of the Portland Oregonian, said:

"We do not look upon the inclusion in the Audit Bureu's circulation reports of the rate cards as calling for objection. We rather look upon the idea as a good one because advertisers and agency men want the rate card information when they are interested in the subject of circulation."

Sidney D. Long, business manager of the Wichita Eagle:

"The proposal to include the reproduction of rate cards with semi-annual publishers' statements and the suggestion that rate changes be made semi-annually only is not in keeping with the true object of the Bureau.

"The purpose of the Audit Bureau of Circulations is auditing the circulation figures of its publisher members and distributing them to all of its members, to the end that honest and standardized circulation figures may be available.

"Its organization is constructed on this plan and with this object in view.

"Any dictatorial order as to when the publisher members should issue their rate cards or change their rates would definitely lead to the Bureau's stepping out of its correct jurisdiction as an Audit Bureau. The rates for which the publisher sells his space is an entirely different department of the newspaper business. It is not directly connected with the auditing of circulation figures.

"The ideals of the Bureau as an audit institution have been high and have been maintained. Now to assume prerogatives entirely outside of the duties of an audit association would detract from its real job and endanger the very existence of the Bureau."

John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh (N. C.) Times, said:

"It is a pleasure to answer your wire requesting my opinion about the proposal of the Audit Bureau of Circulations to include advertising rates with their regular circulation reports. I am heartily in favor of the plan to include advertising rates along with circulation reports of A.B.C. members.

"Any newspaper with a suitable schedule of rates should have nothing to fear about the publication of its rates in comparison with other publications. Of course, if there is an 'inside rate' there would be objections on account of some publishers to having their regular rates broadcasted throughout the country.

"A.B.C. reports on circulation have become the standard authority. A.B.C. rates on advertising likewise could become standard and the great volumes of unnecessary rate books and frequent reports, which are sometimes sold at exorbitant prices, would be dispensed with."

DAILY LIMITS "QUOTES"

Patterson Wants Substance of Speeches for Toledo Blade

Toledo Blade reporters have been instructed to use direct quotation only in exceptional cases in speech-reporting. The instruction to the Blade city staff was issued by Grove Patterson, executive editor of the Blade, the day after Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press called the attention of the Institute of Politics at Williamstown to the newspaper as power for international peace and for the spread of public welfare. Mr. Patterson attached a copy of the Associated Press report of Mr. Cooper's address as reporting of the correct kind.

Mr. Patterson instructed the reporters to give, in their own best style the substance of a man's speech, striving to set forth his idea as exactly as possible.

An occasional quoted sentence will be permitted when the reporter is absolutely sure that he is writing the speaker's exact words.

Mr. Patterson aims to eliminate the use of direct quotation from the Blade except in instances when the reporter has in hand the manuscript of the speech.

CRITICIZES CORRESPONDENTS

Chicago Ministers Says Mexican Religious Situation Mishandled

A severe attack on the work of correspondents in covering the Mexican religious situation was launched this week by Lacy Simms, pastor of the Spanish mission of the Presbyterian board of church extension of Chicago, in an interview with a Chicago correspondent, which was published in Chicago newspapers. Mr. Simms is in Mexico as a member of an interdenominational "goodwill commission" for educational and religious work.

He asserted that American correspondents there "gather grains of information and weave them into a tissue of exaggeration." Mr. Simms added that he and his companions after their return to the United States would engage in a campaign of truth telling about Mexico.

JOINS 100,000 GROUP

The South Bend (Ind.) Tribune has been made a member of the 100,000 Group of American Cities, Inc. Walter A. Strong, publisher of the Chicago Daily News is president of the group.

MEXICANS ARREST U. S NEWS PHOTOGRAPHER

Harry Steiger, Los Angeles Manager o P. & A. Photos, Inc., Was Jailed Three Days and His Camera and Plates Taken

Harry Steiger, manager in Los Angeles for Pacific and Atlantic Photos Inc., was jailed in Alaya, Mexico, for taking pictures of the religious strife in that country. His camera and many plates were confiscated.

The American photographer obtained his freedom Aug. 10, reaching the United States at Deming, N. M., two days later. He arrived back in Los Angeles Aug. 13.

An interpreter, retained by the American cameraman in Mexico City was also jailed, but Steiger gained his release and brought him across the border. Steiger reported to headquarters office he still had numerous pictures depicting strife.

DOUGLAS IN LONG BEACH

W. E. Douglas, who resigned as classified advertising manager of the Long Beach (Cal.) Press four years ago to manage the same department on the Washington (D. C.) Post, has returned to California, and is now managing the classified department of the Long Beach (Cal.) Press-Telegram. Previous to his connection with the Long Beach Press, Mr. Douglas was connected with the Kansas City (Mo.) Star and later with the Dallas (Tex.) News, and then with the Portland (Ore.) Oregonian.

Freight Trains Steam into Jacksonville with loads greater than at any other time in the history of the state. . .

Building and road construction materials are daily arriving in solid trainloads. *Movement of these commodities at this time of the year have never been equalled. Sufficient evidence that development is going forward at a greater pace than ever before.

Tell your advertising story to this prosperous country through the columns of the state's leading newspaper. There is no substitute for circulation.

The Florida Times-Union

JACKSONVILLE

*Statement issued by the Jacksonville Traffic Bureau

THE PITTSBURGH PRESS, Daily, has 33,254 more net paid circulation in the city of Pittsburgh than both other evening newspapers combined, and the SUNDAY PRESS has 22,673 more net paid circulation in Pittsburgh than both other Sunday newspapers combined!

The Pittsburgh Press

A Scripps-Howard Newspaper

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

MADISON CAPITAL TIMES LOSES FIGHT AGAINST COURT SECRECY

Judge Upholds Legality of Star Chamber Hearing—Dissolves Injunction Preventing Daily's Appeal to Supreme Court

THE Madison (Wis.) Capital Times has lost its fight against secrecy in court proceedings and against the right of a judge to prohibit a newspaper from printing court transactions.

Judge A. C. Hoppmann of the Dane county circuit court, against whom the Capital Times directed its legal battle, handed down a decision Friday, Aug. 13, that leaves this newspaper no opportunity to carry its fight to the supreme court of Wisconsin.

The secret proceedings in the court chamber of Judge A. C. Hoppmann held to investigate charges made by the Capital Times during the trial of the slayer of a local policeman, were held to be justified in the legal opinion of Judge Hoppmann and the demand of the Capital Times for a transcript of the testimony at this secret hearing was denied.

While the injunction against the Capital Times prohibiting it from publishing anything that took place at the secret (John Doe) hearing was dissolved by Judge Hoppmann on the ground that the exigencies that compelled the injunction at the time of the murder trial are over, yet the Capital Times by gaining the dissolution won but a technical victory.

If Judge Hoppmann had refused to vacate the injunction, the Capital Times, through its attorneys would have been able to appeal to the supreme court and obtain a decision on the extent to which courts can conduct proceedings in secret. The suit of the paper against Judge Hoppmann was begun several months ago.

Passages in the decision, of particular interest to newspaper men, are the following:

"It is the primary duty of every court to see to it that justice is duly administered in all matters coming before it. . . . It may of its own motion 'clean house' and defend its institution against any misconduct of others which interferes with the due performance of its duty. This power is necessary for its very preservation."

"The interest on the part of a newspaper to publish a certain news item and the desire of the public to read it must give way when it interferes with the due administration of justice."

"John Doe proceedings have always been, and now are conducted behind closed doors and no information regarding such testimony taken is given to the public in order that the character and reputation of innocent persons might not be subjected to public disgrace by mere vile rumors and that if it should be disclosed that a crime had been committed the guilty persons might be apprehended before they flee from justice."

The request of the Capital Times for a transcript of the testimony taken at the secret hearing was refused on the ground that the hearing was not an "action," under the provisions of the Wisconsin statutes which held that petitioners for evidence in "court actions" must be provided with transcripts by the court reporter.

However, William H. Spohn, attorney for the Capital Times, is studying the decision in an endeavor to find a method by which an appeal may still be carried to the Supreme Court.

The battle had its origin early this year, when Rudolph Jessner, a restaurant proprieter, shot and killed a police patrolman of his district. Jessner had long been a power in "The Bush" district of Madison, corresponding to the "Jungle" of Canton, O.

At the trial, a book said to contain the names of several thousand patrons of Jessner's liquor and compiled by Jessner during several years, was submitted to the court and sealed. The names, many reported to have been of prominent local people and university students, were never made public.

On Jan. 5, 1926, the day following the murder, the Capital Times, which had always been fighting conditions in the Bush, came out with an editorial demanding the law's most extreme penalty for Jessner. The following paragraphs were part of it:

"The citizens of Madison who will look over the background that has contributed to the wanton and callous murder of Patrolman Palmer Thompson will want to know why a man of Rudolph Jessner's type, who has lived outside the law for a number of years, should have been allowed the freedom which eventuated in last night's tragedy.

"Jessner has been a party of the commercial vice-ring in this city. He has successfully evaded the law and its penalties.

"Why do we permit men of the Jessner type to be roaming the streets of Madison—a menace to this community and the people of Madison?"

On Feb. 26, during the trial, the Capital Times made the following statements editorially:

"The Capital Times desires herewith to place before Judge A. C. Hoppmann some information which, in our opinion, warrants the institution of contempt of court proceedings. It is a situation which in the interests of orderly processes of justice, should be immediately scotched and smashed.

"For several weeks two Milwaukee detectives have been seeking to fan religious prejudices in Madison and Dane County in Jessner's behalf. They have busily and industriously been spreading the story that Jessner was the victim of a Ku Klux Klan conspiracy. With this story as a basis, effort has been made to arouse Catholics of Madison and Dane county for Jessner."

The following day, F. M. Wylie, one of the attorneys for Jessner, demanded of Judge Hoppmann that William T. Evjue, editor of the Capital Times, be cited for contempt of court on the ground that the two editorials were calculated to prevent a fair trial and intimidate the court.

Judge Hoppmann did not cite Evjue for contempt, but ordered a John Doe proceeding to determine the truth or falsity of Evjue's charges. Leading Catholics and Protestants were called at the secret hearing, as were Mr. Evjue and several reporters of both Madison dailies.

Mr. Evjue, and the Capital Times, were enjoined from repeating or publishing anything that took place at the hearing.

Immediately after the hearing Mr. Evjue filed a suit to dissolve the injunction on the ground that it was contrary to Wisconsin statutes making court proceedings public.

Judge Hoppmann did not render his decision in this suit until last week, several months after Jessner had been sentenced. The need for the injunction had passed. Therefore, he dissolved it. But though giving the Capital Times a technical victory, he prevented it from carrying an appeal to the Supreme Court.

NEW PRESS CLUB

Newspaper Men of Elizabeth, N. J., and Vicinity Organize

The Union County (N. J.) Press Club, with a membership of nearly 30 active and more than 100 honorary members, has been organized with these officers: president, J. Ellis Kirkham, Elizabeth Evening Times; vice-president, Harry R. Haas, Elizabeth Daily Journal; secretary-treasurer, Charles E. Crissey, Journal. Four directors include Vincent dePaul Slavin, Newark Evening News; William E. Poet, Elizabeth Times; Kenneth Q. Jennings, Rahway Record, and Julius E. Kramer, Newark News.

The stated object of the club, aside from ordinary social purposes, is the maintenance of high ethical standards in newspaper work. The club expects to enter a cast in the city drama tournament in October, and plans for a series of large functions through the winter months, which shall bring together both active and honorary members.

MONTREAL PUBLISHER IS MURDERED

Joseph A. Beaudry, Owner of Le Prix Courant, Commercial Weekly, Found Slain in Office—Police Have No Clues

(By Telegraph to Editor & Publisher)

MONTREAL, Aug. 17.—Seated in his chair in his private office with his pen in his hand the body of Joseph A. Beaudry, editor and proprietor of Le Prix Courant, leading French-Canadian commercial weekly, was discovered by Mrs. W. Hugenin, editor of La Revue Moderne and Miss J. Leblanc, the dead man's stenographer Monday afternoon. He had been murdered. At the inquest on Wednesday Dr. Derome, medico-legal expert, who performed an autopsy, announced that Beaudry had been shot twice from behind, the first shot in the back of the head being fatal, while the second in the middle of the back was apparently fired by the assassin to make sure.

Mr. Beaudry had informed an associate that he intended to remain in his office Saturday afternoon to receive a call from some person unknown, after which he would motor to Laval Sur Le Lac Golf Club. When he did not return home his wife telephoned the office repeatedly Monday but could get no information except that the door of his private office was locked. In the afternoon she urged Mrs. Hugenin, who had a key to open the door, and accompanied by Miss Leblanc she did so. Miss Leblanc was first to enter, she saw Mr. Beaudry sitting at his desk pen in hand.

"Mrs. Beaudry is on the telephone," she announced. Then she detected death in her employer's features, screamed and ran out.

At first it was thought that Mr. Beaudry had died of heart failure but when the Coroner's Expert Dr. Derome, was called he discovered two wounds, and announced at the inquest that he had no doubt Beaudry was murdered.

The victim was prominent in the publishing business and also in political and social life in Montreal. He was a past president of St. Denis Club, president of the Retail Merchants Publishing Company, publisher of Le Prix Courant, president of Merchants Printing Company and president of La Revue Moderne.

The police are completely mystified as to the motive for the crime as no valuables were touched.

MAYOR ASKS $50,000 LIBEL DAMAGES

O. A. Cargill Files Action Against Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Walter M. Harrison, M.E.—Outgrowth of Political Fight

Libel action for $50,000 against the Oklahoma Publishing Company, publishers of the Oklahoma City Oklahoman and Times and Walter M. Harrison managing editor, was filed Aug. 13, by O. A. Cargill, mayor of Oklahoma City following a story published in the Daily Oklahoman morning issue Aug. 12, in which Cargill was quoted as saying, "To hell with the law."

The story grew out of a minor campaign against the non-enforcement of a city ordinance prohibiting political campaign posters being tacked to telephone and electric poles. A resolution was presented to Cargill by a reporter, which provided that candidates be allowed ten days' time in which to remove their posters, and following their failure to do so provided for police court charges. Cargill was asked to present it for a vote of the City Commission, after all other Commissioners had agreed to support it if Cargill would represent it.

The story on which libel was charged quoted Cargill as saying, "I won't present it and I won't support it. If the other Commissioners want it let them attend to it. We have an ordinance against putting signs on poles now. The reason they're there is because the ordinance wasn't enforced."

The paragraphs to which Cargill took exception read as follows:

"Upon being reminded that the enforcement of the ordinance is a police department matter, coming under his jurisdiction," Cargill retorted, 'That's my business.'

"Then you won't take any steps to enforce the ordinance?" he was asked.

"'Oh, to hell with you, the ordinance, the law, and everything else,'" he responded heatedly.

Sam Reeves, a former policeman, who was sitting in an ante-room to see Cargill, said he heard the conversation through the open door. He was put back on the police force Aug. 16. Cargill alleged in his petition of libel, that the newspaper published his words falsely, knowing them to be false when published.

FIRST NEWSPAPER HALF-TONE

The first modern newspaper half-tone was exhibited at the recent Detroit convention of the American Photo-Engravers Association. It was a scene in Shantytown, N. Y., reproduced from nature.

BLOCK AIDS POLICE WIDOWS

Paul Block, president of Paul Block, Inc., and of Consolidated Publishers Inc., this week presented $250 to each of six widows of New York policemen slain by criminals this year.

The checking proof problem will continue to exist as long as newspaper publishers allow it to exist. Over three hundred prominent publishers solved their problems when they first decided to try out our Complete Checking Proof Service. A demonstration is always our best argument.

The Advertising CHECKING BUREAU Inc.

538 So. Clark St. CHICAGO

79 Madison Ave. NEW YORK

Buffalo the Wonder City of America

The Year of Greatest Growth

The Buffalo Evening News—always outstanding among six-day papers

In Circulation and Advertising Volume has attained its greatest growth in 1926.

Here is the record up to and including July—

	Advertising In Agate Lines	Circulation Net Paid Average Daily
January	1,080,192	138,295
February	1,055,853	141,017
March	1,456,101	143,052
April	1,565,215	143,965
May	1,461,484	142,966
June	1,393,846	145,735
July	1,148,319	147,636

In circulation the News is rapidly approaching the 150,000 mark. In advertising volume it appears that the News will carry about sixteen million lines in 1926. That nearly everybody in Western New York reads the News is no mere advertising phrase—it's a fact. And because of that fact advertisers find it profitable to use the NEWS.

Cover the Buffalo Market with the

BUFFALO EVENING NEWS

A. B. C. Mar. 31, 1926
134,469

EDWARD H. BUTLER, Editor and Publisher

Present Average Over 145,000

National Representatives

KELLY-SMITH COMPANY

Marbridge Building
New York City

Waterman Building
Boston, Mass.

Atlantic Building
Philadelphia, Pa.

Tribune Tower
Chicago, Ill.

J. C. HARRIS, Jr., Atlanta

GENEVA COMPLETING WELCOME PLANS FOR WORLD PRESS CONGRESS

Reception at City Hall and Visit to League of Nations Assembly on Program—Theatre Parties, Luncheons, Scheduled in New York Before Sailing

CABLE advices from Special Commissioner G. Langelaan of the Press Congress of the World, who has been in Geneva and Lausanne, Switzerland, during the past week, are to the effect that the Geneva reception committee has completed details for a cordial reception to the Press Congress of the World delegates when they assemble in third session in that city on Sept. 14.

The Geneva committee, composed of representatives of the Association des Interets de Geneve, the Association de la Presse Genevoise and the Cercle de la Presse de Geneve, has arranged for a visit to the Assembly of the League of Nations; for a reception at the City Hall in Geneva; a visit to the famed Hall of the Reformation, for a reception at the University of Geneva, where the business sessions will be held; for one evening reception at which nobility will be in the receiving line, and for a visit to Byron's Villa.

At Lausanne, where business sessions will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Sept. 16, 17 and 18, citizens are also preparing to entertain the Press Congress delegates.

Details for the receptions in both Geneva and Lausanne are expected by mail during the coming week, and will be made public before the North American delegation sails from New York Sept. 4.

The Rumanian Press Association will be represented at Geneva and Lausanne by B. Branisteanu, vice-president, and editor of the Adeverul and of Dimineatsa. Madame Constance Budisteano, of Bucharest, will also attend the Third Congress. She is a prominent penwoman of Rumania.

The New York program for the entertainment of the delegates while in this city Aug. 31-Sept. 3, was completed this week, by the announcement by Charles C. Capehart, representing the Messrs. Shubert, that "The Great Temptations" now showing at the Winter Garden, will be the feature of the Wednesday night program.

The New York World management announced that the world's theatre party would be "George White's Scandals," one of the hits of the new season.

During Sept. 1, 2 and 3, there will be three luncheons, two dinners, two theatre parties, two after-theatre suppers and two extensive sight-seeing tours in honor of the Press Congress delegates who sail Friday midnight, September 3, on the Cunarder "Carmania" for Havre, and travel thence by special train to Geneva.

Reservations for steamer accommodations have been made rapidly this week, and the delegation going overseas will number upwards of 100.

Hotel Roosevelt, Madison avenue, 45-46th streets, will be the official hotel. The program in brief for the New York City entertainment follows:

August 31—Tuesday.
Registration.

September 1—Wednesday.
Downtown motor sight-seeing trip; welcome by Mayor James J. Walker.
Luncheon at Wanamaker's, Rodman Wanamaker, host.
Dinner. Karl A. Bickel, President United Press Associations, host.
Theatre party. Charles C. Capehart, of Capehart & Carey, host, in connection with Lee and S. Shubert.
After-theatre supper—New York Herald Tribune, Mr. and Mrs. Ogden M. Reid, hosts.

September 2—Thursday.
Luncheon. H. R. Swartz, president of R. Hoe & Co., Inc., host.
Upper Manhattan sight-seeing tour.
Dinner. A. R. Graustein, president, and J. L. Fearing, vice-president, International Paper Co., hosts.
Theatre Party. Ralph Pulitzer and general management of the New York World, host.
After-theatre supper, the New York Times, Adolph S. Ochs and the general management, hosts.

September 3—Friday.
Luncheon. M. Koenigsberg, President I. N. S., King Features Service, host.
Rest of the day free for shopping and private bon voyage parties.
The official steamer, Carmania of the Cunard Line, sails shortly after midnight.

TESTIMONIAL DINNER GIVEN P. A. BARRETT

Scranton, Pa., Editor Has Served Half Century in Journalism—Has Never Written Unkind Work of Any Man—Taught Many Cubs Business

Youngsters, now veterans themselves, whom he had started out in the newspaper business and many friends joined this week in giving a dinner to P. A. Barrett, editor of the Catholic Light, official organ of the Roman Catholic diocese of Scranton, Pa. The occasion was to celebrate Mr. Barrett's 50th anniversary as a newspaper man. He was for many years connected with the Scranton Times and later with the Elmira (N. Y.) Telegram.

E. J. Lynett, editor and publisher of the Scranton Times; presided at the dinner. Of Mr. Barrett dinner speakers said that during his 50 years of journalism he had never written an unkind word of any man. The speakers included Mr. Lynett, Hon. John F. Durkan, and Eugene McHugh, city editor of the New York Daily News.

Mr. Barrett started his newspaper career on the Scranton Times on Aug. 15, 1876, at the age of seventeen years. He rose rapidly in local journalism, and after filling various positions of responsibility on the Times he left that newspaper and for a time was associated with a Philadelphia newspaper. He returned to Scranton and then published the Times for three years, disposing of his interests to Dr. William Haggerty, P. H. Coyne, D. J. Campbell and others. Later he was made Scranton editor of the Elmira Telegram and remained in that capacity for thirty-one years.

With a change in ownership of the Telegram Mr. Barrett left that newspaper and soon after became editor of the Catholic Light, which position he now capably fills. The veteran editor was paid a high tribute by Mr. Lynett when he said that Mr. Barrett is the most versatile writer in Pennsylvania.

One of the features of the gathering was a reprint of the front page of the Times, issued Tuesday morning, Aug. 15, 1876, an interesting interview with the honor guest regarding his fifty years of journalism, the guest list, menu and various other features. The plate card was very unique and appropriate—a 24-point linotype slug with each guest's name indicating his place at the table.

CIRCULATION BUILDING SUPREMACY

We opened 1926 with the greatest newspaper campaign ever conducted, and secured over $300,000 in prepaid subscriptions for The Cleveland Plain Dealer. We can attain similar success for you!

THOUSANDS OF NEW, PREPAID, BONA-FIDE HOME-DELIVERED SUBSCRIBERS SECURED IN TEN WEEKS' TIME

HOLLISTER'S
Circulation Organization

Wire or Write us at 717-718 Commercial Exchange Bldg LOS ANGELES

STUDENTS DINE PROF. COOPER

Journalism Teacher's "Red Apple" Symbol of Honor at Session's End

Prof. Charles Phillips Cooper, teacher of journalism at Columbia University, and for many years night city editor of the New York Times, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the members of his summtr school class at the Algonquin Hotel, August 12.

The only guests were Mr. Cooper and his pupils, who have come not only from many states but from outside the United States to study at Columbia. They are Arline L. Bellows, Rockford, Mich.; Lorne Curtis, Jasper, Ala.; Marguerite M. Crawley, Cleveland; Alice M. Dietz, Cleveland; Helen M. Dudley, Cincinnati; Margaret K. Guth, Fremont, O.; Kathryn G. Harrison, Long Beach Cal.; Dorothea E. Herman, Lancaster, Pa.; Richard Hyman, Buenos Aires; Grace E. Mellor, Eldorado, Ark.; Helen A. Moran, Brooklyn; Mary C. Parler, Wedgefield, N. C.; Thorvaldur Peturson, Winnipeg, Man.; Camille Reynolds, Birmingham, Ala.; Helen M. Schetteg, Ebensburg, Pa.; Mary M. Stack, Brooklyn; Maude Stevens, Bartow, Fla.; Wendell A. Teague, Boston; William H. Turner, Atlanta; Edith G. Wadland, Honolulu, and William C. Bourne, Asheville, N. C.

Mr. Cooper, during his years on the faculty at Columbia has built up a tradition by awarding a mythical "red apple" to the best story of the day. His pupils have taken his honor symbol as their insignia, and at the luncheon a highly polished red apple marked each place.

ILLINOIS WEEKLIES MERGED

The Oneida (Ill.) News passed out of the newspaper field this week with the dismantling of the plant and sale of the property to Krans Brothers of Altona, who will merge it with their Altona Record and cover this field with the new paper, the Record-News. The Oneida News was founded 50 years ago by A. W. Ladd.

ROYAL DRAMA CRITI TO VISIT U. S.

Prince William of Sweden, Coming H in January—Writes Sunday Feature for His Home Newspapers—Is Also Poet and Playwright

America's story-book conception royalty is due for a jolt in January, wh Prince William of Sweden, brother of t Crown prince Gustavus Adolphus, mak a visit to the United States. Prince W liam, one is told, prefers the titles dramatic critic, newspaper writer, poet explorer rather than the supposed glam of royalty.

Dr. Borje H. Brilioth, for five yea head of the Swedish-American News E change, who sailed for Sweden, Aug. 1 told interviewers about the forthcomi visit.

"Prince William is coming in Januar not in the official manner of the Crow Prince, but in his capacity as a lecturer Dr. Brilioth said. "Prince Willia writes feature stories for the Sunda newspapers in Sweden, is the dramat critic for one of the leading newspaper is a poet and explorer, and has writte plays the subjects of his father applau or critize, just as they feel about them

Finger Tips Tell!

John A. Shaw, finger print expert, will teach your readers to read character from finger prints

"FINGER TIPS"
a three-stick feature, mat of print furnished

CURRENT NEWS FEATURES, INC.
EVENING STAR BUILDING
WASHINGTON, D. C.

A Special Wall Calendar
for
Composing Room Executives

HERE is something every composing room executive should have—a special two-color single-sheet calendar. Its large bold figures plainly show the dates of a whole year at once.

Besides being of practical value as a ready reference for present, past and future dates of an entire year—besides being unique in design—this calendar shows some facts about how it was produced that will prove both interesting and surprising—facts that will be helpful to executives who wish to keep properly informed on advanced methods of composing room practice.

Send for a copy!

Ludlow Typograph Company
2032 Clybourn Avenue, Chicago, Illinois

San Francisco: Hearst Bldg., 5 Third St.
Atlanta: Palmer Bldg., 41 Marietta St.
Boston: Cummings Bldg., 261 Franklin St.
New York: World Bldg., 63 Park Row

LUDLOW QUALITY COMPOSITION

You can deal with these 28 leading Iowa dailies as with one publication. Uniform marketing cooperation. Write for our "Iowa plan."

Crop report indicates good business ahead in Iowa

Corn prospects are better in Iowa than in most of the other corn belt states, according to the July 1st crop report of the State Department of Agriculture.

"This," says the bulletin, "places the state in a better economic condition than a year ago."

For that matter, the average Iowa family does rather well every year. Iowa people are better prospects for your goods than the average of the nation—for several good reasons.

Iowa ranks 51% above the nation's average in taxable wealth per capita.

Iowa has the lowest percentage of illiteracy of all the states. The percentage of people 18 years old who have finished high school is twice as high in Iowa as in the nation at large.

Iowa has more telephones per capita than any other state. Over 91% of Iowa's people are native born white.

One more fact about Iowa people: They are partial to their daily newspapers.

Your advertising message in the 28 leading Iowa dailies of this association will go to practically every family in the state. (Circulation 571,151. Families in Iowa—550,000.)

Let us outline how our merchandising help can be made to fit your specific need. Your letter of tentative plans will be held confidential, of course. And you will be under no obligation whatever.

THE IOWA DAILY PRESS ASSOCIATION

DAVENPORT, IOWA

Ames Tribune
Boone News-Republican
Burlington Gazette
Burlington Hawk-Eye
Cedar Falls Record
Cedar Rapids Gazette
Centerville Iowegian & Citizen
Council Bluffs Nonpareil
Davenport Democrat
Davenport Times
Des Moines Capital
Des Moines Register and Tribune
Dubuque Telegraph-Herald
Dubuque Times-Journal
Fort Dodge Messenger
Fort Madison Democrat
Iowa City Press-Citizen
Keokuk Gate-City
Marshalltown Times Republican
Mason City Globe-Gazette
Muscatine Journal
Oelwein Register
Ottumwa Courier
Sioux City Journal
Sioux City Tribune
Washington Journal
Waterloo Evening Courier
Waterloo Tribune

IOWA—WHERE EVERY FAMILY READS A DAILY NEWSPAPER

NEWSPAPER MAKERS AT WORK

By FERMAN A. WILSON

WHEN Morton M. Milford tucked a Bachelor of Arts degree in the pocket of his black broadcloth graduation suit at Wabash college in 1904 he had a notion that he was to become a doctor. Instead, he took a job as reporter on Tom Taggart's Indianapolis Sentinel—and he has been doing newspaper work ever since.

For two and a half years Mr. Milford has been editor of the Miami Daily News, owned by James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio.

Miami is the farthest south mainland city in the United States. The Daily

Morton M. Milford

News occupies a tower home of rare beauty on the shore of famous Biscayne Bay. Tropic appeal and the building of a great city combine to lure newspaper men to Miami from many states. It is an interesting coincidence that Olin W. Kennedy, managing editor of the Miami Herald also comes from Indiana and like Mr. Milford began his career as a reporter in Indianapolis, on the Sentinel, a publication long since absorbed by other Indianapolis newspaper interests.

Mr. Milford came to Florida in 1919. He had purchased the Fort Myers Daily Press. He chose Florida as a place of residence and investment because it appealed to him as the pleasantest of all places and because he sensed the oncoming era of development which was to make Florida a national sensation. For 10 years Mr. Milford had been in Washington; first as assistant to the correspondent for the Indianapolis News and then as correspondent for the Louisville Times and Courier-Journal. In 1920 he was on duty at the national headquarters of the Democrat party in New York City and here he renewed his acquaintence with Gov. Cox whom he first had known in Washington as a congressman from Ohio. Before going to Washington Mr. Milford had served on the staffs of the Memphis Commercial Appeal and Memphis News Scimitar, and then back again to Indiana on the staff of the Indianapolis News.

While he recognizes some handicaps because of geographical location, Mr. Milford believes the advantages of Miami far outweigh possible impediments and he has the faith of a crusader in his belief that the Miami Daily News is destined to become nationally known as a distinctive publication.

"It is a privilege," this pleasant mannered executive tells his associates, "to work in this favored spot. Never anywhere at any time has there been such a setting and so much inspiration and such unending possibilites for the production of a modern newspaper. Our newspaper serves an ultra-progressive community; a community filled with the romance of virile business; a community which attracts notables from all over the world; a community teeming with big news events.

"Gov. Cox of course realized this when he invested here and demonstrated his steadfast faith by erecting a $1,000,000 home for the Daily News and providing modern equipment. When Gov. Cox bought the paper, then known as the Metropolis, a little more than three years ago, the circulation was 8,000; today it has more than quadrupled that mark and the growth continues.

"All this means that our staff must be keenly alert. We have all the problems of the average newspaper and then some. Thus, we suffer in common with other American newspapers by the lack of trained men. Sometimes I wonder what the answer will be. While there has been a movement amounting almost to a fad to train newspaper workers by textbook and rigid rule, the result is far from satisfactory and goes to emphasize the fact that the only place to learn how to make a newspaper is in a newspaper office.

"Lack of really competent copyreaders is an example. Almost every newspaper, large or small, will give any person a tryout who says he can edit copy and write headlines. Hope springs eternal. For some reason, they don't seem to be making copyreaders any more. This is hard on the newspapers for a clever desk means so much. In my opinion, the copy desk should be made the ambition of every reporter who excels. Not that every reporter will become a good copyreader for after all copyreaders are born, not made. But the reporter who has a natural adaptability for the work, who can edit copy free from error and libel and write a head that is a head, should be encouraged."

Mr. Milford believes in placing every member of the staff on his own responsibility and while generous in his expressed admiration for work well done, he will not tolerate haphazard, slothful work on the part of an editor, copyreader or reporter. He believes in making every department realize the importance of doing the best possible work. When the society editor sets a high mark with unusually attractive layouts and writeups, he cites the accomplishment as an incentive to the other workers. Excellence of the sports department means that everybody else must try to do as well.

"Keep the paper clean," is a thought Mr. Milford continually keeps before the staff and woe to the person guilty of an off-color picture or story. He does not favor the idea of suppressing crime news nor does he wish to over-play it; of two items, one on crime and the other not and both of approximate importance, he would favor a play on the non-crime item. He believes in a newspaper being fair, truthful and polite—the kind of a newspaper your mother would read.

The Miami Daily News, as a member of the Cox chain of newspapers, is actuated by the same general policy that Don Mellet, slain editor of the Canton Daily News, upheld; a policy involving the principle of clean government. Editor Milford exemplifies this principle by fearless use of the news columns and by frank editorials, editorials specific in their charges and strong in their demand to right a wrong, these editorials at times appearing in double column measure on the first page. Within the last few months the Daily News has attacked conditions and officials, a circuit court judge, sheriff and governor of the state being among those to feel the sting of the Daily News editorial lash.

CAL TALKS TO PAUL SMITH

Brussels Daily Reports His Statements in Interesting Conversation

Le Soir, of Brussels, perpetrated the following, which is an exact translation of a news item that appeared in that paper:

"Advice to American Tourists—Speaking today to Mr. Paul Smith (State of New York) President Coolidge expressed the hope that Americans going abroad will bear in mind the situation of the countries they visit, and will not allow themselves to pass any criticism or make unjustified recrimination."

CARTER FIELD RECOVERED

Carter Field, head of the New York Herald Tribune Washington bureau, has recovered from his recent operation sufficiently to enable him to join the President at the summer White House at Paul Smith's, N. Y. Mr. Field stopped at the New York office for a short visit.

A. P. ADDS HONORARY REPORTER TO STAFF

O. B. Keeler, Atlanta Journal, Honored for Obtaining Bobby Jones Interview —Presented Watch by Cooper at Dinner Aug. 18

O. B. Keeler, golf writer on the staff of the Atlanta Journal, was appointed an honorary member of the Associated Press reporting staff this week in appreciation of the service he performed in obtaining an exclusive interview with "Bobby" Jones, the golf champion.

The appointment was announced by Kent Cooper, A. P. general manager, at a dinner in Atlanta on Wednesday evening, Aug. 18. Mr. Cooper also presented Mr. Keeler with a watch on behalf of the A. P. membership.

On the day following the dinner Mr. Cooper, Keeler, and "Bobby" Jones played golf over a local course.

The Jones interview was part of a series of sports stories planned by Mr. Cooper. Other interviews in the series obtained by staff correspondents were with Helen Wills, William Tilden, Glenna Collett and Walter Hagen.

The series was well received by the membership.

J. BROOKS ATKINSON WEDS

J. Brooks Atkinson, dramatic critic of the New York Times, and Mrs. Orlana T. MacIlveen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Perrey of New York, were married Wednesday at the Municipal Building, New York. Mr. Atkinson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan H. Atkinson of Melrose, Mass. He was graduated from Harvard in 1917, after which he became a member of the staff of the Boston Transcript. He came to the Times in 1922 as editor of the Book Review and in August, 1925, he became dramatic critic.

Your Advertising Problem in Buffalo is Simplified

Your advertising in The Buffalo Courier-Express will reach practically all the buyers in Buffalo and adjacent territory. No advertiser need any longer use two newspapers to tell his story to the same people.

The problem was simplified for you by the merger of two great dailies. The Buffalo Courier-Express stands alone, all powerful in the morning field—giving you in a single effort a coverage that is definite and absolute.

Also there is a metropolitan Sunday newspaper, The Buffalo Sunday Courier-Express, which will carry your story to the largest audience reached by any paper in New York State outside of New York City.

Courier BUFFALO EXPRESS
Buffalo's Best Newspaper

Lorenzen & Thompson, Incorporated
Publishers' Direct Representatives

Chicago New York San Francisco Seattle

The El Paso Post, a Scripps-Howard newspaper, is first in El Paso, reaching more El Paso families than any other newspaper.

Represented by ALLIED NEWSPAPERS, INC., 250 Park Avenue, New York

NEW A. N. A. E. LEADERS NAMED BY CARROLL

President, Vice-President, Secretary-Treasurer and Directors Elected at Philadelphia—Other Appointments Now Made

The complete list of officers and directors of the Association of Newspaper Advertising Executives was announced this week by Frank T. Carroll, Indianapolis News, president.

The president, vice-president, secretary-treasurer and directors were elected at the Philadelphia convention. All other appointments are made public for the first time.

The list follows:

President, Frank T. Carroll, advertising director, Indianapolis News.

Vice-President, Wm. E. Donahue, manager, local display advertising, Chicago Tribune.

Secretary-treasurer, Don Bridge, manager, merchandising and national advertising, Indianapolis News.

DIRECTORS: A. L. Shuman, vice-president and advertising manager, Ft. Worth Star-Telegram & Record-Telegram.

H. S. Conlon, advertising manager, Grand Rapids Press.

W. S. Rogers, advertising manager, Boston Transcript.

Frank E. Tripp, general manager, Gannett Newspapers, Inc.

J. K. Groom, director national advertising, Northern Illinois Group.

Irving R. Smith, advertising manager, Los Angeles Times.

John F. Tims, Jr., business manager, New Orleans Times-Picayune.

Frank T. Carroll.

Wm. E. Donahue.

MEMBERS OF ADVERTISING COMMISSION, International Advertising Association: George M. Burbach, advertising manager, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

A. L. Shuman, vice-president and advertising manager, Ft. Worth Star-Telegram & Record-Telegram.

Harvey R. Young, director of advertising, Columbus Dispatch.

ADVISORY COUNCIL: Carl P. Slane, publisher, Peoria Journal-Transcript.

Charles S. Bates, advertising manager, Miami Herald.

A. L. Poorman, advertising manager, Providence Journal-Bulletin.

H. E. Dreier, advertising manager, Oklahoma City Oklahoman & Times.

H. A. Sprague, business manager, St. Joseph News-Press.

M. S. Aronhime, advertising manager, Louisville Courier-Journal & Times.

Andrew J. Simpson, Bay City Times-Tribune.

A. G. Newmyer, associate publisher, New Orleans Item & Tribune.

Harry T. Watts, business manager, Des Moines Register-Tribune.

Henry C. Carpenter, advertising manager, Lancaster Intelligencer & News-Journal.

G. W. Roche, advertising manager, Spokane Daily Chronicle.

Harry D. Guy, advertising manager, Dallas News.

George M. Burbach, advertising manager, St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Frank T. Carroll.

COMMITTEE ON AGENCY RELATIONS: Harvey R. Young, Columbus Dispatch.

F. J. Oexman, manager national advertising, Cincinnati Times-Star.

SPEAKERS BUREAU: Wm. E. Donahue, Chicago Tribune.

VICE-PRESIDENTS: England, Lt. Col. Edward F. Lawson, assisting managing proprietor, London Daily Telegraph.

France: Dr. Marcel Knecht, general secretary, Le Matin, Paris.

Hawaii: H. S. Hayward, general business manager, Honolulu Star-Bulletin.

Philippine Islands: Carson Taylor, publisher, Manila Bulletin.

Canada (Alberta): George B. Cooper, advertising manager, Edmonton Journal.

British Columbia: R. J. Cramie, publisher, Vancouver Sun.

Ontario: R. K. Stokes, advertising manager, Toronto Globe.

Nova Scotia: C. P. Greene, advertising manager, Halifax Chronicle.

Alabama: J. E. Chappell, business manager, Birmingham News.

Arizona: Wesley W. Knorpp, business manager, Phoenix Republican.

Arkansas: Sam E. Gearhart, manager, local advertising, Fort Smith Times-Record.

California: W. H. B. Fowler, general manager, San Francisco Chronicle.

Colorado: F. I. Carruthers, advertising manager, Denver Post.

Connecticut: Wm. H. Oat, general manager, Norwich Bulletin.

District of Columbia: Col. LeRoy W. Herron, advertising manager, Washington Star.

Delaware: Clarence P. Pyle, general manager, Wilmington Journal & News.

Florida: J. H. Hampton, advertising manager, Tampa Tribune.

Georgia: C. B. Wright, advertising manager, Rome News-Tribune.

Illinois: J. M. McMurry, advertising manager, Bloomington Daily Pantagraph.

Indiana: Jesse E. Foster, advertising manager, Connersville News-Examiner.

Iowa: F. Russell, business manager, Davenport Times.

Kansas: C. L. Nicholson, advertising manager, Hutchinson Daily News.

Kentucky: W. H. Marmon, advertising manager, Paducah Evening Sun.

Louisiana: Jas. W. Worthington, Monroe News-Star.

Maryland: W. F. Schmick, business manager, Baltimore Sun.

Massachusetts: N. S. Rose, Christian Science Monitor, Boston.

Michigan: Mavis C. Hinken, Saginaw News Courier.

Minnesota: Wm. F. Henry, business manager, Duluth Herald.

Mississippi: W. G. Johnson, general manager, Jackson Daily News.

Missouri: J. J. McClellan, advertising manager, Joplin Globe-News-Herald.

Nebraska: Fred Seacrest, business manager, Nebraska State Journal.

New Jersey: F. E. Wallace, advertising manager, Elizabeth Daily Journal.

New York: E. P. Cosling, advertising manager, Rochester Times-Union.

North Carolina: W. K. Hoyt, general manager, Winston-Salem Journal.

North Dakota: Norman B. Black, general manager, Fargo Forum.

Ohio: H. A. Brandt, advertising manager, Dayton News.

Oklahoma: Rex Justus, advertising manager, Tulsa Daily World.

Oregon: W. J. Hofman, advertising manager, Portland Oregonian.

Pennsylvania: Joe W. Simpson, national advertising department, Philadelphia Bulletin.

Rhode Island: T. F. Dwyer, advertising manager, Providence Tribune.

South Carolina: Wm. P. Etchison, advertising manager, Columbia State.

Tennessee: G. W. Ritchie, advertising manager, Memphis Commercial-Appeal.

Texas: F. G. Huntress, publisher, San Antonio Express.

Utah: H. F. Robinson, business manager, Salt Lake Tribune.

Washington: S. S. Anderson, advertising manager, Tacoma News-Tribune.

West Virginia: H. W. Manz, advertising manager, Huntington Herald-Dispatch.

Wisconsin: Irving C. Buntman, advertising manager, Milwaukee Herald.

Wyoming: W. S. Sopris, business manager, Sheridan Post-Enterprise.

Largest morning and Sunday circulation in the Greatest Market west of Chicago
170,000 Daily
390,000 Sunday
LOS ANGELES Examiner

FRESNO RETAIL STORE ADVERTISES ETHICS

Radin & Kamp Purchases Space in Morning Republican in Drive to Establish Reader Confidence—Tribute Paid by Tyler

Radin & Kemp, Fresno department store, has purchased space in the Fresno (Cal.) Morning Republican in a special drive to establish reader-confidence in the printed word. In his copy, S. H. Stone, the store's advertising manager, is preaching the gospel of truth in advertising.

Quotations from a recent advertisement are:

"Public confidence is the greatest asset any store can lay claim to."

"It is as futile as commanding the ocean to cease its restless rolling for a merchant to expect to grow and develop unless he, his policies and actions are believed in by the community in which his business is conducted.

"Honesty is not only the best policy—it is the ONLY policy. Telling the truth is a virtue, but telling the WHOLE truth is a greater virtue . . . One that is proportionally awarded by the removal of all questions from the minds of customers."

"Dishonesty generally has its roots in ignorance or stupidity. Leaving all questions of morals aside, the intelligent merchant will strive for absolute honesty because he knows it will pay dividends and in no direction will truth telling bring more certain rewards than in advertising."

"Truth in advertising has been glorified. It has been shouted from the housetops of business . . . declaimed from the temples that have been constructed to printed publicity. But let us not be satisfied with the truth, fair as her form may be, for the WHOLE truth is the greatest begetter of business known to the channels of advanced commerce. It not only inspires confidence—it perpetuates confidence, and confidence keeps the wheels of industry and progress well oiled."

Calling the attention of EDITOR & PUBLISHER to the enterprise of the Fresno store, W. E. Tyler, advertising manager of the Fresno Republican, commended Mr. Stone for his drive.

"We feel," he said, "that Mr. Stone has had the courage of his convictions to sustain the code of ethics which is a very favored step in the right direction."

NEW CALIFORNIA WEEKLY

Frank A. Harrison has established at Granada Park, Cal., a new weekly paper, the Pioneer.

America's Complete Newspaper
New York Herald Tribune

Do You Want Answers To These Questions?

How you can get more circulation?
Where you should go after it most?
What your promotion budget should be?
Whether your delivery service, street and stand coverage are efficient?
Whether your circulation department is operating economically?
Whether you are earning the maximum rate per thousand papers distributed?
What readers and non-readers think of your paper?
What might be done to make it stick better?

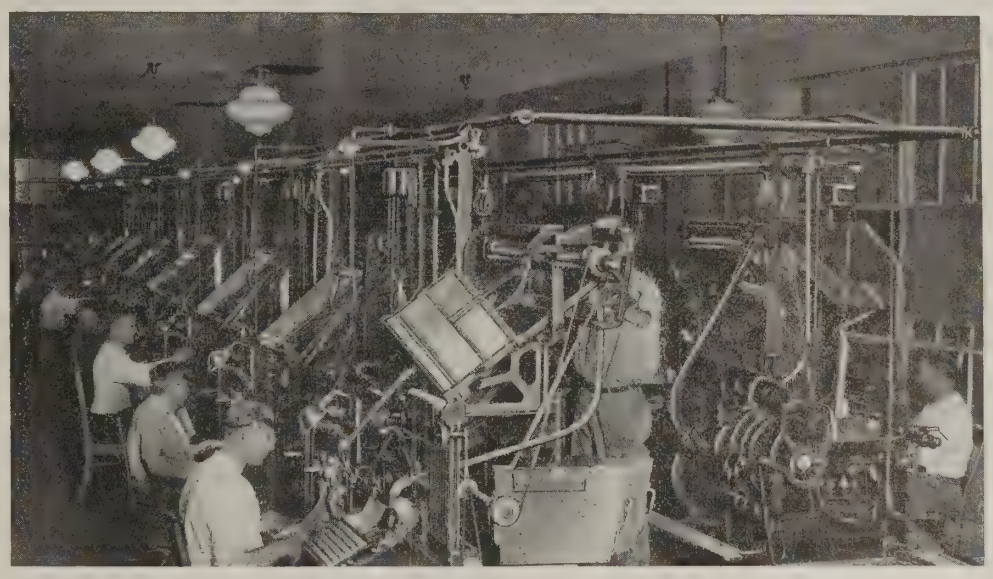
I can get you answers to these and other questions on circulation in a two or three week's survey. I'll gamble my time against your money. If you find my conclusions and recommendations worth my fee, pay it. If not, don't; you to be the sole judge of whether my work is worth the price. Fair enough?

Available September 6. Write or wire now.

J. OMANSKY
CIRCULATION COUNSELLOR
614 Park Bldg., Cleveland, O.

NO STANDARDIZED INTERTYPE HAS EVER BECOME OBSOLETE

"superior in every particular"



THE following letter was written after fourteen months' test of twenty Standardized Intertypes, by C. G. Manuel, Superintendent, Houston Post-Dispatch:

"It is now fourteen months since the Post-Dispatch moved into its new plant.

"I don't suppose there was ever an old-established newspaper moved into a modern plant and started off with as near 100 per cent new equipment, from the galleys in the composing room to the paper conveyors in the press room, as was the Post-Dispatch.

"It was a matter of absolute abandonment of old and quite out-of-date equipment and adoption of nearly everything new that the manufacturers had to offer.

"Among this modern equipment was a battery of twenty Standardized Intertypes: three C-s.m.'s, four C's, and thirteen B's.

Intertypes in the Composing Room of the Houston Post-Dispatch

"Not one of the regular operators had ever operated an Intertype. All had their own opinions, and perhaps some of the opinions were not favorable. However, fourteen months has demonstrated many things to the individual workmen, and also to the office, as to the very decided superiority of Intertypes over any other typesetting machines.

"Allow me to mention some of the results we are getting from this battery:

"They are operated at a speed of 8¼ lines per minute. The distribution is so nearly perfect that stops from that cause will not average one machine per night. One individual machine was checked for a period of thirty days without a distributor stop.

"Hot metal, one of the chief causes of lost time on typesetting machines, has not caused the loss of ten minutes on the entire battery over the period of their operation.

"About a month ago our fuel was changed from artificial to natural gas. We did not change the main line governor, neither did we make any adjustment on the individual machine governors. Production of perfect slugs continued as usual. Some other newspaper offices here in Houston were not so fortunate. It is my information that they are still having trouble with hot and cold slugs. Really, they sent messengers out to look us over and see how it was done.

"Our seven display and ad machines are equipped from 6-pt. to 36-pt. It is not unusual, when the run of news is heavy, to change any of those machines over to 12-ems 7-pt. and go right through without a stop. We cover this range continually.

"Another feature that we have demonstrated is to convert a 7-pt. and 5-pt. machine into a 14-pt., 34-pt. and 42-pt. headletter, in not over 5 minutes' time, without an adjustment. I cite that instance just to show that any machine we have can do anything any other machine in our plant is equipped to do. The most serious breakdown on any individual machine could delay us for only a few minutes."

Write for folder showing the layout of this modern newspaper plant, and other Intertype literature. If you wish to see our local representative, please so state.

Standardized
INTERTYPE
TRADE MARK

INTERTYPE CORPORATION, 1440-A BROADWAY, at 40th Street, NEW YORK

CHICAGO MEMPHIS SAN FRANCISCO BOSTON LOS ANGELES TORONTO LONDON

EDITORIAL

NEW CENSORSHIP TRICK

AGAIN the week's news brings a tale of a judge besting an editor at law.

This time it happened in Madison, Wis., which several months ago was waging war against the lawless element in its community. It started in the murder of a policeman, and developed complexities in the form of a bootlegger's list said to contain names of prominent and respectable citizens, plus the interjection of religious and Ku Klux Klan prejudices. The latter elements were challenged in a bare-fisted editorial by William T. Evjue, editor of the Capital-Times, who demanded contempt proceedings against those who had introduced the religious controversy. Attorneys for the bootlegger accused of murdering the policeman in turn demanded contempt charges against the editor, accusing him of prejudicing a fair trial and attempting to intimidate the court.

The judge, however, elected to apply another set of legal rules. He ordered John Doe proceedings to investigate the truth of Mr. Evjue's charges, and then enjoined the local newspapers from printing anything that occurred at the hearings.

Mr. Evjue immediately applied for dissolution of the injunction on the ground that it was contrary to Wisconsin statutes making court proceedings public. Public interest in the affair was at its height when Mr. Evjue's suit was filed, but months passed, the defendant in the murder trial had been convicted and sentenced, and Madison had thought of many other things before His Honor rendered a decision.

Need for the injunction had long since passed, so it was graciously dissolved by the judge, thereby automatically closing the case and preventing review by a higher court of his arbitrary and high-handed censorship.

Congress is expressly forbidden the right to enact laws abridging the freedom of the press, but Constitutional limitations and state statutes fade like steam before the majesty of a county judge. He can name his own set of rules and be his own umpire at every stage of the game.

Very naturally public interest in editorials wanes when editorial interest wanes in the vital, controversial questions of the people and the day.

BUYING POWER

WHAT was the buying power, say in the first six months of 1926, of the average citizen of your trading area? When you answer that question you describe the actual prosperity of your community. Buying power may be found, in approximate form, by investigating incomes, but nothing in the whole realm of information is more difficult to obtain. Bank statistics shed important light on the subject, but do not tell the whole story. Income tax returns are not revealing because minor incomes are not included and large incomes are often legally manipulated. Incomes from securities, real-estate and other investments are usually reflected in bank deposits, but these reports may be highly deceptive. Significant statistics are obtainable from local chamber of commerce reports on turn-overs of merchandise in wholesale and retail shops and manufacturing institutions and incomes from local services are usually available. Naturally, as the average American community is a mass of working people, payrolls furnish a dependable index to a very important section of the consuming public.

Many false statistics are afloat in regard to city and county buying power. They are dangerous and are to be avoided. Such statistics are sometimes stated in positive terms, but they are really only rough estimates of income, divided by population estimates. National advertisers are trading on these inaccurate figures.

Local statistics must be found locally and as there is sure to be a certain amount of guesswork in them, those best qualified by intimate knowledge of local affairs should do the guessing, not a clerk in a statistical publishing house in a distant city. Any newspaper business manager who works out an authoritative buying power figure for his county will serve the general advertising fraternity, his people and his paper.

Press censorship is a military horror and a civil abomination.

Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill.—St. Matthew; V, 17.

NEW A. B. C. SERVICE

GOOD service is being rendered the publishing industry by newspaper members of the Audit Bureau of Circulations who are protesting against the A.B.C. decision to permit publication of rate cards on the semi-annual statements of circulations. While no danger, immediate or remote, appears to threaten the existing newspaper advertising structure as a result of this step by the A.B.C. directors, but it is by the open and thorough discussion of such matters that undue regulation of publishers' affairs by the buyers of their space can be prevented.

In the present case, no publisher is to be compelled to furnish his rate card for publication. The expression in the Bureau's announcement of the plan that eventually it might lead to standardization of the time of rate changes on a semi-annual basis was no more than the hope of some members and did not commit the Bureau to any such program.

The newspaper business, as at present constituted, cannot be conducted with any statutory date for the adjustment of advertising rates and it is easy to picture a number of conditions that a rule of that kind might arouse to plague publishers and advertisers.

Publishers who object to the plan on the ground that it is a departure from the Bureau's original program will have difficulty in defending their academic point against those who will argue the obvious benefits of the plan to both buyers and sellers of space. A good case can be made out for the need of progress, and EDITOR & PUBLISHER sees here no valid objection to the Bureau's proposed service, as now delineated.

Argument that the expenditures for the new service might better have been used for reduction of dues paid by newspaper publishers will find many receptive hearers, even though the few thousand dollars necessary to institute the service and the far smaller amounts needed for its annual maintenance would permit little relief in the desired direction.

The Bureau has steadfastly and rightly maintained that it should be governed by the advertising interests, in the face of the fact that its greatest source of income is the daily newspaper. It will find the latter group generally favorable to any intensification of its efforts to clean up remaining circulation abuses, but until some part of its increasing surplus is used for the reduction of newspaper dues, it will find stiff opposition among newspaper members to extension of its labors into fields outside of circulation. That question cannot be solved forever by ignoring it.

Commendation of newspapers by advertisers for better printing recalls the fellow who, when he couldn't improve his product, improved the box.

WATCHING NEWSPRINT

NEWSPRINT stocks in publishers' hands are slowly on the increase, indicating that heed has been given to early summer advice to guard against shortage during the expected heavy fall demand. North American mills are breaking all tonnage records and their percentage of increased output during the first seven months of this year is almost double that in recorded newspaper advertising growth. Consumption records are certain to touch new heights if fall and early winter advertising reaches newspapers in the predicted volume, but there is no reason to apprehend a shortage. Existing machines and those to go into operation before the end of the year can supply all demands.

MR. OCHS' ANNIVERSARY

NEWSPAPER men of all ranks and beliefs will echo the congratulations received by Adolph S. Ochs this week on the completion of 30 years as proprietor and publisher of the New York Times. The story of the Times is an epic of American journalism and its history during the 75 years since Henry J. Raymond will be recited fully next month.

Today's attention is concentrated upon the achievement of Mr. Ochs, who took the wreck of what remained of Raymond's great daily and in miraculously few years restored all of its old prestige and a far greater measure of prosperity than it had ever enjoyed. Mr. Ochs may well point with pride to the material evidences of what he has done—a newspaper held in respect throughout the world, earning an annual income now in excess of $25,000,000, owing not a penny beyond the obligations of day-to-day business, having its ownership concentrated in the main among its active conductors, and owning, many will agree with Mr. Ochs, the finest production plant in America. Mr. Ochs and his colleagues have kept always before them their axiom that news is the newspaper's body, heart and soul, and they have developed it with a zeal and integrity that merits fully the reward that is theirs.

The critic who cried "what price newspaper ethics" hadn't heard of the Wall Street reporter who didn't try to turn his General Motors tip into cash before turning it into news.

BUCKING THE TIDE

THE subject of these remarks is a German-born manufacturer of chocolate products, scion of a family famous in the art for three generations and he has been bucking the modern tide in America with his old-fashioned notions for 25 years. He told us the story and when it was time for us to weep we shocked him with laughter.

He knows how to make chocolate; indeed, he has few equals. He knows how to buy the best beans most efficiently bring it to a tempting morsel, pack it in a first-class container and ship it to meet the customer's demand. He knows everything, except—

(1) That it is not enough to make a good chocolate—even the very best chocolate. (2) That it is no longer possible in this country to sell branded quality to local jobbers and dealers, unless their customers are demanding it; (3) That the burden of creating customer demand falls on manufacturers.

Would you believe that there is in the United States an important manufacturer in whom the notion persists that this settled commercial order can be successfully resisted? Our friend is that gentleman, and he is in deep business trouble, his stubborn, unyielding opinion that "it's all wrong" being the most serious complication. His business today is chiefly confined to making goods for others to sell under their own brands. They make the profit. He has established no leading brand of his own.

We told him that he would come to advertising, or to closed doors. It was sincere advice, but his reaction was anger. Presently we began to feel that he considered us deep in the devilish plot. We sought to satisfy him by appealing to reason—exhibiting well-established proofs that, rather than being an "economic waste" advertising may increase production and thereby lower cost and retail price. It might be true, he said, in the case of evaporated milk, or electric washers, or this or that, but his chocolate business was "something different." If he were to lower the price, quality would suffer. "I'll not start now to put on the market these vile, shoddy, even unhealthful substitutes for the real thing."

Our friend would not concede that any advertised product in his line compared in quality with his product, although he admitted that one was "pretty good." Was that one produced profitably? Oh, yes, the business was a "gold mine." Well, would he not take his own product and figure his business on the basis of national distribution, at a competitive price, with national advertising and decide from these figures whether the problem was unsolvable?

His dismal reply was, "It's all wrong, and out of reason," but we expect some day to hear that he has placed an advertising account with one of the agencies. Some men are like that.

PERSONAL

OGDEN M. REID, editor and publisher of the New York Herald Tribune, Mrs. Reid and their son Whitelaw, sailed from New York this week on their yacht "Lena" to take part in the annual cruise and races of the New York Yacht Club.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, publisher of the Philadelphia Public Ledger and the New York Evening Post, gave an informal talk before the Belfast (Me.) Rotary Club Aug. 9. on the history of his ownership of the Saturday Evening Post.

James M. Cox, president of the News League of Ohio, and also publisher of the Miami (Fla.) News, arrived in England last week on the Aquitania.

Frank D. Throop, publisher of the Davenport (Ia.) Democrat, has just returned from a two weeks' automobile trip in Michigan.

Frank O. Edgecombe, publisher of the Geneva (Neb.) Weekly Signal and past president of the National Editorial Association, is recovering from an operation in Chicago.

